NATIONALIST CONFERENCE. A conference of the Irish Nationalist members of parliament was opened at the Mansion House, Dublin, on Tuesday. The Parnellites declined to attend owing to the fact that the Nationalists had rejected their proposal for a preliminary joint committee meeting to discuss the basis of reunion. The bulk of the Redmondites were therefore absent, but Timothy Harrington was present, and elected to the chair. Timothy M. Healy, Timothy D. Sullivan and Timothy J. Healy sat with anti-Parnellites. John Dillon moved, and Michael Davitt seconded, resolutions regretting the absence of the bulk of the Parnellites, which, it was pointed out, would make reunion impossible, favoring the reconstitution of the old Parnellite party, as it existed from 1885 to 1890, and declaring readiness, as an earnest of practical exemplification of the spirit of the anti-Parnellites, to support a Parnellite for first chairman of the party. The resolutions were adopted, though there was a slight dissent at the last proposal. AGAINST RHODES.

An important judgment in connec tion with the notorious Jameson raid has just been given by the Queen's bench division, holding that Trooper Burrows is quite justified in claiming damages for injuries from Cecil Rhodes and Dr. Jameson, who, he says, induced him by misrepresentations to take part in the foray into the Transvaal.

The visit will probably last 12 days, when the imperial yacht Hohenzollern will proceed to Aberdeen, and the empress will land there and spend a few weeks at Bergeldie Castle, which the Queen has offered to place at her disposal.

Serious Anti-European Agita- | Otis and Archbishop Ireland, leading to the latter's journey to Rome. Continuing, the Filipinos' statement says: "The Paulist Fathers' actions prior to the fall of Manila were suspicious. Now, in conjunction with Archbishop Nozaledas, who is intimate with Gen. Otis, they are endeavoring to procure the former ascendancy of the church in the Philippines; hence they are sustaining Gen. Otis, who, as a Catholic, has refused to obey the Washington orders and transfer the command of his forces to Gen. Lawton, because he wishes to remain in power and assist the church to recover its lost estate." PHILIPPINE INSURGENTS

Are Massing in a Strong Position North of Malolos.

Manila, April 5-9:35 a.m.-The insurgents are massing strong forces north of Calumpit, about five and a half miles northwest of Malolos, and, according to the observations of the reconnoitering parties, they have fine intrenchments there.

It is expected that hard fighting will be necessary to dislodge them at that point, and at San Fernando, where Aguinaldo is supposed to be. Large rivers strengthen both positions.

The Montana regiment had one man killed and three wounded yesterday.

An Unparalleled Situation Faced with Energy and Success-Mr. Sifton's Efforts to Give the Country Good Rule.

Ottawa, April 5.- The feature of the house sitting yesterday was the unex-pected reply of the minister of the interior to Sir Charles H. Tupper's speech of last Thursday, charging maladmin-istration and corruption in the Yukon. Mr. Sifton spoke for five hours and fifty minutes, and effectively answered the charges of the ex-minister of jus-Mr. Sifton reviewed the conduct of Yukon affairs from March, 1897, shortly after he (Mr. Sifton) took office, when Surveyor-General Deville called his attention to Mr. Ogilvie's report, in which it was stated that it was necessary that some officers should be appointed, and on the recommendation of Surveyor-General Deville, Mr. Thos. Fawcett was appointed gold commissioner. He denied that he had removed Mr. Ogilvie, as he never had any position under the late government, except that of topographical surveyor. Mr. Ogilvie came back at his own re-quest, on account of his health. He claimed that the mining regulations were prepared by Mr. Pearce under the Conservative Government, and Mr.

those regulations, which were in force when he went up. Mr. Sifton pointed out that at the time of Mr. Ogilvie's report, practically nothing was known of the country, and that in appointing what he called "an emergency staff," the government had chosen the men they considered best qualified for the positions. He defended the appointment of Major Walsh, and quoted from Conservative papers to show that the officials were well spoken of at the time of their appointment. Mr. Sifton said that he had appointed Mr. McGregor because he knew him personally to be a respectable cili-

It was not until May 25, 1898, that Major Walsh, after a terrible journey which probably permanently injured his reached Dawson City, and in less than three weeks afterwards 20,000 people had pourned in and were camped on a swamp about one-third of a mile long, with but scant provisions and not any great amount of fitness for the position in which many of them found themselves. "Sanitary regula-tions were made," said Mr. Sifton, "Mr. Wade and the officers of the mounted police did make sanitary regulations. They did everything possible, everything that human being could do under the circumstances, to make the people obey those sanitary regulations; but imagine 25,000 or 30,000 people dumped in a mud-hole, without any facility for taking care of them, and you will have some idea of what our little handful of officers had to contend

Hon. Mr. Sifton, continuing, repeated his statement that when he appointed Mr. Ogilvie, there were not many complaints against Major Walsh. The administration of the Yukon involved a problem such as no minister has been confronted with before. When charges were made in the newspapers that Wade and McGregor were staking claims he (Sifton) had ordered Mr. Ogilvie off so that he could report as Oglivie off so that he could report as speedily as possible whether an order in council was necessary to forbid such action on the part of officials.

Mr. Oglivie met him at Rat Portage and the situation was talked over, and Mr. Ogilvie was urged to take all on the best footing. In addition to this, when Mr. Ogilvie got to Vancouver, Mr. Sifton wired him as follows: "You have an absolutely free hand in regard to the officials and do what is necessary to put the service on an official footing." Taking up the charges against the said, and there had been no complaint since. But who had been in charge of it? Captain Hardy, of the Northwest Mounted Police, an appointee of the Conservatives, and if that officer, on the spot, couldn't stop his men from taking bribes, how could he (Mr. Siften) be expected to do it here in Otton) be expected to do it here in Ottawa? The criticism of Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper on that score showed lack of common sense, as to his ministerial responsibility.

He denied that any lawyer in Victoria had written and wired him for a liquor permit, which he sold for $500, insinuated by Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper. He, however, had a telegram from a gentleman in Victoria, asking for a permit for Sullivan and McLeod, and he had granted it, seeing the gentle-man applying was Hon. James H. Turner, the Conservative premier of British Columbia. (Laughter.) Seeing Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper had not given the name of the barrister he had searched the directory of Victoria and found that the only application for a permit from a Victoria barrister came from Sir Hibbert Tupper's own law partner, Hon. Fred Peters. But the application had been made to another minister, who replied he was sorry, but the minister of the interior found it impossible to issue it. (Laughter.)

But what Mr. Sifton termed the "gem" of the arraignment of Sir Hibbert was in regard to the Nelson vs. Donnelly case, in which he insinuated that decision in favor of Nelson had been obtained as a result of the intimacy of Nelson's partner, Lucille Elliott, with Major Walsh. That really ticles. meant that Walsh had in turn improperly influenced Judge McGuire, for it between the factory and the d was he who tried the case and decidit was a narrow escape from against a judge of high character, but that it was false was shown by the by himself (Mr. Sifton), assisted by the minister of justice and secretary of state, and their unanimous decision upheld Judge McGuire's judgment.

Yukon officers were underpaid, and, therefore, tempted to be dishonest. He denied that that was so, and quoted their salaries, from that of the commissioner at $5,000, to the cook, at $1,200, which in all cases included board, so these men were better off than ever before in their lives.

To the charge that nothing had been done to assist Dawson City in the way of sanitation, etc., he read a statement showing that up to January, $44,183 had been spent in relief, and during this winter $83,563, and all this was being done for a people who, nine out of ten of them, were foreigners; never had so much been done for a people by any government as had been done in the Yukon. "We have done everything for them," he added, "except find them a good paying gold claim, and four-fifths of all this row is because we did not do that." (Laughter.)

With reference to the charges against Major Walsh, he read a letter from Major Walsh, who was in Ottawa yesterday, in which he denied the toto that he had been under the influence of liquor while in the Yukon, or had been guilty of any act of immorality or had become interested in any mining property.

Referring to newspaper interviews, he said that Inspector Constantine and others denied entirely the interviews attributed to them. He read a report from Mr. M. C. Tredgold, correspondent of the Mining Journal of London, England, which was favorable to the government's administration of the Yukon.

Mr. Sifton added that he had many interviews of another kind, which explained everything about the Yukon. He declared that a great deal has been done for the district; that in seven or eight months the Yukon would have a model government, and he concluded by challenging Sir Charles Tupper or any of his colleagues to formulate spe cific charges before parliament, promising them that if they did they would be sorry for it.

Mr. Borden (Conservative, Halifax), in reply, said that Mr. Sifton had re-ferred to Conservative detectives having been sent to the Yukon. Now, he had a statement from the president of the Ottawa Conservative Association that no detective had been sent by them. He would like to know who the

Mr. Sifton replied that if the honorable gentleman would read his papers he would see that a man named Pul ford had sworn in Dawson that he had been employed by the Junior Conservative Association of Ottawa as a de-

Annual Meeting of the Ontario Educational Association.

Toronto, April 5.—The 88th annual meeting of the Ontario Educational Association opened yesterday morning in the Normal School. The sections in session were modern languages, class-ical public school department, commercial, kindergarten training and inspectors' department. Other depart-ments met in the afternoon. In the public and high school trustees' de-partment a motion will come up in favor of the organization separating from the Educational Association on account of the lack of prominence obtained by the section working in con-nection with the association. At night a public reception was held in the education department, when Premier Hardy, Hon. G. W. Ross and others addressed the session.

Dorchester Station, April 5 .- At about 1 a.m. on Tuesday the village was thrown into excitement by the announcement that the cheese and butter factory, purchased recently by the English syndicate, from Mr. S. Didn't Dare Eat Meat.

The sufferer from dyspepsia and indigestion who has to pick and choose his food, is the most miserable of all mankind.

Even the little he does eat causes such torture, and is digested so imperfectly that it does him little good.

What dyspeptics need is not artifical digestants but something that will put their stomach right so it will manufacture its own digestive ferments.

For twenty years now Burdock Blood Bitters has been making weak stomachs strong, and permanently curing severe cases of dyspepsia and indigestion that other remedies were powerless to reach. It restores the stomach to a normal, healthy condition so that food no longer causes distress, but is thoroughly digested and assimilated and goes on its way making blood and bone, nerve and muscle.

Mr. James G. Keirstead, Collina. Kings Co., N.B., tells in the following words the benefits he derived from B.B.B.:

I suffered with dyspepsia for years and tried everything I heard of but got no relief until I took Burdock Blood Bitters. "I only used three bottles and now I am well, and can eat meat, which I

Had it not been for the presence of mind of Mr. Arthur Austin the accident might have been fatal, as Mr. Jones endeavored several times to rise: but Mr. Austin, seeing the danger he was in, reached over and held him down until the train passed. This is the third accident which has happened Mr. Jones in the past three months.

INTENSE SUFFERING

Instantly Rel eved and Permanently Cured by Stuart's Dyspepsia

Dr. Redwell relates an interesting account of what he considers a re-markable cure of acute stomach trouble and chronic dyspepsia by the use of the new discovery, Stuart's

Dyspepsia Tablets.

He says: "The patient was a man who had suffered to my knowledge, for years with dyspepsia. Everything he ate seemed to sour and create gases in the stomach; he had pains like rheu-matism in the back, shoulder-blades and limbs, fullness and distress after eating, poor appetite and loss of fiesh; the heart became affected, causing palpitation and sleeplessness at night.

I gave him powerful nerve tonics and blood remedies, but to no purpose. As an experiment, I finally bought a 50 cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at a drug store and gave them to him. Almost immediate relief was given, and after he had used four boxes he was to all appearances fully "There was no more acidity or sour watery risings, no bloating after meals, the appetite was vigorous and he has gained between ten and twelve pounds in weight of solid, healthy flesh "Although Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are advertised and sold in drug stores, yet I consider them a most valuable addition to any physician's line of remedies, as they are perfectly harmless, and can be given to children or invalids, or in any condition of the stomach with perfect safety, being harmless and containing nothing but fruit and vegetable essences, pure pep-sin and Golden Seal.

"Without any question they are the safest, most effective cure for indigestion, biliousness, constipation, and all derangements of the stomach, however slight or severe."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are made by the F. A. Stuart Co., of Marshall, Mich., and are sold by druggists ererywhere at fifty cents per package. Little book on stomach diseases mailed free, address F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

Dr. Wilson's Letter Reviewed.

To the Editor of The Advertiser: In reading Dr. Wilson's trip to Mexico, the question that arose in my mind was this: Was the doctor's description of affairs in Mexico more degrading or deplorable than that which he gave of what he saw in the United was not at all pleased with the appearance of Kansas City. He was there but half a day, and attended the trial of four men who were guilty of a train and breaking a safe as it was believed that the police, the state attorney, etc., were in the gang. His next stopping-place was El Paso, made up, he says, principally, of saloons and gambling places, and yet he is not in Mexico, but in the United States. He crosses into Mexico and encounters on the borders numberless beggars, no doubt waiting for rich Americans who come down from the north. Finally, the doctor reaches Mapimi, a mountainous and mining district, where people's lives are not always the most cultivated or refined. Here the doctor finds saloons, gambling, cockfights and bullfights. The doctor gives an account of a bullfight which he says he attended out of curiosity. No doubt most of the people there, like him, attend such public exhibitions out of curiosity. The doctor says these exhibitions are barbarous and heathenish, and, of course, sinful. Now, I believe that if a person, through curiosity, takes part in what is sinful, he is guilty of sin. Curiosity is no excuse. A man might commit almost every sin in the decalogue if curiosity would save him. It was fortunate that the doctor left so soon. He might have been tempted to attend some of the other fights or exhibitions out of curiosity also, because, as he says, it was very funny, and in time become more Mexican than the Mexicans themselves. The law, the doctor says, is strictly enforced, which is quite a contrast to Kansas City, where the criminals and the law officials are in the same gang. In speaking of Mexico, we should remember that the greater part of the inhabitants are In-DANIEL MORAN. dians. Goderich, March 31, 1899.

STRATFORD'S POSITION. Stratford Herald: "George Black, manager of the Guelph Canadian League baseball team, arrived in the last night, and will spend the next two days in clearing the ground, executing the preliminary flourishes, as it were, for the installation of a professional baseball nine in this city, the Idea being to make Stratford the sixth and completing club in the circuit of the Canadian League. Mr. Black has gilt-edged backing, and if there is any possibility of planting that coterie of ball players in the Classic City he is going to plant it. A meeting will be held tomorrow evening in the city council chamber, where the proposal will be placed before the business men of the city to say whether or not Stratford shall be represented on the Canadian League diamond. There should, and doubtless will be, a large and representative gathering, for a good ball team is one of the best advertisements for a city. In addition to Mr. Black there will be present Cal Davis, of Hamilton, president of the league.

PRIZE FIGHT MONOPOLY. San Francisco, Aug. 5.—The new law which makes prize fights legal in California has been brought to the attention of the supervisors by Dr. Perrault, who has introduced an order fixing a license of $5,000 a year on prize fighting, or conducting boxing contests. In explanation of his measure, the supervisor stated that the power of granting permits for fights rested no longer in the board, all that now remained for the supervisors was to regulate the sport by fixing a license as a police measure. The matter was referred to the city and county attorneys for a

Why Should We Endure the Torments of Dyspepsia, When Dedd's Dyspepsia Tablets Cure the Disease Promptly, Perfectly, Positively and Permanently?

You've had the toothache! But you didn't suffer with it any longer than you could help! You called on the dentist at once, and had an end put to the trouble

What would you think of a man who would "put up with" an aching tooth year after year, and make no effort to end his suffering, though he could do so at the cost of a dollar or two?

Your opinion would not be very flattering, would it? The man who suffers from Dyspepsia year after year, acts just as unwisely return by putting the stomach in a as he who goes about with face swollen

He has Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets remove the cause of Dyspepsia and Indigestion just as the dentist, in extracting the decayed tooth, removes the cause of the toothache. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets digest the mass of food that has accumulated in the stomach owing to the inability of that organ to digest it. It is this accumulation of partly digested food that causes Dyspepsia.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets remove it by digesting it, sending the foul decomposed portion into the bowels, by which it is thrown out of the body and the nourishing portion to other organs to

The Paris Commune

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

Kindly allow me, in your columns, to correct what appears to be untrue, in your editorial of March 23 last, on the Paris Commune. The article in question stated that the "Commune rose against a constitutional republican government." This statement would appear to be untrue to the facts. There was no constitutional republican government in France at that time. On Sept. 1, 1871, Napoleon was captured by the Germans. On Sept. 4 he was deposed by popular acclaim, and some members of the old imperial house of depu-ties proclaimed themselves the government, and took on themselves its functions. On Feb. 12, in obedience to Bismarck, a new assembly was hurriedly elected for one specific purpose, to decide on peace or continue the war. They concluded peace on Feb. 26, and from that time on they were usurping their powers, and France was without a constitutional government. On the 18th of March this usurping administration ran away from Paris, abandoning the whole machinery of government, including the executive palace, the Hotel de Ville. "Thus was Paris, on the 8th of March, deprived of even the semblance of government."

At this juncture the Committee Can-At this juncture the Committee Central, composed of delegates from all the arrondissements of the city, twenty in number, called for elections.

By these elections, held on the 26th of March, 1871, "the largest legitimate constitutional government in France was established." Its name was the Paris Commune. "This Commune was elected by such significant and imposing numbers that there could be no doubt that the elected were really and fully representative of its wishes." above facts being established, it would be apparent that the so-called republican government which fought the Commune was itself the "sinner" against Communistic Paris. You then assert "that they (the communists) confiscated the possessions of the rich, and forced banks and railroads to stand and deliver. This statement appears to be absolutely misleading, The Commune had all the fabulous wealth of Paris absolutely under its power and control, for nearly two months. By all the rules of (socalled) civilized war, "from the moment that the Versaillese shot in cold blood the first prisoners taken, the Communists had the right to confiscate every penny piece." That the Versail-lese did execute the Communists taken prisoners there is abundant evidence to prove. contained three milliards of francs ($600,000,000), the bank of the Hopes, of Amsterdam, 300,000,000 francs; banks of the Rothschilds were said by them to contain double the amount held by the Bank of France. 100 other banks held uncounted bil-lions, the amount of which cannot be even guessed at. There were the great magazines, and store houses, filled with costly fabrics, shops with jewels of untold value, palaces with costliest gems of art, pictures and marbles of population, which had for months endured privation, hunger and distress during the siege by the Germans. For five weeks of the Commune the great guns of the forts were throwing their destructive missiles to the heart of the

Yet with all this untold wealth at their mercy there was no pillage nor murder, no vandalism or plunder. There was organization and order. What did the Commune confiscate? 1 answer, Nothing! Never was Paris so quiet and orderly. Never were persons or property so safe. The Bank of France had on deposit the credit of the National Working-men's Association. The latter fund was used by the Commune. Includthe Commune by the Bank of France was 7,200,000 francs ($1,440,000). This sum constituted the sinews of war on deposit to the credit of the city in the bank on the fall of the Commune to the amount of 3,016,816 francs. The fact is that the Commune failed because they refused to use the wealth piled up for them. They refused to soil their hands with the wealth taken from the wage slave, even though it were to effect their emancipation. Whether we doubt its wisdom or not, let us recognize and honor its lofty thought of the slave.

You further charge that "the Commune massacred the archbishop of Paris, the president of the court of cassation, and about 200 other ecclesiastics and prominent persons." This The Commune did not is not true. order any deaths of hostages during its regime. It is true that the archbishop and the president of the court of cassation and about an even number of priests and soldiers to the number of 74 persons were executed, but not till after the Commune had ceased

The last sitting of the Commune was on May 21. From May 22 to 29, called the bloody week, during which time over 100,000 men of the Versaillese army were within the walls of the city, and at which time the Commune ceased to exist, was when the hostages were executed. On May 24, a rabble did shoot six persons, including the archbishop. On the 25th, 12 more were done to death; and on May 26 and 27, there were 56 executed by a mob. These persons cannot be said to have met their death at the hands of the Commune, but at the hands of frenzied individuals and mob violence, made mad by the terrible carnage and cold-blooded massacres of many thousands of the Communists, perpetrated | stantial results.

cution of these persons by irresponsible mob violence which is liable to break out, especially under such provocation, and the horrible state of the city at this time cannot begin to be compared with the "official" slaughter of the many thousands of men, wo-men and children shot in cold blood during and after the fall of the Com-

The instructions given to the Versaillese officers to shoot down all "federates" was akin to the slaying of the Irish by Cromwell, or more recently of the British in the Soudan, in which battles all the dervishes wounded have been killed. The wholesale massacres of which the victorious army was guilty blasts them for all time. The abattoirs of Loban and Sartary, together with the heaps of corpses which lined the walls inside the city, tell the tale of tens of thousands who were murdered, helpless, untried and unre-corded. Thousands were killed in battle, thousands were shot in lines against the walls, thousands slaughtered in droves by machine guns, scores were buried alive, the living and the dead, the innocent and the guilty, the aged and the youthful, men, women and children. It is estimated that from 40,000 to 60,000 souls were destroyed in

"Of the charge that women and children fought desperately for the Commune." This is true, and will ever be a monument to their honor. One barricade was defended wholly by women (120), whose efforts and bravery were almost beyond belief. Many of them, when defeated, threw them-selves upon their antagonists, were run through by bayonets, and died crying, "Vive la Commune." The women and boys of the working class were active in the building and defense of street obstructions. Applications were continually made by women who wished to assist in the defense. They showed much more energy and pertinacity than the men. One band of excited women invaded the military headquarters and demanded a mitraileuse, each one wearing some sign of mourning for a father, a husband, a brother or a lover. They harnessed themselves to the big guns and the am-munition wagons and dragged them to their station, and displayed the greatest valor and intrepidity. Such were the women whom dastards dare to calumniate, the women of the Commune.

Your assertion that "the Commune organized incendiary battalions" is not true. On the contrary, they took great precautions to protect the public buildprecautions to protect the public buildings. Huge amounts of sand were piled in the yards to deaden the force of the projectiles. They did not burn or attempt to burn Paris.

One hundred and fifty great guns were pouring shot and shell on Paris. Nothing could live under the terrible fire of Fort Valerien and Montretant, which was the most terrible the world had ever seen. The Arc d' Triomphe had ever seen. The Arc d' Triomphe was struck 27 times in one day. The wonder is, not that part was burned,

Tongue cannot tell nor pen adequately describe the horrible state of the city. The decomposing bodies of thousands of dead threatened a pestilence. The wholesale executions were not limited to musketry fire. The mitrailleuses were turned on the crowds of prisoners.

The splendid struggle of the Comof 1871 was characterized by the Edinburgh Review as the greatest and most determined attempt that hisory has ever seen, to settle the social question by means of arms. Looked at by the poet the tale of those five weeks struggle is a page torn from an epic of the "heroic" age. To the economist it is the most brilliant uprising of the people for a principle the world has ever seen. To the moralist, it is an overwhelming proof of the "divinity of man." To the socialist, it is a dirge and a war cry. men and women and little children, whom Immortality has gathered to her side, were of us, for us, the becursed, kicked wage-slaves of the world, who dared to strike where we dare not raise a finger; dared to die, where we tremble in living. Our masters, finding their backs not bent meekly to the whip, shot them down in their tracks, as wild beasts are shot. content with this, they have lied to us about these heroic martyrs, who have died to set us free. Not content with their robbery living, and their murder, where they dared to resist, they have defamed them, all these years dead. The blood of these men, women and children of the Commune call out to us from the shuddering earth today

Such, Mr. Editor, are my reasons for writing you, and are the same reasons for which I, for one, would join with them in chorus, "Vive la Commune!" A. B. BARTER. London, April 1, 1899.

[NOTE BY ADVERTISER: So far as The Advertiser is concerned, all the space has now been given that we can afford for the glorification of the horrible and bloody tragedy of the Paris "Commune." The danger of such 8,826,866 francs to the credit of the glorification by professional agitators City of Paris, and 1,390,000 francs to is that their effect on half-baked minds is that their effect on half-baked minds has always been to produce that state of ill-balanced frenzy that has so ofing this, the total amount paid out to ten resulted in assassinations of prominent people, like Lincoln, the late Empress of Austria, and others. The by the Commune, and left a balance sane English-speaking idea of political agitation does not glorify murder, assassination, destruction of priceless collections of art, as in the case of the Paris Louvre, nor the inculcation of hatred by class against class. We observe that Mr. Barter assails the conduct of the British forces in the Soudan. No doubt "war is hell," as Gen. Sherman says; and real war will not soon become a matter of pelting opponents with rose-leaves. But wherever the British flag has been pushed there ordered liberty has soon followed, and the condition of the oncebarbarous section has become a thousand times more civilized and prosperous than it was before. Our correspondent reserves all his indignation for Gen. Kitchener and his rescuing army. Let him read Slatin Pasha's book, and he will get some idea of the monstrous, cruel and tyrannical yoke imposed upon unwilling people by the infamous Khalifa, and which yoke it has been the high mission of Great Britain to break. To Mr. Barter it would probably be useless for The Ad-vertiser to say it believes that Providence, in allowing Britain to hold sway in so many parts of the earth, has high and beneficent final ends in view; but nevertheless that is The Advertiser's conviction.1

Killing Time at Ottawa.

An Ottawa correspondent calls attention to the industry displayed by Sir Charles Tupper and his friends in the task of killing time at the Dominion capital. Parliament resumed its sittings yesterday afternoon, after a recess of two working days. The members have been in attendance for over two weeks, and yet practically no work has been done, though it is understood that the Government have several valuable measures ready for submission, and private members are waiting to introduce various matters of public importance, the Opposition have been indulging in such an avalanche of talkmuch of it irrelevant, and not a little fated to be dished up again when the estimates and needed legislation are being considered by the House-that no progress has been made in the business for which Parliament is called together. That we correctly state the situation the official report of the debates of the House of Commons testify. Up till yesterday, since the 16th of March, when Parliament assembled, the official records take up 827 columns of Hansard. Of this, the actual business of the House required but 651/4 columns to chronicle. The gabfest that followed the moving of the address in reply to the speech from the throne, a proceeding that in Great Britain is almost formal, required, up to date-and the end is not yet-no fewer than 761% columns. Readers of the debates must have seen that it was Sir Charles Tupper who set the very bad example which resulted in this deluge of talkmost of it in progress while members on both sides of the House were asleep, in bed or in their chairs, or killing time in the smoking-rooms. In this way, the Opposition members have so far filled up with their talk no fewer than 5601/4 columns of the 827 columns required to chronicle the first two weeks of the proceedings of the House. Liberal speakers, a number of whom no doubt entered the debate because of the assumption that failure to talk would be a confession that what was being said by the Opposition could not be answered, took up but 2011/2 columns with their arguments. As will be seen by the chronicle given below, the Tuppers, elder and younger, and that Niagara of verbosity, Mr. N. F. Davin, of Regina, were the worst trangres-

The Strathroy Dairy School.

Hon. John Dryden was obliged to report last week in the Legislature that the Western Dairy School at Strathroy had not given the expected results. The superintendent, he said, was a good buttermaker and instructor, but was lacking in "personal magnetism." Our esteemed contemporary, the Strathroy Age, upholds the superintendent, Mr. Sleightholm, and thinks Mr. Dryden has made a mistake in judgment, but the facts of the case seem to warrant Mr. Dryden in making some change in the management. The school was established in January, 1896, with very encouraging prospects, but so far from making progress, the attendance this year has decreased. The condition of things was so unsatisfactory that the Minister of Agriculture was petitioned by a number of residents of Strathroy and vicinity to have the work of the school looked into. Dr. Mills, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, was sent to Strathroy in February last to make an examination, and it is on the strength of his report that Mr. Dryden has acted. Dr. Mills' impartiality cannot be doubted, and his reputation as a scientist and instructor entitles his opinion to great weight. We are not questioning Mr. Sleightholm's practical skill, but we know that a number of students who have left the institution were dissatisfied with the results, and claimed they had not received the tuition which the circular led them to expect. If the school is to become popular, it must have a good name from those who have attended it. The temperament of the principal has much to do with the success of any school, and if Mr. Sleightholm is deficient in social ed that the Government can't take the proposed to have pipes through the intends to develop the transportation qualities it is, perhaps, his misfortune census before the next general elecand not his fault, and in no way dis- tion. credits him. The Minister of Agriculture, however, is acting in good faith, and is bound to take all necessary steps to extend the usefulness of the school. One of the factors against its progress is the hostility of the professional opponents of the Government to any Provincial institution. This has been manifested by persistent attacks on the Guelph College, and the Strathroy school is now being decried from the same partisan motives. We do not believe the farmers of Ontario approve of these tactics. Certainly those in this section of the Province appreciated the establishing of the Western Dairy School in their midst, and, we believe, will uphold it unanimously. Under more favorable conditions it promises to do an important educational work for the dairy interests of this section.

Mr. Fielding on Canada's Finances.

The Toronto Young Liberal Club's banquet on Monday night was a very cheerful affair. Why not? Liberalism is triumphant from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the country is prosperous, and the national finances are more flourishing than ever before. Naturally, the spirit of good times diffused itself around the board, and found expression in the speeches of the evening. The guest of honor was Hon. W. S. Fielding. His was a very pleasant duty since the facts with which he had to deal were particularly agreeable to him as Minister of Finance. Mr. Fielding was able to show that whereas his predecessor in office had drawn up estimates for an expenditure of $42,000,000 in 1896-97, the Liberals had spent only $38,349,000 in that year. The Conservatives had predicted a deficit of two or three million dollars in the first year of Liberal rule, but the deficit was only $519,000. At the close of the next year that deficit had the municipal ownership of monopobeen converted into a surplus of $1,-722,000, and in the present year Mr. Fielding thought he would be able to say that Canada would have a vaster surplus than "has been."

Mr. Fielding pointed out that last year the Government spent on the Yukon alone $680,000, not a penny of which had to be spent by the other Government. But for every dollar spent in the Yukon, the Government was now getting more than a dollar back. Therefore it was not a waste of public money, but a wise policy in the development of the great gold lands of the north. Then again, the present Government had extended the Intercolonial Railway to the commercial capital of Canada, and had appropriated over $700,000 for the additional expense of operating that road. As a result, in a very short time he believed they would find that the Intercolonial Railway, which had been so great a burden to the country, was paying its own way, and showing a balance on the right side. Naturally, these outlays on the Yukon and on the Intercolonial swelled the total of the expenditure, but it should be remembered that this increase was met by the increase of revenue resulting.

In answer to the charge that taxes have increased, Mr. Fielding pointed out that in 1895 the expenditure was $7 53 per head, while in 1898, with new and larger obligations, the expenditure was only $7 39 per head. From picted in art a strong one?" says (as 1879 to 1896, under a Conservative Administration, the public debt increased over $105,000,000, or an annual average increase of $6,189,187, while the strength and kindness." Last year Parliament voted forty to fortyfive millions of money for all classes cated. Naturally so, because the being of expenditure, and the Opposition objected to not one dollar of it.

Mr. Fielding made the gratifying prediction that the next census would show a great advance in the population of Canada. Touching on the tariff question, he said that when the Liberal programme came down, the Conservatives cried that it would ruin the country, kill trade and commerce. They waited for the shutters to go up and the chimneys to come down, but when they found everything going on swimmingly they had turned around, crying out that they had the same old National Policy. He would not say at the present time there was any immediate prospect of securing a preference for Canadian wheat in Great Britain. But if that did come it would not be as a result of any miserable huckstering bargain to be made by Sir Charles Tupper, or any other colonial minister, but as a result of the grand imperial sentiment which had found practical outlet under Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Administration, and which was drawing tighter to the benefit of both the bonds between the old land and the new. This sentiment was greeted with loud and prolonged cheering.

The Opposition have not yet blamed Mr. Tarte for this year's surplus.

The Cuban military assembly have voted to disband the army, concluding that $3,000,000 of American cash is the better part of valor.

Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper raced across the continent to Ottawa, delivered that seven-hour speech, and is now racing back again to Vancouver. If his time was so valuable, why did he waste

William Waldorf Astor, the Anglicized American, is trying to escape two million dollars' taxation on personal property in New York by declaring himself to be a non-resident. I was talking the other day with a citizen about the waterworks dam. This is about what he said:

"The rebuilding of the waterworks dam calls for more consideration than was given to its first construction. The saving in the water power supplied by it over steam has been more than counterbalanced by the loss and damage done by the freshets and ice-jams, and rather than rebuild it on the same plan, it might be better for the city, financially and otherwise, to abandon the water power and rely on steam for pumping. The dam was built at right angles across the river. On the form of dam, the Encyclopedia containing the latest scientific and expert information, refers to the title 'weir,' and says: 'It is generally placed obliquely across the stream, to make the length of its crest considerably greater than the width of the channel, and thereby prevent the water in floods from rising to so great a height as with a shorter crest. . . The navigation lock is placed at the downstream end of the weir. . . . Much obliquity, however, makes the current to infringe against and to cut into the side of the river opposite the lower face of the weir, and to prevent this effect weirs are sometimes made in the shape of two sides of a triangle, with its apex pointing up-stream.' This does not seem to have been known or considered when the dam was built, and is a matter not now to be lost sight dam, with stop-cocks, which, when facilities of the country, and to do so benefit or hurt, but always to outward turned on, would convey the water off more rapidly, and be in effect a substitute for gates. It is quite probable, however, that these pipes might cause more danger from the ice-jams than in the past, as the ice could not go through the pipes, and would necessarily accumulate so as to require an as well make up their minds that those immense flood to float it over the dam. A gate capable of being opened at the time of ice-jams seems to be absolutely necessary, and if such a gate is not workable, it then becomes a question whether the dam should not be abandoned. The pipes would, like the gates, create an under-current, and clear the river of sewage, but the pipes would not prevent the ice-jams, but rather aggravate them. Gates workable at the time the ice is carried off were built for that purpose by the Keewatin Power Company on the Winnipeg River, in the District of Algoma, in this Province, and it is respectfully suggested that a deputation of the Water Commissioners and the engineer, visit these dams and inspect and report upon their operation, such report to be made before any action is taken to rebuild the waterworks dam. Major Walsh's Dignified Reply to Personal Charges.

Challenges His Accuser to Bring a Particle of Evidence

Against His Character-Lived & Temperate and Moral Life and Did His Duty.

Ottawa, April 5.-Following is the full text of Major Walsh's letter to Hon. Clifford Sifton in reference to the charges made by Sir C. H. Tupper in connection with the administration of the Yukon. Mr. Sifton read the letter during his speech in the house last

"Ottawa, April 3, 1899. "Dear Sir,—I have read Sir Hibbert Tupper's speech, in which he makes charges against the administration of affairs in the Yukon district while I was government commissioner. So far Kingston meets at Toronto in May. as the personal charges against my character and administration are con-cerned, I defy Sir Hibbert Tupper to furnish a single particle of reliable evidence in support of any of them. I is now pronounced to be only chickenfurther defy him to produce any who ever saw me under the influence of liquor, either in the Yukon or anywhere else. While in the Yukon stained from the use of spirits and also tobacco, and my other habits conformed in every way to this abstemious

"During my stay in Dawson I lived in a tent surrounded by part of the staff and a large number of campers. My time was entirely taken up with public business, either in my office or in my tent. At 9 o'clock in the morning I walked to my office, at noon returned to my tent; at 1:30 p.m. again went to the office, and at 5 p.m. returned to the tent. This was my daily routine, so that I passed through the streets of Dawson four times every day, Sunday excepted. Every day but Sunday I could be seen by any person who had business with me, except that, of course, people had to take their turn in securing interviews. During my stay in Dawson I only left my camp after 6 p.m. three times. "While I was in Dawson it was almost continuous daylight, and my tent was under full view of everyone. Everybody could see what was going on. My evenings were generally taken up with people calling to obtain information. I defy anyone to truthfully say that any improper act ever took place in my camp. I challenge and defy any person to prove me guilty of any improper act, in either my public or private life, during my period of ser-vice in the Yukon, or of dealing in or having any interest in any mines or government property of any kind. I engaged with the government, as you know, to go to the Yukon for one year only, although my commission did not so state. That was my understanding with you. During that time I accomplished all that I expected and hoped to be able to do. I labored earnestly and conscientiously to the best of my ability to do my duty to the government, and returned at the end of the time, bringing nothing except the con-sciousness of having done my best to perform a difficult and a trying duty. "I close by repeating that I defy Sir Hibbert Tupper or anybody else to prove that while I was in the Yukon territory I was ever under the influence of liquor or was ever guilty of a single act of immorality.

"I have the honor to be, sir, your

ASSOCIATION

The Annual Meeting Held at Ottawa.

Encouraging Outlook-The Governor-General Speaks on Shooting.

[C. P. R. Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, April 5 .- At the annual meeting of the Dominion Rifle Association today there was a large attendance. Col. Gibson presided, and there were present Lord Minto, Sir Louis Davies, Sir Charles Tupper and Hon. Mr. Dobell. Among the military men were Gen. Hutton, Col. Aylmer, Col. Powell, and a large number of others. There were a good many members and senators present. Col. Gibson, in his remarks, spoke of how gratifying it was to have a governor-general who was also a militiaman. He did not know that the progress of the association could be made as rapidly as was outlined, and expected by General Eutton, but the proposals were in the right direction. Competitions so far have been largely individual, with few team matches. The general wanted larger marches, and innovations with respect to the disappearing targets. The providing of adequate range facilities for new and more powerful arms would be a matter of slow progress. Although the Canadian team did not get the Kolapore cup at Bisley, its shooting was very satisfactory, and a Canadian headed the field in the contest. Col. Gibson spoke of the new Dominion range at Rockcliffe as being first-class. He paid a tribute to the late Col. Gzowski, the first president of the association. He referred to the interest Gen. Hutton was taking in the association. On motion of Major Masson, Hamilton, the annual report was adopted.

Lord Minto, replying to a vote of thanks for the interest he was taking in the association, spoke at length on the subject of rifle-shooting. He was opposed to pot-shooting, and said that he would like to be consulted as to the prizes he gave. High average shooting for corps, and not individuals, was, in his opinion, a step in the right direction. The value of individual shots in war had gone down, and recent campaigns had shown that efficiency de-Motion Made Before Judge Street pended not on individual shooting, but on control of fire, and massed fire competitions should include equipment, marching and general efficiency, as well as shooting. Sir Louis Davies, replying to a vote of thanks to the Dominion Parliament, said that as far as the association was concerned, there was no politics in it. No matter what party in power, the association had always got what it wanted. He regretted the absence of Dr. Borden, minister of militia, who was out of the city on business. Dr.

Borden, he said, was considering placing new ranges at Brockville and Montreal. Sir Charles Tupper agreed with Mr Davies that party politics had nothing to do with the affairs of the association. He complimented Gen. Hutton on the propositions contained in his report, and hoped they would be carried into effect. If we would command the respect of the country, we would have to do right things by the militia and defenses of the country.

General Hutton outlined his scheme for the improvement of the militia, as clerk of the court, when already published, and promised to give a cup for competition at 500 yards and disappearing targets.

President Lieut.-Col. Gibson was reelected. The vice-presidents were all re-elected, except that Hon, R. R. Dobell takes the place of Robert Hamilton, Quebec, and Lieut.-Col. John Langworth takes the place of Hon. Mr. Mac-Donald, Prince Edward Island. Col. Smith, Seventh Battalion, was added to Ontario's representation on the council, Mr. Dobell to Quebec, Capt. Walters, Forty-third, to New Brunswick, and Mr. Rutherford, M.P., to Manitoba.

To Whom She Said

Down the hill they came, and had nearly reached the foot; not two hundred yards ahead they saw the gipsy urging his horse towards a curve in the road that would hide him from their view, and eager to behold Eden, to assure himself that she was there and safe, Frank Lyssendon turned towards a gap in a hedge, intending to cut across the fields, and so intercept the vehicle; but Dacy's hand was on his rein, Dacy's voice was hoarsely checking, him.

"Back man, back; it's no use, we're Too late to see Eden! But I will see her!" Frank passionately vociferated, as he endeavored to shake off the grasp that imprisoned him. "You cannot; look on your left; there are mounted men coming up rapidly, and all we can do is to ride away as fast as we can."

Frank groaned aloud in his disappointment. It was too true. A couple of these men, who had suddenly emerged from a bridle-path between the fields, had turned towards the gipsy's cart, the other was riding on to challenge the three officers, and, more for the sake of his companions than his own, Captain Lyssendon consented to return to the cottage.

It was a gloomy trio that drew their chairs round the fire that evening, for even the restless Dacy was tired and out of spirits, and Ensign Whiting, troubled with a splitting headache and an uneasy conscience, sat and stared at the fire, and asked himself what his good father and mother would say if they knew that he was implicated in such a disgraceful affair; while Frank Lyssendon, as restless and unhappy as in the preceding night, paced the room, a prey to such remorse as it had never, be darkened and every effort made to been his lot to know before.

"We are lively company for each other," said Dacy at last. I vote that we go to bed; it will be time enough in the morning to decide whether we stay here and rave it out, or make ourselves scarce till we know how the land lies. Who's that?"

For someone had given a sharp tap at the door, and immediately answer ed the question by entering.

Frank Lyssendon stopped short in the center of the room, and the dusky color deepened in Dacy's face, for the man who stood in the doorway wore the uniform of the Loamshire constabtired stood in the hall behind him.
"Captain Lyssendon, I believe," he said, civilly; "and these gentlemen are Lieutenants Dacy and Whiting. I've an unpleasant duty to perform. You must consider yourself under arrest."

Dacy glanced at the window, but a quiet "Better not, sir, one of my men is outside," induced him to change his mind, and fling himself into the near-

"You've made a mistake, fellow. We are not amenable to your civil tribunals," he asserted, "so take care what you are about; you country policemen are too fond of getting up cases and meddling with what doesn't concern

"I know what I'm about," said John Hutton, boldly; "and I am acting under the orders of my superiors. I was sent here to arrest Captain Francis Lyssen-don for the abduction of Miss Eden Aubrey; and you, sir, and Ensign Whiting, for aiding and abetting him; and my directions are to convey you from here to Eastham lockup tonight, and keep you in custody there till the Eastham magistrates can hear the case."

"Nonsense, man, it's altogether a mistake," the crafty lieutenant assured him. "The young lady accompanied us willingly; I give you my word that she

"'Tis false!" thundered Frank Lyssendon, speaking for the first time.
"Or if she came with us unhesitatingly. it was because she had been deceived into the belief that she would be taken to her mother." "I've done," said Dacy, flinging himself back in his chair again. "This comes of mixing oneself up with the affair of a fellow who, as soon as things go wrong plays the cur, and lets his friends go to the wall."

Frank Lyssendon bit his lip, and laid his hand on the shoulder of the young ensign, who stood looking dejectedly from one to the other. "I'll not let you suffer by my folly, Whiting, if there is any possibility of preventing it. I yield myself your pri-

"It can't be done, sir," Hutton respectfully told him. "One of by men saw them as well as you giving chase this afternoon, and their names are included in the warrant. If you'll allow me to give you a bit of advice, Captain Lyssendon, you'll not make any more admissions, for I shall be bound to use against you anything you say.'

"Can't you take us to Aldenby and hand us over to the military authorities?" demanded Dacy. I'd rather run the gauntlet under their auspices, than be brow-beaten and lectured by some pig-headed justice of the peace. "Aldenby's not in this county, sir. Are

"I shall be as soon as I have given an order or two respecting the guns I brought here," said Dacy coolly. "I suppose I can go into the kitchen, if one of your fellows accompanies me? I wish you could have let us stop here till morning," he added, with a yawn, "for I'm dog-tired."

As he sauntered from the room, Hutton following him to the door, Frank turned to his mute companion. 'My poor boy! I cannot tell you how bitterly I regret that you should have been drawn into this mess."

"I wouldn't care if it could be kept from the old people," was the ingenious repl; "But it serves me right. Halliss warned me to keep clear of Dacy, and I ran counter to his advice when I came here. If I had been in my sober senses I should have protected Miss Aubrey, instead of standing by and saying nothing.'

There was a slight bustle outside, and presently Inspector Hutton returned to the room, flushed and angry, for one of his captives had outwitted him. While Dacy was with ostentatious care overseeing the locking of the cases in which the guns were kept, he was but biding his time.

A door leading from the kitcher the garden was opened for some pose or another, and in an instan policeman on guard lay flat on the

and his prisoner had disappeared. To attempt to search for him in the forest on a dark night would have been useless. So, leaving one of his men in charge of the house, with directions to keep an eye on the old couple, whose evidence might be required, the inspector carried off the other gentlemen without further delay. Eden, safe in her mother's arms, was alternately rejoiced and wept over, till her exhausted condition aroused Mrs. Aubrey's alarm; and, finding her own simple remedies did not rouse the overwrought girl, she sent for the village doctor, who administered an opiate, and advised that the windows should secure for her a long sleep. "Her mind has received a great shock and she must be kept very quiet," he said. "I would rather see her cry and sob than lie there so tearless and apa-

"I will take her away from this detestable place as soon as she can bear the journey," said Mrs. Aubrey.

But she soon found that this would be impossible. When, in the first transports of her wrath at the treatment her child had received, she demanded that the law should avenge her, she had forgotten that the step would entail a publicity she shrank ulary, and three or four men similarly from; and that Eden must remain at Eastham to appear before the magistrates, and testify against those who had duped her. Inspector Hutton, impressed by the quiet and gentlemanly bearing of his prisoners, showed himself anxious to do all that laid in his power to make them comfortable; and as the hour drew near at which they were to be taken before the nearest magistrates, he presented himself to ask if there was any friend or lawyer they would like him to send for. "No," said Frank decidedly. news of my disgrace will travel fast enough, without my doing anything to spread it; and I hope to prevail upon this justice to release my comrade." [To be Continued.]

Doan's Kilney Palls Curing It Right and Left, as Well as Other Serious Kidney Troubles Which Eventual y Lead to Bright's.

Every serious disease starts in some little disorder or ailment. Bright's Disease, diabetes and dropsy are simply the result of kidney diseases, perhaps slight at the outset, being neglected. When you have weak back, backache, dizzy spells, sediment in the urine, etc., get Doan's Kidney Pills at once. They cure all kidney diseases from the simplest to the severest. And to prove this we give the statement of Mr. Charles Sullivan, the wellknown cooper, Chatham, Ont .: "I have had serious kidney troubles for a long time. I have suffered a great deal with pain in the small of the back and left side, and had a dull feeling in my head, with a great deal of pain through my eyes, very often experiencing a sensation as if there was a mist in front of me, and everything seemed to be going around.

"I was at times very dizzy indeed, and suffered greatly also from urinary trouble. I was unable to obtain sufficient sleep, and what sleep I did get did not rest me. It seemed to be more of a stupor than sleep,

"When I commenced taking Doan's Kidney Pills I thought myself almost past relief, but began to improve rapidly, and have been getting better ever since, until at the present time I am able to say that all the distressing troubles have disappeared."

"Doan's Kidney Pills are a splendid kidney medicine, and have proved such in my case. I have recommended them to a great many of my friends as a

The Glad Eastertide

Flowers of the Spring and the Lessons They Teach Discouraged Mortals-Rev. Dr. Talmage's Sermon, mage Sunday morning preached from the text, Luke, xii., 28: "If then God so clothe the grass, which is today in the field and tomorrow is cast into the oven, how much more will he clothe you, O ye of little faith!" He said:

The lily is the queen of Bible flowers. Fourteen times in the Bible is the lily mentioned; only twice the The rose may now have wider empire, but the lily reigned in the time of Esther, in the time of Solomon, in the time of Christ. In the greatest sermon that was ever preached there was only one flower, and that a lily, But I take the lilies of my text this morning as typical of all flowers, and their voice of floral beauty seems to address us, saying, "Consider the lilles, consider the azaleas, consider the fuchsias, consider the geraniums, consider the ivies, consider the hya-cinths, consider the hellotropes, con-sider the oleanders." With deferential and grateful and intelligent and worshipful souls, consider them. Not with insipid sentimentalism or with sophomoric vaporing, but for grand and practical every-day, and, if need be, homely uses, consider them. This morning I meant to discuss what flowers are good fro. That is my subject, What are flowers good for?

I remark, in the first place, they are good for lessons of God's providential care. That was Christ's first thought. All these flowers seem to address us today, saying, "God will give you apparel and food." God feeds us with the bread of the sunshine, and God has appareled us with more than Solomonic regality. We are prophetesses of adequate wardrobe. If God so clothed us, the grass of the field, will he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?"

Men and women of worldly anxieties, take this message home with you! How long has God taken care of you? Quarter of the journey of life? Half the journey of life? Three-quarters the journey of life? Can you not trust him the rest of the way? if God so luxuriantly clothes the grass of the field, will he not provide for you, his living and immortal children? He will. No wonder Martin Luther always had a flower on his writing-desk for inspiration! Through the cracks of the prison floor a flower grew up to cheer Picciola. Mungo Park, the great tra-veler and explorer, had his life saved by a flower. He sank down in the desert to die; but, seeing a flower near by, it suggested God's merciful care, and he got up with new courage and traveled on to safety. If you ask me the question, "What are flowers good for?" I respond, they are good for the bridal day. The bride must have them on her brow, and she must have them in her hand. At such a time they are for congratulation and prophecies of good. So much of the pathway of life is covered up with thorns, we ought to cover the beginning with orange blossoms. Flowers are appropriate on such occasions, for in ninety-nine out of a hundred cases it is the very best thing that could have happened. God, who sees the twenty, forty, fifty years of wedded life before they have begun, arranges for the best. So that flowers in almost all cases are appropriate for dence, frivolity will be turned into practicality. Ah, my friends, let not the prophecies of the flowers on your wedding day be false prophecies. Be blind to each other's faults. Make the most of each other's excellencies. Remember the vows, the ring on the third finger of the left hand, and the benediction of the calla

If you ask me the question, "What are flowers good for?" I answer, they are good to honor and comfort the obsequies. The worst gash ever made into the side of our poor earth is the gash of the grave. It is so deep, it is to cover it up. Fowers for the casket, flowers for the hearse, flowers for the cemetery. We want old Mortality with his chisel to go through all the graveyards in Christendom, and while he carries a chisel in one hand we want old Mortality to have some flower seed in the palm of the other hand.

"It is my greatest desire," writes Mrs. Wm. S. Vollmer, of Concord, Cabarrus Co., South Carolina, in a grateful letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y.. "to have you publish my daughter's cure; for it is the nearest to a miracle that I ever witnessed. She had St. Vitus's Dance so badly she could not hold her hands, feet or head still one moment, only when asleep. Mornings she could not dress he "self; she would reel and often fall. Her show lers and head were constantly jerking with great difficulty. Her tongue was often thrown out, and her face in different shaper.

stantly jerking with g cat difficulty. Her tongue was often thrown out, and her face in different shapes.

"She could not take a dipper of water nor food, nor anything to her mouth. If she tried to put any food to her mouth she would smear it over her face and bosom. For several weeks she could not chew her food; all solid food I had to mash up fine. We could hardly understand anything she would try to say.

"I bought one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, one bottle of his 'Favorite Prescription' and one vial of his 'Pleasant Pellets.' I wrote to Dr. Pierce and he answered promptly, giving advice how to give his medicines, and also how to keep her hygienic surroundings as near perfect as I could.

"After taking the medicines three weeks, I noticed the symptoms gradually leaving. I continued until the last dose of the two bottles (one of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and the other of 'Favorite Prescription') was given, then she needed no more. Those two bottles, with a vial of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, made her perfectly well. I wish everybody knew the great virtue in Dr. Pierce's medicines. If persons wishing to know more will write, enclosing stamp, I will gladly answer."

Washington, April 4.-Rev. Dr. Tal- | know; it makes no difference to them." I think you are mistaken. There are not so many steamers and trains coming to any living city as there are convoys coming from heaven to earth, and if there be instantaneous communication between this world and the better world, do you not suppose your departed friends know what you do with their bodies? Why has God planted goldenrod and wild flowers in the forest and on the prairie, where no human eye ever sees them? He planted them there for invisible intelligences to look at and admire, and when invisible intelligences come to look at the wild flowers of the woods and the table lands, will they not make excursion and see the flowers which you have planted in affectionate remembrance of them?

It was left for modern times to spell respect for the departed and comfort for the living in letters of floral gospel. Pillow of flowers, meaning rest for the pilgrim who has got to the end of his journey. Anchor of flowers, suggesting the Christian hope which we have as an anchor of the soul, sure and steadfast. Cross of flowers, suggesting the tree on which our sins were slain. If I had my way, I would cover up all the dreamless sleepers, whether in golden handled casket or pine box, whether a king's mausoleum or potter's field, with radiant or aromatic arborescence. The Bible says, "In the midst of the garden there was a sepulchre.' I wish that every sepulchre might be in the midst of a garden. If you asked me the question, "What are flowers good for?" I answer, "For religious symbolism." Have you ever studies Scriptural flora? The Bible is an arboretum, it is a divine conservatory, it is a herbarium of exquisite beauty. If you want to illustrate the brevity of the righest human life, you will quote from Job, "Man cometh forth as a flower and is cut down." Or you will quote from the psalmist, "As the flower of the field, so he perisheth; the wind passeth over it, and it is Or you will quote from Isaiah, gone." "All flesh is grass, and the godliness thereof is as the flower of the field." Or you will quote from James the apostle, "As the flower of the grass, so he passeth away." What graphic Bible symbolism! Flowers are almost human. anists tell us that flowers breathe, they take nourishment, they eat, they drink. They are sensitive. They have their likes and dislikes. They sleep, they wake. They live in families. They have their ancestors and their decendants, their birth, their burial, their cradle, their grave. The zephyr rocks the one, and the storm digs the trench for the other. The cowslip must leave its gold, the lily must leave its silver, the rose must leave its diamond necklace of morning dew. Dust to dust. So we come up, we prosper, we spread abroad, we die, as the flower—as the flower!

Change and decay in all around I see; O thou who changeth not, abide with me! Flowers also afford mighty ism of Christ, who compared himself to the lily and the rose when he said, "I am the Rose of Sharon, and the lily of the valley." Redolent like the one, humble like the other. Like both, appropriate for the sad who want sympathizers, and for the rejoicing who want banqueters. Hovering over the marences, recklessness will become pruriage ceremony like a wedding bell, or folded like a chaplet on the pulseless heart of the dead. O Christ, let the perfume of thy name be wafted all around the earth.

But, my friends, flowers have no grander use than when on Easter morning we celebrate the reanimation of Christ. The flowers spell resurrection. There is not a nook or corner in all the building but is touched with the incense. The women carried spices to the tomb of Christ, and they dropped spices all around about the tomb, and from these spices have grown all the flowers of Easter morn. The two whiterobed angels that hurled the stone so incurable, that it needs something away from the door of the tomb hurled with such violence down the hill that it crushed in the door of the world's sepulchre, and millions of dead shall come forth. The forms that we laid away with our broken hearts will rise again. Father and mother, hus-band and wife, brothers and sisters, our darling children, they must come out. The eyes that with trembling fingers we closed must open in the luster of resurrection morn. The arms that we folded in death must join ours in embrace of reunion.

When Lord Nelson was buried in St. Paul's Cathedral, in London, the heart of all England was stirred. procession passed on amid the sobbing of a nation. There were 30 trumpeters stationed at the door of the cathedral, with instruments of music in hand, waiting for the signal, and, when the illustrious dead arrived at the gates of St. Paul's Cathedral, these 30 trumpeters gave one united blast, and then all was silent. Yet the trumpets did not wake the dead. He slept right on. But I have to tell you, what 30 trumpeters could not do for one man, one trumpeter will do for all nations. Behold the archangel hovering! He takes the trumpet, points it this way and blows one long, loud, terrific, thunderous, reverberating and resurrection ary blast! Look, look! They rise! The dead—the dead! some coming forth from the family vault, some from the city cemetery, some from the country graveyard. Here a spirit is joined to another body, and millions of departed spirits are assorting the bodies, and then reclothing themselves in forms radiant for ascension.

The earth begins to burn-the bonfire of a great victory. All ready now for the procession of reconstructed humanity! Upward and away! Christ leads, and all the Christian dead follow, betalion after battalion, nation after nation. Up up! On, on! Forward, ye ranks of God Almighty! Lift up your heads, ye everlasting gates, and let the conquerors come in! Resurrection! Resurrection!

And so I twist all the festal flowers of the chapels and cathedrals of all Christendom into one great chain, and with that chain I bind the Easter morning of 1899 with the closing Easter of the world's history-resurrection! May the God of Peace that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of sheep, through the blood of the covenant, make you perfect in every good work to do his

The food par-taken of is like a ball of lead upon the stomach, and instead of being a healthy nutriment, it becomes a poison to the system. Dr. Parmlee's Vegetable Pills are wonderful correctives of such troubles. They correct acidity, open the secretions and convey the food partaken of into healthy nutriment.

REV. ALEX. McMILLAN

Lectures on "Hero Martyrs of the Scottish Reformation."

Rev. Alex, McMillan, of Toronto, lectured in the Auditorium last night on "Hero Martyrs of the Scottish Reformation." The attendance was not large. but those present enjoyed a rich treat. Rev. W. J. Clark, of the First Presbyterian Church, presided. Mr. McMillan opened by describing the town of St. Andrews, in Scotland, and he then went on to tell something of the portant relation the town had with the history of the reformation. The first whole building and that of Young's livof the martyrs spoken of by Mr. Mc-Millan was John Wesley, educated by John Wyckliffe at Oxford, and the second, and no less courageous, was Paul Crawer, a Bohemian, who was edu-cated in English universities, and exerted a great influence upon the people of Scotland. Patrick Hamilton, the third of the martyrs, was described by the lecturer as a young man of a very rare type and noble birth-a great-grandson of one of the kings of Scotland-whose thirst for knowledge had carried him to German and French universities, and who was condemned for "infamous heresy" in 1527. George Wishart, the last of the quartet of martyrs, entered St. Andrews eighteen or nineteen years after the martyrdom of Hamilton, and was hanged and burned on the same charge as that on which Hamilton was condemned. On motion of Mr. Robert Reid and Rev. J. G. Stuart, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer. The lecture was given under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A.

Fire originated in the japanning department of the Cannom stove works last night, shortly after eight o'clock, and before the blaze was extinguished damage to the extent of $1,500 was done to stock and premises.
