Love in the Abbey
OR,
Lady Ethel's Rival

CHAPTER XXXIV.
FOR REVENGE.

She looks at him, silent for a moment, as if gathering calmness sufficient for speech, then she says, with clear voice, each word distinct and metallic:

"Do you—ask me—to marry you?" His face flushes, and the light, the eager light of hope, rushes into his eyes.

"Kitty!" is all he can say. "Suppose," she says, with a hard smile, "I were to take you at your word?"

"Then you would make me the happiest man in the world!" he says. "I don't know that," she retorts, with cruel sarcasm. "Do not be too sure of that."

"I am sure," he says. "Kitty, do not mock me. I ask you, I pray you to be my wife! There is nothing I will not do, that lies within my power, to make you happy."

She looks down at him with a smile of incredulity. Happy! she will not marry him for happiness. Why does he harp on this word so? She will marry him for revenge—to show him that she is not fretting her heart out because he has deserted her—to show him that she, too, can be fierce and easily moved to change.

"Kitty, be my wife! I am neither rich nor poor; I have nothing of his rank and fame; more, I am ambitious only of your love. I am not worth one thought from you, but, at least, I love you, and I am true. Kitty, will you be my wife?"

She draws up her head and looks at him silent for a moment, then she droops on the saddle and holds out her hand.

"Yes," she says, "I will be your wife—on one condition," she adds, her face scarlet for an instant, then deadly pale.

"Condition," he breathes, as he presses her hand; "condition?" fearfully and anxiously. "What is it?" She does not avert her face—she looks at him with strained, absorbed intentness.

"That," she says grimly, "that—you—marry me soon!"

A bewildered, dazed expression settles on his face, as of a man who has heard too suddenly that he is heir to enormous wealth, then a great joy glitters in his eyes, for he has caught her meaning.

Mother! the Child is Costive, Bilious.

Don't hesitate! A laxative is necessary if tongue is coated, breath bad or stomach sour.

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once—a teaspoonful to-day often saves a sick child to-morrow. If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit-laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then see that yours is made by the "Cal-

"Yes," he says—"yes! it shall be so; as soon as you will let me, my darling! Say when, Kitty, love. Ah, if it were possible to-morrow—the day after! Yes," for her eyes have lowered and sunk beneath his question, "the day after! It shall be; I can manage it. Trust all to me, my darling. Yes, Kitty, we will stan him! Little does he think—I fancy he would not be so self-satisfied as he is if he could dream or guess it!—that before he has made Lady Ethel his countess, you will have become mine and have forgotten him!"

Perhaps it is the excitement, perchance the suddenness of this change which has thrown a lurid glare—cannot be called a beam of sunlight—over the dark sky; but be the cause what it may, there is a tinge of color upon Kitty's face, which, though it may be hectic rather than healthy, is an improvement upon the strained, pallid countenance, which had looked down upon him when she, first rode up.

For the convenience of conversation she has slipped from the saddle, and leading Jack by the bridle—she had throughout shown an unreasonable impatience of the whole proceeding, and even now threw up his head at times, and neighed an indignant protest at her inaction—leading Jack by the bridle, she walks beside this new lover. He, watching her face with all the anxious attention of a man in his position, is quick to notice the change in her, and welcomes it with a sigh of relief, and a smile of hope.

"I am afraid," he says tenderly, "that you have found the last week tiresome and boring; if you know how constantly I thought of you; how often, night and day, I have pictured you sitting in that little, silent drawing-room, or walking among your roses, alone and weary—"

"Not always alone," she interrupts him, and speaking with a musing bitterness. "Not always alone—papa is awake—sometimes, and then I read the papers to him—all the speeches the men make who want to get into Parliament, and the letters of the men who don't want them to get there; interesting, is it not?"

"My poor darling!" "And then we have visitors," she says, still more to herself than to him. "Mr. Sedgwick, the clergyman, who keeps pigs, and talks about them; I suppose he has grown so tired of trying to cure souls that he has turned his attention to curing bacon!" and she smiles, not the old, merry smile, but so dry, and sarcastic, and hard as one, that it makes the speech sound not clever but ill-natured. "Then the Pophams—they came—"

"Why did you see them?" he asks. "Why should I not?" she demands, lowering her eyes, as brilliant in color and as hectic as her cheek. "They came to see me at the stake—gathered round as the Indians do when they have a victim at the torture. I couldn't refuse them the pelasure—one of the few pleasures of their miserable existence—the sight of another woman's misery. No, no!" she says—"they thought me miserable, that was all; but they were disappointed. I did not flinch, trust me!" and she presses her lips. "It was very hot that afternoon, and they sat round in the hideous yellow chairs in the drawing-room, and stared at me and batted me like so many cats—not dogs—at a bear; but some bears can dance better with a sore head, and I danced for them. I never was so happy, and I made them laugh! Disappointed! it is not the word for what they felt! They expected to see me with rings round my eyes, and my mouth down at the corners. Ah!" and she smiles grimly. "Poor Ellen looked more down than me, and there were rings round her eyes, though they bathed them for her, and powdered her, and set her back to the light! Poor Ellen! Why should I pity her?" she demanded. "Suffering is the privilege of training for gentlemen; Ethel read that to me out of one of her poets. It is very pretty, is it not? Well, they did not see me suffer, and I played it out to the last—I took them out into the garden—I made them come, and then poor Ellen's red eyes and drooping mouth showed out in all their ghastliness!" and she laughed a quiet laugh of hard bitterness.

"Serve them right," he says instantly, and with angry eagerness; "but why should she—the girl Popham, I mean—be miserable?"

Kitty looks round at him with a curl on her finely cut lip.

"Because we have an unlucky knack in this part of the country of falling in love with the wrong person. James Ainsley has gone abroad."

"I see," he says, with an uneasy flush. "Well, it serves her right; it was heartless of them to come and stare at you, my darling! Heartless!" "Heartless, that is what she said," muses Kitty, looking down at the burned grass and flicking at her riding habit with her restless, nervous whip hand.

"Who said?" he asks, feverishly interested. She looks up at him as if unconscious that she had spoken her thought aloud.

"Who—his mother!" "His mother—whose?"

"James," she says, with a tightening at her lips. "Did I not say that she came? Oh, yes, she came and caught me in the garden, and hedged me into a seat and kept me there, standing over me like—like—the mother of the Gracchi in bombazine, armed with a gingham umbrella; she clutched it so tightly and held it up once or twice with such energy that I thought she meant to strike me with it."

An oath, not loud, but deep, is muttered at her side.

"Who is she—what did she come for—con—found her!"

"She came to avenge James—poor James!" and for the first time Kitty's face softens and grows lovely and womanly—"she came to speak her mind and tell me of how great a treasure I had lost, and the injury I had worked her son; she called me designing, mercenary, unprincipled, heartless; asked me whether I dared enter the church on Sunday and pray with the memory of the wrong I had done her son—poor James!—fresh upon my soul! She was very hard on me—I should have felt it."

His face shows something of the torture which her cool indifference means for him.

"No," he says, "you cannot doubt me. But you, Kitty; do you think you will ever—he actually trembles—he, the cold, calculating man of the world—he, the impassible Sydney Cathrop, trembles with passionate eagerness as he puts this lover's question—"do you think you will ever grow to care for me?"

She pauses a moment, then answers, as calmly as if she were replying to a question respecting the weather—politely, gravely:

"I cannot tell; at least," more softly—"I will try."

"You will!" he says—"that is all I ask. See!" stretching out his hands, "I am content with that. I know that I can make you love me, and I am content to wait until that happy time comes when you shall own that I have succeeded."

Then he goes on to speak in a lower and more eager tone—persuading her, arguing with her, though she does not say a word; and at last he unfolds his plan.

SHE FUSSES SO.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"Two hours on the electric! Oh my dear, I couldn't possibly take such a long ride." "Not even to see Gretchen, after all this time?" "Oh, I'd love to see her, but that's such a fearful ride!" "Why don't you just take a book and read? It wouldn't seem long." "I would, but it tires me so. You'll have to count me out." The mouth of the second speaker set in the sort of lines that mouth is apt to take when their owners are holding back things it is wiser not to say.

Not the Things Themselves, But Fussing About Them.

Later, when the woman who couldn't take a two-hour ride on the electric even to see a close friend after seven years of separation, had gone, the other woman said musingly, "I know she can't afford to get tired, but I do wonder whether the ride itself tires her, or whether it isn't just that she fusses so. I think half the time it isn't so much things that tire us, as fussing about them."

Now the woman who spoke is not one of those people who have such overflowing health and vitality that they are always optimistic about other people's nerves, aches and pains. On the contrary, she is one who has learned the great lesson of "sympathy through suffering."

She Has Caught Herself At It.

And so that speech from her meant something more than an unfeeling stricture. It meant—as her use of the word "us" testified—something that she had learned from herself as well as from others, and something, to my mind, very much worth learning.

I thought of it the very next day when I found myself sitting at a restaurant table opposite a woman I do not like. Her voice, her laugh, her manner of bridling when she talks, her way of prefacing an anecdote, all arouse unreasoning resentment in me. And I found myself immediately possessed of a sense of annoyance that threatened to spoil my meal. And then I thought, "What nonsense! It isn't the things she does that get me worked up, so much as my habit of fussing about them."

Old But New.

Of course it's an old story,—this discovery that half the discomforts, half the annoyances, half the antagonisms (do I underestimate?) are not the product of any actual conditions so much as of our attitude of mind. But it is one of those discoveries that one seems able to make and forget, and remake from some different angles an indefinite number of times.

Milady's Boudoir

THE BEAUTY OF THE EYES.

No feature of the face is so essential to beauty as the eye. Many women have been pronounced beautiful when chin, mouth and nose were actually faulty, but so compelling was the beauty of the eyes that minor faults in the face went unnoticed. No woman on the other hand can possibly lay claim to beauty if her eyes are not beautiful. The face may be a perfect oval, the mouth a rosebud, the complexion like a blush rose, but small, pale, red-lidded eyes will so effectually spoil these good points that their possessor must inevitably be branded "plain."

Judicious use of the eye cup will keep overworked eyes from becoming full and red-rimmed. A teaspoonful of boric acid should be dissolved in a cup of warm water. Fill the eye cup with the solution and press it against the eye. Throw back the head until the glass is upside down, then open the lid and let the warm boric acid solution thoroughly wash the eye.

Be sure that the water is not too warm or too cold, and also that the granulated boric acid is thoroughly dissolved. A cloth wrung out of hot water in which bicarbonate of soda has been dissolved and laid over the closed eyes for ten minutes will remove the trace of even a hard crying spell which, sad to say, every woman indulges herself in once in a while.

And share with you each pleasant

I am content to hold your hand
And walk along life's path with you,
And talk of things we understand—
The birds and trees and skies of

Though some may seek the smiles of

For me your laughter's joy enough;
I have no wish to claim the things
Which lure men into pathways

I'm happiest when you and I
Unmindful of life's bitter cares,
Together watch the clouds drift by
Or follow boyhood's thoroughfares.

I crave no more of life than this:
Continuance of such a trust!
Your smile, whatever the morning is,
Until my clay returns to dust.
If but this comradeship may last
Until I end my earthly task—

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sedelow, of Springfield, Mass., who have been married 67 years, celebrated Thanksgiving this year surrounded by members of their family of four generations. Mr. Sedelow is 89 years old, and Mrs. Sedelow is 94. They have 36 grandchildren.

When Queen Mary goes to the Imperial Institute for the unpacking and arrangement of the clothes sent in by her Needlework Guild, it is not her way to stand about and superintend. She puts on a big apron and works harder than anyone for the two days, not even stopping to go home for lunch.

When the Rickers of Poland Spring sat down to their Thanksgiving dinner this year, they did so as a member of a family that has celebrated U. S. Thanksgiving for 125 consecutive years under the same roof—the fourth and fifth generation since the founding of the great estate of Poland Spring by Jabez Rickers.

Lieut.-Colonel A. M. Gordon, of the chaplain service, has been awarded the D. S. O. for his gallant services, according to a cablegram from London. Colonel Gordon is a son of the late Dr. Gordon, principal of Queen's University, and before he went Overseas at the commencement of the war was assistant pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church of Ottawa. He was awarded the Military Cross over a year ago.

It is learned that Col. W. A. Bishop is relinquishing his appointment as head of the new Canadian Air Force, and is undertaking a year's lecture tour of Canada and the United States. Col. Bishop's successor will be Major Raymond Colleshaw who holds the D. S. O. Flying Cross, and bar to each. He belongs to British Columbia. Before the war he was mate on a fishing patrol vessel. He joined the R.N. A.S. and has seen service in France and Mesopotamia.

A desperate criminal was shot by a deputy sheriff at Arcadia, near Los Angeles. The officers were about to arrest him when he opened fire on them. One of them then fired and shot the outlaw, killing him instantly, upon which the outlaw's wife fired from an automobile and killed one of the deputies. The second deputy then fired at the woman and the shot was fatal. The man had many aliases and his real name was unknown, but he had served prison sentences in several States and was an expert bank robber. He and the woman, supposed to be his wife, had been living in a comfortable rented house at Luna Madre (about 20 miles from Los Angeles), and the police found a perfect arsenal, at his late home, guns, pistols and ammunition in abundance.

THE NEW YEAR.

WALT MASON

We start the New Year right; the kings have ceased to fight; and some are banned, and some are canned, they're said a last "Good night! We've seen what war can do; it's worse than was the flu; and rows that make the nations quake are bad for people, too. All fights are bad and vile; no quarrel's worth your while; so if some chap demands a scrap, just answer with a smile. You're bad as Kaiser Bill, if you display the will to break the peace and give release to wrath, already still. Why throw sarcastic flings at captains, and at kings; if you're the chap who hunts a scrap, and stirs up grief, by jings? We start the New Year right; there is no scrap in sight; no gent is near who'd twist my ear, or pull my nose or bita. Let's keep the record thus; let's dodge the foolish fuss; let us be good and saw our wood, nor paw around and cuss. Let's an example set to kings who fume and fret; with kindly hearts let's do our parts—peace is the one best bet.

Christian Reunion.

A notable sermon on Christian Reunion was delivered in Ely Cathedral by Canon Goudge. He said: "In dealing with divisions we should begin with the most recent; and it is our home divisions which do, in England, the greatest harm to the cause of Christ. Though it is much to be regretted that we cannot kneel at the same altar with Italian or Russian Christians, it is much more to be regretted that we cannot kneel at the same altar with Christians of our own city. That is a scandal which it is our plain duty to remove. Thank God, there is to-day, among the Nonconformists and Churchmen, a longing to remove it as never before. The age of mutual persecution has passed; the age of alienation is passing; and the age of mutual appreciation is coming. Do not let us suppose that Reunion is to come by the return of Nonconformists to the Church as at present it is; or that when they return they will come back (like exemplary children of the Victorian age) to be 'seen and heard!' Nothing of the kind will take place. Are we ready to bear with those things in them which we may not like rather than let them go one way while we go another? If we are, there is nothing to prevent reunion within a measurable time."

Evening Telegram

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor. C. T. JAMES, Editor.

FRIDAY, January 3, 1919.

Praise for the Press.

A meeting, notable in the history of journalism, was held not long since at British General Headquarters in Cologne...

Among the younger barristers Mr. John Barron holds a high place. Law, however, still leaves him leisure for letters...

Sweet and sincere appreciation this, coming from the great General, who commanded the armies of Britain's vast Empire...

Those who attended the lectures of Mr. F. A. McKenzie, a few weeks ago, will remember that the lecturer (himself a war correspondent) told his audience that in the early days of the Great War...

(Gentleman) BUNNIE. P.S.—We hope little Rex, Dandy, Denny and dear Tatters are all well and all the members of the Pansy League.

St. Joseph's Lectures. Capt. (Rev.) Cogan Heard From.

The past year St. Joseph's Institute has grown rapidly, and met with the most gratifying expansion.

The course will open on Tuesday, January 7th, when Capt. Keegan, M.C. will describe his war experiences.

Mr. P. J. Summers, K.C., in his 'Legal and Other Anecdotes' has selected a most fascinating theme, lending itself to all kinds of useful illustration and development.

Medicine will be represented by Dr. Charles Howlett, whose lecture on 'Oral Health' will combine interest with utility.

The course will close with a lecture by Mr. Justice Kent, of whose scholarly attainments it is superfluous to speak.

Sweet and sincere appreciation this, coming from the great General, who commanded the armies of Britain's vast Empire...

Pansy League.

Miss Beth White, Bishop's Court, has received the following letter from New South Wales, and it is published for the benefit of all Pansy Leaguers.

Dear Topsy,—I do hope you are well and that your League is doing well. I must now tell you who I am.

I am a lady cat named Bunnie; I was born in the same month as my dear little mistress arrived in Australia, and as you all know by now their dear pet Pansy was not allowed to land, and died of a broken heart...

(Gentleman) BUNNIE. P.S.—We hope little Rex, Dandy, Denny and dear Tatters are all well and all the members of the Pansy League.

Answered.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—As I have noticed the name of Lt.-Col. Forbes-Robertson in one of our papers as having received the Victoria Cross in connection with the Royal Newfoundland Regiment's list of honors...

Thanking you in anticipation of your usual courtesy, I remain Yours truly, Portia's Passengers. White Flag Etiquette. (By H. W. WILSON, Author of 'Iron-clads in Action'. A parlementaire to arrange a surrender or an armistice has to follow a certain etiquette which is laid down by the rules of war as established at the Hague and by custom. A parlementaire consists of an envoy or envoys from the enemy, properly authorized, carrying the white flag and accompanied by a bugler or trumpeter to call attention. The persons of the parlementaire are inviolable, provided they do not commit treachery and provided the commander to whom they are sent is willing to receive them. Those who meet them must take all steps to prevent them from obtaining information, and for that reason it is usual to blindfold them when passing through the lines. Either the commander-in-chief or a prominent general of the defeated army goes in person with the parlementaire. General Gabeliers after the defeat of the Austrians at Sadown in 1866, proceeded to the Prussian lines under the flag of truce, and was there blindfolded that he might be conducted to King William. The King, seeing the bandage about his eyes, supposed that he was a wounded enemy officer, and spoke some words of sympathy to him before discovering the mistake. At Sedan in 1870, after Captain von Schellendorf had summoned the French army to surrender, a parlementaire consisting of General Rolle came out under the white flag, and Rolle handed Napoleon III's letter of surrender to the King of Prussia on the heights above Frenois. That same evening the French commander, General Wimpfen, came in person to arrange the surrender. The terms were so severe that he refused at first to accept them, and only after the threat of a bombardment did he give way. After Appomattox, in 1865, General Lee came in person to General Grant, commanding the United States armies, to arrange terms for the beaten Confederate Army. Grant had not expected the surrender that day; he was in a private's uniform, with only his shoulder badges to show his rank as the leader of the largest army which up to that date had ever fought in war. He was not only a great soldier but also a great gentleman, and he has told the world what his feelings were at that tremendous moment. 'I felt like anything rather than re-

Police Court. Two civil cases were heard in court this morning. A young business man claimed damages from a returned soldier for a pair of binoculars he had lost. Judgment was given against the soldier. A navy man claimed $20 damages from Kim Lee, a laundryman, for a pair of blankets which were delivered to be washed. When he received them back they were burned and torn and the sailor refused to take them. The case was adjourned until Tuesday for the purpose of securing a witness.

Sea Prey. "A little after five o'clock Mr. Morgan," wrote the British colours, hoisted the flag, and sent a shot over the water just ahead of which, in the language of the order to hoist to. In the act of making a capture, as when one afternoon, p.m., they descried on the big, full-rigged ship, with all poles—the sure sign of a sea prey. One day they captured the Hope, an American ship, the crew of which had just died. The captain's body had been recovered from Georgia, in order that he might receive a decent funeral. Service was in progress Monday, look-out on deck, and saw a man-of-war drawing beam. "I scampared down from a lofty steading up behind Captain, who was still reading a prayer-book, said in a whisper, 'man-of-war bearing down rapidly.' Never a muscle moved, nor was there the change in his solemn voice that had finished, and the prisoner lifted the coffin and committed it to the care of the deep. Then he ordered me to beat the drum and cast loose the gun. It was a day of heroic deeds. The American ship turned out a man-of-war, but a ship returning from a long voyage, the captain knew nothing of the sailing the burning God had hurried to land his aid. When he learned of the fact that the Good Hope had been captured by Captain Murray's orders, staggered. To have captured would have been simple, but Murray chivalrously refused advantages of the circumstance, although her cargo was rich, he would stand a colonial before he would burn the man who had come on a mercy to help fellow-seamans.

Twice Captured. One of the most extraordinary incidents related by me followed the capture of the States ship Constitution, a cargo of coal and missionaries which Morgan and some others of the Georgia were placed crew. The night was very dark, using sea caused the ship to lose more than ever. Towards a large vase became loosened fastenings, and fell to the deck, and then panicked the crew. "The women, screaming their wails were going to murder us, they were in their night clothes. Just then, the terrors of the situation, the women were drowned in a room of a cannon, and the ship a rifle shot as it passed over the deck, and through the trumpet, shouted out: 'Ship ahoy! Don't surrender!'"

GENERAL NOTICE. One of the most extraordinary of all the incidents related by Mr. Morgan followed the capture of the United States ship Constitution, with a cargo of coal and missionaries, on which Morgan and some other members of the Georgia were placed as a prize crew.

The night was very dark, and the rising sea caused the ship to roll worse than ever. Towards midnight a large vase became loosened from its fastenings, and fell to the deck with a crash; then pandemonium broke loose.

"The women, screaming that the pirates were going to murder them, rushed out of their rooms in their night clothes. Just then, to add to the terrors of the situation, the cries of the women, were drowned by the boom of a cannon, and the shrieking of a rifle shot as it passed over us. I rushed on deck, and through the speaking trumpet, shouted out to our unseen foe: 'Ship ahoy! Don't fire! We surrender!'

"A hall came out of the darkness, asking what ship we were. I was going to answer that it was the United States ship Constitution, a prize to the Georgia; but as the words 'United States' came out of my mouth there was some more banging of the great guns. Things were too serious for further conversation; so, hastily ordering a boat to be lowered, I rowed over to the strange craft, and found her to be—the Georgia!"

Wine While You Wait. The ships had become separated, and in the dark night had failed to recognise each other. Probably this is the only occasion on which an open-raider has captured the same ship twice over.

Commerce Raiding.

Some Experiences of An Old Civil War "Private."

A pirate ship that respects neutral flags, with an incomplete crew, and a top speed of four miles an hour, how curiously it compares with the ocean-raiders we know to-day!

In such a tub as this, James Morris Morgan, whose recollections have just been published, set out during the American Civil War to capture enemy vessels. The Georgia, which sailed the seas at the same time as the famous Alabama, was absolutely unfitted for her work. She lay very low in the water, and was very long for her beam, and her engines were gear engines—that is, a large wheel fitted with lignum-vitae cog, which turned the iron cog on the shaft, and frequently broke.

For the most part they sailed under the Stars and Stripes or the British colours. It was only when they were in the act of making a capture that they hoisted their true Confederate flag as when one afternoon, at about 4 p.m., they descried on the horizon a big, full-rigged ship, with long sky-lark poles—the sure sign of the Yan- kee.

See Frey.

"A little after five o'clock," says Mr. Morgan, "we hauled down the British colours, hoisted the Confederate flag, and sent a shot bounding over the water just ahead of her, which, in the language of the sea, was an order to heave to. In less than an hour it came to the main yard of the doomed ship awning around, and her sails on the main and mizzen masts were thrown back as the American flag was broken out, and fluttered from her peak. We immediately lowered a boat, and our second lieutenant, Mr. Evans, accompanied by myself, rowed over to the prize, which proved to be the splendid ship Dictator, of between three and four thousand tons."

One day they captured the Good Hope, an American ship, the captain of which had just died. The ship was fired, as usual, but not before the captain's body had been removed to the Georgia, in order that it might receive a decent funeral. While the service was in progress Morgan kept a look-out on deck, and saw an American man-of-war drawing towards them.

"I scampered down from aloft, and, softly stealing up behind Captain Murray, who was still reading from his prayer-book, said in a whisper: 'American man-of-war bearing down on us rapidly.' Never a muscle did he move, nor was there the slightest change in his solemn voice until he had finished, and the prisoners had lifted the coffin and committed the body to the care of the deep blue sea. Then he ordered me to beat to quarters and cast loose the guns."

It was a day of heroic incidents. The American ship turned out to be, not a man-of-war, but a merchant ship returning from a long voyage. The captain knew nothing of the war, and, seeing the burning Good Hope, had hurried to lend his aid. To have captured his ship would have been simple, but Captain Murray chivalrously refused to take advantage of the circumstances. He said that, although her cargo was American, he would stand a court-martial before he would burn the ship of a man who had come on an errand of mercy to help fellow-seamen in distress.

Piracy in the old days seems to have been rather a sporting affair, and neutrals, of course, were immune from anything worse than being detained.

"Some of the vessels we halted," says Mr. Morgan, "had captains who were crews and ugly about being detained while we examined their papers, but others seemed to enjoy the adventure of being held up by a 'pirate' and showed our boarding officers every hospitality in the way of wines, liquors and cigars." Mines Made Harmless.

London, Dec. 19.—It is now possible to publish details of the wonderful invention which gained for Lieut. Charles D. Burney, Royal Navy, the Commandership of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, and the sum of £20,000. For more than three years British warships have enjoyed almost complete immunity from Hun mines because of his invention, and it has saved the lives of hundreds of sailors and prevented the loss of a huge number of warships. Simply itself, the device—which is a magnetic patent, and is known in the service as the "M.V." or "paravane"—consists of a water plane shaped like a torpedo, having a pair of large floats projecting on either side of its body. The tail is fitted with rudders to keep the torpedo at any depth while it is in operation. It is towed overboard by a wire rope which runs from the ship's bows outward. The wire rope is intended to pick up the mooring ropes of mines and slide them along till they reach the nose of the paravane, where a sharp saw is fixed inside a V-shaped slot. The saw cuts through the mooring rope and allows the mine to float free, when it can be either avoided or destroyed, as may be desired. No invention has done more to defeat the Hun's policy of attrition.

Hospitals on the Jump.

How They Kept up With Our Advances.

During the rapid advance of the A.E.F. before the armistice was signed, it was the business of the medical units to maintain touch with the front lines, so that the wounded should receive prompt attention. This meant constant movement. The tent hospital units were used alternately "leap-frogging" forward on the heels of the advancing armies. Hardly had a fresh advance been made than in the new area the tent hospital sprung up for the reception of cases; and directly the flow of wounded had been diverted to this, the previous tent hospital farther back prepared to fold its flaps and move to a still more advanced position, the patients, having received treatment for the journey, being sent to the stationary hospitals.

Always in Touch.

In the meantime, the medical transport maintained a perfect touch with the advanced dressing-stations and the regimental aid posts, which latter were usually in or just behind support. Light ambulance cars were pushed up, in many cases, right to the regimental aid posts. In some instances the cars were rushed right on to what had been, but an hour before, the scene of conflict. Prompt assistance of this nature meant a considerable lessening of fatal results in the lists of casualties. Ahead of the regimental aid posts the work, however, usually fell upon splendidly organized bearer-parties, who, going forward practically with the advancing troops, were already bringing back the wounded by the time the man had arrived to establish the new forward regimental aid post.

Any hitch in the arrangement would have meant an accumulation of agony. But a soldier just returned home tells me of his amazement at the swiftness with which he was treated. "Knock-out" in an early advance, he had only just begun to contemplate the horror of the time he must spend with the agony of his wounds before he received attention, when the bearers arrived. The nearness of the regimental aid posts was his next surprise; and before sunset he was on his way to England.

The whole business was a triumph of organization.

In The Boiling Pot.

Food Wasted in Cooking.

There are very few kinds of food which are not partially wasted by boiling. If foods must be boiled, the water should be saved to make stock. This is one of the chief sources of a French soup, which the working-classes always have on the hob, and always take with their meals. Every vegetable loses something when boiled. A raw parsnip contains about 14 parts of food in a hundred, or 14 per cent. After boiling, it contains less than three parts, for sugar is dissolved in the water, while water is also absorbed. There is similar loss with the beet, the artichoke, and the turnip, which has lost most of its food after boiling. Those who pay the present high prices for garden vegetables may be surprised to learn that if they are boiled, and the water is wasted, they are paying as much for the food they obtain from them as if they were buying salmon at five shillings a pound. All vegetables should be steamed—this will prevent the loss of the sugar, the muscle-softening material, the mineral salts which are essential to the maintenance of health and energy as the larger constituents.

A Milk Diet.

Let us illustrate this. Milk contains all that the body requires in proper proportions. If a baby, living wholly on milk, were supplied with its rations after the mineral salts had been removed, it could build no bones, for they are chiefly constructed of phosphate of lime, which is one of its most important ingredients. In a similar way we adults cannot exist in good health if we live upon food, the mineral salts and muscle-builders of which have been wasted in boiling.

The loss of food by bad cooking is material, but we may add another loss to this. Vegetables are still living as parts of still living plants, and therefore contain energy, which is a most vital principle to the consumer.

The energy is destroyed by cooking. A potato, for example, may be planted and produce more potatoes, but once cooked it cannot do so. In eating raw vegetables and salads, and raw fruits, we are taking more energy-producing nourishment than some of us suppose.

There is, however, a limit to our capacity to eat what is raw and what is cooked, and that depends upon our powers of digestion, and sometimes upon our occupation or our age. Waste in cooking meat, fish and other foods is also very extensive, but we are certainly more economical than in pre-war days.

Meat, fish, eggs and milk begin to spoil the moment they are allowed to get warm.

Bolsheviks Defeated and 31,000 Prisoners Captured

Royal Visit to Canada --- Polish Situation Grave--- Russian Affairs Cause Anxiety.

BOLSHEVIKS DEFEATED.

VLADIVOSTOCK, Dec. 30. (By the A.P.)—In capturing Perm in the Ural mountains, General Gaida, at the head of Czech-Slovak and Siberian forces, virtually destroyed the Bolshevik third army from which he took thirty-one thousand prisoners. General Gaida's troops captured an armored train from which Nikolai Lenin, the Bolshevik premier, was directing operations in the region of Perm. Lenin himself escaped but several members of his party were taken prisoners.

Balfour, Foreign Secretary, Chancellor Bonar Law, Viscount Hardinge, Permanent head of the Foreign Office, Sir Louis Mallet, Sir E. Howard, Sir Ralph Paget, and Sir E. Crowe, with their staffs. Lord Robert Cecil is also proceeding to France in connection with the League of Nations scheme. It is expected that the Conference will begin Jan. 13. The majority of the British delegates will leave London on Jan. 4 for France, but the Premier and Mr. Bonar Law will not leave until about the middle of next week. Mr. Balfour is already in France. With the Foreign Office officials who will accompany the Premier and the other cabinet ministers will go representatives of the War Office, Admiralty and Air Board and other departments.

FIGHTING IN POSEN.

WARSAW, Dec. 31. Fighting has been continued here and there in the city of Posen, German Poland, between Polish and German troops in the past few days. The fortress of the city has been occupied by the Poles, while more than 20,000 German soldiers have been disarmed. The sixth German Grenadier regiment has refused to surrender and is now surrounded in a barracks within the city. German troops sent into the city were disarmed on their arrival at the railway station. The entire Polish population is reported to be aiding the Polish troops. They include boy scouts and young women. The fighting is now of a house to house nature and there is no accurate estimate of the number killed and wounded.

POLES ENTER FRANKFORT.

LONDON, Jan. 1. Polish troops have entered Frankfort on the border, 60 miles east of Berlin, says a Bernese despatch to the Express, which adds that the Poles have occupied Beuthen in Prussian Silesia and Bromberg in the province of Posen, 69 miles northeast of Posen city.

THE SITUATION IN POSEN.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 1. Events in Posen are assuming a grave character, according to advices from Berlin. Large parts of the province are in the hands of the Poles.

and Polish troops have crossed the frontier at Skalmirycastwo, southeast of Posen, and nearly two miles northeast of Breslau. German troops there, must, it is said, retreat in the face of a superior force of the Poles. It is also reported that the Polish government at Warsaw has ordered the mobilization of all Poles.

DEMILITARIZING RAPIDLY.

LONDON, Jan. 2. Gustave Noske, one of the new members of the Ebert Government in Germany, is quoted in an interview printed in the Express, as saying that demobilization of the German army is proceeding much more rapidly than was first believed possible. There are about one million soldiers at the German barracks at Berlin. It is not believed there is much danger from Bolshevism.

THE RUSSIAN QUESTION.

LONDON, Jan. 2. Russian affairs are causing the British Foreign Office considerable anxiety, says the Mail. The necessity of formulating a definite Allied policy as to Russia is extremely urgent and it has been decided that the Russian question will be the first to be discussed at the Peace Conference.

IDENTICAL AIMS.

LONDON, Jan. 2. Comparing the speech of Premier Clemenceau before the French Chamber of Deputies and President Wilson's address at Manchester, the Times argues there is no fundamental discrepancy between the aims of the two men.

MUST GIVE FRANCE TRANQUILITY.

PARIS, Jan. 1. In its New Year's editorial to-day the Temps says, "We have the right to found peace on something else than a hypothesis. Certainties are required." "Peace will not be real," says La Liberté, if it does not give France tranquility."

THE POPE'S MESSAGE.

ROME, Jan. 2. In a New Year's message given to the Associated Press, Pope Benedict expresses the hope that the Peace Conference might result in a new world with a League of Nations, the abolition of conscription and the establishment of tribunals to adjust international disputes.

LLOYD GEORGE.

CARNARVON, Jan. 2. The general election has given democracy an opportunity in the present government to change the face of the country, announced Premier Lloyd George here yesterday. The Premier said that unless the government did its best to fulfill its promises he pledged himself that he would not remain at its head but would go back to the people for another mandate.

TROOPSHIP IN BAD POSITION.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2. The American transport "Northern Pacific," ashore of Fire Island with three thousand troops, civilians and crew, was shifted slightly during the night by the waves and the wind. At 8 a.m. to-day with a rough sea running and a moderate southwest breeze blowing, the ship's bow had swung 150 feet shorewards. Hitherto the vessel had been lying broadside to the beach. The weather conditions at 6 o'clock were not considered favorable to the transfer of the troops.

COUNTERACTING ENEMY ACTIVITIES.

LONDON, Jan. 2. How the British Empire was saved at least a billion dollars by the successful manner in which enemy activities were counteracted, is described in the farwail message of Brigadier General George K. Cockerill, the retiring Director of Special Intelligence, to his associates. General Cockerill says the enemy was active in speculating in raw material and this was detected and checked. One sub-department, the General reported, not content with closing certain channels of enemy propaganda kept others open for the express purpose of distributing British propaganda in enemy covers, on which the postage had already been paid by the enemy. The message refers appreciatively to the skilled work of the chemists' department in connection with ink secrets, photographs and codes. Experts and professors in uncommon languages put in much skilled work of so secret a character that a detailed description of it is not yet permissible. General Cockerill pays a tribute to the essential links with the department of special intelligence in whose loyal and disinterested cooperation, he says it would have been impossible to have secured the results attained.

REACHES DESTINATION.

LONDON, Jan. 2. The Swedish barque Mimosa from New York for Santos, Brazil, previously reported sunk in a collision on Nov. 4, has arrived at her destination.

PROFITTEERING.

The dividend which represents a disbursement of $4,000,000 among seven stockholders is payable 100 per cent. Jan. 1st, and 100 per cent. February 1st.

LIEBKNECHT KNOCKED.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 2. Dr. Karl Liebknecht was given a sharp defeat in the Spartacus Congress at Berlin on Tuesday, according to advices received here. Liebknecht advocated participation by the Spartacus element in the election of members of the National Assembly on the ground that the party might be able to influence the composition of the Spartacus leaders, repelled in a violent speech, declaring "unendurable applause that meeting of the National Assembly must be prevented at all costs." Liebknecht's proposal was rejected by a vote of 63 to 33.

KAISER VERY ILL.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 2. William Hohenzollern, the former emperor of Germany is very ill, according to advices from Amroengen. He cannot leave his room and has a bad cold and high fever. An eminent specialist from Utrecht is in constant attendance. Only the former emperor, the specialist and two attendants are permitted to enter his room.

BRITISH DEMILITARIZATION.

LONDON, Jan. 2. (Reuter's)—Reuter's has received the following statement in regard to demobilization in Great Britain affecting at least ten million men and women who were engaged in Britain's war effort and of 775,000 have already been released, including 270,000 soldiers and sailors, 115,000 returned war prisoners and 390,000 munition workers. The three factors governing demobilization are the size of the British Army, which must for the present be maintained. This has already been practically settled by Marshal Foch in conference with the Allies holding the western lines; secondly, the machinery of discharge, and thirdly, the economic situation at home. At the present time demobilization is proceeding on a selective basis in distinct from discharge by

A DENIAL.

LONDON, Jan. 2. Announcements regarding British delegates to the Peace Conference and officials who would advise them, which have appeared in some newspapers as being from an official source, are unauthorized and inaccurate. The Prime Minister and the Imperial War Cabinet, the Associated Press learned, have not yet decided on the composition of the peace delegation. Until this is settled and the delegates have met, no information as to the officials who will advise them can be made. The published list of officials is inaccurate and omits the names of some men to whom the War Cabinet has entrusted the study and preparation of some of the most important questions for the consideration of the Peace Conference.

CANADA'S PENSION BILL.

OTTAWA, Jan. 2. The Minister of Finance has furnished Sir Robert Borden with an estimate of the total amount of Canada's pension obligations. The pension commission are of the opinion that the maximum will not be reached in pensions for 18 months or two years. They will probably remain at this maximum for five years and be gradually reduced until their termination. A calculation estimates a total cost of $440,000,000 calculated on three per cent. basis or $390,000,000 calculated on a four per cent. basis or $345,000,000 on a five per cent. basis. These sums represent the amounts of money as of to-day which at the rates of interests mentioned should take care of Canada's pension obligations arising out of the war.

A letter was read from J. W. Morris, of the Reid-Midd. Co. in which he thanked the Council for their action in relation to the damaged lamps.

The Council decided not to allow further progress on the addition to Mr. Dodd's garage, Catherine Street, until further advised.

MORE PRISON CRUELTY.

PARIS, Jan. 2. Pierre Daver, President of the French Chamber of Commerce is dead as the result of hardships undergone in Bolshevik prisons, according to a despatch from Moscow. He had been confined for several months.

HOW GERMANY KEPT FAITH.

LONDON, Jan. 2. Many German airplanes were destroyed, in part, by the Germans when they evacuated Cologne, according to reports from British correspondents in the British area of occupation. Among the dismantled machines is the skeleton of a huge Gotha. It was built to carry fourteen men and on its broad wings had walks, while little iron ladders led to the upper planes where the machine gunners were posted. Another machine is an armored airplane for use in attacking trenches with machine guns. The wings are of corrugated steel, and steel plates, a quarter inch thick, protect all vital points, as well as the seats of the two men. Two machine gun-point down through the bottom of the fuselage.

TROUBLE MAKERS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2. It was announced to-day, at the State Department, that information had been received showing that a large number of Austrian soldiers had donned Jugo Slav uniforms, and displayed Jugo Slav flags the day after the armistice was signed. To these suddenly reformed Austrians is credited much of the trouble of the Jugo Slavs in the organization of their country.

OPENS JANUARY 13.

PARIS, Jan. 3. There is every likelihood, according to the morning newspapers, that the peace conference, or rather a preliminary conference between the four great allies, will open on January 13. The Secretaries of the conference will be Paul Datusa, French Ambassador to Switzerland and Philippe Berthelot of the French Foreign Office, it is said. "This conference," says the Petit Journal, "will decide upon terms to be imposed upon the vanquished people."

NEW ALTITUDE RECORD.

LONDON, Jan. 3. Flying a British airplane at Ipswich yesterday, Captain Lang, an American, established a new altitude record, reaching a height of 30,500 feet. Observer Blowers, who accompanied Lang, collapsed when his oxygen bottle broke, but recovered. Both men were frostbitten during their flight. Heinrich Oelrich, a German, held the altitude record that was broken by Capt. Lang. On July 14, 1914, Oelrich reached a height of 28,248 feet.

WILSON IN ROME.

ROME, Jan. 3. President Wilson arrived in Rome at 12.25 o'clock this morning. He was received by King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helene and members of the Government and representative of the local authority. An immense crowd welcomed the President with the greatest enthusiasm.

BRYAN'S EULOGY.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 3. This war has taught the lesson that those who make the best citizens in time of peace make the best soldiers in time of war, said William Jennings Bryan last night in an address made here, in which he made a fervent appeal to the men in uniform to serve their country as well in peace as in war. He also endorsed President Wilson's trips abroad, saying: "President Wilson was wise in going abroad. He knew the importance of seeing to it that the ideals which the American people have fought for would be preserved at the Peace Conference. He went to Europe to see that peace is to be built on foundations that will endure. He will lay the foundations for a peace that will not end."

BOLSHEVISM IN TORONTO.

TORONTO, Jan. 3. "The time is ripe for revolution and you must rise." This is the startling declaration in a pamphlet distributed from door to door throughout the city of Toronto. It is even more startling to find that the pamphlet has been issued by the "Provisional Council of Soldiers and Workmen's Deputies of Canada," for we were not aware that the poisonous germs of Russian Bolshevism had obtained such a foothold in Canada, says the Globe editorial to-day, discussing the pamphlet. This manifesto, as it is called, purports to discuss the condition of the working classes under "Capitalism," and states that reconstruction of revolution are the two.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES

9.00 A. M.

TROOP TRAIN ACCIDENT.

QUEBEC, Jan. 2. With every possible care and attention to alleviate their sufferings, the forty odd soldiers from Toronto and vicinity, that were injured late Tuesday evening, when a transcontinental troop train jumped the track east of Edmonton, N.B., were taken to this city, arriving here about 4 a.m. today. The men who escaped injury in the train when it was derailed, were also brought here and all are now at the Quebec depot.

TO BE, OR NOT TO BE.

LONDON, Jan. 2. The Times, editorially discussing the future in the Imperial War Cabinet, says that it did very well, despite visible defects, while the war lasted, but will certainly need adaptation to peace conditions. It is unthinkable, of course, that the Dominions should simply sink back in matters of Empire government, to their pre-war position. Even if the Dominions' governments were content to do this, the part the Dominions' peoples have taken in the war would put it out of the question. On the other hand it would be sheer folly to pretend that the Imperial War Cabinet, even with resident ministers in London, has proved a complete or even a very satisfactory settlement of the difficulty. The Times reminds the Premier that while he is reconstructing his cabinet here, he should not forget that he was the creator of the Imperial War Cabinet, and responsible for its future.

DOES NOT APPROVE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2. Proposals, said to be under consideration by the British War Cabinet, looking toward establishment of an international tribunal to adjust labor conditions, possibly as an adjunct to a League of Nations, do not meet with favor at the American Federation of Labor headquarters. News despatches from London, and private advices to labor officials, lately have indicated that several such proposals would be presented to the Peace Conference, and that some of them would contemplate international standardization of wages and restrictions, making impossible the sweating of labor anywhere. Under such a system, iron workers in America could not improve conditions, if their present standards are in excess of the Belgium iron workers, for instance. "This would be a good system for the employers in America and England, where workers are better conditioned than those on the continent," said Frank Morrison, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor.

BOLSHEVIKS ACTIVE.

VLADIVOSTOCK, Dec. 30. Bolshevik sympathizers carried out a jail delivery on the night of Dec. 21st at Omak, the capital of the Provisional Russian Government, and released 250 prisoners, including members of the Bolshevik Constituent Assembly, according to delayed advices from Omak. Included in those released were 134 political prisoners. Twelve soldiers were court-martialed and shot by the Omak government for complicity in the affair.

THE DEADLY PARASITE.

LONDON, Jan. 2. Of the insects, responsible for the death or disablement of hundreds of thousands in the war zone, the louse is declared authoritatively to have been one of the most deadly, and to have accounted for at least a million persons. That, however, is only a rough estimate and the probability is that the toll was infinitely higher, for in Serbia alone typhus, a louse born disease, infected nearly one million persons and killed five hundred a day in the little city of Jassy, while two hundred of the 1,200 medical officers in the country, died from the disease. This disease spread over Russia, Austria, Germany and the Balkans generally.

LOYAL INDIA.

DELHI, India, via London, Jan. 2.—(Via Reuters Ottawa) mostly abstained. Hothan Malaviya, visitors attended the National Congress here, from which the moderates mostly abstained. Hothan Malaviya, member of the Vice Regal Council, delivered the Presidential address and offered loyal and dutiful greetings to His Majesty, upon the successful termination of the war. Indians were particularly glad to think that while despotic monarchs were disappearing, the King-Emperor sat even more firmly in the affections of his people. He suggested that the Congress send a message to the Peace Conference, that India was prepared to contribute in every way possible towards its success, and to support the League of Nations. He thought India's representation at the Congress should be more numerous. Referring to India's great contribution to the war, he asked how far India would share in the fruits of victory. He repudiated, as insulting, the suggestion that Indians were unfit to govern themselves, and hoped that the principles of autonomy and self-determination would be extended to India.

BUDAPEST OCCUPIED.

PARIS, Jan. 2. Two thousand French soldiers have entered Budapest, the Hungarian capital, according to a telegram from Zurich to the Temps. One detachment occupied the castle of Count Karolyi, where Field Marshal Von Mackensen of the German army is interned. Other reports reaching Zurich from Budapest say that there have been several brawls between Rumanians and Magyars.

TRAITOR ARRESTED.

PARIS, Jan. 2. Captain Georges LaDoux, former assistant chief of the Intelligence bureau of the Ministry of War, was arrested to-day and after hearing his accusation read by Col. Goubet, was sent to the Sante Prison. The Capt. is charged with the loss of documents relating to persons likely to be implicated in one of the cases now pending, concerning trading with the enemy. Proceedings were begun against Captain LaDoux, last March, when he was believed to have been connected with the cases of Bolo Pasha and M. Duval, director of the Bonnet Rouge, both of whom were executed for treason. Among those now awaiting trial in France, on a charge of trading with the enemy, is former Premier Caillaux and Senator Humbert.

RETURNS TO ITALY.

ROME, Jan. 2. Father Vladimir Ledochowski, general of the Society of Jesus, and known as "The Black Pope," has obtained permission to return to Italy, and reside in Rome, on the ground that he is a Polish citizen, according to the Italian. His arrival in Rome has been delayed, because the Swiss frontier is closed. Father Ledochowski is a nephew of the late Cardinal Ledochowski, and in 1906 was elected assistant general for Germany for the Jesuit organization. He was elected head of the entire society in February 1915, in succession to Father Wernz.

By the express last night, Michael Gabriel, of Spruce Brook, arrived at hospital treatment. A couple of days ago while working with the Newfoundland Co., he had one of his legs crushed by a train. LONDON, Jan. 2. British Wireless.—The Vossische Zeitung of Berlin, points out that it is no use for the Germans to complain of the harsh terms of the armistice, and to plead for food from their former enemies, until they establish a stable government in Berlin.

Harden Our Hearts.

In a short while, the Peace Conference will be held. Then will be decided the punishment to be meted out to the German nation. In the meantime, the Germans are grasping their opportunity and by devious ways and propaganda, are spreading the cry "Let us be merciful to the German nation!" They say, "Let bygones be bygones, and let us go on in the same status as in the pre-war days." We must against this suggestion. Are we to forget the breaking of their solemn treaty by the Germans? Are we to forget their invading of an onerous country—Belgium—tearing up that country, destroying its farms, attacking and bombarding its defenceless towns, violating its women and girls, murdering its old men, crucifying its soldiers, destroying its churches, its beautiful, priceless Cathedrals of marvelous architectural beauty? We must

and refuse to listen to their cry of "let bygones be bygones." Will we accept their plea, knowing of their acts in bombarding defenceless and undefended towns of Belgium, France and England, of dropping poisoned sweets and candy from the tirs to the streets below, so that the children would eat them and die, of perpetrating thousands of other nameless horrors? We must against their suggestion. Are we to forget their treatment of captured prisoners, their act of forcing the horrors of war on innocent old men, women and children, of sinking the hospital ships, containing thousands of returning wounded soldiers, and the great passenger ships with their precious burdens of women and children? Are we to forget all this, and "let bygones be bygones"? We must

Llewellyn Club

Dr. John Grieve, Secretary of the International Grenfell Association, delivered a very interesting address to the members of Llewellyn Club at Canon Wood Hall last evening. His subject being "Medicine Chests and Dog Sled on Labrador." For more than two hours Dr. Grieve, who is a fluent speaker told of his adventures on the northern coast. He specially referred to the work of the Sea Mission among the fishermen, the Strathcona and in the hospital and in so doing, paid a high tribute to the warm hospitality of the dwellers in the frozen north. Slides of Battle Hr. and other points, in summer and winter, were shown, evoking much interest. The Indians, he said, Mounatneer and Nascopee, are wonderfully ingenious, and if the Newfoundlanders is "handy" they are even more so, being able to make canoe or kayak with a knife made from an old file. Dr. Grieve told of the splendid scenery of Labrador, which, despite the contrary weather, many of the people in Newfoundland entertain of it, is a veritable paradise of bliss, but is, in summer, when the weather is often more salubrious than ours. A vote of thanks, proposed and seconded by Messrs. H. Mott and C. E. Hunt, was tendered Dr. Grieve and to Mr. W. H. Jones, Dr. Jones. The singing of the National Anthem brought the evening to close.

Big Hauls Throughout York.
New York, Dec. 20.—Burglars and hold-up men seem to be doing a sort of national convention of practical demonstrations of their skill in New York, judging from the frequency and bold nature of depredations in the last few weeks. Whether the looting of several thousand dollars' worth of silk from a loft, the robbing of a cigar store safe during a busy hour of the day, the scooping up of the winnings and losses of a gambling club gathered for a quick evening of poker, these members of the underworld go about their work with a precision and a degree of efficiency which rarely fails. ### Wedding Bells.

A very pretty wedding took place on November 28th at Fitting, by the Rev. Dr. Jones, the contracting parties being Miss Catherine Piccott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Piccott, and Mr. William McGrath. The bride was gowned in a beautiful pale blue silk dress, with hat to match, and was attended by Miss A. Carroll, cousin of the bride, while Mr. L. Lane, cousin of the groom acted as best man. After the ceremony they drove to the home of the groom's parents, where a very dainty supper was served and a very enjoyable time spent. The bride was the recipient of many valuable and costly presents; among which were some substantial, cheques and gold pieces. We wish Mr. and Mrs. McGrath many happy years of wedded bliss.

Band of Robbers

Big Hauls Throughout New York. New York, Dec. 26.—Burglars, thieves and hold-up men seem to be having a sort of national convention, as practical demonstrations of their skill in New York, judging from the frequency and bold nature of depredations in the last few weeks. Whether the looting of several thousand dollars' worth of silk from a loft, the ordering of a cigar store safe during a busy hour of the day, the scooping up of the winnings and losses of a gambling club gathered for a quiet evening of poker, these members of the underworld go about their work with precision and a degree of efficiency which rarely fails.

The shop of Alexander Reed, 165 Charles Street, was making out the weekly payroll in an office on the second floor, three men entered with drawn revolvers. Two other clerks, Thomas Cooran and James Hammond, were in the office at the time. All were ordered to throw up their hands and Cooran was forced into an adjoining room. The robbers then stuffed about $2,000 in bills into their hats and pockets, warning the two helpless men they would be shot if they made an outcry. As the robbers were leaving Mr. Brash moved toward a window, whereupon one of the robbers fired the bullet inflicting a flesh wound in Mr. Brash's right arm and right side of his back. The hold-up men then escaped in a motor truck, which, apparently, was waiting for them.

The clearing of jewelry seems to have become the vogue. One of the most successful men in this line was a "nigger" who got employment as an elevator man or attendant in fashionable apartment houses. Having learned the habits of the residents he would quit his position without notice, taking with him amounts of jewelry ranging in value from $2,000 to $10,000. He made the mistake, however, of confining his activities to the west side and was finally caught.

The frequency of hold-up incidents in daylight in crowded sections of the city is causing alarm, and has led the police to surmise that an organized band of most desperate criminals has made its headquarters for the winter in New York. It is considered probable that the three men who held up and shot the bookkeeper Saturday were the same who, on November 26, held up the wholesale fur establishment of A. E. Pines & Co., at No. 29 West Twenty-sixth Street. While two of the robbers with revolvers held back the crowd on the sidewalk a third, carrying out several arm loads of furs, placed them in a waiting automobile, in which the three escaped after they had shot Home Pines, a nephew of the proprietor, who attempted to remonstrate. It is estimated that recent robberies in silk alone have amounted to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Overworked Letters.

The avalanche of initials and initial combinations which the war has added to our pre-war collection has proved a severe strain upon our alphabets; with the result that we are perplexed by innumerable doubles, and even triples. "E.F." ones stood prominently for Member of Parliament; now it stands equally for Military Police (not to mention mines pie). "C.B." is confined to Barracks rather than the letters "C.B." which may signify "Commanding Officer or Con-

careless Objector.

Inverted they give Officer Commanding or "Old Contemptibles." To attach "R.A." to your name does not necessarily imply you can paint. It may imply Royal Artillery, and that you can shoot. "W.O." used to mean walk-over. It does still in a sense; but it is the walk-over of the War Office that comes to our mind. And imagine confounding the Army Ordnance Department with the Ancient Order of Druids! "A.O.D." signifies either. Perhaps "P.O." is the hardest-worked combination of all. It stands for Privy Councillor and Police Constable, Parish Council and Perpetual Curate, postcard and petty cash, prices current and Pelham Committee. To which may be added pie-crust, pushcart, parish church, poor chap, and pickled cabbage!

Crushed By Train

Express last night, Michael Spruce Brook, arrived at treatment. A couple of days working with the Red Cross had one of his legs crushed. Upon arrival last night he was conveyed to take his leg and none to receive him. Only removed from the train by police secured a board for him.
