& Sleeping Family of Five Persons Burned to Death-Regulations Regarding the Use of Carrier Pigeons.

Paid Himself Pretty Well.

VIENNA, March 27. - The chief cashier of the Commercial Bank of Trieste has absconded with 45,000 florins of the bank's duchess, became a nursing-sister in a Lonmoney. Via Edmund Yates.

Edmund Yates gives currency to the reelection at the next general election in Britain, and also that Mr. Justin Mc-Carthy may retire at the same time. A Sleeping Family Burned to Death.

LONDON, March 27 .- A paraffine lamp explosion set fire to a dwelling in the Clerkenwell district Saturday night, and Mr. and Mrs. Croger and their three children were burned to death.

The Bering Sea Question. LONDON, March 27 .- United States Ambassador Bavard had a long interview with the Earl of Kimberley to-day relating to arrangements for carrying out the findings of the Bering Sea court of arbitration. Fatal Accident to a Distinguished Traveler. LONDON, March 27 .- Commander Lovett opens to-morrow. Verney Cameron, the distinguished African traveler, after hunting with Baron Rothschild's hounds at Leighton Hazzard, Bedfordshire, yesterday, was thrown from his horse and died four hours later.

During the Ball. PARIS, March 27.—A bomb loaded with blasting powder and fragments of iron was exploded this evening on the window-sill of a public hall in Montceau-les-Mines. Department of Saone-et-Loire. A dance was going on in the hall at the time. The building was badly damaged, but nobody was hurt.

Thomas Shaw (Lib.) Elected. LONDON, March 27 .- The election in the Hawick district of Scotland, necessitated by Mr. Thomas Shaw's acceptance of the office of Solicitor-General for Scotland, was held to-day and resulted in the return of 3.203 votes against 2,556 for Mr. McLeod Fullarton, Q.C., Liberal Riot of Unemployed Men.

MADRID, March 27 .- A mob of 2,000 unemployed men paraded the streets of San Lucarie Barrameda yesterday, and finally began plundering shops, smashing windows and destroying other property. The police attempted to disperse the crowd but were driven off. The troops succeeded in scattering the crowd and restoring order. A number of rioters were hurt, but none seriously.

Fair Play for Rosebery.

DUBLIN, March 27 .- A monster political demonstration has been held at Derrymacash, near Lourgan, county Armagh. The principal speakers were Mr. William O'Brien and Mr. Michael Davitt, both of whom, in the course of their remarks, expressed perfect confidence in Prime Minister Rosebery and declared that they were determined to give him fair play in the House of Commons.

Carrier Pigeon Pro hibition.

BERLIN, March 27 .- Prussia is about to follow Bavaria's example and pass a law prohibiting the use of carrier pigeons without a license from the Government. When he subject was up in the Bavarian Chamber he Premier said that within a brief period more than 5,000 carrier pigeons had been let loose in the Palatinate for foreign homes. This statement put the Prussian authorities on the alert, as all realize that in the next war carrier pigeons will form a most important part of the news service. Scare at a Home Rule Meeting.

Dublin, March 27 .- While the regular meeting of the shareholders of the Dublin Freeman was in progress in the Imperial Hotel to-day part of the ceiling of the room fell to the floor with a tremendous crash. Everybody believed a bomb had been exploded, and a rush was made for the door. Before the frightened Home Rulers could escape, however, a section of the floor gave way, causing a number of the gentlemen to fall. Several of them were trampled upon, and severely, though not seriously hurc. Mr. Thomas Sexton, who presided at the meeting, succeeded in checking the scare by explaining in cause, and order was finally restored.

The Work of French Spies. BIRMINGHAM, March 27. - The Post, in a special dispatch from London, says there is good authority for the allegation that persons acting on behalf of the French Government have succeeded in obtaining at Whitehall the details of the plans of the proposed new works at Gibraltar. The fact that an attempt has been made to procure them is known to the war office, and there is reason to believe that the attempt was at least partially successful. The war office has ordered an inquiry into Suit for $5,000,000.

LONDON, March 27 .- The trial of the great Sutherland will case has been fixed to begin on June 1.

This is an action brought by the Dowager Duchess of Sutherland to have the Probate Division of her Majesty's High Court of Justice declare valid the will and codicils made by her deceased husband, by the terms of which she was to benefit to the extent of £1,000,000 ($5,000,000).

The present Duke of Sutherland, the plaintiff's stepson, will contest the case, which promises to be sensational. The Dowager Duchess of Sutherland is the daughter of the Rev. Richard Mitchell, history professor at Hertford College, Oxford. Miss Mitchell at an early age married Arthur Kindersley Blair, who had harge of the Duke of Sutherland's immense forests, and held the rank of captain in atherlandshire volunteers. This Capt. as, unfortunately, shot dead by the duke while they were out together deer-stalking. A liberal provision was made for the young widow, and the duke went in person to express his regrets. The duke, though a married man, with a most charming wife-Countess of Cromartie, and in her own right, a Scotch heiress, and with a lovely daughter, married to Mr. Henry Chaplin-became the infatuated slave of

Mrs. Blair. The duchess left Dunrobin Castle for her villa at Torquay, where the Princess of Wales went to stay with her, and by her tender, womanly sympathy endeavored to soothe the wounded heart-but in vain. The Duchess of Sutherland died Nov. 25, 1888, of a broken heart, it was said, and on March 4 next the duke married Mrs. Blair in Florida.

Lord Ronald Leveson-Gower and Lady Florence Chaplin, who both had suites of apartments in Stafford House, left the mansion, and Lady Alexandra Leveson-Gower, rather than receive the new don hospital, and succumbed to an illness. The tenants of Trentham and Dunrobin were so indignant that the duchess was port that Speaker Peel will not seek re- publicly insulted, and the old servants withdrew in a body. The duke from that time was upon strained terms with all his family, and eventually left to the duchess everything in his power to leave, when he died in September, 1892.

The dowager duchess was sent to jail some months ago for contempt of court in burning a document supposed to have a bearing upon this will case, which she had been ordered to produce. A Hygienic Exposition.

Rome, March 28 .- The Hygienic Exposition was opened this morning in the Palace of Fine Arts. Pre: . Crispi and the other Ministers and members of the municipal council were present, and inspected the scientific exhibits. A reception will be given this evening by the lady delegates to the Hygienic Congress, which Salisbury's Fiddle Found.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 28 .- Hermann Schifferl, a Minneapolis violin maker, today discovered that he was in possession of a violin made by B. Gratiani, Pisa, in 1774, and which was stolen from Lord Salisbury, ex-Premier of England. The violin was brought to Schifferl a short time ago by a young man, a stranger, who wanted it repaired. Schifferl says that he himself bought the violin for Lord Salisbury in Pisa years ago, and that it was stolen in Crushing Nihilism.

London, March 28.—The Chronicle's Moscow correspondent says: M. Skvortsr, who was appointed to crush stundism in Kieff Province, has been actively employed. He recently arrested a peasant named Mough and confined him in a limestrewn dungeon, where the man suffered horribly. The prisoner has now been sentenced to be deprived of his rights and to be banished to the Caucasus. Eighteen students in the army medical school in St. Petersburg have been arrested for having connection with Nihilists. Many similar arrests are being made in Odessa.

Collision at Sea. London, March 28 .- The British steamship Jesso, Capt. Strachan, which sailed from Baltimore on March 1 for Bristol, arriving there March 19, was sunk seven miles northeast of Ilfracombe by coming in collision with the schooner Lizzie R. Wilce last evening. Capt. Strachan, two of his crew and a stowaway are missing. The rest were successful in getting ashore. The Lizzie R. Wilce was towed to Ifracombe. Her stern is damaged and she is leaking badly. The weather at the time of the collision was Reviving a Dead Man's Expression. Paris, March 28 .- Madame Israels, at whose house the Anarchist calling himself Rabardy lodged, has been unable to identify Pauvel, who was killed by the explosion of a bomb which he was carrying into the Church of the Madeline, as the man who was her former lodger. In many respects she thinks the features are the same, but the inaminate face of Pauvel being devoid of expression she is unable to positively identify.

The authorities have employed experts to apply electricity to the face of Pauvel, expecting to produce a semblance of life, when another attempt will be made to identify him as the man who perpetrated the bomb outrages in the Rue St. Denis and Rue St. Jacques.

Foster's Figures.

The Dominion Finance Minister Brings Down His Budget.

Large Number of Proposed Tariff Changes Announced.

The Minister's Explanation of the Canadian Exodus Greeted with Roars of Laughter.

(Special to the ADVERTISER.) OTTAWA, March 27 .- All the interest in to-day's proceedings centered in the proposed tariff changes, which were announced by Hon. Mr. Foster in the course of his speech introducing the budget. THE BUDGET SPEECH.

Mr. Foster on rising was greeted with cheers. The statement of the finances showed an increase for 1892-3 in customs revenue of $452,000; in excise, $422,000, and in miscellaneous of $371,000, or a total increase of $1,246,000. There was a slight increase in the consumption of spirits, these facts showing the increased consumptive power of the people, and indicated a healthy condition of things. The rate of taxation on dutiable goods consumed in Canada was 30.28, and on all goods, including free goods, was 17.38. The expenditure for last year had been $36,814,000, and the receipts $1,354,556 in excess. He claimed credit for keeping the expenditure at just about a stationary figure. Expenditure on capital account had increased during last year, and

by $549,605. For the current year begining July 1, 1893, the record was not bright. From December last to the present time the revenue has shown a steady decline. He therefore would have to count on a deficit if the expenditure was not kept down, and the Government had concluded to live this year within its income so as to avoid a deficit. They had come, he thought, to a limit of expenditure on capital account for great works. There only remained the improvement of the St. Lawrence River and canals, which would cost about $8,000,000 or $10,000,000. Mr. Foster pointed to the imports and the exports last year and to the deposits in the savings bank in proof that Canada was doing well. Before explaining the tariff changes he made some general remarks as to the principle of a tariff. They had either to have free trade, a revenue tariff with incidental protection, or a protective tariff. Mr. Foster indulged in a long and eloquent panegyric of the principle of protection, which developed the country and soforth. A new country needed protection from older countries. The Conservative party had existed since 1878 on the principle of protection, and proposed to continue to exist on that principle. That was the principle upon which the Conservatives were going to poll the vote of the electorate in not many months. Necessarily the rate of protection must be higher at the inception of the policy than at a later stage, when industries become established. The highest percentage rate since 1879 had been 31, and the average less than 29. In the United States it was 45 per cent. The Canadian tariff was a moderate one, with a large free list. No heavy hand had been laid on staple products of consumption. In proof of this Mr. Foster gave a list of tour such manufactures, all of which he described as superior to foreign manufactures. A TIMELY INTERRUPTION. Mr. Laurier interrupted, saying: "You are surely not going to amend such a perect tariff," which raised a laugh.

Mr. Foster declared that the object of protection was to enhance the cost of oreign goods by the amendment of the protective duty, and thus give home manufacture; the vantage ground. Home competition was the result of the estabishment of industries in Canada. Alluding to the exodus of Canadians, Mr. Foster asserted that these people had been driven from Canada by arguments against the denunciations of the National Policy advanced by the Opposition.

This was greeted with such roars of laughter from the Opposition that the Fnance Minister's voice was drowned.

Mr. Foster then devoted an hour to recitations of evidences of prosperity. The Opposition laughed at his industrial census figures. The tariff burdens of the people had been lightened, he said, since 1880 in many ways, and he enumerated a number of articles such as tea, coffee, hard coal, glass, salt, molasses and raw sugar. Depression in business and falling revenue were two difficulties in the way of raising a tariff. This year and next year it would require the closest economy to avoid a deficit. They could not proceed in the revision on any fixed rule or horizontal rule. They had to take into account the varying conditions of each industry. Nor had they any rule as to specific duties, which are in some respects useful in regard to valuation and in acting in raising the price of cheaper and poorer articles. Six hundred and sixty-five articles of dutiable goods had been boiled down. Special exemptions were, as far as possible, struck from the list. The prime object kept in view was to cheapen the cost of manufacturing in Canada. There was a great difference between cost of goods as sold by the manufacturer and as sold by the retailer. The retail profit was exorbitant in many cases. Two ways of cheapening the cost of manufactures had been adopted; one, the lowering of the duty on raw material, and the other by transferring raw materials from the dutiable to the free list. The vigor of the industry, competition and methods of business had also been considered.

It was now 6 o'clock and the Speaker left the chair.

On resuming at 8:30 the galleries of the House were crowded to excess. Mr. Foster had been talking two hours on fiscal questions without disclosing proposed changes. Mr. Foster said the agricultural interests receive sympathetic and fair treatment in the proposed revision. He read statistics of imports in the attempt to prove that the home market had served farmers well since the National Policy was introduced. That policy had benefited the farmer. He then announced the new tariff.

LONDON DEFEATS WOODSTOCK At Hockey-A Lively Scrimmage-Too Much Kicking.

In response to a telephone message, and with but a few hours' notice, the London Junior Hockey Club went to Woodstock yesterday afternoon, and in the evening played a game with the home team. The visitors were badly in need of practice, but went in to win, and win they did. At the end of full time the score stood 3 to 3, and after a short rest a start was made to secure the deciding goal. This was easily taken by London in about three minutes. Fred Beltz, of this city, acted as referee. The London Club comprised Glover, goal; Screaton, point Southam, cover point; with Sippi, Macbeth, Skey and R. Lind as forwards. If the Woodstock team had expended as much energy in the game as they did in "kicking," the result might have been different. They take defeat too seriously, and wanted to administer corporal punishment to each and every member of the Forest City crowd at the end of the game. The London boys escaped whole skinned.

WILL MAKE A MOVE.

Prohibition Metion to be Made in the House-The Alliance Annual Meeting-Lively Debate.

[Special to the ADVERTISER.]

OTTAWA, March 28 .- The legislative committee of the Dominion Alliance held its annual meeting to-day in the tower room. A large number of the members of both louses were present, Senator Vidal in the chair. Messrs. Spence and Orr, of Toronto. Carson and Dougall, of Montreal, and Buchanan, of Hamilton, were present.

There was a big meeting and much talkng over the question as to whether a straight prohibition motion should be moved in the House this session; whether that would justify Conservative members n supporting the Government in the po tion that they should first get the report of the r oyal fcommission; and whether there should be a motion for prohibition or both.

Messrs. Scriver, Fraser and Charlton favored a plebiscite, but Dickie, Coatsworth, Roome and Wood opposed it. The members of the Alliance accused the members of Parliament of fishing for votes in the stand they took in the House on this question. The members threw back in the teeth of the Alliance that at general elections temperance men voted party first and temperance afterwards. After a long debate a resolution finally carried that a motion be introduced in the House declaring that as speedily as possible a prohibitory law hould be enacted. The following committee was appointed to carry out this programme: Charlton, Dickie, Scriver, Coatsworth and Flint. THE NEW TARIFF.

Press Opinions-An Ottawa Tory Paper Semewhat Displeased. Que., March 28.-The Gazette applauds the new tariff and says it will place the business of the country on a sound basis. OTTAWA, March 28 .- The Citizen (Conervative) says the new tariff is better than the prophecies of the opponents of the Government and better than the fears of their friends. The Opposition may grumble as It is said that Potter Palmer, the Chicago Minister's challenge and propound one of old, but let them accept the Finance based on a better principle. The Free Press (Liberal) says the changes are a poor attempt to cover up the injustices and excesses of the tariff, and that the duties on agricultural implements should have been reduced more. The Evening Journal (Conservative) says that the cut of a million and a half in taxation largely in assistance of the farmers, is a courageous although a necessary move, and the change is likely to decidedly strengthen the Government, but that in some other respects, notably coal oil, the country had a right to expect relief and would not have grumbled at an increase on whisky, seeing that there is a reduction in tax on beer. The newspapers, the Journal says, have been refused everything they asked for in their own case and have had a few additional duties stuck on; but probably the Government thinks the papers are too solid on one side or the other to home any.

MIDDLESEX SPRING ASSIZES.

Bicyclist Flack Loses His Case Against the City.

Action for Damages Against the Township of Delaware-True Bill Against Allander.

Tuesday Atternoon.

FLACK'S CASE DISMISSED. When the court resumed at 1:30 Mr. Osler, for the city, began his address to the jury in the Flack case. He reviewed the various points at some length, and made a strong appeal for his clients. Mr. Ritchie followed for the plaintiff, giving a comprehensive review of the case. Justice Meredith, before giving the case to the jury, submitted the following questions for them to answer: 1. Was there any neglect of the defendants' duty to keep the highway in repair? 2. If so, in what respect or respects? 3. Was such neglect, if any, the approximate cause of the accident and injuries? 4. Was there contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff? 5. Was the plaintiff in the act of going upon the sidewalk when the accident occurred? 6. Was he in the act of going up the horse road in Charlotte street? The jury found that the city had shown no carelessness in keeping the highway in repair; that there was contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff; that the plaintiff was in the act of going upon the sidewalk; that he was not turning up the center of the road, and that he was not entitled to any damages. The action was accordingly dismissed with costs.

A JURYMAN FINED, Wm. Sullivan, of Adelaide, one of the jury on the case of Flack vs. London, was late in appearing for the afternoon session of the court, and the case proceeded with only eleven jurors. Justice Meredith questioned him as to his absence, and the excuse not proving satisfactory the offender was fined $5.

GRAHAM VS. DRUMMOND. Joseph Graham, of this city, brought suit against Drummond, Goldingham, & Co., who formerly ran a stock brokers' office in this city. Graham had some cotton transactions with the company, and now sues for a note amounting to $305, due Jan. 24, 1893, and interest from that date -total, $326 35. No defense; judgradt entered for full amount.

TRUE BILL AGAINST BENJAMIN FISHER. The grand jury in the Mount Brydges postoffice robbery case returned two true bills for theft against Benjamin Fisher. GRAHAM VS. DELAWARE.

This was an action brought by plaintiff, a aboring man living in Komoka, against the township of Delaware, to recover damages for injuries received while returning home from the latter place. The highway on which the accident occurred was the principal one between the places mentioned. In 1883, when the river at that point was very high the water crossed the road and washed the gravel away. The roadway was partly filled in, but the plaintiff claimed that it was never put into a thorough state of repair. One day last fall as plaintiff was returning to Komoka, a wheel of his wagon went into a hole and he was thrown, receiving injuries from which he has never fully recovered the use of an arm. Henry Harwood, a baker belonging to Komoka, told Mr. Cameron, for the plaintiff, that he traveled over the road in uestion very often, and was well acquainted ith the portion which was washed out. He also gave other points in favor of Graham, but when Mr. Osler cross-examined him Harwood evidently forgot what he had previously said and made contrais scarcely more rapid than the lightninglike action of Nerviline in all kinds of pains. Is it neuralgia? Relief is certain and rapid. Toothache is cured as if by magic. Rheumatism finds a master in a few applications of the powerful and penetrating Nerviline. In a word, pain, whether internal or external, finds a prompt antidote in Nerviline. Give Nerviline a trial. Druggists and dealers everywhere sell it, and it costs only 25 cents a bottle. Give Holloway's Corn Cure a trial. It removed ten corns from one pair of feet without any pain. What it has done once it will do again.

Pond's Extract is unequaled for bathing the face after shaving. For this purpose it is far superior to bay rum. Fond's Extract does not cause the stinging or smarting produced by other lotions, nor does it leave the face with that disagreeable shininess. Pond's Extract positively reduces the slight inflammation which always remains after the use of the razor, because just as it reduces any infiammation it sends back the blood that the razor has brought near the surface, checks bleeding if any exists, and makes the skin soft white, and smooth. It is thus used by the very best barbers.

The Medical Branch of the Western | The Experience of a Nova Scotian Lady University.

Result of the Annual Examinations-The Honor Roll and Full List of Students Who Passed.

The annual examinations in connection with the medical branch of the Western University have just been concluded, and the results are indicated. The year has been one of marked success, and the long roll of students passed is an easily read commentary on the efficiency of the teaching staff and the diligence of the students.
Following is the honor roll and full list of students passed, those in parenthesis being of equal merit:

CONSUMPTION AVERTED.

-Her Friends Thought Her Going Into Consumption-How That Dread Possibility Was Averted.

Some time ago, says the Annapolis, N. S., Spectator, we felt it our duty in the interests of the public to make known a remarkable cure in Clementsport through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Since then other cases have come to our knowledge, the most striking of which is perhaps that of Mrs. Osmond Dunn, of Greywood, who was generally supposed to be in consumption. It has been freely rumored that Mrs. Dunn has had wonderful benefit from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. On inquiry we found that Mrs. Dunn's case was exactly as reported. She had formerly been a healthy woman, but for many months past has been very sick, her friends fearing that her recovery was not possible. Her appetite had almost entirely failed, her condition was constantly growing worse, and it was feared that consumption had laid its hold upon her. Medicine after medicine was tried, but to no avail, and hope almost began to vanish. Mrs. Dunn had read in the press of the numerous cures resulting from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and at last determined she would give them a fair trial. Before the first supply procured was finished Mrs. Dunn began to find relief and determined to continue the treatment. The result has been something marvelous. From a frail, sickly person, she is now the embodiment of health. Prevented by her illness from going out, even to church, Mrs. Dunn is now able to go anywhere necessity requires. Mrs. Dunn has so great a faith in this public benefactor-Pink Pills, that she recommends them to all her triends.

Consumption and all chronic maladies may be averted by keeping the blood in a pure and healthy condition, and in no other way can this be so easily accomplished as by the judicious use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which stand far in advance of all other remedies as a blood builder and norve tonic. At this season of the year when even the most robust constitutions are in a more or less enervated condition as the result of indoor confinement during the winter months, a course of treatment with Pink Pills will be found of the greatest benefit. Sold by all dealers, or sent postpaid on receipt of 50 cents a box, or $2 50 for six boxes, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., or Schnectady, N. Y. See that you get the genuine, every box bearing the company's trade mark on the wrapper.

AIDS TO LONGEVITY.

A Light and Dry Atmosphere May Add Ten Years to Life.

[From the London Hospital.] There are two sorts of pressure which end to shorten life-blood pressure within and atmospheric pressure without. The latter is a specially important factor in a humid climate. In advancing age the circulation of the blood and lymph tends to become slow, and the enfeebled heart finds its embarrasements increased by this contion. Especially do the more vascular ans, such as the lungs, the liver and the kidneys, put skids on the wheels of the blood circulation. Plainly, then, an important condition of cardiac easement, and therefore of life prolongation, is the maintenance of an uncongested condition of lung, liver and kidney. Thus are internal pressure relieved, and thus is cardiac energy conserved. Of almost equal importance, at any rate in Great Britain, is the question of atmospheric pressure and moisture to aged persons. Situations w ich are at once lowlying and damp give f course, a maximum of atmospheric pre re. Such pressure weighs down at a single stroke body, mind and life. The difference to aged persons between living at the sea level and living 500 feet above it, between living in a moist atmosphere and living in a dry one, is sometimes quite incalculable. Not seldom life may be lengthened by five or even ten years by living in an atmosphere which is both light and dry. These physiological considerations are commended to the aged and to the physicians of the aged.

DRINK AND PROSPER I Finance Minister Foster now regards the increased consumption of spirits in the Dominion as a healthy sign. In his budget speech, he so affirmed. Mr. Foster must have had more "moments of weakness." Time was when he preached an entirely contrary doctrine, but that was when he was a temperance advocate and not compelled to smother his principles by political

DUFFERIN AND ROSEBERY. Mr. Munro-Ferguson, son-in-law of Earl Dufferin, has been re-elected for Leith by a large majority, on his acceptance of a seat in the Rosebery Government. The big Fifeshire estates of this rising young statesman lie close to those of the new Premier, and there are many very close bonds of friendship and appreciation between the two families. The speedy elevation of Lord Dufferin's son-in-law in a Cabinet now controlled by Lord Rosebery suggests to public school department, made an address Mr. Harold Frederic, the usually wellinformed cable correspondent, the fact that | read a paper on "Lessons from the school Lord Dufferin is a factor in the Irish problem. This correspondent thinks the empire is now on the threshold of Earl Dufferin's day as a potent influence for the right settlement of the knotty Irish question. Says this writer:

"Dufferin has for many years been a Home Ruler by conviction, and successive ing she delivered an address on "The Tory Ministers have showered all sorts of offices on him to keep him from saying so. Now that he has everything there is-Ambassadorship to Paris and the Wardenship of the Cinque Ports both-it will be an opportune time for him to come forward under Rosebery's friendly auspices, disclose his real sentiments and offer to take a leading part in the restoration of national institutions and life in his native land. I shall be surprised if Rosebery's attitude toward home rule does not turn out to be colored by Dufferinism. It will then remain, of course, to discover what Dufferinism signifies in Irish matters, and decide whether it is wanted or not. Upon this it is possible to project an opinion, but about Dufferin's being in the present game there of local government and the relegating to local legislatures all matters except im perial questions will hail with satisfaction the return to Ireland of Earl Dufferin. Few men could better bring to fruition the good work set on foot by Gladstone, Morley and Aberdeen.

THE TARIFF CHANGES.

The long-delayed changes in the Dominion tariff were brought into the House of Commons by the Finance Minister last night. There are plenty of them, but in a large number of cases the alterations are a mere juggle with figures that will bring no benefit to the taxpayers.

Many items in the tax list are yet far too high, and the tariff remains objectionable to all genuine tariff reformers in so far as it maintains the so-called "protective" system, which in recent years has been denounced as inequitable and iniquitous by all the great producing and consuming classes in Canada,

In so far as the tariff changes provide for reduction of taxes do they belie the contentions of the men in power, who all these years have been falsely asserting that the tariff is not a tax, or if it is that the foreigner, not the Canadian, pays the duty. It is something gained to have this admission made, even in a half-hearted fashion. The confession will nerve the Liberal party, supported by the great independent classes of the country, to continue the agitation in favor of the removal of every tax that is not needed for the economical government of Canada, and which does not go into the public exchequer.

Mr. Foster says that in not many months from now the amended tariff will be placed on trial before the constituencies, and as is his custom he professes to be sanguine that it will be indorsed as all that the people can desire. We do not know whether or not the Finance Minister means by this statement to convey the information that an election will be held before the musty voters' lists are revised, and while only four out of the five sessions of the present Parliament have been held. But we can tell Mr. Foster that this eleventh-hour partial acknowledgment of the failure of his nostrum will not go down with the people. They have been gerrymandered so as to "hive the Grits," in the expressive, if inelegant phraseclogy of the Conservative leader a few years ago; but they will be heard at the polls in due season, and their verdict will be for a drastic measure of tariff reform that shall meantime the partial triumph of Liberal principles, as a result of the persistent agitation against the policy of high taxation effort on the part of tariff reformers from one end of the Dominion to the other. The movement cannot be stayed by any halfway measure, as Mr. Foster fondly hopes.

A WORD FOR CANADA.

We have nothing but praise for Canada, but hold that no condemnation can be too strong for the men who have so harassed the Dominion with unnecessary taxes, in the face of very low prices received from abroad for the products of Canadian industry. It is very stupid to hold, as the defenders of monopoly do. that condemnation of the men and of the system implies condemnation of the country. The device is easily seen through. Canada is all right; what the country needs is a cleaning bigamy. out of the Augean stable at Ottawa.

SEDITIOUS LITERATURE.

[Toronto News.] The following is an extract from the speech of Hon. Iom Johnson, which the Dominion postoffice officials seized as seditious literature. After an utterance like this the Honorable Tom may rest assured if he ever comes on this side of the line he will be arrested:

"Of all the nonsense talked against the reduction of tariff taxes, the claim that they benefit the working man is most transparent. The effect of these taxes is to increase the price of everything that the workingman sells his labor for, since the money he gets is only the medium with which he obtains what is the real object of his labor. Granted, which is only true in a comparatively few cases, that such taxes increase the profits of his employer. Do employers pay larger wages when they get larger profits? I do not (laughter) and even philanthropists do not.

This is the first case finished of seventeen against the Whiteway members. It is believed the general principles underlying the judgment render the disqualification of the whole number absolutely certain. Woods and Moores were found guilty of spending many thousands of dollars illegally, employing hundreds of men in useless. unprofitable public works in their districts to secure their votes, making election promises for the same end. They were also found guilty of personal bribery. They cannot contest again during the continuance of the present Assembly. Intense excitement prevails here. The Government is in an extremely awkward position. Every member of the executive is involved and may be disqualified within a few weeks. It is believed the Government will resign if the Governor permits. It is a debatable question if he can do so under the circumstances. Important developments are expected in a few days.

RICHMOND, Ind., March 27.—A detachment of tramps, deserters from Coxey's commonweal army at Massillon, passed through here to-day en route home to Omaha. They expressed themselves as disgusted with the whole business.

ALLIANCE, Ohio, March 27 .- This point was reached by the Commonweal army early this morning after a march of fourteen miles over very rough and muddy roads. The third day out from Masillon was as unpleasant as any of its predecessors. Alliance is the most enthusiastic town yet reached. Many sympathizers with the movement live here. Supplies to the amount of half a car came in. As evening came on recruits began to arrive, and the column is now 178 strong. The Legislature.

Mr. Fraser Makes His First Speech This Session.

No Liquor To Be Allowed in the Provincial Park,

Debate on Mr. Whitney's Motion to Change the Present Style of Ballot-The Government Sustained by a Majority of 23 Votes.

(Special to the ADVERTISER.) PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS, TORONTO, March 27.—The first of this afternoon's session was occupied by a discussion-raised by Mr. Wood (Hastings)-onthecorrectness of the question to the vote at a meeting of the committee ..

In connection with a motion for the second reading of his bill respecting the site of the new legislature and departmental buildings, which comprise almost ten acres in Queen's Park, Mr. Fraser spoke for the first time this session.

Mr. Wood's observations in complimenting the Minister of Public Works on the completion of his labors, as evidenced in the present magnificent pile of buildings, was loudly applauded by the whole House. Immediately after its second reading the bill was passed through committee un-

Two bills of Mr. McKay's (Oxford)-the one respecting a bylaw of the county of Oxford, and the other confirming a similar piece of legislation by the council of Listowel-were read a third time.

The House went into committee on Mr. Hardy's bill to establish a Provincial park at Rondeau. The only amendment of importance made was that prohibiting liquors for any purposes within the park.

When Mr. Harcourt moved the House into committee of supply, Mr. Whitney moved an amendment favoring the discontinuance of the numbered ballot paper in Provincial elections. Mr. Whitney pointed out that the ballot, as he would have is, was in use in many of the States and various parts of Europe. It was an absolutely secret ballot. Mr. Whitney said that the Attorney-General had argued on a previous occasion that the non-secret ballot had been made operative for the purpose of facilitating the inquiry into charges against persons for bribery at elections. How such a regulation was going to effect, or had ever effected, what it had been intended to perform, was beyond his comprehension. In prosecuting a manfor personation, there was no necessity for tracing the ballot. It was only necessary that it should be proven that one person voted in the name of another. Mr. Whitney hoped that the Attorney-Ger al would not insist upon the House appre again of the present ballot law simply because it found its origin in England. This ballot law did not in the mother country even meet with general approbation. An authority was quoted in this connection

It being 6 o'clock the Speaker left the EVENING SESSION. The whole of the evening session was consumed in debating Mr. Whitney's amendment. Mr. Mowat made an able and conclusive defense of the system of voting now approved by the Government. Mr. Meredith stigmatized the secrecy of the present ballot as a sham, a delusion and a frand.

Mr. Ross gave an address of exceptional power. He fully demonstrated that not one tittle of evidence had been adduced by the Opposition speakers to justify the assertion that under the existing ballot voters were subject to coercion, intimidation or any wrong practice. He thought that a ballot by which the rights of 1,000,-000 voters were protected in Great Britain should be suitable for half as many electors

The vote stood 30 yeas and 53 nays, a majority of 23. Both Mr. McNaughton and Mr. McCallum voted with the majority. The House adjourned at 11:15.

A Baleful Blizzard. MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 27 .- One million dollars will not cover the loss to farmers in this section of the Mississippi Valley from the blizzard which has been raging for two days. All kinds of fruit, vegetables and foliage have been killed, and the whole country looks as if it had been swept by a forest fire. Sick of Breckinridge. CHICAGO, March 27 .- The Union League Club, the most influential and social organization of Chicago, is, it is said, seriously considering the question of expelling Congressman Breckinridge from honorary membership. There are but three names on the club's list of honorary members—ex-

President Harrison, Chauncey M. Depew and the Kentucky congressman. The New Modus Vivendi.

Washington, D. C., March 27 .- The new modus vivendi, covering the sealing season in Bering Sea, is still hanging fire. It would appear that the British Ambassador, Sir Julian Pauncefote, is using his best efforts to bring about a new modus, but that the British foreign office is not moving with the alacrity desired. The new modus will be broader in its scope than those of previous years, and if Secretary Gresham can bring it about, will provide explicitly that a certain number of vessels shall be assigned to patrol duty in those waters by each Government, and also that the patrol shall be conducted in a more systematic manner than heretofore.

THE OPEN FORUM.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER: To the gentlemen who acted so promptly in aiding my wife on Saturday evening, when she was thrown to the pavement by the careless driving of some party unknown, I desire to convey my heartfelt thanks. By inserting the above you will oblige yours truly, London, March 27. FRANK PLANT.

Manutacturing and Monopoly. To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

The Free Press, in Saturday's issue undertakes to make some badly needed political capital for its party and the party bosses, the protected combines, by attacking the Mowat Government on the binding twine question. The editor could hardly have been aware of the boomerang nature of the argument; that no women or children were employed by the Government; a better twine than the capitalist article was produced, while the dealers in material favored the combines, the pap-fed 15-yearmode adopted by Mr. Bronson (chairman of lold babies, to the extent of 28 cents per the railway committee), of putting a, pound, and the railways also helped them by cutting rates on their behalf. Admissions of this kind are sorry arguments against the Ontario Government. Their force is all the other way, and the fact that the Free Press has offered them gives them all the more weight, the more especially when we remember that under this great and beneficient N. P., by which we were all to be made rich, nearly one half the men of the country are out of employment, a great number of these being so badly off as to be compelled to find employment and lodging by getting! themselves sent to prison, the only place where they can be sure of food and shelter. It is true, the Free Press may sneer at the position of the men occupied in the Government factory, but we do not wonder when the choice lies between confinement in large, airy, clean buildings, well warmed and ventilated, with a satisfactory quantity of wholesome food always certain; with the Ontario Government for employer on the one hand, and, on the other hand, imprisonment all day in a low ceilinged, badly lighted and ventilated, dirty factory, with a fat N. P. monopolist for "boss; imprisonment all night in the wretched hovels that many workingmen are compelled to call homes, with none to much food, and that much less attractive than might be for comfort. We do not wonder that, at the risk of even considerable social opprobrium, a good many workingmen can e found willing to choose Ontario Government comfort rather than N. P. staryation. The Free Press acknowledges that the material costs more, that freight is higher, and that the finished product is better. In spite of these higher prices of material, additional railway freight, and better condition of the workers, the Government places better twine on the market than the protected combines do at the same prices, while the Free Press attacks them on their business ability. In the name of wonder what idea has the Free Press of business ability? Speed the day when all our railway, telegraph, telephone and especially banking lines shall be in the hands of the people under the same sort of business management.

The Free Press says the Government is a steady obstacle against purity of elec- in any one line of manufacture before commencing a second. The Free Press wants cotton. By all manner of means. The cotton monopoly is about as absolute as any we have, and such a move would be a warning to combines to cease the illegitimate use of 'private capital" for throttling private labor, and make room for the legitimate use of public capital in finding humanitarian conditions of life for laborers. "It is the business of the people to use the machinery of government in the organization and direction of the labor forces, so that every person may obtain constant employment, and to so distribute the products of labor that each worker shall receive the full reward of his toil."

"If the Government can carry a letter across the continent for 3 cents, why cannot it send a telegram correspondingly

"If the Government can build and manage a navy, why can it not build and operate a railroad?

"If the Government can run the treasury department, why cannot it run the banks? "If the Government can maintain an army of soldiers in idleness, why cannot it support an army of laborers at some useful occupation?

"If the Government can serve the people at less cost than private corporations, why does it not do so ?" With regard to the last argument in the case, the competition in binder twine, the Free Press merely attempts a little woolpulling. This monopoly permitted no competition and the higher prices in the United States were only the result of a higher N. P., by which the American capitalist got a little fatter return than the Canadian got

GEORGE SACKETT'S CASE.

Holsteiners Enjoy a Mild Sensation— One Box of Dodd's Kidney Pills Cures Their Fellow-Citizen of Backache and Kidney Diseace. HOLSTEIN, March 26 .- This quiet village is in an uproar of excitement just now over the case of George Sackett, a well-known resident. His experience has had many parallels in other places, but none here. One box of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him of severe backache and kidney disease of long standing, after he had tried every other remedy within his reach, but without any good results. These pills are manufactured by Dr. L. A. Smith & Co., Toronto, and are sold by all dealers, or will be mailed on receipt of price; 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2 50.

MACWHIRRELL'S CASE.

The Condemned Man Has Not Relinquished Hope-Petition for Com-

mutation of Sentence. TORONTO, March 27 .- Barrister T. C. Robinette visited MacWhirrell, the condemned murder at Brampton jail last night. MacWhirrell is still hopeful. Some people around Brampton are beginning to make a pet of the homicide. A petition for a commution of his sentence is already being circulated in Peel county and is being largely signed, it is said. On Thursday or Friday Mr. Robinette will go to Ottawa and interview the Minister of Justice regarding the case.

HONOR FOR THE HERO'S MEMORY

Message to Kossuth's Family From the United States Senate.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 27 .- In accordance with a resolution passed by the Senate, Vice-President Stevenson to-day forwarded by mail to the family of the late Hungarian patriot, Kossuth, at Turin, Italy, a copy of a resolution adopted by the Senate on March 22, 1894. The Vice-President says: "In obedience to the desire of the Senate, I hereby tender to you its respectful condolence for the great loss you in common with the whole world have sustained in the death of this illustrious patriot and lover of liberty. The people of the United States remember his visit in 1851. The profound affection and respect with which he inspired them still abide in their hearts. Though a citizen of a foreign and distant land, he spoke our language as if it were his native tongue. His consummate eloquence made a great and permanent addition to the treasures of our literature. We are glad to bear witness that to the cause of constitutional liberty-his cause and our cause—he remained faithful to the end.

"I have the honor to remain, with great respect, your obedient servant, A. E. STEVENSON, Vice-President of the United

All Four Probably Drowned. HOLLAND, Mich., March 27 .- Late on Saturday night Charles Petrie, Jean Mc-Kay, J. C. Schaefer and Irwin Thake left here in a rowboat, taking with them a tent and outfit, expecting to camp out Sunday and go duck hunting. A heavy gale was sweeping over Black Lake. On Sunday the boat and outfit and some hats were found on shore. It is nearly certain that all the voung men were drowned.

Breach of Promise Suit at Hamilton. Hamilton, March 27. - Miss Agnes Lyons, of this city, has sued D. McK. Wilson, of Stratford, for $5,000 for breach of promise of marriage. The case is set down for the Stratford Assizes, but it may be settled out of court. The defendant used to be employed with J. A. Skinner & Co. He went to Stratford and began business for himself. He forgot all about his engagement with Miss Lyons and married a fair widow. The defendant admits the contract, and if the case goes to trial the jury will only have to assess the damages.

The Trapdoor Flew Open. TORONTO, March 27 .- On Saturday afternoon the police paid a visit to the residence of Mrs. Annie Whalen, 15 Center avenue, in search of illicit drinkables. There is a not justified in entering into one branch trapdoor in one corner of Mrs. Whalen's of trada more than another. The Free parlor that has long been an object of second in 36 minutes and the last in 14 place of Peter Flynn, deceased, pending the appointment of Mr. Flynn's successor. Saturday cleared up the mystery. He dispresent ballot. Mr. Whitney asserted, was is for any business man who secures success which said that the law was "cumbersome" | Press is silly. There is the same justifica- curiosity to the police, but Sergt. Cross on the room opposite the trapdcor, and inserting a knife in the crack he touched a string, the Ontario Government to manufacture with the result that the trapdoor flew open, revealing a rather unsavory cellar about three feet deep. Sergt. Cross, after groping about for some time, came across 29 bottles of beer in a dark corner. The liquor was seized and the matter will be specially subject.

CONCISE CULLINGS.

The plant of the Century Bicycle Manu. facturing Company at Indianapolis, Ind. was burned Tuesday. Loss, $60,000.

Inquiry into the death of Martha Fuller the New York typewriter who was murdered last week, has been adjourned for week.

All of the miners of the Kanawha Valley have resumed work. About 5,000 men are now employed. There is no trace of the recent bloody disturbances left. Lieut. John Alexander, a West Pointes and military instructor at Wilberforce

College, died suddenly in a barber shop at Springfield, O., on Monday, while being shaved. Reports that insurgent prisoners have been executed in Brazil without trial are officially denied in a dispatch received in London by the Brazilian Minister from Rio de Janeiro. On Thursday the second trial of Dr. Henry C. Meyer, the famous alleged poisoner, will begin in New York. The first trial had to be discontinued owing to the serious illness of one of the jurors. Rev. Oscar Leiber Mitchell, M.A., was ordained to the priesthood of the Episcopal Church at Boston on Monday. He is a young colored man, 28 years old, and is the first of his race to be ordained in the Episcopal Church in New England.

Lazarus Silverman, a well known banker of Chicago, who suspended payment last August with liabilities of $1,500,000, has resumed business. Mr. Silverman has liquidated his entire indebtedness by paying everybody in full with interest. A little son of Mr. Fred. Beck, residing on the American side of the Suspension Bridge, was left in the house alone on Saturday, and in playing with the fire his clothes caught. The little fellow, who was three years old, was frightfully burned and died Monday.

A REMARKABLE accidentoccurred on apiece of land at Poynton, England, rented by the Manchester and Salford Co-opera tive Society from Lord Vernon. Under the superintendency of Mr. Bellies, the land was being plowed by the aid of a couple of valuable horses, owned by Mr. Cottam, of Norbury Hall. In crossing the field the horses suddenly disappeared, snapping the chain traces and almost dragging down the plow. The driver was fortunately on foots and escaped with his life, probably owing to that fact. The pit was found to be 64 feet deep. It had been covered over for some years and its existence forgotten.

Ir is stated that the Duke and Duchess of York contemplate a visit to the Holy Land. When the Prince of Wales went to Jerusalem he was received by the Pasha and a large escort of wild horsemen, who kept circling round the Prince's party, brandishing their spears and firing their guns in mimic combat. His royal highness had his tent pitched on the north side of the city near Damascus Gate and visited all the sacred places, even those from which Christians are excluded. He ascended Mount Gerizim and he saw the last vestige of the old Jewish ritual performed, the sun sinking behind the western hills as the paschal sheep was sacrificed: he also encamped at the foot of Mount Carmel. and saw the sun set on the Sea of Galilees and his royal highness also explored the cedar greve at Lebanon.

COMMERCIAL.

Local Market. Reported by A. M. Hamilton & Son. WEEKLY RENIEW.

LONDON, Wednesday, March 28. The amount of business done on this market Arring the week just closed has been small compared with that of the one previous. We believe the principal factor in creating this felling off in trade was the unsettled weather. produce was steady, and in some few lines larger than the supply. Among the articles infected by smaller offerings may be mentioned butter, with an advance of 1c per pound, and oats with a broadening in range, $1 02 being the top.

Hay was steadier, and although the figures did not change there was a better feeling and sales were more easily made.

Cloverseed advanced 25c. Many articles show a decline this week, chief among them being turkeys, eggs, potatoes, wheat, beans and hogs. The principal cause assigned was a falling-off in the demand.

Wheat sales closed at 90c for red and 95c for Oats were active at $1 to $1 01 for white and Barley sold at 95c to $1 for bright clean samples and 85c for colored.

Very few lots of peas offered; sales were made at 69c to 65c, private sale.

No rye or buckwheat offered. Prices given that the mare based on last transactions.

Beans quiet and lower; sales, 75c to $1 per bu, according to quantity and quality. or two small lots of corn offered, and one or two sman lots of corn oldered, and sold at 90c to 95c.

Choice lots of pound roll butter sold at 23c per tound in basket lots and 25c retail, and poor sold at 20c to 22c. Crocks sold all the way from 18c to 22c, depending on the quality. Eggs were more plentiful than during any Eastern season for many years, and instead of the usual advance there was a flat feeling, with old prices barely maintained.

Chickens, ducks and geese quiet and unaltered. Turkeys ranged from 7c to 9c per pound, as to supply.

The supply of beef, mutten and lamb was bout the same as usual and prices steady.

Dressed hogs were dull and neglected, selling all the way from $4 50 to $6, depending uppn size and quality.

Hides and skins quiet, selling at unchanged Apples were very scarce and sold at $1 5)

Systematic Efforts to Spread Abroad the Gospel.

Doings of the Western Ontario Bible Society,

As Outlined at the Association's Annual Meeting-Interesting Addresses and Encouraging Reports.

The most largely attended annual meeting of the Western Ontario Bible Society ever known by the directors of that body was held last night in the First Presbyterian Church. The meeting was also ation had dispersed before 10 o'clock. The meeting was characterized by much enthusiasm, the reports were short and to the point and the with marked attention.

The Bishop of Huron occupied the chair, and beside him sat Rev. Dr. Briggs, Toronto. Among the clergymen present were Rev. Dr. Antliff, Rev. J. W. Annis, Rev. W. M. Walker, Rev. J. A. Murray, Rev. Thos. Cullen, Rev. W. J. Clark, Rev. James Ballantyne, Rev. Dr. Sanderson and Rev. J. H. Orme.

THE BISHOP'S ADDRESS. The annual address of the president, Bishop Baldwin, was then delivered. He said: "While it may be found that the society has suffered somewhat from the financial distress and stringency of the times, yet still we have reason to believe that the work of God is going on and that there is a deepening interest in the great cause of the circulation of the Word of God. In the meantime we do well to note that the great work of the Bible Society is almost in its infancy, for there are new worlds opening up, as it were, which have to be supplied with the rich treasures of the Gospel. The great world of Africa is beginning to learn how to read, and thousands upon thousands of people there have began to clamor for the Book of God. And when we look back we see that since the days of the foundation of the British and Foreign Bible Society it has circulated 312,000,000 copies of the Word of God. Yet still there seems to be illimitable paths opening before it. This fact teaches us that not only in public but in private, not only in our churches but in the privacy of our own homes, we should not fail to call on the Throne of Grace and ask God's richest blessing upon this work, so stupendous in its results, and so very near to the heart of our Heavenly Father. The Bible surely claims earnest sympathy and the continuous support of God's people. I am unable to discover how those that love the Lord Jesus Christ get indifferent to its claims or careless with regard to its progress. It is that book which is not only shedding light upon the dark world, bringing joy and peace to people that know it not, but it is rapidly hastening the coming of that blessed Lord, whose advent the church is praying for, and whose glorious appearance shall be the termination of the church in suffering and the advent of a brighter day. I will now call upon Rev. Mr. Orme, who, in the regretted absence of Honorary Secretary Mr. John Cameron, will read the annual report. THE ANNUAL REPORT. Mr. Orme's report was encouraging. He regretted the illness of Mr. Cameron, the honorary secretary, who, he said, had rendered most valuable services to the society during the past year. The report stated that the directors in presenting the 27th annual report had to record harmonious co-operation and fair success. They desired to reiterate their satisfaction that the society is related to the British and Foreign Bible Society, an organization which, in its latest recorded year, issued more than 4,000,000 copies or portions of the Scriptures, which during its existence had collected and expended the great sum of $55,000,000, the same sum having been the means of distributing 135,894,552 copies of the Scriptures in whole or in part. The printing was not only in the English language, but in over 300 languages and dialects of the human speech. The report was incomplete owing to the meeting being held earlier in the year than usually. The society had contributed $1,400 to the household goods. The excursionists were British and Foreign Bible Society; two new branches had been formed at Cedar Springs and Northwood and three life members added-Messrs, W. H. Wortman, R. F. Hicks (Centralia) and Rev. J. H.

were issued. The total amount received from all sources would be over $3,000. ADDRESSES AND OTHER REPOR S.

Rev. James Ballantyne felt it an honor to have been asked to move the adoption of such an inspiring report. The British and Foreign Bible Society distributed last year 4,000,000 copies of the Bible or portions of Scripture. This was enough to supply almost four-fifths of the people of Canada with the Book. This, while many were prophesying the failure of Christianity! But when men told them that Christianity would go, they pointed to missions and to the circulation of the Word of God, and they believed further that such fact was sufficient answer to all the assaults of infidelity. The world would never be able to know the true value of such a work. Even atheists did not care to be beyond the reach of the Bible, and were very careful to pitch their tents under its influence. The speaker then went on to deal with theologians and grammarians who attempted to pick scholarly flaws in the Bible. He would rather take Mr. Moody's word that the Book was the Word of God than the opinions of Dr. Briggs, Canon Dryden and others. He asked them not to be disturbed because some doctors of divinity had expressed doubts of the divinity of the Word of God, as there were other tests than grammar and diction on which to determine its authenticity. Copyists and translators, true, may have made mistakes. They could make that admission and at the same time hold that the providence of God had maintained that Word from any corruption that would enhance its value to Christians. They could best think of the value of the Bible when they imagined the possibility of the world without it. With much pleasure he moved the adoption of the report.

Col. Lewis seconded the motion. It was The venerable Dr. Sanderson, first vicepresident of the society, then submitted

Had Dr. Sanderson been an Anglican minister, he said, he could not have named Bishop Baldwin as president with greater heartiness and cordiality than he did though a member of another section of the Christian church. He joined in expressing regret at the absence of the honorary treasurer. Mr. exemplary in other respects, in that it was Orme, the permanent secretary had been faithful and zealous in his duty and they were much indebted to Mr. G. A. Somerville, the treasurer of the society, who notwithstanding heavy business responsibility, addresses crisp, and they were listened to gave them the benefit of his experience and Sagacity.

Rev. W. J. Clark seconded the nominations and they were adopted. The treasurer, Mr. G. A. Somerville, then presented an approximate of the financial status of the society.

Rev. Dr. Wm. Briggs, Toronto, spoke on the subject of books, and "The Book" in particular. Books were the means of perpetuating the golden treasures of knowledge, the sparkling gems of wit and poetry, and held secure for the enrichment of coming generations the wisdom of sages and thoughts of poets - the very essence of their highest powers in the moment of inspiration. The Bible contained prophecy, promise and warning, and was now within r ach of the humblest in the land and nation. It was not always so. Time was when the Book was chained in a monk's cell. It was a lamp to the sinners' feet, a light to their path and their guide. The English language was tar too poor to tell what the world would be without the blessing of the Word of God. The only lever to uplift the world and roll it to another sphere was the Bible. What was in it to make it so strong? It was the cross-the center of all the light, of all its vitalizing influence. Wherever they found a prosperous people, good government, social amelioration, good literature and enlightened public opinion they found not the baleful and depressing influences of priestcraft and superstition, but the inspiration of an open Bible. The Lord Jesus had not had his day, as some said, and like Mr. Ballantyne, Mr. Briggs donounced those who professed to be friends of Christianity and were not. The Bible was still the living book of Christ, the same yesterday, to-day and forever.

Rev. Dr. Antliff, in conclusion, proposed a vote of thanks to the speakers, the directors, Mr. Barron, Miss Lilywhite, the pastor (Rev. W. J. Clark), the church trustees and the janitor. It was doubly seconded from the audience and the meetng dispersed with the doxology.

Turn to the Right.

Simon Fleix roused me at last from my Stupor, making me understand that she was not dead, but in a deep swoon, the result of the shock she had undergone. A leech, for whom he had dispatched a neighbor, came in as I rose, and taking my place, presently restored her to consciousness. But her extreme feebleness warned me not to hope for more than a temporary recovery; nor had I sat by her long before I discerned that this last blow, following on so many fears and privations, had reached a vital part, and that she was even now dying.

She lay for a while with her hand in mine and her eyes closed, but about noon, the student, contriving to give her some broth, she revived, and, recognizing me, lay for more than an hour gazing at me with unover her, and whispered something, which at first I could not catch. Presently I made it out to be, "She is gone—The girl you

Much troubled, I answered yes, begging her not to think about the matter. I need not have feared, however, for when she poke again she did so without emotion, and rather as one seeing clearly something be-

"When you find her, Gaston," she murmured, "do not be angry with her. It was not her fault. She-he deceived her. See!" I followed the direction rather of her eyes than her hand, and found beneath the pillow a length of gold chain. "She left that?" I murmured, a strange tumult of emotions in my breast.

"She laid it there," my mother whispered.
"And she would have stopped him saying what he did"-a shudder ran through my mother's fram at the remembrance of the man's words, though her eyes still gazed into mine with faith and confidence-"she would have stopped him, but she could not, Gaston. And then he hurried her away."

'He showed her a token, madame, did he not?" I could not for my life repress the question, so much seemed to turn on the

The student came back soon afterwards with some comforts for which I had dispatched him, and we sat by her until the evening fell, and far into the night. It was a relief to me to learn from the leach that she had been ailing for some time, and that in any case the end must have come soon. She suffered no pain and felt no fears, but meeting my eyes whenever she opened her own, or came out of the drowsiness which possessed her, thanked God, I think, and was content. As for me, I remember that room became, for the time, the world. Its still ass swallowed up all the tumults which filled the cities of France, and its one interest-the coming and going of a feeble breath-eclipsed the ambitions and hopes of

Before it grew light Simon Fleix stole out to attend to the horses. When he returned he came to me and whispered to me that he had something to tell me; and my mother lying in a quiet sleep at the time, I disengaged my hand, and, rising softly, went with him to the hearth.

Instead of speaking, he held his fist before me and suddenly unclosed the fingers. "Do you know it?" he said, glancing at me the fastening of mademoiselle's mask. "Where did you find it?" I muttered, supposing he had picked it up on the stairs.

"Look at it!" he answered impatiently.

"You have not looked." "You have not looked."

I turned it over, and then saw something which had escaped me at first-that the wider part of the velvet was disfigured by a fantastic stitching, done very roughly and rudely with a thread of white silk. The stitches formed letters, the letters words. With a start I read, "A moi!" and saw in a corner, in smaller stitches, the initials "C.

I looked eagerly at the student. "Where did you find this?" I said.

"I picked it up in the street," he answered quietly, "not 300 paces from here."
I thought a moment. "In the gutter, or near the wall ?" I asked. "Near the wall, to be sure."

"Under a window?" "Precisely," he said. "You may be easy; am not a fool. I marked the place, M. de Marsac, and shall not forget it.

"Even the sorrow and solicitude I felt on my mother's behalf-feelings which had seemed a minute before to secure me against all other cares or anxieties whatever-were not proof against this discovery. For I found myself placed in a strait so cruel I must suffer either way. On the one hand, I could not leave my mother; I were a heartless ingrate to do that. On the other, I could not, without grievous pain, stand still and inactive while Mademoiselle de la Vire, whom I had sworn to protect, and who was now suffering through my laches and mischance, appealed to me for help. For I could not doubt that this was what the bow of velvet meant; still less that it was intended for me, since few save myselt would he likely to recognize it, and she would naturally expect me to make some attempt at And I could not think little of the sign. Remembering mademoiselle's proud and fearless spirit, and the light in which she had always regarded me, I argued the worst from it. I felt assured that no imaginary danger and no emergency save the last would have induced her to stoop so low; and this consideration, taken with the fear I felt that she had fallen into the hands of Fresnoy, whom I believed to be the person who had robbed me of the gold coin, filled me with a horrible doubt which way my duty lay. I was pulled, as it were, both ways. I felt my honor engaged both to go and to stay, and while my hand went to my hilt, and my feet trembled to be gone, my my eyes sought my mother, and my ears listened for her gentle breathing. Perplexed and distracted, I looked at the student, and he at me. "You saw the man who took her away," I muttered. Hitherto.

The last session in my absorption on my mother's account. I had put few questions, and let the matter pass as though it moved me little and con-cerned me less. "What was he like? Was he a big, bloated man, Simon, with his head bandaged, or perhaps a wound on his free?" 'The gentleman who went away with mademoiselle, do you mean?" he asked. 'Yes, yes, gentleman if you like !" 'Not at all," the student answered. "He as a tall young gallant, very gaily dressed, ark-haired, and with a rich complexion. heard him tell her that he came from a riend of hers too high to be named in public r in Blois. He added that he brought a token from him; and when mademoiselle entioned you-she had just entered nadame's room with her woman when he "He had watched me out, of course."

"Just so. Well, when she mentioned you, he swore you were an adventurer, and a beggarly imposter, and what not, and bade her say whether she thought it likely that her friend would have intrusted such a mission to such a man." "And then she went with him?" The student nodded.

"Readily? Of her own free will?"
"Certainly," he answered. "It seemed so to me. She tried to prevent him speaking before your mother, but that was all." On the impulse of the moment I took a step towards the door; recollecting my position, I turned back with a groan. Almost beside myself, and longing for any vent for my feelings, I caught the lad by the shoulder, where he stood on the hearth, and shook him to and fro.

"Tell me, man, what am I to do?" I said between my teeth. "Speak! think! invent But he shook his head.

I let him go with a muttered oath, and sat down on a stool by the bed and took my speakable content and satisfaction. At the end of that time, and when I thought she was past speaking, she signed to me to bend an unexpected quarter. The door opened and the leech entered. He was a skillful man, and, though much employed about the court, a Huguenot-a fact which had emboldened Simon Fleix to apply to him through the landlord of the "Bleeding Heart," the secret rendezvous of the religion in Blois. When he had made his examination he was for leaving, being a grave and silent man, and full of business, but at the door I stopped him.

"Well, sir?" I said in a low tone, my hand

"She has rallied, and may live three days," he answered quietly. "Four, it may be, and as many more as God wills." Pressing 2 crowns into his hand, I begged him to call daily, which he promised to do; and then he went. My mother was still dozing peacefully, and I turned to Simon Fleix, my doubts resolved and my mind made up.

"Listen," I said, "and answerlme shortly.

HE KNEW HER.

And Thought it Wasn't Sa'e to Risk Discheying Her Orders.

On one occasion Judge Andrew Ellison was trying an important case at Macon City and desired to rush it through in order to make way for another case coming up next morning. The court instructed the jury and court officials to return after supper that night, as it was intended to hold a night session. At 7 o'clock all the officers, numerous witnesses and the jury, with one exception, were promptly on hand. Of course, nothing could be done without the absent juryman. The minutes ran into hours, and still the prodigal did not return. At a late hour court adjourned without having accomplished anything. The next morning at 9 o'clock sharp the twelve jurymen were in the box. His honor scanned the crowd and asked for the truant. He was pointed out and the court ordered him to stand up.

"Mr. ____," said the judge, addressing the derelict, "didn't you understand the order of the court last night requiring the jury to be on hand after supper?"

"Yes, your honor," said the juryman, explaining, "but you see I live quite a ways out of town, and my wife gave me an order prior to the court's order, and her order was that I shouldn't stay in own over night. I considered the matter and concluded it was safer to risk your honor's displeasure than her'n, because," he added errnestly, "I know her."
The court looked solemn a mement, as if weighing some mighty problem; then a smile started across his face, and the bar, court officers and spectators broke out into tumultuous laughter. The juryman was forgiven; there were many there who could, perhaps, appreciate his position.-[St. Louis Post Dispatch.

First Action - Second Action - Third Action.

So said the wise Athenian. We shall be wise to follow his advice in many matters; in none more so than in grappling with a cold or with dyspepsia; or in seeking relief from consumption in its earlier stages. It is absolutely useless to sit down and bemoan our bad fortune. We must act-act -act. The first and most imperative action necessary is to procure a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The second action will be to use it. The third action will naturally follow-we shall proclaim abroad its virtues.

R. V. Pierce, M.D., Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir, - Having felt it a duty to write of the good I received by taking your medicine, I now would say that one year ago I was given up by my family physician and friends; all said I must die. My lungs were badly affected, and body reduced to a skeleton. My people commenced to give me your "Medical Discovery," and I soon began to mend. It was not long before I became well enough to take charge of my household duties again.

I owe my recovery to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Respectfully,

ADDRESS-

Art Portfolio Department,

Advertiser Printing Company, London, Ont.

Simon Fleix roused me at last from my stupor, making me understand that she was not dead, but in a deep swoon, the result of the shock she had undergone. A leech, for whom he had dispatched a neighbor, came in as I rose, and taking my place, presently restored her to consciousness. But her extreme feebleness warned me not to hope for more than a temporary recovery; nor had I sat by her long before I discerned that this last blow, following on so many fears and privations, had reached a vital part, and that she was even now dying.

She lay for a while with her hand in mine and her eyes closed, but about noon, the student, contriving to give her some broth, she revived, and, recognizing me, lay for more than an hour gazing at me with un-speakable content and satisfaction. At the was past speaking, she signed to me to bend over her, and whispered something, which at first I could not catch. Presently I made it out to be, "She is gone-The girl you

Much troubled, I answered yes, begging her not to think about the matter. I need not have feared, however, for when she apoke again she did so without emotion, and rather as one seeing clearly something be-

When you find her, Gaston," she murmured, "do not be angry with her. It was not her fault. She-he deceived her. See!" I followed the direction rather of her eyes than her hand, and found beneath the pillow a length of gold chain. "She left that?" I murmured, a strange tumult of emotions in my breast.

"She laid it there," my mother whispered. "And she would have stopped him saying what he did"—a shudder ran through my mother's frame at the remembrance of the man's words, though her eyes still gazed into mine with faith and confidence-"she would have stopped him, but she could not, Gaston. And then he hurried her away."
"He showed her a token, madame, did he not?" I could not for my life repress the question, so much seemed to turn on the

The student came back soon afterwards with some comforts for which I had dispatched him, and we sat by her until the evening fell, and far into the night. It was a relief to me to learn from the leech that she had been ailing for some time, and that in any case the end must have come soon. She suffered no pain and felt no fears, but meeting my eyes whenever she opened her own, or came out of the drowsiness which possessed her, thanked God, I think, and was content. As for me, I remember that room became, for the time, the world. Its swallowed up all the tumults which filled the cities of France, and its one interest-the coming and going of a feeble breath-eclipsed the ambitions and hopes of

Before it grew light Simon Fleix stole out to attend to the horses. When he returned he came to me and whispered to me that he had something to tell me; and my mother lying in a quiet sleep at the time, I disengaged my hand, and, rising softly, went with him to the hearth. Instead of speaking, he held his fist before me and suddenly unclosed the fingers. "Do you know it?" he said, glancing at me knew the moment I set eyes on it, part of moiselle's mask. Where did you find it ?" I muttered, supposing he had picked it up on the stairs. "Look at it!" he answered impatiently. "You have not looked."

I turned it over, and then saw something which had escaped me at first—that the wider part of the velvet was disfigured by a fantastic stitching, done very roughly and rudely with a thread of white silk. The stitches formed letters, the letters words. With a start I read, "A moi!" and saw in a corner, in smaller stitches, the initials "C.

I looked eagerly at the student. "Where did you find this?" I said.
"I picked it up in the street," he answered quietly, "not 300 paces from here."

I thought a moment. "In the gutter, or near the wall?" I asked. "Near the wall, to be sure."

"Precisely," he said. "You may be easy; I am not a fool. I marked the place, M. de Marsac, and shall not forget it.

"Under a window?"

"Even the sorrow and solicitude I felt on my mother's behalf—feelings which had seemed a minute before to secure me against all other cares or anxieties whatever—were not proof against this discovery. For I found myself placed in a strait so cruel must suffer either way. On the one hand, I could not leave my mother; I were a heartless ingrate to do that. On the other, could not, without grievous pain, stand still and inactive while Mademoiselle de la Vire, whom I had sworn to protect, and who was now suffering through my laches and mischance, appealed to me for help. For I could not doubt that this was what the bow of velvet meant; still less that it was intended for me, since few save myselt would he likely to recognize it, and she would naturally expect me to make some attempt at

And I could not think little of the sign. Remembering mademoiselle's proud and fearless spirit, and the light in which she had always regarded me, I argued the worst from it. I felt assured that no imaginary danger and no emergency save the last would have induced her to stoop so low; and this consideration, taken with the fear I felt that she had fallen into the hands of Fresnoy, whom I believed to be the person who had robbed me of the gold coin, filled me with a horrible doubt which way my duty lay. I was pulled, as it were, both ways. I felt my honor engaged both to go and to stay, and while my hand went to my hilt, and my feet trembled to be gone, my my eyes sought my mother, and my ears listened for her gentle breathing.

Perplexed and distracted, I looked at the student, and he at me. "You saw the man who took her away," I muttered. Hitherto, in my absorption on my mother's account, I had put few questions, and let the matter pass as though it moved me little and concerned me less. "What was he like? Was he a big, bloated man, Simon, with his head bandaged, or perhaps a wound on his free?" "The gentleman who went away with mademoiselle, do you mean?" he asked.

Yes, yes, gentleman if you like!"
Not at all," the student answered. "He as a tall young gallant, very gaily dressed, nark-haired, and with a rich complexion. heard him tell her that he came from a iend of hers too high to be named in public r in Blois. He added that he brought a token from him; and when mademoiselle entioned you-she had just entered madame's room with her woman when he

"He had watched me out, of course."

"Just so. Well, when she mentioned you, ne swore you were an adventurer, and beggarly imposter, and what not, and bade her say whether she thought it likely that her friend would have intrusted such a mission to such a man. And then she went with him?" The student nodded.

"Readily? Of her own free will?" "Certainly," he answered. "It seemed so to me. She tried to prevent him speaking before your mother, but that was all."
On the impulse of the moment I took a step towards the door; recollecting my position, I turned back with a groan. Almost beside myself, and longing for any vent for my feelings, I caught the lad by the shoulder, where he stood on the hearth, and shook him to and fro.

"Tell me, man, what am I to do?" I said between my teeth. "Speak! think! invent something!" But he shook his head.

I let him go with a muttered oath, and sat down on a stool by the bed and took my head between my hands. At that very end of that time, and when I thought she moment, however, relief came-came from an unexpected quarter. The door opened and the leech entered. He was a skillful man, and, though much employed about the court, a Huguenot—a fact which had em-boldened Simon Fleix to apply to him through the landlord of the "Bleeding Heart," the secret rendezvous of the religion in Blois. When he had made his examination he was for leaving, being a grave and silent man, and full of business, but at the door I stopped him.

"Well, sir?" I said in a low tone, my hand on his cloak. "She has rallied, and may live three days," he answered quietly. "Four, it may be, and as many more as God wills."

Pressing 2 crowns into his hand, I begged him to call daily, which he promised to do; and then he went. My mother was still dozing peacefully, and I turned to Simon Fleix, my doubts resolved and my mind made up.

"Listen," I said, " and answerime shortly. We cannot both leave; that is certain. Yet I must go, and at once, to the place where you found the velvet knot. Do you describe the spot exactly, so that I may find it, and make no mistake. He nodded, and after a moment's reflec-

HE KNEW HER.

And Thought it Wasn't Sa'e to Risk Discheying Her Orders.

On one occasion Judge Andrew Ellison was trying an important case at Macon

City and desired to rush it through in order to make way for another cree coming up next morning. The cour instructed the jury and court officials to return after supper that night, as it was intended to hold a night session. At 7 o'clock all the officers, numerous witnesses and the jury, with one exception, were promptly on hand. Of course, nothing could be done without the absent juryman. The minutes ran into hours, and still the prodigal did not return. At a late hour court adjourned without having accomplished anything. The next morning at 9 o'clock sharp the twelve jurymen were in the box. His honor scanned the crowd and asked for the truant. He was pointed out and the court ordered him to stand up. "Mr. -," said the judge, addressing the derelict, "didn't you understand the order of the court last night requiring the jury to be on hand after supper?"

"Yes, your honor," said the juryman, explaining, "but you see I live quite a ways out of town, and my wife gave me an order prior to the court's order, and her order was that I shouldn't stay in own over night. I considered the matter and concluded it was safer to risk your honor's displeasure than her'n, because," he added errnestly, "I know her."

The court looked solemn a mement, as if weighing some mighty problem; then a smile started across his face, and the bar, court officers and spectators broke out into tumultuous laughter. The juryman was forgiven; there were many there who could, perhaps, appreciate his position .- [St. Louis Post Dispatch.

First Action - Second Action - Third Action.

So said the wise Athenian. We shall be wise to follow his advice in many matters; in none more so than in grappling with a cold or with dyspepsia; or in seeking relief from consumption in its earlier stages. It is absolutely useless to sit down and bemoan our bad fortune. We must act-act -act. The first and most imperative action necessary is to procure a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The second action will be to use it. The third action will naturally follow-we shall proclaim abroad its virtues.

Mr. Harry Arnott also showed the circulation of blood in a frog's foot. Many peculiar iosects were shown, including one which was "right side up when on its back, with its eyes on stems, breathing through its legs, and whose legs were so numerous that they resembled a field of waving grain."

-St. Alban's Company, No. 100, Church Lads' Brigade, held their second annual concert in the town hall last night. The brigade is in connection with the All Saints' Mission on the Hamilton road, and during the past year, under the auspices of Mr. W. Garside, has made wonderful advancement in membership. The brigade takes in old and young, with the object of keeping the boys off the street and employing their time in more profitable ways. A natty uniform has been adopted, consisting of a cap similar to that of an artilleryman, belt and cross belt. In their marches the lads did credit to themselves and their instructor. The programme was composed of instrumentals by Miss Wichmann, choruses by the brigade, recitations by Mr. Nicholls and Miss Hall, solos by Miss Watson, dancing by Master E. Hogg, and physical drill, signaling, choruses and dialogues by the boys.

His Feet Frostbitten. A man named Turnbull, who said that he boarded at 276 Talbot street, applied to Acting Mayor Scarrow this morning for admission to the hospital. He was sufferentirely broken up. After becoming satis- ing from severe frostbites in both feet and his request was granted. His feet were of the Kearsarge that was worth saving frozen some time during the night, but how or where was not divulged.

Ida Van Cortland. Ida Van Cortland and her excellent company returned to the Grand last night and delighted a large audience with the laughable comedy, "A Mighty Dollar." Between the acts specialties were introduced by Lew Warner, a very clever young actor, and by little Cosey. To-night the master-play in Miss Van Cortland's repertoire, 'Michael Strogoff," will be presented with this competent cast:

Marfa Stregoff, mother of Michael. Sangare, a Russian gypsy. Margaret Crof on Madam Gegall, landlady. Nellie Morgan Michael Stregoff, courier to the Czar... Ivan Ogareff, the traitor Howard Hall

BENEFIT TO GEO. HARDING. The instructor of the Forest City Athletic Club, Mr. Jack Crawford, tendered a benefit exhibition in the rooms last night to Mr. George Harding, who has aided in making the various tournaments successful. The attendance was very large, and the first four exhibitions were much appreciated. Mr. D. Sare acted as time-keeper. The tournament opened with a four-round contest between Geo. Harding and J. Mc-Cann, of Michigan. It was a very clever exhibition of sparring, McCann proving himself very adept with the gloves, though he was hardly equal to his opponent. Alf. Welsh and Joe Reidy, two pupils, had an equally clever bout of four rounds, proving themselves pretty evenly matched. J. Smith and T. Davis followed with a fourround contest which proved very close and interesting. It was expected that Jack Stewart, ex-champion of Canada, would spar four rounds with Crawford, but as the former had injured his leg he was unable to appear. The vacancy was filled by John Gibbs, of Saginaw, who proved himself to be very scientific. It was the best exhibition of the evening. KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs. Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 75c. bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

Liver Complaint After Leading Physicians Failed—Williams' Royal Crown Remedy and Pills Positively Produced the Above Results. Mr. Alexander Green writes:

London, May 7.

"About two years ago I was suffering from liver complaint. I consulted some of the leading doctors, but could find no relief. I was advised to try your Royal Crown Remedy. After using one bottle I felt so much better that I was induced to continue. When I had taken the third I could enjoy my food, which I had not done for a long time. I was reduced I had not done for a long time. I was reduced to a skeleton when I commenced to use it, and to-day my weight is about 180 pounds." The remedy should be used until the cure is complete. It is a great grip alterative and blood purifier.
