POETRY.

Mothers.

One mother, once, when her encircling arm
Grew powerless to shield her child from harm,
Wove a frail basket of the trembling reed,
And, strengthening it with loving art, she laid
Him helpless, thus, beside the river's brink,
Trusting that God would keep and care for him.
Since then all mothers, taught by her
God's care is larger, better than their own.
They weave their trembling faith into an ark,
And strengthen with their prayers the tiny bark,
And trust their growing children thus to Him
Who saved the lad beside the river's brim.

STORY.

The Engineer's Story.

Did you ever hear of a railroad president running as fireman on an engine? Well, I know of one who did, and if you've got time to listen to it, I'll tell you the story now while I smoke this cigar you were kind enough to give me.

It was along in the summer of '85 that I was firing on a single track, one-horse road, that runs up from Junction City, through the woods to Georgetown, a matter of a hundred and ten miles. The road was mostly owned by a man named Theford—William B. Theford—who was president and superintendent all in one. I had been firing on the road for two years back; all the time with one engineer, Bob Hunter by name, and a finer man never lived. I suppose it would be natural for me to speak well of Bob, anyhow, for I was clean head over ears in love with his pretty daughter Molly; and my only waiting for a bit of raise in my pay to make her Mrs. Jim Martin. Though I didn't see any chance for that raise where I was, I didn't like to leave and go on another road, for that would take me away from Molly.

One day Bob says to me:
"Jim, ain't you and Molly never going to get married?"
"Just as soon as I get my raise," says I; "but I don't see how I'm going to get it here."
"Why don't you go and ask Billy?" says he.

You see Billy was what we always called Mr. Theford—behind his back, of course, for I warrant you were mighty polite to his face.
"He won't do anything for me," says I; "for you know either one of the cleaners up to Georgetown would be glad enough to jump into my place, and he ain't a-goin to give me a raise just to please me."
"Well," says Bob, "it won't do any hurt to try it."

So next day I washed up and went to the company's office and asked for Mr. Theford. After a few minutes he sent word for me that he would see me, and I went. There he sat—a large, heavy built man, with large side-whiskers and a pair of gold-rimmed eyeglasses on his nose.
"What is it, my man? I'm very busy," says he.
"So I up and told him what I wanted."
"How much are you getting now?"

says he.
"Then he pursed up his lips, and hemmed and hawed a little, and says:
"I don't see how we can give you anything more, my dear fellow. Yours is not a very responsible position; merely one that requires a little bodily strength. And we can find plenty of men who would be only too glad to take your place at that salary."

With that he turned to a letter he was writing, and I knew I had no more business there.
I tell you I felt pretty sore to be told it didn't take much to fire an engine, and I came mighty near throwing my job up and trying to get in on another road. But Molly persuaded me to hold on a little longer.

Now before I come to the particular point of this yarn I want to tell you a little about the road. I have said it was a single track line running from Junction City to Georgetown. The latter place was a little town of five or six hundred inhabitants; but in summer a great many Chicago people came up there, and so I suppose the road paid. Anyhow, Theford, who had a summer place there, was rich enough to run the road for himself alone, if he wanted to.

Bob lived at Georgetown and I boarded with him. Our trips began at eight in the morning, and we generally run the hundred and ten miles in five hours. Then at three in the afternoon we came back, getting home at eight. As soon as we reached the roundhouse at Georgetown our day's work was over, for the cleaners took the engine then, cleaned and polished her and laid the fire all ready to start next morning.

Well, as I said, I hung on to my job, hoping that something would turn up that would give me a lift, till one day in August. The whole summer had been uncommon hot, but this day went ahead of anything I ever saw. Of course, while we were running we had a breeze, but the minute we stopped it seemed as if we were in a furnace; and naturally, working as we were near a hot fire didn't improve things any. On the home trip Bob was taken sick and had all he could do to hold out till we got to the home station, when he got home as soon as possible. After the train was emptied I ran the engine to the round house, expecting to go straight home and wash up.

But when I had run the engine in the first thing I saw was my two cleaners laid out on a heap of ashes, dead drunk. Here was a pretty mess, for it would certainly take me until midnight to get the machine in proper trim for the next day's run; and a hot, greasy job it was in any weather, but on such a night as that, was it not frightful to think of. However, there was no help for it, and I started in. I had barely made a beginning when I heard some one coming in at the door. Looking up, I saw it was Billy Theford. In a very excited voice he asked where Hunter was.

"Home," I said; "and no sick has can't hold his head up."
"My God!" said he; "I shall be ruined!"
Then he went on to say that if he wasn't in Chicago the next day, some deal, I think he called it, would fall through, and it would cost him a quarter of a million.
"There's a train goes through Junction City at 11.15, that'll get you to Chicago in time," says I.
"What good'll that do me?" says he. "I've been away for two days, and only just now got the telegram. If Hunter was here he might get me down; but as it is I might as well go home, and get the money go."

"Mr. Theford," says I, "Bob is sick, but I can run this machine to Junction City in time to connect with the train you want; but you will have to fire for me, as my two cleaners are drunk, as you see, and there isn't another man in this village knows the engine from the tender, hardly."
I hope the Lord has forgiven me that lie, for there was two or three men that could have fired all right, but it struck me all of a sudden that there was a fine chance to get even with Billy, and let him see whether it took any know-how to fire an engine for a hundred and ten miles. It so happened that we had wooded-up on the home trip at a little station three miles from Georgetown, so we had plenty of fuel aboard to make the run with.

"Can you do it?" says he. "Remember, it is a hundred and ten miles and it is 8.30 now, so you have only two hours and a half to make the run that generally takes double that time."
"I can do it," says I, "if you will just jump aboard, pull off your coat, and do just as I tell you."

No sooner said than done, and in ten minutes we had the old engine on the turn-table, turned her around, and were off.
If the road was rough when we ran at our usual speed, that night, making double time, it was just awful. As we flew around the curves it seemed as if we should lose the track at every turn of the drivers, and the poor old machine rocked and swayed so that, used as I was to it, I could hardly keep on my seat by the lever.

If it was hard on me, what must it have been to old Billy?

I could hardly keep from laughing in his face as I watched him, and heard him groan as he handled the heavy sticks we used for fuel.

The heat of the weather, added to that of the furnace and the unusual work, made him look as if he was in a Turkish bath. The water ran down his face, his stiff white collar hung down on his shoulders like a wet rag, and his beautiful smooth shirt bosom looked as if some one had thrown a pail of dirty water over him. His hands were torn and out, from hauling the wood, and take it all together, he was the most unlikely looking railroad president I ever saw. Once in a while I had to shout at him to lay the wood more even in the furnace, and would tell him he would get the knack of it in time. Whenever he tried to rest I told him we were losing steam, and if he wanted to catch that train, he must get up on the work. If I had thought to hitch a car on when we started, we could have run much smoother; but it was too late to think of that now, and so, on we rushed, now through woodland, now past grain fields, lurching first to one side and then to the other, until I expected every minute to land wrong side up in the ditch. However, luck was with us that night, and we pulled up at Junction City at just eleven. Poor old Billy could hardly climb down from the cab, but he managed to gasp out:

"Come to my office at two o'clock next Sunday."
I learned afterward that, finding the Chicago train was behind time, he hunted up a clothing store and rigged himself out so as to look like a civilized man, which he didn't when he left me.

I managed to find a fireman who was willing to make the run back with me, and I finally got home at three o'clock, and finding the cleaners sobered up, got to bed as soon as possible, for I was clean played out. I told Bob about my trip next day, and thought he would die laughing to think of old Billy playing fireman. But all he said was:

"I'm afraid that'll settle your hash, Jim, for he'll find out you worked him more than he needed."
The next Saturday, at two o'clock, I reported at the president's office, wondering whether I was going to be rewarded for my extra work or kicked out for my impudence.
When I entered the office, there sat the old man speck and span as ever, and showing no signs of hard work.
"Well, young man," said he, "you helped me out the other night, but I wouldn't go through the same experience again for ten thousand dollars.
At the same time, I think you were trying to get even with me for not doing as you asked me to about your salary, and I have concluded that this road can dispense with your services."
At this my heart went down into my boots, for I can tell you it isn't an easy thing to get a new job when you can't bring a recommendation from your last place.
Then he went on to say:

express. I have written in reply that I can recommend such a man, one James Martin, who will report for service September first. The pay will be one hundred dollars a month. I may add to you privately that I shall never apply to you for the position of fireman. Good-day, sir."

That's all there is to my story. Molly and I were married, and went to Chicago to live. I took the new train, and have brought her in on time every trip I've run; so you see I've a pretty good record with the company. I've never seen Billy since and I don't believe he wants to see me; for Bob told me the last time I saw him that they all called the old man "Martin's Fireman," that he knew this, and naturally didn't like it. There's my mate signalling for me now, sir, and I must go.

Is It Another Fraud?

We are constantly receiving inquiries from all parts of the country asking, "Is this true?" or "Will you do what you claim?" or "Is this another humbug?" We are not basing our claims for public patronage upon new and unestablished articles for which there is little or no positive evidence of value but upon old standards of merit, one of which, has been in use over eighty years, generation after generation of families in the last four-score years have vouched for it. We a-k no one to take our word as a guarantee of value—we have many letters on file in our office from people who have used and sold our goods in years gone by, telling of results as wonderful as any known. We should take pride in showing them to anyone interested. The simple remedy, Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, has probably saved more lives and afforded more relief to the suffering than any other known remedy.

It is used and recommended by all classes of people—the high and the low, the rich and the poor, the educated and the ignorant. All who become acquainted with it, experimentally, are amazed at its wonderful power, and are loud in its praise ever after. It is marvelous how many different complaints it will cure or relieve. Its strong point lies in the fact that it acts quickly and effectually. This whole page would not suffice to enumerate one-quarter of the diseases and ailments—the broken, splintered and mutilated limbs; bent and stiffened limbs; jama, bruises, old sores, ugly cuts, burns, scalds, etc., which this Anodyne Liniment will positively alleviate or cure. What is the trifling cost of a bottle or a half dozen of this Anodyne, compared with the worth of a human life? Less not a moment, but let every family be supplied. It is used as much internally as externally, many do not know this. No matter how well you know this medicine it will pay you to send to I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., for a pamphlet, free, telling how to use the liniment economically. A tea-spoonful properly used will often do more good than a half bottle as some people use it.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

The best of tea makes but an indifferently concoction unless the water is fresh.
Anything mixed with water requires a hotter oven than anything mixed with milk.

Beets should be boiled one hour in summer; one hour and a half, or even two hours, if large, in winter.
Apples will not freeze if covered with a linen cloth, nor a pie or custard burn if in the oven with a dish of water.
When several cups of tea of equal strength are wanted, pour a little into each cup and then fill in adverse order. The tea first poured from the pot is the weakest of the decoction.
All vegetables should go into fast boiling water, to be quickly brought to the boiling point again, not left to steep in the hot water before boiling, which toughens them and destroys color and flavor.

Paper may be perfumed by laying a perfumed sachet with the sheets and envelopes, or dry sachet powder may be sprinkled in the box, laying an extra sheet of paper between the box and paper.
There is nothing that removes impurities from floors, etc., so rapidly as boiling hot soda and water, applied with a long-handled scrubbing brush and rinsed off once with clear water and dried with a clean cloth.
When the skin is bruised it may be prevented from becoming discolored by using a little dry starch or arrow-root merely moistened with cold water and placed on the injured part. This should be done at once.
If black dresses have been stained boil a handful of fig leaves in a quart of water and reduce it to a pint. A sponge dipped in this liquid and rubbed upon them will entirely remove stains from crapes, bombazines, etc.

The practice of rubbing the face with vasoline or other cosmetic sometimes makes the hair grow where it is not becoming. Camphor applications, like other irritants or stimulants to the skin, will cause superfluous hair.

RECIPES.
SLICED ORANGES.—Pare and slice a dozen oranges, grate a cocoanut and shred a pine-apple. Fill a dish with alternate layers until it is full. Pour over them sweetened sauce and serve.
GRAIN CAKES.—Cream together four eggs, two teaspoonfuls brown sugar, five tablespoonfuls rye flour, three tablespoonfuls wheat flour, two tablespoonfuls cornmeal and a little salt, adding milk enough to make a thin batter. Bake on hot griddle as you would pancakes.

YANKEE POTATO BALLS.—Boil potatoes until very done, season and mash the same as for mashed potatoes. Press into a teacup enough of the potato to fill it, turn carefully out into a buttered pan. Repeat until the pan is full. Beat an egg, rub over each dome-like cake and place in oven until turned a golden brown.
SPANISH CREAM.—Soak half a box of gelatine in one quart of milk for half an hour, then put it on to boil. Have ready the yolks of four eggs and one cup of sugar well beaten together and when the milk and gelatine boil add these two ingredients. Beat the whites of eggs to a stiff froth, and when the custard is taken off the fire add the beaten whites and pour into a mold to cool.

"Willow Bank."

The annual meeting of the trustees and lighthouse of Willow Bank Cemetery Corporation was held in Witter's Hall on Wednesday evening last, J. W. Caldwell, President, presiding.

The Committee of Management reported considerable work done within the year, notably the plan of a spruce hedge on the east side of the lot and of willows from the south-east corner of the grounds to the north gate and also of putting in a stone bridge at the upper gate and tile-draining Junction Avenue.

The Secretary's report showed a considerable increase in the sale of lots over former years, thirteen having been sold since the last annual meeting, realizing the sum of $195, a portion of which has been paid.

The retiring trust—D. B. Shaw, J. W. Wallace and J. W. Caldwell—were re-elected. The executive officers, viz—J. W. Caldwell, President; J. W. Wallace, Vice President; A. V. Woodman, Secretary; and J. D. Chambers, Treasurer—were re-elected.

A standing regulation to the effect that two auditors be regularly elected at each annual meeting was adopted, and D. B. Shaw and C. H. Borden were elected such auditors for the current year.

It was decided that the corporation procure a seal for the purpose of sealing deeds, etc., and J. W. Caldwell was named a committee to prepare a device for the same.

As usual the sum of $10 was voted to the Secretary, after which the meeting adjourned.

It is to be regretted that so few of the lotholders find it convenient to attend the annual meetings of this Corporation and that so little interest seems to be taken by those who have friends buried in those grounds.

It is to be hoped that the new blood introduced into the committee of management will stimulate the older members to action, and that these grounds may be made a credit to the place rather than a standing reproach as they are at present.

Canadian Penitentiaries.

The report of the minister of justice as to penitentiaries in Canada for the year ending 30th June, 1889, shows that there were at that date 1,195 criminals undergoing imprisonment, being an increase of 101 over the number during the previous year.

The increase is notable, yet the percentage of convicts compared with the population of the Dominion is small. Crime is far from prevalent, and outside the cities and towns does not appear to any considerable extent.

Facilities are being prepared in the penitentiary at Kingston for isolating the more hardened and habitual criminals, from those of shorter experience, and it is considered that very beneficial results will follow from the adoption of the reform.

(By Our Regular Correspondent.) OTTAWA, April 9th.—The legislators are just getting over their Easter vacation which was a very short one—but four days. The M. Nicholas Flood Danin, M. P., poet, author and lecturer, delivered a three hours' harangue against Commissioner Herchber, of the North West Mounted Police.

The Legislature of the North-west passed a resolution unanimously asking for an investigation. Everything points to a hot time for any officer in Mounted Police who thinks he can bound constables in the force, until they are forced to desert.

Brooklyn's new chief of police is dismissing policemen right and left for drunkenness. He says he will not have on the force a single man capable of intoxication.

IN PRESS: STRAY LEAVES

"Book of Wonders."

(LESLIE LORING DAVISON.)

With a Preface by Harl Harloe.

Edited by Ben Zeene.

"It gives me great pleasure to say a few words in recommendation of 'The Book of Wonders.' The name is an appropriate one, although given it by the author in his humorous way.

"When Leslie L. Davison went down into the grave, the first bright rays of a great intellect went out. Although he had not yet reached that age when the mind of man takes its predestined stand and shines forth in all its brightness, yet the morning beams had already begun to tell of the approaching noontide which, alas! never came.

"In the death of Leslie L. Davison, the author of the 'Book of Wonders,' Nova Scotia certainly lost a brilliant writer. It was with real regret on my part that I read the concluding article in that very interesting series of articles which has been running in the Acadian during the summer months, entitled 'Book of Wonders,' contributed by Ben Zeene.

FOR BUSINESS MEN.—Is your trade dull? Then advertise. There are always people who want to buy, if they only know who has the articles to sell. Try it once. As one dose of a powerful emetic has often saved the life of a patient, so a well placed advertisement has often saved the financial lives of business men.

From the report of the agent of Indian Affairs in Nova Scotia, we take the following: The Miacaas of this Province have decreased in number, if we are to rely on the figures in the returns last obtained from the different agencies which make the Indian population of the Province 2,059, being eighty-six less than it was in 1888; but as from two of the agencies no returns have been received since those sent for 1887-88 and from one agency that for 1886-87 was the last which reached the Department, this estimate of the population must necessarily be unreliable.

LOOKS AND LIFTS.

LOOKS AND LIFTS.

The only practical substitute for weights invented. The most durable, the cheapest and best device for all ordinary windows. Balances when in position are entirely out of sight. No rivets, bolts or screws are used in putting it together so that nothing can get out of order or need repairing. No casting or marring of the sash, as the balances are let into the jamb, especially valuable for repairing old buildings as they can be put in at a trifling expense, as easily put in old buildings as new ones. Moment for cleaning or repairing broken glass can be removed from frame by a screw driver.

Sash can be used where it is impossible to use weights or other fixtures. No unsightly cord wearing paint off side of frame. No rattling of sash as pressure against sash prevents it. No rattling of sash or rattling of weights in one position for some time. No heavy coil spring or delicate mechanism to break, wear out or get out of order. Its simplicity of construction and operation is the wonder of all.

Byam's Automatic Sash Locks (self fastening) and Sash Lifts or upper and lower sash are the best and cheapest in the market.
