RUSSIAN RIGHT WING HAS ADVANCED TEN MILES INTO HUNGARY

Great Battle for Possession of Uszok Pass Still Rages--Panic in Hungary Over Russian Successes--Turkey Reports Two British Warships Damaged--General Attacks on a Larger Scale Resumed on the Dardanelles

RUSSIAN ARMY TEN MILES IN HUNGARY.

PETROGRAD, April 14.—The War Office reports the Russian right wing in the Carpathians has advanced ten miles into Hungary and is now in position to strike at the railway leading south. The Russian advance in his region has been halted pending the outcome of the fierce struggle for the Uszok Pass. The decisive gain by the Russian right wing was made with comparatively slight losses.

While one Russian army held in check the Austrian forces around Bartfeld a second force moved southward from Svidnik penetrating to Briand Stropko.

To the north the Germans are pressing nearer the Russian positions in Poland particularly north of the Vistula.

SUBMARINE WAR CLAIMED EFFECTIVE BY BERLIN.

BERLIN, April 14.—The newspaper Vossische Zeitung today quoted figures said to have been copied from English commercial papers to prove the success of the German submarine blockade up to April 1. According to the table prepared by the newspaper, the supply of wheat at Liverpool was only 1,896,000 bushels compared with a supply of 3,280,000 bushels on the same day one year ago.

GENERAL STRIKE IN ITALY.

MILAN, April 14.—Despite recommendations made by prominent citizens the extremists in labor circles called a general strike today as a protest over the killing of one of the demonstrators who was wounded by the police in charging the crowd which gathered last Sunday for a mass meeting to discuss Italy's attitude regarding the war. At the call of the Socialist organization, workers of all classes laid down their tools. The strike will continue until midnight.

VIENNA PREPARES FOR SIEGE.

ROME, April 14.—A despatch from Vienna indicates that a state of siege probably will be proclaimed in Austria owing to the unrest resulting from the Russian advance across the Carpathians. Wealthy Hungarians are said to be making hasty preparations for flight.

TWO ALLIED WARSHIPS SEVERELY DAMAGED.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 14.—Two allied warships were severely damaged by fire from the Turkish forts in the bombardment of the Dardanelles on Monday.

DARDANELLES' FORTS ATTACKED ON LARGER SCALE.

LONDON, April 14.—The Admiralty has issued no statement regarding the resumed bombardment of the Dardanelles. The statement from Constantinople and unofficial reports from Sofia and the island of Tenedos indicate that the attack was resumed on a larger scale than has been developed since the sinking of three allied battleships on March 18.

ROAR OF CANNONS HEARD 40 MILES.

SOFIA, April 14.—A Dedeagattes correspondent wires that allied warships engaged in a heavy bombardment of the Dardanelles forts on Monday. The attack was most violent at about 5 p.m. according to the Dedeagattes despatch which added that the roar of the big cannons could be heard for more than forty miles.

PRICE OF BREAD ADVANCED IN LONDON.

LONDON, April 14.—It has been decided by the master bakers to advance the price of bread, beginning next Monday, to 17c per quarter loaf. A quarter loaf is about four pounds.

LEAVES DUTCH WATERS BY OFFICIAL RE- QUEST.

THE HAGUE, April 14.—It is announced semi-officially that the German steamer Main, which had been lying in port at Flushing since the war began, left there yesterday for Antwerp. The Dutch government, it is asserted, discovered that the steamer was communicating by wireless with German submarines and ordered him to leave Flushing.

AMERICAN OBSERVERS DEPART FOR NEW YORK.

THE HAGUE, April 14.—Capt. Samuel G. Shartie and Samuel D. Rookenbach, who have been acting as American army observers with the German forces, left Rotterdam tonight aboard the steamer Rotterdam for New York.

SHETLAND EXPLOSION: RESULT OF FIRE.

LONDON, April 14.—The fatal explosion at Lerwick, Shetland Islands, yesterday was the result of a fire, according to recent despatches reaching London. Considerable property was wrecked and four men and one boy lost their lives. No further details yet have been received.

OFFICIAL MOVIES TAKEN OF THE FRENCH ARMY.

PARIS, April 14.—In order that the world in general and neutral countries in particular may learn something of the work of the French army, the French War Office is organizing an expedition of cinematograph operators through the whole French lines. Many remarkable films have already been taken and they will at once be multiplied and circulated.

TRAWLERS LAYING MINES SUNK BY BRIT- ISH PATROL.

LONDON, April 14.—Your correspondent understands that there has been no naval fighting in the North Sea. The true explanation of the origin of the reports to this effect is that a patrolling squadron frustrated by gunfire an attempt by the Germans to lay mines in immense numbers by means of trawlers.

The squadron sighted numerous apparently innocent trawlers flying the Norwegian flag. The weather was thick and the density of the fog in part of the area resulted in a collision between one of the British warships and a trawler. The latter was instantly blown up by a terrific explosion. The other trawlers tried to escape, but were pursued and captured. It was then discovered that they were Germans, whereupon they were sunk by gunfire, which with the huge explosions of the trawlers gave a vivid impression of a battle. The incident is additionally interesting in view of the endeavors to again raise the cry of Great Britain's misuse of neutral flags

DASH UP THE DARDANELLES.

LONDON, April 14.—Reuter's Tenedos correspondent telegraphing Tuesday says: "The British torpedo-boat destroyer Renard entered the Dardanelles yesterday on a scouting mission and ran up the straits at high speed for over ten miles, penetrating the waterway probably farther than any of the British ships have yet done. A heavy fire was directed at her, but the destroyer was not hit."

"The British battleship London, which followed the Renard into the straits, drew most of the enemy's fire. The batteries on the Asiatic side, especially the howitzers behind the Frenkeuf, were active, but those on the European were quiet. Possibly the Turks have withdrawn part of their artillery on the European side in order to be able to mass it quickly at any spot the allied armies may choose for a landing."

"The battery bombarded by the Triumph Saturday apparently is permanently out of action."

"The weather is rainy and murky, hindering aerial reconnaissances."

BRITISH TEMPERANCE POLICY MAY BE KNOWN TODAY.

LONDON, April 14.—Probably no session of the British Parliament since the opening of the war has been awaited with keener interest than the sitting which will begin tomorrow. A "dry" Britin, unknown except for a period of two years 150 years ago, is not beyond the possibilities, but the Government has given not the slightest official hint as to what action may be expected in its undoubted determination to attack the problem of restricting the consumption of alcoholic liquors. Several days ago an Opposition paper published a forecast of the Government plan, which, it asserted, contemplated the prohibition of all liquors except light beer, which would be manufactured by the Government.

This prediction received some confirmation tonight from a Government organ, The Evening Chronicle, which declared that the entire business of the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors is to be come a Government monopoly.

FRENCH BOMBARD A TURKISH CAMP.

PARIS, April 14.—The Marine Ministry issued the following statement today:

"Yesterday the battleship St. Louis, in connection with French sea-planes, bombarded the important Turkish encampment in the neighborhood of Gaza."

The bombardment of Gaza marks the development of hostilities in a new quarter. Gaza is in Southern Palestine, near the Egyptian frontier. The city lies two miles inland from the Mediterranean and forty-eight miles southwest of Jerusalem. The Turkish encampment near this city may have been established in connection with the advance of Turkish troops across the Sinai Peninsula to the Suez Canal.

42nd Annual Supper of Baptist Church

(From Tuesday's Daily.)

Eighty-seven people sat down to a choice supper at the Baptist Church last evening in celebration of the 42nd anniversary of the organization of the congregation. The tables were well laden with good things provided by the Ladies' Bible Class and service given in dainty fashion. After the supper the following musical program was rendered:

Piano solo—Miss Wanda Higgins
Cornet and saxophone duet—Messrs. Albert and William Wannacott

Vocal solo by Miss Margaret Brown and solo by Mrs. P. C. MacLaurin

Mr. C. A. Hart, church treasurer presented the quarterly report which showed an increase of offerings in every department of the church. Mr. Albert Blackburn the church clerk read the minutes for the quarter and gave the report of the building fund account which showed that the church mortgage now stood at $8,500. Reports were presented from the missionary department of the church of which Mr. James Peck is treasurer. From the Sunday School and Outlook Club. The Women's Missionary Circle made its report and stated that the members had presented the pastor's wife, Mrs. Smith, with a life membership in the Baptist Missionary Society costing $25.

Mr. P. C. MacLaurin on behalf of the finance board read a report of recent special offerings. These amounted to $280. Increased weekly pledges had also been received amounting to $7.50 per week. It is calculated that at the close of the present year, the church budget will be fully met. Mr. MacLaurin expressed the thanks of the board to the members of the congregation and friends for their generosity and increased weekly pledges.

The pastor, Rev. C. G. Smith read a letter of greetings from the Rev. Robert Wallace, now residing in Toronto. The letter was very heartily received by all present.

A vote of thanks was tendered the Ladies' Bible Class after which the meeting was closed with prayer.

Money Stolen From Pool-Room

Some thief or thieves got busy last night and by raising a window at the rear of Pappa's new premises on Front street entered the store. The result was a haul of a considerable amount of silver coin.

A WELL KNOWN FORMER RESIDENT HAS PASSED AWAY

From the Times of Mount Pleasant Mich., we gather the following particulars in reference to Mr. P. C. Donovan who passed away in that town on Saturday, April 4th. As will be seen Mr. Donovan was a native of Belleville and moved to Read, where he resided until he was about forty years of age, moving later to Mount Pleasant where he made good and became universally honored and respected.

"We bent today over a coffin form and our tears fell softly down our faces. We looked our last on the aged face.

With its look of peace, its patient grace.

And his hair like a silver crown." Patrick C. Donovan, for 33 years a landlord of Mt. Pleasant, first as proprietor of the old Bamber House which stood on the present site of the Donovan, corner Main and Broadway, then of the present place since its erection in 1890, died on Sunday last after a brief illness of pneumonia. The funeral was held on Tuesday from the Sacred Heart Church, the services, solemn High Mass, conducted by Rev. Father O'Connor, assisted by Father McNeil and Father McAlester of the Vernon church.

The large church was packed with friends and acquaintances who came to pay the last token of respect to the man they had so long known and admired, and it was a long procession that followed the body to its grave in Calvary cemetery, and a sad procession too.

He was a man universally respected and admired. He was a man of generous impulses, broadminded and progressive and with other pioneers who preceded him to eternal rest, laid the foundation for beautiful and prosperous Mt. Pleasant.

He was a man who bore adversity bravely, and enjoyed prosperity quietly.

Living here so many years has given him a wide acquaintance with the people of the city and county and during the quarter of a century and more that the writer has known him, never an ill word has been heard spoken against his character as a man from any source.

This should be a consolation to the wife and children who are left to mourn him.

He performed life's work as a man lived an honorable conscientious and upright life as a citizen, and died carrying with him to his windowless grave a record of his wisdom and admiration of all who knew him.

He had filled the various relations of life, as son, husband, father, friend and filled them well. Who can do more?

And he was a good friend and a true friend, with a warmth of sincerity that was magnetic. His was wise counsel and good advice.

The writer numbered him as one of his best friends whose place will hard to fill, and as such extends sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

Deceased was born in Belleville, Canada, March 17th, 1842, which would have made him 73 years of age this 17th of this month.

He has left a wife and four children Andrew, Bernard, Rose and Leo, a brother, older than himself, in Texas, and one sister, Mrs. Margaret Carlyle of Kalamazoo who was present at the funeral.

He sleeps today in Calvary cemetery by the side of six children who have been taken from them in the past few years.

Verily the cup of bitterness of those who are left has been filled to overflowing.

FRONT OF THURLOW.

The sale of farm stock and implements at the home of Mrs. W. B. Dockstader on Wednesday last was well attended and prices went high. Cows ranging from $50 to $60. Mr. Simmons was the auctioneer. The farm was also offered for sale, but we understand was not sold.

Miss Carrie Reid returned home Saturday after spending some days with her sister, Mrs. Harold Young, Mountain View.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hall and children spent Thursday at Mr. B. Clarke's Carmel.

Miss Leah Grace spent a few days last week with Mrs. J. Ketcheson, Front of Sidney.

Mrs. A. M. Leavens and children of Belleville returned home, Saturday after spending last week with her sister, Mrs. Arthur Clazie.

Mr. W. D. Reid, Mrs. Carrie Reid, and Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Brown spent Sunday with the latter's sister, Miss B. Green, Stirling.

Mr. G. A. Hall in company with his brother, Mr. W. A. Hall 2nd, spent Sunday with friends in Prince Edward.

Death of Mrs. George Wickett

Mrs. Frances L. Wickett, wife of Mr. George Wickett of Foxboro, and daughter of the late D. Z. Sills, died on Sunday afternoon after two weeks of illness with pneumonia. Mrs. Wickett was 58 years of age, having been born in Sidney on July 26, 1856.

Mrs. Wickett was well known and was held in high esteem throughout the district and her death has caused widespread regret. She was a Methodist in religion and leaves one daughter, Florence, besides the husband.

Mrs. Thomas Gay of Foxboro is the only sister of the late Mrs. Wickett.

MAY YOU ALL PERISH

German's Letter to British Friend —Germany's "All Conquer- ing Hatred"

The following remarkable letter has been received by a British professional man from a German now in Hamburg, who lived for some years in England and was on terms of close friendship with this particular Englishman. The letter reached England by way of Italy:—

"Dear Mr. ————, I have come to my knowledge that you have been making inquiries in various quarters concerning me and my welfare, and I have to tell you that, despite our old friendship, there can never again be any sort of communication between us, either now or when the war is over. I do not deny that during my stay in your country I received much kindness at your hands, but you, as a British citizen, must bear your share of the responsibility for your country's infamous attempt to shatter and destroy the greatness of Germany, and therefore I, as a true German, must forget all personal benefits and must regard you, just because you are an Englishman, with 'all-conquering hatred.'"

"The history of the last half-century absolutely proves that all hope for the future of Europe lies in the hands of my country, Russia is Asiatic and barbarous. France and the other Latin countries are decadent. England is mean-souled and trivial. Only Germany realises the possibilities of tomorrow, and only Germany is capable of protecting civilization from the future inevitable onslaughts from the East. Germany's amazing progress has awakened the enmity of her neighbors, and it was that enmity and envy that made this war inevitable."

"There was no reason for Great Britain's intervention. Your statement professes lip-friendship to us. Up to the last moment Sir Edward Grey led us to believe that Great Britain would remain neutral. Then when we were embroiled with both Russia and France you sided with our enemies."

"Never in the history of the world has a nation made war for a meaner cause, and the hatred that we have for Great Britain in the hatred that a nation of idealists naturally feels for unscrupulous, petty-minded, back-stabbers. The crime deserves an adequate punishment. Germany is fighting for her life, and it is idle to suppose that we will fight in kind. She is more than justified in using all the means devised by the ingenuity of her sons to compass the ruin of her foes. Your denunciation of our 'barbarities' leaves us entirely unaffected. We rejoice at the killing of every single Englishman, and at the loss of every English ship. We remain cold if a few women and children are killed by our air attacks on your cities. This is a war to the knife, a nation against nation, and it can only end in the destruction of the race that has for centuries been the pirate of the world."

Even to Death.

"If you and I were to meet, friends as we were once, I would not raise my little finger to save your life, and, indeed, I would do my utmost to cause you to lose it, because, as I have said, you are an Englishman."

"To your gracious wife and children, who had no part in making this war, I send my respects. They are not responsible, though they may suffer. But so, too, do we suffer. If you could see what your war on our innocents has done, how our poor are being slowly starved to death by your food war, your heart would harden. So, then, too, do we suffer. If you are a man who could have lifted up his voice in protest. You did not. Therefore, all the pent-up hatred which we have for your distant country is also for you."

"May you all perish in misery."
"C. von S."

WILL IT END IN JULY?

There has been much prophecy and much speculation as to the duration of the war. Nobody as yet has ventured to fix the exact date when the great struggle will come to an end, but an English financier has undertaken to present certain facts about the cost of the war which, he argues afford reason for believing that economic exhaustion and exhaustion of men and war materials will render it impossible for some of the principal belligerents to continue the conflict after July.

In an address before the Royal Statistical Society Mr. Edgar Crammond made a careful attempt, on such rough data as are available, to calculate the cost of the war to the Allies and to Germany down to July 31st. The cost falls under two main heads; the sums directly spent on armies and fleets, and the indirect losses incurred through the destruction of property, and the loss of production, and the loss of the capitalized value of human lives. The proportion between the two varies very greatly in different cases, Mr. Crammond calculating that Belgium's indirect loss is thirteen or fourteen times her direct expenditure, while Great Britain is the only case in which the direct cost exceeds the indirect.

Germany, he said, would lose a vast proportion of her foreign trade. The five Powers with whom she was at war represented, in 1912, 42 per cent. of her total imports, and 40 per cent. of her total exports. In addition, Germany would lose the bulk of her overseas trade with neutral countries. This would leave her mainly dependent upon those countries whose frontiers marched with those of Germany. The total cost of the war to Germany during the first twelve months might be estimated as follows:

Direct cost to German Govt.	£938,000,000
Loss of production	958,000,000
Capitalized value of loss of human life	879,000,000
Total	£2,775,000,000

He estimated that from January 1 to July 31 next the average expenditure of Great Britain would be at the rate of 2½ million pounds per day, making the total expenditure for the twelve months ended July 31 next £708,000,000. The loss of production due to the withdrawal of, say two million workers might be estimated at £200,000,000. As the war directly involved five of Great Britain's principal customers it was inevitable that it should exercise a profound influence upon the course of British foreign trade, but as a matter of fact the actual disturbance had been very much less than might have been anticipated. The total direct and indirect loss for the twelve months to July 31, 1915 might be estimated as under:

Direct expenditure of the Govt.	£708,000,000
Capitalized value of loss of human life	300,000,000
Loss of production, &c.	250,000,000
Total	£1,258,000,000

The total direct and indirect cost of the war might be estimated to amount to £9,147,900,000 up to July 31 next. Its incidence between the two groups of belligerents would be approximately as follows:

Belgium	£526,500,000
France	1,686,400,000
Russia	1,400,000,000
British Empire	1,258,000,000
Total	£4,870,900,000

Austria-Hungary	1,502,000,000
Germany	2,775,000,000
Total	£4,277,000,000

The permanent loss of capital of all belligerents might be expected to amount to about £4,000,000,000, and the loss of income, &c., to £5,150,000,000.

The British Empire was a going concern. Though Germany had been preparing for this war in the economic domain for nearly a decade already, after eight months of war, her position has become desperate. Her shipping had been swept from the seas, and her food supplies threatened. Her supplies of war material, particularly copper, manganese and saltpetre, appeared to be approaching exhaustion, and her paper money, notwithstanding the elaborate and ingenious schemes which have been adopted for the bolstering up of German credit, was already at a heavy discount.

Mr. Crammond, therefore felt assured that on the whole the peoples of the British Empire might face the future, so far as the question of economic exhaustion was concerned, with a feeling of the most profound confidence.

If we take the figures of the total cost as given by Mr. Crammond it would mean that the war indemnity sufficient to compensate the Allies would be in the neighborhood of 4,000 or 5,000 millions sterling, so that the price which Germany and her Allies will have to pay for the madness of the Prussian war lords, not to speak of the staggering toll of human lives will be truly stupendous.

THE "MUTINY."

The recent "mutiny" at the barracks here seems to have attracted widespread attention in the United States, and has in all probability been cabled to Germany in order to demonstrate to the Kaiser that Canadians are backing away from it before the war has actually begun in earnest. A couple of days ago we republished an editorial from The St. Louis (Mo.) Times giving a strange version of the occurrence and drawing still more marvellous conclusions.

To Mr. Thos. F. Lynch, editor of The Chicago-Bellefonte News, we are indebted for a copy of The Chicago Examiner of April 3rd. Across the top of the front page in poster type are these three startling words,—

"CANADIAN TROOPS MUTINY."

Then followed in heavy black type this special from Belleville,—

BELLEVILLE, Ont., April 2.—Between 200 and 300 soldiers, members of the second contingent, under training here for European war service, mutinied tonight. The disaffection is alleged to be due to insufficient accommodations and fear of an epidemic of meningitis, which has caused one death in the camp.

The mutineers shouldered their rifles and announced their intention of going home. Colonel Preston, in command of the regiment of 1,200 men, at once organized a strong picket and attempted to round the men up. Some fighting followed in the vicinity of the armouries, but no report of casualties is obtainable.

The situation is believed under control at midnight.

Such is The Examiner's report of the recent unpleasantness. This paper we might state is one of the widely circulated journals controlled by W. R. Hearst. The latter, as becomes a good American, has taken up a position of strict neutrality in regard to the war. But he demonstrates his neutrality in his own peculiar way. Of the half-dozen great newspapers he controls, three are strenuously advocating the cause of Great Britain and the Allies, while the other three are earnestly upholding the justice, humanity and high moral ideals of the Germans. In that way he keeps solid with both British and German sympathisers, and circulation does not suffer. It is a great, original scheme that could only be devised by a man with the genius of William Randolph Hearst.

The Examiner is one of the pro-German trio and therefore we may account to some extent for the featuring of the late sanguinary "fighting" during the Belleville mutiny.

We who have just come through these awful scenes of carnage and slaughter should remember that the American people have a saving sense of humor, and the vagaries of their saffron-colored journalists are taken about as seriously as were Artemus Ward's lectures.

"Bring down the old mare," was the order. The "old mare" was brought, and the deal went through like a charm.

That ancient sorrel that was originally bought for "two ducks and a drake," ought to be preserved in a museum of natural history, as a specimen of the war chargers that the Borden Government contributed to the cause of Empire in the year of the Great War.

The story of the "war horses" bought in Kings County, N.S., for the government is not a romance. It is the sworn testimony of farmers who sold the horses to the Government's middlemen, as given in the Public Accounts Committee at Ottawa. There has never been anything like it in the history of the country.

Law is good as far as it goes. But the evil of political corruption will only be cured when the moral standard of the individual is raised, and he has been educated to a proper conception of the franchise; when he thinks less of his right to the franchise, and realizes that it is a duty imposed on him by the state for the benefit of the state, that his vote is to be cast, not for his own personal benefit, but to give the state the benefit of the best men and the best measures. It may be freely admitted that this is a condition of things to be looked for in the distant future not for our generation. In the meantime, let the law be made as stringent and effective as possible.—London Advertiser.

A "landed proprietor" in Holland, voicing his disapproval of some Belgian refugees, said: "The fellows are ready to accept our aid, but would not accept work when offered to them." The answer of the Belgians was: "This man offered us work at wages less than he was paying his own countrymen, whom he would have discharged had we accepted. We have not come here to lower the living wage of the native working people."

The Borden government ought to have for the principal plank in its platform at the coming election its undoubted ability to perform miracles. Dowie and Prince Michael were raw amateurs and impotent quacks as compared with the wonder-working artists in the Militia department who have instantly abolished spavins, smoothed away ringbones, and restored its lost youth to at least one veteran charger that had been considered too old to go to the South African war.

The Toronto Globe very properly urges that it should not be too late to induce the Ottawa Government to refrain from making the increase in postal rates a nuisance as well as a tax. The need to keep two kinds of stamps for which no excuse can be made. No one is deceived by the pretence that the increase in taxation is due to the war. Everyone knows it is the result of waste. Why try by a nuisance to impose a deception?

The Toronto Telegram is of the opinion that Canadian capital need not cast the first stone at Old Country labor. It says: "The patriotism of the Canadian middlemen and commission hunters who forget their country's need in A THIRST FOR DOLLARS OR A LOVE OF PLUNDER, is as poor an article as the patriotism of the Old Country workmen who forget the country's safety in their THIRST FOR BEER OR LOVE OF EASE." The "middleman" is by far the more reprehensible.

Mr. Davidson, M.P. for Annapolis seems to have stepped forward as the chief apologist for shady or suspicious deals in connection with the militia contracts. The member for Annapolis is now on his tip toes in the public accounts committee to "protect" the witnesses—when it looks bad for the militia department. As an evidence of Mr. Davidson's activities his effort to make it plain that only Grit horse dealers would cheat the government was a typically crude attempt, the more so as it was immediately brought out in evidence that one intelligent body of three horse buyers at Berwick included the organizer of the Conservative party in King's county. Annapolis is a grand old place, historically and otherwise, and it seems somewhat of a pity that it should be afflicted with a representative whose hidebound partisanship prompts a palliation rather than a complete exposure of facts which must disgust every good Canadian, irrespective of party.—Ottawa Citizen.

"War is a time of sacrifice and of service. Someone can render one service, some another; some here, and some there. Someone can render great assistance, others but little. There is not one who cannot help in some measure, if it only be by enduring cheerfully his share of the discomfort. In the old Welsh legends there is a story of a man who was given a series of what appeared to be impossible tasks to perform ere he could reach the desire of his heart. Among other things he had to do was to recover every grain of seed that had been sown in a large field, and bring it all without one missing. By sunset he came to an anthill and won all the hearts and enlightened the sympathies of the industrious little people. They spread over the field, and before sundown the seed was all in except one. And as the sun was setting over the western skies, a lame ant hobbled along with that grain. Some of us have youth and vigor and suppleness of limb; some of us are crippled with years of infirmities, and we are at best little ants but we can all limp along with some share of our country's burden, and thus help her in this terrible hour to win the desire of her heart."—Mr. Lloyd George.

The curiosities of the British censorship are many. A British newspaper cannot state where a given regiment is without being liable to a heavy penalty. The goat which is the mascot of the Welsh Fusiliers appears to have died recently somewhere in the Franco-Belgian war zone. The event was announced without the use of the name of the regiment or any indication of the exact locality of the occurrence. An Englishman familiar with army history and traditions on reading of the tragedy would instantly say: "Ha! The Fusiliers have lost their goat," whereas one less learned would have marvelled at the publication of any account of the death of so commonplace an animal, even if "belonging to a distinguished regiment."

In contrast with the reticence concerning the decease of a celebrated goat is the loquacity characteristic of the discussion of Great Britain's backwardness in the matter of equipment. Public men from the King and Lloyd George downward are talking enforced prohibition in order to speed up the output of arms, ammunition and equipment. If there is need of such a radical step to get the best results out of the workers, the fact should be kept a dead secret. Not a word about it should be allowed to pass the lips of anybody in responsible position. The effect of the plea for prohibition to expedite output is to give aid and comfort to the enemy. The most liberal governments would feel itself justified in prohibiting all debate on the matter, and all publications referring to it. Yet we find a government which will not allow a newspaper to mention the fact that, say, the Wiltshire Regiment was at La Bassee last week, letting out the really dangerous fact that Great Britain's supply of ammunition is not keeping pace with the demands of the army at the front. Success are not fitted to make a censorship successful.

Those who try to excuse German submarine commanders for killing non-combatants at sea by saying that Great Britain is trying to starve the non-combatant population of Germany employ a false parallel. The two acts are not identical. The starvation programme, would affect only those non-combatants who should continue to seek protection behind the military organization of the German Empire. Their starving would depend on their remaining within the German lines. They would have a chance for their lives if they cared to surrender as refugees or prisoners to the Allies or to flee across the German border into neutral countries like Switzerland, Holland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden.

They would at least have a choice of evils. But the non-combatants killed when a submarine torpedoes a merchant ship at sea have no choice. They would be glad to surrender. In fact by heaving to when overhauled by a hostile submarine a merchant ship's captain gives notice of his purpose to yield and accepts the protection given by international law to vessels, other than war vessels, subject to search, confiscation or destruction by the enemy. Killing the crews and passengers of unarmed merchantmen is forbidden by international law so long as no resistance is offered. It is not recognized as an act of war and is therefore to be classed as cold-blooded murder.

If the British authorities should deliberately starve German civilians in territory taken from Germany there would be a complete parallel with the exploits of some of the German submarine commanders. But even the most ardent defenders of the German policy of "brutality" would hardly like to see their argument of similarity vindicated in that extreme and unbelievable way.

LOVE AND HATE.

England to Germany.

You poison the springs that should ever flow To aid the bright flowers of peace to grow; You teach little children in school to pray That cursers may blight, and that wrath may slay;

You plant in the soil of their young hearts seeds Of baneful, destructive and deadly weeds; You rob them of vision of higher view; You wither their power to be pure and true; You turn them away from love's garden gate, And chill their warm blood with your hiss of hate,

But back o'er your land all your curse clouds roll To darken and shrivel your nation's soul. You savagely boasted your brutal might, And scornfully sneered when men spoke of right. Refused to be true to the pledge you signed, And jeered at the nations a bond could bind; Defying humanity's moral laws, You murdered the helpless without a cause;

You secretly tried an infamous plan To sow deadly strife between man and man; Your foul plots miscarried, perfidly failed. The nations awoke and the right prevailed. Now, facing in terror avenging fate, You shriek in your fury the curse of hate.

We heed not your curses. We know God hears The cry of the nation whose bitter tears Flow out from the heart that in anguish bleeds Because of your merciless, ruthless deeds. Brave Belgium's blessing of prayer and praise The curse of your venomous hate outweighs. We sprang to her aid with our souls aflame To save from dishonor old England's name.

Peace lovers are we, but true Britons fight When freedom is threatened by despot might. We hate not your nation. We fight that we may aid in the struggle to make men free. For all that you did in your brilliant past We thank you, but mourn that, misled at last, You sullied the fame of your noble state, And shadowed your soul with the curse of hate.

Base, selfish ambition has made you blind, Has narrowed your vision and warped your mind. We hope you will learn, when the strife is o'er, That all war is evil, and fight no more; That hate is a monster, whose fatal breath Bears ever a message of gloom and death; That love is the highest power man can know To start the divine in his life to grow.

—James L. Hughes.

Occupants Escaped by Upstairs Windows

Fire at 8.45 this morning broke out in the residence of Mrs. W. Sines, 103 Station street. The flames which broke out in the vicinity of the stairway made escape for the sleepers by that way impossible, and they were compelled to find an exit by way of the upstairs windows. The firemen responded to the call and had the blaze under control within a short time. Considerable damage was done by fire and water to the structure and to the contents. The contents were insured for $500.

The building is of brick, Mrs. Asistine Victoria avenue is the agent for it. The cause of the blaze has not been ascertained.

Stone Wall Collapsed.

Fortunately it was Sunday when the huge stone wall adjacent to Mr. W. B. Riggs' garage fell. Late Mr. Riggs has had excavators at work in the sand at his property on Pinnac street. The excavator had been completed and Mr. Thos. Thompson had built a wall to support timbers for the garage, adjacent to the wall on the north about eight feet high. The south wall of a storehouse in the rear of Mr. A. Burgoyne's premises. The foundations in this sandy locality do not go down to the rock and, naturally, the loosening of the soil nearby caused the wall to settle with the result that it collapsed last night at six o'clock tearing along with it, the newly created garage wall. The debris was thrown twenty feet across the excavation and covered barrows, scaffolds and tools.

Mr. Riggs is satisfied that the accident was not his fault. Had it occurred during Saturday, perhaps half a dozen teams with men would have been victims, for the wall fell from a great height.

The wall was about two feet thick and about 18 feet high. Workmen are today engaged in removing the fallen stone.

Plan a Great Hotel at 1000 Islands

Byron B. Taggart, a prominent paper manufacturer of Watertown, N.Y., says the Times, is interested with a number of capitalists from the north-west in a proposition which, if carried through, will mean the construction of one of the largest summer hotels in this section of the United States, at Alexandria Bay.

The proposition, as now projected, calls for a mammoth, modern hotel along the water front, costing in the neighborhood of $1,000,000, and having a capacity for several hundred guests. It is said that the structure would occupy the sites of the Crossman House, the Thousand Island House and the Marsden House, which are within a short distance of each other, the two principal ones being on the river front.

This means that these three hotels would have to be torn down, but the plan, if carried through, will mean much to Alexandria Bay and to the Thousand Islands in the way of restoring them to their former place among the greater summer resorts of the country.

Following the burning of the Frontenac came the burning of the Columbus at Thousand Island Park, leaving the Crossman, which, for a number of years, has been conducted by Charles W. Crossman, and the Thousand Island House, conducted for a number of years by Col. D. G. Staples, of Washington, D. C. The Marsden House is a smaller hotel.

Mr. Taggart has just returned from the northwest, where he has been in consultation with a prominent man of wealth in the hope of interesting him in the proposition, and upon his decision will depend the success of the proposition to a large extent.

Such a hotel as is contemplated would contain provision for a number of 600 and 1,000 rooms, fitted up with baths and modern conveniences. It is probable that new docks would be constructed, and the many improvements in steamboat service among the islands would follow.

Mr. Taggart, who is one of the principal stockholders of Taggart Brothers Paper Company, one of the largest concerns of the kind in the country, manufacturers of bags, is one of the owners of the Taggart building, and is also interested in the Redwood-Alexandria Bay trolley line, which would develop to large proportions provided the hotel is built. Therefore, he is especially interested in the matter.—Gannaco Reporter.

NEW OFFICE FOR OLD NO 2 SCHOOL

Soldiers Stayed There Last Night For First Time—Sentries on Duty—Candles at Windows

For the first time in its history old "No. 2" or Octavia Street School housed soldiers on active service last night. The scene was a new one to the neighbors last evening as when darkness came on candles were lighted and placed in the windows. The school house is generally a mysterious building after dark, for it was built and used in a period when evening concerts for the young idea and their parents were not thought of. But last night dull lights appeared at the windows and lit up the cavernous spaces within. Here the detainees soldiers were. Outside in the cold and wind were the sentries guarding the place. The old building in its earlier days never expected to be the residence of Canadian troops, but such is its office now. Today the premises are being fitted with electric lights, so that the old candles may disappear. Beds have been installed for the soldiers who are awaiting examination by the medical authorities.

The New Taxation

The Post Office Department, having given notice a week or two ago, in connection with the War Revenue Act, that all letters and postcards mailed in Canada for delivery in Canada, the United States or Mexico, and letters mailed in Canada for delivery in the United Kingdom and British possessions generally, or wherever the two cent rate applied, should in addition to ordinary postage carry a one cent stamp as a War tax, and also having notified the public that such was tax, while it should be paid preferably by the postage stamp marked "War Tax," could, if such stamp were not available, be paid by an ordinary one cent postage stamp, is now issuing further notice to the effect that postage stamps may be used for the prepayment of war duties on bank cheques, bills of exchange, promissory notes, express money orders, proprietary or patent medicines, perfumery, wines or champagne, as well as upon letters and postcards, postal notes and post office money orders, the intention being to provide facilities in those portions of the country where excise stamps are not readily available. This in view of the fact that postage stamps may be obtained at all points over the whole country, in many places where there is no Collector of Inland Revenue and no Inland Revenue stamps could be obtained, is a distinct convenience to the public, and no doubt will be largely taken advantage of.

Simple and Sure—Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil is so simple in application that a child can understand the instructions. Used as a liniment the only direction is to rub, and then used as a dressing to apply. The directions are so plain and unmistakable that they are readily understood by the young or old.

After an illness of some duration, towards the latter part of which no hope were held out for his recovery, Mrs. S. R. The late Stephen Robinson Gorman, was 63 years of age, having been born in Toledo, Ontario. He was an Anglican in religion, being a communicant of St. Thomas' church. He was possessed of remarkable business ability. He met with unequalled success as boot and shoe traveller for over thirty years. For many years he had conducted the Gorman Shoe House in this city. Will Advertise Sewer Construction

In West Belleville—Council Practically Committed to Plans—Committees Met Last Evening

The City Council is practically committed to the construction of the West Belleville sewer system this year, including the Coleman trunk sewer to Moira street and Bridge St. Catharines St. and Moira St. laterals. The estimate of Engineer Evans on the cost of the sewer contains the following interesting data: Trunk sewer on Coleman Street from Moira Street to a point below the Coleman bridge, 2,060 feet at estimated cost of $12,352.00. Branch on Bridge Street, 2,580 feet at estimated cost of $19,857.64. Branch on Catharine Street, 2,560 feet at estimated cost of $19,857.64. Henry Street branch from Octavia to Coleman, 1200 feet, estimated at $3912.58. Moira Street from Yeoman's to Coleman, 2860 feet at cost of $5,843.04. The civic committees met last evening in special session. Public Works decided to advertise the construction of the sewer system as per the recommendation of City Engineer Evans. It was decided to have Mill and Station Streets scraped, cleaned and repaired at once. It was recommended that the City Solicitor write the Canadian Northern Railway to have the crossing on Pine-nacle Street put in order. It was decided to call by advertisement for city auditors for the 1914 accounts. A recommendation was made that One Hundred Dollars be granted the W. C. A. for indigent work.

Father Corrigan Addressed Soldiers

Rev. Father Corrigan, the eloquent vicar of St. Michael's church directed his Sunday morning discourse especially to the soldiers of the 39th regiment, of whom a large number were present to hear his remarks. He spoke earnestly in regard to the evils of intemperance and exhorted the young men to show their better manhood by refraining from strong drink. In this way they could give their best services to their country. He commended the action, and example of Lloyd George and his efforts to make of Great Britain a sober nation. He welcomed the soldiers to church and also invited them to come to the meetings of the Total Abstinence Society.

Laid to Rest

All that was mortal of the late Stephen R. Gorman, boot and shoe merchant, was borne to its last resting place in Belleville cemetery this afternoon. The remains were first removed from the family residence, set out to St. Thomas church where the Rev. Canon Beamish, rector, officiated at the funeral service. A large body of citizens paid their last respects to the late deceased, the church being well filled and the funeral cortege being one of the largest seen in Belleville. Every walk of life was represented at the obsequies, so widely was the late Mr. Gorman known. The beautiful floral tributes were sent in respect to the departed. The bearers were Messrs. John Williams, E. F. Mibura, R. J. Graham, Geo. Wallbridge, F. S. Wallbridge and T. E. Wilson.

Baptists Celebrate 42nd Anniversary

Victoria Avenue Baptist congregation yesterday celebrated the 42nd anniversary of the organization of the congregation. The Rev. G. G. Smith, pastor, occupied the pulpit in the morning and preached from the text "And let us not be weary in well-doing, for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not." The preacher said the most people were like the Galatians who tribulations partook more of the nature of skirmishes instead of long-continued conflicts which demand eternal vigilance. The Galatians had lost sight of the goal and Paul puts them right. Every seed he pointed out, came to the inevitable harvest. The words of Shakespeare "The evil that men live after them, the good is oft interred with their bones," are not really the truth. In the long run it is the good that persists. The pastor exhorted his congregation to continue in service. Their motto should be that of Eddystone lighthouse—"To give light and to give life." Paul does not mean that we are never to get weary, but he does not urge us to lessen the gaps between the periods of activity, to preserve our health and do our utmost. The pastor applied these teachings to the anniversary. Forty-two years ago a little band of pioneers had founded the church. The reading of the minutes showed that many difficulties were in the way, but they were overcome. And now the present day has entered into their labors. With this heritage, it is the church's duty to carry on the work of service. Special singing marked the services of the day. In the morning Miss M. Brown sang a solo and in the evening Mrs. MacLaurin gave a vocal number.

Death of Mrs. Margaret Fraser

Mrs. Margaret Fraser, widow of the late Parker Fraser passed away last evening of senility at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ross, Thurlow, near Foxboro. The late Mrs. Fraser, whose maiden name was Margaret Ashley, was nearly 78 years of age. She was a daughter of the late Simeon Ashley. For some time Mrs. Fraser resided at Joliet, Illinois. Her husband died there many years ago and for about fifteen years past, she had resided near Foxboro. Mrs. Fraser was one of a family of thirteen children of Simeon Ashley and Mary Nash Ashley, two boys dying young. The five sisters, Mrs. Fraser, have averaged over 80 years. The family has lived on the Ashley homestead now known as the Ashley Stock farm for about 80 years. Surviving Mrs. Fraser are four sisters, Mrs. Annie Ross, of Thurlow, near Foxboro; Mrs. Harriet Mott, of Belleville; Mrs. Henry Canniff, Belleville, and Mrs. Albert Loucks, Foxboro, and two brothers, Hiram Ashley of Belleville and Harford Ashley, of Foxboro. The funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon, April 15th at 2 o'clock, services being held at the residence of Mrs. Ross, near Foxboro and interment in Foxboro cemetery.

Death of Mrs. Jane Denike

Mrs. Jane Elizabeth Denike passed away at 13 Everett street on Saturday evening. She was 71 years of age and was a daughter of the late Hildebrand Valjean. She was a native of Prince Edward County. In religion she was a Methodist. She had lived in Belleville for many years. She was a widowed lady.

Mr. Canniff, A. Ruttan, D.D.G.M. of Madoc City Lodge No. 13, Belleville, has gone to Deseronto to pay an official visit.

Bancroft Merchant Died in Belleville

William A. Ashley, merchant of Bancroft, passed away in this city on Saturday afternoon as a result of appendicitis. He had come to the city in a very precarious condition, but all that the best medical attention could give him here failed to bring relief. He had been ill but a few days. Deceased was a young married man of 31 years of age. He was born at Frontenac Lake, but had been living for ten years at Bancroft. He leaves a young widow but no family. Mourning his irreparable loss are his father and mother, one brother and four sisters, all of Bancroft. In religion he was a Methodist. In North Hastings deceased was well known. He was of a genial disposition and a fine type of sturdy manhood. The remains of the deceased were today shipped to his home for interment. Accompanying the casket were Rev. J. J. McJor, Mrs. Laundry, Mr. E. Laundry and Mrs. Ashley, widow of deceased.

Did Not Refer to Inspector For West Hastings

In the report of the recent convention of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance held in Toronto the report given by The Toronto Telegram contained this paragraph:— "A Belleville delegate declared that he had secured seventeen cases against lotkeepers in that town, and that the local inspector had refused to act on the information." The delegate mentioned upon seeing the report sent in the following denial of its accuracy:— "My attention has today been called to a report of the late Temperance Convention held in Toronto on March 3, 4, and 5, given in the sporting edition of March 5. The report reads:— "A Belleville delegate declared he had secured 17 cases against hotel keepers in that town and the local inspector had refused to act on information." This part of your report is anything but correct. What I did say was that I had on one lot secured 17 cases of illegal selling and that upon his refusing to take any action in the matter, I had wired the Provincial Inspector who had the parties duly fined, showing that where local men were in some cases prevented from taking action the Provincial Inspector was free to do so. I suppose the fact that I was invited by the convention to stand up to speak, announced myself as a delegate from Belleville accounts for your reporter taking it for granted that the case I cited occurred in Belleville, which is not the case."

KITCHENER'S ARMY WILL WIN

An American Journalist Gives it Highest Praise - They Are Learning Only the Necessary Essentials; No Frills - Ceremonial Drills to Come

They call it Kitchener's army, but what I have seen is something far greater than an army. It is a Democracy in arms. Here is the village blacksmith, and the village parson, the squire's son, and the young farmer, the miner, and the mechanic, the factory hand, and the city clerk, the artisan and the college graduate, the business man and the doctor, the lawyer and the tradesman. This man was a stock-broker, this other waited at table on measured tape, and this third to offer their lives to their country, who have fought in or seen every war in the last half century.

TWO OUT OF HELL NO TORTURE THERE

The Bible Hell Not the Hell of Theology.

Jonah's Escape From Hell - Jesus Was Delivered From Hell - Everybody Goes to the Bible Hell - Hence All Are to Come Out of It - The Rich Man and Lazarus - Is It a Parable or a Narrative? - Unreasonable as a Statement of Facts - Very Reasonable as a Parable - The Rich Man Soon to Be Let Out of Hades.

Boston, Mass., April 13—The Rev. Ruse H. I. spoke here twice to-day. His discourse, based on Luke 16:30—"In Hell he lieth up his eyes"—set forth a most reasonable explanation of a parable which has long perplexed Christians. He said in part:

Those who wrote the Bible did their duty well. The Old Testament, covering the history of over four thousand years, tells us that all mankind at death go to Sheol—the tomb. The New Testament, written in Greek, tells the same story, using the word Hades as the translation of the Hebrew Sheol. It is a modern translation of the Bible that difficulty is encountered, particularly in the English. Nearly all these translations have been made within the last few hundred years. For 300 years before the Bible had been little known, because not translated into the languages of the people, and because few could have read it if it had been translated.

In the second century the theory prevailed that the bishops were as much inspired as the Apostles and Jesus; for they were called Apostolic bishops. Bible study was considered unnecessary because these Apostolic bishops were on the spot giving up-to-date information and communications from God. Then followed thirteen centuries of no Bible study, during which time, as the Apostles had forewarned, grievous wolves came into the flock, making merchandise of the sheep for their own profit. (Acts 20:26-31.) Gradually the doctrines became so mingled with errors that the false teachers enslaved the people with fear, and these exacted money for the relief of the fears.

When Bible study revived in the Fifteenth Century, the errors were so entrenched in men's minds that their thoughts were colored respectively every feature of faith. Those who translated the Bible doubtless did their best to set forth its meaning, but unconsciously gave little twists, in their endeavor to have the Bible say what they thought it meant. As an illustration, note John 5:29. There the translators have given us the expression, "resurrection of damnation," when nothing in the Greek justified the word damnation. The Revised Version retained it properly, "resurrection of judgment"—trial.

When the Hebrew word Sheol was being translated, Hell was the nearest word to fit their ideas. Hence they translated it Hell as many times as possible; and only when this was impossible did they give something approaching the proper translation—the grave. There is another word for grave—qeber, a sepulchre, a mound, a monument, and to her by promise. Her covenant is to follow in her Master's footsteps unto death; and the promise is that she shall have a superior resurrection, because of greater trials of faith and obedience to sacrifice. "The gates of Hell shall not prevail against her." (Matthew 16:18.) That is, as the Heavenly Father raised up Jesus Christ from the dead, so the gates of death shall not prevail against the Church. — 1 Corinthians 15:54-64.

With the world it will be different. Everything under the New Dispensation will prove that the Reign of Sin and Satan has terminated, that the Reign of Righteousness has begun. They will find themselves, not only coming back from the tomb, "every man in his own order," but gradually raised out of imperfection and weakness back to all that was lost in Adam and redeemed at Calvary. If they will follow instructions, the great prison-house will give up the prisoners; for He who died on Calvary obtained the keys of Hades, as He tells us—Isaiah 49:9; Revelation 1:18.

The parable of the Rich Man and Lazarus would seem very simple if our minds had not been perverted with error; but, filled with the perversion, many find this parable difficult to understand and are inclined to throw away the entire Bible because of it. We hope to make the matter very plain. To be thorough, we must note the fact that lovers of the eternal torment doctrine insist that this is not a parable, but a literal description. Let us see. Does it seem reasonable to say that with nothing said about his character as being either moral or immoral, but simply on account of his fire or Hades, his sumptuous food, and his riches, a man should be eternally tormented? Is that a logical interpretation? Similarly it is not said that Lazarus was moral or immoral, but merely that he was poor, ate crumbs at dead know not anything"; that "their sons come to honor, and they know it not; and to dishonor, and they perceive it not of them." Why? Because, as again the Scriptures say, "There is neither wisdom, nor knowledge, nor device, in Sheol, whither thou goest"—whither all go. This exactly accords with the Divine Statement. "The wages of sin is death"; "The soul that sinneth it shall die." There is not a word in the Bible for the common accepted thought that those who die go to Heaven or Purgatory or eternal torment. All these teachings are found in the various creeds; the Bible alone tells the simple story, reasonable, harmonious.

It is true that Jesus used the word Gehenna fire, and that our translators mixed up the English reader by translating this word Hell, the same as Hades. But as all scholars will admit, Jesus used the word here symbolically, just as we use it, to represent destruction. Thus our newspapers tell about the great conflagration in Europe—not literal fire, but war, caused as a result of sin. So Jesus pointed out that, although He had come to save men from death, and eventually by a resurrection to lift up all who had gone down into the dust, the relief would be only temporary, except to those who would conform to Divine Law. All others under that Second Trial would be condemned as unworthy of everlasting life and would die again. This Second Death would be everlasting, because Christ would not die again for those who would sin willfully after being released from the first sentence.

Pointing to the valley outside of Jerusalem, used as a garbage furnace and called in the Greek Gehenna, and in Hebrew Valley of Hinnoom, and also Tophet, Jesus declared that it illustrated the fate of all willful sinners, dead as a result of sin. They were thrown into the Valley of Hinnoom, Gehenna, where fires were kept burning, and where brimstone was burned to kill the germs.

It is said that criminals of the worst type, after execution, were thrown into that valley, as intimating that they would not share in the resurrection. This thought Jesus emphasized—the utter destruction, in the Second Death, of any found in the valley after having received full opportunity of return to God through the merit of Christ's sacrifice. The Bible everywhere holds out the thought that the Church now, and the world in that latter day future, will be in danger of Gehenna destruction—the Second Death. Speaking of willful sinners against full light, St. Paul says, "Who shall be punished with everlasting destruction." (2 Thessalonians 1:7-9.) St. Peter says they shall perish "like natural brute beasts."—2 Peter 2:12.

Bible students know that Sheol and Hades could not be places of eternal torture; for the Scriptures say that they shall be destroyed. If Sheol and Hades are to be destroyed, how could anybody be tortured there everlasting? The clergy know these things very well, but hide them from the people. (Matthew 23:34.) "O grave (Sheol), I will be thy destruction!" 1 Corinthians 15:55. "O grave (Hades), where is thy victory?" Revelation 20:14. "Death and Hell (Hades) shall be cast into the Lake of Fire. This is the Second Death."

These Scriptures mean that the grave shall not always triumph over the human family, that mankind will be delivered by Messiah's Kingdom from the power of the tomb, that we can rely upon God's promise that ultimately Hades, the tomb, will be destroyed in the Second Death, symbolically represented by the Lake of Fire. Note that the symbol is extended—"the Lake of Fire, which is the Second Death."

In other words, all that are in their graves, in the tomb, the prison-house of death, shall ultimately be set free by the great Deliverer, the glorified Christ, as many times as possible; and only when this was impossible did they give something approaching the proper translation—the grave. There is another word for grave—qeber, a sepulchre, a mound, a monument, and to her by promise. Her covenant is to follow in her Master's footsteps unto death; and the promise is that she shall have a superior resurrection, because of greater trials of faith and obedience to sacrifice. "The gates of Hell shall not prevail against her." (Matthew 16:18.) That is, as the Heavenly Father raised up Jesus Christ from the dead, so the gates of death shall not prevail against the Church. — 1 Corinthians 15:54-64.

With the world it will be different. Everything under the New Dispensation will prove that the Reign of Sin and Satan has terminated, that the Reign of Righteousness has begun. They will find themselves, not only coming back from the tomb, "every man in his own order," but gradually raised out of imperfection and weakness back to all that was lost in Adam and redeemed at Calvary. If they will follow instructions, the great prison-house will give up the prisoners; for He who died on Calvary obtained the keys of Hades, as He tells us—Isaiah 49:9; Revelation 1:18.

The parable of the Rich Man and Lazarus would seem very simple if our minds had not been perverted with error; but, filled with the perversion, many find this parable difficult to understand and are inclined to throw away the entire Bible because of it. We hope to make the matter very plain. To be thorough, we must note the fact that lovers of the eternal torment doctrine insist that this is not a parable, but a literal description. Let us see. Does it seem reasonable to say that with nothing said about his character as being either moral or immoral, but simply on account of his fire or Hades, his sumptuous food, and his riches, a man should be eternally tormented? Is that a logical interpretation? Similarly it is not said that Lazarus was moral or immoral, but merely that he was poor, ate crumbs at the rich man's gate, and was full of sores, which dogs licked. Is it reasonable to suppose that sores and destitution, without character, would be qualifications for Heaven? Surely not! If all rich people go to eternal torment, all poor people who wear fine linen and purple clothing and have plenty to eat must suffer to all eternity, what an aristocratic place Hell would be, and how full it would be! On the other hand, if only those who have sores and dogs to lick them, who lie at a rich man's gate and eat crumbs from his table, go to Heaven, how few of us will get there! Moreover, if it is a literal statement, then Abraham, here is a literal person, as well as Lazarus; and when Lazarus would get into his room, how many more could Abraham hold without letting some drop!

Surely this is not a literal statement, but a parable. Let us treat it from this viewpoint, just as we treat that a parable never means what it says. For instance, in the parable of the Wheat and Tares, the wheat does not mean wheat, but "children of the Kingdom," the tares, "children of the Wicked One." Accordingly, the Rich Man does not mean a rich man, but stands for some class; and Lazarus does not mean a poor man, but stands for some class. Let us then apply the assistance.

We suggest that the Rich Man of the parable represented the Jewish nation, rich in God's favor. Their spiritual table was bountifully supplied with gracious promises from God. They were "children of the Kingdom," as no other people did. To them belonged the promise of the Kingdom, represented by the purple raiment of royalty. As a people they had the purging of their sins, typical justification, and a typical heavenly annual Atonement Day. This was their "fine linen," representing that righteousness was thus imputed to them as a people.

In A. D. 70, the Rich Man, the Jewish nation, died, when the last vestige of the government was destroyed by Titus, the Roman general. The nation has been asleep in Hades ever since, though the Jews have been very much alive and have suffered many things, especially amongst professing Christians, the tare class. Zionism, which has sprung up within the past thirty years, is the revival of hope that the Rich Man will be resurrected from Hades; and present indications point to this as a matter of speedy accomplishment—as soon as the fulness of the Gentiles shall have come into Spiritual Israel.—Romans 11:25-32.

Lazarus represented outcasts who desired favor with God, but were "aliens and strangers from the commonwealth of Israel"—Gentiles. They had no table with Divine promises from which to "fare sumptuously every day," no share in the promises of royalty represented by the purple robes or "fine linen," representing justification from sin. Those things belonged to the Jew exclusively, until his national rejection and the subsequent opening of the door to Gentiles, that they might become "purple robes or 'fine linen,'" representing justification from sin. Those things belonged to the Jew exclusively, until his national rejection and the subsequent opening of the door to Gentiles, that they might become "purple robes or 'fine linen,'" representing justification from sin. Those things belonged to the Jew exclusively, until his national rejection and the subsequent opening of the door to Gentiles, that they might become "purple robes or 'fine linen,'" representing justification from sin.

As the Jew died to his favors, so the Gentile died to his disfavors. As angels carried Lazarus to Abraham's bosom, so the early Jewish Church, messengers of God and Christ, received believing Gentiles into full fellowship as brethren of the Seed of Abraham. This, figuratively, is described as Lazarus in Abraham's bosom—treated as his child.

The Rich Man represented especially two tribes—Judah and Benjamin. Proportionately, the five brethren would represent the ten tribes. The parable represents the Rich Man as saying, "I have five brethren. May not something be done for them? The answer shows that only Israelites could be meant—"They have Moses and the Prophets; let them hear them." Only the twelve tribes of Israel had Moses and the Prophets. The Gentiles had them not.

The dogs licking the sores, in the parable, represent that the Lazarus class were companions of dogs—indeed, dogs! was a name which Jews commonly gave Gentiles. Jesus Himself used it, and gives an illustration of how believing Gentiles occasionally ate crumbs from the Rich Man's table. The Syrophenician woman requested healing for her daughter; but Jesus declined, saying, "It would not be proper to take the food from the children's table (the Jews) and give it to dogs (Gentiles)." She answered, "Truth, Lord; yet the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from the master's table." Then Jesus said, "O woman, great is thy faith!" and he gave her the crumb of relief which was not hers by right; for He testified, "I am not sent save unto the lost sheep of the House of Israel." The time had not yet come for giving Gentiles a place in God's family as children of Abraham.

Who cannot see in this beautiful parable a teaching in full harmony with God's Wisdom, Justice, Love and Power it had applied during this Gospel Age? The parable does not show how God's favor will return to the Jew in due time; other Scriptures, however, clearly teach this; we have pointed out. May our eyes of understanding open to a true knowledge of God's Word, and to a true appreciation of His glorious character! Then we shall love Him better, and serve Him, not from fear, but as dear children.

I offer free of charge a booklet written with a view to making these figurative statements clear. Whoever will address me—Pastor Russell, Brooklyn, N.Y.—requesting a copy of the pamphlet, I will be glad to promptly serve free of charge. That pamphlet will settle all your questions.

Private, corporal, color-sergeant, instructor, and now a captain. Since I have been in England I have seen many men who have risen from the ranks, and what splendid officers some of them make. They are no braver than the men who were commissioned on leaving a military academy, but they are the officers' training corps. They could not be. But they are men who have grown up in the game, and who are "broke" to the matter of war. They are men who like the world's history. That is why these men that are passing are better soldiers after ten weeks' training than most continental armies can turn out after three years.

Mr. P. McL. Fortin, whose condition was very low last evening, was today reported as slightly improved.

A Double Anniversary: Interesting History

John R. McLure of Demorestville, celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday on April 1st, and the sixtieth anniversary of his marriage to Christine Tennyson, niece of the late poet-laureate, Lord Tennyson.

It was a happy day for Mr. and Mrs. McLure, as surrounded by children and grandchildren they commemorated their marriage of sixty years ago at Madoc, Rev. Mr. Sanderson being the officiating minister.

Mr. McLure is a native of the Isle of Skye, and has not forgotten his mother tongue, the Gaelic. He came to Canada when sixteen years of age, and has spent his life as pioneer and farmer in Hastings and Prince Edward.

His tales of early bush life in Northern Hastings are interesting. He retired two years ago from his farm at Crofton to spend his remaining years in his home at Demorestville.

In Mrs. McLure he has a devoted wife and shrewd helpmate who amid the hard knocks of life was always ready with cheering counsel to encourage him as she does sunshine, patience and energy from the true sources of life.

Mr. McLure is a member of the Knox Church, Demorestville, of which he is also an elder. We join with their many friends in wishing them a happy evening of life.

War Tax on Railway and Steamboat Tickets

Becomes Effective April 15th.

The special War Revenue Act 1915 more commonly known as the War Tax, becomes effective April 15th.

Important features in connection with its application on railway and steamship tickets are:

The Act provides that the tax must be paid by the purchaser of the ticket, and that in refusing to pay it is subject to a fine of not exceeding $50.00.

On railway and local steamship tickets it is 5 cents for each $5.00 or fraction thereof, according to the value of the ticket, and there is no charge on a ticket costing $1.00 or less.

The Government directs that under no circumstances may the tax be funded, and further instructs that it applies on all tickets reading between or from any part of Canada, whether such tickets are sold in Canada or in a foreign country.

No New Cases of Meningitis Disease

Capt. (Dr.) Carro, medical officer of the 39th battalion stated today that the health of that unit was good. There are no more cases of meningitis, although one case is under suspicion. The carriers at the fair ground have been given attention paid to their throats and noses daily. These men are not expected to develop the disease of meningitis. Examinations are made daily and when three negatives plates are secured, the carriers are discharged as "cleared." The examinations of the men of the regiment are made in the Board of Health room in the police station building.

Residents in the vicinity of No. 2 or Octavius street school need have no fears of the use to which that building is to be put. Only those men who have supposed to come into contact with a man put under suspicion will be kept there until examined to see whether they are carriers. The men who will be there will be healthy men. The men at the fair grounds are taking their usual drill. They have something of the hospital diet along with their meals, which includes milk. Their food is supplied them by the army service corps and soldiers carry it up in tin boxes.

39th Battalion Notes

The following is an extract from a letter received by the O. C. the 39th Battalion from Mr. Robert Davidson, father of the late Private Andrew T. Davidson of "C" Co.:—"Will you kindly express to the officers and men of your Battalion our heartfelt appreciation of their kind expression of sympathy contained in your letter and the beautiful floral tributes which you sent. Sincerely, Robert Davidson."

The officers commanding companies will arrange prayers to be said daily at the early morning parade, at six-thirty.

Lieut. W. Wallace has been transferred from A to B Co., and Lieut. Hopkins from B to A.

Sergeant Batchelor is transferred from A to D Co.

Private E. Holmes has joined the regiment and is posted to 'B' Co.

The Battalion is engaged in squad and a certain amount of platoon drill.

The thirty or more men of the 49th Regiment who have enlisted since the organization of the 39th battalion expect to get their khaki uniforms this week. It is thought they will be transferred to the 39th Battalion.

The military canteen is now in full swing at the cannery factory barracks.

The Y.M.C.A. marquee has been erected in the barracks premises for the use of the men. An appeal has been made for gifts of chairs and lounges in good condition for use in this tent for the comfort of the men.

It all Came From Strain and Cold

But G. K. MacDonald Found Relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Nova Scotia Man After Fifteen Years Suffering Found a Cure Through Reading an Advertisement.

Harrigan Cove, Halifax Co., N. S. April 12th, Special. After suffering for fifteen years from lame back and kidney trouble, Mr. George K. MacDonald, a well known resident of this place is telling his neighbors of the great benefit he has received from using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"My trouble started from a strain and a cold," Mr. MacDonald states. "I was troubled with stiffness of the joints and cramps in the muscles. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing, my limbs were heavy and I had a dragging sensation across the loins."

"My back ached and I suffered from rheumatism, when trying an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I am only too pleased to say that the treatment was successful. Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me a great deal of good."

Mr. MacDonald's symptoms are so great that he was troubled with kidney disease. That's why Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

NEWS AND VIEWS FROM OUR AMELIASBURG CORRESPONDENT

Prospective Conservative Candidates -- Alleged Unfitness of Farmers for Representatives-- The Cooperative Movement--Prospects Not Bright for Navigation Season.

From present indications neither political party in this county intends to be caught asleep when an election is called. The Liberal Party have selected their candidate in the person of Mr. Horsey, while the Conservative Party propose selecting their candidate on the 17th inst. Who the fortunate or unfortunate victim may be has not yet been decided. The following names of probable candidates are mentioned, B. E. Hepburn, M.P., R. A. Norman, ex-M.P., H. Bedell, A. E. Calnan and B. F. Wilson. While no doubt others will be added before that date, it is evident that many differences heretofore existing between Hepburn and Norman has been amicably arranged and Mr. Hepburn's friends are quite confident he will be the choice of the Convention. There is not the most friendly feeling in some sections toward Mr. Hepburn, and his actions towards the drill hall venture in Picton will likely be freely ventilated, if not at the Convention, during the campaign should the chance be the candidate. With a strong rural backing there is a freely expressed sentiment for a farmer candidate. Mr. Horsey while claiming to be a farmer is about as much other interested as any professional man would be who chance to own a farm. In this respect he is on an equal footing with Mr. Hepburn. In fact neither of them are really practical farmers, and are very much interested in other lines of business than the farm. A rather amusing idea was recently expressed by a gentleman in this County in saying that he favored the County being represented by a farmer, but the fact of the business was there was not a farmer in the County really qualified in every particular for the position. He said the difficulty in electing a farmer to such a position was it placed him in a higher and more dignified position than providence ever intended him to occupy. It was not natural for a farmer to sport about in a swallow-tailed coat and attend royal functions of one kind and another, but if he did so, instead of being one of honor to him, became one of torture and misery in the extreme. He further added that the average farmer could not stand being so suddenly raised from his humble position on the farm to so dignified a position as a member of parliament, and was more likely to be influenced improperly than perhaps any other class. For this reason he was not a proponent of a farmer as a representative, as he lacked backbone enough to say Yes and No when he should say one or the other. From the way things have been going at Ottawa of late it would appear that there were others beside the farmers our friend singles out, as lacking in this particular. We venture the opinion that many farmers could be picked up throughout the country who would not be so easily influenced for party purposes as some of those holding seats in the present parliament. So long as the professional class make the farmer believe their interests cannot be looked after by any other representative only of that stripe just so long will the farmers and themselves "bewilder" good and drawers of water." Party today occupies the first place in the politics of the County, where it should be the last. The truly honest representative of the people will have as his motto, "Country first, constituency second, and party third." He will never overlook the fact that he is the servant of the people and as such the representative of those who voted against him as he is the representative of those who elected him.

The Co-operative Movement is gaining a good headway in this place. Already a supply of goods have been ordered through the club. Slips are being taken at the present time for the purchase of groceries. We understand this is to be brought about by individual membership with a co-operative concern at Windsor, Ont. Each member may order his own supply of groceries at greatly reduced prices whenever it is the most convenient for him to do so, independent of any other member. The scheme is meeting with popular favor and promises a very large membership in this place.

Those interested in the manufacture of Maple Sugar report some good runs of sap during the past week. Old hands at the business say there are not usually many runs after Easter. If this be the cause, it will be the part of wisdom to lay in a supply within the next few days, if it has not been done by those who take advantage of this great luxury of the spring time.

This time another week the bay will be clear of ice and we may look for preparations for the opening of navigation. The outlook is not encouraging but things may turn out brighter than we expect. Nothing definite yet appears to hand with reference to boat accommodation on the river. It will be a gloomy season without a regular passenger daily boat service. Perhaps the boat service is to be done away with and flying machines will be instituted.

Busy Trenton

OUR daily news letter from this thriving town and surrounding neighborhood is given in an interesting manner.

St. Thomas used 35,000 gallons of asphaltic oil in treating the unpaved streets, last year, and the Engineer reports that the rate-payers were entirely satisfied.

"War graft must go"—It is refreshing to note that the Toronto World, an independent daily giving the government loyal support, comes out boldly in today's issue, against the pandemonium of graft, incompetency and fraud which has characterized the purchase of army supplies. One would expect that a paper, the general policy of which is controlled by Mr. W. F. McLean, M.P., would take the stand that it does. It advises the Borden government to dissociate with any wrong doing and with any attempt to take advantage of the country or of our soldiers in the field. It also urges the abolishment of the patronage list. Truly, Canadian loyalty, is of a peculiar brand. God only knows how many Canadian volunteers have lost their lives through having to wear the rotten boots supplied by the Government. The investigation clearly showed that they were the cause of much illness. Parents who have sons at the front have the right to demand that their boys receive the best equipment that it is possible to purchase. The loyal gentleman who sold the poor boots, etc., to the Government, should read Deakin's "Between two selves."

The firemen are flushing out the bridge today, for the first time in many years. J. Hutley has been appointed caretaker of the parks system and will commence his duties on Monday next. Mr. and Mrs. Simon Westfall, who have resided here for some time, have decided to remove to Rochester, N.Y. An engineer, connected with the Trent canal work, states that it is only a surmise that the canal will be in operation this summer. He is much more likely to know than the member for Peterboro.

An entertainment that will interest the Belleville sports will be put on at the Dundas street west, has opened up in the same line in East Trenton. It is reported that a combination of independent canners is being arranged. Some 45 concerns are said to be interested.

The death of Thomas McCammon, the widely-known Kingston amateur baseball pitcher, on Thursday afternoon caused sincere sorrow throughout the city. A week ago Friday night he was taken to the General Hospital and operated on for appendicitis. Complications set in and a second operation had to be performed. The sufferer gradually grew weaker and his passing was not unexpected. The late Mr. McCammon was born in Kingston and always resided there, living in the same house his entire life-time. In religion he was a Presbyterian and a member of Cooke's Presbyterian Church, whose minister, Rev. J. W. McIntosh was constantly with him during his last days. The late Mr. McCammon was quite prominent as an amateur baseball pitcher. He first came into prominence eighteen years ago when he figured upon the Beavers baseball team. Two years in succession this team was champion of the City League. The next team Mr. Cammon twirled for was the Granites. After the disbanding of the Granites, the players were embodied in a team known as the Kingstons. Exhibition matches were played with Ogdensburg, Water town, Belleville and other places. The Orientals, sometimes called the Triple Links, had the distinction of having Mr. McCammon as their pitcher and games were played off with Ottawas and Montreal Nationalists. There was no city League when this aggregation was in running. Of recent years Mr. Cammon figured upon the Victoria Baseball team of which he was pitcher and pulled out many a hard-contested game. The trophy that the Victorias won last season was held in the possession of Mr. McCammon. He was captain of the team and the beautiful silver cup was placed beside the casket.

the Weller Opera House here, on April 28th, by the local Elks. It will consist of a smoker and concert, interspersed with boxing competitions. Hilliard Laing of Toronto, will box 10 rounds with John Drummond of Syracuse, followed by a six round contest between C. Christie of Toronto, and Dan Barry of Buffalo. After the big game have had their innings the local championship will be decided in a four round contest. Our Athletic club, recently organized, has been developing good, husky fighters right along, and great interest is being taken in them; they are doing almost every afternoon. "Mutt and Jeff in Mexico" is the next attraction at Weller's opera house, April 19th. Mr. W. H. Waldorf, the well known grocer, of North Trenton, is sitting up a store in the Murphy block, Dundas street. We also hear that he is purchasing a Ford delivery truck.

TRENTON, April 12—"Mutt and Jeff in Mexico" is the next road show offering at the Weller opera house, and is being looked forward to by the boys and girls as well as by many of the older people with pleasurable anticipation.

Many Bellevillians were present at the "September Morn" show, on Friday evening. The date of the Elks' smoker and boxing bouts has been changed from April 28th to Monday evening, April 26th. Hilliard Laing, one of the best men in Canada, with the gloves will box 10 rounds with Drummond of Syracuse.

A lady living on Cedar street, indulged too freely on Saturday in Trenton whiskey and was notified by a fully demolished much of the furniture in her house. She was fined $10 and costs for being drunk and disorderly and three months' suspended sentence in the Mercer for willfully destroying property. She was also placed on the Indian list.

Two privates of the 39th battalion spent the night in the coop, being held at the request of the military authorities for being absent without leave.

Major Bywater of the 39th battalion, Belleville, spent the week-end in town.

As proof that two policemen are not sufficient we had to pick up a poor drunken chap on Marmora street on Saturday evening and take him home ourselves. East Trenton does not now and never has received any police attention unless the men are notified and are brought over the river for the specific job. It would be something if a patrolman went across the bridge once each day. Never mind the expense. The appointment of a third policeman is amply warranted.

The council very generously subscribed $200 toward the expenses of the Odd Fellows' Field Day, which is to be held in Trenton on July 7th next. Bro. R. H. Spencer will shortly visit every lodge in the district and proclaim the good, tidings of what the visitors may expect in the way of entertainment on date mentioned. The committees are working very hard, even now, to make the opening perfect. There should be 5000 Odd Fellows here, if those within a reasonable distance of Trenton turn out. Everybody help to advertise the date. Division court is being held here today.

In the old saw mill days, the toughs from all the surrounding towns were accustomed to come to Trenton frequently, and "shoot up" the town in genuine cowboy fashion. Some Bellevillians seem to think that the same conditions exist today and that they are privileged to indulge in any old drunken stunt which strikes their fancy. However, these young men, Geo. Doyle, A. Martin and Burke of our county town, undertook to pound a poor helpless horse over the head with a bottle, on Marmora St., which work on being reported promptly to the police, resulted in the arrest of Doyle and Burke. A summons is out for Martin, who made his escape. This morning the P.M. fined the party $5 each. The sports must get it into their heads that Trenton has ceased to be the wild and woolly, free and easy town, of former days.

Presented Claims of National Sanatorium

Last evening the Rev. J. H. Dyke field secretary and lecturer of the National Sanatorium Association presented the claims of that institution to the citizens of Belleville at the City Hall. Mayor W. ## Judge Huycke's Three Sons Have Volunteered

A trio of Peterboro boys who have heard and responded to the call of the Empire are the three sons of His Honor Judge Huycke. The eldest son, Wilfred Huycke, has been made a Provisional Lieutenant of the 40th Battalion stationed at Cobourg. A couple of years ago he obtained his degree of Bachelor of Arts at Toronto University and subsequently entered the Law School at Toronto.

Douglas Huycke, who is an accountant in one of the large financial institutions in Toronto, has also enlisted, and it is expected will be attached to the Artillery Corps at Kingston. He has received orders to attend the Artillery School at Kingston within the next few days. The third son is Meredith Huycke, who it will be remembered, carried off the Prince of Wales Scholarship while attending the Collegiate Institute, Peterboro. After closing a brilliant career here, he entered the Toronto University. He expects to be attached to the Artillery for overseas service. All three boys are well known in Peterboro.

Since the outbreak of war His Honor Judge Huycke has given considerable time and attention to matters of patriotic nature and has assisted in many ways to further the patriotic movement in Peterboro.—Peterboro Examiner.

Relatives Get Share of Priest's Estate

Hon. Mr. Lucas put through a bill in the Legislature Friday morning respecting the will of the late Father Brophy, who died September, 1913, in the township of Thurlow, Hastings County. He left an estate of $177,000 to the province for prison farm and public institutional work. The will was contested in the courts by his sister, but the action was withdrawn. Under the new act passed Friday morning Father Brophy's brother, sister and some other relatives will receive $40,000 among them.

WEDDING BELLS.

Crosby—Carpenter.

The home of Mrs. Hiram Carpenter Charles street, was the scene of a very happy event on Wednesday, April 7th, when her youngest daughter, Rena, was united in marriage to Mr. Gray Crosby, of Ameliasburg, in the presence of only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

Rev. Melin Taylor was the officiating clergyman. The bride was very becomingly attired in a dress of white embroidered crepe, and wore the customary veil and wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of roses and carnations. Upon the conclusion of the ceremony of very dainty luncheon was served, after which the happy couple left for a trip to Toronto. Upon their return they will take up their residence at Ameliasburg. The many beautiful presents from the friends and relatives testify to the popularity of the young couple. They will be followed to their new home by the best wishes of a host of friends.—Gananoque Reporter.

IMPRESSIVE MILITARY FUNERAL FOR LATE PRIVATE DRIVER
Rare Sight of Military Burial-Rites at Grave in the Belleville Cemetery.

(From Thursday's Daily.)
Full military honors were on Wednesday afternoon given Private Henry Driver of "C" Company of the 89th Battalion who died of spinal meningitis on Tuesday. This was the first military funeral for a soldier on active service that has passed through the streets of Belleville. Nearly the whole battalion was in the parade to pay its last respect to the deceased comrade-in-arms.

Led by the firing party of twelve in command of R. Sgt. Major J. Dunkerley, the men of the battalion marched from the barracks on Pinnacle street to the junction with Front and Mill streets and then marched down Front and were drawn up facing Messrs. Fickell and Sons' morgue where the body lay. Capt. R. W. Spencer, chaplain of the regiment, conducted a brief service from the Anglican ritual on the casket rested a cap and belt and sidearm. The casket covered the entrance to the morgue, the jacket and the hearse. A guard of honor stood at attention while the pall bearers stood alongside the casket as the chaplain read the service.

The casket was then borne to the hearse. The firing party formed of men of the platoon to which deceased belonged, led the funeral cortege, followed by the band of the Fifteenth Regiment in command of Bandmaster E. R. Hinchey. Funeral music with slow beat, the dull tread of the soldier mourners, marked the sad procession. Hundreds of citizens gazed on the scene.

The march to the Belleville cemetery was slow and stately. It was the first visit that the regiment were paying to Belleville cemetery. The long khaki line of troops stretched along the winding roadway of the cemetery, like moving shadows. At the gate the firing party in band had halted while the regiment followed the hearse and bearers and then had taken their places at the rear of the procession.

The rites at the grave were most impressive. The soldiers were marched up along the roadway which met in an angle west of the grave. The firing party was called to the grave and the guard was drawn up near the hearse. The pall bearers removed the casket from the hearse and bore the remains up the avenue between the guard preceded by the chaplain. Arriving at the grave, the remains were lowered, the firing party bowed kneeling on their rifles pointed to the ground, and the order was read by the Rev. Capt. Spencer. Sgt. Major Dunkerley gave the orders for three volleys over the open grave of the dead soldier and just before the earth was thrown on, with bayonets fixed, and gleaming in the sun, the firing party stood at attention while the bugle rang out the clear notes of "Last Post." The rites were finished and the earth was then thrown on the remains of the box containing the casket and the remains.

The religious and military ceremony was most impressive and many citizens were witnesses of the last sad rite.

IT'S THE NAVY THAT DOES IT

It is one of the commonplaces of this war that the operations of the navy are silent and invisible. Little imagination is, however, required to realize the contrast in the conditions at the five greatest ports of Europe. Rotterdam, originally a Dutch port but three-fourths German in its service, is languishing on a fraction of its ordinary trade. Antwerp is entirely cut off from its wide-world trade, and any slight ripple on the Scheldt arises from the navigation of small vessels and barges transferred to Germany cotton and other goods "lifted" by the enemy from the warehouses in the Belgian port. The magnificent port of Hamburg afforded but a palatial prison for its own ships that were at its quays when war broke out, whilst a few small craft dart furtively across the Baltic to the Elbe from Sweden and Denmark with such parcels of merchandise as can elude the vigilance of the cruisers of the allies or the prohibitions of neutrals. But the trade of London and Liverpool in ever-increasing volume flows in and out with each tide, enjoying as much freedom and security as in peace time, and the only problems are of the space and labor for what comes, and for what we know is coming in the immediate future.—Westminster Gazette.

ADMIRAL SIR A. G. H. W. MOORE who flies his flag from the British warship "Invincible." He was conspicuous in the naval engagement with the Germans off the coast of Ohlt.

TREACHEROUS PRISONERS

Private William Marlowe, of the 22nd Battalion, was captured by the Germans in the battle of the Somme. He was taken to a hospital in the rear of the lines and was treated for his wounds. He was then taken to a camp where he was held as a prisoner of war. He was later released and returned to his unit. He was then captured again and was held in a camp where he was treated for his wounds. He was then released and returned to his unit. He was then captured again and was held in a camp where he was treated for his wounds. He was then released and returned to his unit.

The Kaiser's Man

Two British soldiers lay wounded beside a dying German. They were hot and tired and in pain, and one called for a drink. The dying German understood. "Here," he said, pointing to his side. Thinking he wanted lifting up, they raised him from the ground, and found that he was lying on his water bottle. One held it to his lips. It was almost his last hour in the world. He was dying for the Kaiser, but there was something of Sir Phillip Sidney in this dying man. "No, not me—I die; you drink," he murmured as he held the water to his lips. He died, and one of the Englishmen died too, but the other dug a grave and laid his enemy in it. "I buried him properly," he said, "with a kind of headstone, and I got a stick, and I found a piece of paper, and I wanted to write something on it, and so I wrote 'A L'."

A Few Contrasts During Last Week of Legislature

1. Government voted down Liberal proposals aiming for social betterment both in industrial centres and in the country but at the same time voted in favour of a vigorous protest re-voted a grant of 1,000,000 acres of land to a railway company which has proved itself unworthy of the responsibility.

2. Refused to ear-mark the war tax for war purposes only and at the same time makes County Councils ear-mark the grant for good roads and disqualifies for two years any councillor who fails to ear-mark such a fund and says that members who vote for application of the fund for other purposes shall be personally liable for the amount so applied.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM ON ACCOUNT OF MENINGITIS SAYS DR. AMYOT

Disease Had Obtained Better Foothold Here Than in Toronto Camp, but Effective Measures are Being Taken—In Interview Dr. Amyot Gives Some Particulars of Germs of Meningitis.

(From Thursday's Daily)
Captain (Dr.) Amyot, provincial bacteriologist, Toronto, in company with Lieut. Dr. Palmer and Drs. Fraser and Hodge of Toronto Division were busy engaged yesterday in going over conditions in the camp in Belleville. They arrived in the city early in the morning. Dr. Amyot returned to Toronto early this morning leaving in charge Dr. Palmer, Dr. Hodge and Dr. Fraser.

No Cause For Alarm.
When seen at Hotel Quinte last evening Dr. Amyot went into details with representatives of the press concerning the meningitis outbreak here. As he explained the disease and its development and as he found conditions satisfactory at the barracks, there seems no cause for any undue alarm. He told of measures that had been adopted at Toronto Camp. These he said would be followed here. Belleville however the disease had got a stronger foothold than in the Toronto Camp, yet this need not excite any fear, for better methods were being taken.

Plans To Stamp Out Disease.
There are now two men sick with meningitis in the Belleville Hospital. These cases look promising. Yesterday a suspicious case came under the gaze of the physicians and the man was segregated. He is now housed in the 24th Artillery Armouries, Church Street, where a temporary detention hospital for suspicious cases complete in all details has been established.

All carriers of the disease will be segregated and will remain so until all traces of germs are gone. How many of these there are, will only be determined by the examination which Lieut. Dr. Palmer and Drs. Hodge and Fraser are undertaking. This method is known as "swabbing in the nose." About one hundred men who may have come in contact with the germs will undergo this test. After swabbing, cultures will be developed and tests made.

Menstruating women are very short-lived. They are not carried by clothing as they die almost immediately. The method of communication is by mouth secretion. Contact is almost direct unless when the victim sneezes or coughs. So short is the life of the bacilli that the swab had to be forced far up into the nose to get the living germs, for in the lower part of the nose, they are often found dead.

Flexner's Serum Injected.
In Belleville Hospital the same treatment is being followed as in Toronto, namely, the injection of Flexner's serum into the spinal canal. This serum is not very effective, but it extends a man's life and it has vitality he may pull through. For this reason the men who are well are not worked too hard, so that their resistance to disease may not be lowered.

Doctors Hodge and Fraser who are assisting Lieut. Dr. Palmer are members of the Casualty Clearing Department.

BELLEVILLE HOSPITAL MUST TAKE MENINGITIS CASES
Said Authority Last Evening—Some Objection Had Been Raised as to Admission of Such Cases Into Local Institution.

(From Thursday's Daily.)
The attitude of Belleville Hospital in the matter of receiving cases of meningitis that might develop provoked some strong criticism yesterday. Objections were raised to the reception of further meningitis patients into the wards of the hospital. However men in authority made it clear that it was not the duty of the military to establish hospitals in cities equipped with modern hospitals, to care for soldiers stricken with disease. The duties of the military are to take every precaution to prevent and eradicate disease, but cases of critical illness must be cared for in civil institutions. From the standpoint of efficiency alone, the military could not be burdened with this added duty, particularly when stationary hospitals are far more completely furnished and equipped than a military field hospital can ever hope to be. Military hospitals can provide certain treatment, but nothing as complete and with all the advantages of science that the city hospital can. Field military hospitals are not allowed in such camps as at Belleville.

Food Prices Never so High Before

The rapid rise in the price of domestic commodities has largely been arrested. Coal, for example, is rather lower in price than a fortnight ago and promises to become still lower. Bread remains as it was. Butter and cheese have slightly risen. There is a scarcity of green vegetables, but that is due, the merchants tell me, not to the war, but to a failure of the crop owing to heavy frosts at the time of planting. Was the German blockade accomplishing anything? Its result would certainly be felt now. There are no signs of it in our every day life. Supplies arrive from abroad as usual. The Frenchmen in London can buy his Paris newspaper each night in the hall of his favorite cafe as before the war. The restaurants, which were among the first to feel the pinch, show no increase in prices. All this is very healthy and very encouraging.—London (Eng.) Daily Mail.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Nathan Denyes.
Mrs. Nathan Denyes of Thurrow passed away at the residence of her son Mr. H. K. Denyes this morning in her 86th year, after a very short illness. She had lived in the township of Thurrow about 62 years.

The late Mrs. Denyes was the daughter of the late Henry Ketcheson of Huntingdon and was born in that township. She was the last surviving resident member of Zion's church from the time of its dedication in 1866.

Mr. H. K. Denyes of Foxboro is a son and Mrs. W. H. Redner of Collegeville is a daughter of deceased Mr. Wm. Ketcheson of Cananville and Mr. John V. Ketcheson of Zion's Hill are brothers. Mrs. Denyes was a lifelong Methodist and took an active part in all branches of church work.

St. Michael's Boys' Club "At-Home"

St. Michael's Academy was last evening the scene of a delightful function when the boys' club of the parish was at home. Some two hundred guests partook of their hospitality. Many enjoyed the euche, the prizes for which went to Mrs. J. J. Corrigan and Mr. C. N. Kilin. The dancing was the important feature. Those who had played cards joined the dancers at eleven o'clock. The hall looked pretty with the decorations loaned by Messrs. Wallace and Clarke and Mr. C. N. Kilin. Mr. O'Rourke's orchestra of four pieces played the music of the evening, the players being Miss O'Rourke, piano; Mr. E. O'Rourke, violin; Mr. R. Blain, cornet and Mr. Walter Asseline, trombone.

At midnight dainty refreshments were served the guests. The committee in charge were composed of Mr. Ray Peppin, chairman; cards, C. W. Wain, chairman; Leo Gardner, and Jas. Freeman dancing, John Phelan, chairman, Thos. Barrett and Harold Barrett; refreshments, Michael Nafin. Mr. P. J. Wins in charge of the door and Mrs. Bunpin in charge of the kitchen. The affair broke up at two o'clock. The guests were one and all loud in their praises of the enjoyments of the evening. The object was to raise funds for the organ and the boys' club.

Capt. R. Gardiner Succeeds Lt.-Col. Duff

Kingston Doctor Took Over Duties of A.D.M.S. For the Third Division.
Capt. Gardiner, A.M.C., assumed the duties of assistant director of medical services for the third division area. Capt. Gardiner came to the city of Kingston years ago, and from the start made a host of friends.

Four years ago he entered the A.M.C., and found his way to the present rank. For two years he has acted as surgeon to the 14th, and for the past six months has been in charge of the prisoners at Fort Henry, and has done all the work of the 14th regiment, the R.C.H.A. and other units. Until February 16th, Capt. Gardiner was surgeon for the 22nd Battalion now in England; in fact, he has been a hard worked medical officer ever since the war broke out.

His many friends will congratulate him on succeeding Lieut.-Col. Duff, who goes to the front with the 21st Battalion. Capt. Gardiner is a very capable surgeon, a pleasant officer, a hard worker, and a citizen such as any city would be proud to claim. Capt. Gardiner represents Ontario ward in the City Council. Fifteen years ago he served as a private in the 14th Regiment.

Major W. J. Brown, of the staff of the third division, is about to be made general staff officer, and Capt. Porter of Lindsay will be added to the staff and given the duty of looking after the instructional work. There is too much for Major Brown to do without an assistant, and the military authorities feel that the hard-worked Major should have help.

Major Hamilton, A.D.T.S., of Kingston, was in the city yesterday.

The 21st Battalion of the second contingent, now at Kingston, is purchasing a ton of tobacco to take overseas, one ton of chewing tobacco and one ton of smoking. All the tobacco is Canadian made and has been bought out of the regimental funds. Col. Hughes and his officers determined their men shall not suffer in the trenches for a bit of tobacco. In all other cities they are raising a tobacco fund, but the 21st will buy their own.

This is the first consignment of the 4,000 lbs so generously given by The Geo. H. Gillespie & Company, Madoc, to The Madoc Women's Patriotic League.

OBITUARY

GEORGE REEVES.
(From Thursday's Daily)
The death of Mr. George Reeves, an old and highly esteemed resident, took place last evening at eight o'clock at his residence 212 Charles Street. He had been ill about two weeks.

The late George Reeves was born in Belleville on the 17th of June, 1838, and lived in this city all his life with the exception of ten years spent in early life in Kingston. By occupation he was a builder and carpenter. Many of the better buildings in Belleville are the work of his hand and of his father, the late William Reeves.

He was a Methodist in religion, being a member of the Trustee Board of the Bridge St. Methodist Church, succeeding his father.

Surviving, there are left to mourn the loss of a kind husband and father his widow, two sons, Dr. C. M. Reeves of Tweed, J. D. Reeves of Toronto and two daughters, the Misses Minnie and Maud, at home.

The late George Reeves was possibly the oldest resident of Charles St. He was possessed of a remarkably pleasing personality and hundreds of citizens will mourn with the bereaved family in their sorrow.

WHY GERMANY EXPECTS TO WIN THE WAR!

Utmost Confidence Yet Prevails Among the German People—What a Visitor to the Enemy Saw and Heard

London, (Eng.) Daily Mail.

The writer of the following article is the author of the extremely interesting and widely quoted and translated contribution to "The Daily Mail" of December and January last entitled "Germany from Within."

At the conclusion of his last series of articles he was again despatched by "The Daily Mail" to the enemy countries, whence he returned on Monday last. In the course of two months' journey he has gathered an immense number of valuable impressions.

"You're English, aren't you?" said a short, heavily built, close-cropped, typical German man of business in the restaurant-car of the Budapest-Bucarest express.

"Hardly likely to be," I remarked.

"You've got most of the English caged up here, I understand."

"Caging is too good for the schwein (pigs), but Heaven be thanked, we have got them caged up in their island now, and our submarines will show them just how they can play the game of starvation. I suppose you have not been to England since the war?"

"I have been twice," I answered.

"And how do they take their licking?" he asked.

"John Bull thinks it is you that has got the licking, I observed.

Mr. Jederman, as I will call him, laughed contemptuously and a little angrily. "I suppose their chief, Mr. Grey, can persuade them of anything, and American friends tell me that the English newspapers are kept in the dark about anything unpleasant."

"That I cannot say," I replied. "I can only tell you that the English are just as confident as the Germans."

"I presume, then, that they do not know that we now own and mean to keep large part of France, all Belgium, as much of Russia as we want, and have five hundred English officers prisoners, twenty thousand English soldiers, and close on a million other prisoners altogether. I suppose they do not know that Italy and Roumania are so disgusted by England's attack upon Germany that they wash their hands of Grey and his fellow swine."

The effect of a good luncheon on Mr. Jederman made him expansive—more expansive than many of the little shopkeepers to whom I endeavoured to talk in Vienna, a number of whom said, "Ich darf nicht" (I am not allowed to speak). He disposed of all my suggestions, for I found it quite useless to argue with him, easily and airily.

"We'll get to Paris," he declared, "when Hindenburg has taken Warsaw. We'll only get to switch him to Soissons or Rheims and will hack his way through to Paris any time he chooses."

"And Calais?" I asked.

"Calais is not so important as it was now that we have got the British Fleet in permanent hiding in the Atlantic, where we sank the you know, the Super-Dreadnought, the loss of which the terrified British tried to hide," and he produced from his pocket some picture postcards of a certain well-known ship whose loss is more commented on throughout Europe, and especially in neutral countries, than almost any other incident of the war.

"People thought that it was mined, but, as a matter of fact, it was submerged," he continued. "A panic-stricken tribe, these British, crawling about in London at night in their darkened streets like rats. But rich! He threw up his hands in ecstasy at the prospect of the indemnity.

"A friend of mine on the General Staff tells me that London will yield us two thousand million English pounds, Manchester one thousand million, Glasgow another thousand million. We might have got four times as much from the French in 1870, and we have not forgotten the lessons of our generosity on that occasion."

"Fighting well, the French are?" I suggested.

"Yes, they are good fighters, but they are just where they were four months ago," he replied, pointing to a map in the current issue of the "Berliner Tageblatt." "Why, we have been able to hold the whole crowd of them, French, British, sappers of all shades—with comparatively a handful of men for months while Hindenburg has been eating the Russians on the west."

Jederman is just typical of millions of Germans, and, unfortunately, the effect of Mr. Jederman's confidence is extremely bad for the Allies, inasmuch as neutrals in those countries which might have been expected to help the Allies are secretly convinced that Germany will win, much as many of them detest the Germans.

Indeed the self-confidence of Mr. Jederman, backed up by the extremely clever work of the German Press Bureau in neutral countries, affects even the English abroad.

Those who read my former series of articles will remember that when war broke out I was in Budapest, where I have been three times since. The British are not badly treated in Hungary. Many of them are going about their business as usual, but are almost completely cut off from communication with home. As a result they are quite anxious with regard to the safety of their relations in England, and some are even convinced of Germany's righteousness. "Poos is very dear at home, I am told," said one old English governess to me. "The British Isles are entirely surrounded by German mines and submarine boats. The King no longer dare go to Buckingham Palace or to Sandringham for fear of German to the idea of a long war. The gallant little Serbians seem to me to be preparing with regret for another bloodthirsty conflict. The French people in the boat back from Salonica to Marseilles and a few old friends with whom I conversed in Paris seemed confident that the war would be over this year. They have immense faith in their field artillery and they say that this war is going to be ended by artillery.

SPRING REMINDERS OF RHEUMATISM

Raw, Damp Weather Starts the Pain, But the Trouble Lies in the Blood

Spring weather is bad for rheumatic sufferers. The changes from mild to cold, the raw, damp winds start the aches and twinges, in the more extreme cases, the tortures of the trouble going. But it must be borne in mind that it is not the weather that causes rheumatism. The trouble is rooted in the blood—the changeable weather merely starts the pain. The only way to reach the trouble and to cure it is through the blood. The poisonous rheumatic acids must be driven out. Liniments and rubbing may give temporary relief, but cannot possibly cure the trouble. The sufferer is only wasting time and money with this kind of treatment and all the time the trouble is becoming more deeply rooted—harder to cure. There is just one speedy cure for rheumatism—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They act directly on the impure, acid-tainted blood. They purify and strengthen it and thus root out the cause of the rheumatism. Here is strong proof of the above statements. Mr. J. J. Sydney, Sydney, says: "I was so badly crippled with rheumatism in my hips and knees that I could hardly go about. I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which I took steadily for a couple of months, by which time all traces of the trouble had disappeared. I can most strongly recommend the Pills to all rheumatic sufferers."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

inspected the plans and preparations for the emergency accommodations here. He gave orders to have this work rushed through at once. No new meningitis cases have developed in the camp.

GENERAL HUGHES IN CITY TODAY

Short Visit by Minister of Militia—39 Battalion Paraded to C. N. R. Station

From Saturday's Daily.

Major General Hughes, Minister of Militia and Defence was in Belleville for a short while this afternoon and reviewed the troops of the 39th Battalion under command of Lt.-Col. J. A. V. Preston.

The commanding officer received a message this morning to the effect that General Hughes was coming down by the C.N.R. train and would be in town for a few minutes. General Hughes asked that the regiment be paraded to the station.

The parade took place at 1.30. The battalion was drawn up south of the C.N.R. tracks. General Hughes stepped from the eastbound C.N.R. train at 2.05 and was on his way again at 2.15. As he appeared in Belleville he gave the command for the general salute. General Hughes inspected the officers and the regiment marched past by platoons. This concluded the ceremonies and General Hughes returned to his car, accompanied by Col. J. A. V. Preston, Col. W. G. Ketchum and other officers, whom he asked to go along with him. As the Major General stepped on the platform of his car, he said "well boys" in regard of that battalion. General Hughes is returning to Ottawa.

Lieut. Wilkins' Condition is Much Improved

It will be gratifying news to Belleville residents to know that Lieut. Harold Wilkins, a former Belleville boy, wounded at the front with the Bedfordshire Regiment in which he held a commission, is on the high road to recovery. A cable received on April 8th reads "Lieut. Wilkins struck off seriously wounded list."

CARRIERS NOW AT THE FAIR GROUNDS

Will Remain There Till Cleared of Germs—No New Cases of Meningitis.

From Saturday's Daily.

There are now in Belleville Fair Grounds about 29 soldiers of the 39th battalion, who are carriers of germs. Twenty-two of these were found among the first 112 men examined, who were thought to have come in contact with the meningitis germs. A large percentage was expected. The second batch of men examined showed only about seven carriers. These will be kept under guard at the fair grounds until cleared.

The public will understand that these carriers are not sick men. They merely have the germs and might give or communicate them to others. Col. T. D. R. Hemming, O.C. the 3rd division was in town yesterday and

A POSITIVE CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

Hundreds of People Have Found "Fruit-a-tives" Their Only Help

READ THIS LETTER

Superintendent of Sunday School in Toronto Tells How He Cured Himself of Chronic Rheumatism After Suffering for Years.

55 DOVERCOURT ROAD, Oct. 1st, 1913.

"For a long time, I have thought of writing you regarding what I term a most remarkable cure effected by your remedy 'Fruit-a-tives'. I suffered from Rheumatism, especially in my hands. I have spent a lot of money without any good results. I have taken 'Fruit-a-tives' for 15 months now, and am pleased to tell you that I am cured. All the enlargement has not left my hands and perhaps never will, but the soreness is all gone and I can do any kind of work. I have gained 55 pounds in 15 months!"

Rheumatism is no longer the dreaded disease it once was. Rheumatism is no longer one of the "incurable diseases". "Fruit-a-tives" has proved its marvelous powers over Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago—in fact, over all such diseases which arise from some derangement of stomach, bowels, kidneys or skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

As to the duration of the war. It seemed to me that the Germans I met regard it as a very long struggle. "We are preparing," one of them said to me "for war against the world. Like most successful people, we have no friends. The Americans will be in it before long, but that will not make much difference." The Austrians as a rule now think what the Germans tell them, and therefore are very very reluctantly resigning themselves

TOTAL OF PATRIOTIC FUND FOR BELLEVILLE NOW EXCEEDS $40,000

SPLENDID RESULT OF PATRIOTIC APPEAL—FULL LIST OF SUBSCRIPTIONS TO DATE.

The Committee when acknowledging the list of the contributors up to the 3rd of April, take this opportunity of again announcing to those citizens who have not yet signified what part they intend taking in this effort to strengthen our Army and protect our home, and who certainly would not like to have no share in this duty, that the list will not be closed while the war lasts.

Subscriptions and payments may be sent to the Treasurer at any time, and the payments may be distributed after a lengthened period when so desired.

It is hoped that small contributions will not be withheld because those intending to donate them feel that they only wish it were in their power to send a larger gift to the Patriotic Fund.

The Fund will continue to grow while the need for it lasts, and weekly acknowledgments will continue to be made for any payments received by the Treasurer.

The united efforts of the earlier efforts to raise money for this purpose, together with the recent campaign, amounted on the third of April to the following total:

Subscribed $40,182.59 Paid in to date $20,908.49

There are several donations which have not yet been realized on, viz: a Holstein calf, a green parrot with cage tray and stand, the grinding of 5,000 bushels of grain, twenty-five dollars worth of machine knitting, the use of Pipe Major Johnston's hall for a Patriotic Dance, and the use of Mr. T. Ramsey's dancing academy for a similar purpose.

The actual cost of the fund of the recent campaign, through which so large a part of the above sum has been subscribed, was very moderate, thanks to so many donations, including free head quarters, heat and telephone, free light, fixtures and furniture, free automobile services, typewriting, etc. and the very generous terms under which the local papers gave such liberal space, and then handed in subscriptions for practically their whole accounts, material etc., must have been very large.
