The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol → (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ▽ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole → signifie "À SUIVRE", le symbole ▽ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaires. PREFACE

The readers of this little pamphlet may compare the Chiniqy of 1851 with the Chiniqy of 1865. The first is Catholic and condemns the sect called Methodist; the second is an apostate and stirs with indignation the heart of every honest man.

Which of these two Chiniquys are we to believe? When he defended the Catholic Church was he in error? If so, who is to assure us that he speaks truth to day? If a man is mistaken in the most vigorous years of his life, is he not still more likely to be mistaken in old age? If Chiniqy was not in error in 1851, he is to-day, for he preaches a contrary doctrine.

Therefore, in either case, the Chiniqy of 1865 is not worthy of our attention.

M. Jeoffy THE CHINIQUY OF OTHER DAYS.

THE SWISS METHODIST PREACHER CONFOUNDED

and Convicted of Ignorance and Falsehood.

CHAS. CHINIQUY, Priest.

The seventh of January, 1851, several citizens of St. Mary were sent in different directions through the parish to announce that Mr. Rowsey had at length consented to the public discussion to which he had been repeatedly invited without avail. Accordingly, at one o'clock in the afternoon, more than 400 people crowded in the large hall of the presbytery, around the Apostle of Temperance and Mr. Rowsey, the former whom a platform had been prepared in order that they might be better heard.

Mr. Joseph Hinsley was elected Chairman; Mr. F. H. Gifford, Notary, and Mr. Leader Tyndale, Merchant, were called to see to the Secretary and take notes of all that was said and done during the discussion. Mr. Chiniquy and Mr. Rowsey were agreed to abide by the decision of the Chairman in all questions of personal rights and privileges (but not of dogma) which might arise during the discussion. The Chairman who then charged the audience order and silence.

Mr. Rowsey requested that two persons be named to read the confession with some solemn and suitable music before the reading of the order. Rev. Mr. Oldmixon reported that he did not see the necessity of applying so many resources, as it would commence indorse and endorse greatly over and beyond what might be done. Besides so many persons were now required to sustain order in the audience that no judicious, responsible and Christianized men among whom he had the pleasure last and honor of being, but since such was the wish of Mr. Ronsey he would not oppose it, and two persons were consequently appointed to assist the Chairman.

These preliminary arrangements being completed, Mr. Chiniqay read his proposition as follows:

Mr. Chairman,—

This is a day you have long wished for in this good parish—an occasion I also have most ardently desired.

Men have cried out that we are liars; that our holy religion is a theme of error. They publish that Catholic priests are false prophets who mislead their people. One he [Mr. Ronsey] much is in the habit to-day to prove to me, he says, all these things. I am happy to meet him; with the grace of God nothing will be wanting to him to confound him and show on which side are false prophets, ignorance and falsehood.

Before beginning the discussion, Mr. Chairman, I have something to propose to you. Mr. Ronsey and I have agreed to abide by your decision in matters of form which might arise between us; therefore in the proposition I am about to submit to you I shall abide by what you say.

Through respect for this large assembly it seems to me fitting that Mr. Ronsey and I should make known who we are, whence we come, and how far we can stir the attention and respect of those before whom we are about to have the honor to speak."

Mr. Ronsey rose heraldically and said, with warmth, "Mr. Chairman, I protest against Mr. Chiniqay's proposition. Before coming here this morning and I learned that during the discussion there should be no proposal, save that between us, and Mr. Chiniqay, cannot make this proposition without diminishing his credit at home."

Mr. Chiniqay—"Mr. Chairman; it is certain that Mr. Ronsey did not understand me if he supposed that the word plenary between us this morning, is synonymous and inseparable of more than fifty who have deigned to sit in the library of certain big politicians who he is; whence he comes to witness political happenings and from whom he holds his opinions. As to preventing any proposal to be made in general assembly to Harvest, fully loaded, thousands of immigrants upon our shores. Among these immigrants there are some who come to us with a character, not only equivocal, but completely bad; let me say, Sir, there are some who come to us often having a thousand things to discredit the halter. I would not say, then, Mr. Chairman, in number of this number, No, especially not, but it appears to me that our Unionists should resist the contempt which a great number of them now have for us; it is noted always ready to surround with us, around the last adventurer, who, taking refuge behind a title, obtained I know not how, comes to set himself up as an apostle of a new religion."

Mr. Rooney (taking his hat and cloak).—"I shall go; this is a trap laid for me." Mr. Chouteau breaks the mould of honor which he gave to me; he insults me in declaring that I am an adventurer without principle."

"Mr. Chairman," Mr. Rooney strongly申斥(challenged) me if he believes that I wish to insult him. Much so, thing is far from my intention, but it seems to me that on your having my submission has a right to know to whom he speaks, with what sort of person, he discloses. It is in order to fulfil the promise I made to you not to ask personal questions during the discussion, that I now ask Mr. Rooney who he is, whence he comes, the which nation he belongs, who gave him the mission to preach and expiate the world, or by whose right he appears as an apostle among us if not even his given him this night to preach. This discussion is not begun. This proposition I make is not, therefore, contrary to the word of honor I gave you to abstain, forward, personal questions during the discussion.

When Mr. Rooney requested that a Chairman, assisted by two other persons, should be appointed to decide upon questions of personality or form which might arise between us, it was necessary to be supposed that some such questions should spring up during the discussion. And the purpose had been to give an opportunity to manifest agreement to me like a miserable protestant heretic, and avoid a discussion in which he has more than one reason to fear that the advantages will not be on his side.

Moreover, Mr. Chairman, it is neither for Mr. Rooney nor for me to decide upon this question, but you and I alone; and Mr. Rooney must submit to my judgment, if he has any interest for the word of honor he gave to abide by my decision."

The Chairman then rose and addressed Mr. Rooney.—

"Mr. Rooney, it appears to me that Mr. Chouteau's request is reasonable. A man of honor had never told fear or shame in showing the titles he has to the respect and consideration of those before whom he appears, especially when it is for the first time. Although we are pleased to believe you a gentleman, the greater number of those who compose this assembly, myself in particular, would wish to know who you are, whence you come, and from whom you hold the mission to preach the gospel."

These words were received with applause by all the assembly.

Mr. Chouteau, however, presented to the Delegates the following document, saying, "We will informing this, Mr. Chairman, who I am;" then turned to Mr. Chouteau.—"He sent enough, gentlemen, to read and consider this paper in order of business with me."

the Baptist, Methodist, Church, or the Society Presbyterian, or whether he is Methodist, Jesoper, or Mormon. There are certainly things which we are anxious to know; and that we have a right to ask of him who has come before us as a prophet, — "I made John baptize (man) naked and taking his coat to go)." — "I cannot explain to you, what I do, — I refuse to give the circumstances that Mr. Utterback informed me I should not have cause to bury him had I known he could not say himself as a professor and Minister of the Holy Gospel. I consider it an insult that he should require me to prove these things. Were I a member of the Holy Gospel, His Excellency the Governor would not have given me diploma to bury the dead, to marry and to keep a register."

Mr. CHAPIN.— This, Mr. Chairman, is a singular way of proving that one is a Minister of the Gospel. Mr. Rodney assured us that the Governor had given him permission to bury, to marry, and to keep a register! — To tell us of a Governor's diploma in order to prove that a man is a Minister of the Gospel is the most absurd, the most ridiculous thing, Mr. Chairman, that you and this assembly have ever heard. A Governor may well appoint a Justice of the Peace, a Captain of the Militia, a civil minister, but he can go no farther.

When Mr. Rodney assured us that he expected to be treated by me as a true Minister of the Gospel, he was greatly mistaken. Strangers who come to this country, so don't take us for imbeciles when they believe that on their simple word we will accord them the honor, the confidence and the respect they demand,—that, in a word, we would prepare ourselves humbly before their visit. If Mr. Rodney has up to this time sent people good enough to act thus towards him, he is greatly mistaken. Under such, if he thinks that you, Mr. Chapin, and this assembly are ready to receive him as a true and worthy Minister of the Gospel, believe me, then give us his thanks. For my part, I voted for Mr. Rodney with alacrity, before more than fifty men, in such a way as ought not to offend. He goes to my opinion. You were present, Mr. Utterback, and from under that circumstance has not escaped you, you need my aid on certain questions touching Mr. Rodney. Mr. Rodney is the last person whom I have considered fit to bury, to marry, to keep my books. I waited twelve days giving to see how much he professed that the date with which he informed himself had got a registration. I should be pleased and happy to be able to offer testimony in favor of this number, — for I believe that it is necessary that he whom God has sent, not importuning us when he announces himself as among special case exceptions of them to whom Jesus Christ said — "Go teach all nations. I will be with you to the consummation of the world."

— Mr. Chapman still wishing to continue — Mr. Chapin, instead of

and I shall hold my silence with this question upon he makes any statement."

Mr. CHAIRMAN.—Mr. Chairman, it is for us to make a statement to whom we belong, — who are we? — where we have come from, and what we are doing. I will be very frank in all these questions, I am ready to make every statement (laughing). You, I am ready to say myself, upon my honor before Mr. Justice to lay his opinion. If you consider it necessary. But it is not for me it is not. Who is Mr. Bonney? He is he who insinuates that he talk so that in Canada we have not the right to ask questions. You can constantly write upon our charts, "who are you? whence do you come? what do you want?" Above all when there is no man present themselves before us on the admissions of Christ upon earth. Give your judgment, Mr. Chairman. It is an insult to ask a man to stand in the name of God, to stand before God, and to ask who are you? whence do you come? who has given you the right to preach the gospel? What proof can you give us that you know how to interpret the New Testament? Then the Catholic Church! Prove to us that the Holy Ghost enlightens you alone more than the enlightens the two hundred million Catholics who cover the globe."

Mr. CHAIRMAN.—"Mr. Bonney, I do not see that Mr. Chéniguy comes over to say anything in asking you. But you are bad who gave you the permission to speak."

Mr. Bonney still evinced a desire to leave.

Mr. Chairman addressed the two gentlemen appointed to aid the Committee with their researches. "It is necessary for you gentlemen, to do your best to find out, whom and who he is, whence he comes, and what he means. In reply, you must know and prove good and sufficient. It is hardly I am ready to decide whether you judge him to be a good man or not. I very much desire that Mr. Bonney shall not escape, and that he shall be tried like every other, that is to say, that he is guilty of some infraction, and he must be condemned to his punishment. I therefore shall do all in my power to force Mr. Bonney to speak. The public will then know, for all time to come, the true character of the man, and the true character of the Canadian Catholic movement. And now, Mr. Chairman, with what earnestness I have to do, I request to thank the Committee for all they do for me."

One of the men, a Protestant named Angus, then spoke in his turn. "I am allowed by the Authorised Committee, Mr. Chairman, says that he had no intention of insulting you in asking who you are, you are bound to accept his explanation. Furthermore, our gentleman declares himself ready to tell you that he will withdraw his statement.

He also withdraws his motion. All that remains is to vote on the amendment knowing who you are; you cannot be bound to tell the discussion group.

This decision has been received with approval by Mr. Kossby, and Mr.
Hanson approves it.

Mr. CHAIRMAN to the Chairman.—I would prefer to have known with whom I am about to enter upon a discussion, and to appreciate him still that we all have a right to know, but since this information is withheld let us open the discussion without further delay, much as I W had intended to do. Mr. Hanson rises around the counter, takes the "Bible," and the Bible alone, interpreted by each individual, must be our sole rule of faith. He asserts that the Bible is the only authoritative standard guide us through the uncertainties of life. In this way, we must reject all that is not proved by a clear text from the Bible. We may that we should place no confidence in our holy traditions, nor in the authority of the Church. Now, Mr. Chairman, I trust Mr. Kossby to prove these assertions and I expect to show that such an interpretation is an absurdity.

Mr. HANSON.—Mr. Chairman, nothing has been said above to prove that the Bible, and the Bible alone, must be our sole rule the rule of every man who desires to work his salvation in accordance disserted in "Deuteronomy," chapter IV, verse 14. "And ye shall have and unto the world which I command you, that ye receive no doctrine from men, neither after the commandments of the flesh, received which I command you." (See page 16, second column.)

Lord my God commanded me, that ye might observe them in the day of judgment, that ye go to possess it. See how your fathers, our forefathers and unto now seen to be the custom of religious reformers to invent stories with which to justify and cover their doings. The story which has, amazingly enough, the name of Mr. Buxton, bears the impress of truth, which he has just read to us, for what purpose I know not. In the most absurd, the most silly, & the most hideous among these stories, with which the advocates of the dissolution of the monasteries reward Mr. Buxton, has so often heard from the lips of his old grandfather that we Catholics are enemies of the word of God, and hate the holy Bible, that he firmly believes it. But that in one of these old stories, in which educated Protestant blanch.

Who preserved the Sacred Scriptures during the fifteen hundred years that preceded the creation and destruction of Rome and Orléans, if not the Catholic Church? Before those two nations reached the peak of the world, and misled people by their ambitions and errors of every kind; in a word, before there was a single Protestant on earth, the Catholic Church not only preserved the Holy Scriptures in her most precious treasury but she employed no means to conceal a knowledge of them among the people. During the next three thousand years, from the great discovery of printing to the publication of Jerome's Vulgate, about seventy-five or eighty editions of the Bible translated into the different languages of Europe, sprung up in the course of time, and were scattered over the continent, with the exception of England, and Spain, and Portugal, at the expense of the Orthodox Church, who had lost all their lands. If the Church had a few thousand dollars to place at the disposal of any man to open the difficulties of reading of the Bible in modern languages, Protestants alone have been the losers. Their scholars have however translated the text in their Bibles themselves, by their ignorance, or rather by the corruption of their mind and heart; they have polluted this source of life's salvation except that those who come there to refresh themselves find death rather than life for their souls. Europe was at one time inundated with Bibles, in which the text, according to the testimony of educated Protestants, occupied no more space than the wild and useless dreams of savagery. Thus, let me tell you, the Church, ignorantly, foolishly, or rather lying, that those Alfred Bibles written out by the poor, word of God, yet bore repute for a true and exact rendering of the Bible in modern language. Who can tell us where they got their opinions? Many said, several hundred years ago, that there was another text, but which became disengaged from the text of the Vulgate, the text of the constitution. But no, O reader, never give a thought to another text, the difficulties of the Bible in the Greek, Latin, and Hebrew, do not annoy you; nearly all those who know how to read understand them in Latin, for those very languages were the most used, those most taught in all the principal schools of Europe. But the unhappy people living which a dreadful epidemic forced the Church of Jesus Christ to take this should remain, to exert to prevent that still contagion marking the heart of many leaders of Evangelization. Certainly, had she been in closer touch with these leaders, she would have been more successful. Both Paul and Calvin have admitted that the purity and integrity which the Church divined her children have no correspondence with the integrity of this baleful Bible, though written over every page by the invincible Annotations which disprove all claims of its spiritual purity. Heresy has no place in the New Testament, and therefore the people to read the Bible, if it is to believe what it says, must be ignorant and believe in the old imposture of heresy. What could better illustrate the power of their dupes than to let them know that they have been taught all the history of what they term "the Truth" in Europe and America, let us say, in the last two centuries? And they can never let them go to heaven without the marks of hell, and everywhere they will find themselves in the same predicament as the modern languages with the authority of the church to sustain them. I have in my hand a copy printed not yet five years ago, and on the first page I find the following appropriate extract from the Preface of the New Testament of the King James Version of the English Bible, 1611, by command of King James VI of England:

"We approve and recommend to the faithful in our Church this translation of the New Testament with the Annotations of Dr. John Archdale, or Godwin.

Foot-note 7. — Annotations included in the King James Version of the English Bible, 1611, by command of King James VI of England. All these Catholic Bibles allowed for, since all the Protestant books of Europe and America are corrupt, according to the annotations of Protestantism, published, both in their schools, when young, and in continually issued to the ministers and journals, telling it in every volume that does not speculate in the Bible, and yet it is not true.

Mr. Buckley has told us that the study of the Bible was the only understanding by Jesus Christ and his Apostles for the conversion of the world. Mr. Buckley probably holds this same idea, like all Protestants, that Jesus did not understand the world, and therefore, Mr. Chapman, that Jesus did not understand the world, and therefore, from the mouth of Jesus. It is indeed true that Jesus did not understand the world, the Bible, the Bible, do not understand Jesus, Jesus said in his Apostles: "He that believeth and is converted shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be condemned."

St. Mark chapter XVII, verse 15, and to this Jesus added further and added this Mark chapter XXVIII, verse 18, 19, 20, etc.: "And Jesus saith unto them, saying: 'All power is given to me in heaven and in earth. Therefore, go ye all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. And lo, I am with you all the days, even until the consummation of the world.'"

It is not therefore a book which the Apostles are charged to read to the people to the confirmation of all world. It is a secret treasury of preachers for which they have received a mission and in which our Divine Saviour has promised to hidet and gather them; and the history forty or sixty years, but until the confirmation of the World. Thus by the prophecy of the Apostle to the people, and not by the command of the gospel by the people themselves, that Jesus Christ while men to be enlightened and invited to the confirmation of the world. And that is why the Catholic Priests, old members of the church given to the new Apostle, ready to read and explain the gospel to the people. Jesus Christ did not say to him who does not read the gospel shall be condemned. It is an absurdity and a falsehood, which can proceed but from hell; but Jesus Christ said to his Apostles of all ages: Preach the gospel—wherever all nations—I will be with you—he who despises you despises me who despises you despises me—he who believes in your preaching shall be saved—he who does not believe shall be lost. Jesus Christ did not say: If you do not read the Bible you shall be considered as a heretic and a publican; but he said: "If you hear not the Church you shall be con sidered as a heretic and a publican."

Jesus Christ therefore came to establish a church, not to cause a book to be written upon earth. The gospel is the property of the Church, it is one of her treasures, one of her great treasures, she is charged to guard it and transmit it to her children. See it was the command of Jesus Christ to his Apostles to make the mission given.

To say that the Bible is a book of the church, is to say that it is to be conveyed by reading of the Bible, each individual according to his will, is so great an absurdity that always at a long distance, and want of intelligence, can never be true.

But we find that before the invention of printing books were as rare and dear. At that day they are plentiful and cheap. For 1400 years after Christ, everything had to be written by the hand. Now to print an entire Bible requires a considerable sum. Very few persons know how to write among the professors, and even fewer among the learned in war. We find even the names of many powerful kings who could not sign their names. To procure an hour a book, it was necessary to pay a great sum of money. It was therefore necessary to wait for the ill luminescent majority of Christians for 1400 years to buy a Bible or read them.

However this was not done during the first thousand years preceding the people used to embroil among themselves to purchase a Bible which they deposited in the parson's chest, from which the priest would on Sundays read a portion and explain it to the people.

It was not by reading the Bible but by the prophecy of Apostles sent by the Church of Jesus Christ that the French, the English, the Germans, the Spaniards, the Irish, the Greeks, the Russians and all other nations were converted, since very few among them various nations know how to read, and still less number were in a position to procure a Bible. Let Mr. Rooney show that if he can.

Now, since it is well known fact that Jesus Christ desired His Church to spread to the corners of the earth by preaching for 1500 years, let Mr. Rooney show us a text in the Bible by which we can learn that Jesus Christ desired that the reading of the Bible by individuals should replace preaching in any one whatever of the acts of the Church.

In evidence of Mr. Rooney's statement were found these words Jesus Christ would not have commanded his Apostles to preach the gospel until the end of the world, but to teach people to read and give them Bibles. And instead of giving his promises and mission to Apostles he would have sent school masters to the nations seated in the shadow of death.

Mr. Rooney tells us that our Lord is opposed to the false traditions of men, but the Church also condemns these false human traditions. When Mr. Rooney tells us that all we need believe and do is written in the gospel, and that we must believe nothing of the truths taught by tradition; in a word, when Mr. Rooney says that we do not find the Catholic church of Tradition in the Holy Scripture, he shows either his bad faith or his ignorance. Here is Mr. Rooney's own Bible. In the second epistle of St. Paul to the Thessalonians the Apostle writes (chap. II, verse 15) :—"Therefore兄弟 stand fast, and hold the traditions which ye have learned, whether by word of my Oracle." Here St. Paul says that what we receive by the inspired word, that is to say by tradition, is of the same authority as that which he wrote in his epistles.

In much more than affterity in Mr. Rooney to dare to say to our face that tradition is not mentioned in the sacred Scripture. And in chapter III, verse 6, of the same epistle St. Paul says :—"Now we command you, brothers, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh disorderly, and not after the tradition which he received." 11

In his second epistle to St. Timothy, chapter II, verses 1 and 2, St. Paul contradicts Mr. Rooney's absurd assertion that all the traditions of Jesus Christ are written, and that we have no more scriptural tradition. These words are clear and precise :—"Thou therefore, my son, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus. And the things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also."

In fact, Mr. Chairman, when Mr. Rooney told us that all was written in the Sacred Books and that there was no tradition, he must either have lost his memory or he thinks us too ignorant to be able to read the epistles of St. Paul.

Mr. Bonney has been truly unhappy in his choice of texts to prove that each individual ought to read the holy scripture, and had the right to interpret it according to his fancy. He has quoted the text where Moses exhorts the people to be faithful to the law of God. And this is precisely what we desire. Certainly, the commandments on the law of God. Now, part of the commandment of His most exalted commandments is this: "Keep the Church; he who will not keep the Church let him be considered as a heathen and a publican." He quoted Joshua but Joshua was the leader, the great chief of the people, a man wholly chosen and inspired by God to conduct his brethren to the promised land; it was quite natural that he should read and meditate the Holy Scripture to instruct himself and instruct others. And this also is what the Omega, the Great Church commands those whom God has chosen to lead His people. She commands them to study and read frequently the Sacred Scriptures.

Mr. Bonney has also quoted the book of Nehemiah, but I think it was a mistake on his part, for the text he gave proves exactly the contrary of what he promised us. Mr. Bonney promised us, you remember, to prove that each person should have his Bible and read it. And here he quotes a text which shows us that neither men nor women in those days had a Bible, except the priests, who were the law, and read it before the people. You see, Mr. Chairman, that this was no better than a peasant priest. Instead of distributing Bibles by thousands to everyone, as the brave Mr. Bonney does, he kept the book in his hands, and was contented to read extracts in it to the people, exactly as Mr. Girouard, your pastor, does every Sunday.

As to the text from Jesus, it proves that there were other things besides the written law, since God desired that the people should also have respect to the judiciary.

Our Lord commanded the unbelieving Jews to read the Holy Scripture, but naturally not as the sole, and best means of knowing Him, since these Jews would have done better, according to Saint Charles himself, to believe in his words and His works. The reading of the Bible, wrongly interpreted, ruined the Jews as it ruined former peoples. It was with the Bible in the hand that the Jewish leaders called Christ to be an imposter, and that according to the same book, they stoned Jesus.

But, Mr. Chairman, I wish to rebuke Mr. Bonney in his mouth and prove to him by his own admissions that he is a heretic and he misleads others, when he tells them that they must not believe in any religion anything that cannot be proved by the written word. I shall make him acknowledge that we must believe in the traditions of the Church, and even infallible traditions, since we are Christians. I do not believe in any dogma as foreign to my religion. And you, gentlemen (addressing the spectators), write down every religion he gives; and you, my good friends (turning to the people), listen well.

...the Director of the State Water Board invited us to watch the "Hollister Spillway" - a concrete diversion to carry flood water off the river bed, which was taken at the time of the January 1955 San Joaquin River Flood.
Timber, logs and debris were piled up along the river bank, and the dam shallows were packed solidly with floating logs. A large crowd gathered on one side of the river to watch the log jam being forced downstream by currents; and when it came, it was like a massive tidal wave. Logs, timber, and debris were carried along at a rate of about 10 miles per hour. When wind was added, the current increased, by four or five times, while the speeded up gush of water was so great, it overrode the concrete foundation of the dam, forcing it to give way.

know before God. It is thus also that the Church would know her duty to make the Word known. The above statement by Mr. Gurney that the knowledge of the Gospel is to be exhibited by visiting souls, shows the example of the Apostle that he mentioned in 1 Cor. How shall the gospel be told if the Jesus Christ of infinite grace have not heard? And how shall they go without a prophet? And I will visit in this

According to the Apostle 1st. Cor. 9th. verse the best way is either the example, As Jesus gave Christ to us by his spoken or by preaching, and not by reading. Reading understanding is not without use but it only informs us of what others have done who are not to preach. But I said unto them, If any man will be saved by me, let him come to me, let me rebuke him, let me correct him. In addition, Mr. Bowes, what does not the Bible say? "If any man offend you, rebuke him." "If any man offend you, rebuke him." Mr. Gurney, Mr. Chalmers, and Mr. Southgate, who prepared this assembly, and have these words from Mr. Bowes in their Bibles, what do you think of them? Sir, what do you think of a man who, instead of rebuking others, who have been written only under the inspiration of the Word of God, and which could only comfort and help those who read them, but Mr. Bowes causes us that we are rebuked and persecuted, that we bring up division among. You gentlemen, who are here, and who follow now to the gods, even Jesus, find this a Yoke, which you cannot bear? Is it a yoke of Christ? and caused by mortal flesh? or is it a yoke of the Devil, consisting that it comes from the Devil, and the word of God, he has given us? Sir, then this is the Devil's yoke, and the yoke of the Devil, should not these Gentiles, who are here, and who are here to give thanks for this Bible, as Rebukers of others, who do offend and irritate to division among? Let us all stand together, and stand together to divide

Mr. Bowes (joined with Indentation). — What! Mr. Chalmers, you say that the Devil holds you up, and is splitting you up? I do you no wrong than to give others a blow, and to every one of them, and to all of them, I shall prove to you also, that what I say is true. — Let me add, that he who is a Rebuker of others, who is a Rebuker of others, must be a Rebuker of himself, must confess still sin by whom was done, and who did it? — Sir, do you not know old 3d. trials, — that the Devil is a Rebuker of others, who are many? — Sir, who re-

Bowen, who placed your signature to this letter?"

Mr. Chisholm then showed a letter signed by Mr. Bowen, in which he "desired Chisholm to account of having written the present communication to him.)

"Mr. Bowen," repeating and troubling—"Yes, sir. I signed your name."

"What?—sign your name?" Very well. You must know what we have advanced in our cause."

"I do, sir. You tell me my Bible is God's Word. I am going to stand by it to the last."

"Our cause there are two . . . Let him not come near you. You are a scoundrel. Mr. Bowen," said Chisholm, "you will bring trouble to your own house. Chisholm then turned to Mr. Bowen.

"Mr. Chisholm," said he, "that is not the only reason why you have been unwilling to let me go. You are a murderer. You are a son of Satan. Is victory yours?—Bowen, when I am away:—"For he that will have his soul shall lose it. And he that will lose his soul for me, for my name, shall find it."—What an fine picture of a soul lost for the love of Jesus Christ!"

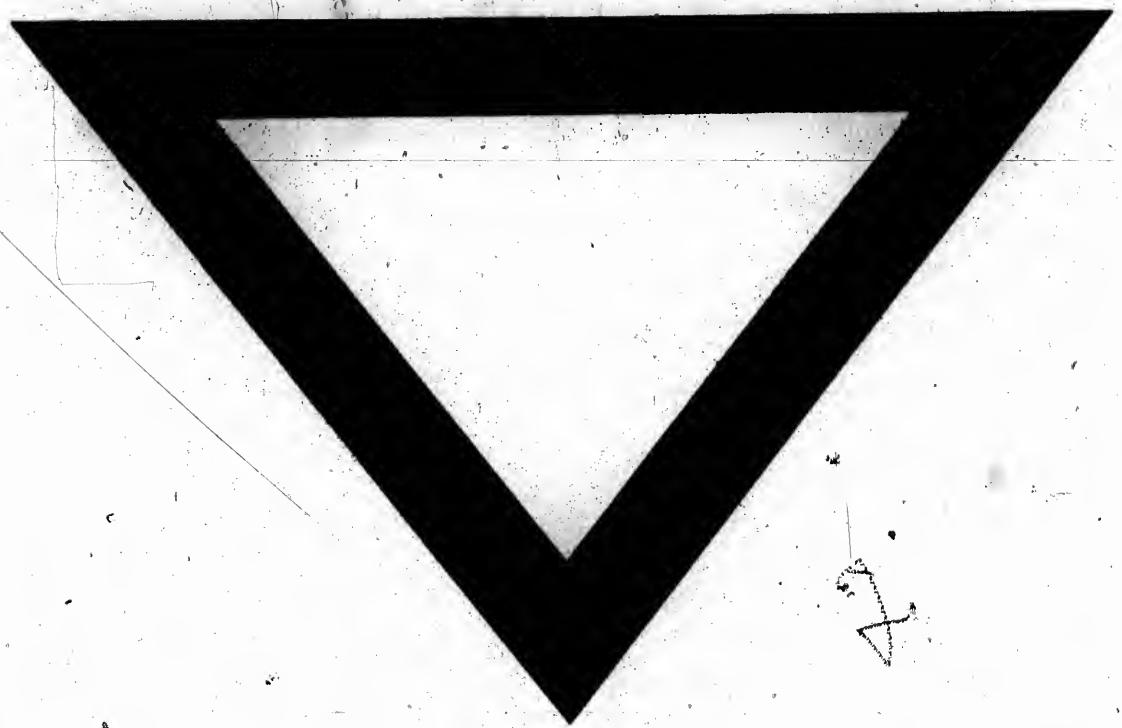

This was all that Mr. Bowen liked to say. He descended from the platform where he was standing, saying: "Adieu to the Lord, and to you all. May the Lord bless you."

The crowd of people who followed by an immense host of bachelors, all shouting and cheering:—"The Lord bless you;—but you will continue the prosecution. Do not let him out,—"said Mr. Chisholm, and Mr. Chisholm passed on in marching order by remitting the pistol that they had given their word of honor to do no harm to Mr. Bowen.

While Mr. Bowen walked through the crowd, a movement, knowing they would do him some hurt, and desiring to protect him, cried out:—"Mr. Bowen is beaten;—that is enough. It is not necessary to kill him."

THE END.
