FOUR HUNDRED DOLLAR PIANO GIVEN AWAY!

Also Handsome Gold Watches to Those Who Work With Determination.

Today The Observer begins a Voting Contest in which the most popular person who shall become a candidate and get the most votes will be presented with an elegant four hundred dollar Piano from the famous house of Willis & Co., piano makers, Montreal.

Three other contestants will be presented with beautiful and costly Gold Watches.

People of Carleton county are thoroughly familiar with the contests carried on by other papers and The Observer contest will be conducted on similar lines, with some variations that will enable candidates to secure votes with greater ease.

The conditions, while rigid, are few and simple, and are these:

1. Anyone may become a candidate by filling in the blank at the bottom of this page, cutting it out and mailing it to this address: "Observer Contest," Hartland, N. B. A person may nominate one's self or nominate some other person. Absolutely no restriction's will be placed on who may become candidates.

2. Any candidate whose number of votes is not increased by 1000 each week will be suspended from the contest.

3. Votes will not be transferable. No candidate can sell out to another.

How To Get Votes.

Votes are given for new or renewal subscriptions to the Observer when such are sent in with the Coupon printed below. One subscriber at 75 cents for one year will entitle the candidate whose name is written in the proper place on the coupon to 1000 votes. Anyone can get the paper for three years for $2.00 for which 5000 votes will be given.

It makes no difference whether a subscriber is a new or a former one.

Subscribers who are already paid in advance may have their subscription extended an additional year on payment of 75 cents and, whatever candidate they designate will be given 1000 votes; or by paying $2.00 they can have their subscription extended three years and give their favorite candidate 5000 votes.

A number of merchants throughout the country will also give voting coupons, good for 100 votes, to cash purchasers. A list of the dealers who will give these coupons will be given next week.

Some lady or gentleman, young or old, will win this Beautiful Four Hundred Dollar Piano and it will be shipped to them direct from the factory soon as the contest closes. The Piano, in a beautiful mahogany case, is the best at the price to be found in the Dominion—and $400 is the price—it never sells for less. That Willis & Co. of Montreal are the makers is sufficient guarantee.

The Prizes.

The candidate securing the greatest number of votes will get the Fine Willis Piano.

In addition to the Piano beautiful Gold Watches will be given as follows:

One to the candidate in each of these districts who gets the most votes and fails to get the Piano:

District No. 1—Parishes of Brighton, Peel, Wakefield and Simonds.

District No. 2—Parishes of Kent, Aberdeen, Wicklow and Wilmot.

District No. 3—Parishes of Woodstock, Richmond and Northampton, and Woodstock town.

District No. 4—anywhere outside of Carleton county.

If YOU want this Piano it is yours if you hustle. Write your name on the nomination blank, send it to the "Observer Contest," Hartland, N. B., and then hustle for votes. Your friends will help you. Get them to work for you getting subscribers and votes right away. We want someone to get this Piano on Christmas Day, if possible. Get to work now. Remember every candidate that does not get at least 1000 votes each week will be struck off the list. Remember, also, that the leading merchants will give voting coupons for every cash purchase.

TESTED RECIPES.

Oranges.—In tropical countries a favorite orange dish is made by slicing them, either peeled or not, into a dish and sprinkling with salt and red (cayenne or Chilipiquin, the little globular) peppers to taste. Very palatable and very stomachic and wholesome, corrective of bilious conditions.

Green Peppers.—Mexican cooks, who excel in the use of these pungent vegetables, first toast them over coals or on a stove until the thick outer skin blisters; then when it is cooled, peel it off. This not only removes the unpleasant and indigestible tough skin but imparts a different and far more agreeable taste to the peppers, whether of the sweet or the hot varieties.

Peppers with Corn and Tomatoes.—Six large green peppers, one and a half cupful of corn cut from the cob, half a cupful of tomatoes, chopped, one egg, slice of onion, one cupful of stock, salt, pepper and dust of red pepper. Dip the peppers in hot grease and remove the thin outer skin. When cold cut across the stem end of the pepper, remove the seeds and membrane from the peppers, then wipe dry. Make a stuffing of all the other ingredients except the stock. Fill the peppers with the stuffing and tie with a white cord. Place in a buttered baking dish, add the stock and bake until tender. Baste often while cooking. Serve hot.

Caramel Tapioca Pudding.—Soak a cupful of tapioca in two cupfuls of milk over night. In the morning put these into a double boiler with a pint of sweet milk and cook until the tapioca is tender. Take from the fire; beat in the yolks of three eggs; sweeten to taste, and add half a glass of brandy. Pour into pudding dish to get cold. To make the caramel—Brown a cupful of sugar in a saucepan over the fire, stirring as it browns. When of the right color add a cupful of boiling water and cook to a syrup. When it is cold add the stiffened yolks of three eggs; beat well and long, pour upon the pudding in the dish. Serve ice cold.

Silver Cake.—Half a cup of butter and two cups of powdered sugar, creamed together. Then add a quarter of a cup of milk (or half milk and half water), one teaspoonful of lemon or of rosewater, whites of six eggs well beaten, three heaping cupfuls of flour, half teaspoonful of soda, and a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Use a white frosting. You may make it in a loaf or as a layer cake or it may be used as the base of a white fruit cake. If for the latter, add a grated coconut, half a pound of sliced citron, and a pound of blanched almonds, shredded finely. Dredge the fruits and nuts with flour and stir into the cake batter.

Creamed Radishes.—Peel the radishes and lay in ice-cold water, slightly salted, for an hour. Have ready boiling water, a little salt in a saucepan, put in the radishes and cook tender. Drain off the water and pour in a second supply of boiling water. Bring to a boil; drain the radishes and turn into a deep dish. Cover them with a good drawn butter, seasoned with pepper and salt, and serve when they have stood in the sauce for the open oven for five minutes to let the dressing sink into them. What is left over may be made into a salad next day (cold). Cover with French dressing and surround with crisp lettuce leaves.

USEFUL INFORMATION.

When whisking an egg be sure that your basin and knife or whisk are perfectly dry, if you wish a good stiff froth.

Maiden-hair fern will keep perfectly if laid between the folds of a damp cloth. It is so apt to shrivel if put in water.

A little vinegar put in the frying pan and then boiled up on the stove removes the odor of fish or onions from the utensil.

Your black crepe de chine blouse will look almost as good as new if it is dipped in cold tea and then ironed.

Joists of meat should be carefully wiped with a damp cloth before cooking. They are apt to get musty while hanging in the shop.

Silver will not need as much rubbing if before cleaning it is washed in hot soap and water with a little fluid ammonia in it.

Paint stains will often yield to alternate applications of turpentine and benzine. Try this, using turpentine first.

A small brush, such as can be bought for five cents at any oil store, should hang over the sink. Use it for scrubbing the handles of cups and jugs.

Salt for table purposes will not take if it is dried and powdered, and has a little cornflour mixed with it. It should be passed through a sieve.

A flour dredger which costs nothing can be made of an empty mustard or cocoa tin. Bore a number of small holes in the cover and it is ready for use.

To get rust off keys and locks leave them to soak, for forty-eight hours and then rub well with newspaper. Soaking a second time may be necessary.

Sateen cushion covers are apt to lose their gloss after washing. Add borax to the final rinsing water, and you will be surprised when a nice gloss will come when ironed.

To Clean Hard Felt Hats.—Procure one pint of cheap benzine, and then, with a piece of black material dipped into it, rub the greased part till perfectly clean. Hang in the open air to disperse the smell.

To Clean Willow Furniture.—Provide yourself with a coarse brush dipped in strong salt and water; scrub each piece well; dry with a soft cloth. The salt cleans the willowware well and also keeps it from turning yellow. Straw matting may be cleaned in like manner.

To Clean Hair Brushes.—Mix a little household ammonia in lukewarm water and wash the brush in this, taking care not to wet the back. If a brush be very dirty add a little soap to the water, or rub it upon the bristles. Then rinse in clean water. Hang in the air to dry. If the brush be laid upon the back, the water will run down into it and injure the wood or ivory of which it is made. If laid with the back up, the wet bristles are bent by the weight. Never let the bristles rest upon anything while they are damp. Suspend the brush where the air will reach it from all sides.

When winter comes, be sure to keep a pan of water upon stoves and furnaces. It will soften the air and ward off headache, also prevent furniture from warping and falling apart. If you have hot air registers keep a wet sponge in each. It requires little care to do this, and the effect in tempering the dry heat and keeping down the dust is incalculably beneficial. Once a week (say, every Saturday) soak the sponges. You will be amazed at the dirt they have accumulated, thus saving furniture and lungs that much.

JUSTICE IN FRANCE.

Death for Murdering Daughter—One Year for Slaying Father.

A melancholy story concerning the assassination of a beautiful young woman by her mother was told to the jury at Rouen, France. The victim, Marie Gauthier, aged 30, was insured for $1,000, and it was to obtain the insurance money that her mother, a widow of 41, who kept a small grocery store at Bouelles, strangled her, and then placed the corpse in an outhouse in a hanging position as if Marie had committed suicide.

Throughout the trial the prisoner maintained that she was innocent, but the evidence was overwhelming. The two little brothers of the murdered village belle testified against their mother, and related how, during the night of the crime, they heard their sister repeatedly call out, "Mamma, mind, you are strangling me."

When the body was discovered hanging to a nail, Mme. Gauthier explained that her daughter had committed suicide, and that she had been very melancholy for some time. This was proved to be untrue, for the girl was to be married in September, and had told all her friends joyfully of her betrothal. The murderess was sentenced to death.

While Mme. Gauthier's trial was proceeding at Rouen, the juryman of the Allier Department were considering the case of a son who murdered his father. They were in a lenient mood, and the parricide was sentenced to only one year's imprisonment.

Louis Audclair, a youth of 19, was trying to break open the desk in which his father kept his savings, when M. Audclair, senior, unexpectedly arrived and caught his son by the collar. They struggled, and to free himself the son seized a revolver and shot his father dead.

HOW TO TAKE A SUN-BATH.

Said to Be a Certain Cure for Many Diseases.

The sun-bath is rapidly gaining popularity. It was not unknown to the Romans, who indulged in sun-baths to cure gout and rheumatism. The buildings they erected in their villas for the sunray treatment were styled solariums.

All that is needed is the sun; but it should not be allowed to beat down upon the head, which should be covered. The prospective sun-bather should get into an ordinary bathing costume, and lie down in a convenient spot on a rug. Care should be taken to secure a position well out of the wind, and, of course, the body must be moved about every ten minutes to avoid undue burning of any specific part of the anatomy. Also, a bath should never be by any chance last longer than an hour. Dizziness, extreme excitement, even faintness, will be the inevitable result, should this warning be disregarded.

The sun-bath is said to be an almost infallible cure for certain skin diseases, for undue corpulence, and run-down nerves.

Perhaps the cult of the sun-bath is most popular at a small place near Berlin, where the adherents of the new, and simple cure have formed themselves into an association.

CANADA'S GREATEST SINGER

ALBANI'S WEALTH HAS AGAIN TAKEN WINGS.

Her Husband a Second Time Has Squandered Her Fortune on Stock Market.

Mme. Albani, the French-Canadian singer, was born at Chambly Village, near Montreal, and who has published her memoirs under the title "Forty Years of Song," is in desperate financial circumstances, according to a report quietly circulated among her friends.

Albani's career belongs to the last generation, as she made her debut in 1870. But, like Patti, she has regularly given a concert each year in London, which English people have crowded to hear because they loved the singer and remained loyal to her personally in spite of the decay of her powers. Patti is one of the richest among operatic song birds, but she has taken her yearly toll from London audiences, and they have given it to Albani with the same generous fidelity. Yet comparatively few among them have realized how great has been Albani's need in recent years.

She leaped into fame in Bellini's "La Sonnambula" in Italy, and then in a repertoire of Italian operas in London became established as one of the greatest prima donnas of the world. She was appointed court singer in Berlin through the influence of Empress Frederick, who, like Queen Victoria and all her other daughters, proved herself Albani's devoted friend. She toured Russia, India, South Africa, and many times came over to the United States and Canada. Queen Victoria gave her years ago the English Order of Merit, which Florence Nightingale's friends were not able to obtain for her until shortly before she died. The King of Denmark and the German Emperor also decorated Albani.

MARRIED HER MANAGER.

In the height of her world-wide popularity she married her manager, Ernest Gye. He helped her amass a fortune on the operatic stage, and then, as younger stars were arising, she retired with enough to live upon in luxury for the rest of her days. But Mr. Gye conceived the idea that he could turn it over several times upon the Stock Exchange, and his wife gave him every penny they possessed, only to find in a few years that it was all lost.

Albani then returned to the music stage, and her concert tours, while not so richly productive as her operatic career had been, were amply successful and in a few years the family was established in Park House, South Kensington, one of the stateliest mansions of the district, where the singer received her friends among English Royalty with as much dignity as if she had been a duchess.

There were numerous entertainments there of the quiet order, which Princess Christian, a great friend of Albani, particularly liked, and which Queen Victoria especially enjoyed. They were not especially fashionable during King Edward's reign, but they have come into vogue again with King George and Queen Mary. And many people, remembering what a favorite of Queen Victoria Mme. Albani was, have wondered why she was not among the hostesses of the new reign, along with so many other quiet, conservative women who have returned to active leadership in London society.

OLD HOME IS FOR SALE.

But visitors going past Park House these days will find it shut up and dilapidated, not having been occupied for years, and with forlorn signs of "To Let" and "For Sale" conspicuously upon it. For Mr. Gye staked his wife's fortune for a second time upon the stock market, and fell of the Stock Exchange.

And Albani, the most devoted wife in the world, and Queen Victoria's model of what a great prima donna should be in her private life, finds herself now in an obscure little dwelling, not far from Park House, trying to keep the home going by giving vocal lessons. Her only child, a young man who is in a banking house in the city, adores his mother, and has signified his intention of taking care of her in her old age.

Albani herself has taken the final reverse of fortune with the greatest courage and is indefatigable with her pupils, showing no false pride and frankly soliciting all the assistance her friends could give by sending new pupils to her. Proudly she informed a correspondent this week that three of her scholars will take part in the coming Hereford festival, one of the chief musical events of the year.

She will be sixty years old on the first day of November.

BRUIN THE CLOWN.

A Laughable Scene Which Took Place in a Field of Maize.

A bear may be as terrible as a lion or a tiger, but he is a more versatile beast, for he is usually amusing—which the great cats never are. Unless Bruin is actually after you, he is almost sure to tickle your sense of humor. This little picture from "Stalks in the Humayl" shows that the bear of those regions is in this respect quite like his Western brothers.

I played the cavewalker on a bear once, and it proved a most entertaining and interesting occasion. He wandered out of the woods in a casual manner, without any of the preliminary "scouting and scenting" that most other wild animals practise. He blundered out of the jungle as if the whole place belonged to him, and rolled down the hill with that curious, lumbering, ungainly action that always makes you laugh.

Once he turned aside, and pushing his head beneath a rock, took a few deep breaths in order to see whether there was an ant-hill there from which he could get a pleasant mouthful. Almost with a sigh for the dainty that was not, he went on his way, making scarcely any noise, for all his awkwardness, except when he rustled through a more than ordinarily dense piece of undergrowth.

Suddenly he rose upon his hind legs and began to look round in every direction. Why he did so I cannot say. That he was unaware of my nearness I am sure, for I had studied my ground very carefully before hand. My object was not to interfere with him in any way, but to watch; and although I had a rifle with me, I had no intention of gaining the knowledge that I wanted with a bullet, if shooting could be avoided. My friend soon dropped on his feet again, sighed noisily, and rolled on until, in a brief time, he reached a low wall surrounding the little field of maize.

He was too near now to bother about further prospecting or to care whether there was another of his kind near or not. He sprang or rolled over the wall into the field, a drop of eight feet, with incredible lightness, and with scarcely a sound, and was in the midst of his beloved food. As the stuff was thick, I lost sight of all but the top of his back in it, and so in my turn I crept to the wall. There I knelt, with my head raised so as just to look over.

I heard noise enough now. Something had evidently gone wrong, for Bruin appeared to be smashing down the big thick stems of the plants at a much faster rate than he could possibly eat the cobs. Then I heard a growl, and made sure that I had been seen. I brought up the rifle to the top of the wall, and gazed intently into the maize. The row still went on. A violent commotion seemed to be taking place among the stems near the centre of the little field. I was eager to see what was taking place, and was about to drop over the wall and crawl through the maize stalks, when suddenly a round black ball shot out of the crop, ran itself violently against the base of the wall, yelped shrilly, turned sharp to the right, made off for all it was worth along the base of the wall, and disappeared in a brown blur over the crest of the hillside.

I was shaking with laughter, for the round ball was a young bear, and his look of surprise and disgust as he rebounded after his collision with the wall was irresistibly ludicrous. Off to the right, some fifty yards away, I saw another bear leaving the field in a prodigious hurry, and still farther to the right a smaller black ball was going up the hill quite silently, and travelling at a pace that made me open my eyes.

A mother and her cubs had probably been dining in the maize patch when my friend rolled over the wall into it. After the gluttonous fashion of the bear, he had not been content to share the abundant feast with others—even with his own children. And so, as soon as he got to the middle of the field and found the cubs supping happily there, he spoke to them about it, and must have done so with emphatic—so to judge by the speed with which the family party beat its retreat. I watched the mother bear slowly and lugubriously lumber up the hillside to the jungle above, with a mournful look back over her shoulder every now and then.

Meanwhile my friend was making hideous noises, indicative of great gastronomic enjoyment, in the field, and there, as the west was flaming red and the shades of night were falling, I left him.

WIVES OF THE OLD BRIGADE

WOMAN'S LIFE IN THE ARMY AS IT USED TO BE.

Described by An Old Lady Who Spent Many Years With Her Soldier Husband.

I caught "scarlet fever" when I was about seventeen years of age, and I haven't got rid of it yet, although I have just been made a great-grandmother, writes an old lady in London Answers.

My husband has long ceased to wear a red coat, of course, and my eldest son has been drawing a pension for some years; but my grandson is serving in the old regiment, and his son makes the fourth in direct descent to be born in the corps, my husband's father having also belonged to it. My husband's father and mother were, in fact, still serving with the regiment when I joined it, fifty years ago this month.

A CHANGE FOR THE BETTER.

Cure is not, by any means, a unique family history; for I have known of many cases of four, five, and even six generations of a family serving in the same regiment. But the carrying on of such a tradition is somewhat difficult in these days of short service, and it is questionable if there are now anything like the number of soldiers serving in their fathers' and grandfathers' regiments as there used to be.

When I joined the Army as a bride I found that I had to live in a barrack-room with three other families, the only separation between us being the small amount of privacy afforded by blankets hung on lines. This piggyish way of living was very repugnant to me, but I had to put up with it until we went to India, about a year after my marriage.

When I returned from the East, ten years afterwards, I found that things in this respect had changed for the better, for then a room was allotted to every married soldier; and I got two, owing to my husband being then regimental-sergeant-major.

My husband was only a private when I married him, and the house-keeping money that found its way into my hands seldom exceeded six shillings a week, including my share of the company washing, which was, and is, divided among the private's wives, who receive a halfpenny a day from each one of the men they wash for in the infantry, and a penny a day in the cavalry and corps on the footing of cavalry.

A HAPPY MARRIED LIFE.

But small as our income was, we managed to save a trifle out of it, without stinting ourselves of any essential thing. My husband's three-quarters of a pound of meat a day, issued as to three pounds on Saturdays, and as to two and a quarter pounds on Wednesdays, was enough for both of us, and the daily pound of bread was almost sufficient, so that the expenditure upon food did not amount to much more than three shillings a week.

I had no fuel and light to buy, and in our early days of married life we had no furniture beyond the straw beds and bolsters, single iron bedsteads, table with iron trestles, and two wooden stools, allowed by Government.

I have had a very happy married life altogether, and it is difficult to say what has been the best period of it; but I think I would pick out that first twelve months, when my husband was at the bottom of the military ladder, and we had to put up with those inconveniences, if I were compelled to choose.

ORDERED TO INDIA.

After the first twelve months I ceased to be the wife of a private soldier, for my husband got the lance-stripe. He has often said that he would not have mounted that far if he hadn't got married, and he gives me credit for the fact that he is now a retired warrant-officer, drawing four shillings and sixpence a day pension; but that is only true in the sense that the possession of a wife married him up to make use of opportunities for improving his position.

It seems to me that it was only his sense of duty to me and to his children that caused him to struggle upwards, for he joined the regiment as a boy, and could have obtained promotion long before he met me, if he had been ambitious for his own sake.

When my eldest son was but a couple of months old the regiment was ordered to India. It was a pretty miserable voyage for us women, as the accommodation on the troop-ships in those days was of a very rough-and-ready character; but, wretched as we were, we all thought ourselves very lucky to have escaped the fate of the poor creatures who were "married off behind, some of them to be separated from their husbands for ten years, and others for ever.

TORMENTS FROM HEAT.

One of these poor women, the wife of a man who had married without the commanding-officer's permission, turned up at Mean Meer about a year afterwards, having worked her way out as nurse to an officer's wife. Her position was a dreadful one, because the regulations forbade the recognizing of a woman who had married a man without the colonel's leave, and it is difficult to know what would have become of her if the colonel had not defied the regulations by ignoring the previous marriage, and letting the man know, by a roundabout way, that he could have permission to be married if he liked to forget that he had been married before, and would go through the ceremony again.

On arrival in India we had to travel something like fifteen hundred miles along the Grand Trunk Road to reach our station, for the railway then only extended about two hundred miles of the way. That journey took us nearly three months, and it was a strange experience for a young woman with a baby, if you like.

We women and children travelled in bullock-hackeries—large, covered-in carts—and we started every morning at about two o'clock, and went on until seven or eight. When we arrived at the camping-ground we found our tents already pitched by the native camp-followers (who marched in advance of us) and breakfast ready. The long days that succeeded were very, very wearisome, for my baby was fretful the whole time, and I myself suffered torments from prickly heat.

SOLDIERS' BEST HUSBANDS.

During our first year in India the cholera broke out at Mean Meer, and the men were sent off cholera dodging, while we women were packed off to the hills. Many of our women lost their husbands, for there were a great number of deaths in the regiment; but, as far as I remember, every one of them married again in the regiment.

A story is told of an Indian widow being proposed to on the way back from her husband's funeral, the suitor apologizing for meeting the question so early.

"But you're too late," said the easily-consolated one. "I accepted Sergeant Jones as they were firing the last volley."

That story is not so far-fetched as you might think. A few weeks' widowhood was all that was expected of a woman in these days.

No girl need be afraid of marrying a soldier in these days, for there are no unpleasantness now of the sort I have alluded to, and soldiers make the best husbands in the world.

WORDS AND PHRASES.

Anecdotes Telling How the Language Has Been Enriched.

Many readers are doubtless acquainted with the old rhyme:

Two noble ears, whom, if I quote,
Some folks might call me sinner;
The one invented half a coat,
The other half a dinner.

The lines refer to a former Earl Spencer, who made a short overcoat, ultimately termed a "spencer," fashionable for some time, and the Earl of Sandwich, who hit upon the idea of having his meat between two pieces of bread, in order that he might take a meal without leaving the gaming table.

In his remarkably interesting and informative book, entitled "The Romance of words," Mr. Ernest Weekley, a well-known authority on modern languages, thus refers to the Spencer story:

"His lordship," he says, "when Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, being out a-hunting, had, in the act of leaping a fence, the misfortune to have one of the skirts of his coat torn off; upon which his lordship tore off the other, observing that to have but one left was like a pig with one ear! Some inventive genius took the hint, and, having made some of these half-coats, out of compliment to his lordship, gave them the significant cognomen of 'spencer.'"

Mr. Weekley also mentions that "hurly-burly" is said to owe its origin to Hurligh and Burleigh, two neighboring families "that filled the country round them with contest and violence"; and that the word "Boh!" used to frighten children was the name of Boh, a great general, the son of Odin, whose very appellation struck immediate panic among his enemies.

"There are many objects which bear the names of individuals. Such are 'albert,' 'china,' 'brougham,' 'victoria,' and 'wellington' boots. Middle-aged people can remember ladies wearing a red blouse called a 'garibaldi.' Sometimes an inventor is immortalized—e.g., mackintosh, shrapnel, both due to nineteenth-century inventors. The more recent 'maxim' is named from one who, according to the late Lord Salisbury, has saved many of his fellowmen from dying of old age."

Again, "billycock" is apparently derived from the description of the Oxford "Blood" in his "bully-cocked hat" worn aggressively on one side. "Pinchebeck" was a London watchmaker, and "dolly" is from Doyley, a linen draper of the same period. Etienne de Silhouette was a French Finance Minister in 1759, but the application of his name to a black profile portrait is variously explained. "Negus" was first brewed in Queen Anne's reign by Colonel Francis Negus.

On the Farm

AUTUMN SOWN RYE

Rye is not grown on every farm, but those who have proved its value as a bulky, succulent green food that is available in the spring before the grass grows, treat it as an indispensable and valuable crop, writes W. R. Gilbert.

Those who do not grow it can have an idea of this. In the spring time when they are lamenting the absence of new grass, resolutions are often made to grow some the succeeding year, but when the time arrives to sow the crop the good intentions are forgotten and nothing is done.

Then when the time comes around again, as it always does, much regret is felt that provision was not made to meet it with a good supply of rye.

I would remind all that rye should now be sown and assert that it is most dependable.

It is hardy, always grows, produces an immense bulk of material long before any kind of grass affords a bite and the stock relish it greatly.

This includes cows in milk, mares with suckling foals, sheep with lambs, and store stock, too, if sufficient is grown to allow them some.

It should not be sown in bleak prominence where it will have to contend with cutting winds. The more sheltered spots or fields are better adapted for its development in the hindering weathers of early spring.

It may follow after corn or potatoes. It is only a temporary crop and will be consumed and cleared off in time to admit of roots being sown in the early summer. Making such quick and profuse growth it requires rich soil, but not to excess, as this would produce growth of a soft and too perishable nature.

Field after field of it need not be grown. A few acres, from two to half a dozen, according to demand, will yield a big supply. About three bushels of seed should be sown per acre. I much prefer to drill it, like grain, to sowing it broadcast.

Birds and pigeons are very fond of the seed, and if sown broadcast much of it will be eaten. When drilled most of it is left alone.

There is a great demand for it by the cow keepers and those who have become acquainted with its disposal in this fashion never fail to have a large supply.

SILLO SPELLS PROSPERITY

A dairy farmer was told that he could roll silver dollars down a hill and then pick up two dollars for every one he rolled down, and this statement was verified by some of his neighbors and hundreds of other dairy farmers in the country, that farmer would stay up nights to roll the dollars. But when told that he could double the profits by the use of the silo he becomes very indifferent and keeps on in the same old rut, feeding dry feed, wasting nearly half his corn crop and doing a lot of unnecessary work.

In these days of close competition, dairymen should be ready to take advantage of every opportunity to reduce the cost of production, and it will be found that it is easier, if the proper methods are used, to do that than to raise the selling price of the dairy products. The results are the same: a large net profit.

In the corn plant about 40 per cent. of the feeding value is in the stalk and 60 per cent. in the ear. When the ear alone is fed nearly half of the corn crop is wasted.

Where the dry stalks are fed, at least half of them remain uneaten, while if stored in the silo the loss is almost nothing.

Every dairyman known that cows will do their best on fresh June pasture. The grass is succulent and palatable and the conditions for a maximum milk flow are ideal. These conditions, however, do not last very long.

The silo comes as near supplying the ideal conditions as anything that can be found, and it is available every day in the year. It provides a uniform feed for every one of the twelve months.

Highly sensitive dairy cows resent any sudden or violent change in feed, and will show it by a decreased milk flow. The change from fall pasture to dry feed is always followed by a shrinkage in the milk.

In changing from the pasture to the silage, the change is not a great one, and often the cows increase the flow of milk when started on silage. Several dairymen have recently made the statement that the increased profits paid for the silo the first year.

ENGLISH SOIL IS GOOD

Half-Century Experiment in Grain Growing.

English farmers are greatly interested in a fifty-years' experiment that has just been concluded in grain growing in Hertfordshire, Marous Woodward, the expert agriculturist who made it, has published the results—showing that grain can be grown continuously for fifty years on the same soil with complete success and an average yield of 35 bushels to the acre.

The experiment began when the late William A. Prout, a Cornish farmer, came back after ten years' farming in Ontario, Canada. He bought Blount's Farm in 1881, paying $175 an acre for it. The soil was in such a bad state that even donkeys could find no food on it. Prout broke up forty fields and made of them ten square fields, each of about 45 acres, and thoroughly drained them. It was an ordinary clay soil of similar character to thousands of acres in England, but lime and potash were in abundance.

Prout decided to simplify his farming operations. He discarded the British rotation of crops plan, kept hardly any stock, and grew wheat, barley and oats year by year, with only a crop of clover once in eight years or a bare fallow once in seven years, to relieve the grain crops. Every now and then the soil was tested and every time the report was returned: "No deterioration, no lack of fertility, improvement in physical condition." Artificial manuring was applied, chiefly phosphate and ammonia, the cost averaging over 25 years about $6 per acre per annum.

Since 1880 records of the yield have been kept, showing this farm yielding 35 bushels per acre, while the German average is 25, United States 13½, Argentine 13, India 12, Australia 9, and Russia 8.

The experimenter therefore points to England, not up to now a grain country, as a fine field for development, with its markets among 44,000,000 of people and its present average only a million and a half acres of wheat a year. "Look where you will in the Empire," says he, "you will find few places to beat old England for the right conditions for wheat growing." He concludes by showing that Blount's Farm for 25 years has made a profit of over $15 an acre, and so far have the crops been that they have been sold before English farmers generally have begun to reap. Thus, while the nation was harvesting this farmer was able to take a vacation.

"NA-DRU-CO" DYSPESIA TABLETS

Proved of Great Value to Me

There is only one explanation for the numbers of enthusiastic letters that we receive praising Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, and that is that these tablets certainly do cure any kind of stomach trouble.

Here is a typical letter from Miss Eliza Armstrong, Canoe, N.S.:

"It is with pleasure I write to inform you that your Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets have proved of great value to me. I tried various other remedies but without any lasting good. Having heard of your tablets curing such cases as mine I decided to give them a fair trial. They proved satisfactory in my case."

The remarkable success of Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets is such a success as can only come to an honest remedy, compounded according to an exceptionally good formula, from pure ingredients, by expert chemists. If you are troubled with your stomach just ask your Druggist about Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, compounded by the National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, and sold throughout the Dominion at 50c. a box.

800,000 CHILDREN DRILL

An Australian Army of Young Scholars.

While Lord Kitchener's military training scheme, which has been adopted by the Commonwealth of Australia, provides for the physical training of boys of 12 and 13 years as junior cadets, and this is made compulsory under the Defence Act, the Australian Defence Department has made it compulsory under school regulations for practically the whole of the pupils of the State and public and private boys' schools to undergo a course of physical training so soon as they are old enough to profit by it.

During the past six months the system has been so effectively applied that most of the 800,000 children now attending school in Australia are each day engaged for at least 15 minutes in physical drill.

In each Australian State a number of instructors have been supplied by the Defence Department.

In the smaller schools the boys and girls go through drill together, but in the larger institutions they are drilled separately. Drill books are issued showing the course of exercises, and these are classified into trunk, arm, balance, shoulder blade, marching, running, and jumping movements, arranged in groups extending over seven years, and leading up to the more serious drills of the junior cadets.

The physical drill is not confined, however, to a strict course of exercises, but a portion of the 120 hours which must be spent annually in this way may be devoted to sports. Ball games are allowed, and material is provided, but running, jumping, paper chasing, and games in which all the scholars may take part are encouraged.

The latest returns show that in the Commonwealth of the 1,415 male and 131 female school teachers who sat for examination at the instructional schools, 1,353 male and 112 female teachers "passed," and are qualified to conduct physical training at the various schools.

All this preparatory work has been successfully carried out practically without any outside display, and the scholars have taken up enthusiastically the new courses of training.

A THAMES ADVENTURE

Muriel Astor Has Developed Into a Sport.

Miss Muriel Astor, daughter of the dead millionaire, appears to be developing many of the sporting propensities of her late father. Yachting has a special attraction for her, and to satisfy her ambitions in this direction her mother has placed an order with a famous firm of builders on the Clyde, who have instructions to turn out a vessel that will be unique in the matter of luxury and accommodation.

As a sculler she is well known among those who patronize the River Thames in the neighborhood of Richmond and Putney. Lately she has been watching Barry, the famous British champion, doing his practice spins up and down the river. She had an exciting experience one day a week or two back, when a lady friend who had misjudged the distance struck her boat and overturned it, causing her to make acquaintance with a little Thames mud.

Having added swimming to her other accomplishments, she was not much worse for her immersion, except that she had to have her wet garments replaced by a cheap outfit purchased at one of the local dry goods stores. When she got home to her mother's residence in Grosvenor Square, the servant who answered the door bell did not recognize her, and wanted to know the business of the new visitor before admitting her.

MANTILLA'S SWAY IN SPAIN

Reign of the Parisian Hat Quickly Comes to an End.

The mantilla has suddenly regained its old prestige in Spain. It has been ousted for a time by the Paris hat, but Spanish ladies have returned to the idea that nothing can be more graceful or becoming to them than their national headgear, says the Madrid correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette.

All types of Iberian beauty, although differing entirely from one another, have certain common traits marking them as Spaniards, and to such the mantilla is eminently suitable.

The headdress is looked on in Spain as the most important item in a woman's appearance, and this is not confined to class only. The poorest Spanish woman will invariably have tresses elaborately arranged, and however worn her garments she will find it a necessity to spend a few pence in paying for the offices of the indispensable peinadora.

These artists are a feature of Madrid life, and it is difficult to imagine what would happen if they were to go on strike, for, as a rule, no woman of any standing would dream of attempting to do her own hair.

The peinadora works deftly and has the necessary virtue of punctuality, for her clientele is numerous, and she must finish her work with each before midday. It is natural that she should play an important role in social life, and many love matches reach a happy conclusion owing to her good offices.

What kind of a silo will yours be?

Wood—or Concrete?

If you were to build two silos—one of wood, the other of concrete—side by side, and then could see them as they will look after five years of service, you wouldn't have to think twice to decide which is the best material. In a few years more there wouldn't be much of the original wooden silo left—the repainting you'd have to do would be as troublesome and cost as much as the building of an entirely new one. But the passage of five, ten, fifteen or even twenty years will make no difference to the hard-as-rock wall of the concrete silo.

CONCRETE SILOS LAST FOREVER

WIND, rain, fire and lightning are alike defied by concrete. You need no insurance against its destruction, because it cannot be destroyed. Concrete silos are best for another reason. The concrete keeps the ensilage at an even temperature, so that it "cures" better, and therefore contains more food-value for your stock.

YOU CAN BUILD ONE YOURSELF

No matter whether you have ever used concrete or not, you can build a concrete silo. Our book, "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete," gives all the information you will need, not only about silos, but about scores of other uses for concrete on the farm. It isn't a catalogue, nor an advertising circular. A handsome book of 128 pages, well illustrated, and written for farmers. It is free. Just send your name and address on a postcard or in a letter and the book will be sent free by return mail.

VOL. 4 OCT. 24. No. 19

THE SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE.

Rev. J. B. Daggett, who this week takes up his duties as Secretary of Agriculture, fills a position created through the fact that the Commissioner of Agriculture is a medical doctor and does not understand farming. Mr. Daggett was born and reared on Grand Manan Island and in his youth had little opportunity to study practical agriculture. Early he became a preacher and for a number of years acceptably filled the pastorate of the Free Baptist church at Hartland. Energetic by nature his duties kept him busy and it was not until four years ago that he began his actual agricultural experience. He then became manager of the Hartland Poultry Yards farm.

Plainly the Flemming government does not consider practical knowledge necessary to earn the high salaries paid by the Department of Agriculture, since its chief officers are a doctor and a preacher. But Mr. Daggett was a "friend" who had been promised "consideration", and, besides, it was considered expedient to shelve him.

The St. Andrews Beacon comments as follows:

In a province that is so largely dependent upon agriculture as New Brunswick is at present, the office of Secretary of Agriculture should be held by a man who is either a graduate of one of our agricultural colleges, or a practical farmer of broad experience and training. To appoint a man who is lacking in such theoretical or practical experience, no matter how worthy or how honorable he may be in other respects, is an act of injustice, not only to the farmers of the province, but to the province itself. The agricultural interests of New Brunswick demand the very best that the government can give them. They require men at their head with a comprehensive knowledge of agriculture, men who, by reason of such knowledge, can suggest and advise and promote action or legislation that will tend to the advancing of the farming industry—men who can command the confidence of the farmers. This is not politics, it is sound common sense, and every farmer in the province will agree with us.

An Electric Road?

A Bangor Commercial prints a long article boosting the town of Van Buren. One paragraph in the article will cause the people of New Brunswick some concern. That paragraph is this:

"It is probable that the St. John Valley railroad, the new electrical road, will soon come to St. Leonard's as it has running rights over the Grand Trunk Pacific."

Bristol.

The village has just lost one of its oldest and best citizens through the death of David S. Jones, J. P., which occurred on the night of Oct. 17. Mr. Jones, who was 77 years old, came to Bristol when a boy and has made his home here ever since. When a young man he met with an accident which rendered him a cripple for life. Yet he always took an active interest in the welfare of his village, and assisted greatly in building it up. He was a member of the United Baptist Church and a devout Christian. He made a great study of church history and is the author of "Our Bible and How We Got It," a book quite widely known. He was twice married. His second wife formerly Miss Dora Gray, survives him. He leaves three children, two daughters, Mrs. Cyrus Giberson, and Mrs. Stanley Lockhart, both of Bristol, and one son, Clarence at home. The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon and was largely attended. The services were conducted by Rev. C. W. Waldon assisted by Rev. A. Giberson and Rev. C. C. Turner.

Michael Welsh has been confined to his room several days through illness.

Mrs. Howard Jacques who has been very ill is reported better.

Those Entertainments.

The Baraca Class of the United Baptist Church have concluded arrangements for their series of entertainments for the coming winter. The first entertainment will be held on Oct. 31, one week from to-day, and will consist of a musical entertainment by the Nordland Girls. This is an entertainment of the unusual merit, both instrumental and vocal, and is very well worth the price. The young men have arranged for a series of five entertainments, and the price for that of Oct. 31 is 50 cents for reserved seats, 35 for rush seats, 25 cents for children under 15 years of age.

The Baraca Class have arranged for entertainments on the following probable dates: on Nov. 18, Pitt Parker, a very interesting cartoonist, on Dec. 18 the very popular Canadian Jubilee Singers, on January 20 a lecture by W. H. Easton, and on Feb. 6 a special entertainment to be announced later.

THE MARKET PRICES.

Crop Secured Under Difficulties and Prices Not High Enough to Compensate.

Produce is beginning to move at a pretty lively rate. Most farmers have their potatoes all out of the ground and are finding time to haul them to market. Others are improving the weather or opportunity in fall ploughing. Some new hay has been marketed and oats are coming in more freely. Beans are scarce—the crop being almost a total failure. Careful enquiry among the shippers shows prices offered to the farmer to range this week as follows:

Potatoes, 85 to 90 cents per barrel.
Hay, $5. to $8. per ton, loose.
Oats, 40 to 45 cents per bushel.
Buckwheat, 45c. per bushel.
Yellow-eyed beans, $3.00 per bushel.
Turnips, 40 cents per barrel.
Butter 23 to 25 cents in prints and rolls; to 23 cents in boxes or tubs.
Eggs, strictly fresh, 26c. per dozen.
Chickens, carefully dressed, 11 cents per lb.
Fowls, 8 cents per lb.
Turkeys, 12 cents per lb.
Geese and ducks, 12c. per lb.
Dressed pork, 8 to 9 cents per lb., the lighter ones bringing the higher price as usual.

No field product, excepting potatoes is of average yield, and all the crops have been raised and harvested under most discouraging weather conditions. While the prices generally are much higher than fifteen or twenty years ago, the farmers are not getting the average established in more recent years.

Announcement Re Fort George Acres

If you have already evidenced your faith in Fort George by the purchase of property, that faith has not been misplaced—your foresight will be well repaid. Fort George is making good and will continue to make good on a bigger and grander scale than your most optimistic expectation.

Railroad construction is being rushed from the East, West, and South. Large gangs of men are now at work clearing the right of way for the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, through the townsite. The British Columbia Government has guaranteed the bonds of the Pacific and Great Eastern, to be built from Vancouver to Fort George, to the extent of $35,000 per mile. Announcement has been made that work on the Edmonton, Dunvegan & British Columbia Railway, North from Fort George into the Peace River country will commence next spring. Construction of the British Columbia & Alaska, and some of the other roads chartered into Fort George will probably commence during the summer of 1913. The Railway Commission, the supreme authority on Railway matters in Canada, has ordered the location of the station on the Indian Reservation, settling that matter for all time—all of which indicates Fort George's supremacy as the railway centre of Central British Columbia.

Fort George is rapidly assuming a metropolitan aspect. Houses and stores are being rushed to completion. Settlers are pouring in and sending back enthusiastic reports. The development is along permanent substantial lines.

Property values have already advanced from one hundred to two hundred per cent and this is only a fore-runner of the large increases that will take place with the arrival of rail transportation. These are not fictitious values, but actual prices that are being paid by hard headed, sensible business men who go to Fort George, investigate its conditions and its prospects.

You of course realize that the greatest profits in investments in new cities is made by the purchasers of close in acreage—that is the real big profits—but it is not often that the public is given such an opportunity.

One acre can be subdivided into nine 25-foot lots.
One acre can be subdivided into seven and a-half 33 foot lots.
Fort George Heights will be a part of D. L. 4377. It is situated on the North side of the Nechaco River, three-quarters of a mile from the station grounds. The property has a fine Southern exposure with a gravelly formation, giving excellent drainage. The elevation is three hundred feet above the townsite, giving a splendid panoramic view of the city and waterways.

Fort George Heights will be placed on the market in tracts as small as one and a quarter acres at the rate of $300 per acre.

TERMS:

Plan 1.—All cash with order, discount 10 per cent.
Plan 2.—Orders under $350.00 $20 cash and $20 per month. Over $350.00 $30 cash and $30 a month.

This is a real big opportunity, one that is going to be rapidly snapped up by discerning investors. Bear in mind that this is acreage—not lots. Stop and consider for a moment the present prices of acreage three quarters of a mile from the railroad centre in Edmonton, Calgary, Winnipeg, Vancouver, or any other of the big cities in Western Canada. Remember Andrew Carnegie's advice. "The safest and most profitable form of all investments is the purchase of close in acreage near a fast growing city." High sightly property in every city commands the fancy prices. Fort George is going to be a big, thriving, bustling city. It has already gained such ground and has made such progress that its development is sure and its future certain.

The destruction of the house fly is a public duty. The American State Board of Health is carrying on a crusade against him. His filthy origin and habits, and the fact that his body is generally laden with disease-producing germs, makes him one of the greatest enemies of the human race. If the housekeepers of Canada will use persistently, this pest will be tremendously reduced.

THINGS THEY DO IN SIAM.

Date on Perfumes and Chew Tea, Instead of Drinking It.

Perfumery is extensively used in Siam, and can be Cologne, Florida water, scented hair lotions and oils, face creams and cosmetics are in constant demand. German, French and English firms send out salesmen every year or six months to look after this trade. Few, if any, American perfumers are to be found on the Siamese market. The people here prefer jasmine, rose and violet scents.

Ordinary kerosene lamps are used in most Siamese houses outside of Bangkok, as only that city has electric lighting and coal is too expensive for use in producing illuminating gas. The greatest demand is for wall lamps, which are used in the thousands of households which line the rivers and canals of Siam and in the homes of the peasants. Such lamps sell at 25 to 50 cents each, but, according to consular and trade reports, nearly every kind of lamp finds a sale in Siam. Only the most ordinary lamps are made in this country by the Chinese themselves, the rest being imported.

Instead of being used as a beverage, the leaves of the tea plant, after being fermented, are rolled into balls, one of which is placed in the hollow of the cheek and allowed to remain there until the soluble contents have been exhausted by the saliva. This use of tea is common in northern Siam. The tea plant is cultivated to only a small extent, but is found wild on hill slopes. In lower Siam tea drinking is indulged in to a considerable extent, especially among the Chinese.

Most of the tobacco produced in Siam, about 3,000,000 pounds a year, valued at $500,000, is consumed at home, the exports last year amounting to only 10,000 lbs., most of which went to Hongkong. The tobacco leaf grown there is said to be of peculiarly fine texture and would probably displace foreign tobacco in the local markets if it were cured by modern methods.

At present the leaves are kept in the dark until partly dry, then folded lengthwise one upon another, cut into cross sections and exposed to the sun for a day or two, after which they are ready for consumption. One of the chief uses for tobacco in Siam is for cigarettes. A considerable quantity of native tobacco is mixed with arcaut and betel leaf and used for chewing, the imported tobacco never being used for this purpose.

Cured of Shingles and Eczema

By Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Chest Raw, Bleeding and Itchy.

"I just want to say a good word for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In November, 1900, I had what the doctors call shingles and eczema. My chest was raw and bleeding and itchy. I was that way all winter. It was not so bad in the summer. In September it got worse. I had the best doctors treating me, but did me no good, and I was all run down in health. In November, 1901, I got worse again. I sent you for a sample cake of Cuticura Soap. You sent it to me and I got a box of Cuticura Ointment. I have used two boxes and on the third one it has cured me of shingles and eczema. I am delighted with them and do feel pleased to think I have something I have confidence in. Should anyone be suffering as I did, I hope that they will do as I did, and I am sure of the result. I am recommending them from experience." (Signed) J. H. Kingston, 7 Ann St., Kingston, Ont., May 30, 1902.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have afforded the speediest and most economical treatment for itching, burning, scaly and bleeding skin and scalp humors of young and old. A single use is often sufficient. Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, but to those who have suffered much, lost sleep and are without faith in any treatment, a liberal sample of each with 25¢ booklet on the skin will be mailed free on application. Address: Cuticura Drug Co., 55 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A.

APHORISMS.

Many men who now are walking on the ties with itching feet, sacrificed, by too much talking, pleasant homes on Easy Street.

If your wife does daily labor to provide the kids with crusts, you cannot impress your neighbor with your views upon the trusts.

Love will grow in strength and ardor, Cupid wear his sweetest grin, where there's beefsteak in the larder and potatoes in the bin.

Mules are great; we praise them loudly; sing their virtues through the years, till they get swelled up, and proudly go to bragging of their ears.

When the tyrants grind our faces or upon our bodies walk, it's because we're keeping cases much too closely on the clock.

It is well that some are carving furrows on the fertile farm, for the country would be starving if we all viewed with alarm.

Mary had a woolly creature which achieved lasting fame that it soon became a feature of the moving-picture game.

Truth is loaded down with shackles which she strives to break in vain; nearly every hen that cackles adds a fresh link to the chain.

Swat your children with no swatters; punishment has little sense; never whip your sons and daughters till you must in self-defense.

Probably a tiresome bore or something worse you will be called, if you sell a hair restorer while your dome of thought is bald.

A FOOD CONVERT.

Good Food the True Road to Health.

The pernicious habit some persons still have of relying on nauseous drugs to relieve stomach trouble, keeps up the patent medicine business and helps keep up the army of dyspeptics.

Indigestion—dyspepsia—is caused by what is put into the stomach in the way of improper food, the kind that so taxes the strength of the digestive organs they are actually crippled.

When this state is reached, to resort to tonics is like whipping a tired horse with a big load. Every additional effort he makes under the lash diminishes his power to move the load.

Try helping the stomach by leaving off heavy, greasy, indigestible food and take on Grape-Nuts—light, easily digested, full of strength for nerves and brain, in every grain of it. There's no waste of time nor energy when Grape-Nuts is the food.

"I am an enthusiastic user of Grape-Nuts and consider it an ideal food," writes a Maine man:

"I had nervous dyspepsia and was all run down and my food seemed to do me but little good. From reading an advertisement I tried Grape-Nuts food, and, after a few weeks' steady use of it, felt greatly improved."

"Am much stronger, not nervous now, and can do more work without feeling so tired, and am better every way."

"I relish Grape-Nuts best with cream and use four heaping teaspoonsful as the cereal part of a meal. I am sure there are thousands of persons with stomach trouble who would be benefited by using Grape-Nuts. Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read the little book, 'The Road to Wellville,' in pkgs. 'There's a reason.'"

NEW USE FOR BACPIPES.

Unscrupulous Milk Vendor Caught by Police.

For some time the French police have suspected a milk vendor, named Noziere, of watering his milk. Several times samples of milk which M. Noziere was delivering were submitted to the experts of the Paris Municipal Laboratory, and each time these were declared to contain a large proportion of water. The milk vendor protested his innocence, and even invited the police to witness the milking of his cows. This they did, but the "pure" milk samples which were taken away on these occasions were always found to be well-watered.

The solution of the problem was forthcoming the other day. An inspector called at M. Noziere's place quite unexpectedly and asked the vendor to milk a certain cow. The official, who kept a vigilant eye on the milker, noticed that he fumbled with his right hand in the vicinity of his waistcoat pocket.

"What are you doing?" asked the inspector. "Oh, it is only my braces that hurt me," answered the milk dealer; but in a second the inspector had unbuttoned the waistcoat and discovered there an ingenious contrivance of two small rubber pipes, connected with rubber bags containing water.

By the pressure of his elbow on the bags the unscrupulous vendor could, with but little risk of detection, add a considerable quantity of water to the milk pail.

There are probably no fish in the sea as large as those reported by anglers to have got away.

SUMMER COMPLAINTS KILL LITTLE ONES

At first signs of illness during the hot weather give the little ones Baby's Own Tablets, or in a few hours he may be beyond cure. These Tablets will prevent summer complaints if given occasionally to the well child and will promptly cure these troubles if they come on suddenly. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in every home where there are young children. There is no other medicine so good and the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that they are absolutely safe. Mrs. Chas. Lapierre, Les Bouches, Que., says: "Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine a mother can give her little ones and I always keep them in the house." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HE WON'T GO FISHING.

Hon. William Hart, of Kingston, who has lived through a stormy political career and amassed a fortune in business, has a side to his nature which his closer friends may guess at, but can never entirely fathom. This is manifested chiefly in a hatred of physical cruelty. He is a hard fighter in a political campaign, but the infliction of suffering in any form, whether it affects man or animal, is his most bitter abhor-rence, and he will go far to prevent it. This humane tendency is carried even to the extent of refusing to go fishing, entailing as it would the sacrifice of living creatures for the sake of sport. Such a strange characteristic is not the result of any fad or some personal oddity, but is a natural outcome of a high sensitiveness to pain.

It Testifies for Itself.—Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil needs no testimonial of its powers other than itself. Whoever tries it for coughs or colds, for cuts or contusions, for sprains or burns, for pains in the limbs or body, will know that the medicine proves itself and needs no guarantee. This shows why this Oil is in general use.

"This is the third time you have been here for food," said the woman at the kitchen door, to the tramp. "Are you always out of work?" "Yes'm," replied the itinerant. "I guess I was born under a lucky star."

PAYMENT WAS SUSPENDED.

In a large suit lately tried the plaintiff had testified that his financial condition had always been a good one. The opposing counsel took him in hand for cross-examination and undertook to break down his testimony on this point. "Have you ever been bankrupt?" asked the counsel.

"I have not."

"Now, be careful," admonished the lawyer, with raised finger. "Did you ever stop payment?"

"Yes."

"Ah! I thought we should get at the truth," observed counsel with an unpleasant smile. "When did this suspension of payment occur?"

"When I had paid all I owed."

TO REMOVE DUST FROM EYE.

Small substances like cinder dust, small chips of stone or metal can usually be removed from the eye by simple methods. If the common way of catching the upper lid by the lashes and pulling it away from the eyeball and down over the lower lid does not result in dislodging the particle, try this: Make a loop of horsehair and pass it under the lid. Sweep from the outer lid toward the nose and draw down. This will usually clean the eye. If it does not, the upper lid must be turned inside out, which is easy to do, and the particle, which can easily be seen now, removed with a soft handkerchief or piece of cotton.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poisoning. Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again, As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk.

Again, As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimer Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co. and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured.

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50¢ box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1¢ stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

A REAL GENTLEMAN.

"One gentlemanly thing about a dentist," remarked the man, "is that he never rubs it in by saying 'this hurts me more than it does you.'"

Impurities of the Blood Counteracted.—Impurities in the blood come from defects in the action of the liver. They are revealed by pimples and unsightly blotches on the skin. They must be treated inwardly, and for this purpose there is no more effective compound to be used than Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. They act directly on the liver and by setting up healthy processes have a beneficial effect upon the blood, so that impurities are eliminated.

HE'S GOOD, ALL RIGHT.

"Is he good to his wife?" "Very. He gets his own breakfast, washes the supper dishes, and never brings unexpected company home to dinner."

Dear Sirs,—I had a Bleeding Tumor on my face for a long time and tried a number of remedies without any good results. I was advised to try MINARD'S LINIMENT, and after using several bottles it made a complete cure, and it healed all up and disappeared altogether. DAVID HENDERSON, Belleville Station, Kings Co., N. THE SURE CURE.

The most effective way to cure a thief of kleptomania by surgery is to cut his liberty out.

Many mothers have reason to bless Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, because it has relieved the little ones of suffering and made them healthy.

NAUTICAL DISTINCTIONS.

"How do you tell the difference between a yacht and a sailboat?" said the girl with the inquiring mind.

"By lookin' into the pantry," replied Captain Cleet. "If she carries plenty of refreshments and seegars, she's a yacht. If it's mostly plain victuals, she's a sailboat."

Mrs. Exe (with newspaper)—Here's an awfully funny typographical error. It says: "Mrs. Rich awoke about 4 o'clock and heard strange noises in the house." Exe—How do you know it's a typographical error? Maybe it means that she heard her guests snoring.

BREAKING IT GENTLY.

Two very great friends—a Scotsman and an Englishman—met in the smoking-room of an hotel; and the Englishman at once proceeded to monopolize the conversation, as he usually did.

The Scotsman bore it for a long time, then he broke in quietly:

"I say, old chap, I'll back you and me to tell more and bigger lies in half an hour than any other six men I know!"

He paused, and then went on gently:

"And I wouldn't speak a single word the whole time!"

BUY A FARM

In the West Florida Country, this is not the Florida that you have been reading so much about, but some five hundred miles from the much advertised country. The West Florida country is elevated and healthy, no extreme heat in the summer, nor cold in the winters. Fruit, vegetables, etc., and watermelons, satsuma oranges, fish and oysters are in abundance. Eggs and chickens are extremely high and this is a good climate to raise them in. This part of the world has never been advertised for sale before, and no extravagant literature is gotten out to show the enormous growth of the products, but the growths are here just the same, with a climate seldom equalled and never excelled. Rheumatism, catarrh and tuberculosis are always relieved and cured in numbers of instances. This land is extremely productive if properly handled. We are offering lands in tracts of ten acres up to five hundred acres at twenty dollars per acre; three dollars per acre per month. Also we have some small and large farms fully improved bearing peaches, oranges, figs, all kinds of berries, etc.; close to the fast growing town of Pensacola. Particulars may be obtained free of charge from Charter Land Co., Pensacola, Fla. U.S.A.

Now open and ready for YOU. Write and tell me what day you are coming. A postal will do.

Laurier's Triumphant Tour

Ottawa, October 9 Sir Wilfrid Laurier returned to the Capital today from the most remarkable series of triumph throughout Ontario that have ever fallen to the lot of any public man in Canada. During a tour which lasted almost ten days, in the very heart of the Province which went so strongly against his Government at the last election, he was greeted with enthusiasm and evident loyalty which proclaimed the fact that the people of Ontario realize the manner in which they were deceived at the last election. Throughout the whole tour it was shown in marked manner that the people of Ontario were determined to make amends, not only when the next test comes at the polls, but now by showing their affection to the Liberal chief and their loyal confidence in his policy.

"We are returning to Laurier," was the slogan everywhere, and on all sides there was ample evidence that the people believed what their banners announced—"A return to Laurier is a return to reason."

And there was no beating about the bush at any of the meetings. At each and every one of them the Liberal Chief and his colleagues advanced the main planks of the platform without the slightest hesitation. They were not defending a lost cause. They were arguing for coming victory. Nor did Sir Wilfrid hesitate equally sharply to criticize the Conservative position to-day and to show up the absolute lack of cohesion in the Borden Cabinet, which had led to a year of squabbling and inaction.

It was a bold experiment, this invasion by a defeated leader of the very people who had done most to defeat him. Its very boldness added to its success, and the way in which the people showed their appreciation of his declaration "I have one abiding desire and that is for another tussle with the Tories," was greeted everywhere with thunderous applause.

When you have a bad cold you want the best medicine obtainable so as to cure it with as little delay as possible. Here is a druggist's opinion: "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for fifteen years," says Enos Lollar of Saratoga, Ind., "and consider it the best on the market." For sale by all dealers.

That Bye-Election.

[Commenting on the recent bye-election in Manitoba, the chief Liberal organ in Canada, the Toronto Globe, says:

The result in Macdonald will in no way doubt the Liberal party in its efforts to lessen the restrictions that hamper international trade. The abolition of duties on foodstuffs on both sides of the border is inevitable. This continent is filling up. Urban population is growing far more rapidly than rural in the United States, and the problem of the cost of living will become increasingly urgent. There will come a time, and that before many years past, when no political party, either in the United States or in Canada will dare to defend the taxes on foodstuffs that the adoption of the agreement of 1911 would have wiped out. The Liberal party must continue with unswerving vigor the work of political education. Larger markets for things grown in Canada as well as for things made in Canada are vital to the prosperity of the Dominion.

The Auto's Call.

The other day an elderly farmer, who had hardly been off his farm before, was visiting the city. Arriving at the Witness' corner he attempted to cross the street. After dodging several cars and electric cars he got frightened at a bellowing automobile, and, stepping backwards to let it pass by, was knocked down by a motor cycle. On being picked up by one of the gentlemanly policemen always on duty at that corner, No. 322, his first remark was: "I did not know that the horrid critter had a calf." Then disgusted with city life in general and automobiles in particular, he proceeded on his way.—Montreal Witness.

Going to War.

Woodstock, Oct. 14.—A large number of Bulgarians in the employ of different contractors on the Valley Railway knocked off work and will start for their European homes to join their compatriots in the war against the Turks. The loss of the services of these men will cripple work on the Valley Railway, as it seems impossible to get men to take their places.

The Youth's Companion for 1913.

The Youth's Companion appeals to every interest of family life, from housekeeping to athletics. It begins with stories of youthful vim and vigor, with articles which disclose the secrets of successful play in great games with charming tales of life at the girls' colleges. But The Companion does not surrender these readers when they have entered the more serious paths of life. Mothers will welcome the page for little children and the weekly doctor's article. Fathers will find the important news of the day as it is, and not as it is rumored to be. The entire household will appreciate the sketches, which touch gently on common foibles or caricature eccentricity. In short, for less than five cents a week The Companion brings into the home clean entertainment, pure inspiration, fine ideals, increase of knowledge.

Names rarely seen in tables of contents will be found in The Companion's Announcement for 1913, which will be sent upon request—with samples of the paper, to those not familiar with it.

Every new subscriber for 1913 who sends $2.25 will receive free all the issues for the remaining weeks of 1912; also, free, The Companion Window Transparency and Calendar for 1913, in rich, translucent colors—the most beautiful of all Companion souvenirs.

They Feel Grateful.

EDITOR OBSERVER: I wish to say through the columns of your paper that Mrs. Barnes and I are feeling very thankful to our many friends throughout the Rockland-Mount Pleasant pastorate for the free use of their parsonage during the summer months.

Indeed, it was a source of pleasure to be so located as to be able to conveniently meet and converse with so many of our old friends in those communities. Then, too, to be able to personally witness so much of the abiding fruits of our five years' pastorate there, fourteen years ago.

Our pleasure was raised still more on the eve of our departure for our Millville home, when a few of the people collected in the home of our daughter, and after much and social conversation, presented us with a song, accompanied with many kind words. We were much surprised and very thankful. It is an earnest wish for them that God may bless them more and more.

They Like The Observer.

During the few days immediately preceding Oct. 20 subscriptions to the Observer came almost as fast as the names could be entered. Many western subscribers were among the number and invariably they speak words of appreciation of the paper, which takes away some of the pain inflicted by local kickers. One in Wardner, B. C., says: "I am enclosing $1.00 for renewal of subscription to Observer which I cannot get along without. Your paper is worth more than all the other N. B. papers and I should want it at any price."

Another writes from Winnipeg: "Your paper seems like a bunch of letters from home."

Here is a woman who speaks from personal knowledge and long experience, viz., Mrs. P. H. Bogan, of Wilson, Pa., who says: "I know from experience that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is far superior to any other. For cough there is nothing that excels it." For sale by all dealers.

To Boom Maritime Provinces.

The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal, in this week's issue, have started a boom for the Maritime Provinces. They point out that the Western Provinces are growing by hundreds of thousands per year and there is no reason why the Maritime Provinces with even more favorable conditions should not get a big share of the new settlers. They have mapped out a programme to accomplish that end, and are inviting hints and correspondence from these Prov-

My Digestion Is Now Good

And I Feel Like a Young Man Since Using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Prof. A. T. Smith.

What a horrible condition the digestive system gets into when the liver becomes sluggish and the bowels constipated. The poisonous waste matter is thrown back into the blood stream and finds its way into all parts of the body, causing pains and aches and feelings of fatigue and misery.

It is wonderful how quickly Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills sweep the poisons from the digestive system and enable the organs of digestion to resume their natural functions.

Prof. A. T. Smith, 1 Mt. Charles street, Montreal, and formerly of Boston, Mass., writes: "I suffered for many years from bad digestion, constipation and horrible backaches. I have been treated by many doctors without any results. One day a friend in Boston advised the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. After using two boxes I noticed great improvement, and after the fourth box I was completely cured. My digestion is good. I never feel any pain in the back. My head is clear and I feel like a young man. I think Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are one of the best medicines on earth."

ices to assist them. The Family Herald, with its immense circulation and influence, can do a lot for our territory and their efforts will be watched with interest. In their annual announcement we notice they are giving as a premium picture, this season, a most beautiful picture, subject, entitled "Mothers Treasures", a companion picture to last year's picture. With such a picture and such a grand paper as The Family Herald and Weekly Star at one dollar a year, one cannot go wrong giving it a trial.

The Family Herald and Observer will both be sent one year for $1.00, paid at the Observer office.
