To have a room properly ventilated, the air should be cool, but not cold. For sedentary work such as is done in schoolrooms and offices, a temperature between 65 and 68 degrees F. is found to be most suitable. BIG MEN COME FROM SMALL TOWNS

The Stirling News-Argus contained two items in its news columns last week which substantiate the assertion that many of our leading men in the big cities of to-day came from the small towns and villages.

Often the small town is held up to ridicule by some thoughtless persons who do not realize that in the rural sections and the country towns the best stamina of the nation's life is produced against adversity and disadvantages.

BIBLE THOUGHTS

For the Week

THOU SHALT LOVE THE LORD thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbors as thyself.—Luke 10: 27.

LOVE, JOY, PEACE, LONGSUFFERING, GENTLENESS, GOODNESS, FAITH, MEERNESS, TEMPERANCE: AGAINST SUCH THERE IS NO LAW.—Gal. 5:22,23.

SEEK YE THE LORD WHILE HE MAY BE FOUND, CALL YE UPON HIM WHILE HE IS NEAR.—Isaiah 55:6.

LET THIS MIND BE IN YOU, which was also in Christ Jesus. Let nothing be done through strife or rivalry; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves.—Philippians 2:5, 3.

TRUST IN THE LORD with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths.—Prov. 3:5, 6.

SHEW ME THY WAYS, O Lord, teach me thy paths. Let integrity and uprightness preserve me: for I wait on thee.—Psalm 25:4, 21.

A MAN THAT HATH FRIENDS must shew himself friendly: and there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother.—Proverbs 18:24.

"Squibographs"

The New Year's exercise of balancing the annual budget calls for the poise and agility of a tight-rope walker.

Motorists who try to get by with expired license plates may be reminded that they have got the wrong number.

Farmers are more interested in watching the price of wheat go up than the mercury in the thermometer drop.

The estimated wealth of the inmates of an eastern prison runs into the millions. Most of their capital is locked up in "key" industries.

Laundry owners are said to be anxiously awaiting the result of Luther Burbank's experiments to develop a skirtless grapefruit.

Poisoned liquor across the border may save a thirsty few the trouble of swearing off New Year's. They will not be among those present.

George Bernard Shaw has gone to Madeira to take sun baths. Some of his critics are cruel enough to say that he is already "half-baked."

A cross-word puzzle tournament is being arranged between two picked Michigan teams. Unabridged dictionaries are to be awarded the winners.

Lettuce-growers in California complain that they are losing money. One head of lettuce can garnish dishes in a restaurant for a week and then be served as a salad.

Some day a department store Santa Claus may write a book on the inquisitiveness of youth.

A Fostoria man holds the suspended record, having worn the same pair continuously for forty-two years.

Undertakers, barbers and men of other trades having adopted more euphonic names for their businesses. New York chambermaids have formed a union designated as "Women Hotel Assistants."

During the present temperature the recent decision of the Privy Council permitting railway excursions to the bathing beaches on Sunday in Manitoba is not exciting much interest.

Burbank, the "plant wizard", is reported to have developed a new variety of table corn. If it can be partaken of on the cob without causing comment it will be popular with a host of consumers.

Sign on a Chicago restaurant: "You can't stand the cold on a diet of cream puffs. Come in and get a warm meal."

MacDuff may "lay on" but the hens have decided to "lay off" until more genial weather conditions prevail. The breakfast staple promises to be a luxury until the weather ban on production is raised.

New York health authorities attribute the recent outbreak of typhoid in that city to eating tainted oysters. It is doubtful if the bivalves served in an ordinary restaurant "stew" are numerous enough to cause any serious physical disturbance.

Housewives may be interested in a recent addition to the list of Christmas delicacies. An Ohio chef has invented a spiffy little pie composed of escalloped sauerkraut, with a peanut accompaniment plus onion meringue. It is a he man's contribution to the kitchen lore of the land. All the designer asks is volunteers to eat the first one.

"Sheiks" and "lounge lizards" in London now have a chance to earn a little easy money. Several fashionable tailors are reported to have adopted the plan of demonstrating their garments on male mannequins.

The Ohio man who was held up on the highway by a bandit who relieved him of his money and car and drove off with the victim's wife and four children, is now afraid that the robber may come back after his house and garage.

A health specialist says that ten minutes a day of correct exercise is sufficient to keep the body in good physical condition. The man who stokes his furnace before breakfast may consider the basement exercise equivalent to the "daily dozen".

RADIO PRIZE ESSAY

WRITTEN BY HOWARD WAUGH IMPERIAL, SASK.

"The Advantages of Radio in the Saskatchewan Home."

Radio, which was looked upon as a mere fad three or four years ago, has come to be a feature of the daily life of thousands of people on this continent, who look to the broadcasting stations for daily news bulletins and musical entertainments in their far-flung homes.

Radio, therefore supplies something for every member of the family at the fireside and has many real uses. Enlarging upon this last statement, we will readily agree that the commercial use to which the radio is put is the most important of any to the Saskatchewan farmer in particular.

Another, and by far the more common manner in which the radio is utilized in the home is for pleasure or entertainment during the long winter evenings, in which the members of the family strive, as a rule, to get amusement outside of the home altogether, which often are very expensive as well as demoralizing.

An still another fact is that the radio will revolutionize present day methods of education, and will gradually reduce ignorance to a point never before dreamed of. This is the prediction of the leading educators of the country; and without dealing with the technical features which, it is believed, can be overcome, the educators think that radio could be used in these ways to increase knowledge—firstly, by the broadcasting of school sessions for the benefit of the old and young who are unable to attend; secondly,—by college courses and night schools by radio; and lastly, by the broadcasting of popular lectures on health and education.

Radio has a wonderful influence, also, along religious lines which tend towards good, as is shown by the Rev. Mr. McIntyre's statement, which says, "We believe that the radio is one of God's most wonderful gifts to man," and when we read this, "I am helpless and blind and the only way I can hear any religious service is by radio," we cannot but express our own thankfulness to the genius Marconi that this great blessing has come into the world.

Other uses of the radio are as a convenience to passengers on trains and on board ships, and it is said that "the north land would be lost without radio."

As a means of keeping posted on the progress of mankind, radio is unequalled, and it also has a broadening influence; the man who can swing from Cleveland to New York, to Montreal, and to Regina, in five minutes must inevitably lose some of his narrow minded instincts which would be for the good of our country.

Howard Waugh, age 13 years.

HEALTH NOTES

Eating too much or too little is wrong, and leads to all sorts of trouble. In the matter of health there is probably nothing of such vital importance as food. Indeed, it has been authoritatively stated that the duration of life depends, to a large extent, on the kinds of food we eat.

How much food does the average individual need for the complete nourishment of his body? That is a vital question, for as has already been said, too much food or too little food is harmful. Of the two, overeating is the most common, and leads to indigestion in its various forms, liver and kidney diseases, gout, arthritis, some of forms of eczema and a general disinclination to mental and physical exertion especially in very fat people.

The evils of under-eating include lack of energy and strength, lack of stored-up power for emergencies, loss of weight, anaemia, imperfect growth, deficiency diseases, the less direct effects of sleeplessness, sensitiveness to cold, and mental depression and irritability. These occur not only in the evidently starving, but in people whose diet is ill-chosen.

How much then, shall a person eat? Generally speaking, just so much that from year to year the body keeps in good condition for its work, and maintains a fairly constant weight, and one bearing a proper proportion to height.

One feature of dieting becoming more and more apparent is that when a person gets fat it is because he is eating too much food that produces fat, and when a person loses weight, it is because he is not getting enough flesh-forming food. There are other causes of overweight and underweight, but in the main the question is purely one of how much food and what kinds of food are eaten. Added to this, of course, is temperament, amount of exercise taken, and the kind of life one leads. All these must be taken into account in deciding how much food is required, but again an index of this can in most cases be supplied by the physical condition of the person from day to day, and how his weight is maintained.

As a general rule, people eat too much, and especially too much meat. The diet should include a large amount of foods in their natural state, that is, raw, uncooked food, such as the leafy vegetables and fresh fruits, which contain some of the essential vitamins.

But above all things, the diet must be balanced, that is, must contain the essential amounts of heat-producing, fat-producing and muscle-producing ingredients, stabilized by vitamins which co-ordinate nutrition.

"YES! IT'S THE CASE"

Right Here in Watford Plenty of People Postpone Payment on Provisions Permanently

The writer happened in upon one of the merchants of the town the other day and saw him laboring over his books. "What are you doing there, making out your income tax returns?" "No," said the merchant, "I'm just sending out a few reminders to the poor sports who won't come in and settle up for what they owe." This is the case with nearly all the merchants in the small towns of Ontario to-day, they are laboring under a heavy disadvantage compared with the big mail order houses and other large firms that do a C.O. D. trade.

If everybody paid their debts promptly the average businessman would have a much easier time doing business and could sell his goods for less money. For verification of this statement, ask any Watford business man; he knows. Is it any wonder that there has been so many failures in all lines of retail business the past few years? Money has been scarce enough, but when a business has to be run on the goodwill of some members of the public who think nothing of running up a large "charge account" and seldom remember to pay up, it puts the merchant in a very bad position.

Human nature is the same the wide world over, and therefore a news item from a southern city will be as much appreciated here as there. Even though they might not care to give their endorsement as a regular practice, honest folk will not be wanting in sympathy for the unusual courage taken by a Hagerstown, Md., grocer to explain his insolvency. Smarting under the sting of having been forced into bankruptcy, the man posted on his front door a list of persons who he declared owed him money and stated that if they had paid their debts he would have been able to pay his. "These people forced me into bankruptcy," said the sign over the names. In the list were the names of some of the prominent housewives of the town. They were naturally but not righteously indignant, and about twenty of the women stormed the shop and tore the sign down.

Weak Digestion Due to Poor Blood

Perfect Digestion Will Come if the Blood is Made Rich and Red

There is no tonic for the stomach that is not a tonic for every other part of the body. But the stomach depends, as does every other organ, on the blood for its energy.

There can be no perfect digestion unless you have rich red blood. This is scientifically true. The way, then, to tone up the stomach is to enrich the blood.

Most stomach remedies try to digest your food for you. How much better it is to tone up the stomach so that it will do its own work, as nature intended. There is no pleasure in eating predigested food. Tone up your stomach, then your appetite and digestion will soon be normal.

If your digestion is weak and your blood thin, you need Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to restore the strength to your blood in addition use care in the selection of your diet and your stomach trouble will soon pass away. Mrs. Charles La Rose, Fruitland, Ont., suffered severely and tells what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for her. She says:—"I was a terrible sufferer from stomach trouble. The doctor called it nervous indigestion. Everything I ate distressed me, and I became so weak and rundown I could hardly walk. I had a pain around my heart most of the time, and I slept very poorly. I was afraid I would not get well, as the doctor's medicine was not helping me. In this serious condition Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended and I decided to try them, and I can truthfully say that they made me feel like a new person. I will always give this medicine a word of praise when I get a chance for I think there is nothing to be compared with it for dyspepsia, or any one weak, nervous or rundown."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

An Oil that is Prized Everywhere—Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil was put upon the market without any flourish over fifty years ago. It was put up to meet the wants of a small section but as soon as its merits became known it had a whole continent for a field, and it is now known and prized throughout this continent. There is nothing equal to it.

Calgary and Banff to Unite in Carnival

Banff. Immediately one conjures up visions of the Bow River, the Valley, sunny skies, warm days, summer dresses, ponies, excursions into the snow capped mountains, swimming in the pools, hiking boots, breeks and bathing suits. There are a thousand pleasant memories of Banff in summer time. Comparatively few however, have any idea of this mountain resort in winter. The thought at this season gives us a chilly feeling perhaps. Yet, after all, having leisure, what better place could be found in which to spend a long or short vacation after snow has fallen. Cold? Certainly no more so than down on the plains where what winds there are sweep uninterrupted.

Sheltered by the rocky slopes on practically all sides, high and with a drier atmosphere, the frost there gives an invigorating touch that stimulates life and activity where elsewhere the country sleeps through the winter. As Quebec is to the East, so, perhaps even to a greater degree, is Banff to the West. The home of Winter Sports.

Instead of going to sleep, the little town of Banff comes to life with the coming of snow. One event and community effort follows the other, and a long list of sporting activities culminates in February with a huge seven day carnival in which all citizens and hundreds of enthusiasts from all parts of the World, take part.

It will only be the case of a very few years until tourists arrange their trips to take in the Carnival at Banff as they now visit New Orleans in March for the Mardi Gras, or Pasadena for the Rose Tournament. Apart from the glorious scenery, it is a perfect winter playground.

Preparations are even now under way for the next winter Carnival. This, to be held from February 7th to 14th inclusive, is planned to be the greatest yet. Calgary enthusiasts have decided to cancel their own carnival arrangements and to unite with the Banff citizens to make it a success. A very comprehensive program of sports has already been drawn up covering events in curling, skating, snow-shoeing, ski running and jumping, ski-joring, tobogganning, trap-shooting, sleighing, and swimming in the hot sulphur pools. For none of these sports could the setting or the conveniences be excelled.

For the adventurous visitor Lake Minnewanka offers ice-yachting. Dog-sled races are a never failing source of interest. These races are often run down the main street, and, as in other sports, it is often a case of the best dog being beaten as a great deal of comedy is played. It often happens that an over anxious or jealous contestant grabs an opponent in any convenient place and in the ensuing mixup any old hound can waddle home an easy winner. But its all in the game; and the game at Banff is the out-door game—with dancing, cards or concerts in which each one plays a part in the evening.

SARNIA

The Sarnia board of health faces a knotty problem at its next meeting in deciding if 30 children, who were absent from city schools all last term, shall be permitted to attend at the coming term. Parents of these children refused to have them submit to the board of health's compulsory vaccination order, and are apparently intending to continue their defiance if necessary. At the last board of education meeting Edgar Mills, who was elected to the board largely by anti-vaccinationists asked the board to take up the matter, but that body declined to intercede with the health board. Mr. Mills said he understood that the provincial board of health had intimated to local authorities that the ban against the 30 children might be lifted. Dr. Logie, medical health officer for the city, when asked today if such a communication had been received, said there was no statement for the public until after the next meeting of the health board.

The story told by the financial support of the Farmers' Sun Publishing Company should give the public some little insight into tremendous cost of publishing newspaper, and hard it is to make a paying investment. The Farmers' Sun, doing a business of $100,000 a year, went behind $30,000. The Farmers' Sun is weekly newspaper, but no than hundreds of other weekly papers. But it could not pay expenses. During the past five over one hundred weekly new have ceased publication in Canada and some eight or ten daily papers have also ceased to be published. The cost of a printing plant is times what it was ten years ago. The cost of paper likewise. The of this tremendous increase of publication, the cost to the scriber necessarily advanced. Guide-Advocate at $2.00 is less than it was ten years ago $1.00, and there are no indications that costs will decrease.

Barrie has increased its transient traders' license fee from $100 to $150. How does this compare with Watford's $50 rate

It is unofficially announced that the Ontario Legislature will open on February 17th. The coming session promises to be one of the liveliest in recent years.

Have we turned the corner of hard times? It is hoped so, anyway. One of the signs of the times that augurs well is the re-opening of the Frost & Wood plant at Smiths Falls.

Farmers, rural mail carriers, game wardens and others are urged to feed quail, which are reported starving throughout the county. Farmers are urged to put scratch food, such as alfalfa and screenings on the snow for the quail.

A 54 lb. turkey raised in Western Ontario sold in 1924 for $3.78. At prices paid for turkeys this year he would have brought $23.20, or as much as one would have to pay for a milch cow twenty-five years ago. There are a few things that farmers do not sell at lower prices today than twenty years ago.

Thanks!

Petrolia Advertiser-Topic: "The Watford Guide-Advocate, last week, rounded out its fiftieth year, most of which were under the direction of the late Thomas Harris. The present editor and proprietor, W. C. Aylesworth, is young and ambitious and under his guidance we hope to see the G. A. flourish like the green bay tree."

Professor Kingston has issued a warning not to look through a telescope in January, as there are many cases where eyegight has been lost entirely by looking at the sun through a telescope. The sight goes immediately and there is apparently no cure. If you want to see the eclipse on the morning of January 24 next, use a piece of smoked glass that's all you'll need.

Under the proposed new tax on gasoline the province stands to collect $1,600,000. Last year there were 80,000,000 gallons of gasoline consumed by cars, trucks and motor cycles, of which there are 278,752 in the province. The proposed two-cent tax will not effect the oil companies or the distributors, as the two cent will be paid by the car owners. It is anticipated that the increase in the number of gas-driven vehicles in the province this year will be more than 20 per cent. over last year. The Department of Highways expects that within a year or two the taxes derived from garages will be turned over to municipalities. It is also expected that a tax will be placed on carters who haul goods for long distances in competition with express companies and railways.

The story told by the financial report of the Farmers' Sun Publishing Company should give the general public some little insight into the tremendous cost of publishing a newspaper, and hard it is to make it a paying investment. The Farmers' Sun, doing a business of nearly $100,000 a year, went behind nearly $30,000. The Farmers' Sun is a good weekly newspaper, but no better than hundreds of other weekly newspapers. But it could not pay running expenses. During the past five years over one hundred weekly newspapers have ceased publication in Ontario, and some eight or ten daily newspapers have also ceased to publish. The cost of a printing plant is many times what it was ten years ago, and the cost of paper likewise. In view of this tremendous increase in cost of publication, the cost to the subscriber necessarily advanced. The Guide-Advocate at $2.00 is less profitable than it was ten years ago at $1.00, and there are no indications that costs will decrease.

Ten years ago, when Canadians stepped into the gaps on the Western Front and held the line at Festubert, Givenchy and Ypres, and the whole world was filled with indignation and horror at the appalling atrocities perpetrated by the devilish Huns, each and every Canadian, young and old, up and down the length and breadth of Canada, swore that the day would surely come when the accursed Hun would be brought to his knees with more than "Kamerad" on his lips; when the War Lord and his Cabinet of Junkers would be brought before an international court of justice. Every article stamped "Made in Germany" was shunned as if a plague or an evil talisman and Britishers resolved to never again have truck nor trade with the Germans. How short our memory seems to be! Today we go about the shops choosing German made goods in preference to articles made by our own Canadian war cripples—men to whom the war is not over and in seeking to re-establish themselves as self-sustaining Canadian citizens, we refuse them the support they deserve for what they have done for us. Merchants tell us they must buy German goods to meet the demand for lowest prices on toys, nic-nacs, etc. Germany with her country in chaos, her currency gone, certainly appreciates our generosity in buying their goods; and giving them our good Canadian dollars—worth one hundred cents the world over! How many of us realize that people who are now buying German-made goods are helping to pay for the 40,000 rifles and machine gun barrels which the Allies have discovered in Berlin. Evidently the "me und Gott" spirit is just as prevalent in the Teuton make up as it ever was in the past. It will be time enough to deal with the Germans as if they were civilized when they stop piling up munitions of war which means that at the psychological moment they will endeavor again to make "cannon fodder" of millions more young men the world over. England and France should watch closely every movement of the treacherous Hun.

MRS. SUSAN GENGE

Alvinston, Jan. 7.—The death occurred suddenly at the home of her daughter in Kitchener on Monday of Susan Eccles, widow of Daniel Genge, well-known undertaker and furniture dealer here for a number of years.

News of the death came as a shock to her many friends here, although it was known she had been in ill-health for the past year. She was feeling as well as usual and was able to be around. Deceased had lived here practically all her life. She was in her 62nd year and leaves one daughter, Mrs. Samuel Howard, of Kitchener; also one sister and one brother, Mrs. P. Hoig and Dr. Eccles, both of Blissfield, Mich. The funeral was held from the home of her brother-in-law, P. A. McDiarmid, River street, Wednesday, interment taking place in Alvinston Cemetery.

FORMER RESIDENT DEAD

There passed away on Sunday, Jan. 6th, in Bridgen, a former resident of Watford in the person of Mrs. Eliza Leacock, in her 80th year, relict of the late Thomas Leacock who pre-deceased her six years ago. The family left Watford 44 years ago and will be well remembered by the older residents of this community, having lived in Warwick Village before coming to Watford. Mrs. Leacock leaves to mourn her loss three sons and five daughters. The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon to Bridgen cemetery. Several relatives from Watford and vicinity attended the service.

MRS. WM. BROWNLEE

The funeral of Mrs. Wm. Brownlee, aged 86 years, who died suddenly took place Wednesday of last week. Interment was made in Wyoming cemetery, Rev. W. J. H. Petter officiating. Mrs. Brownlee for many years lived in a small house near Wark's mill. Recently Wm. Dolbear, of Alvinston, a distant relative, invited her to spend the winter with them as it was becoming unsafe for her to live alone. She was in her usual health and sitting in her arm chair when a member of the family discovered she had passed away suddenly without any previous symptoms. Mrs. Brownlee was an active church worker in her early life and was always ready to help the sick and the afflicted. Her husband pre-deceased her several years ago. She is survived by one son, Herbert, who lives in Nova Scotia.

Little Church Around Corner

New York's "Church of the Transfiguration" recently celebrated an anniversary which has given occasion for numerous articles concerning the incident which changed its name to "The Little Church Around the Corner" and lifted it from obscurity to become the best known church in America, and the religious home of the acting profession. The incident has been related often, and at least once before in this column, but an article by George MacAdam in the New York Times tells the whole story for the first time. That is the excuse for repeating it here. It was in May, 1870, that a benefit performance was given for George Holland, an actor born in England, who had delighted hundreds of thousands of people in his time, but had fallen upon lean times in his old age. A few days before Christmas he died, and the duty of arranging for the burial devolved upon Joe Jefferson, one of his oldest friends. He was buried from the Church of the Transfiguration and the newspapers reported the services.

A week later the Evening Telegram announced that the Rev. William T. Sabine, rector of the Church of the Atonement, had refused to bury Holland because he had been an actor. A controversy arose that swept the country, and to which nearly every newspaper, and it would seem, most readers, had some opinion to contribute. Reporters were sent to Jefferson, to Rev. Dr. Houghton, rector of the Church of the Transfiguration, and Rev. Dr. Sabine, of the Church of the Atonement. Their stories did not differ in the main, though there were one or two details that varied. It was established that Jefferson had gone to Dr. Sabine because some of Holland's relatives attended his church and the dead actor was an Episcopalian. It occurred to Jefferson, who was accompanied by one of the dead man's sons that he should mention to the clergyman the fact that Holland had been an actor. To this Mr. Sabine replied that he had a distaste for officiating at such a funeral, but that he was willing to bury the deceased from his house.

Later he admitted to a New York Times reporter that there was nothing in the laws of the church to forbid the burying of an actor from the church, but he said that as he had always advised his congregation to keep away from the theatres because no moral lesson was taught by them, it would have been inconsistent to bury the actor. Jefferson said that when Dr. Sabine refused he was shocked and mortified, chiefly on account of the young man who had to hear his loving father treated as a reprobate. As they rose to leave the room the actor asked if there was no other church that might aid him in his dilemma. To this the rector replied in the memorable words that there was a little church around the corner that might oblige him. The preacher had read in the newspapers of actors being buried from the Church of the Transfiguration. "Then if this be so," quoth Jefferson, "God bless the little church around the corner!" The clergyman said that Jefferson had not used these words, but had said, "All credit to that little church." It is highly probable that the ecclesiastical version of the conversation rather than the dramatic one, is correct.

We quote from Mr. MacAdam's article: "A wave of angry protest swept the country. In the newspapers there were editorials, letters to the editor, special articles and poems, a whole sheaf of them, singing the praises of 'the little church around the corner' and re-echoing Joe Jefferson's benediction.

"Undoubtedly the popularity of George Holland had something to do with the intensity of the protest; so also had the fact that the refusal of the rites of Christian burial came at the Christmas season, a time when kindness and brotherliness are in the hearts of men.

"But the protest voiced something deeper, stronger, than emotionalism. It was a rebuke to intolerance, to bigotry.

"The New York Times (then an eight-page paper) gave a half column upon the front page to the account of Sabine's refusal under the headline, 'Pharisaical Delicacy.' On the same day (Dec. 29) this newspaper also printed an editorial that almost filled a column, entitled 'A Sample of Priestly Intolerance.'

"We may think what we please of any man's profession during his life—but to follow him with resentment after death on account of it, to pronounce a decree that he is fit only for the bottomless pit and that no word of a Redeemer's love or of the resurrection should be pronounced over his grave—there is something so horrible in all this that we can scarcely believe it has really occurred in our own day and our own city."

The poets also tuned their lyres and at least one song inspired by the incident remained a favorite "for the piano and parlor" for a generation.

On January 13 all the theatres in New York threw open their doors in a great testimonial to Holland, and incidentally a rebuke to Sabine. All the noted stars volunteered their services. It was perhaps the most remarkable day in the history of New York theatres. Poor Sabine! He had few to speak for him. He had been tried of intolerance and found guilty. He had also been guilty of offering a wholesale insult to the members of the theatrical profession. One of the leading Episcopal clergymen of the day said that Sabine had acted silly, but conscientiously, and that there was not a worthier young man in the Christian church.

CZAR OF BASEBALL WORLD.

Judge Landis Straightened Out Big League Tangle.

A great personality in sport recently visited Toronto. This is Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, czar of the baseball world, who looked over the local game and had a round of golf on the side. It was when the baseball leagues of the republic were getting out of hand by various get-rich-quick routes that Judge Landis, known for his courage and independence, was asked in 1921 to act as baseball commissioner and straighten things out, and keep them straight. At that time he was a Federal Judge in Chicago, but early in 1922 he resigned from the Bench to give his whole time to baseball. His salary of $42,500 enabled him to give the work the necessary time. He had not been long in office before his authority was tested. Babe Ruth, mightiest of home-run sluggers; Bob Meusel and Bill Piercy, members of the New York Yankees, had gone barnstorming, in violation of the rules. The Judge fined them the sum of their world's series shares and suspended them for more than a month at the start of the spring season.

Judge Landis had plenty of fame before he took to judging baseball. It came overnight, when in 1907 he fined the Standard Oil Company of Indiana $29,240,000 in a rebate case. The fine was unprecedented in American court annals. It was never paid, however, as the Supreme Court reversed the decision. The amount of the fine, it might be mentioned, was 29 times the amount of the company's capital.

During the World War Judge Landis, who is a great patriot, tried William D. ("Big Bill") Haywood and 103 other members of the I.W.W., and a group of Milwaukee Socialists for obstructing war preparations. Haywood and 93 of the I.W.W. were convicted, "Big Bill" fleeing to Russia and the other going to prison. The Socialists were convicted, but got a new trial. Some time after the trial of the I.W.W. a bomb was exploded at the door of the Court House where Judge Landis was sitting, the entrance being wrecked. In court he was a picturesque figure, with his abundant white hair, clean-cut profile and piercing eyes. This was backed up by a ready wit and broad sense of humor, but a steady seriousness which he applied to get the truth from witnesses who resisted the lawyers.

You will ask where Judge Landis got his odd name. He was born in Ohio in 1866, and named for Kenesaw Mountain, near Atlanta, Ga., where his father was wounded in the Civil War. The family moved to Logansport, Ind., in 1875, where the boys worked on a farm and the father judge carried a route for a local paper. He graduated in law in Chicago in 1901 and kept close to it until he entered the baseball world.

Duel In a Park.
A great duel was recently fought in Richmond Park, near London, in which both the warriors lost their lives.

The challenger was a young and powerful descendant of a warrior race that lived in England in the time of the Conqueror, and the challenge was accepted by another champion scarcely less strong and fearless. The duellists were two powerful fallow bucks, and they fought for the favor of a doe.

It was a terrible fight. The animals rushed at one another in fits, stamping and snorting, and antlers crashed against antler and fell mercilessly on flank and neck till both duellists were covered with blood and foam.

One was more powerful or more skilful than his opponent, and forced him back and toward the lake, where the fight was continued furiously in the water until it was churned into muddy foam.

Then they sprang apart and once more charged, beads down, until their antlers were locked in a fatal embrace. They staggered and fell, the waters close over them, and only a projecting flank marked their watery grave.

Words With Changed Meanings.
If we wish to label anything strange or barbarous we say it is "outlandish," but when the Bible speaks of an "outlandish woman" it means a foreigner.

Another curious expression in the Authorized Version is "The other basket had very naughty figs." That means fruit which was good for naught. To-day the word "naughty" means "ill-behaved." In the Prayer Book the word "presently" means "at the present time," but to-day it always means a future time, though not far distant.

When the Authorized Version of the Scriptures was first printed the word "careful" meant "full of care and anxiety," as in "careworn," but if a man were said to be careful it would to-day be a good testimonial. Thus, when the New Testament tells us to "be careful for nothing," it is not enjoining wastefulness and speaking against thrift, but simply telling us not to worry about anything.

WATER IN FARM HOUSES

Hints About Installing In the Rural Household

The Compression System—What You May Enjoy With This Method—The Agricultural College Will Help You—Raising Ducks.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

There are two main sources of farm water supply, namely, well and spring (both hard water) and rain water (soft). Anyone thinking of installing a modern water system and plumbing in his home should make sure that his water supply is both plentiful and safely protected from all possible sources of contamination. Much more water will be used daily under modern than under old conditions of service, about 30 gallons per person per day.

The College Will Help You.

Ask the O. A. College to assist you in solving the following problems in this matter of water supply:

1. How to increase the well and spring supplies of water.
 2. How to safeguard these supplies from surface contamination.
 3. How to make more use of the rain water supply.
 4. How to get that fine spring water running through your house and stables by installing the hydraulic ram near the springs.
- Pumping and carrying water by hand is too expensive at modern rates of wages, is very inconvenient, and is wasteful of time and energy. No one likes the job. It is rapidly going out of date wherever people are getting acquainted with the more modern pumping and supply systems.

The Compression System.

The Compression System is the most popular one to-day. The idea is this: The hard or soft water, as the case may be, is pumped into a large strong air-tight metal tank to about two-thirds full. The water compresses the original air in the tank and thereby produces sufficient pressure to force the water out of the tank through a pipe line that connects to the sinks, closet, bathtub, etc., in the house. The pump may be driven by hand, gasoline engine, windmill or electric motor or any available power. The last named means is the preferable one because the pumping is carried on automatically, is quiet in operation, economical of space, and a fresh water line that supplies water direct from the well for drinking purposes may be installed. The style and size of the pump required depends on whether the well is shallow or deep. The size of the tank depends on the amount of water required about the place. An outfit large enough for the ordinary-sized family or household costs about $175.00, piping, connecting system to well and to the various fixtures in the house being extra.

What You May Enjoy With This System.

1. Have complete plumbing system in your home. That means hard and soft water on tap in the kitchen, bath (tub or shower or both), and an indoor sanitary water closet, which will dispense with the outside privy. These conveniences stand for comfort, convenience, saving of labor and time, better health and greater efficiency or fitness for work and enjoyment.
2. Lawn and garden water service to keep home surroundings attractive.
3. Water under pressure is very useful and convenient for washing the automobile, washing outside of windows, cleaning floors in cellar or stables, putting out fires if reached in time.
4. No longer any need to pump and carry water. Another burden is rolled away.

Different makes of this system are on exhibition in the Physics Building, O. A. College, Guelph. They are properly set up and in good working order. Drop in and see them work and get more information about them.—R. R. Graham, Physics Dept., O. A. College, Guelph.

Raising Ducks.
After hatching, in about one day's time, place before them bread and milk mixed together, and a pan of sand and water. Be sure your ducklings get sand and water at starting. Ducks will thrive if water is before them all the time. It is their nature to want water. After a few days on bread and milk add bran or fine corn meal or fine cracked corn to the bread and milk. Always use milk to mix duck feed.

As the ducks grow older feed cracked corn and wheat. At younger age corn bread and milk is good for a change in feed. Let the ducks have green feed also. If you do not want them out of pens gather green feed yourself for them. Do not keep ducks shut up except at night. Let them in the creek and watch them to keep crows away. Be careful of turtles in creeks also.

When ducks are nearly feathered out feed whole corn mixed with some cracked corn. Then at last whole corn and wheat altogether. They will not want to eat it at first, but do not feed them too much and they'll eat it. Feed ducks three times a day, like ourselves.

CLOTHES MAKE THE MAN.

Girl Worked for Over Ten Years as a "Waiter."

Is it possible to imagine a more amazing life-story than that of the young woman whose recent death disclosed the secret that she had spent the last ten years of her life as "waiter" in a London restaurant. Not even the most imaginative novelist could conceive this idea and carry it, logically and unemotionally, to its proper conclusion—death. Fancy cannot reach as far, and fiction looks a fool!

"Ernest Wood" kept her amazing secret for ten years. She was a slight, attractive youth, a clever "waiter," working and living in the same quarters as the men.

She would often talk jokingly of her "girls," and one girl who responded to the "waiter's" smile said, after "his" death, that he seemed to know so much about girls, their thoughts and vagaries, that she had often been amazed at "his" cleverness.

And then death broadcasts her secret, kept so zealously and so well. More amazing still, perhaps, is the unique and incredible story of a man, the Chevalier D'Eon, who spent his life alternately as a cavalry officer and a Court "beauty."

The story of the Chevalier D'Eon is, in fact, so strange that it would be rightly unbelievable but for the authentic records in diaries and museums that prove it to the hilt.

About 1763, after a distinguished army career, the Chevalier D'Eon was sent to England from the Court of Louis XV., as temporary French Ambassador to the Court of George III.

He remained in England several years. Suddenly, one bright morning—as the novelists have it—a lawsuit took place which, to say the least of it, startled the country. A man, on evidence that seemed to him conclusive, betted a wager that the chevalier was a woman, and brought an action to recover the amount of the bet. A great deal of evidence, much more curious than edifying, was brought forward, and it was maintained by the defendant that the case ought to be dismissed as a gambling, indecent, and unnecessary proceeding.

D'Eon from that moment began to be known as Madame D'Eon, and assumed female attire.

"She" gave as her reason that she had chosen a boy's career in order to advance her prospects in life. When a "young man" she was introduced to the Prince Conti, who introduced her to Louis XV. Louis at that time wanted to form an alliance with Russia—a difficult task that needed a little preliminary intrigue. D'Eon was selected for the delicate position.

Report has it that Louis was made acquainted with the real sex of the chevalier. Be this as it may, D'Eon made two distinct visits to Russia, the first time dressed as a woman—a remarkably pretty and fascinating woman—the second time as a man, unrecognized as his "former self."

So well did he succeed in his political mission that he received a pension for life, together with a lieutenancy in the Dragoons from Louis. Betts to the amount of £70,000 depending on the question of his sex were made during his lifetime. From 1775 till the time of his death, in 1810, he resided in England, wearing the high powdered wigs and flowing satin skirts of the period, a handsome middle-aged woman, the subject of innumerable rumors, duels and monetary losses, by speculative acquaintances.

At length the newspapers announced the death of "the famous Chevalier D'Eon," in Millman Street Foundling Hospital. The country was agog; but was so thick it might have been a glorified Derby Day.

And then, and not till then, was it properly known that he was really and properly Chevalier D'Eon, who had so often and so successfully, and for reasons so little known, passed himself off as a woman.

Surely beside this astounding case that of "Ernest Wood" is completely eclipsed.

Never Felt So Cheap.
A good story comes from New York concerning Mr. Woolworth—he who built the famous skyscraper there that is named after him, and who studied all America and a good part of Europe with cheap shops.

When he was a young man he appeared to give evidence against a prisoner in one of the city courts. It appeared that the accused was supposed to have committed a robbery, and the police had chased him over several roofs. Just as he was about to make good his escape—crash!—he went through a skylight into one of Woolworth's "Five and Ten Cent Stores."

He landed plumb amongst a lot of goods, and the first thing he made out on recovering his wits was the sign: "Everything on this counter five cents."

"I never felt so cheap in my life," he remarked ruefully to the judge, who was so delighted with the prisoner's ready wit that he let him off with a light sentence.

GRETNA GREEN ROMANCES.

Romantic Record as the Scene of Runaway Marriages.

Gretna Green has had a romantic record as the scene of runaway marriages, as shown when a rich bit of its records was sold recently in London. This was a thick manuscript volume in Russian gilt and a bulky parcel of marriage certificates forming a complete record of the Gretna Green marriages performed by John Linton, who kept the Gretna Green Inn between 1825 and 1954. Two years later runaway marriages in Scotland were stopped by act of Parliament, which required that one of the contracting parties must reside in Scotland three weeks before the event.

Gretna Green is on the Scottish side of the border, in Dumfriesshire, and it was for a century the resort of runaway English couples. Up to 1754 clandestine marriages were performed in the Fleet Prison, in London. When the couples crossed the border it was easy going, for they only needed to declare in the presence of witnesses that they desired to marry. At Gretna Green the ceremony was usually performed by the blacksmith, but the tollkeeper, ferryman, or, in fact, any person, might officiate. The fee varied from half a guinea to "a sum as large as impudence could extort or extravagance could bestow." As many as 207 couples were married at the tollhouse in a year.

The records, recently sold by a descendant for £280, showed that Linton's house was the most popular for eloping couples. One of the strangest marriages recorded was that of Prince Carlo Ferdinando Borbone, the brother of the infamous King Ferdinand II. of Naples, in 1836, with an Irish girl. This couple were married four times, at Rome, Madrid, at Gretna Green and finally at St. George's, Hanover Square, the last marriage apparently because London society was not convinced that they were married already.

A remarkable elopement was that of Lord Drumlanrig, afterward the Marquis of Queensberry, with Caroline Clayton, as the lovers, instead of using the conventional post-chaise, rode from London to Gretna Green on horseback. Lady Adela Villiers, daughter of Lord Jersey, in running away to Gretna Green with Captain Ibbotson in 1845, was following the example of her grandmother, Miss Sarah Child, the daughter of the founder of Child's Bank, who was married at Gretna Green to Lord Westmoreland. The pursuit of the couple by the banker, who gave up the case after one of the horses in his coach had been shot by his son-in-law, is perhaps the most famous of these stories.

PAINS ACROSS THE BACK

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mitchell, Ontario.—"I have taken your medicine for a number of years. I do not take it steady all the time, but I am never without it. I always keep it in the house. I took it first for pains in the abdomen and bearing-down pains, headaches and pains across the back. I have my home to look after and many a day I could not get up at all. I saw the advertisement in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and Mrs. John Miller told me about it, too. Every time I take it, it makes me feel better and I always recommend it to my friends. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about this medicine and you may use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. F. J. WASSMANN, Mitchell, Ontario.

The merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is told by women to each other. Many women know by experience what this medicine will do and they are anxious for others to know. Such testimony should cause any woman suffering from the troubles so common to her sex to give this well-known medicine a fair trial.

Do you know that in a recent canvass among women users of the Vegetable Compound over 220,000 replies were received. To the question, "Have you received benefit by taking this medicine?" 98 per cent. replied "Yes."

This means that 98 out of every 100 women are in better health because they have given this medicine a fair trial.

A Cause of Barn Fires

H. C. Cowan, a deputy from Fire Marshal Heaton's office, Toronto, has been spending the past week in different part of Western Ontario, investigating the causes of several "mysterious" barn fires which have occurred from the 1st to the 20th of November.

Mr. Cowan is satisfied that in every case spontaneous combustion has been the cause of the fire, and in three out of the five fires most recently brought under his attention there was conclusive proof of this being the case, while in the other mentioned the probability amounted almost to certainty.

Barn fires have been unusually common this fall owing to the damp state in which most of the fodder was stored this year, partly on account of the wet season and also on account of the large crops of straw and fodder which could not be so well cured as a smaller crop.

In Mr. Cowan's opinion, the habit of storing cornstalks in the barn either over hay or straw, and frequently with other fodder dumped on top of it, is the biggest factor in barn fires this year.

Millions of mothers depend upon this gentle, harmless laxative. It never cramps or overacts. Contains no narcotics or soothing drugs. Say "California" to your druggist and avoid counterfeits. Insist upon genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages plainly printed on bottle. no. 413-k

WEDDINGS

HOLLINGSWORTH—HIGGINS The marriage was quietly solemnized at the Rectory, Watford, on Saturday morning, by Rev. J. H. Hosford, B.D., rector of Trinity church, when Miss Viola Mae Higgins, daughter of Mr. R. A. Higgins, became the bride of Mr. William Lewis Hollingsworth, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hollingsworth, all of Watford. The young couple were unattended and after a dainty wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, 6th line, left on the 11.22 train for a short honeymoon in eastern points. The young couple are this week receiving congratulations and best wishes from their many friends for a life of joy and happiness.

Goodhand, 15 Sideroad, Warwick township, was married to William R. Cable, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Cable, 4th line, Warwick, the Rev. A. R. Johnson officiating.

The very pretty ceremony took place at 8.30 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents. The room was decorated with Christmas trees and lighted by red tapers. Rev. R. D. Hopkins officiated. The bride entered the room on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March played by Miss Florence Adams.

Miss Marriott was gowned in light blue georgette, daintily trimmed with feathers. Her bouquet was pink roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Inez LeRoy, a cousin of the bride acted as maid of honor and wore a gown of peach taffeta and the bridesmaid, Miss Reta LeRoy, of Toronto, Ont., also a cousin of the bride, wore orchid georgette. Neglected War Badges

It is reported from Ottawa that 166,080 Canadian war badges are lying at Ottawa unclaimed by those who, because of their service in the expeditionary force, are entitled to wear them.

The circumstances recalls to mind the characteristic of unassuming modesty which has distinguished the soldiers of Canada from those of every other country. There were never men who so despised the red tape part of the show and desired to get into the real business on hand as the Canadians and they carried that attitude from the day they joined up till they were landed back home when the war was finished.

Canadians, as a general rule have little use for titles, badges and such trumpery calculated to label a man as something better or different from their fellowmen. The sentiment of the country was officially expressed when the government was compelled to ask the king to discontinue the practice of conferring titles upon citizens of this country.

The matter of the unclaimed war badges is typified by the attitude of an Orkeney man who had lived many years in western Canada. When the war broke out he hastened to the recruiting office to join up in the cavalry. After answering many questions outlined in the application forms he exhibited his impatience in these words:

"Never mind a that, just gie me a horse and let me awa to the front."

Sugar Beet Growers to Fight High Labor

(Alvinston Free Press) A meeting of the sugar beet growers of this section of the country was held in the Council Chambers on Saturday afternoon with a fair representation present. Topics of general interest were discussed and plans made for the signing up of acreage for the year coming.

Among other important business it was the unanimous opinion that there was little use growing beets at the present price unless the cost of growing the beets could be reduced. By the time the farmer plowed his land, seeded it, paid for the seed, paid for the labor of thinning, hoeing and pulling the beets, and on top of that the taxes, there was little left for the grower who took all the risk. The cost of the labor such as working the beets and pulling same, must be reduced, was the verdict arrived at. Only by co-operation can this end be attained and it will be gone into more thoroughly at a near date.

Keep Little Ones Well in Winter

Winter is a dangerous season for the little ones. The days are so changeable—one bright, the next cold and stormy, that the mother is afraid to take the children out for the fresh air and exercise they need so much. In consequence they are often cooped up in overheated and ventilated rooms and are soon dead with colds or gripe. What well is ed to keep the little ones well is Baby's Own Tablets. The bowels and late the stomach are kept regular by the drive out colds, and the baby will be able to get over the winter season in perfect safety. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail, 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

Mrs. Angus Campbell of Warwick, received a cheque for $1,000 as winner of the first prize in a puzzle contest conducted by the Mail and Empire.
