FROM ANOTHER HANTSPORTIAN IN CALIFORNIA

To Editor Hantsport ACADIAN

Dear reader of my first home town.—The word, Hantsport, name of my town of birth, thrills me with the first delights of ecstasy. My people were not rich enough to become arrogant. But we seemed to eat fairly regular and enjoyed the climate as it changed twice a year. It has often seemed strange to me how one notices the difference in people. As I look back in fond recollection of boyhood days, I can now recall a vast number of houses I had never entered the gates, let alone enjoy the acquaintance of inmates. I often wonder if custom is such now or has not the U. S. and her Dominion neighbor become more like brothers and sisters? Really I think so. If I felt sure of it I'd love to pay my old home town a visit before I'm planted so far away from my dad who passed away in my infancy.

I love to enjoy day and night dreams of my home town, where my angel mother was not ashamed to wash Leander Shaw's (I think it was) laundry, when he clerked for North & Porter. Ma saw that we ate, even if not as regular as aristocracy demands.

There was one, Randall Holmes, who used to share his seat in school with me. A very quiet boy. I remember when he went to work for J. E. Newcombe. Did I get the initials right? First time I've attempted to write them perhaps in half a century.

I left that dear little three street town in the spring of 1876 or it might have been '75. Just think of the changes that have come to us all in those long past years. But Oh! the far-far West is settling up fast. I am one of "Nature's birds" who live way back in God's beautiful mountains—Rural mails to my door and everybody loves everybody else. That little old tradition that used to fuse when one had 30c. more than the other fellow is only seen by reading back number volumes.

PRINCE'S SHEEP PRODUCED WOOL FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR'S SUIT

Wearing a milled worsted business suit, in a pattern specially chosen by H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, Mr. Harry Cockshutt, the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, formally opened the exhibit of Wool, Woollen and Knit Goods Industry at the Canadian National Exhibition. The wool from which it was made was grown on the Alberta ranch of the Prince of Wales and the cloth was woven to his instructions in a Canadian mill in Ontario.

Mrs. Cockshutt was exceedingly smart in a two-piece sports costume of pansy purple, trimmed with grey at the collar, cuffs and pockets, the wool being grown, spun, dyed and knitted in Canada. Over the dress she wore an ensemble coat of grey needle point marvella from a Canadian loom. Grey shoes and stockings, and a purple cloche hat, made up her "all Canadian costume".

ENGINEER WILL DEVELOP POWER BY FUNDY TIDES

Gigantic Scheme to Cost Hundred Million and Give Big Boom to Industry

EASTPORT, Me., Sept. 4.—The tide will work for a wide-voiced engineer, Dexter P. Cooper.

By Cooper's plan the celebrated tides of the Bay of Fundy, which frequently show a difference of 28 feet between high and low levels, will be harnessed to dynamos and made to generate a continuous out-flow of electric power equal to the greatest possibilities of Niagara.

Initial steps upon the great project await the verdict of the voters of Maine, to be expressed in an election on Sept. 14. The issue is whether the tide-power proposal shall be exempted from the present state law prohibiting the sale of outside state hydraulic power generated within the state. If the prohibition is waived, further execution of the plan will proceed swiftly.

To Cost $100,000,000

The project is estimated to cost $100,000,000 and to require the labor of 5000 men for five years. It involves the creation of two great pools by damming off two adjacent arms of the sea. The upper pool, embracing Passamaquoddy Bay, will contain an area of about 150 square miles lying to the north of Eastport, virtually all on the Canadian side of the international boundary. It will be cut off from the sea by a wall almost a mile long.

The lower pool, embracing about 50 square miles, takes in Cobscook Bay to the west of Eastport in United States territory. It will be shut off from the sea by a wall 2400 feet long, and the two pools will be separated from each other by a wall 3600 feet long.

The lock gates of the upper pool will be open only at high tide, and those of the lower pool only at low tide. This means that the water level in one always will be from 16 to 28 feet higher than in the other. Day and night, a great torrent will pour across the wall separating the two pools, through 70 or 80 turbine engines, developing continuous power estimated at 3,268,000,000 kilowatt hours a year.

Enormous Energy

This is four times the primary power developed at the great Muscle Shoals Dam. It never will be less than 500,000 horsepower.

Such great results, naturally, cannot be accomplished without effort. The plan calls for an engineering feat comparable to the greatest of man's undertakings on earth. Some of the channels to be dammed are 180 feet deep, swept four times daily by a slashing tidal current.

The project is the brain child of one man, Cooper. He came here in 1908 to spend his honeymoon and became interested in the immense power of the tide.

Cooper was in complete charge of construction of the great Kookuk Dam on the Mississippi. He was assistant to his brother, Col. Hugh Cooper, when the latter had charge of building the Muscle Shoals Dam.

THE SPEED GUESSING DRIVER IS A MENACE TO HUMAN LIFE

Too many drivers believe in their ability to judge their rate of travel without the aid of the speedometer to register their speed.

A true story is told of a taxicab company manager who called upon a driver to prove that he was going only 20 miles an hour at the time of an accident. The driver took the wheel of a car equipped with a speedometer. A cardboard was placed over the meter. When the driver had reached what he estimated to be 20 miles an hour, the cardboard was removed. He was found to be driving at 36 miles an hour—and he was an experienced operator.

Statistics show that the majority of traffic accidents are caused by too much speed. In many cases, the driver fails to appreciate how fast he is really traveling.

Suited your speed to that of the car ahead or to other traffic is not always wise. Conditions of traffic determine the speed at which it is safe to drive but every motorist knows that above 25 or 30 miles an hour, he must be vigilant and unusually alert to prevent accidents.

Speed is difficult to estimate. Failure to appreciate the rate at which you approach intersections with cross traffic leads to narrowly averted collisions and to unnecessary driving strain.

Know your speed laws and your speed. Its safer than guessing.

KEEP A STEADY GAIT

Life is fraught with many cares—The road is sometimes rough; At many turns unseen snares Await one sure enough. You may be jostled by the throng From early morn till late, But boldly push your way along And keep a steady gait.

Should misfortune wreck your plan, Don't give up the fight—Meet it bravely like a man And keep your goal in sight: Don't charge your failure to hard luck Or to an unkind fate—Push right ahead—just show your pluck And keep a steady gait.
