The Institute has attempted to obtain the best original copy available for filming. Features of this copy which may be bibliographically unique, which may alter any of the images in the reproduction, or which may significantly change the usual method of filming, are checked below.					L'institut a microfilmé le meilleur exemplaire qu'il lui a été possible de se procurer. Les détails de cet exemplaire qui sont peut-être uniques du point de vue bibliographique, qui peuvent modifier une image reproduite, ou qui peuvent exiger une modification dans la méthode normale de filmage sont indiqués ci-dessous.

> Douglas Library Queen's University

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol - (meaning "CON-TINUED"), or the symbol ▼ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

> Douglas Library Queen's University

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commencant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres examplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole -- signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ▼ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

place I flatter myself you will obtain permission to embark with your troops, as the spirit of the Convention will not be infringed in the smallest degree by their embarking at that port instead of Boston; and under these circumstances I am hopeful you will readily prevail in your application. But should it be refused, I can by no means object to your returning to Europe, leaving your troops under the direction of Major General Phillips, with orders for the foreign troops to proceed from theme to Plymouth, and the British to Portsmouth in Great Britain, with all convenient dispatch after the arrival of the transports. And if you should not obtain permission to go to Rhode Island, where you will find a frigate to receive you, by sending a letter to Sir Peter Parker, commanding his Majesty's ships at that place, the frigate will be sent round to Boston.

State of Maffachufet's Bay.

Head Quarters, Boston, Nov. 8th, 1777.
MAJOR General Heath commanding the Eastern department being disposed to treat Lieutenant General Burgoyne and his officers with politeness and generosity, and the soldiery with humanity and care, expects the atmost attention of General Burgoyne and his officers to cultivate and observe strict order and discipline among the British and Foreign troops, especially in the following particulars, which are laid down as standing orders, viz.

1st, That if any officer shall exceed the limits of his parole, it being a forfeiture of his honour, he is to be immediately confined within the limits affigued for private men, or if the General shall think proper, on board the guardship.

ad, All officers under the rank of Field Officers are to repair to their quarters, and not to absent them after nine o'clock in the evening.

SIR, Nov. 121b, 1777. NO alteration having yet been made respecting the accommodation of the troops, you will not be surprised at the increase of my anxiety, and I am persuaded you will readily xcuse the trouble it occasions you.

The time elapsed must have been sufficient to determine what the government, civil and military, is able or disposed to do, and I request from you, Sir, as speedy a communication as may be of their final decision.

On the part of the troops, I have to inform you, that the officers are ready to fign the parole proposed, as soon as the terms necessarily previous to that obligation are fulfilled, and that proper explanation is given relative to fome eircumstances of the regulations. I am confident the latter are of a nature that will admit of no difficulty when laid before you.

Having intimated to you in my letter of yesterday, my intention of not separating my lot from that of the army, I should not trouble you with any word at prefent upon the subject of quarters, were it not that the arrival of my baggage and that of Majo: General Phillips, and the present fituation of it upon Cambridge Common, expose any men destined to the care of it, to great hardships in point of weather, and without a guard I suppose the security of our property would be small. The houses you mentioned yesterday are so exceedingly inconvenient, the one in point of fize, and the other in being deficient in every article of furniture, that to occupy either would make my condition worse alie it is. Several British foldiers have absconded within these few days; letters have been received from fome, fetting forth, that they had no intention to defert, but that they had been induced to lock thelter in the country, from the great hardthips they cadured by the feareity of wood, and the incon-yenience of the barracks: others have made known to their officers that they were decoyed away, made drunk, and af-terwards engaged in your fervice, when not mafters of their reason, To confirm this affertion, it is reported to me that a house of reception is opened at the foot of the Barrack Hill, where liquor is distributed gratis to the foldiery, and where deserters from us, of less penatent spirit than those above described, are hourly appearing in new regimentals of your fervice, offering promites and money to inveigle their former comrades, and in the groffest manner infulling their former officers.

I am perfuaded, Sir, you will be concerned to hear the first excule stated for the absconding of foldiers, but it is upon the latter grievance. I mean to make my particular complaint, and I am confident I need only mention it to induce you to give you fuch orders as may most effectually discountenance what is pass, and prevent any future attempts of so unfair a kind. In the mean time I shall endeavour to make proper examples of fuch offenders of our own as have been detected.

In another of your letters of the fame date, you enumerate feveral allegations new and furprifing to me. I have repeatedly and most strictly, in general orders, forbid the soldiery of the Convention passing the chain of sentries; and to prevent imposition, by pretence of being officers fervants, have ordered printed passes to be given to those who are really such, and if any others pals, it is a breach of orders, which I expect your officers as well as the guards and centinels will exert themselves to prevent I cannot admit that the scarcity of wood, or inconvenience of the barracks, has been the Inducement to defertion; for although (notwithstanding our utmost exertion) the troops might fuffer for want of fuely yet they have fince a supply equal to that allowed our own troops who, while performing hard duty, have worse barracks, and are more exposed to the inclemency of the feason. I have Ariculy forbid intercourse or convertation between the troops, and instead of their having liquor offered them gratis, I several days fince directed that small parties should visit the public houses, and take up and confine such soldiers as they might find in them. As to their inlifting into our service, it is directly contrary to an express order of Congress, and during my command here, I have strictly enjoined on the recruiting officers not to inlift prisoners or deserters from the British army, who have deserted during this campaign, and have obliged them to release many, After all, you will readily admit that defertions will happen in all armies, and it will be no wonder if they should be considerable from one oircumstanced like yours; and while I am determined to discountenance and prevent, as much as possible, all unfair practices, and you endeavour to make proper examples of any of your own foldiers who may be detected, I must defire you will please to avoid any capital punishments during your con-Reserve of some said at the tinuance in this flate. compared

SIR. Head Quarters, P. flon, Nov. 21, 1777.
YOURS of yesterday is before me, and altholyou might at first imagine that the honourable Continental Congress, have no right of interference in matters of the Convention, yet I conclude, upon surther restection, you must be convinced that as that body are the representatives of that people who are to reap the advantages or disadvantages of the Convention, and as all continental officers are acting by virtue of their authority, and under their direction, they assuredly have a right of interference, and to give such orders to their officers as they may think proper, for the full completion of the Convention, and for the safety and good of the people.

The paragraph of my orders of the 20th instant, respecting the troops of the Convention, is sounded in reason and justice, being designed only to ascertain the officers and soldiers who are comprehended in the Convention, that in case any of them (contrary to their faith and honour) should hereaster be found in arms against these States in North America, during the present contest, they may be convicted of the offence and suffer the punishment in such cases inslicted by the law of nations: I must therefore insist that you surnish me with proper lists of names and descriptions, for the purposes beforementioned, as soon as may be.

The other lifts of the names and rank of the commission officers, and the number of non-commission officers and soldiers, so essentially necessary for the several purposes of regularity with quarter-masters and commissaries (and which should be frequently renewed as circumstances may vary) should long ere this have been exhibited. Some days since I directed my Deputy Adjutant General to call for them, and I expect they will be sent in without delay, for the purpose abovementioned.

I shall at all times endeavour to found my orders on the principles of honour, reason and justice, and not to infringe those delicate principles in others; but my orders for the purposes of order and regularity must be obeyed by every man and all bodies of men placed under my direction, and fully determined I am that offenders shall not pass with impunity.

SIR,

STR, Cambridge, Nov. 23, 1777, TOUR leiter, dated Bofton, Nov. 21ft, renewing the his-jelk of a former letter which respected orders from the Continestal Congress for furnishing descriptive lists of the non-commissioned officers and foldiers, came to my hand only on the fad.

I roly upon you to enquire into the causes of delay in the delivery of letters, that should there be any want of punctuality in the answers, that inactention may not be imputed to nic

Tain forry you should have supposed me of so light a character as to have acted in a serious matter of state upon a sudden impossion; be assured, I very well weighted my answer before I gave it; and having done so, you will not be surprised that I am determined to abide by it.

I am not so ignorant of the rights and customs of the eivilized world as to dispute that the legislative powers of every community have, and ought to have, just control over the actions of all persons found in the limits of their jurisdiction, as far as regards the observance of their general promulgated laws in eriminal or civit police. But in a schowledgment does not at all apply to the case in question, where the Congress, as the executive power of the state, think proper to instee an order to persons, not their subjects, in a matter no way relating to the civil government of the country, but assuming a right to impose new conditions on a treaty of public faith.

Perhaps, Sir, you will not find, in the whole history of miknay conventions or even capitulations, many infrances wherein there is not an article binding upon one of the parties not to ferve for a limited time; but I defy you to find a fingle inflance where any other fecurity was demanded for that obligation than the pledge of national faith.

I came therefore but look upon the reasons you give for demanding descriptive lifts, viz. "to ascertain the officers and foldless in case they should hereafter take arms contrary to their faith and honour," as an unprecedented insult upon the country.

If you wish to descend from general history to particular and recent facts upon this subject, I beg leave to call your recollection to the conduct of Sir Guy Carleton and myself (for he did me the honour to consult me) when last year we released from Canada many hundred prisoners of the Continental troops, upon their bare parole of not serving against the King

SIR Sade , sail say it is to the for it BY an express received this morning from Major General Pigot, forwarded by order of Major General Spencer, I am informed that transports are arrived at Rhode-Island, fufficient to convey the troops under the Convention to Great Britain. The season of the year makes the passage of the transports to the port of Boston very hazardous, if not impracticable.

The letter and spirit of the treaty being express upon the purpose of a free and speedy passage to Great Britain, I con-ceive no objection can arise to my application for passports and escort to march the troops to Providence, and for admisfion of fuch small craft there as may be necessary to convey them immediately on board their respective ships without going on shore in Rhode Island, the expences for the conveyance of baggage and other articles incident upon the march and for the embarkation, to be paid by the troops under the fame regulations as upon the march from Albany.

Besides the general propriety of this measure, respecting the troops, must be, I am persuaded, particularly acceptable to all who act on the part of America, as it relieves the country from the present trouble and burthen of supply, accommodation, and all other difficulties. I address myself to you, Sir, to accomplish these purposes, as supposing that all matters respecting the execution of the treaty, and determinable at Bo-

Although Congress have honoured me with the command of the eastern department, yet I should not venture so greatly to alter the place of embarkation as is proposed, without the knowledge or direction of that honourable body: and his Excellency, General Washington, having not long fince been pleafed to fignify as much to me, as his opinion, viz. that Congress only had the right of altering the place; this, I believe, was also your opinion, when you defired me to forward your dispatch to General Washington, that, if it appeared necessary to him, he might obtain the opinion of Congress; that dispatch I forwarded; agreeable to your request; by a faithful, hand ; I hope foon to have an answer, which without delay shall be communicated to you; my own conjectures, however, are, that objections will be made to the troops marching to the fouthward, and I mention it, that you may endeavour to have the transports, ordered round, if you should think proper, Every exertion in my power shall be afforded to you; but I cannot, in any instance, deviate from the Convention, without the permission of Congress.

Your other letters have not passed so long unanswered for want of attention; all the prisoners of war are under the direction of council, and after I receive your letters I am obliged to address them on the subjects which you request, and sometimes several days elapse before I can obtain their answer. This trouble, however, Sir, gives me pleasure, if I can thereby obviate the necessities of the officers or soldiery, and I would not have it in the least lessen your applications to me; but you will not attribute the prograftination of the answers

You was pleafed to mention, the other day, a man of war's coming round to take you to England. The refolve, which I fent you a copy of this day, fettles the matter as to your going before the troops; and, upon farther confideration. I think it would be rather improper for a man of war to come, is suffag, either before or with the transports; and your Excelling can be equally accommodated on board a convenient spinishest set thinks that such as one will be most proper, and a man of war cannot be admitted into the harbour.

Your Excellency's Most obedient fervant,

Lieut. Gen. Burgoyne. W. HEATH.

YOUR letter, dated yesterday, is only now come to hand.

Mr. Geddes attends for your passport.

Though I do not pretend to see all that may be meant in the resolve you transmitted me, there is certainly nothing in the words of it which implies the construction you put in regard to my personal embarkation.

As to your allotment of a "convenient transport" for my passage, if it is from yourself, I am to thank you, Sir, for a fort of insult which the most haughty man of office would be ashamed of in any other country.

However, as I am determined every transaction concerning this Convention shall be notorious, and beyond the power of subterfuge to explain away, I have directed the frigate, together with the transports, to come round, and it will then be for you, Sir, to prohibit the entry of Boston harbour to any ships bearing a flag of truce, and declaring they are fent for the express purpose of conveying to Great Britain any part of the troops of the Convention.

I am, &c.

To Maj. Gen. Heath.

Head-Quarters, Bofton, Jan. 5, 1778. YOUR Excellency's favour of yesterday came duly to hand, and I must confess I was not a little surprised at some expressions in it.

As, by the Convention, transports only are stipulated to receive the troops, I submit to you, Sir, whether a hint (if you were even fure that it came from me) that you should take a convenient one, rather than introduce a frigate, which is neither expressed or implied in the Convention, merits those epi thets which you are pleased to bestow on me.

I have ever meant to treat you with politenes; and the plighted faith and honour of my country require me to pay first attention to the Convention on their part; of course, when transports arrive to receive the troops, they will enter the harbour; and if you can find by the Convention that a frigate is to enter for the particular reception of yourself, she will not be prohibited; but if it is rather uncommon for hips of war to bear slags of truce, and consenting to it in the present case should appear rather to be an act of politeness and generosity than otherwise, I leave you to your own restection, whether you have made choice of the most happy expressions to obtain it.

SIR, Cambridge, Jan. 5, 1778. HAVING confidered the resolution of the Congress, which you transmitted to me in your letter of January 3, respecting the payment of provisions; I have also attended to the subsequent paragraph, wherein you inform me you are directed to see all accounts with me settled and sully paid, in the same manner as resolved in case of prisoners, before the embarkation of myself, or other officers and troops included in the Convention of Saratoga, can take place.

I am decided in my sentiment, that, should this resolve and direction be put in execution, the Convention will be grossly violated in three separate articles, viz. articles the 2d and 4th, by which the troops have an unconditional right to a free passage, and without delay, whenever ships arrive to receive them; and in article 5th, wherein it is stipulated, the troops shall be supplied with rations at the same rate with General Gates's own army.

It is undeniable this rate is entirely altered by the mode now preferibed for the payment.

The impressions which a violation of public faith never fail to make upon the world, and the confequences that inevitably enfue, in all political negotiations, when character and confidence as required, would be ample revenge to Great Britain, and the individuals concerned, for the temporary incontain, and the individuals concerned, for the temporary incontains and the individuals concerned, for the temporary incontains and the individuals concerned.

Nevertheless, being defirous to prove that I am neither rash nor vindictive upon this subject, I am willing to unite with you in any measure that may still prevent evile of the most ferious nature; for this purpose, I desire you to furnish paffport to fuch officer as I shall appoint, to proceed to General Gates, who, I am informed, is now with the Congress.

Bearing full in memory what were the fentiments of that officer, not only in regard to the intent and meaning of the stipulations of the treaty, but also in regard to the duty, compleatly, and liberally to fulfil them, it may be a fortunate circumstance for all parties that he is now on the spot where he can give his own explanation, and thereby fave a treaty. in which his personal honour is blended with that of the state, and in which, in conscience, I believe he never meant infraction or prevarication.

It might likewife very much conduce to conciliatory meafures in passing the accounts, if a passport was granted to Mr. Clarke, acting commissary-general, to proceed to General Howe, in order to lay before him the account stated by your commissary, and to receive his pleasure thereupon; the resolve of the Congress, according to your letter, being prefaced upon requilition of his Excellency.

I wish to have your answer as soon as possible, and that you would detain your meffenger till you hear from me in return to that answer.

I have made these proposals upon a just, and what I think generous, principle, and upon a supposition that, by the chances of the leafon, full answers may return from the fouth. in time to prevent disputes; but I must not be understood as precluding myself from what I hold my duty, should ships arrive sooner, viz. to demand means for immediate embarka-I am, SIR, &c.

SIR, Head-Quarters, Bofton, Jan. 6, 1778. YOUR favour of yesterday I duly received, and note the contents. Infults and provocations, at which the most placed dispositions would revolt, are daily exercised by your troops against the officers and foldiers of this army—regular, decent complaints are received by your officers sometimes with haughtiness, sometimes with derision, but always without redress. These evils flow, Sir, from the general tenor of language and of conduct held by Colonel Henley, which encourages his inseriors, and seems calculated to excite them to the most bloody purposes.

For want of sufficient information, and not bringing myfelf to believe it possible the facts as related by common report could be true, I have hitherto declined taking public notice of this man. But upon positive ground I now, and hereby, formally accuse Colonel Henley of behaviour heinously criminal as an officer, and unbecoming a man, of the most indecent, violent, vindictive severity against unarmed men, and of intentional murder. A my fear and and

IT is with no small concern that I inform your Excellency of the abusive behaviour of the British soldiery towards the guards and centinels at Prospect Hill, which has for some time been increasing, and has at length arrived at a height no longer to be borne. Sentries have been repeatedly insulted on their posts, and at some times beat and disarmed (this I must confess reflects dishonour on themselves, for a tentry is never to allow himself to be insulted or abused) prisoners have been frequently rescued from the guards, and the behaviour of the soldiery mutinous and disorderly in the extreme, of which there was a most singular instance the night

SIR,

SIR, Head Quarters, Boston, Jan. 10th, 1778. YOURS of yesterday's date I received the last evening. What provocation you allude to, as having been offered by my troops, I am at a loss to determine; the insults and abuses which they have received, I will venture to say, unless I have been most grossly misinformed, are unparalleled, and whether you are willing or unwilling, Sir, offenders shall no longer pass with impunity.

If it can be made to appear, that any of those soldiers sent to the guardship by my orders are innocent, they shall be released from their confinement. But with respect to such as have been guilty of violating my standing orders of the garrison, instead of disavowing or making any apology for the confinement of such, be assured, Sir, that I do most explicitly avow it.

And as I have before observed to your Excellency in a former letter, of which you may be affured, I shall at all times endeavour to found my orders upon the principles of honour, reason, and justice, and not to infringe those delicate principles in others;" so also be affured, that such my orders shall be obeyed by every officer and soldier placed under my direction, and such as have the hardiness to transgress them shall abide the consequences.

I have been informed of late that some have hinted that such of your troops as break my orders, ought to be tried and punished by your orders; even the mention of such a thing, Sir, I conceive to be (to use your own words in a late letter with a little variation) a fort of insult that a man of military erudition in any country, would be askamed of, as being repugnant to every idea of military discipline; and from my opinion of your military knowledge, I cannot admit than you ever hinted it.

To convince you that it is my fixed determination to enquire into all abuses, whether committed by my own troops or those of the Convention, whilst they remain within my department, I have ordered Colonel Henley under arrest, and appointed a court of enquiry, whereof Brigadier General Glover is president, to examine into the grounds of your complaint, on Wednesday next at ten o'clock, A. M. at Cambridge; and if any complaints have heretofore passed unredressed, it is because they have not been laid before me.

You hinted to me when I had the pleasure of seeing you last at Cambridge, that one of my officers had been enticing ticing some of the troops of the Convention to enter our service. I then informed you, that if you would send the complaint, I would immediately bring the officer to trial, You promised to do it; but I have not as yet received it. I now call upon you, Sir, to exhibit that charge, or any other that you have to make against any officer under my command, for practices of that kind, or any other, being with yourself determined, "that all my conduct respecting the Convention shall be notorious, and beyond the powers of subterfuge to explain away."

Complaints of most enormous abuses have lately been made to me. One, of the conduct of a number of officers on the evening or night of the 25th of December last at Bradishes' tavern; others, of persons being rescued from the guards—sentries abused and insulted on their post—passes counterfeited, and others filled up in the most affrontive manner, and of late several highway robberies committed in the environs of the garrison; one the last evening, in which a gentleman was robbed of between seven and eight hundred dollars, and a watch. The robberies I do not charge on your people, as it is unknown who were the perpetrators, but there are several reasons to suspect it.

All these, Sir, tend not only to exasperate the troops, but to enrage the inhabitants of the country, who view such abuses as unsufferable. I therefore call upon you to exert your endeavours to suppress all abuses as far as in your

SIR, Cambridge, Jan. 12th, 1778. I HAVE the favour of your letter January 10th, you are pleased to enter into much recrimination, which I shall answer apart, because I am not to be diverted by collateral matter from the great point depending between us respecting Colonel Henley's conduct.

The flight and indifferent manner in which you take up matters of such magnitude, makes me apprehensive I was deficient in my former attempt to state it clearly; as explanatory therefore of the original words of my complaint, I now add that I accuse Colonel Henley (by your appointment the late commanding officer of the Provincials at Camincontestible evidence.

Is it possible, Sir, that after comprehending and considering these allegations, you can seriously mean to put me off by a court of enquiry, in which nelther the judges nor the witnesses are under the obligation of an oath? A court of enquiry, if I have any understanding of so plain, expressive term, is applicable only to cases of doubt and suspicion. It acts upon a principle of commendable jealousy, lest public justice should be eluded, and its business is to investigate reported, supposed circumstantial facts, in order to determine whether there is matter for solemn trial. but was it ever heard of in martial law or custom, when a profecutor flood forth and bound himself to adduce positive. evidence to the matter of charge, that any intermediate inquest was necessary like a grand jury to find a bill? If you, idopt such doctrine, and proceed upon such analogy you will at least, Sir, reflect that to make it hold, the court must first examine upon oath, and next hear witnesses only weigh this matter more deeply, it is not the advice of an enemy I give you. The injury requires an immediate example; to delay justice longer than may be necessary for regularity and folemnity of proceeding, is at all times a dishonour to government, but what will that procrastination be effeemed which combined with the ferment of party, malicious suggestions, and false suspicions, tends to excite men to horrid and extensive massacre of those whom it is their duty to guard. We are here under the sanction of a truce, and the public faith is pledged for our fafe conduct; by the universal law of nations we have a right to personal protection-among generous ones, we should have found hospitality.

Upon this right, and in the name of the State of Great Britain, I protest against a court of inquiry, as inadequate, dilatory, and nugatory, and demand a court martial properly constituted for criminal jurisdiction in cases of the most atrocious nature, to pass judgment upon the conduct of Colonel Henley.

I am, &c.

Major Gen. Heath.

J. BURGOYNE. SIR,

Head Quarters, Boston, Jan. 13th, 1778. YOURS of this date I received by Colonel Lee; upon the receipt of your complaint against Colonel Henley, I immediately ordered him under arrest, and appointed a court of enquiry, composed of judicious officers, to examine into the grounds of your complaint. And although you may view a court of enquiry as inadequate, dilatory, and nugatory, it has been the first step commonly taken in our army; and indeed is no more than a delicacy due to the character of an officer, especially one who has the command of a

You may be affured that whilst you remain here under the fanction of a truce, as you are intitled to, so you shall enjoy personal protection. Cambridge, Jan. 13th, 1778. HAVING confined myself in the letter transmitted to you yesterday entirely to the prosecution of Colonel Henley, I have now to take notice of the other matters contained in your favour of the 10th instant. You state, Sir, that the infults and abuses offered to your troops have been unparalleled, "unless you have been grossly milinformed." Confider the character and conduct of Colonel Henley, from whom I am to suppose your reports have come, and then fay whether you have not reason to suspect misinformation; nor is he the only person to impose upon you, Cambridge and Boston abound with ill-defigning men, who propagate calumny in order to colour perfecution; the whole air is contaminated with lies. Beware, Sir, of such reporters, they are your enemies as well as mine; they strike at the character of your State. In the present instance however, I take you at your word; innocence shall appear, and you shall be the judge. Eighteen men are under confinement for an infult, in which ene man alone was concerned: this is an undisputed fact. It necessarily follows to physical demonstration, that seventeen are innocent. Now shew me upon what principle you detain them; implicitly avow the act, and refuse to make an apology.

You treat with fingular contempt the idea that such of the troops of the Convention as break your orders ought to be tried and punished by mine. In the first place, Sir, though my poor military erudition must be brought to shame in your opinion, I must avow that idea, and with all due respect to your crudition, I must next request, that if you again quote my words, you will do so without violation or amendation. I do contend that to commit offenders to the punishment of their own officers in the first instance, and in every case that will allow it, is consonant to reason and justice; I do not mean to deny that if, upon experience, it was found we were partial in our judgments, or in our punishments, you have a right to take justice into your hands; but you ought at the same time to remember that you make yourself responsible to God and man that the innocent do not fuffer.

I do assure you it never was my intention to let drop the complaint for which you call upon me against your officers, for inlifting men into your service. I inclose you copies of agreement and a certificate of a muster master; I have the laft; and I can collect many other enormities of the fame fort.

I come now to the last paragraph of your letter, in which you recapitulate and sum up all abuses, riots, rescues, insults, &c. that you are informed have been committed by these troops, and you conclude with a suspicion of highway robbery. It might have been more decent, Sir, to have lest that infinuation to your printers in Boston, and indeed it would have better answered your purpose, for I observe in the paper of yesterday it is not suspected, but boldly and positively afferted that the robbery of Mr. Hopkins was by three regular soldiers.

My answer to all this is that most of the accusations are falle, others are exaggerated, and none are countenanced by me. That there have been levities, indiscretions, faults of omission, of neglect, and of liquor, I am ready to believe; but I have never spared my efforts to correct them, and they have been pretty well atoned by the beating, imprifonment, and death, received at the hands of your people.

Upon the whole it is with satisfaction and pride I restect, that were all these complaints verified and compounded into one mass, they still would not, from their nature, weigh a feather in the estimation of justice, against the articles of grievance in the opposite scale.

I am,

Your most obedient servant,

Lieut. Gen. Burgoyne,

SFR, YOU will readily believe that it is as painful to me as it can be troublesome to you to find matter of complaint the continual subject of our correspondence—I am, nevertheles, under the necessity of laying before you two reports from the commissary general of the Convention troops. I am persuaded you will take immediate measures to redress that which concerns the badness of provision; and I hope you will not spare a reprimand to your commissary for making out an account which, I am consident, you meant to be genuine, clear, and conclusive, in a manner that will appear to any impartial person as purposely ambiguous, and designed to leave an opening for disputes and to create delays.

You will confider, Sir, that in waiting for this account, nine or ten days have been already loft fince you confented to Mr. Clarke's journey to Sir William Howe.

I will now reduce this matter to a very short compass, and have only to request, that you will furnish me with the price demanded for the ration, supposing it to be paid in gold or silver, and likewise the price of the cord of wood, candles, and other articles not belonging to the ration; and I am willing to leave the quantities received to be settled by the respective commissaries at more leisure. As this cannot possibly require time, I beg the favour of you to prepare pasports for Mr. Clarke to set out the day after to-morrow.

I return you my personal thanks for sending Captain Piper here, and assure you no improper use shall be made of that civility.

175 8000 " SIR, SIR, Head Quarters, Boston, Jan. 19, 1778.
YOUR packet of letters, papers, &c. were handed to me the last evening per Colonel Keath, I think that the second paragraph of your letter to Sir William Howe, does not stand quite fairly expressed. You are pleased to state it, that you are to pay the accounts in gold or filver, or yourself and troops be detained. I think it would be but just to have inferred or replace the provisions and meelfaries, with which your troops bous been supplied, which is the mode, in which I informed you, your accounts were to be settled, and I must define you to make that addition in your letter,

I find among the letters one wrote by Colonel Kingston to Lord Harcourt, which I have detained. I shall ever take pleasure in grantying any officer, when I can do it consistent with the honour and safety of my country; and those gentlemen who write should be very cautious what expressions they make use of and although the exceptional expressions in Colonal Kingston's letter are rather oblique than direct, yet they are to much pointed, that I am not certain whether they do not in fome degree touch his parole, of which I shall

As I am informed, your Excellency is defirous that Lieutenant J. Vallency should go with Mr. Clark, I suppose they must be necessarily detained until to-morrow morning.

As your Excellency appears inclined to appeal to the conduct of the officers in Canada I will give you an intrance, and a recent one too, from that quarter, which, I think, will be fully sufficient without mentioning others. The American officers and soldiers, taken by the army under your command at and near Ticonderogs, and sent down to Canada, are now returned home under parole. Their treatment was as follows, which I have from a Caprain Walcott of Colonel Marshall's regiment. When they got to Quebec, the officers gave their paroles, and directly afterwards they were all sent on board, the men of war indiscriminately with the privates, and were told by the officers on board, that they knew no difference between them, as they looked upon the government. difference between them, as they looked upon the government that made them to be nothing; and before they were lenk home, the following descriptions were taken of the foldiery, viz. their names, the province, county, and town they belonged to, age, fize, and complexion officers and men being intermixed together had two thirds of a ration per day, without diffinction. SIR,

I HAVE the favour of your letter, and the resolves of Congress inclosed.

I propose sending an officer, with a letter to Congress, upon the subject of those resolves, the day after to-morrow, and beg the savour of you to appoint some officer of other proper person to conduct him.

I likewise think it right Lord Howe should be acquainted with these resolutions, and therefore you will please to name such person as you think proper to conduct an officer of mine to his Lordship with a copy of the resolves, and would wish this gentleman might set out to-morrow morning.

Lieut. Gen. Burgoyne.

SIR, Head-Quarters, Beston, Feb. 12, 1778. I HAVE just received a complaint against a Captain Atherton belonging to the troops of the Convention. I am informed, fince the complaint was exhibited, that he had declared he has not figned his parole. I defire to be informed, immediately, why this officer has not figned his parole, after its being left at Cambridge so long a time, for that purpose, and also whether there are any other officers belonging to the troops of the Convention who have not given their parole, and the reason for their neglect.

As the honourable Congress were pleased by their resolutions of the 8th of January last (copy of which I did myself the honour to transmit to your Excellency) fully to determine that matter, I can take no other part than such as they are pleafed to point out as my duty, to which I shall strictly conform. Cambridge, March 9th, 1778. FINDING by your answer to mine of yesterday, that you can take no other part at present than such as the Congress pointed out in their resolution of 8th January; I have to request you to convey the packet transmitted herewith, as foon as may be to the officer commanding the flag of truce, in order that he may return with it on board the juno. As you confented fome days past to my fending to Lord Howe, copies of the resolutions of Congress, and of my dispatches in answer. I conclude, Sir, you can have no objection to my fending duplicates, one by fea, the other by the exchanged officers who are to go by land.

You will have observed in Captain Dalrymple's letter to me, that he has many private letters for me and for the army in his possession; I should hope you would permit them to be delivered unopened, I admit there would be an impropriety in making the fame request respecting letters to pais from hence, but as no intelligence we can receive, can in our present situation possibly affect the interest of America, you have it in your power to lay this army under obligation for me of the greatest pleasure of life, that of hearing from their friends.

Whatever may be your determination in this respect, I beg you to take the trouble of fignifying it by a line to Captain Dalrymple, whom I have defired to be directed by it.

SIR, Head Quarters, Bofton, March 16th, 1778. IN mine of the 22d January last, I observed to your Excellency, as I had done repeatedly before verbally, the jealoufy and uneafines that sublisted in the minds of the people respecting the officers suzces, and did therein propose to you that they should be put into the hands of such officer as I should appoint to receive them, and pledged my honour to it they should be fafe kept, and returned to the officers to they belong; you was pleased to observe in yours of we with of the same month, that the officers fuzees were ordered to your quarters, and that you would be responsible for their not being returned to them while they remain here: and in mine of the 30th, Lobserved that such a pledge would fatisfy me, but that it would not fatisfy the minds of the people. Their uncafines has increased, and at length led the General Affembly to make a representation to me, by which I am confirmed to defire your Excellency to put them into the hands of Major Pollard, my aid-de-camp, whom I have appointed to receive them in the manner proposed in mine of the 22d January; and I again pledge my honour for the fafe keeping and return of them, agreeable to my promise in that letter. I assure myself that under these circumstances you will not hefitate a moment depositing of them, or think my pressing this matter is in the least unresionable. I am, SIR, Gambridge, March 17th, 1778.

I HAN E the favour of yours of March 16th, respecting the delivery of the officers success into your hands, I acknowledge that the application has been repeatedly made, and my answer has been uniform, that a surrender of this property should be made to the public tranquility whenever you made a point of it. Since the 30th January, when the last letter upon this subject passed, I really imagined that the people had resumed sufficient considence in their own Brength to be free from apprehension, and that no person mould prefe a measure that marked fo uncommon, and permit me to add, as it applies not in the remotest degree to yourfelf, to indecent a want of trust in the parole of the British officers, and particularly of myself who had answered for the care of them.

I still adhere to my former line of conduct, and whenever Major Pollard or any other officer shall come to my quarters for this purpole, they shall be shown the place where these arms are deposited (I think they amount to about forty, rufty and without locks) and I affure you no obstruction fhall be given to their being carried away, but the trouble of marking the feveral officers names will be unnecessary, as I believe no officer means ever to receive them again.

SIR, Head Quarters, Boston, March 23, 1778. YOUR favour of the 20th instant came safe to hand, but being exceedingly pressed with business. I have not been able fooner to answer it.

I apprehend that Congress could have no more objection to Captain Willoe's going to Canada by the way of the Lakes, than any other officer, and that as they disapproved of his going, they would equally disapprove of a German officer's going by that rout, I cannot therefore grant your request in that respect. If your Excellency should think proper to write to Sir Guy Carleton, or general commander in Canada, I will, with great pleasure, forward it to the commanding officer at Albany, and defire him, as foon as possible, to convey it by a flag to the first post in the possession of the British troops in Canada. I shall also with pleasure grant protection to such slag as may arrive with the clothing, and other necessaries, for the troops of the Convention, and as far as is in my power, facilitate the delivery of the articles (after proper examination) - into the hands of the commanding officer of the troops of - the Convention for the time being. Captain Willoe shall, at any time, have his persport to precent to Helifars, but I cannot fay, when a flag will fail for that place. I have given orders for the most diligent preparation of accounts for fettlement, they will soon be ready. Mr. Commissary Clarke will, I believe, hear from Mr. Commissary Miller this day. . I am,

BY advices received from Rhode Island, transmitting to me a copy of a letter from General Heath to Lieutepant General Burgoyne (copy of which is inclosed) I am informed that it is determined to detain General Burgoyne's troops in New England, until all demands for their provisions, and other necessaries, are satisfied, and that this determination is grounded, not only upon a requisition of mine for provisions to be fent in for the subsistence of the prisoners in my posfession, and for the purchase of other necessaries, but upon a forgery by my agents, emissaries, and abettors, of what are realled continental bills of credit. This last allegation is too illiberal to deserve a serious answer. With regard to the other, I know not from what expression, in any of my letters to you, it has been understood, that I made the requisition alluded to. If you had thought this insufficient, you might have directed a farther supply from the markets, and were likewise at liberty to fend in whatever articles you thought proper from the country. The allowance of fuel has been also regulated, as well as our means, would admit, and a fimilar permission of purchase or supply from you, has never been resuled. My letter of the 21st of April last, explained to you the extent afforded to the prisoners; cloathing, and some other neceffaries, they had a right to expect from those who had been the occasion of their being exposed to the chance of captivity, and that idea I have ever understood to be mutual. But notwithstanding the remonstrances I made to you upon that point, finding that supplies were not sent in, my humanity interposed on behalf of the unfortunate men in our possession; and on a late representation of their distress. I permitted in this city, the purchase of blanketting, and such other necesfaries as the feverity of the winter required, and without which they must absolutely have perished.

Confident, as I am, that you will acknowledge this to be a just recital of facts, I cannot but think it annecessary to fay any thing farther, either upon the cruelty falsely alledged to have been exercised against the prisoners, or the unjust reflections you have been so often induced to transmit to me upon that head.

P Dale

In confideration, however, of the real and unavoidable diftresses of the prisoners on both sides, as well as to put an end to all fruitless altercation on the subject, I shall consent to an immediate exchange of all prisoners now in our possession, as well officers as private men, so far as the number of the latter, and parity of the rank of the former, will admit. In the mean time, I shall wait the arrival here of the British officers, whom you have released upon their paroles, and shall, without delay, send an equal number to you in return.

With regard to the accompt for provisions and other necesfaries, which I find by General Heath's letter, is become a pretext for infringing, if it is not intended as an absolute breach of the Convention of Saratoga, I do readily agree to the immediate appointment of commissioners, on your part and on mine, to settle that accompt, together with all other accompts for provisions, &c., furnished the prisoners on either fide, and to make payment of the balance.

You

You have only to name your commissioners (two will, I think, be sufficient) and appoint a convenient place and time for their meeting two gentlemen on my part, to terminate the business. The exchange of prisoners, and the accommodation of the difference that has so long subsited between us upon that score, may be adjusted at the same time by the same commissioners, upon an equitable plan as formerly proposed by yourself.

Thefe propositions, founded as they in great measure are, upon your own suggestions, I consider as now mutually a greed upon between us, and therefore I must hope to find, that you are capable of carrying them finally into execution, without permitting any set of men to interfere, at their pleasure, with such authority as has been vested in you, for the exchange of prisoners, and for the decision of all matters relating to them.

in As I have no objection to the earliest meeting of the commissioners for completing the exchange and liquidating the accounts, I trust there, will be not new impediment to the release of General Burgoyne's troops, but that you will give immediately such orders for their embarkation upon the arrival of the transports at Boston; as will remove every difficulty. SIR, Head Quarters, Feb. 10, 1778. IRECEIVED yesterday the favour of your letter of the 5th instant.

In answer to whatever it contains concerning General Burgoyne's army, and the measures adopted relative to it, I have only to inform you; this is a matter in which I have never had the least direction. It lies wholly with Congress, and the proposals you make on this head must be submitted to them. I have accordingly transmitted a copy of your letter, and I shall be ready to forward you any resolutions they may take in consequence.

hands; it is a subject which has been freely discussed in the progress of our correspondence, and the necessity of a further investigation is superfeded, by your now meeting me on the ground I have so long wished.

The powers under which I act, are entirely derived from. Congress, and must of course be subjected to such modifications as they may think proper, according to the circumstances, to prescribe. But holding myself fully authorised by their instructions and intentions, to avail myself of the reasonable terms you are at this time willing to adopt for the mutual relief of prisoners, I shall explicitly close with your positions to the following effect.

That an exchange of all prisoners now in our possession, officer for officer, foldier for foldier, citizen for citizen, fo far as number and rank will apply, be carried into execution as expeditionfly, as the nature of the case will admit, and without regard to any controverted point, which might prove an impediment to so desirable an end. And here, as I may not clearly understand your meaning, when you say, "In the mean time I shall wait the arrival of the British officers, whom you have released upon their paroles, and shall, without delay, fend an equal number to you in return." I take occasion to request you will be pleased to favour me with an explanation, whether you intend to confider fuch officers on both fides, as still continuing under the obligation of a parole, or as absolutely exchanged, in pursuance of the general cartel. I fee no reason why an effectual exchange should not at once operate with respect to them.

I also agree, that two commissioners from me, shall meet a like number from you, on the tenth day of March, in German Town, at the King of Prussia Tavern, eleven in the forenoon, to adjust upon equitable terms the difference you mention, and fuch other matters as they may be feverally empowered to determine.

With respect to a general settlement of accounts, as it comprehends points with which I have no authority to interfere, it is not in my power to concur in the measure you fuggest for that purpose. I am under the necessity of referring it to the decision of Congress.

Confidering a general exchange as finally agreed on between us, I shall, without delay, order the prisoners, in our hands, to places in the vicinity of your different posts, as their respective situations may render most convenient, and shall give you notice as they arrive, that you may return a number equal to those sent in from time to time.

I am, with due respect,

Your most obedient servant, (Signed) GEO. WASHINGTON.

General Howe, &c. &c.

SIR, Philadelphia, Feb. 14, 1778.

I HAVE received the favour of your letter of the 10th instant, in consequence of which I shall send two commissioners to meet those on your part of German Town, on the day appointed.

The distresses which from too good authority I understand the lower class of prisoners labour under, induce me to request you will give such directions as may expedite the exchange of the non-commissioned officers and private men, in the mode you have proposed; and as the foreigners and British must be equally desirous of their liberty, and equally considered in the general release, I trust you will direct that the prisoners sent in, are proportioned as nearly as the numbers of each in your possession and their situation will admit.

With respect to the exchange of commissioned officers, you will permit me to premise, that this must be governed by the release of the Hessian field officers taken at Trenton, and Lieutenant Colonel Archibald Campbell of the 71st regiment. who have not only been longest confined, but have hitherto been the objects of particular exception, the exchange for those gentlemen, as well as for the other officers, will then take place, as is agreed upon. This will explain the meaning of the paragraph in my letter quoted by you, with respect to the release of officers upon parole, prior to the arrival of Lieutenant Colonel Campbell, and the Hessian field officers-I defire to be understood, that in this general exchange, the officers and foldiers belonging to the army commanded by Lieutenant General Burgoyne, who were taken, prior to the Convention of Saratoga, are to be confidered within the description of prisoners, equally with those of the army more immediately under my command.

It feems necessary, with regard to citizens, to postpone the exchange of them, until the meeting of the commissioners,

SIR, Cambridge, March 26, 1778.
THE commanding officer of your troops not being at Cambridge, I am under the necessity of troubling you with the inclosed complaint from Lieutenant Battersby, an officer of the Convention. He is now in the guard-house, which I think, you will argee with me, is an improper place for an officer, though he might, in the first instance, be in the wrong.

Should an officer endanger his parole, by being out at an improper hour, his being put in arreft, or confined to the limits of the barracks, till the affair was enquired into, I should think the worst that could happen to him in any country.

think the worst that could happen to him in any country.

I should be obliged, Sir, if you would release Mr. Battersby from his present disagreeable situation.

Your most obedient servant,

Major Gen. Heath.

J. BURGOYNE.

SIR, Head Quarters, Boston, March 27, 1778. YOUR favour of yesterday, enclosing a complaint of Lieutenant Battersby, came to hand the last evening, and was new and surprising to me, as the least hint of it had not been communicated by my officers.

Strict order and discipline are constantly inculcated and required in my orders, and always where it respects officers, whether Continental or of the Convention, that delicacy which is due to the character of the officer and the gentleman, is strictly enjoined. The time of night when the licute-nant was taken up, and the terms of his parole, might properly subject him to confinement until the morning. This, however, ought to have been in the officer's room, and not with common prisoners. But you are sensible that the officers of the guards, although men of the best characters, are not so sully acquainted with the refinements of military discipline as were to be wished. It must, therefore, be considered as an error of judgment, and from the best intelligence, it is an error which has been frequently committed during the prefent war, especially at New York, where our unfortunate officers are often sent to the provost for the smallest trifles, and fometimes they know not for what, and there remain for weeks. It is a proceeding, however, which I equally deteff, both there and here, and have ordered Colonel Keith to release Lieutenant Battersby immediately; which should have been done the next morning after his confinement, had it been reported to me.

me Leusy, an odeer f Your Excellency's most obedient servant, war dest frank nows, which I W. HEATH.

Lieut Gen. Burgoyne.

SIR. Cambridge, March 27, 1778. I HAVE the favour of yours of the 26th, together with a letter from Captain Brathwaite, and am concerned at the precipitate departure of the fleet, which I take for granted, proceeded from Captain Braithwaite not thinking himfelf authorised to delay the execution of Lord Howe's orders. I am the more concerned, as I find by Mr. Mesereau, who is just returned from Rhode Island, that Lord Howe and General Pigot expected the provision would be landed. There is no mystery in the particular departure of the victuallers loaded with flour, they being clearly intended as an additional store for the troops upon their passage, and could never be originally defigned for their use on shore, because at the time they and the rest of the fleet sailed from Rhode Island, it could not have been in the contemplation of Lord Howe, that the troops would be detained on shore a fingle day after their arrival.

In answer to the paragraph, which says the accounts must be fettled, I am induced to ftate to you some remarks upon my fituation, and I beg you to confider them as a very folemn

The relolve of Congress, respecting my departure for England, is framed most accurately and most attentively, in favour of my journey; it takes the very words of my application, in the mention of my health, and of my going by Rhode Island, or other more expeditious route; both these circumftances clearly demonstrate, the Congress meant no delay, and their directions to you to furnish passports are express and

Had other conditions been necessary, it is not to be supposed, they would have been overlooked; but the plain con-Aruction of the vote proves yet more, for the conditional parole required, if it does not in effect cancel the vote of the 19th, of December, Sit at least puts an end to all pretence of necessity for it at this time, because I shall be as much under the controll of the Congress in England as in Cambridge, and as liable to be brought back upon any disputes in fettling the accounts, as upon any other circumstance, which you will observe, is a fituation quite different from that I stood in at the time the vote was passed for my detention in December. The supposition that the Congress means to release me with one hand and to fetter me with the other, is an idea too injurious for me to conceive. Upon these considerations, I again claim of you my passports for Rhode Island, in virtue of the resolve, of which you have a copy, and I am with the other gentlemen concerned, ready to fign the parole therein required. To this claim I must adhere, but being still defirous to accommodate matters according to your wishes, if possible, I will consent to postpone my journey till Wednesday, provided you will compel your commissary (for no folicitation on the part of Mr. Clarke has any effect) to deliver his account to-morrow.

The account of wood is likewise still withheld, and I cannot but observe to you, Sir, that while you have been expressing to me your inclination to facilitate this business, eight days are already elapsed, by the neglect of your commissaries; and I at present labour under that strange species of persecution, to have a measure insisted upon, and yet to be prevented all possible means of complying with it.

Though the fleet is failed, I fee no obstruction to liquidating the provision-account upon the principle first proposed; and for this purpose, a commissary of yours might attend me to Rhode Island, and I will make myself responsible to you to convey to the Port of Boston by vessels, in which your commissary may return, such a quantity of provisions, as shall replace what the troops have consumed; or in case of desiciency, an equivalent deposit of money shall be sent to you by your commissary; that deposit to be refunded to the commanding officer of the Convention troops for the time beingy

SIR, Cambridge, March 20.

SINCE receiving the favour of yours of yesterday, I have considered maturely the subject of the accounts, and find, I can, consistently with my duty, meet you so very nearly upon your own terms, that nothing but sincerity in the engagements made to me, which I will not suspect, can prevent my immediate departure.

I am induced to give you this information to-day, that no impediment may arise to finishing the whole business to morrow, when I expect, in consequence of your engagement, the favour of feeing you.

I have a new motive for being thus preffing, having last night suffered an attack from the gout in my stomach, of a much more serious nature than I have ever before experienced. I am convinced, every day's detention in this country endangers my life; and I am consident, you would be forry to reflect hereafter, that any unnecessary, not to say unwarrantable delays, had contributed to such a situation. My proposal in regard to paying provisions in kind, and of such quality as your Commissary shall approve, I understand to be sinally settled between us.

In regard to the wood account, and the account given in by General Glover, there are certainly several articles that acquire more discussion and examination, than can possibly be given them within the time I have named for my departure; but in order to remove every difficulty from your mind, I

After going so far to accommodate your inclination, I have only to add my reliance that you will bring with you to morrow my passports and a parole, according to the resolve of the Congress.

I am, SIR, &c.

J. BURGOYNE.

SIR, Cambridge, March 30, 1778. IF the weather prevented your coming to Cambridge this morning, I would readily have attended you in Boston, had you thought proper to have sent me safe conduct by an aid-de-camp.

Upon every reason that I alledged to you in my last letter, I am to defire an immediate and decifive answer in regard to my requisition of passports, conformable to the vote of the Congress, and am persuaded from the attention you have professed, that you will feel for my situation in point of health.

n Thursday uld inform me to whom I am to apply for carriages, and whether it is necessary to have any separate passports or escort for them.

You will observe, Sir, in the account of fuel, I have separated the wood from the other charges, which shall be settled and paid here, according to our agreement.

I have also left a blank for General Glover's account, the sum may be inserted after his major of brigade has settled the particulars.

I think, if Mr. Geddes and Mr. Commissary Clarke went with me to Rhode Island, it would greatly facilitate all the business in hand, and they might return with your officer.

I am, SIR, &c.

Your obedient fervant,

Major Gen. Heath,

J. BURGOYNE.

ARTICLES of agreement between his Excellency Lieutenant General Burgoyne and Major General Heath, respecting the payment of provisions, suel, &c. surnished to the troops of the Convention,

I. It is agreed, on the part of Lieutenant General Burgoyne, that a quantity of barrel provisions, equal to the quantity charged to General Burgoyne by Mr. Commissary Miller, in his account, dated 13th and 21st January, and 20th February, shall be sent to Boston as speedily as circumstances will permit; that is to say, one half of the said provisions from Rhode Island, within twenty days after the arrival of General Burgoyne in the said Island, The residue, should it be necessary to send for it from New York, in forty days after the said arrival.

It is also agreed on the part of General Burgoyne to depofit such sums as shall be equivalent to the provision not sent from Rhode Island within twenty days, these sums to be put into the hands of the officer or commissary, who General Heath shall appoint to accompany General Burgoyne to Rhode Island.

II. And it is further agreed, that if the provision should not be delivered, according to the above terms, the deposit, in as much as is equivalent to the provision so failing, shall remain with General Heath as payment of the account.

And it is further engaged by General Burgoyne to pay into the hands of the faid officer appointed by General Heath to accompany the general to Rhode Island, the sum of thirty k 2 thousand two hundred and fixty-three pounds, fourteen shilllings, lawful money, being the amount of the account charged to the troops for fuel.

And it is also engaged, by General Burgoyne, to pay into the hands of the faid officer the fum of

made by General Glover, for the expenditure upon the march, upon account of the troops, eight thousand two hundred and fifty-two pounds, feven shillings, and fixpence, sterling.

It is engaged, on the part of Major General Heath, to refund to Major General Phillips, or the commanding officer of the troops of the Convention for the time being, the sum deposited as above agreed, or such parts of them as shall be redeemed by the delivery of provisions within the time above limited.

IV. It is mutually agreed, between the contracting parties, that everything herein contained shall be construed in a liberal sense; and particularly, that no advantage shall be taken of any delays beyond the time limited for the delivery of provisions, provided such delays appear to arise from accidents of the sea or weather.

To this agreement we have mutually pledged our faith and words of honour, this 2d day of April, 1778.

Extract of a Letter to his Excellency Sir William Howe.

SIR, Rhede-Island, April 9, 1778.

Maj. Gen. Heath infifted that all the expences incurred by the Convention troops should be discharged in solid coin, according to the resolve of Congress. Had the results of this demand affected only my departure, I should not have suffered any personal considerations to have interfered with the interests of government, but should, at least, have waited a further explanation of your pleasure than I could under-

Rand from Mr. Commissary Clarke. But General Heath extended the matter to much more ferious ground, declaring the delay of payment must necessarily enhance the price of provisions to the troops, and intimating that it was not certain that a supply could be had at all, the stock of money in the treasury being exhausted, and the purchasing contractors finding frequent difficulties in obtaining cattle upon credit, even at advanced prices. hamen nat

I was clear in my opinion, that the direction of your Excellency, fent me verbally by Mr. Clarke, to declare against payment for any provisions, in case the Convention was broke taking it for granted they would not dare starve the troops did not apply to this case; because, whatever may be the private and just sentiments of every person who considers the refolve of suspension, to declare it broken now, would be playing their own game; they would immediately make use of that declaration as conclusive, and put it out of the power of government at home either to ratify and enforce the execution of the Convention, should they find means so to do, confiftent with the dignity of the state, or to exact so full a repair ration for the violation, should that be the resolution at home. as they may do, provided there exists not a colour of violation on our part. What they have hitherto alledged, as reasons for their resolves, must be judged by the world, not only to be without colour, but short of a moonshine shadow.

Upon these circumstances, I studied for expedients to secure the troops from the dangers threatened by non-payment. and at the same time evade the exorbitancy of the demand. I availed myself of the alternative given by the Congress to return provisions in kind, and, after some trouble, my stipulation was accepted for procuring provisions from Rhode-Island, or New-York, at limited periods, a fum of money equivalent to the quantity that should not be forth-coming immediately to be lodged in the hands of General Heath, as a deposit, and to be refunded to the officer commanding the Convention troops for the time being, whenever the provifions should arrive. Fortunately the stores here are in condition to liquidate the whole account; therefore the deposit is unnecessary. Many thousand pounds are saved to government, and no dispute in regard to what is past remains. I submit to your Excellency, whether a continuance of this method to discharge the provision accounts will not be the most desirable for the future, provided the King's stores in America can afford it, and whether, for that purpose, it might not be expedient to augment the flores at Rhode-Island?

The above difficulty thus removed, there remained a heavy account in regard to fuel for the troops from the time of their arrival, and the provision, fuel, and other handental expences upon the march from Saratoga, and advanced by Brigadier-General Glover. I had the good fortune, after much altercation, to make a great abatement upon these demands, by paying only the original cost of things, in specie, according to the price of the country, and all the contingencies of carriage, deliveries, &c. &c. which went to great amount in paper. 1 conceived no further difficulty in fulfilling the agreement, as your . Excellency had informed me an hundred thousand pounds were lent for the use of the troops under my orders. A commissary of the enemy, therefore, accompanied me to Rhode-Island to receive the fums.

The rest of the one hundred thousand pounds I proposed to fend to Major General Phillips, by the hands of the paymaster, whom I brought with me for that purpose, having first engaged a parole and escort for the secure passage of my military cheft, to be fent to the army unopened. I think a fum to this amount indispensibly expedient in the hands of that General, not only to discharge the subsistence to the army, some of which is in arrears, particularly the Germans, but also for fuch other contingent purposes as were explained between your Excellency and Mr. Clarke, " and concerning which I lately fent a mellage by -----

I think it the next duty to the army lately under my orders, to state to you, Sir, the very extraordinary expense the officera are exposed to in their present situation. Exaction is added to searcity at Cambridge, and every article of life is at an unprecedented price. I am confident in your Excellency's ustice and goodness, to include those troops in the order of bat and forage money for this year, though they do not take the field. The officers will be ruined or starved, if they have not that gratuity. If lodging money is allowed to the other parts of your army, I trust also they will be comprised in the order. General Phillips requested me to lay before you the necessity of his having a secretary, and his hopes you would allow his pay as a contingency.

I have now, Sir, to report to you a matter upon which I have been very much embarraffed.

The day I parted from Sir Guy Carleton he put into my hands a letter from Lord Barrington, fignifying the King's approbation of the appointment of brigadiers in Canada the preceding year, but stating the expediency of their serving as fuch in your army, there being fenior lieutenant colonels without that rank; and therefore ordering that those gentlemen should revert to their former foriations as lieutenant co-

Had Lord Barrington thought proper to communicate to me this idea before I left London, I think I should have been able to convince him of the impropriety of removing them at the very time of the service for the purpose of which they had been created, and of the impossibility of conduiting an army without regularity, with an entire vacuum of staff between the lieutenant general and a lieutenant colonel; for Major General Phillips being confidered as appropriated to the artillery, such was the case. As it was, I thought myself justified in taking the spirit, not the letter, of his Lordship's order; and it being clearly explained, that the only reason for diffolving the appointment of brigadiers was to prevent the classing of rank after a junction of the armies, I judged I could not be blameable for withholding the notification of the order till the junction was made, instead of putting it in force geographically upon quitting Canada. Since my arrival here, I have found a letter from General Harvey, approving the above measure, and I trust, Sir, it will not be disapproved by you. The only British brigadier with the troops is Hamilton,; there are two Germans, Specht and Gall. It will be for your Excellency to decide what shall now be their fate, and to write your pleasure thereupon, as well as upon all other articles respecting the troops, to Major General Phillips,

Lord Howe will have informed you, Sir, of my ideas communicated to him (in order to be submitted to you) by means of Captain Green, respecting the exchange of the Convention troops. My ideas were formed upon the knowledge I have of the feelings of the men in general. They are not only in a high state, as soldiers, by the experience and trials of the last campaign, but have a zeal in their cause, and a resentment against the enemy; that would give them double strength. Should you not find it adviseable or practicable to exchange the whole, I would next submit the great acquisition it would be to the strength of Canada, to exchange the slank companies of the 20th, 31st, 34th, and 53d regiments, which regiments are now in that country, instead of sending those companies to Britain, in case the treaty should be at last ratified.

" Having mentioned the subject of exchanges," permit me, Sir, to offer to your consideration the great merit of Major General Phillips. He properly belongs to Canada; his zeal made him solicitous to come forward and pursue the whole course of the campaign; his services have been conspicuous;

pretention in point of exchange?

I beg leave also to recommend to your notice Captain Leche of my regiment, who was taken upon the passage of the regiment from England, and has been ever fince in the province of the Massachusets. The commissary thinks the distance, and his being the only officer of that corps, has occasioned his being overlooked by your commissaries, as younger.

prisoners, he thinks, have been exchanged.

I fee the difficulty of effecting the exchange of individuals of the Convention troops; but I dare fay I shall intreat your goodness by the bare mention of the case of Lieut. Wheete, of the 20th regiment. An estate of 2000l. per annum actually depends upon his personal appearance in the court of Chancery. I stated this matter to the Congress, but they voted his return inexpedient. I request you, Sir, if you find it consistent with propriety, to make a fresh application to General Washington, for leave for his return upon his parole.

Captain Strangways, brother to Lord Ilchester, has also calls of family business of a very important nature; and I should be much obliged for any affistance of the same nature you might think proper to give.

I must close this long series of business with a report of the conduct of Ensign Bevil of the 62d regiment, in whose character I was deceived, when I recommended him to your Excellency for a commission. He has absconded from the army, in breach of his parole, and in debt, to a considerable amount, at Cambridge.

There is reason to suppose he meant to go to Philadelphia or New-York. I think it probable, Sir, you may send him back a prisoner to the enemy; at all events, I conclude you will suspend him; and, in that case, I would recommend to his vacancy Mr. Higgins, if you have not already been so good to place him elsewhere.

I have avoided to mention myself, in speaking of exchanges. An idea has obtained among the enemy that Lee was to be made a lieutenant general; I have been also teld that a major general and a colonel might be accepted for a lieutenant general. In all cases, I put myself into your hands, and wish to add, as an appendix to myself, my secretary and deputy adjutant-general, Lieut. Col. Kingston, consident that I need not expatiate upon the satisfaction I should feel at being put again in a situation to serve under you as soon as my health

ARTICLES of agreement, entered into at Newport, on Rhode-Island, on the tenth day of April, Anno Domini, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-eight, between John Morrison, Esq. deputy commissary-general, on behalf of Major General Pigot, and Samuel Barrett, Esq. agent for supplies, on behalf of Major General Heath.

Whereas there is not a sufficiency of beef in the stores at Newport to satisfy and pay the demand made by Mr. Commissary Miller, for his supply of that specie to the troops of the Convention; it is agreed, on the part of Mr. Morrison, that a quantity of pork, equal to the desciency of beef, at the rate of eighteen ounces of pork for twenty-sour ounces of beef, shall be deposited on board the victuallers now bound to Boston, and sent there fortbwith, under the care of Mr. George Leonard, assistant deputy commissary, and to remain in his custody forty days from the seventh of this instant, April, being the day of the arrival of his Excellency, Lieutenant General Burgoyne, at Newport, before a demand shall be paid there for, on the part of Mr. Commissary Miller.

And it is further agreed, on the part of Mr. Barrett, that, in case a quantity of beef, sufficient to discharge the balance due to Mr. Commissary Miller, for supplies to the troops of the Convention to the first of March last, shall arrive at Boston within the forty days stipulated as aforesaid, addressed the care of Mr. Commissary Leonard, then, in that case, the faid George Leonard shall satisfy and pay the said balance in beef, and be permitted to return with the pork aforesaid to Newport.

And it is further agreed, that if the faid Mr. Commissary Miller will agree to receive four pounds of pork for seven pounds of beef, in that case, Mr. Leonard shall deliver the pork in payment for faid beef, within the time limited as aforesaid.

And it is further agreed, on the part of Mr. Morrison, that, if a quantity of beef, sufficient to pay the balance due to Mr. Commissary Miller, for supplies to the period aforesaid, should not arrive and be delivered by Mr. Commissary Leonard to Mr. Commissary Miller, in full of the deficiency aforesaid, or a quantity of pork be accepted by him in lieu thereof, in the proportion specified in the article next preceding within the said term of forty days, then, in that case, the quantity of pork specified in the first article shall be paid to the said Miller, in the proportion therein stated, for said desiciency.

And it is also surther agreed, as the true intent and meaning of the parties herein named, that, if Mr. Commissary Leonard should not have a sufficiency of beef addressed to his care, on or before the expiration of the said forty days, to saits the whole demand that Mr. Commissary Miller has made, for his supply of that specie to the troops of the Convention, to the 28th of February, Mr. Commissary Miller will, in that case, receive such quantities of beef as Mr. Commissary Leonard may deliver him, towards discharging his demand for that article, and the desiciency in pork, according to the proportion settled in the first article of this

And it is further agreed, on both sides, that a quantity of bread and flour, equal (at the rates of the prices specified in Mr. Commissary Miller's account of supplies to the troops of the Convention) to the quantity of beef which may be deficient, shall be put on board the victuallers, and sent to Boston, to the address of Mr. Leonard, in addition to the quantities sent to repay those supplied, in the respective species, to remain as a deposit during the aforesaid term of forty days. And that, in case the deficient quantities of beef aforesaid do not arrive and be delivered to Mr. Commissary Miller within said time, or a quantity of pork equivalent to the same, in conformity to the first article, then the said bread and flour be paid and received in payment for the same, at the rates aforefaid.

And, to prevent all possible misunderstanding, respecting the quantities of provisions respectively demanded and to be shipped for payment, it is agreed, that the demand made on the part of Mr. Commissary Miller is as follows, to wit, six hundred and forty-seven thousand one hundred and thirty-four pounds of bread, eight hundred and ninety-seven thousand seven hundred and fifty pounds of beef, thirteen thousand Instructions from Major General Pigot to Major Morrison, Deputy Commissary, about supplying the Convention Troops with Provision.

SIR. Newport, April 11, 1778. AS the present mode of victualling the troops of Lieutenant General Burgoyne in the Massachusets-Bay is attended with many difficulties, you will hold yourself in readiness to proceed with the flag that returns with Major Pollard, aid de camp to Major General Heath, and Mr. Samuel Barrett, agent for supplies; and, upon your arrival at Boston, you will immediately wait upon Major General Heath, and endeavour to fettle with him the proportion of one specie for another, which may ferve as a rule in paying for fuch provifions as may have been furnished by him for the use of General Burgoyne's troops. In the accomplishment of this butine's, you will adhere to the rules by which the army under Sir William Howe are victualled, and use your best endeayours that those rules and regulations be adopted and admitted, or as nearly as may be, on the part of General Heath, for the payment of such provisions as may have been, or hereafter may be, furnished to the troops of General Burgoyne, that in future there may be no difficulty in adjusting those

As it is necessary that those troops should be victualled in the same manner as the other British troops in America are, you will endeavour to obtain from General Heath his permission for the admittance of such victuallers into the harbour of Boston, as may hereaster be necessary for surnishing the proper supplies of provisions for the subsistence of the asoretaid troops, so long as they may remain in the province of Massachusets-troop Majo Polla be ob ports. wards journ SIR, Rhode-Island, April 12, 1778. THE agreement respecting the provisions is sulfilled.

It having been reported to me that the mode of victualling the troops of the Convention has been varied lately, viz. that, instead of meat, fish had been substituted, I am under the necessity of observing, fish is not a customary victualling for our troops; and as the scarcity of meat will be removed by the quantity sent from hence, I must desire the troops of the Convention may be supplied with English provisions: the propriety of this is so evident, that I am persuaded no objection can lie against it; besides, it will effectually prevent all cavil between the commissaries about the goodness of the provisions. I thought it might be a mutual convenience to send a commissary to regulate the future supply for the troops of the Convention, that neither difficulty nor dispute may arise. Major Morrison goes upon this business.

I am obliged to you, Sir, for the accommodations I received on my journey, which were very much to my fatisfaction, and am, SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

Maj. Gen. Heath.

J. BURGOYNE.

Phillips.

SIR, Rhode-Island, April 13, 1778. IN order to settle every thing relative to supplying the troops of the Convention with provisions, I have directed Major Morrison, commissary general, to accompany Major Pollard and Mr. Barrett to Major General Heath, and shall be obliged to you for furnishing him with the necessary passports. I am also to thank you, Sir, for your attention towards me, and the accommodations I met with upon my journey, in consequence of your orders.

Maj. Gen. Spencer. (Signed) J. Burgoyne
