WON AT LAST.

CHAPTER XXXII.

That was so? It was. The chorus easily affirmed that too. Just so. And might the inspector ask if it was not a fact that the brother had been seen lurking about Whitesford a week or two back, and that the young woman had stolen out secretly to meet him? Could Miss Chavasse oblige him with any information upon that little point? It was at this link of the inspector's chain that Virtue dropped her apron and raised her face, all streaming with tears, to my mother.

"That's all true, madame," she sobbed. "Ben did come back to Whitesford a week or two ago, and I did steal out to meet him. Why should I tell any one? They're always sneering at me now because he doesn't do well, poor fellow, and is fond of his glass at times; but Ben's as honest as any of their brothers, or sweet-hearts either, for the matter of that, let 'em say what they like about him! He didn't like to be seen about here—and not likely he should—and he was afraid of getting me into trouble besides. That's why he wrote to me to meet him when there was nobody about; and so I did, and so I would again. But there was no harm in it; any one might have heard what we had to say to one another, and welcome for me, I'm sure. He was in dreadful trouble, for he was out of work and his wife was ill, and of course I gave him what I could, just like I have always done when he wanted. That was more than a fortnight ago, and he went back to London the next day, where he came from." She put her apron to her eyes and sobbed again before dropping it and turning to me abruptly—"You must have seen him, Mr. Ned, for he saw you. It was the night that the foreign gentleman, Mr. St. George, came here first, and you walked home with him, you remember, sir? It was down by the river Ben saw you. He was waiting by that big group of pollard willows to meet you; and he heard you coming and knew your voice. He told me about it, and said that he didn't think you knew him, although he brushed against you. And you nearly saw him afterward too, for Mrs. Batterbin kept me in to finish a cap for her, and it was later than I meant when I got out. He was hardly out of sight, going toward Market Waxford, when you came round the curve, and I hid behind the clump of bushes by the gate for fear you should see me; and you found me—don't you remember sir? And it was to meet him that I went out yesterday; he'd got a job of work at Bridgely Norton, but he was short of money until they paid him, and want-

THE BLESSING OF MOTHERHOOD

Healthy Mothers and Children Make Happy Homes

Motherhood is woman's highest sphere in life. It is the fruition of her dearest hopes and greatest desires; yet thousands of noble women through some derangement have been denied this blessing. In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong. This is evidenced by the following letters which are genuine and truthful:

London, Ont.—"I wish to thank you for the benefit I received by taking your famous medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before my baby was born I was so ill I could not stand long or walk any distance. I had to lie down nearly all the time. After I took your medicine I felt like a new woman. I could work from morning till night and was happy and well. I certainly think it relieves pain at childbirth and recommend it to every woman who is pregnant. You may use this testimonial if you like. It may help some other woman."—Mrs. FRANK CORRIE, 132 Adelaide St., London, Ont.

Brooklyn, N.Y.—"I was ailing all the time and did not know what the matter was. I wanted a baby but my health would not permit it. I was nervous, my side ached and I was all run down. I heard that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was good and took the medicine. I have now a beautiful baby and your Compound has helped me in every way."—Mrs. J. J. STREWART, 239 Humboldt St., Brooklyn, N.Y.

Exhausted Nerves Sleepless Nights

Continually Grow Worse Until Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Restored Vigor and Strength.

Mrs. Campbell.

What misery to lie awake nights and think of all sorts of things without being able to get the rest and sleep which is necessary to restore the nervous energy wasted in the tasks of the day. This symptom of sleeplessness is one of the surest indications of an exhausted nervous system. You must have sleep or a breakdown is certain. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food feeds the feeble, wasted nerves back to health and strength. In a few days you obtain the natural, restful sleep which helps so materially in restoring vitality to the nerves and strength to the whole body.

Mrs. Sarah Campbell, 108 Alma Street, St. Thomas, Ont., writes: "For months I was so bothered with nervousness that I could not sleep nights. There were other symptoms of exhausted nerves, but none caused so much misery, and I found myself continually getting worse. I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and it was not long before I noticed great improvement in my health. I built up the nervous system wonderfully, strengthened the nerves and enabled me to rest and sleep well."

ed sick to send home, and so I took him some. He'll tell you the same if you'll send for him. And I never touched Miss Natalie's diamonds, or even saw 'em after that night you found me looking at them, and brought Miss Natalie the key like you told me to. I never touched them, Mr. Ned. Indeed I didn't, madame. I wouldn't willingly steal the value of so much as a pin from you, Miss Natalie. You must remember it, sir. And I never took the diamonds." Thus Virtue, appealing passionately to each of us in turn, and finally burying her tear-stained face in her apron again.

Of course I remembered. It all came back to me in a flash—the walk back to the Station Hotel, with St. George, his raptures over the river, the great clump of pollard willows, and the rough shabby figure brushing hastily past us. Of course I recollected. St. George had said that the man knew me too, and I had been put out at his saying so. I eagerly corroborated that part of Virtue's statement, glad that I could do so; and the inspector listened with a contemptuous sort of respect which told me that he did not care a rap for it. Then he spoke aside to my mother.

"I am sorry to say it, madame, but I'm afraid there's no mistake about this."

"Impossible!" said madame, decidedly. "You are mistaken, Mr. Blake. I have always found Virtue Dent both honest and truthful. I am confident that the robbery has not been committed by any one in my household."

But here the inspector differed point-blank, and gave his reasons for doing so. If one thing about the whole affair was certain, it was that the robbery had not taken place from outside. His examination of the premises had told him that beyond doubt the thief, whoever he or she might be, was inside Chavasse; and falling Virtue Dent, to whom could suspicion point? The butler and housekeeper, servants of more than five-and-twenty years' standing, both bearing spotless characters, were not likely to take the jewels, and none of the other maids had access to the young lady's rooms at all times and seasons, and certainly would not have much chance of purloining the key of the cabinet. Nor was it easy to implicate any of the men-servants, whose presence in that part of the house was almost certain to have been detected. Very well. Who else was there to suspect? Not the foreigner, who was so devoted to her mistress and knew not a single person in England—and here the inspector cast a dubious glance at Valla, still standing in the background with arms folded and eyes downcast—and not the French lady who was—ah, yes, to be sure!—Miss Orme's governess. Most respectable—quite impossible to suspect her, of course. Just so—the inspector's own opinion. An expression of opinion, by the way, which mademoiselle acknowledged with so venomous a glance and so many swift nods and mutterings that, despite the gravity of the situation, I nearly laughed outright. Well, then, the inspector would put it to madame, what was to be done next?

What I should have done I knew pretty well, for notwithstanding the evidence against her, I did not believe that Virtue, poor girl, was guilty. But that my mother was impressed with the man's confounded logic was plain enough, and she hesitated doubtfully. She and the inspector had drawn away to the window, Nat, who had not spoken a sentence so far, following me.

"I still believe that you are mistaken, Mr. Blake," madame said; "I can not think that Virtue Dent is guilty. It is most repugnant to me to even suspect the girl."

"I'm sure she never did it," I struck in impulsively. "Just so, sir," returned the inspector, blandly. "But may I ask into what channel you would turn suspicion, falling her?"

"Why, somebody from outside," I was beginning, when he cut me short, shaking his head at me.

"Don't you make any mistake about that, Mr. Chavasse, sir. It isn't anybody from outside that has done this." He turned to madame, apparently not considering it worth his while to waste any more time with me. "I don't think, madame, as I said a while ago, that there can be any mistake about this. I'm sorry, of course, but so it is. I don't really remember a stronger case of presumptive evidence, I assure you. Still I wouldn't, if it can be avoided, recommend your being too hard with the girl."

"What do you mean?" madame asked.

"Why," returned the inspector, confidentially, "I mean that I'd try the policy of a little coaxing at first. Persuade her to make a clean breast of it, so as to give us a chance of recovering the jewels. I presume that it is not your wish, nor the young lady's, to be too hard on her?"

"Certainly not," said my mother, hastily.

"Just so," responded the inspector, complacently—"and very kind, madame, I am sure. Then in those circumstances that is what I should recommend. Otherwise I should of course say, give her in charge at once."

"That shall not be done!" Natalie said the words so suddenly and sharply, moving forward a step, that her voice startled me, and even Virtue stopped her sobbing and mademoiselle her ejaculatory mutterings to look at her. In fact, the interruption had been so entirely unexpected that for some moments no one said anything, not even Blake himself.

"It shall not be done!" she repeated, rapidly. "I say that it shall not!"

"My dear," my mother remonstrated.

A MAN WHO KNOWS

Says GIN PILLS Are Good For Pain In The Back

WHEN your grocer tells you he uses a certain tea in his own home, you feel pretty sure it's good tea. And when a prominent druggist takes GIN PILLS for his own back-ache, you can feel quite sure there is nothing else quite so good.

Winipeg, May 19th, 1912. "In the autumn of 1911, I suffered with a continual pain in the back. As a druggist, I tried various remedies without any apparent results. Having used GIN PILLS for a number of years, I thought there must be good in them, otherwise the sales would not increase so fast. I gave them a fair trial and the result I find to be good!"

GEO. E. ROGERS. GIN PILLS have well earned the confidence which druggists, as well as the public, have in them. For years they have been relieving the pain of Rheumatism, Lumbago and Kidney Troubles generally, and charging tortured cripples into strong, supple men and women.

Why should you go on suffering when there is a remedy so easily obtained and so reliable? GIN PILLS cost but 50c a box for $2.50. Money back if they do not help you. Sample free if you write National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto. 150

HE'S GLAD HE READ THAT ADVERTISEMENT

Telling how Douglas' Egyptian Liniment Cures Chillsains.

Mr. Wm. Boulter, of West Caledonia, N.S., tells how he learned from an advertisement the way to cure chillsains:

"For some winters past I suffered from chillsains, but last winter they were so bad I was unable to wear my boots."

After seeing the letter from Mr. McParlane, that Douglas' Egyptian Liniment had cured him of chillsains, I decided to try a bottle of it. I wrote at once for sample bottle which I received by return mail and before I had used half of the sample I found relief, and was soon able to put on my shoes. I have great faith in Egyptian Liniment and honestly believe it will cure my feet."

If you or any of your friends suffer from chillsains, see to it that this advertisement brings about the same happy result as did the one-Mr. Boulter read."

Douglas' Egyptian Liniment can be had at any dealer's for 25c. Free sample on request. Douglas & Co., Napusca, Ont.

ted, "you do not know what you say. I am as sorry about it as you are; but I am afraid—"

"I do know what I am saying, and I have a right to say it!" cried Nat, impulsively, cutting her short, and clinging with one hand to my arm, as she trembled violently with the vehemence of her speech. "I say that Virtue Dent shall never be arrested for this robbery. She is innocent!"

"Oh, thank you, thank you, miss!" cried Virtue, raising her tear-wet face to say it, and then burying it in her apron again in a fresh outbreak.

Mademoiselle, standing at a little distance with white face and astonished eyes, was a picture of amazement, as indeed was madame too. The inspector stared, then coughed.

"Just so, miss," he observed. "If you say the young woman is innocent, you of course have some reason for saying it. Might I ask how you know it?"

"I don't know it," Nat answered, with a frown; "but I am sure of it."

The inspector was a polite man, and he did not forget either his manners or his official dignity sufficiently to laugh, but there was a suspicious quiver about his lips as he spoke again.

"Then may I ask, miss, what reason—"

Nat cut him short too; she interrupted him as sharply and unceremoniously as she had interrupted my mother.

IS YOUR COUGH GOING FROM BAD TO WORSE.

If you catch a cold (which very often develops into a cough) every one can tell you how to cure it! If one tried half the things his friends recommended he would be a physical wreck!

Fortunately it isn't necessary to experiment with ginger tea and such things, get a bottle of Stafford's Phorlone Cough and Cold Cure, take according to directions and you will be relieved in a few hours.

Phorlone is not like most things put up for this purpose. There isn't a particle of Quinine in it. It relieves the inflamed, congested condition of the mucous membranes of the nose and throat, and soon rids the system of the poison that causes colds.

Don't wait until you get that horrible, hacking cough which you are not able to get rid of. No treatment having been found successful up to the present time, Try Phorlone Cough Cure at once.

A Teacher's Complaint.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Much is being and has been said re retaining experienced teachers in the profession, but, it seems to go off in wind. A few days ago I read an article from the able pen of R. R. Wood, Head Master of Bishop Field College, and the principal thing mentioned in his letter, as in others, is the increasing of teachers' salaries. No doubt this is a thing to be desired, but there are several other things besides this that should be looked after and which are about as important. What about the difficulties and inconveniences a teacher has to contend with while trying to do his best although at times apparently very meagre. How much could be done by the local school Board nd Superintendent to remove some of his obstacles? And yet what do they do? If the teacher doesn't please every Tom, Dick and Harry of the place, the first thing he knows is he gets a note from the Board demanding his resignation without even a chance to defend himself against the calumniation. And more often than not the demand comes from the Chairman alone, without even a meeting of the Board, and all because he is not strong kneed enough to stand up for justice, but is so prone to a love of popularity, that even his principles are set aside to gain the desired end. This is not by any means an exaggeration, but is, as I have experienced in my six years of teaching. And, moreover, if the Superintendent is appealed to for his support in any matter his answer is "If you are not satisfied with your conditions, the only thing to do is to seek a situation in which things will be more congenial." Very encouraging to the teacher to retain his profession! There are more things than salary that would make a teacher more comfortable in his surroundings.

Perhaps the following extract taken from the 'Canadian Teacher' with a few alterations would not be amiss:

"The one thing that School Boards can do that would be most effective in making the school better, after employing a good teacher, and putting the school in order, is to hold regular meetings and transact all business in open Board. This is the only way business can be done legally. That done in any other way is without the sanction of law and would be declared void if tested in the courts. One member has equal rights and powers with other members. It takes all to constitute the Board. While it is right for the majority to rule, yet the other has a right to be present and be heard. The Board should know how the school is progressing by consulting with the teacher. Too often they depend on hearsay, and that from children whose judgment would not be regarded as the height of folly. To employ one to care for the highest interest of children of the district and then depend entirely on what children say as to how well their interests are cared for is worse than folly."

"The teacher has a most difficult task and needs the advice and support of the Board. This he can get only at a meeting of the Board. Misunderstandings will arise. The teacher sincerely tries to do what is best. The parents want the best for their children and look to the teacher for it. The children themselves would rather have a good school than a poor one. All should and would co-operate did not misunderstandings arise. The Board often hears of dissatisfaction before the teacher does. At a meeting of the Board and teacher the matter could be set right. If parents have serious complaints they should be asked to attend the meeting and state their case. In most instances all could be explained and right relations established. No member as an individual should give the teacher orders as to what to do. Such orders should be given by direction of the Board."

Hoping I have not trespassed too far on your valuable space.

I remain, Yours truly,

A TEACHER.

Tyrant Makers

By RUTH CAMERON.

Whoever paves the way for tyranny thereby helps to make a tyrant, and is, therefore, partially responsible for creation's tyranny.

The man who fails to take an intelligent interest in government, and to do what he can to make a good government, paves the way for bad government, and is partially responsible for the evils which result.

The parent who is ever ready to give in to the whims, and pamper the tastes, and how to the moods, of the son or daughter of the family thereby helps to make the child the self-centered, exacting tyrant which is likely to become, and is partially responsible for the tyranny under which the home suffers, and the wrong perspective from which the child will ultimately suffer.

"I declare, I don't know what to do with Arleen," writes one of my correspondents, in regard to her sixteen-year-old daughter; "She grows more thoughtless and self-centered and exacting every day. It really seems as if the harder I try to please her, the more exacting and domineering and dissatisfied she gets." Undoubtedly, my friend. Quite without knowing it, you have put your finger right on the cause of all your trouble. The harder you try to please your little daughter, the more she will expect of you that you should do nothing on earth but try to please her. The more abjectly you enslave yourself to her, the more domineering she will command her.

subject slave. Nor is she so very much to blame. It is hardly in human nature to refuse power when power is thrust into one's hands or not to be exacting when some one is ready and eager to fulfill those exacting.

It is told of an overworked farmer's wife, with a family consisting of her husband and five sons, that when she collapsed in the kitchen one hot day, and the village nurse was hastily called in, the latter found six little bean-pots sizzling away in the oven. "For the land's sake!" she inquired.

"What's all these bean-pots for?" "Oh!" gasped the farmer's wife, "you see, father won't have any molasses in his beans, and John likes 'em full of molasses; Frank vows he can't eat 'em with molasses, but has to have a little onion; Gladon wants lots of pork, and Tom won't eat pork, and little Alec—" but the nurse, without waiting to hear what little Alec liked, slammed the door and retired to the kitchen. There, it is stated, she at once smashed those six bean-pots, substituted a mammoth pot which she filled with beans and molasses and pork and onions, "allowing" to herself that that family would cut their beans that way or not at all. Needless to say they ate them.

Doubtless these six sons were good-hearted folk and very fond of the little wife and mother. But she had so long paved the way of tyranny that they could hardly help being tyrants.

There is an infinite number of such mothers in the world, and few such fathers. They mean so well, but they do so much harm, not only to themselves, but also to those for whom all their sacrifices are made!

Are you one of these tyrant makers?

MAN AND THE SOIL.

Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo, author of the Common Sense Medical Adviser, says "why does not the farmer treat his own body as he treats the land he cultivates. He puts back in phosphate what he takes out in crops, or the land would grow poor. The farmer should put back into his body the vital elements exhausted by labor, or by ill-health induced by some chronic disease." Further, he says, "the great value of my Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is in its vitalizing power. It gives strength to the stomach and purity to the blood. It is like the phosphates which supply nature with the substances that build up the crops. The far-reaching action of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is due to its effect on the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases that begin in the stomach are cured through the stomach. A bilious spell is simply the result of an effort made by the liver to catch up when over-worked and exhausted. I have found the 'Discovery' to be unsurpassed as a liver regulator and rich blood-maker."

Miss Loretta Kinsley of Perth, Kansas, says: "I will here add my testimony of the effectiveness of your remedy upon myself. I was troubled with indigestion for two years or more. Doctored with three different doctors besides taking numerous kinds of so-called 'stomach cures' but received no permanent relief. I was run down, could not sleep at night with the pain in my chest, caused by gas on the stomach. Was weak, could eat scarcely anything although I was hungry nearly all the time. About one year and a half ago I began taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and after having taken several bottles am nearly cured of stomach trouble. Can now eat without distress and have gained fifteen pounds in weight. I thank you for your remedy and wish you all success in your good work."

"Chopper" Replies to "Woodman."

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I notice in your paper of January 11th, an article written by some one under the name of "Woodman." Now I fully agree with what "Woodman" says. No doubt the loggers' position has changed for the better, but there are many more things that can and will have to be done if the A.N.D. Co. wish to get men to come in the woods for the winter months. The first thing I wish to speak of is the way that some of the camps are built. It is said that these camps are built on contract and the contractor makes quite a sum on this work. The camps and even the horse sheds are not fit for man or beast to live in. What would "Woodman" think of camp or camps built in such a way that when the water shooting off the roof would come in the camp and on the men's bunks? Again, does "Woodman" know of any camp that had to be shored up after it was built to keep it from tumbling down, until the frost came to hold the bottom in position? If the contractor, when building these camps did not have a plumb, surely the average Newfoundland's eye is straight enough to put the stud upright, so that the water would run down outside instead of coming in the camp and freezing into ice. I wonder has the Company's representative gone around and looked after the camps that were built on contract, after they were finished? To my mind, Mr. Editor, the camps should not be built on contract at all; if the company have no men, they can trust the loggers to build these camps without unnecessary or wasteful expenditure. Then there is the doctor's box. It is said that every camp has a doctor's box. Does "Woodman" know anything about it? If not I could enlighten him. I could tell him of a camp that was three months without a drop of medicine of any kind, although I was told, that the foreman had asked for it several times, and when he did get it, what did it contain? It would be amusing, Mr. Editor, if the public knew. Then there is the demoralizing influences that are carried on in the camps, such as drinking, swearing, gambling and Sabbath-breaking. Hark! is someone

"Syrup of Figs" for Bilious Stomach, Gas, Headache or Waste-Clogged Bowels.

Foul breath, coated tongue, dull, throbbing headache, stomach swollen with gas, indigestion, biliousness and a sallow complexion, mean that your thirty feet of bowels are clogged with waste matter; that these drainage organs of the body are obstructed; liver stagnant and stomach full of poisonous gases, sour bile and undigested, fermenting food not properly carried off.

Most of our ills are caused by constipated bowels. We all need a laxative sometimes; nobody can doubt that. The only question is, which one is the best? and that isn't a question any more. Syrup of Figs, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and licorice, must act in a harmless, gentle and natural way. Syrup of Figs can be constantly used without injury. Its action is the action of fruit—of eating coarse food—of taking exercise. It is a true and effective liver and bowel cleanser and regulator.

Most folks dread physic—they shrink from the taste and after effects. Syrup of Figs is delicious, and, besides, you don't realize you have taken anything until morning, when all the clogged up waste of the system is gently but thoroughly moved on and out of the bowels without gripping or weakness.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna." This is the old reliable and only genuine. Refuse, with contempt, any other Fig Syrup recommended as good. They are imitations meant to deceive you. Read the label carefully and look for the name California Fig Syrup Company.

saying, what odds, what we do in here in the lumber woods, nobody cares anything about our souls here; we may have friends home and churches but where are the men who will have the hardships of the logging camp and help me to live right? The camps have been going for four months and I have heard of only one man visiting them; that man was a representative of the Church of England. Where are the other men of the different denominations? Surely a visit from them would help cheer the lonely condition of the men. "Woodman" in his letter speaks of the old days and of the sheds men had to live in. Yes, there is truth in his statement; but he omitted to say, there is double the amount of wickedness and intemperance in these days as then. One has to go back only as far as the burning of that car in December, and see the amount of liquor that went up in smoke, that was on the way to the lumber camps. I would like to tell "Woodman" that I do not believe the condition of the camps will improve much until the foreman of each camp ceases to act and uphold the drinking, swearing and gambling of the present time. One more matter, I will point out to "Woodman," and then I am finished for this time. This is the mall arrangement after the "Lady Mary" ceases to run; the men have to get their meals as best they can. I do not know if the Government have been asked to furnish a courier for this Lake. If not, then they should, and if they did send a man as courier, say from Millertown Junction to the end of the Lake, or two men, if one cannot do the work, then the men next fall will have a chance to act for themselves. The courier should not be under the control of the Company, but for the benefit of the men. We ought not, in these days of improvements, to have to wait a month and six weeks before we hear from our families, because we are a few miles in the woods. How is it that friend Coaker or his Union has not thought of us in here? This is the place for him to come with some of his improvements. Sir Robert Bond and his party did much for the betterment of this lonely corner of our island home, when they gave the Harnsworth people terms and conditions that helped them come with money to build pulp mills and give labor.

Thanking you for space.

I remain,

Yours truly,

CHOPPER.

A Wonderful Meeting.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—A wonderful meeting took place last night in the Orange Hall. I do not think there was ever such an audience assembled in that hall before; it was packed to its utmost capacity, and many could not gain admission. Hours before the doors were opened it was nothing but a moving mass in that vicinity. And what was the cause of all this wonderful commotion and bustle? Why, the flag was flying all day and it got circulated round that "Coaker" was going to address the public. That's all! He did address the public, and for three hours had the closest attention of his hearers. At this period he found that he had only said half of what he intended to say, and as it was getting late the audience asked him to come some other time in the near future and finish his address, which he promised to do. Now, Mr. Editor, his one and only topic was the P.P.T.U., what it has done and what it is going to do, and using his own words, he had so much to say about it, that he had no time to do "Toryism or Liberalism," if he cared to do so, which was far from his intention. Mr. Editor, I have heard much lately of W. F. Coaker, the man from the backwoods, and I was very glad to have the privilege of hearing him, and I say, "Go ahead Coaker, your intentions are good, you have the backbone at your back. Success will be yours in the end."

SATURDAY, March 1, 1913.

Notes and Comments.

In the issue of the Herald, under date Jan. 21, the present Government devoted a good deal of space to what they allege has been accomplished by them in the matter of agriculture. It is interesting to compare what Sir Edward Morris is doing with what Sir Robert Bond intended, and actually began.

Sir Robert Bond believed that if agriculture was to prosper in this country it was necessary to afford scientific advice to those engaging in it.

Canada's agricultural greatness is due, in a large measure, to the scientific treatment of soils, stock, seeds, &c., and this scientific knowledge has been provided through the agency of her model farms.

Knowing this, Sir Robert Bond established a model farm at St. John's, under the management of a graduate of the Agricultural College at Guelph.

This young man came to us with both practical and scientific knowledge and competent to give expert advice on the capabilities of soils, seeds, fertilizers, stock, &c.

It was further a part of Sir Robert's policy to provide for desirable students to take courses in both practical and scientific farming. Two students per year from each district were to be accommodated, so that in a short time under that scheme we should have had a large number of young men intelligently devoting their energies to this important industry.

When Sir Robert Bond introduced the measure Sir Edward Morris, although in opposition, warmly supported it, but after the defeat of the Liberal Party in 1909 the expert was practically told his services were not required, and he left the country.

The People's Party abandoned the agricultural policy of their predecessors and placed a young local farmer with little practical and no scientific knowledge in charge of the farm.

COCOA AS IT SHOULD BE Grateful—EPPS'S Breakfast Comforting—EPPS'S Supper
Warmth, strength, nerve, energy, are the results of "Epps's," the perfection of cocoa, in which the sustaining and warmth-producing constituent called cocoa butter is retained in maximum quantity.

Three "lecturers" in agriculture were later appointed from the members of the House of Assembly, voted about $1,800 per year each and commissioned to go round the country and instruct our people how to raise cabbage. Not one of the three so-called lecturers, however, had any knowledge of the subject they were paid to lecture on.

Could anything be more ridiculous than sending three men, absolutely ignorant of the elements of agriculture, to instruct the farmers and gardeners in their work? Yet this was the way the People's Party decided to disseminate agricultural knowledge.

The present Government has spent at least $40,000 per year for the last four years, or $160,000 of the people's money on this so-called agricultural policy. This truly is a large sum, and people are asking where are the returns for this expenditure.

The consumer of agricultural produce finds that the cost to him has not been cheapened but that he is taxed more highly than ever to provide jobs for the Morris supporters in the House, while the actual cost of the articles has been increased, notwithstanding Sir Edward Morris's pre-election statements to the contrary.

Ninety agricultural societies have been formed in as many localities to serve as distributing centres, but while the members of these societies have been trying to do the best possible under the circumstances, they sadly realize the need of skilled advice; but it is not the policy of the present Government to vouchsafe such to them.

It is now rumoured in the city that some of these societies have decided to use the Government's agricultural grants to purchase provisions and sell the same to its members below the current price, and so put the Government in competition with the business men in these localities.

Though big money has been spent, ostensibly to promote agriculture, there are no returns, the earth has not given her increase, and that not because the country is incapable of giving good returns in this regard, but because of the foolish policy pursued by the so-called "People's Party."

George St. Anniversary Missionary Sunday

To-morrow will be observed as Missionary Anniversary Sunday at George St. Church. In the morning the Pastor will preach, taking as his subject, "Decisive Moments in the Life of David Livingstone." During this month the centenary of Livingstone's birth will be observed, when religious and scientific thought will be focussed upon the work of that great missionary and explorer. Rev. Dr. Emblett, of China, will be the speaker at the evening service. The message will be one of very great interest, and the congregation will, doubtless, take the fullest advantage of their privilege. The choir will render special music at both services. Two anthems will be given, "Make a Joyful Noise" and "The Radiant Morn." Miss Elsie Herder will sing at the evening service. Collections morning and evening in aid of the General Missionary Society.

British Scout Will act as Escort in Yaqui Country.—Major Fred Burnham, the Celebrated South African Veteran, is to go into Unconquered Mexico With Capitalist to Quell by Peaceful Arts the Yaqui Indians.—Burnham Has Had a Marvellous Military Career.

Major Fred Burnham, the British scout, whose career is one of the most thrilling stories in the history of South Africa, is to undertake a remarkable task. He is to escort John Hays Hammond into the country of the Yaqui Indians in Mexico for the purpose of pacifying this unruly people in the interests of the Mexican Government.

The Yaquis for more than thirty years have been in a state of revolt against the authorities and years ago Hammond succeeded in winning the love and admiration of these tribesmen. Their sense of honor, he maintains, is as highly developed as that of the most civilized nationalities. Mr. Hammond owns 600,000 acres of land along the Yaqui river and this he is anxious to develop.

His plan is to go with Major Burnham and an interpreter into the mountains, have the entire tribe, with its 1,500 fighting men, assembled, and address them. With his single white companion, standing by, Mr. Hammond will face the Indian throng and outline his proposition. This is that the Indians, assured of peace by the Mexican Government, undertake the development of his vast tract of land. Mr. Hammond says that he is willing to give employment to every member of the tribe who is willing to work.

The mountainous region of Sonora has been the seat of trouble for Mexico, even while peace reigned in other sections of that republic. Surrounded by impregnable barriers the Yaquis, trained fighters, have sallied forth at frequent intervals to devastate the valley regions lying beneath them. Efforts to drive them out of their strongholds prove vain, as the Indians keep sentinels posted at the passes to sound alarm at invasion and a mere handful of sharpshooters, posted on the ledges, can pick off a formidable attacking force. By all odds the most picturesque man of the pair is Major Burnham. He served as a scout in the first Matabele war, receiving for his services a gold medal from the British Government and a share in a tract of land, consisting of 300 square miles in Rhodesia, distributed between himself and two companions. Later he was commissioned to hunt down and kill Umulimo, the god of the Matabeles. He climbed a mountain, attacked the savage in his cave and killed him in a single-handed fight.

Major Burnham was commissioned chief of scouts in the Boer war. Having been wounded he was invalided to London. Here he was commanded to dine with Queen Victoria and slept in Osborne Castle.

No Thanks to Them!

One would imagine in reading yesterday's Herald that something recent and of great value to them had been done by Morris and his Petty Party for the fishermen of Petty Harbour in the formulating of an injunction to prevent mill owners or others from cutting about Big Pond, reserving the limit for the fishermen. McGrath is again (as you yesterday remarked) airing his ignorance and earning his wages in writing trash of Morris and his moribund Government. This place would not have been reserved for the fishermen had not the people of Petty Harbour memorialized the Government on 12 last fall, so that Morris could not help himself, and of course had to grant their request. Now why did he not do the same with the LeManche limits and restrain the Reid Nfd. Co. from cutting these out? There is no thanks to Morris or his party for doing what has been done at Big Pond, they had to do it and that's all there is to it. Petty's Ribbing won't alter the fact that this was done last fall, and that it would have been utterly neglected but for the peremptory representations of the people of Petty Harbour which Morris dare not ignore.—Com.

There were present at the City Council's meeting last evening Councilors Martin, Ryan, Coaker, Mullaly and Myrick. Mayor Ellis presiding.

When the pay rolls were being read some extra charges made in the expenses of the Sanitary Stables were challenged and the Supervisor was asked to explain.

It was shown that night soil was being deposited in the West End and also in the East End and the Supervisor was instructed to take immediate action.

The plans revised for the new additions to the Post Office were approved.

Miss Sarah Pope again asked permission to repair houses on George Street. Engineer and Agent of the property will consult with the Council on the matter.

Plans submitted by Mr. Geo. Snow for steps to his residence, Springdale Street, were approved subject to ratification of Engineer.

Winsor Lake caretaker reported trespassers there and that wood was being cut on the city's property. The Solicitor will bring the matter under the notice of the Magistrate.

With the passing of the Engineer's report and routine work the meeting adjourned.

New Rink Projected

A new rink is projected by hockey enthusiasts and sports generally and the question is now under the consideration of the League. The belief is that if another rink was erected more than one hockey team could be brought here from Canada, and the proposition is thought would be a paying one; also races could be held in it.

Hair Stops Falling, Dandruff Disappears 25c. "Danderine."

SAVE YOUR HAIR! BEAUTIFY IT! INVIGORATE YOUR SCALP. DANDERINE GROWS HAIR AND WE CAN PROVE IT!

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or a loose or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you will actually see new hair, fine and downy, and first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine now will immediately double the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove to yourself to-night—now—that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

The Telegram Scores.

The loss of a lady's silver watch was advertised in last evening's Telegram. Scarcely was the paper on the street when the "ticker" picked up by a boy named Alex. Hennebury was restored to the owner. If it's the results you want you must advertise in the "People's Paper!"

Westwood Arrives

The S. S. Westwood, Capt. Mothersdale, arrived at Alicante on Monday last after a very good run. She left here on Saturday, February 28th, and called at Gibraltar, her ultimate destination is Naples. She took the large cargo ever taken from port, 32,000 cwt. codfish.

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS

Cannot be cured with ordinary soothing syrups. The disease must be attacked at the root to eradicate the irritation of the lungs, heal the wounds and strengthen the respiratory organs. The composition of MATHIEU'S SYRUP of Tar and Cod Liver Oil and other Medicinal Extracts marks amongst all other remedies as the true specific for the disease of the throat, the bronchial tubes and the lungs. Here are a few conclusive proofs:

PORT GREVILLE, C.B., Dec. 27, '09 Blacking & Mercantile Co.'s, Ltd. Dear Sirs—Please ship by next express, if possible, 3 doz. Mathieu's Syrup. It is the best Cough Mixture on the market. Yours truly, W. STEERING.

CHURCH POINT, July 31, '08. Blacking & Mercantile Co.'s, Ltd., Amherst, N.S. Dear Sirs—Nearly one year ago I had my first order of "Mathieu's Syrup" from you. It was not known in this country, and I gave samples to several families whom I knew would use it. After a few weeks I began to have a call for it, and trade has increased wonderfully since. I have not the least doubt but that it will soon be the best selling remedy for coughs, colds, etc., on the market. In my store here sales are good and one people ask for it. Several stores in this county now keep it in stock and report sales increasing. I have bought from you since August 16th, 1907, 4 Gross and have only three dozen on hand at this date, and which I am holding for retail trade in my store. Yours truly, LOUIS A. McLANSON.

Poor Advertising

I hired Jim Wiggleshaw to make a fine mud fence for me. Some people say that Jim's a fake, and with them I agree. He said he'd build as fine a fence as ever raised the d.d., and I possessed so little sense, I let him go ahead. And now that fence is a disgrace, an eyesore to the town; it's crooked, sagging out of place, and almost falling down. It cannot stand the wind and flood, it crumbles in the gale; Jim made it of the cheapest mud that he could find on sale. And odd, with language full and free, that Jim crew fence I've cursed; but much as it's annoying me, it's hurting Jim the worst. For every passer-by will pause and say: "This beats my time! Such work as old Jim Wiggleshaw's—nothing but a crime!" Old Jim's complaining more or less the long and sad year through; he's always loaded with distress, he can't get work to do. He finds it hard to get the scads, while others munny make, he's left around so many ads proclaiming him a fake, and every job you leave half done will bring you grief and tears; it is an ad and it will run displayed for years and years.

LONDON, Feb. 28. A comprehensive scheme dealing with the entire subject of the aerial fleet and its necessary appendages, has been laid before the Government by Claude Graham White. The scheme includes the establishment of mercantile air-lines subsidized by Government, air-ship stations at every large city around the coast; and schools for air-pilots all over the United Kingdom. It is understood that a powerful group of financiers is ready to finance any scheme, having given support for the building of airships in various parts of England. Graham White, in an interview, said: "It is my aim to found a mercantile air fleet on the same basis as the Cunard Line. We are ready to secure the best pilots and mechanics from all parts of the Empire, and to put a mercantile air fleet on a paying basis."

BRUSSELS, Feb. 28. Apprehensions of a possible war between the great European Powers, appear to be fading among the members of the Belgian Cabinet, and to be shared by the leaders of the Opposition parties, who have been taken into the confidence of the Ministry, with the object of making pending increases in the Belgian Army, non-partisan in character. M. Hymans, the Liberal leader, declared that in the event of war, Belgium would become the battle ground of Europe, and the country must do its utmost to prepare for its defence.

The Firemen's Trouble.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—I have been expecting some defence on the part of the Messrs. Bowring by way of justification for hiring foreign stokers to take the place of those whose fortune was laid in Florida at the coming seafishery. Their silence is an admission that they have no any defence, and I have, it is of such a weak character that it would only help the cause of the native laborer. It may be imagined by the superficial observer or thinker that the contracting for outside of and bringing into this country, foreign workmen when the native can be had to perform the work, is but a trifling matter; and that the community has no interest in it, but if he will delve a little deeper, he will find it is a very serious one. In order to prevent unjust or unfair competition in the labor market and to keep wages, if possible, up to the living standard, there is what is known in some countries as the anti-

CHAPTER XIX.—THE STORY OF DR. WALSH.

But such is the course of true love. It is said that it has never yet run smooth, and although it proved rough for the doctor and cost him a great deal, he gained his prize and took the consequences. One of the principal places at which the British squadron anchored in 1760 or thereabout was the City of New York, which was then under the jurisdiction of a Provincial Governor who was appointed in much the same manner as our own Governors are appointed at present. New York was probably the port that offered most attractions at that date; and though but a town, it was the centre of fashion and State life; but it was as much behind New York of the present as would be a Labrador village to St. John's. No steamships, no railways, no electric or gas lights, and everything primitive and slow; even the comforts of the most fashionable circles of society were very different to what the present day offers.

It was under conditions such as these that the frigate anchored in New York Harbour, where several receptions and entertainments were given in honour of the officers, who in return gave the same on board their ship. Up to that time all had gone well with our good doctor. He was quite contented with his work, and seemed not to have any ambitions beyond his duties. But during those receptions he met, and was introduced to some of the leading ladies of the place, all of whom stood high in the social rank, and who no doubt presented many attractions. Among the number there was one who completely won the heart of the young doctor, and who awakened within him the mysterious passion of love, and for whom he sacrificed his all.

It was evidently a case of two hearts beating as one, for each was of the same mind, and each was in love with the other. Such things often happen in great gatherings, and when they do occur the attractions of the ball-room or of the party become but secondary, and above its pleasure and music, its enjoyment and entertainment, there is one thought prominent, and that is the object of the affections. Dr. Walsh had travelled in lands far and near, and had seen many sights and cities, and been in some of the best company that society offered; and had taken these things in the ordinary way, and enjoyed them in a proper manner. The young lady had also moved in the best society, and was quite accustomed to the attention and acquaintance of gentlemen, who in the social class stood very high; and like the doctor these brilliant assemblages were taken as part of society life, and in their way passed off and were forgotten like all other events. But not so with this reception, for there both had met their fate, and in looking into each other's eyes discovered the mystery of love. As someone has put it: "They had been born the great wide world apart and travelled unto lands remote; then meeting, found in such their own reward, and learned the meaning of that thing which men call Destiny."

An so the ball passed off, and the guests departed, and things assumed their regular course; but in the city there was another, whose thoughts were one, and who had arranged to meet again and settle this great question. Of course the time was short as the ships had to be on the move, and in a week or two would have been gone to other stations, and perhaps would not get back to New York for the season. During his stay the doctor made the best of his opportunities, and knowing that it was impossible to marry without leave, and that there was no time to celebrate the wedding in a proper manner, and fearing that he would lose his prize, he decided to run the risk of a private marriage. This of course was against the law to a man in his position, and it implied a great risk to all parties concerned; but the arrangements were mutual, and the marriage was solemnized in the city. It was known to the bride's friends, but not to the ship, because while the risk of marrying without leave was great, the further risk of taking his bride on board with him without leave or knowledge of the Captain, was still greater, and it was in this aspect that the romance of the story really occurred.

The Doctor was a gentleman who stood high on board his ship. He was held in esteem by the men and the officers, being particularly liked by the Captain; and it was no doubt owing to the Captain's leniency that the Doctor's neck was saved and that he ever escaped to land. Such a breach at the time meant court martial and exile, even at the present time it would incur severe censure and punishment. But it was a case of love. Love pure and deep. The love which many waters cannot drown, and for which men and women have faced a hostile world and endured untold suffering. The Doctor's quarters on board the frigate were of course very comfortable, and he had the best of attention, as all men of his position would have, and it was quite possible for him to secrete his bride and have her on board without the knowledge of the crew in general, or of the Captain, and that is what he did. The bride must have truly been a heroine, and must have certainly possessed great courage, for it meant a great deal to leave her fashionable home with all its comforts, and almost imprison herself on board a ship of war, with the possibility of being discovered and punished at almost any minute.

A SLENDID MODEL.—There is an exhibition at the Low Season's Institute, a splendid model of a full rigged vessel. Those who visit the institution and have seen the head like craft comment favorably and say it's a credit to the designer. It is the work of Mr. Bob Sexton, who took two winters to complete the work, and whose ability as a craftsman has already been demonstrated on numerous occasions.

To-Day's News.

Special to The Evening Telegram.

OTTAWA, To-day.—The ever increasing volume of Customs returns for the past eleven months of the present fiscal year, shows an increase of $25,769,000, or in other words an increase for eleven months of this fiscal year is greater than the entire Customs revenue for the fiscal years 1888-1889, which was $25,739,000.

LONDON, To-day.—Great reticence is being observed concerning the Turkish new move for securing peace with the Balkan allies. According to the Telegraph there is reason to believe that Turkey is about to trust her cause to the Powers, without stipulating any conditions. Assuming this to be the case the Telegraph says: "Doubts are expressed whether the allies will not insist upon Turkey making direct overtures to them, or whether they will consent to any terms while Adrianople and Scutari are still holding out. No further news has been received here as to the military situation at the front."

HALIFAX, Feb. 28.—The publication to-day of a statement of the British Government re the proposed Arbitration Canal question, in a note to the Senate Department with comments on the British Press on the despatches to London newspapers, purporting to represent President elect Wilson as against free trade with finality on the question. Wilson said he did not feel it would be proper for him to discuss the matter of Canal tolls until after he became President and had a chance to discuss it with members of the Senate. The possibility that the Senate might take some action which would remove the grounds for British protest and thus relieve the new administration from embarrassment is cited in some quarters as the chief reason for reticence. On the other hand it is said by those who know in general what are Wilson's ideas in foreign politics, that if the question were put up to him he would either indicate opposition to the proposed method of granting free tolls to American ships or favor submission of the question to the Court of Arbitration.

GENEVA, Switzerland, To-day.—The last rail in the Loetschberg railroad, joining Berne with Brig, laid. The new road opens an international high-way to the North and South Europe by way of Loetschberg and the Simplon tunnels across central Alps. Express train schedules will be started over the new line next week. The successful completion of the work, which was attended by tremendous difficulties, is considered a great triumph for French engineering. The completion of Loetschberg railroad, which embraces the famous Loetschberg tunnel, forms the last link in the thru route from London to the principal tourist points in Italy by way of Paris and Milan. The distance from Calais to Milan will be 675 miles, nearly eighty miles less than the old route.

Unit'd Services.

The closing service of the week drew a large congregation last night at George Street Church and the address, which was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Matthews, proved to be one of the best of the series; and there have been some very able addresses given since the meetings began.

The Rev. C. A. Whitmarsh had charge of the service, and was assisted by the other ministers. The address was based upon the words of Pilate to the Rulers, when he asked them what they shall I do with Jesus? This question of Pilate's is always a strong one in evangelistic meetings; and when applied to men personally, and in the right spirit, it carries a great deal of conviction with it. Such was the case last night. Mr. Matthews was at his best. He dealt with the question upon its merits, and all his appeals were whole-souled and earnest. The great Personages of whom Pilate spoke should mean more to us than he could possibly have meant to Pilate himself. Pilate was but a man, and had no more than a human will. Even though he had possibly known Jesus before, and probably had heard of his works, he could not see in Him that Great Character which Christendom has since beheld. From Pilate's bar we see Him in the tragedy of Calvary, in the mystery of His burial, in the triumph of His resurrection, in the glory of His ascension, and in the power of His mediation.

These great truths and characteristics which were fulfilled in the Saviour's life and Passion, make His service and discipleship greater for us than it could have been for Pilate, even if he had known Him; for he saw but part, where we see a fuller revelation. But still Pilate had to do something with Him, and he did so, right, and men of the present age do the same thing. They decide the matter, and sometimes, like Pilate, they decide it in the wrong way.

The entire week has been one of great good among the people, and many excellent thoughts have been suggested by the different speakers, and a very commendable spirit of Christian unity and brotherhood has been manifested all through. Perhaps amongst the best things of the week was the brotherly reference made by the Rev. Dr. Curtis while leading the meeting on Tuesday night, when he spoke of men being in earnest about these great questions of religion; and how people, when really concerned, would deny themselves to fulfill their Christian duties. This was noticed by him in the large number who have come out to the services during the winter; and especially was it noticeable in the great number who attend the Mission at five o'clock in the morning. Such references as these reveal the true spirit of Christianity; and they tell us that after all, the essentials to which we adhere are much the same; and that the great soul of humanity is longing for these living principles which the Church teaches; and which are found by all who are willing to pay the price.

She Made Home Happy.

She never went to cooking school. Yet somehow minus book or rule, She daintly, wholesome bread could make. And most delicious tempting cake.

A trained nurse she was, not indeed, Yet was and all the folks agreed (The white-haired doctor said so, too). She knew exactly what to do.

To quickly still the ache or pain, To relieve the smarting bruise or sprain; To drive dizziness or needless gloom At once from out the darkened room.

Her singing master ne'er said she, A wondrous lyric star would be, Yet, on her tender loving breast, She nightly sang we ones to rest.

She was no great philosopher,

Yet men and women turned to her For sympathy and earnest cheer. When dawn's skies seemed dark and drear.

She never claimed to be devout, Just unobtrusively about, She gently moved a doing good, Whene'er and how the best she could.

She had no wealth of higher knowledge, Led not a single class in college, Without a mission, aim or call— She made home happy, that was all.

Why Who's Who.

BY H. L. RANN.

Precisely four hundred years ago a Spanish tax payer named Ponce de Leon came to this country for the purpose of discovering the fountain of eternal youth. He met with many discouragements, chief among which were the Florida Jigger and the swamp mosquito, which pestered him both fore and aft and raised large blue bumps on his physique. His time was so fully taken up in instructing people how to pronounce his name so that it wouldn't sound like an explosion in a pop factory that he didn't find what he came after; and he returned home in a very disgruntled and sea-bitten state.

Precisely—years ago this same fountain of eternal youth was discovered and patented for three centuries by Lillian Russell. Being a perfect gentleman, we do not give the exact date of this discovery. Besides, Miss Russell has recently married an athletic and high-tempered citizen of Pittsburgh, who conceals a punch in either hand. Miss Russell's age is nobody's business but her husband's, and if he is reconciled to it, why should we murmur or reprove?

Miss Russell is a natural beauty with a complexion which is guaranteed to stand in any climate. This complexion does not look a day older now than the first time it appeared in public. Miss Russell does not change her complexion every few days, the way some actresses do. She can do it up in the morning and show around all day without losing enough of it to be noticed by the naked eye. It is the only stage complexion we know of that does not have to be re-varnished between acts.

Of late years Miss Russell has been accumulating wealth and embonpoint with so much energy that malicious critics prefer to her as "Airy, Fairy Lillian." The time was when her complexion and figure alone were good for $800 a week, but lately she has been paying considerable attention to acting, with gratifying results. It is well, for she is now pitting her complexion against Pittsburgh's smoke, which will pit anything from a fresh face massage to a galvanized iron pipe.

SEALS PLENTIFUL.—To-day a message from Seal Cove reported seals plentiful in that neighborhood. There is also a good sign of seals at LaSce. There is open water at both those places, the ice moving off.

CRUSHED HIS HAND.—While Mr. John Loveys was at work in the basement of Steer Bros.' store, to-day, his left hand became caught between two barrels of pork and was severely crushed. Some young men in the place bound it up for him.

B.I.S.—The Literary and Amusement Committee of the B.I.S., met last night and elected the following officers: Chairman, Mr. T. P. Halley; Vice-Chairman, Mr. J. P. Crotty; Treasurer, Mr. E. L. Carter; Secretary, Mr. C. J. Fox. The various sub-committees were then appointed.

FROM BELL ISLAND.—To-day a large number of people came over from Bell Island to Portugal Cove, some driving their horses. They came to the city for requisites and returned this afternoon. The Messrs. Steele, sons of Mr. S. O. Steele, went over to the island yesterday from the city.

DISLOCATED KNEE.—Mr. A. Rees of the Postal Telegraphs, in coming out of his house on Mullock Street, Thursday night slipped and fell on the ice near the hydrant and dislocated his right knee. Men testing the hydrant caused the water to lodge there, and it froze causing the accident. Mr. Rees will sue the Council for damages.

HEALTH REPORT.—During the past week seven cases of infectious disease were reported in the city—three of scarlet fever, three of diphtheria and one of smallpox. A 16-year-old boy contracted the latter disease and he is being nursed at his home on Duggan Street. The smallpox patients at Broad Cove are practically recovered.

The Almanac of 1913 and Others.

WHITTAKER'S ALMANAC needs no introduction to the homes, business and legal firms, Government institutions and clubs of Newfoundland. Its fame is far wider and its information more general than that of any other "Annual" in the English-speaking world. The publishers have for 1913, at the suggestion and with the assistance of a large number of people outside of Great Britain, prepared The New International Whittaker, which provides information concerning every country on a uniform method, so that one may know just where to look for the particular subject or point desired. The International is a book of 500 pages, chock full of accurate information, largely contributed by responsible British, Colonial and Foreign Government officials. An index of forty pages gives it additional value as a book of reference. This Almanac appeals to the intelligence of every man and woman in Nfld. Strong set back, imitation Cairns cover, 60c. by mail, 64c. When ordering enclose $1.00 and receive the Whittaker Almanac, Newfoundland Year Book for 1913 and an attractive Wall Calendar, worth from 10c. to 40c. All orders filled in rotation as received.
