

Tea as a Beverage

Tea first became known in China nearly 3000 years before Christ. In that country tea was greatly prized, both for its remarkable qualities as a beverage and for the almost religious ceremony attached to the drinking of it.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

James Oliver Curwood A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

Barce, son of Kazan and Gray Wolf, reached the climax in the first chapter of his education when he saw an owl swoop down and kill a snowball rabbit.

When he went on, continuing in the direction he had been following yesterday, he slunk along in a disheartened sort of way.

Until Barce had seen the others at play in the creek, his conceptions of the forests had not gone beyond his own kind, and such creatures as owls and rabbits and small feathered things.

With the thinning out of the forest the creek grew more shallow. It ran again over bars of sand and stones, and Barce began to nose along the edge of these.

ride over the tops of the stubs, and now and then one of them fell with a startling crash.

Barce could go no farther. An hour before dusk he lay down in the open, weak and starved. The sun disappeared behind the forest. The moon rolled up from the east.

In the forests as well as in the great cities fate plays its changing and whimsical hand. If Barce had dragged himself in the timber half an hour later he would have died.

Sekoosew was creeping on his prey. His game was a big fat spruce-hen standing under a thick black currant bush. The ears of no living thing could have heard Sekoosew's movement.

Sekoosew was prepared for what happened then. It always happened when he attacked Napanao, the wood partridge. Her wings were powerful, and her first instinct when he struck was always that of flight.

Where she fell was not ten feet from Barce. For a few moments he looked at the struggling mass of feathers in a daze, not quite comprehending that he had almost within his reach.

Barce at a third of the partridge, and the remaining two-thirds he caught very carefully at the foot of the big spruce. Then he hurried down to the creek for a drink.

For another day and night Barce remained in the vicinity of his cache. When the last bone was picked, he moved on. He never entered a country where subsistence was no longer a perilous problem for him.

When Barce ventured forth from under his rock at the beginning of the next day, he was a much older puppy than when he met Papayuchisev, the young owl, in his path near the old windfall.

on the Gray Loon they had lived for many years in great prosperity and happiness. Pirotot was proud of the things in this wild world of his; he was proud of Wyoia, his royal-blooded wife; and he was proud of his daughter; and he was proud of his reputation as a hunter.

Two days after Barce had entered his trapping ground, Pirotot came from the forests with a troubled look in his face.

"We will go on the hunt," laughed Nepeese happily, in her soft Cree beavers. Pirotot smiled at her like that, and began with "To-morrow," it always meant that she might go with him on the adventure he was contemplating.

From behind a clump of young balsams, a hundred yards away, Pirotot and Nepeese had watched him come over the driftwood bridge. Now was the time, and Pirotot levelled his rifle. It was not until then that Nepeese touched his arm softly.

The Star Car

"To-morrow's Car To-day"

LAKELET

An unfortunate accident occurred here on Monday afternoon when Fred C. Mahood had one of his fingers taken off in the mill here. He was getting lumber cut, and was doing the edging, while Wm. Wright had the lever and Robt. Caudle tall sawing. A long piece of timber was being cut and the car had to go back farther than usual. A bolt or projection from the car caught Fred by the leg and shoved him onto the saw as he was about to edge a board. He was immediately taken to Dr. Butler of Clifford, who had him removed to the Wingham hospital, where the injured member was attended to. Wm. Wright brought him home last week Wednesday. It is hard luck as Mr. Mahood works 200 acres of land, and he is badly needed as seeding has commenced.

The burghers and farmers in this community answered summons for assistance at the disastrous fire at Mr. Johnston's on Sunday. While the loss is heavy and the draw back at this time of the year almost inconceivable, yet it was a good thing the fire was confined to the barn; also a good thing that there were no lives lost, and that the herd of beautiful Jerseys, and other dumb animals were liberated from their perilous positions.

Every farmer in the community is 'on the land.' Some are cultivating and preparing to sow this week. When had we such an early spring! The cars are flying round about as thick as they are in mid-summer. We may be hard pinched for money and have a hard time to get the necessities of life, but when car weather comes, evidently everyone has money to buy a license and gas. They are a nice handy machine round a home, but really we believe that next to whiskey and beer, they are the greatest home wreckers ever turned out.

There is quite a lot of water over the road at the sink hole, but it is not impassable. They will have to chuck more earth and gravel on top. No doubt it continues to sink some each year.

HELPING THE DEPENDENTS

The Assessment Act as it stands allows an exemption of $400 on income rating to a householder or head of a family for each child under 18 years of age. This is a wise provision as it reduces the amount of taxes for income the father of a large family is compelled to pay in municipal taxes. The exemption from personal earnings is to be enlarged by a Bill now before the Legislature which does not limit the age of members of the family to 18 but extends it to each dependent member of the family and any dependent father or mother. As the law compels a son or daughter if in comfortable circumstances to maintain their parents, it seems only right and reasonable that all dependents should be included in the assessment exemption.

TROUBLE-SAVERS

Castor oil can be rendered quite tasteless by beating it up with the white of an egg.

A little rice placed in the salt jar will absorb damp and keep the salt from becoming lumpy.

Black silk may be cleaned by sponging the dirty parts with the water in which potatoes have been boiled.

Saucepans and frying-pans in which onions have been cooked should be boiled out with tea-leaves and soda water.

Before applying polish to a grate or stove that has burned red on top through overheating, rub well with a cut lemon.

A fish bone may often be removed from the throat by swallowing a piece of crust or an unbeaten egg.

Prov. Constable Blood of Walkerton, who has been incapacitated from duty for the past year as the result of a paralytic stroke, has decided to remove to Kitchener.

frain from borrowing money because interest must be paid for it. Money wisely borrowed and wisely invested will always produce more than the interest paid for it. That is why business men borrow—because they can pay the interest and still have more at the end of the year than they would have if they had confined their operations to what they could do without borrowed capital. One can hardly imagine a person so stupid as not to see this. If money cannot be borrowed to advantage, why do business men borrow?

Does Mr. Colwell assume that men having money which they do not wish to use in business should be obliged to hand it over to others for nothing? Or does he assume that men would lend money at all if the law prohibited the taking of interest? Surely any dunce can see that to make the taking of interest unlawful would be bad for those who borrow as well as for those who lend.

Lending money at interest is merely a part of the division of labor; one man furnishing the capital necessary in a business and the other supplying the knowledge, skill and labor, and both sharing in the profits of the enterprise.

A QUEER PROPOSAL

A queer sort of pamphlet came to our desk this week. It was gotten out by George Colwell, Wallaceburg, Ontario. Colwell appears to be a sort of crack-brain reformer who has gotten it into his head that the paying of interest on loans of money is at the bottom of all our social and financial ills. He contends that the taking of interest should be abolished by law, and he quotes profusely from the Bible and other publications to show that the taking of "usury" has long been condemned. Colwell, of course, is not alone in holding this view. It was one of the ideas held by the men who wrecked Russia, producing conditions ten times worse than those they hoped to remedy by doing away with all authority, banks, money and many other instruments of modern industry and civilization. The greater part of the world's business is done with borrowed capital, and only incompetent fools re-

LIGHTS ON VEHICLES

Farmers who are still driving horses on the highway must within the next few weeks get home from town before darkness falls or have their lamps trimmed and burning on their buggies or wagons. The lamps on rigs will become popular once more for lanterns would be very awkward. Bills to compel drivers of vehicles after night to have lights on their rigs have been introduced in the Legislature for several years past but always were defeated in the Municipal Committee. This session the light Bill has been introduced by a cabinet member, the Hon. Geo. Henry, Minister of Highways, and is bound to go through.

THEY'RE ON THE JOB WHEN YOU NEED 'EM — AND COST NO FEED WHEN YOU DON'T

This is the day of "STEEL HORSE-POWER" when men direct the power of sturdy horses through the simple twist of a steering wheel. City streets and country roads swarm with proof of this statement. And if you will cast your eye over the countryside you'll find thousands of examples wherein "Steel Horsepower" is the drawbar and belt power that operates modern-day farms at top efficiency.

What kind of power will you depend on this year? Will you rest content with plodding horse-flesh, or will you enter a new era of progressive farming with a new McCORMICK-DEERING TRACTOR at the head of your program? Think of your plowing, your tillage work, your haymaking, your grain harvesting and threshing, your corn harvesting, and the hundred and one belt jobs that must be done one way or another during the coming years. Consider what it will mean to you to put these operations out of the way quicker, more profitably, and more pleasantly with a McCORMICK DEERING TRACTOR!

And don't forget, there is a complete line of McCormick-Deering farm-operating equipment at your command—tools built to work especially well with McCormick-Deering Tractors.

We shall be pleased to explain all mechanical details fully and what a help a McCORMICK-DEERING TRACTOR can be to you.
