CAMBRIDGE BESTS FAST HARVARD EIGHT; CROSSES LINE TWO LENGTHS TO THE GOOD

The English University Crew Win Handily from American Rivals in Great International Race on Classic Thames Course.

Putney, Sept. 8.—Cambridge University's eight today won against the fast Harvard crew, crossing the finishing line with a lead of two lengths. Cambridge's time was 19 minutes 18 seconds. The record for the course is 18 minutes and 47 seconds, made by Oxford in 1893.

By the decisive distance of two lengths Cambridge won the great international boat race today, stalling off by a steady, powerful stroke, all Harvard's desperate efforts. The Light Blues got away at the start and had the advantage of the choice of stations, which gave them at least a length to the good, in consequence of the wind-sheltered water on the Surrey side of the river. They were enabled to maintain their lead and increase it as soon as they reached the wind driven water at Chiswick Eyot. It was a pretty race throughout.

There was a moment of intense expectancy as the two crews backed their craft to the stakeboats and then leaped far forward, awaiting the supreme signal. The pistol shot broke the spell and both crews got away from the mark boat cleanly, amid a deafening roar from the multitude. The start was perfect, both crews taking the water at the same instant. Neither splashed, but with swift, steady precision the Cambridge men drove the bow of their boat half a length ahead within the first two hundred yards.

Cambridge went at a tremendous pace, 42 strokes to the minute at the start, gradually reducing this rate, while the Harvard men hardly rowed above 35. The Light Blues gained stroke by stroke until by the time Craven Steps were reached daylight showed between the shells. Then the crowds went mad, and it was 100 to 1 that Cambridge would be the winner.

The race between Harvard and Cambridge today, over the famous old Putney-Mortlake course, on the Thames, a narrow, winding waterway, four and three-eighths miles in length, was the first dual intercollegiate race, rowed between American and English crews in 37 years. In 1869 Harvard sent a four to Putney to meet Oxford in a dual contest. The English crew was victorious by nearly four lengths.

Today's race was a decisive victory for the British and American university eights and apparently has opened the way for many similar contests in the future. Interest in the rowing event has been heightened by the fact that the Harvard crew earned a decisive victory over Yale at New London in June last, while Cambridge was this year's winner of the race with Oxford. In a way, the two crews were representative of the best college rowing talent of the two countries, and the result has been awaited with the keenest interest.

The Harvard crew is admittedly one of the best aggregations of college oarsmen ever seen in an American shell, and every follower of the sport has been confident that in the international struggle on the Thames, America's rowing strength was typically represented in the Harvard boat.

The race was brought about through the efforts of R. C. Lehman, a member of Parliament, who acted as instructor to the Harvard crews for two years, his last visit to Harvard being in 1898. It was agreed that the two crews should be as nearly as possible the same as those which raced against Yale, and Oxford respectively.

The Final Spin.

Putney, Eng., Sept. 8.—The weather conditions were ideal when the Cambridge and Harvard crews turned out early today for a few brief practice starts, their final appearance before the great boat race, which has caused as much excitement as was ever aroused in Great Britain by any contest over the historic championship course from Putney to Mortlake. The day was cloudless, a light haze hanging over the river. The breeze was from the southwest, and although against the racers, it was very light in the early hours of the day.

The excitement over the contest per-

FORTY MILLIONS FOR THIS BOY; CAN'T TOUCH IT UNTIL HE'S 40

New York, Sept. 8.—The Sun says: When the will of the late William Ziegler was filed for probate after his death, in May last year at his country place at Noroton, Conn., it was found that he left practically the whole of his estate to his adopted son, Wm. Ziegler, jun., and that to his widow he had bequeathed only an annuity of $50,000 a year, his country house and his town residence at 624 Fifth avenue. The widow was dissatisfied with the provisions of the will, although she was willing that the greater part of the estate should go to the adopted son. She started to contest the will, alleging that her husband's mental condition at the time he made the

London's Rapid Growth

The city of London will show an increase in population this year of about 1,500, and in assessment of between $1,000,000 and $1,100,000 for 1906.

This statement was made to The Advertiser this morning by Assessment Commissioner Grant.

"Every ward in the city now has a population sufficient to warrant it being incorporated separately as a city, if it so desired," Mr. Grant continued. "Each ward is now able to boast of more than 10,000 population, and this is all the law requires to become a city."

"Ward four is the banner ward of the city. In assessing the ward we came across a deluge of new houses. They are nearly all good houses, too."

"The population of this ward will show an increase of between 400 and 500 this year."

"The growth of the city, as a whole, is very creditable," the commissioner concluded. "In making the assessment, we have been very conservative as to population figures, and I am fully convinced that there are within the precincts of London today not less than 45,000."

"Of course, as our books will only show an increase of about 1,500 this year, the population will not likely be placed at over 45,000. But as I have said before, I believe there are fully 45,000 people in the city now."

"It seems to me that the steady annual increase in assessment will enable incoming councils to strike the tax rate at not more than 19 mills, and then we shall have a pull with industries looking to locate in Canada."

"The low tax rate attracts the manufacturers and the workman, and these are the men we want."

FOURTEEN MEN BADLY INJURED IN GAS EXPLOSION AT TORONTO

Gas in Big Purifier Ignites, Bursting in Faces of the Workmen.

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 8.—Fourteen men were injured in a gas explosion at the Consumers Gas Works Company works on Front street about 10:45 this morning. Some of the men were seriously injured and the wounds may prove fatal. They were all taken to the General Hospital.

The men were working around a purifier about 30 by 30 feet and 6 feet deep. They had just raised the lid to take out the bog ore, when the gas ignited and blew out into the men's faces. There was a loud crash. Ambulances were sent for immediately and everything done to relieve the men. It is thought some of them may be able to leave the hospital tonight.

The following are the injured: James Wright, 64 Oak street; W. Cooper; Thomas Gardner, 250 Lippincott; Aaron Heard, 113 Duke; David Hardy, 258 Booth avenue; Elliott Bott, Sherbourne street; W. Webster; Thomas Dickinson, 405 King east; John Johnston, 45 Bolton avenue; Ed Little, Sackville street; R. Creagh, 380 Parliament; Pat Glatten, W. Mills, 150 John street; W. Dadds, 8 Clara street.

SIX WIDOWS CLAIM ONE MAN NOW DEAD

Authorities Possess No Real Evidence to Lead to His Identification.

London, Sept. 8.—Six women have come forward at Halifax and claimed as their husband an unknown Irish harvest man, who was killed on the line by an express train. The local authorities are unable to decide between the claims of the would-be widows.

One of the claimants lives in Dublin and another in County Mayo. A third is from Bradford and a fourth from Ipswich.

The principal claimant, who is called Mrs. Kelly, is from Dublin. Her attention was drawn to the case by her son, who was walking past a Dublin police barracks, and exclaimed when he saw a photograph of the dead harvest man, "That's like father!" She agreed that the photograph was in every way like her husband, who had been away some time. Solicitors in Halifax are now pressing her claim.

The other women are very reticent, and three of them have asked the authorities not to divulge their names. In one case the woman declares she would rather renounce her claim than have any publicity given to the matter.

WIVES ILL-TREATED BY HUSBANDS

Charity Board Considers the Situation—Distress Prevails in All Seasons.

The board of management of the Charity Organization and Humane Society met in the city hall yesterday, after a two months' adjournment. The president, Mr. H. E. Gates, occupied the chair, and there was a very good attendance of members.

A number of accounts for assistance in groceries, etc., given to poor families during the summer months were passed and ordered to be paid.

Though the board had not met since June, the operations of the society had been continued as usual, and the inspector's report showed that in summer as well as in winter there are numerous cases of poverty and distress arising from various causes and needing constant attention. The society has secured a copy of the act respecting immigration, which clearly shows that some of the immigrants with whom they have been dealing should never have been allowed to land in this country.

Another cause of distress has been the large number of cases of ill-treatment of wives by their husbands which has been brought to the society's notice. Men either earning or able to earn good wages have left their wives and families in a most destitute condition. The inspector is investigating several such cases at present, and as a result some of these men will wish that they had not thus neglected their duty towards their families.

Cases in the humane society branch of the work have been by no means lacking, and several instances of cruelty to animals have been successfully dealt with by the inspector. Complaints have been received about fowl on the market being badly crowded into boxes, and those of the inspector's men have been prosecuted if the offense is not immediately discontinued. Several reports have been received about boys (especially those driving the mail carts) indulging in reckless driving and jerking and whipping their horses. These practices must be discontinued, and the inspector wishes to warn these boys that they will be prosecuted unless it is stopped. On the other hand, he is pleased to see that a large number of drivers of horses have done away with the overhead check line. This, he says, is a good omen.

LEAMINGTON'S CHANCE.

Leamington, Sept. 8.—The town council has under consideration a proposition to loan a company, to be formed by Detroit men, for the manufacture of automobiles, brass goods and trolley wheels, $30,000, to be used in assisting the company to construct and operate a plant here.

Grand Trunk Agreement to Carry by a Vote of 8 to 3

Report at City Hall That Council Will Come to Terms With Company on Tuesday Night.

Mayor Judd has called a special meeting of the city council for Tuesday night, next, at 8 o'clock, to consider the G. T. R. agreement. Notices to the aldermen are being sent out today.

It was said at the city hall this morning that the agreement with the company will be sanctioned by a vote of probably eight to three when the motion to adopt is put in the council. Engineer Crowley, who is known as a hustler, and who has had charge of the improvements west of the city for the Grand Trunk, has completed all plans asked for by the city council, and they will be presented at the meeting on Tuesday night.

The plans show only a fourteen-foot headway at the Wharnciffe road, but this is all that is required by the railway act.

The Wharnciffe Subway. Manager King, of the street railway, intends, it is understood, to ask for a greater headway on the Wharnciffe, but the company's plans will not permit of this.

If the company is to operate its cars without removing the trolley pole under the subway, a headway of eighteen feet will be required, and the only way to secure the extra four feet will be to secure the consent of the city to the lowering of the street railway rails on the street.

This matter is not looked upon as a very serious one, however. As regards the Wortley road, where the improvements have been made, trolleys will pass under the bridge without the trolley pole being removed, as has to be done at present.

It is not known just how the city and company have surmounted the little differences regarding the liability clause, but it is said a change in the wording of the clause, and one which does not affect its liability, has resulted in each side saving its face and coming to terms.

THEY'RE GETTING CLOSER

Several Distinct Earthquakes Were Felt Throughout Indiana.

Princeton, Ind., Sept. 8.—A distinct earth shock was felt at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Houses rocked and dishes rattled on shelves. The shock lasted for two or three seconds, and was felt in towns and cities within 50 miles of Princeton. The shock was preceded by a loud rumbling noise.

Owensville, Ind., Sept. 8.—An earthquake shock lasting three seconds, was felt yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The shock was distinct, and reports from west of Owensville indicate that a heavier shock was felt in the Wabash valley.

UNDER BRITAIN'S WING

Persians Once More Demand Reforms from the Shah.

Teheran, Persia, Sept. 8.—The bazars here are again closed, and people are once more flocking to the British legation in protest against the delay in signing the revised ordinance proposed by the clergy, relative to the projected constitution. The clergy rejected the ordinance drafted by the grand vizier, and submitted one of their own, to which the Shah has not yet assented. At a meeting of clergy and the merchants yesterday, the merchants decided to close up business and proceed to the British legation, where, they declare, they will remain until the Shah signs the ordinance and exiles the late grand vizier and others who are opposing reforms.

LOSES A FINGER

Door Jamb Amputates As Cleanly As Would a Knife.

Mrs. James Pole, wife of James Pole, grocer, corner of King and Rectory streets, met with an accident last evening, which resulted in the amputation of a portion of the third finger of her right hand. Her husband was closing the door leading from the living apartments into the store, when she had her finger caught in the jamb. The finger was severed at the first joint, the amputation being as clean as though it was done by a surgeon's knife. Mrs. Pole is very weak from loss of blood, but will be fully recovered from the effects of the accident in a couple of weeks.

THE WEATHER

TOMORROW—FINE AND COOLER

Toronto, Sept. 7.—8 p.m. Decidedly hot weather has prevailed today in Southern Saskatchewan, Manitoba and in portions of Southern Ontario where maximum temperatures of 90° and over have been recorded. Showers have occurred in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, and rain has fallen in British Columbia. Elsewhere the weather has been fine. The Indian storm will probably pass far south of Nova Scotia. Toronto was the hottest place in Ontario today. This afternoon the thermometer registered nearly 90°, and it was the third hottest day of the season. No sudden change is promised by the weather officials.

Minimum and maximum temperatures: Dawson, 42-52; Atlin, 40-56; Port Simpson, 50-54; Victoria, 54-60; Vancouver, 55-61; Calgary, 64-68; Edmonton, 52-66; Qu'Appelle, 52-60; Winnipeg, 62-90; Port Arthur, 56-70; Parry Sound, 54-76; Toronto, 58-90; Montreal, 58-72; Quebec, 46-56; St. John, 52-69; Halifax, 50-70.

FORECASTS. Saturday, Sept. 8-8 a.m. Today—Moderate westerly winds, mostly fair, very warm, with a few local thunderstorms. Sunday—Fine and a little cooler.

TEMPERATURES. Stations. 8 a.m. Min. Weather. Calgary, 62 52 Cloudy. Winnipeg, 60 54 Fair. Port Arthur, 64 50 Clear. Parry Sound, 64 58 Clear. Toronto, 60 50 Rain. Hamilton, 60 50 Rain. Montreal, 54 52 Cloudy. Quebec, 48 42 Clear. Father Point, 46 44 Clear.

WEATHER NOTES. The West Indian storm is between Bermuda and the mainland, and will probably pass very warm, with a few local showers. Extreme heat has prevailed in Manitoba and Ontario; 98° was recorded yesterday at Winnipeg, and 90° at Toronto. In Quebec and the Maritime Provinces the weather is fine.

LOCAL TEMPERATURES. The highest and lowest readings of the thermometer at the local observatory for the 24 hours ended at 8 p.m. Friday were: Highest, 84°; lowest, 62° above.

WESTERN WILL LEAD 'EM ALL; THINGS HUMMING AT GROUNDS

Finest Exhibits Crowding In—Space Is Being Rapidly Filled Up—Some Novelties—School Work.

Everything is almost ready at the Western Fair for the opening on Monday. The grounds are teeming today with thousands of exhibitors, showmen and workmen.

All last night exhibitors and exhibits kept pouring into the grounds, and the people of the neighborhood could scarcely sleep with the din of hammer and the shouting of men. Secretary Hunt is up to his eyes in business today. With a show exhibiting symptoms of beating everything and anything in the past, he finds himself with so much work on hand that he is busy twenty hours out of the twenty-four.

President Reid and Superintendent Brown are also working like beavers. Being a Western Fair magnate means to be a worker these days.

All Space Taken.

Chairman George M. Reid, of the main building, has everything working smoothly in the palace. There is not a foot of vacant space. The exhibits are very interesting, and no doubt will attract thousands to the fair. Chairman Reid has an eye for the beautiful, as well as for the business side of the fair, and he has provided at great expense many novelties to mingle with the splendid exhibits of the manufacturers and others.

A Novelty Corner.

One of the novelty corners is filled with exhibits of stuffed animals and birds, the property of Mr. James Tume, of this city. The fair board has to pay to have this natural history collection, but it is well worth the money and is both interesting and instructive.

The Schools' Exhibit.

School Inspector Edwards was also busy today arranging the public schools exhibit of art and school work. All the specimens are neatly arranged with a card to tell the school from which the work comes. At the close of the Western this exhibit goes to the Halifax fair. It has just come from the big show at Toronto, where it proved a decided hit.

Every building on the grounds is well filled today. The poultry building is filled to overflowing, the exhibit of pigeons and pet stock being greater than ever before.

Not a foot of space is left in the machinery hall or the carriage building.

Now For Fine Weather.

"If the weather next week holds out fine, we shall break all records," Secretary Hunt said to The Advertiser today. "We have all the arrangements completed, and the prospects, the directors say, were never better."

Children's Day.

Monday will be children's day at the fair. The admission for children will be 10 cents, and the stands will be free to the little ones in the afternoon, but not at night.

Mr. Hunt guarantees that all the attractions will be put on before the stand on Monday afternoon, so that the children will not be slighted in the least.

The attractions include a famous equestrian act, that of Cottrell & Powell, which is said to be alone worth the admission to the fair.

The King's Horses.

Everybody wants to know when the King's horses are coming. It is understood they will be here Tuesday, or not later than Wednesday.

A large banner in the horse shed next the transportation building announces that stalls 24 to 28 have been reserved for the King's horses.

An Accident.

A slight accident occurred on the grounds about 7 o'clock last evening. Fred Baker, a lad of 15 years, who lives on Francis street, was playing on a rattle-dazzle, when the chains which held it loosened in some manner, allowing the machine to swing around. Baker's leg was caught in the chain, and badly cut, and his foot was crushed.

He was removed to his home, where his injuries were attended to by a doctor. Fred will not see the fair this year.

The heat was intense today, but the directors think it will help, rather than hurt the fair.

Grounds Look Fine.

The grounds are in splendid condition. Large beds of flowers are to be seen here and there in the well-kept lawns, and the lily pond, in the center, is filled with bloom.

All the electric lighting poles have been painted green and white, and they greatly improve the appearance of the grounds.

The repairs made to the buildings this year are very noticeable, and visitors are complimenting the directors on the neat and trim appearance of everything.

The people do not appear to understand the new gateway as yet. Tickets are now bought from offices facing on Dundas street, as was the custom in the past, but all who enter the fair must do so through turnstiles at each side of the main entrance.

ASSASSIN USES WOMAN AS SHIELD

Soldier Shoots Her Dead, and Then Murderer Shares the Same Fate.

Warsaw, Sept. 8.—One of the assassins who have been carrying out the wholesale murders of the police, today killed a policeman in the suburb of Praga. He was chased by soldiers into a shop. The shopkeeper and his assistants attempted to arrest him, but he shot three of them dead.

When the soldiers broke in, the murderer seized the shopkeeper's wife and held her before him as a shield. A soldier shot the woman dead and then killed the murderer.

The whole city is closely patrolled by troops, and the usually crowded streets are almost deserted. Each policeman is guarded by two or three soldiers.

CALL OFF STRIFE FOR TEN DAYS; CUBA AND REBELS TO TALK PEACE

An Armistice Agreed Upon by President Palma—Railway Bridge Dynamited.

Havana, Sept. 7.—An official armistice for ten days has been decided upon by the Government.

The zones in which the opposing forces must remain will be determined upon tomorrow.

The armistice will be conducted under the regular war regulations.

The insurgent forces commanded by Pino Guerra are moving nearer to the City of Pinar del Rio, and General Menocal, it is stated, will probably visit Guerra personally and confer with him regarding peace terms.

Bridges Dynamited.

Havana, Sept. 7.—Two bridges on the Western Railway were blown up by the rebels this morning.

General Avalos, commander of the Government forces in the Province of Pinar del Rio, has telegraphed to the authorities here asking them to send three rapid-fire guns to the scene of the bridge destruction on the Western Railway, in order to enable him to

GERMAN HEADS JESUIT FATHERS

Francis Xavier Wernz Elected General to Succeed Late Father Martin.

Rome, Sept. 8.—Francis Xavier Wernz, a German, was today elected general of the Society of the Company of Jesus, in succession to the late Father Martin, who died last May.

Following the election a messenger was immediately dispatched to the Vatican to inform the Pope of the choice, which, to become effective, requires the papal sanction.

DRAINING LONDON OF GOLD.

London, Sept. 8.—The United States took a further engagement of $25,000,000 in eagles from the Bank of England today. In consequence of the steady drain of gold to New York, the bank has raised the price to 3d to 76s 9d.

CALL OFF STRIFE FOR TEN DAYS; CUBA AND REBELS TO TALK PEACE

protect the workmen, sent to rebuild the bridges.

With proper protection the railroad company officials think they can repair the bridges in five days.

Pino Guerra's force, however, is becoming increasingly numerous in that part of the country.

The people there do not think that the Government can suppress the insurrection.

Lieut.-Col. Clewes, with 150 men and two machine guns, started this afternoon for the City of Pinar del Rio by special train.

A dispatch from Cienfuegos, province of Santa Clara, today says that in the engagement between Government troops and insurgents near Palmira yesterday, the former lost two men killed and had fourteen men wounded, while the insurgents had six men killed and twenty wounded.

The dispatch adds that more Government troops deserted to the insurgents today from Cienfuegos. The attitude of the Liberals, the increasing strength of the insurgents and the questionable loyalty of many of the Government recruits have caused the managers of some of the large business interests to cable to the foreign heads of their companies their belief that the Government of President Palma will be unable to cope with the insurrection.

THE PRESS AND THE PARTY.

In his address before the Reform

Association of Ontario, the president,

Mr. H. M. Mowat, K.C., offered some shrewd observations on the functions of the press and of the party leaders, and their relations to each other. He thought that ministers availed themselves too little of the right of public meetings. It might be that they were engrossed in departmental drudgery.

If so, they should be relieved, as men could not be civil servants and commanding politicians, too. Perhaps the people, acquiescing in the increased facility of the press, had become accustomed to obtain their political food from writings, and did not demand the direct utterances of party leaders. Mr.

Mowat did not consider this condition satisfactory. The collaboration between great parliamentarians and great editors was a thing of the past, in Ontario at least; and if it were true that great newspapers did not care to be tied up to party, the slashing newspaper article must be dispensed with.

"Editorials will be laden with caution," said Mr. Mowat, "and items of political news written with a view to acceptation by the opponent as well as by the friend. The prudent party man will find himself heretofore of the strong meat required by a taste for fair invective. If he depends on his newspaper alone he may fast become indifferent to the joys of party conflict."

There should be more frequent contact between the people and their party leaders, by means of the public meeting, as Mr. Mowat contends. In this country public men do not take as full advantage of the parliamentary recess for this purpose as do politicians in the old land, and the platform has undoubtedly lost in power and prestige.

The other tendency noted by Mr.

Mowat, the disappearance of the old-time party organ, and the increasing moderation of the tone of party con-trovercy in the press, is not so much to be deplored. The idea of many ardent politicians is that a party newspaper exists to lash and stimulate party feeling. The slashing article is no doubt useful in keeping alive the party spirit and the joy of conflict, but these are only excellent things,

when parties are divided upon principles. In this country issues arise from time to time which appeal to moral enthusiasm and justify vigorous polemics, but the questions with which parties in this country are concerned are for the most part of a purely administrative character, and do not call for a continuous fortissimo.

A certain amount of party cohesion and organization is necessary to the proper working of our system of government, and the party newspaper will always have an important function while the system endures, but it must have a mind and conscience of its own if it is to command the respect of thinking people and exert any influence beyond keeping the converted in the faith. It can best serve its party by playing the role of a candid friend. Professional politicians may chafe at this doctrine, and at the growing independence of the press, but they have its full permission to make more use of the public platform. Instead of looking to the newspapers to do all their fighting and defend their every action.

MR. CHURCHILL'S LETTER.

Mr. Winston Churchill's letter, addressed to Mr. Hamar Greenwood, was intended for public consumption in Canada. It purports to describe the attitude of the present-day British Liberalism toward Imperial problems, and is designed to clear up misconceptions which have been industriously fostered

by the opponents of the Liberal party.

It is quite true, as Mr. Churchill states, that "the symbols and apparatus of Imperial administration" have been peculiarly associated with the Conservative party in recent years. This is largely because that party has had almost a monopoly of office in the period in which the Imperial idea has been growing, and taking definite shape. But the impartial student of history will not fall into the error of thinking that

British Liberalism and Imperialism have been essentially in conflict. Mr.

Churchill states the case admirably:

"And what, I should like to know,

has the British Empire to fear from Liberal principles? It is one of the oldest things in modern history that there should be any question of this point. It is to Liberal social principles, carried in some ways to far more logical extremes than in this old country, that Canada and Australia and New Zealand ascribe no little share of their progress and prosperity. It is upon Liberal principles of tolerance and trust in racial matters, of freedom and an equality in religious matters, that they built their own internal peace. It is by Liberal imperial principles of colonial autonomy, of a lofty humanity, and, above all, of a peaceful foreign policy, that the structural cohesion of the British Empire has alone been achieved and will alone be maintained."The self-governing colonies have been working out their own salvation upon the principles of British Liberalism, no matter what names parties in the colonies may give themselves. Mr.

Churchill conveys the assurance that the great political changes in the mother country do not imply any weakening in the affection of the British people toward their kith and kin beyond the sea. The ultimate aim is the same — "a solid defensive league of free democratic communities, animated by a love of peace, and justice, under the leadership of the British crown."BRITAIN'S BUOYANT COMMERCE.The figures issued by the British Board of Trade for the first six months of the current year are an effective answer to the political Jeremiahs of the old land.The exports for the year 1905 showed an enormous increase over the previous year, and the gain is being maintained in 1906.For the past six months the exports have been valued at $902,595,000. This means an increase over the corresponding period of the previous year of nearly $121,000,000, or 15 per cent.
Moreover, the chief item of increase was in manufactures, the gains in that department being equal to $97,- 000,000. Iron and steel, machinery, cotton goods, woolen and other materials figure prominently in the list of the articles showing great and continuous increase, and there is much gratification over the gain of $18,000,000 in the exports of new ships.How hollow, says the Economist, in view of these facts, are the assertions that England is losing ground as an exporting and manufacturing nation!
The Spectator sums up its observations on the same subject with the comment that British industries "show a most unbecoming disinclination to 'gang on' with their 'decline'."In what direction has the increase taken place? It appears that most of Great Britain's leading customers have had greater need of her products. The exports to the United States increased by $10,000,000; those to France by a like amount, and those to Germany by about $11,000,000. The exports to China declined, but the shipments to Japan increased by about $16,000,000.The increased purchases of foreign nations account for nearly nine-tenths of the expansion of Great Britain's export trade this year. The larger requirements of the outlying parts of the British Empire account for the remainder. This emphasizes the dependence of Great Britain on foreign markets as an outlet for her manufactured products.SOVEREIGN BANK STILL GOES AHEADNew Premises Secured in London—Big Deal Turned by General Manager.It is announced that the Sovereign Bank has secured the property on the northwest corner of Dundas and Richmond streets, and will, as soon as it is possible to come to amicable agreements with the tenants, Messrs. Mc-Callum and Boughner, built a fine bank premises, which shall be a credit to this sterling financial institution. All along the line in Canada, the Sovereign Bank is making marvelous strides.
Everywhere the popularity of the bank is increasing, and in no place is this truer than in London.Under the wise guidance of Manager Karn, the local branch has built up a business which is both solid and profitable. The present premises have been outgrown, until now it has been found necessary to secure at great cost the splendid corner referred to above.The men at the head of the Sovereign Bank of Canada are certainly in the front rank of the Dominion's solid financiers. One of the many profitable big deals turned by the bank lately is thus referred to in a dispatch from Montreal, dated Sept. 7:A Big Coup.
Montreal, Sept. 7.—From a capitalization of $700,000 to one of $1,000,000 is the remarkable outcome of two deals resulting in the two transfers of the ownership of the Penman Manufacturing Company, of Paris, Ont., the financial details of which were announced today.It is seldom that any financial coup in Montreal or Toronto financial circles has attracted so much attention as that by which Mr. Duncan Stewart, general manager of the Sovereign Bank of Canada, gradually picked up the controlling interest in the Penman Company and afterwards disposed of it to Messrs. David Yule, J. P. Black and C. B. Gordon, of Montreal.When Mr. Stewart started out to get control of the Penman Company it had a capitalization of $700,000, on which annual dividends at the rate of 8 per cent were being paid.Owing to the previous effort by interests identified with the Bank of Montreal to secure control of the company, a number of its shareholders held out for a very high price, and the syndicate of British and German capitalists he was acting for, it was found that an average price of from $346 to $350 had been paid for each share of the Penman Company, the par value of which was $100. In this way it cost
Mr. Stewart and his associates $2,500,- 000 to put the deal through.A Tremendous Profit.
At that time this syndicate intended to operate the plant, but shortly afterwards they were approached by Messrs. Yule, Black and Gordon, of Montreal, with an offer to buy the entire plant of the company. This deal has now just been completed, and the new company will have a capital of $4,000,000, of which it is intended that $2,000,000 should be in common stock and $1,500,000 in preferred stock. Inaddition there will be a bond issue of $2,000,000. On the turnover, it is stated by one of the gentlemen interested in the deal that the Sovereign Bank, and the interests for which Mr.
Stewart was working, must have made a cash profit of close to $400,000, and in addition they secured a proportion of stock in the new company.The high prices that the two different syndicates were willing to pay for the controlling interest in the Penman Company, indicates the possibilities they consider are behind the woolen trade of Canada.McLEAN—McCANNA Popular Young Couple Are Wedded at Bothwell.The wedding took place at Bothwell of Miss Lillian McLean, youngest daughter of Neil McLean, of the firm of Mc-

Bothwell. Miss Husband, of Wallace-burg, officiated as bridesmaid, while
Mr. J. McLean supported the groom.
Miss McCann, sister of the groom, played the Wedding March, as the bride entered the room leaning upon the arm of of black ostrich feathers and a handsome black and white costume, she told the delegates that she was persecuted by the aristocracy for her adhesion to the cause of socialism. Then, stretching out her arms, which were immaculately gloved with white kid, she dramatically exclaimed:

"Before long the storm will burst.
There will be a social revolution, and in a social revolution I will be more useful than now. Socialism is the only hope of the workers."Despite the undoubted sincerity of the Countess, there is a marked divergence between the Socialists and the Laborites regarding her championship of the cause. Many think that the presence of a wealthy, richly-gowned aristocrat on their platform must weaken the movement. They express contempt

"JUST A LITTLE BETTER THAN THE REST"

12 Reasons

WHY WE ARE NOT EXHIBITING AT THE WESTERN FAIR

- 1—Because one can only judge a piano by its quality of tone.
- 2—Because the Nordheimer has a rich, sweet tone, entirely different from all other pianos. You cannot judge tonal quality in the Western Fair building.
- 3—Because dampness is the greatest enemy to a piano. From experience we know the close atmosphere in the building injures pianos almost irretrievably.
- 4—Because the finely-finished case becomes scratched and damaged by accumulation of dust and extra amount of handling and banging around.
- 5—Because, by actual figures, the cost of exhibiting amounts to over $600. We save this and give our customers the benefit.
- 6—Because last year we remained away and made more sales than any previous year, and in addition, our customers were much better satisfied.
- 7—Because we do not require to bluff and bluster to sell Nordheimer pianos. This style of salesmanship is antagonistic to our system.
- 8—Because we can give much better value and our customers are made happy instead of dissatisfied.
- 9—Because we have no gold bricks and do not approve of P. T. Barnum's famous saying.
- 10—Because our one-price system means what it says. We do not run prices up-hill in order to run them down again. All pianos are marked in plain figures.
- 11—Because there is too much noise and excitement to hear the beautiful melody produced by Nordheimer pianos.
- 12—Because we have an elaborate display of the world-famous Steinway pianos, as well as the celebrated Nordheimer piano, in our large concert hall, 188 Dundas street. Purchasers, therefore, have their choice from three carloads of pianos.

We give easy terms if required.

We have, in addition, a large list of used pianos and organs at bargain prices.

Seven Earthquake Shocks to the South of Valparaiso.

Buenos Ayres, Sept. 7.—According to a dispatch to the Nacion seven earthquake shocks were felt yesterday evening at Talca, Chili, 140 miles southwest of Santiago.

UNIQUE CHURCH SERVICE

Entire French Episcopate Gathers at Notre Dame Cathedral.

Paris, Sept. 7.—A unique service, which attracted an enormous congregation, was celebrated at Notre Dame Cathedral this morning, after the conclusion of the meeting of bishops and archbishops called to discuss means of complying with the law providing for the separation of church and state, without infringing on the constitution of the church. The entire French episcopate was present, this being the first occasion on which they had gathered together in a metropolitan church since 1802, when the concordat was signed. Archbishop Roverie De Cabrières, in the course of an address, recalled that historically, saying that the present reunion was brought about by the rupture of that solemn compact.

No mention was made of the bishops' decisions. Minister of Public Instruction Briand, in an interview with the press today, displayed a very conciliatory spirit. He said he was prepared to receive a clerical delegation at any time, and believed that an arrangement suitable to both the Government and the church was possible, but he was determined to carry out the law.

JEW AS OFFICERS

May Now Take Positions of Command in the Russian Army.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 7.—The commission which is elaborating reforms for the army has recommended the admission of Jews to the officer corps, from which hitherto they have been excluded, except in the limited capacity of surgeons. The recommendation, which is coupled with the condition that the assent of the officers of the unit to which they are assigned must be secured in each case, will be presented to the Emperor for approval, and is in the line of the policy to which Premier Stolypin is committed. It probably will be accepted, though the recently formed anti-Jewish party is campaigning energetically against the proposition. Dispatches from Odessa and other cities in South Russia report the return of many Jewish families, who went to Palestine under the influence of the Zionist movement. They claim inability to exist there owing to the oppression of the Arabs.

HAS BRYAN SPLIT PARTY?

Milwaukee Mayor Discusses Result of New York Speech.

Cleveland, Sept. 8.—"I did not read Bryan's speech, but from what I have been told I am of the opinion that the Madison Square Garden address will disrupt the Democratic party," said Mayor Becker, of Milwaukee. "I have given no opinion on the subject, but I have made no address since leaving Cleveland for New York. I did not attend the Bryan reception, but I have heard that Bryan's speech was encouraging to him. I do not think he will be nominated if he is a candidate. Mayor Becker and party arrived in Cleveland on Thursday morning, having been on the road since Monday morning. They were expected to arrive at 10 o'clock on Thursday. The party left for Milwaukee at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, and expect to end the trip on Saturday morning.

We co-operate with local agents in every district in Ontario, whenever we find that they are reliable and honest, and if your property is now in the hands of a local real estate agent, we do not advise you to take it out of his hands in order to place it with us. If your local real estate agent understands our method of doing business, and is an honest man and knows the value of his property, we will certainly advise you to list the property with us. If he does not understand our method of doing business, and does not know the value of his property, we will advise you to list the property with us. We will get you a purchaser for your property, or we will let you know the value of your property, and we will be pleased to give you a list of our method of doing business, and satisfactory references to hundreds of farmers, merchants and other business men throughout the country, as to the advantages to be derived by those who have real estate or business property to sell, in having us handle their property for them.

By our method of advertising, the man who wants to buy is brought into direct communication with the man who wants to sell, although they may be hundreds or even thousands of miles apart. "The Ontario Real Estate Monthly," which is printed by us, gives a minute description of every property in Ontario placed in our hands for sale or exchange, its location, price and the owner's name. In the list of properties which some agents or the owner's name, the name of the location of the property is given, so that the prospective purchaser has to correspond with the agency in order to find out where each particular piece of property is situated. By our method of giving full particulars in our Ontario Real Estate Monthly, prospective purchasers are saved a great deal of time, trouble and expense, because they can go directly to the owner himself or correspond with him without any reference to us or any of our agents, if they wish to do so. Our little expense and trouble to each of them as possible. When either the purchaser or the seller think they can make a bargain themselves after we have brought them together, or have got them to correspond with each other, without any further assistance from us, we are quite willing that they should do so. We are endeavoring to make it as easy as possible for our agents or representatives, who are quite willing that they should do so. We are endeavoring to make it as easy as possible for our agents or representatives, who are quite willing that they should do so. We are endeavoring to make it as easy as possible for our agents or representatives, who are quite willing that they should do so.

We have a district manager and a staff of valuers, inspectors and agents in every county west and north of Toronto, for the purpose of assisting us and our patrons in advertising, selling and exchanging real estate and business properties in their localities.

The small audience which greeted Mr. Aubrey Boucicault at the Grand last night in Ivy Ashton Root's beautiful drama, "The Greater Love," didn't do justice to London's reputation as a city which appreciates all that is high-class and worthy in the legitimate drama.

"The Greater Love" was the first of the anti-trust productions sent to London by the Shuberts, and considering the character of the play and the cast, the opera house should have been crowded from pit to dome. It wasn't. In Canada the people are not aware of the fact as yet that the Shubert productions, in players and sumptuousness of settings, surpass anything the syndicate can produce. In the smallest American town, to witness a production as a Shubert attraction, is to insure a crowded house. The people over there know that in order to live the Shuberts must excel the syndicate.

Last night a small but intensely appreciative audience saw an attraction which outshined all previous high-class productions seen here. They saw a play written around the life of Mozart, in which classic music blended with heart touches, with bursts of human sympathy, which brought tears to the eyes of women, and which made men think they saw a play of the settings of which were a revelation. Each of the four acts was presented in an atmosphere centuries old, true to the period, and with the marvelous Belasco genius standing out even to the most minor of details.

Changing from a garden scene in the first act, the play worked its entrancing way along into Mozart's study in a theater in Prague; into the living-room at the home of the Webers in Vienna, and finally ending with a passionate burst of the mass for the dead in his lodgings in the same city.

All that is known to the art of stagecraft; all that the brush of the scenic painter worthy of his calling can produce; all that could be done to present the play in the proper age—all this was done in the production of "The Greater Love" last night.

Love, self-sacrifice, manly tenderness, woman's passion—every emotion finds a place in the surpassing stage story. And the cast which produced it last night was worthy of the play, and the star in the leading role, Aubrey Boucicault, a couple of years ago. They came to the theater prepared to see something good, and they saw it.

In "The Greater Love," Mr. Boucicault appears at his best. All the brilliant histrionic powers he possesses find scope in the changing emotions of the role of Mozart. His audience laughed with him at times, and at others some of the audience shed tears as they followed him through his pathetic career to the pitiable end. His impersonation leaves nothing undone, nothing overlooked, nothing to wish for.

He was given a magnificent support by Miss Grace Reals, as La Mandini. Seldom has a woman of such commanding talent and stage appearance been seen on the local stage. Her artistic portrayal of a highly emotional love scene, when Mozart casts her love aside, because of his greater love, his art, was indeed finished. But each and every member of the noteworthy cast might also be singled out for special mention.

The Grand should be crowded this afternoon and night. It should be remembered that the only city in Canada "The Greater Love" will visit this season is London. Local theater-goers owe it to themselves to see Mr. Boucicault in this play.

The augmented orchestra of 23 pieces last night rendered a number of Mozart's compositions between the acts, and the audience applauded loudly. Those who saw the play were also very generous as regards applause to Mr. Boucicault. He was repeatedly recalled. It is safe to say that he has added lustre to his already brilliant reputation by his magnificent work in "The Greater Love."

Despite the hot weather of the past week, Manager Stewart succeeded in attracting to the Grand Opera House a large number of people who were very well pleased with the big vaudeville show. The bill was undoubtedly one of the finest ever seen on a local stage.

However, there were some people who criticized it, and they were no doubt honest in their criticisms.

he had any decided leanings for the cause. That he joined any society, group or circle, his friends say is unlikely. They do not believe he is an emissary or agent.

Mr. Osison was married, and in this city lived in the Munroe, No. 828 West End avenue. The apartment was closed when he with his wife and their young child went to Gloucester, Mass., for his vacation. When he left his office there was no hint to any of his friends of anything to be done out of the ordinary. But a few days before his vacation time expired, Aug. 14, he suddenly reappeared in the apartment house. The next morning he ordered the janitor to bring the basement trunk, and this he immediately packed in great haste. While he was thus engaged Mrs. Osison appeared. The door was locked, but she succeeded in gaining admittance with the aid of the janitor, and he declares there was a somewhat extended conversation between husband and wife.

Lost at the Ferry.

This ended when a cab ordered the evening before drove up to the door, and accompanied by his wife, Mr. Osison, after the trunk had been strapped upon it, entered and was driven away. The cab drove to the down-town ferry and there the wife alighted, and there definite trace ends for the friends.

Two letters were received later in the newspaper office. One was formal, tendering his resignation, and the other addressed to his most intimate friend on the staff, with whom he had dined the evening before his departure without breathing a word of the step he was to take. Immediately thereafter it was announced quietly that Mr. Osison had gone to Russia, although he could not speak the language nor French, and had not procured a passport. But it developed that the steamship stationery upon which the letters were written was of a line that had no departures on Aug. 15.

Mrs. Osison has given up the apartment and has gone to Delhi, N. Y. Mr. Osison's brothers have come to the city, and while all profess to know his whereabouts and the object of his mission, still they appear to be keeping up a search. Mrs. Albert F. Day, mother of Mrs. Osison, has said there is no mystery in the voyage of her son-in-law, but friends still remember "The Greater Appeal," and the odd affair of the steamship stationery.

TO LABOR IN FORMOSA.

Montreal, Sept. 7.—Miss Winifred Bennet, eldest daughter of Rev. Thos. Bennet, traveling secretary of the Montreal branch of the Bible Society, leaves on Sept. 27 for the island of Formosa, where she is going to work as a missionary of the Presbyterian Church. When she arrives she will be married to Rev. Milton Jack, who is now working in that field.

St. Isidore P. Q., Aug. 18, 1904. Minard's Liniment Company, Limited: Gentlemen—I have frequently used MINARD'S LINIMENT, and also prescribe it for my patients with the most gratifying results, and I consider it the best all-round Liniment extant.

Yours truly,
DR. JOS. AUG. SIROIS.

It is known now also that for months Mr. Osison was profoundly interested in the Russian struggle for liberty. He was a close student of affairs, and when Mr. Gorky came to this country, the acquaintance of the two men was never known.

though how much they knew of vaudeville is another thing to consider.

The Grand Opera House is now in first-class working order. It has been thoroughly gone over, and all that it has been possible to do to improve the house this season has been done.

Springbank Theater closes tonight. The season was not a very successful one for Stewart & Fitzpatrick, from a financial point of view. The increase in the fare to the park kept many people away, and, besides, the season was rather chilly up till the last week in July.

The Lyceum Stock Company closes its engagement at Springbank tonight, the offering being the three-act comedy, "My Uncle from New York." This company opened here July 24, and during their engagement have put on good, clean shows. The company as a whole is strong, but special mention should be made of the leading lady, Miss Lois B. Hammond. This talented young woman portrayed a decided variety of roles during her engagement here, and has more than made good. Considering the fact that Miss Hammond's professional experience only covers a period of three years, her friends feel justified in saying the young lady has a bright future before her.

The successful comedy-drama, "My Dixie Girl," which will be the attraction at the Grand all next week, tells the story of a girl who was brought up as a child of fate in New York. After spending the greater part of her youth among rough companions, she discovers, through papers she finds concealed in an old dress belonging to a woman with whom she had been living, that she is Dixie, the daughter of Col. Dangerfield, a rich Kentucky planter. She makes up her mind to try and find her father. Being without money, she works her way from New York to Kentucky on the "fall and of the New Orleans Limited." She finally reaches Dangerfield Hall, and establishes her identity by means of the papers and a bracelet she has kept since childhood. She learns that her father and mother were separated long ago, through the jealous rage of Howard Northcote, a cousin of her father. The Colonel leaves his wife to be dead. Dixie is convinced that her mother is alive and determines to find her. One night, after the household have retired, she returns to the parlor for a good night look at her mother's picture. She finds Northcote and Paul, an unwilling accessory, about to rob the Colonel's desk of the papers that identify her as the Colonel's daughter. Paul falls in love with Dixie, and becomes her friend and helper in search for her mother. Northcote determines to capture Dixie and imprison her in a hut. He writes her a note in Paul's name, promising her information of her mother if she will meet him. Dixie keeps the appointment and is captured by friends of Northcote. While in captivity, Dixie meets a woman, who, because of long years of grief and sorrow has become slightly demented. Assisted by Dixie to remember the words of "My Old Kentucky Home," she regains her reason. Dixie discovers that she is her mother. They try to escape, but are prevented by Northcote, who, in turn, is held at bay by Paul, who has entered the hut in the disguise of Mother Sax, Northcote's maid of all work. Dixie and her mother make good their escape. Paul finally overcomes Northcote and they all return to Dangerfield Hall, where there is a reunion between husband and wife and mother and daughter.

"My Dixie Girl" is best described as a comedy-drama with a tinge of the melodramatic. It is a play full of action, of wit, humor and clever dialogue. The company is an excellent one and portrays characters who live in an atmosphere of love and hospitality. The action of the play is enlivened by a number of southern dainties, whose playing and singing is one of the many pleasing features.

It will perhaps be interesting news to the theater-going public of London to get an idea of the worth of the acts which will be seen at Bennett's Theater this season. Below are a few of the 325 theaters controlled by the Booking Agency, and which theaters Mr. Bennett is booking in connection with:

Manager Bennett has made rapid strides in the theatrical world, and he deserves the success he has achieved.

His local manager, Mr. Driscoll, is just the class of man to make friends for the house. He is a first-class theatrical man, but above all he is a gentleman, ready to put himself out any time to accommodate another.

Manager Driscoll is working steadily daily to have everything ready when the Vaudeville opens, and it is predicted that when the season at Bennett's begins, Londoners will be shown one of the finest theaters on the continent, as well as some of the finest vaudeville acts money will procure.

An attraction at Grand Opera House which never fails to please the people is the orchestra directed by Mr. Fred L. Evans. This orchestra appears to have an especial hold upon Londoners, and it is seldom that it is not rewarded by applause after rendering a selection. It is composed of the following gentlemen: Director F. L. Evans; first violin, Maurice Pource; bass violin, Edson Westman; flute, J. Taylor; clarinet, Thos. Olson; cornet, Clarence Robinson; trombone, Sam. Parr; drums and cymbals, Chester Pantou.

CLEVER WRITER HAS DISAPPEARED

"The Call of the Wild" May Have Been Heard.

WIFE AND CHILD IN THE DARK

Some Think He May Have Gone To Help the Revolutionists in Russia—Story of Career.

New York, Sept. 7.—John Milton Osison, a magazine writer of repute, holding an editorial position on an evening newspaper of this city, and in whose veins runs a half strain of Indian blood, has disappeared.

His friends are divided in their opinion of his mysterious action. Some believe he has heard and answered the "Call of the Wild," that he has gone with a blanket to his mother's people. Others think he has felt the touch of "Wanderlust," and by a higher and stronger appeal has been called to Russia, the troubles of which country have intensely interested him. He left this city on Aug. 15, his wife and child being uninformed of his mission.

Mr. Osison, a graduate of the Leland Stanford University, and the recipient of a post-graduate degree from Harvard, was born in Vinita, Indian Territory, in September, 1874. His mother was Rachel Crittendon, a Cherokee Indian woman of high character and attainment. After his post-graduate course in Harvard he came to this city and went into newspaper work, which he combined with work for the magazines. He won one prize offered by the Century with a short story entitled "Only the Master Shall Praise," and in 1894 he won another for another magazine with a story, "The Greater Appeal."

It is in this last story which some of his friends see a clue to his action in the present instance. It was the tale of the call of the aboriginal life to one who had endeavored to escape the condition by civilization. The fascination, the charm of the life won, and there was a return.

"Call of the Wild."

Influence had been brought to bear upon one whose artistic tastes, sensibilities and disposition were repented in the writer, and among those who knew him it attracted more than passing attention at the time. It is said Mr. Osison often supplemented his story by an expression agreeing with the final decision of his hero. He was said to have expressed a longing to experience the life of his ancestors, declaring it fulfilled every desire and ambition. But all this was simply put down as idle dreaming by the clear-headed writer and forgotten until after Aug. 15.

It is known now also that for months Mr. Osison was profoundly interested in the Russian struggle for liberty. He was a close student of affairs, and when Mr. Gorky came to this country, the acquaintance of the two men was never known.

BLACK HANDER PUNISHED

Given Five Years for Sending Out Threatening Letters.

New York, Sept. 7.—Vincenzo Triscolo, an Italian, 27 years old, was given a sentence of five years in States Prison today for writing threatening "Black Hand" letters. This is the first conviction for this crime. In sentencing Triscolo, Judge Rossisky said:

"You are a member of a vicious gang that has been striking terror among the ignorant of your own race. Your gang has gone so far as to commit murder when the money they demanded was not forthcoming.

"I am imposing this sentence on you that your complicity in the writing of 'Black Hand' letters may be warned. Triscolo was convicted of writing to Salvatore Grasso, a shoe dealer. He demanded $500, and threatened to blow up Grasso and family if the money was not paid.

RUINED BY DEADHEADS

Subsidized Paris Theaters Imposed Upon by Politicians.

Paris, Sept. 8.—It is estimated that the subsidized state theaters of France, such as the Theater Francaise, the Odeon, the Opera, and Opera Comique, are forced to give away so many free seats to members of the Government that they can never make any profit.

The yearly subsidy paid to the Opera Comique amounts to $400,000, but this sum is more than equaled by the tickets claimed as a right by politicians. Deputies, not content with claiming seats for themselves, are in the habit of asking for them for their constituents, so that at the end of the season there is always a deficit for the house. The same practice obtains in the provinces, where the theater manager is the servant of the municipality. So many free seats are exacted from the unhappy manager that it may be said that the subsidy ruins the theater.

MONUMENT COLLAPSING.

Montreal, Sept. 7.—The park superintendent has reported to the civic authorities that the magnificent monument to Sir John A. Macdonald on Dominion Square, near the Windsor Hotel, is in danger of collapsing, owing to the deterioration of the foundation through dampness.

EDWARD LEAVES MARIENBAD.

Marienbad, Bohemia, Sept. 7.—King Edward today completed the cure and left Marienbad for London.

LIFE SAVED BY PRAYER.

London, Sept. 8.—William Sunderland, of Newark, was saved from death yesterday by kneeling down to pray before jumping into the Trent to commit suicide. He was seen by another man on the opposite bank, and while he was praying the man had time to cross the river and prevent him from committing suicide.

MYSTERIES OF PARIS.

Paris, Sept. 8.—M. Honnavat, the chief of the Paris police, stated in an interview in Le Petit Journal, yesterday, that 18,000 disappearances of persons from Paris have been reported to his department. Only 16 per cent of these persons have been found.

WITH FORGED CHECK

Pays Hotel Bill With It and Gets Safely Away.

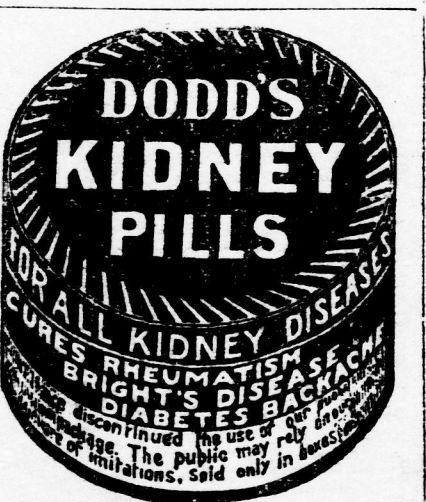

Hamburg, Sept. 8.—At one of the best hotels here in the Jungfernstieg, a traveler arrived several days ago giving the name of Edward Bailey and describing himself as the editor of a New York newspaper.

He gave the manager of the hotel a check on the Strand branch of the Provincial Bank of England for $500, and received 500 shillings and 25 sovereigns. Having given instructions that three box seats should be reserved for him at the circus, he left the hotel, and was not seen again.

Telegraphic inquiry of the London bank elicited the fact that the check was forged. It is said that the same man acted similarly during the coronation festivities at Trondheim. He is described as a man of good appearance, about 30 years of age. The incident has caused checks, which have been hitherto accepted here without question, to be regarded with suspicion.

SUMMER LABOR CAMP.

London, Sept. 8.—A summer labor camp has been established by Fletcher Dodd, on a farm at Ormsby, near Yarmouth, 150 army belt tents dot the meadows, and fifty men are this week using them as residences. The camp will be kept open during the rest of the summer, and used solely as a holiday resort for working men.

CONSIDERATE PICKPOCKET.

Liverpool, Sept. 8.—A man whose pocket was picked at Blackpool of a purse containing money and two railway tickets, had the purse and tickets returned the next day by post with a

MISSING HER EDUCATION.

London, Sept. 8.—Mrs. Betty Brookes, who has lived 93½ years in the same cottage at Edgely, Worsley, near Manchester, declares that her keenest regret is that there was no compulsory education in her young days, for she was never taught to read.

SNAP-SHOTS AT VARIOUS SPORTS

The Pirates only made one blivious bingle off Three-Fingered Brown, of the Spuds, the other day. If the Giants and Pirates had to play with the Spuds all season it would be a tight squeeze for the cellar.

The two Boston teams will play off for the lemon championship.

Christy Mathewson struck out fourteen Brooklyn players the other day. Pretty fair for a dead one.

Hal Chase, of the Highlanders, is easily the sensation of the baseball year. He's the best first baseman in the big ring.

President McCaffrey, of the Toronto baseball team, says he wants to keep all his players for next year. Which one will he hold? Only one guess.

Gans says he will give Britt the next chance. No chance for Jimmy.

The Hamilton Tigers are out for the Canadian championship this year. If they have developed a humble spirit during the winter, they may have a chance.

The Tecumsehs of Toronto still cling to the notion that they can win the Minto cup. There would be no holding that bunch if they did.

The organization meeting of the Rugby club will be held at the Tecumseh House this evening at 8:30 o'clock. There should be a good crowd at the meeting, as an effort will be made to boom the game this fall.

Another matinee horse has brought good money. Walter S. Norman McLeod's pacer, brought $600 at Toronto the other day.

The Broncho still wins through the west country. Her fastest mile this week was 2:03.

Harry Smith, who played such sensational hockey at left wing for Ottawa last season, has received a flattering offer to go west and play with Portage la Prairie. Smith is at present in Smith's Falls, and the people of that town hope to retain him for their team. He announces that he will probably accept the western offer.

Westwick, Alf Smith and McGee will be in their positions on the line again with Ottawa, while Pulford and Moore will no doubt figure at point and cover. If LeSueur, of Smith's Falls, does not come on the scene, Billy Hague looks the most likely man in goal.

Trainer John Dymont arrived at the Woodbine Thursday with a string of five horses, the property of N. Dymont, of Barrie. The horses have been racing at Saratoga and have been brought here for the fall meeting. They are Simon D., Harry Jamieson, Tongorder, Courtmartial and Will King. The rest of the horses were shipped home to the farm. While at Saratoga Morgan injured herself so badly while racing that she will never face the barrier again. The horses have not done well all year. They have suffered from skin diseases and other troubles. Tongorder has fallen away in weight, and it will be only with the best of care that he will get to the post at the Woodbine.

Maud Keswick has been retired from the track for this season, and bred to Direct Hal, 2:04 1/2. The mare will be left at the Driving Association's farm at Wellsville, N. Y., until next season. This year Maud Keswick was started some fifteen times, and was always in the money.

Rube Waddell was almost stung by the suspension of the bank last week in Philadelphia. Rube nearly decided to save money, and he fears he might have chosen the defunct institution. Narrow escape.

While the Gans-Nelson fight was a long one, it had yet many rounds to go before reaching the records of several longer battles, the most notable among them being the famous contest in Cheshire, England, in 1825, when Jack Jones beat Patsy Tunney in 276 rounds.

The longest bare knuckle fight recorded in England occurred in 1849, between Mike Madden and Bill Hargreaves, lasting six hours and three minutes. America's longest bare knuckle fight, four hours and twenty minutes, was fought between J. Fitzpatrick and James O'Neill at a place in Pennsylvania. The longest bare knuckle fight on record took place in Australia, near Melbourne, in 1856, when James Kelly and Jonathan Smith fought six hours and fifteen minutes.

A. Bowen and J. Burke drew at New Orleans in 1893, after fighting seven hours and nineteen minutes, going 110 rounds.

Jeffries' longest fight was 25 rounds, when he won from Sharkey in 1899. He knocked out Corbett in 23 rounds in 1900.

Fitzsimmons' longest fight was 20 rounds against George Gardner, in 1900.

Corbett's longest fight was that against Jeffries, 23 rounds.

John L. Sullivan drew with Charley Mitchell in 39 rounds at Chantilly, France, in 1888, and won from Jake Kilrain in 1889, after 75 rounds.

Probably the longest fight in the Middle West occurred in 1885 up on Harrison's Islands, when Sam Bittle was defeated by Harry Gilmore in over 80 rounds with bare knuckles. Sam now is the boniface of a well known Detroit resort.

NEW AUTO RECORD NEW YORK-CHICAGO

C. S. Carris Makes 1,000 Miles Under 57 Hours Running Time.

New York, Sept. 7.—A new automobile record between Chicago and New York was established yesterday by the same six-cylinder 30-horsepower car that recently made the transcontinental trip in a little over 15 days. Driven by C. S. Carris, who was L. I. Whitman's assistant on the previous run, the car arrived at Kingsbridge, the upper end of Manhattan Island at 11:58 o'clock yesterday forenoon, having completed the trip of a trifle over 1,000 miles from Chicago in the running time of 56 hours, 55 minutes, breaking the old record of 58 hours, 53 minutes, by 1 hour and 55 minutes. The former record was made two years ago by Bert Holcomb. He used what is known as the southern route at that time. Carris, with his assistants, C. B. Harris, M. S. Bates and G. H. Daly, took the northern route, notwithstanding the fact that it is about 150 miles longer.

The car left Chicago at 2 o'clock last Tuesday morning and one hour has to be deducted in figuring the actual running time, as in running east from Chicago there is one hour additional difference in time. The route followed was from Chicago to Cleveland, Erie, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Albany, Poughkeepsie, to Kingsbridge.

"The only accident we had," said Mr. Carris yesterday, "was in Ohio just after we entered the state, when we struck a load of hay which carried away the hood of the machine and broke the fans. Despite this, we made a good run, although heavy rains made the roads hard going in Ohio, until we reached Syracuse Wednesday night, where a stop of one hour was made for repairs, the longest single stop on the journey. From Little Falls to Schenectady through the Mohawk Valley we ran through dense fog and were unable to drive faster than six or seven miles an hour. We reached Poughkeepsie at 8:35 o'clock in the morning and made the trip of over 60 miles to Kingsbridge in three hours and 23 minutes."

The same tires were used on the car that were on it during the run from San Francisco.

RECORDS SMASHED

Several Marks Are Shattered at the A. A. U. Meet.

New York, Sept. 7.—The national championship meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union was begun today at Travers Island. Every athlete of prominence in Canada and the United States is entered in the several events. Three junior records were broken. M. H. Griffin, of the Chicago Athletic Association, established a new record of 121 feet 11 inches with the discus. S. P. Gillies, of the N. Y. A. C., threw the hammer 161 feet 8 inches, a remarkably clever performance. Claude Allen, of the Irish A. A. C., took the honors in the pole vault with 11 feet 6 inches, which is far ahead of any previous performance in the junior ranks. W. Nelson, of England, won the five-mile run with ridiculous ease, by a third of a mile from J. N. McCaughey, of the Montreal A. A. C. W. C. McKay, of Montreal, was third in the 880-yard run. W. Hapenny, Montreal, was third in the pole vault, and also third in the running broad jump.

CAMILLA TROTS FAST AT FAIR

Sets New Track Record at Detroit—Keen Racing in All Classes.

Detroit, Sept. 7.—Another record crowd packed the grandstand at the closing of the State Fair races yesterday afternoon. The last card of the week brought out several good races. The last heat of the third race, the 2:16 pace provided the most excitement of the day, when Rushville, the black gelding from Toledo, nosed out Irene D., the Chatham mare, by half a head after the two had gone the distance from the quarter-pole almost neck and neck. Rushville's game work gave him second money, while Irene D. took first.

Camilla won the final heat in the unfinished 2:12 trot, the opening race. The Holland mare held the lead easily. She established a new track record of 2:11 1-2. Exalted, the Chicago horse, took second money.

Five heats were necessary to finish the second race, the 2:25 trot. Barney Exam took the first two heats and looked like an easy winner, but Major Peeler startled the backers of Barney by taking two straight. Fair Hazel, the Bay City horse, pressed Barney hard in the fifth, but the black fellow managed to pull in ahead. Major Peeler broke and came in a poor fourth. Dr. Charley had an easy time in the 2:18 trot, taking all three heats. The summary:

First race, 2:12 trot—(Unfinished)—
Camilla (Bonne) 1 2 1
Mae Hart (Colby) 4 4 1 4
Exalted (McMahon) 2 2 2

BOTH CREWS ARE VERY CONFIDENT

Amateurs Pick Cambridge to Win, While Professionals See Harvard.

Putney, Eng., Sept. 7.—The Harvard and Cambridge crews were out for brief periods today, but the work was confined to practicing starts, in which the experts found little to choose between the crews. Each side apparently is quietly confident. Among outsiders and riverside oarsmen there is an absence of that self-confidence regarding the result, which is almost always present a full week before the annual Oxford-Cambridge contests.

Generally speaking, the professionals favor the Americans, and the amateurs pin their faith to the Cambridge crew. Coach Wary is perfectly satisfied with the capabilities and power of endurance of his crew, and thinks they have a more than even chance of winning. Capt. Filley, of the Harvard crew, is also confident, and says that if the Americans are beaten tomorrow it will not be until the finish of the race.

Dr. Goldsmith, president of Cambridge University Boat Club, said today that he thought the Cambridge crew would win, but that there would not be much space between the boats at the finish. The weather prophets predict westerly winds for tomorrow. This would be against the boats over most of the course, and in this event they would gain by the choice of the Surrey side of the river.

GOOD GAME AT RODNEY

West Lorne Defeated by 5 to 2—Gervine Pitches Well.

Rodney, Sept. 7.—A fast game of ball took place at Rodney yesterday afternoon between Rodney and West Lorne. West Lorne played a fine game, but were outclassed and beaten by a score of 5 to 2. The score:
Rodney 2 0 1 0 0 2 0 0 5
West Lorne 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 2
Batteries—Rodney, Gervine and Miller; West Lorne, Neal and Clark. Struck out by Neal, 9; by Gervine, 9. Umpire, J. Kennedy.

UNASSISTED DOUBLE PLAY

New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 7.—A rare feat in baseball, a triple play unassisted, was accomplished by First Baseman Murch, of the Manchester Club, of the New England League, in a game with New Bedford yesterday. Murch caught a fly from a batter and after putting out a player who had been on first base, rushed to second base, and caught a runner attempting to return from third.

Germany is now making 1,800,000 tons of best sugar yearly, and exporting more than a million tons.

THREATEN ACTION AGAINST THE FAIR

Local Firm Claim They Have a Grievance — Directors Hold Meeting.

Until the close of the exhibition on Saturday next, the directors of the Western will meet every morning at the administration building at the fair grounds. The board was in session for a short time this morning, and considered a number of matters. President W. J. Reid was in the chair, the other directors present being Messrs. Wm. Gammage, Dr. Routledge (Lambeth), R. Oke, J. W. Jones, Allan Bogue (Westminster), Wm. McNeill, A. J. Armstrong, T. H. Shore (Westminster), George McCormick, Wm. Moore, John Pringle, Scatcherd (West Nisour), Ald. Wyatt, ex-Ald. Carrothers and Secretary A. M. Hunt.

A letter threatening an injunction against the Fair Board was received from Pocock Bros. The firm stated that they had made application to the board for space in the main building, and were told that it would be impossible to grant their request, as all available space was taken. Later the superintendent of the Main Building was telephoned to, and was asked for space for a Toronto firm that followed the fair and sold jewelry, and the reply was given that out-of-town firms could be supplied with space on the ground floor of the building for $25. Messrs. Pocock Bros. added that when they informed the superintendent of the building who was telephoning him (the superintendent) assumed a haughty air. They say that as exhibitors for over a quarter of a century they feel it their duty to protect the interests of the London merchants by taking out a writ under the transient traders' act, as the men who sell goods in the Main Building are amenable to the law.

The directors simply referred the letter to the president, with instructions to have the board's solicitor act in the event of the injunction being issued.

Directors Are Optimistic.
The directors are very optimistic as to the outcome of the exhibition. All that is needed to make it a success, they say, is favorable weather. President Reid reported that the entries in every department except cattle were more numerous than in the past. An effort had been made to secure as many of the cattle as possible to come to London from Toronto, but many of them were going to Ottawa and then to Halifax, as the Government is paying a portion of their expenses in going east. However, London will not be the only fair this year with a smaller exhibit of cattle than usual. At Toronto one-third of the stalls were empty, many of the breeders who generally exhibited being absent. So far as the poultry is concerned, the statement was made that the building will be filled to overflowing, over 400 entries having been received for pigeons alone. This necessitates the erection of a large number of temporary coops.

There will be no vacant spaces on the Midway, with its many barkers. There will be shows of various descriptions, but every effort has been made to keep out of those of an objectionable character.

The King's horses will arrive from Ottawa on Thursday morning. They were shipped from Toronto to the capital today, to be exhibited for three days before coming to London. From London they go to Kansas City, and at the close of the exhibition there they will be sold. Some of them may have already been disposed of, but they will not be turned over to their new owners until after the close of the Kansas City show.

LONDON AND DISTRICT

The weekly tea of the London Ladies' Golf Club will be given today by Mrs. Fred Harper. It is hoped that all members will attend.

—Mr. A. J. Richards, formerly of the Bell Telephone Company, this city, has gone to Brandon, Man., where he has secured a position with an electrical supply company.

—Services preparatory to the Sacrament were held in King Street Presbyterian Church last evening. Twenty-two new members were received. Rev. T. H. Mitchell, of New St. James' Church, officiated.

—Miss E. A. Taylor, of Toronto, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Wm. Taylor, 563 Queen's avenue, this city, sailed Thursday from Quebec by the steamship Empress of Ireland for Manchester. They will visit various places in England, and expect to be absent about six months.

HAVE CANS STAMPED.

Milk dealers will do well to see that their cans of one gallon or over are properly verified and stamped, under the new act respecting milk cans. The inspector of weights and measures will give any information required in the matter. The act refers principally to the cans of dealers who purchase milk from farmers.

"PINCHED" IN DETROIT.

Two men, well known to the London police—Fred Maudsley and John Boyle—are in jail at Detroit, charged with highway robbery. John O'Connor, a locomotive engineer, of Saginaw, Mich., is their alleged victim. O'Connor was laid out with a "billy" while walking along a Detroit street, and relieved of his cash, a watch and chain. Boyle is said to have admitted the "slugging" of O'Connor. Both Maudsley and Boyle have done time in Ontario for various offenses. It was at Maudsley's home that "Shifty Billy" was shot by Detectives Egerton and Nickle, and the notorious "Texas" Burdell was arrested. SAILER—EVANS.

BELL BUSINESS BOOMS

Piano Company Secures New and Larger Premises in London.

The business of the Bell Piano Company in London and the western district has been increasing so rapidly of late that the representative for the district, Mr. James E. Keenleyside, has been compelled to abandon the old warehouses on Dundas street, and secure new quarters at 334 Richmond street, a few doors south of King. Merit alone accounts for the great success of the Art Bell Pianos, equipped as they are with the inimitable repeating action. In the new warehouses, which are admittedly among the best in Canada, the favorite instruments can be shown to the greatest advantage, which will mean an increased volume of business. In connection with the warehouses, also, is an art studio (equally as fine in its equipment as the warehouses themselves), for the convenience of teachers. The studio is really a feature of the new home of the Bell.

An instrument that has created considerable interest in the Autolonia, or the Bell Piano, which is described as two pianos in one, for the reason that it can in an instant be converted into a regular piano for playing from hand from an instrument that plays itself. The Autolonia was the center of attraction at the Toronto fair.

Mr. Keenleyside will be pleased to meet his old friends and prospective buyers at the new warehouses, and show them all the latest improvements in Bell pianos and organs.

EMPRESS AVENUE REOPENS TOMORROW

New Methodist Church Is Ready for Occupation—Is a Pretty Edifice.

Tomorrow morning the Empress Avenue Methodist Church will be reopened. During the past four months, the church has been in the hands of Contractor R. G. Wilson, and now it is ready to be reoccupied, larger, modernized and beautified. Architect W. G. Murray had charge of the plans.

Both inside and outside the appearance of the church has been greatly improved. Hardly a vestige of the old church is recognizable.

The auditorium is now almost square in shape, and is exceedingly comfortable. The seating is laid out in amphitheater form, with the pulpit in the center. The seats in themselves are as comfortable as money could procure. The floor is covered with a luxuriant carpet, and the walls, the woodwork and ceiling are decorated with splendor, giving the whole interior a decidedly attractive appearance.

The windows also add greatly to the beauty of the edifice. The leaded windows are of beautiful design, and with their many colored glasses, present a very pleasing sight. The new vestibule is exceedingly commodious, it being eight feet wide and running across the full width of the building. It is separated from the auditorium by a modern glass partition.

The heating arrangements were not forgotten. Two new furnaces have been installed, which it is estimated should furnish sufficient heat in the most severe weather. The Sunday school apartments have also been improved, and a number of new classrooms added. The hall of the school has also been enlarged and beautified.

New cement sidewalks have been laid, and the grounds graded, so that a nice lawn can be laid out. When the proposed improvements have been made there will not be a prettier church or site in the city.

The opening services will be continued a week from tomorrow, when Rev. E. B. Laneley, of Dundas Center Church, and Rev. William Goodwin, of Amherstburg, who were formerly pastors of the Empress Avenue Methodist Church, will preach. It is the purpose of the congregation to have former pastors occupy the pulpit during succeeding Sundays.

The zeal with which the present pastor, Rev. L. B. Wallin, B.A., and the congregation have gone about the work, is a credit to them, and the success with which their efforts have been crowned is greatly due to their untiring efforts.

A LONDONER'S MARRIAGE

Nuptials of Mr. Albert E. Reason and Miss Floy Freeman.

The following account of the marriage of one of London's well-known businessmen appeared in last Tuesday's issue of the Tecumseh Herald, Tecumseh, Mich.:

Early autumn flowers daintily disposed found their complement in a floral arch of green and white, surmounted by two silk flags, the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes, under which the bride and groom of Saturday, Miss Floy Wilson Freeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Freeman, and Mr. Albert Ernest Reason, of London, Ontario, exchanged their nuptial vows. The ceremony took place at half past 6 o'clock, and was performed by Rev. W. F. Jones, of Fairfield, Ia. Miss Margaret, little sister of the bride, attended as maid of honor, and Dr. C. H. Reason as best man. The bridesmaids were Miss Lena Smith and Miss Laura Hildesley, of London. Mr. Wade L. Jones and Mr. W. Elmer Slayton assisted. The bride was escorted by her father. The Lohengrin wedding march, played by a string orchestra, provided a joyous measure for the entrance of the bridal party.

The bride wore a pretty combination of white tulle and satin, princess lace and pearl passementerie, made to the young bride. A veil of tulle held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms completed the costume. She carried a large shower bouquet of bride's roses and chiffon. The maid of honor wore a frock of white tulle, accented with pink garniture, and carried a basket of pink rosebuds.

Miss Smith wore a gown of pink mousseline de soie and bette Irish lace, and Miss Hodgins' gown was of pale blue crepe de chine and lace. Each carried bouquets of pink asters. Mrs. Freeman, mother of the bride, wore Alice blue cologne over taffeta, trimmed with point venise and carried pink roses. The groom's mother, Mrs. Reason, wore a rich gown of black, embroidered chiffon with applique garnitures and corsage bouquet of white rosebuds.

After congratulations had been offered, the guests repaired to the dining-room and were served from a flower-bedecked table, while soft music added to the gaiety of the hour.

About 200 guests were present, including a large number from out of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Reason left on an evening train for New York City and Boston. After Nov. 1 they will be at home in London, Canada.

TO THE PUBLIC

We extend to our friends and intending piano purchasers an invitation to visit our exhibit at the Western Fair every day during next week, when we will take pleasure in showing the finest array of magnificent instruments ever shown in London, among which will be found the beautiful Chippendale, Sheraton, Louis XV. and old German styles, in addition to the popular fancy French burl and San Domingo mahogany cases. As to the interior of the Heintzman Company piano it is unnecessary to mention, as this great Canadian piano has won the enviable reputation of being the greatest of all Canadian pianos. For 56 years it has been tried and found to be equal to any and every occasion and to be exclusively used by such great artists as Fredholm, Bumister, Jonas, Melba, Calva, Emma Eames, Pol Plancon, Jean and Edward De Reske, the Thomas Orchestra, the Pittsburgh Orchestra and Mendelssohn Choir, is an evidence of its qualities for high-class work. Madame Albani, the great soprano, has said: "It exceeds any piano I have ever used." We will be pleased to be favored with a call from you to examine these world-famed pianos.—Heintzman & Co., the old firm, Warehouses, 217 Dundas, corner of Clarence.

LEAVING FOR THE WEST

Farewell Presentation Made To Mr. H. J. Halladay by Fellow-Employees.

Mr. H. J. Halladay, who has been foreman in Leonard & Sons' machine shop for some years, was made the recipient yesterday of a purse of gold and an address from his fellow-employees, prior to his departure for Calgary, where he will represent the firm. The employees testified to the goodwill that had always existed between themselves and the foreman, who had always been courteous and obliging. They wished him great prosperity in the west.

On Wednesday evening, Mr. Halladay was also given a purse of gold by the congregation and Sunday school of Bible.

INTERLINEAR BIBLES.
London, Sept. 8.—The Cambridge University Press will issue next month a Bible so printed that both the authorized and revised versions may be read from the same text, without difficulty, and without need of reference from text to margin or from one text to a second. The method adopted is to print in large type such words as are common to both versions, and the variations in small type. On account of the way in which the type is set the Bible is to be known as the Interlinear Bible.

Its Victim.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
Cape Town, Sept. 8.—An Englishman named Warman, formerly employed at Salisbury Railway station, has been eaten by a crocodile.

Warman and a companion, H. E. Bennett, decided, at the end of last month, to go on a trading trip across the Kafue River.

On arriving at the river they knocked together a rough boat, on which they placed all their belongings, and then embarked.

When in mid-stream a crocodile attacked the boat and upset it. Bennett and Warman both being left foundering in the water.

They struck out for the opposite shore, which Bennett reached, but on looking back he saw the crocodile seize Warman's leg and drag him under the water.

Bennett had to travel 300 miles before he reached a white man's abode at Bana. Warman leaves a widow and family in England.

PARIS CAFES MAY CLOSE ON SUNDAY

Sentiment of Public Meeting of Savon Men Favors One Day of Rest.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
Paris, Sept. 8.—Parisians are in trouble for the great question is in suspense whether the cafes of the city are to be closed on Sundays.

Paris without its cafes and terraces, with their gay throngs sipping aperitifs and books on Sunday afternoon, is unthinkable. But if the majority of the members of the Proprietors' Syndicate have their way, such will be the result of the passing of the weekly day of rest.

At a meeting of publicans held yesterday the prevailing sentiment was in favor of closing, but strenuous opposition was offered by the owners of the great, world-renowned cafes on the central boulevards, who regard Sunday as their weekly harvest day.

The less important establishments in the side streets, which, of course, form the numerical majority, do not reap any great benefit from the Sunday trade, as the provincials and foreigners almost exclusively confine their patronage to the central thoroughfares.

The waiters in general support the contention of the central employers, many of these employed during the week in the small cafes finding engagements as "extras" in the more favored resorts on Sunday, when their own cafes are deserted.

It is thought that an arrangement may be reached by which the large establishments will comply with the law by allowing their waiters a day off in rotation. Everyone would thus be satisfied, as foreigners would still be able to enjoy in Paris the delights of taking their refreshment in the open air on the boulevards, meanwhile watching the living cinematograph continually passing before their eyes.

A GRAFT CHARGE FOR KAISER'S MAN

Scandals in Colonial Department
Said to Involve Von Podbielski and Wife.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
Berlin, Sept. 8.—The coils of public censure in connection with the graft scandals in the colonial department are tightening around Gen. von Podbielski, the Prussian minister for agriculture. His wife's heavy financial interest in the firm of Tippleskirch & Co., accused of corrupting Major Fischer, and the consequent supposition that he must have had knowledge of that officer's relation with the firm, excite increasing disapproval.

A well-informed news agency announces that the minister's resignation may soon be laid in the hands of the Kaiser, "who tolerates no nonsense in anything affecting the army."

The latest development affecting Herr Podbielski is the revelation that while he was postmaster-general in Germany a few years ago Tippleskirch & Co. rented to the Government two floors of their new building in Kiauchau for postoffice purposes, the payment being so exorbitant that a few years' rental would have sufficed for the construction of a whole new building.

RACE HATREDS
BRING BLOODSHED

Feuds of Greek and Slav in Balkans End in Murder and Arson.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
Vienna, Sept. 8.—The murder of Greeks in Bulgaria and the destruction of their property is bringing about a dangerous complication in the near east.

Race hate, as between Slavs and Greeks and religious hate, as between the Bulgarian and Greek Churches, have become intensified by the present outrages, and preparations are being made for reprisals on a large scale.

Macedonia will again be the field of action, for it is there that the rival factions can freely make war. Already 200 people a month are being murdered by the bands, and property is being destroyed wholesale. This in spite of the supervision of the powers.

A leading Bulgarian comitadj, who is now in Vienna, tells me that plans are being made to carry the war more actively into the Greek camp. It is known that Greek bands are crossing the frontier in large numbers. They are well armed and well supplied with funds. The Bulgarians are not so well off. They are short of money and are sending agents to their countrymen to make an appeal for help.

Meantime the Turks are interested onlookers. They regard their duty not so much to prevent disorders as to allow the bands to destroy each other. They occasionally destroy a small band themselves, and it is noteworthy that in these encounters the band is almost invariably Bulgarian, and not Greek.

There is every probability that the powers will be compelled to take drastic measures to put an end to the prevailing anarchy.

CROWN JEWELS OF BRAZIL STOLEN

Gems Valued at $400,000 Said To Be Hidden in Portuguese Capital.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
Lisbon, Sept. 8.—A Brazilian has been arrested in accordance with a cable request from the Brazilian Government on a charge of having stolen a portion of the crown jewels of Brazil.

The crown jewels consist principally of twelve enormous diamonds and a number of smaller stones, the whole being valued at $400,000.

None of the jewels have been found, and they are supposed to have been hidden in Lisbon.

The director of the Brazilian treasury, in a search for some missing jewels, had been withdrawn from circulation recently, discovered in the treasury vaults chests filled with forgotten ingots of gold and silver, dating from the empire, gold and silver chalices used in the celebration of the mass, and the imperial Brazilian crown, scepter and robes belonging to Pedro II. Twenty of the diamonds with which the crown were set were missing.

SEEKS MISSING
BY THE SENSES

Hindoo Sherlock Holmes Adopts Curious Methods to Unravel a Village Mystery.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
Paris, Sept. 8.—"Professor" Devah, the Hindu seer who is said to have discovered by divination the whereabouts of the bicycle belonging to the missing Abbe Delaune, is now busily seeking the abbe himself.

The "professor's" operations have now been transferred to the abbe's parish of Chateaufort, where his procedure is sufficiently impressive. He wanders about the lanes and woods with an abstracted mien, sniffing the air until an inspiration seizes him. He then darts aside, takes up some earth and smells it, and then a stone and tastes it.

Putting these in his pockets he turns aside to examine an untenanted house, sniffs at the keyhole, bursts in a door, and carefully inspects the rooms.

Going to the backyard he rummages in a heap of decayed wood, and produces a knife with red stains—bloodstains they are supposed to be, though they might have been mere rust marks.

In this fashion his search is progressing, and the Journal, which engaged him for the peregrination, publishes a full record daily of his momentous movements.

QUAINT GIFT TO QUEEN

Magnificent Silver Telephone Receiver
For King Alfonso's Consort.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
Madrid, Sept. 8.—Queen Victoria is to be presented with a magnificent silver telephone receiver. It is the wedding gift of the functionaries of the telephone company.

The telephone consists of three pieces. The base is in Louis XV. style, and surmounted by the columns of Hercules, at the foot of which is sitting a small boy holding the Spanish arms. He is in telephonic communication with an English girl, beside whom crouches the British lion.

On the top of the columns a Renaissance arch supports two cupids, who hold the microphone. The apparatus, which is of solid silver, is crowned by the arms of Spain and England.

FATAL FEAR OF HOSPITALS.
London, Sept. 8.—An inquest was held yesterday at the Wandsworth coroner's court on Mrs. Ellen Susannah Doring, who died from natural causes on Friday. It was stated that her life might have been saved by hospital treatment, but that she declared she would rather die in the street than enter a hospital.

MOTORISTS STONED
BY ANGRY MOB

Swiss Police Enriched by the Fines to Which Visitors Are Subjected.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
Geneva, Sept. 8.—The crusade against motorists in Switzerland continues, despite the warning of the Swiss Automobile Club and many hotel proprietors that the tourist season is seriously affected thereby.

It is becoming positively dangerous to motor on certain roads. Outside the large towns motorists are frequently stoned, and large boulders are placed on the roadway with the intention of wrecking their cars.

While traveling from Lucerne to Interlaken, a party of English and American motorists were stoned by a gang of young hooligans, all the glass and lamps in the car being smashed.

H. Evans, of New York, who crossed the Brung Pass at the rate of six miles an hour—two friends in the car timed him—was fined $10 on his arrival at Sarnen for excessive speed.

One young American, who has been unjustly fined a number of times, is now dashing about the country in a 50-horsepower car at the rate of 40 miles an hour, trusting to luck and to the cloud of dust which envelops him to prevent the number of the car being taken.

"I may as well have my money's worth," he explained yesterday.

NEAR-SIGHTED STALKER

Mistakes the Horse of a Friend for Deer and Kills It.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
Cape Town, Sept. 8.—An amusing hunting incident has happened owing to the near sight of a Mr. Jones, who went out antelope hunting with a friend the other day at Gudebe.

Jones' friend saw a herd, and tethering his horse to a tree began to stalk the animals. Jones, from whom he had parted, meanwhile sighted the tethered horse, and although it carried a saddle and bridle he mistook it for a deer. In great excitement he dismounted, and creeping up to within 200 yards, fired a regular volley into the flank of the "antelope."

It dropped, and the jubilant hunter rushed up to his quarry, only to find that it was his friend's horse—dead.

A week later his friend decided to rifle off another horse which he had, and—Jones bought the winning ticket.

DECIDES HER FATE
BY GAME OF CARDS

Hearts, Her Lucky Color, Not Turning, Up, Swiss Girl Commits Suicide.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
Geneva, Sept. 8.—Mlle. Nesthe, of Soleure, a handsome Swiss girl, gambled with death yesterday, and lost. Her father, who died recently by his own hand, was regarded as a wealthy man. His only daughter was, however, left penniless owing to serious losses in speculation.

When the house and furniture were sold by public auction to meet the father's liabilities, Mlle. Nesthe went to live with some friends, and her mind seems to have become unbalanced by her troubles.

"My lucky day is Friday," she said to a girl friend; "but even my luck seems to have deserted me, and I cannot bear life any longer."

Yesterday being Friday, she asked her friend to come and see her play cards, and as her manner seemed very strange, her friend humored her. "You will see that hearts, my lucky color, will not turn up," Mlle. Nesthe explained, and, true enough, no matter how she cut and shuffled, a black suit always appeared.

At last she announced to her unsuspecting friend that the cards foretold "a long and peaceful sleep," and went up to her room without uttering another word.

The friend being used to Mlle. Nesthe's eccentric rumors, took no more notice of the affair, and went out shopping. On her return, on entering her friend's bedroom, she found Mlle. Nesthe dead, still holding in her hand a small phial which had contained prussic acid.

ALFONSO STRUCK
BY MORALES' BOMB

Young King of Spain Relates Incident of Outrage Never Before Published.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
London, Sept. 8.—King Alfonso apparently did not escape unscathed from the bomb which Morales flung at the royal procession on his wedding day.

A volunteer who has recently been in camp at Salisbury gave the following account of an incident in the visit of the King and Queen of Spain to Bulgaria.

King Alfonso, he says, stated in conversation that there was one detail in connection with the bomb explosion on his wedding day which did not find its way into the newspapers.

He was struck by one of the flying fragments of the shell, and bears a scar on his chest which he will probably carry to his grave.

The King related how he saw the bouquet thrown, but merely regarded it as a wedding favor. When he recovered from the shock it was to see sixteen dead people lying on the ground, and the queen's dress bespattered with blood.

GIFT FROM THE MIKADO.
London, Sept. 8.—A presentation from the Mikado, the first of its kind, and consisting of a lacquered wooden cup emblazoned with the Emperor's arms, was made in Hull yesterday to J. E. Seddon, second officer of the London steamer Woodford, for rescuing four Japanese fishermen off the coast of Japan in August last.

MINISTER WELCOMED

King Peter of Serbia Does Honor to Representative of Edward VII.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
Belgrade, Sept. 8.—The fact that King Peter hurries to Belgrade for the reception of the new British minister, Mr. White, causes no surprise, although Serbian monarchs have not in the past shown such honor to foreign representatives.

Patrons of all shades of politics are unanimous in greeting with satisfaction the distinguished envoy whose presence is the visible sign of King Edward's goodwill toward Serbia.

In her present straits his arrival is particularly opportune. Serbia has need of friends, and still more of disinterested and capable advisers.

LADY CURZON'S ELEPHANT

Died in Benares Same Day That She Died in London.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
Bombay, Sept. 1.—Lutchman Pershad, the famous elephant on which Lord and Lady Curzon rode in the Delhi Durbar elephant procession, died at Benares on July 18, the same day that Lady Curzon died in London.

The viceregal elephant was about 80 years old, and had been ailing for some time, his condition having been aggravated by injuries he received in a fight with another elephant.

Calcutta, Sept. 8.—It is reported from Kabul that the Amir has decided to establish telephonic communication between his various chief cities, and especially on the Russian frontier, so that he may be kept in touch with events.

GIRL SMUGGLER
BESTS OFFICERS

Has Rifle Duel With Them While Sister Brings Tobacco Across Frontier.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
Geneva, Sept. 8.—Two girls named Vachero, aged 17 and 18 years, have just accomplished a daring feat of smuggling.

They belong to a family whose ancestors have been smugglers for a century. Their hunting grounds are in the mountains, where the Swiss, Italian and Austrian frontiers nearly touch at the Stelvio Pass.

Many desperate fights with the customs officials have taken place at this spot, until the Vacheros have been almost wiped out. There now remain of the family only the father and mother and the two daughters, who are the heroines of this latest exploit.

At present the father is suffering from a rifle shot through the elbow, which he describes as an "accident." He was unable to get a large cargo of tobacco across the Swiss frontier into Italy, and his daughters determined to smuggle the contraband themselves.

They started out, but near the summit of the pass were discovered by two customs officials. While the elder girl proceeded on the journey, the younger one kept the officers at bay with a rifle from a sheltered position. The men replied, and the fusillade continued until the sister had got a good half-hour's start. The younger sister then disappeared and returned home by making a long detour in the mountains, every path of which she knows.

FLEET SEARCHES FOR CAT

Vice-Admiral Signals Ships To Look For Missing Animal.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
London, Sept. 8.—The ships' companies of the channel fleet are rejoiced to learn that the black and white cat Toby, which was supposed to have been pressed into the naval service while the fleet was at Eastbourne, has been found.

On leaving Eastbourne the vice-admiral caused the following signal to be made: "A letter having been received stating that a favorite black and white tomcat named Toby was taken out of a doorway at Eastbourne by one of the sailors, ships are to say whether this cat is on board or not."

The minds of all are now set at rest by another general signal, as follows: "The black and white kitten has been recovered, and the owner at Eastbourne apologizes for having accused a bluejacket of having stolen it."

SUSPENDED OVER CLIFF

Branches of a Tree Save Woman
From Terrible Death.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
Geneva, Sept. 8.—Miss Beaton, an English governess, employed by a wealthy French family who are staying at Merlingen, in the Bernese Alps, had a terrible experience today.

Accompanied by a young girl, she was gathering flowers, when she slipped down a grassy slope and fell over a precipice. Twenty yards down she struck a tree, and her clothing catching on the branches, she hung suspended in midair.

She remained there for some hours before she could be rescued. It was then found that she had broken an arm and a leg.

UNFAMILIAR SCENES IN LOVELY ERIN.
Just now a large number of English, Canadian and American tourists are "doing" Ireland, attracted by the greater facilities afforded by the railway companies and also by the improved hotel accommodations in the rural districts. These tourists are leaving the beaten track to the extent of taking in scenes which, while not so beautiful as superb Killarney or the magnificent Blackwater, are scarcely less picturesque and even more historical. The above illustrations give a few of these comparatively unfrequented spots.

PARSEE MERCHANT
LONDON FAVORITE

Sir Cowasjee Jehangir and His Wife Noted for Their Philanthropic Work.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
London, Sept. 8.—Among the leading members of the interesting Parsee people not one is better known in London society than Sir Cowasjee Jehangir and his accomplished wife. One of the last private functions attended by the late Mr. Gladstone was a reception at their house, and only last week they gave an at home in the Hotel Cecil in honor of the Marquis of Ripon. A few weeks previously Sir Jehangir had received all the public benefactions to which Sir Cowasjee has devoted some part of his great wealth, but mention must be made of the beautiful Jehangir Hall, at South Kensington, which was built at his entire expense and cost $65,000. Lady Jehangir took an active part in organizing the reception of the Princess of Wales by the ladies of Bombay during the late royal tour in India.

A GIRL MOUNTAINEER.
Tokio, Sept. 8.—The Kobe Herald states that little Miss Yoshikoro Masako, daughter of the editor of the Osaka Nippo, is about to attempt the ascent of the Fudo-Yama Mountain, unaccompanied. The young mountaineer's age is 8 years and 10 months.

LETTER SUFFICIENTLY ADDRESSED.
London, Sept. 8.—A letter has been delivered here the postal authorities at Clacton which bore the address: "Correspondence; two stone dogs in front." The writer had forgotten the correct name and address.

CHRISTIAN'S BEQUEST

Palace in Copenhagen To Be Preserved for His Three Daughters.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]
Copenhagen, Sept. 8.—King Christian ordered, by a special clause in his will, that his own residence in Copenhagen, the Christian IX. palace, should be carefully preserved in its present state for the future use of Queen Alexandra, the Empress Dowager of Russia and the Duchess of Cumberland. When, therefore, Queen Alexandra comes to the palace in October, her majesty will find it unaltered as regards familiar features.

A MISSION FULFILLED

"Shall I understand them?" she asked, doubtfully, taking, as she spoke, a ponderous-looking folio from the shelves.

"Most improbable, I should say," Mr. Ronaldson fairly laughed, and Margherita was emboldened to come toward him with a coaxing air.

"Ah, dear Mr. Ronaldson! you are so clever—will you not teach me?"

"You'd soon get tired of my teaching, you little siren."

"Ah, no, indeed I would not!"

"Well, sit down there and read me a page out of that book. Let's see how much you understand of it."

Margherita promptly dropped upon a footstool at the old man's feet, and began to read, putting her whole heart into her task, and bending her pretty eyebrows until they touched each other. Every now and again Mr. Ronaldson corrected her pronunciation; and at the end he asked her, abruptly:

"Well, and what do you make of it all?"

Her face was flushed with eagerness. "It is about governing different peoples," she said; "ah, it is very difficult. I cannot tell you much."

"I didn't suppose you could," he said.

Advertiser Patterns

Designed by Martha Dean.

A NEGLIGEE SHIRT.—6751.

There is nothing more uncomfortable than a shirt which does not fit in the neckband or shoulders, and which has sleeves either too short or too long. This often happens when the shirt is purchased ready made, and for that reason women often make their husband's shirts. Then, too, the material is often of the cheapest when a garment is of the style desired, or else it wears out with the first tubbing. For true satisfaction, there is nothing like the made-to-order shirt, and a pattern for such is given. It may be made with cuffs and collar, or with wrist and neckbands. The negligee shirt is a great favorite everywhere, and especially with the housewife who has to launder them. Any of the pretty madras or gingham may be chosen from. The medium size calls for 2½ yards of material.

stammered; and Keith could not for bear smiling, as he replied, laconically: "It was."

"Why didn't you introduce me?" asked the other, half indignantly; and now Keith fairly laughed. Teasdale was silent for a moment, and then he, too, joined in the laugh, a little shyly.

"Why, Ronaldson, she is lovely!" he said, as he took up his hat.

There was no reason why Keith should deny the fact; so he merely opened the door for his friend in smiling silence.

The very next afternoon, Lady Teasdale called upon the bride. Whether it were the wife's beauty or the husband's music that turned the scale, no one ever knew; but, having once made up her mind, her ladyship did the thing gracefully. She not only at once invited the young couple to a select dinner-party, but she informed everyone in the county that the Italian bride was charming, and that it was to their interest, as well as their duty, to make her acquaintance; and being a person of consequence among her neighbors, both her reason and her social position and her personal qualities, no one thought of disputing her opinion. A somewhat peculiar and enthusiastic woman, given to strong prejudices and preferences, she had, in truth, been completely fascinated by Keith's wife, and made no secret of the fact. In other words, Margherita's visiting list contained the names of everybody to be known or worth knowing within a radius of eight or ten miles.

Now that it seemed as if the bride were likely to become an admired and popular person, Keith's sisters began to regret the frankness with which they had, in the first few days of their irritation, admitted, nay, exaggerated the lowliness of her origin. Certainly it had never struck them at that time that the fisher-girl would ever be received, even made a sort of lion of, among their own set; that she would be going out to dinner parties with them—nay, even sometimes asked to give the post-supper talk, as it were, to the company. Still less had they expected that their new sister-in-law would conduct herself, during her visit, with so much ease and self-possession; that not only her sweetness of temper but her natural dignity of manner would turn aside the shafts of ridicule that they felt inclined to hurl at her low-born head. The truth of the matter was that Margherita was too simple-minded and too unconscious to be on the lookout for slights, or to expect unkindly irony. Sensitive, however, she was; and it would have been a mistake to suppose that she was unconscious of the position she held among the lady members of her husband's family, or did not sorrow over it.

SUFFERING WOMEN

Need Just the Rich Red Blood
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills
Actually Make

From girlhood to middle life the health and happiness of every woman depends upon her blood. If her blood is poor, thin, and watery she becomes weak, languid, pale, and nervous. If her blood supply is irregular she suffers from headaches and backaches, and other unspeakable distress, which only women know. At every stage of woman's life Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are her best friend, because they actually make the rich, red blood, which gives help and strength and tone to every organ of the body. They help a woman just when nature makes the greatest demand upon her blood supply. Mrs. H. Gasmon, who for twenty years has been one of the best known residents of St. Roch, Que., says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been a blessing to me. I was weak, worn out, and scarcely able to drag myself about. I suffered from headaches and dizziness, my appetite was poor, and to attempt housework left me utterly worn out. I slept badly at night, and what sleep I got did not refresh me. For nearly three years I was in this condition, and was constantly taking medicine, but found no benefit from it. One of my neighbors, who had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with much benefit, advised me to try them. I did so, and the whole story is told in the words, 'I am well again.' Thereafter, when I take the pills, for they seem to me a guarantee against the troubles from which so many women suffer."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills don't act on the bowels. They contain just the elements that actually make new blood, and strengthen the nerves. That's why they cure anemia, indigestion, neuralgia, rheumatism, lumbago, headaches, backaches, and heart palpitation and skin diseases like pimples and eczema. That is why they are the greatest help in the world for growing girls who need new blood, and for women who are troubled with irregular health. Sold by all medicine dealers, or by mail from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont., at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50.

LITTLE SWITZERLAND HAS IMMENSE ARMY

A POPULATION OF LESS THAN 3,000,000, MILITARY FORCE
NUMBERS OVER 300,000.

The Swiss army is one of the most remarkable of her political institutions. It is the ideal toward which the common people of every European country, weighed down with taxation to support huge standing armies, turn with longing and hope.

According to the Arent the Swiss system of militia saves millions of money to the taxpayers and gives years of freedom from militia service to the soldiers.

Practically all Swiss serve from the age of 20 to 50 in the militia and reserves. The raw recruits go into schools, the infantry for forty-five days, the cavalry for eighty days.

After this the cavalry serves sixteen days each year and the infantry and artillery fourteen days each, every other year. The reserves serve only five or six days every four years. The officers, of course, are carefully trained in good schools for a period of years.

This short service would be insufficient were it not preceded and supplemented by military training for boys in school and rifle practice every year by practically all Swiss citizens.

Target shooting is the national sport, and in accordance with the law a place for target practice must be supplied by every town in the country. As an encouragement prizes of all sorts are offered by the national Government.

Thus little Switzerland, with a population of less than 3,000,000 of people, has an army of 337,000 of the most martial soldiers of Europe—armed, equipped ready to take the field at a moment's notice.

A Convincing Experiment

Dr. Sabouraud, of the Pasteur Institute, Paris, France, inoculated a rabbit with human dandruff germs, and "in between five and six weeks," says the official report of the Pasteur Institute, "the rabbit was completely denuded, in fact, it had become entirely bald."

This experiment proves that dandruff is a contagious disease due to the presence of a microbe growth in the sebaceous glands of the scalp. It also proves that unless the formation of dandruff is stopped—by destroying the dandruff germ—that it will lead to falling hair and incurable baldness.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Rupture

THE MOST RELIABLE and Successful Authority—Greatest success in the treatment of Hernia (Rupture) Varicose (False Rupture) of all known agencies in the treatment of these diseases. A specialty of one department must certainly be more experienced and capable than those having many irons in the fire. Don't put off your case, believing it to be simple—Remember neglect often proves fatal. Have your case attended to now, and thus avoid the expense, pain, and money elsewhere but come to one whose life-long study has taught him what to do. Do not depend on the doctor from seeking further advice, or because of repeated failures consider your case incurable. Because others failed in your case you have become discouraged. This is the very time you should consult me as my reputation has been made in curing hopeless (so-called) cases. LADIES suffering from Navel or any form of Rupture should not hesitate in having their case attended to at once. Everything strictly private and professional.

MOTHERS—Look to your children—Now is the time to have them cured, while young. Don't allow them to grow up handicapped in the race of life, with rupture.

MY CHARGES are within reach of all, the poor man as well as the rich. Terms can be satisfactorily arranged, no reason why you should not consult me at once, during this visit.

VARICOCELE, FALSE RUPTURE

THE UNIVERSAL tendency of these conditions is to grow worse and more complicated, leading to impotency, nervous debility, wasting, stricture, lumbago, sexual exhaustion, etc. Do you intend to allow this insidious affliction to sap away your vitality? It is doing so now and if not checked will result in the above conditions. No matter how serious your case may be, time allowed, or the failure you may have experienced in trying to be cured by medicine—free trials, or electric sets—my Biotone system will cure you; the wormy veins return to their normal condition and hence the sexual organs receive proper nourishment, the parts become vitalized and manly power returns. No temporary benefit, but a PERMANENT cure. NO OPERATION necessary. No painful manipulations. If you have had the usual experience you have no doubt spent large sums of money and still larger quantities of time searching for the remedy that I offer for the cure.

EDISON TALKS OF HIS CAREER

INFLUENCE A GREAT BATTLE HAD ON HIS WHOLE LIFE.

His First Invention a Good One, But Not Welcome—His Second Brought a Check for $40,000.

"I'll tell you how I happened to get into telegraphing first," said Thomas Edison to a representative of Pearson's Magazine. "When the battle of Pittsburg Landing was fought the first report that reached Detroit announced that there were sixty thousand killed and wounded."

"I was a train newsboy then, and I told the telegraph operator at the Detroit station that if he would wire the main facts of the battle along the line, so that announcements could be put up on the station bulletin boards I would give Harper's Weekly to him for six months free of cost."

"I used to sell about 40 newspapers on the trip. This time I made up my mind that I ought to take a thousand, but when I counted my money I found I had only enough to buy four hundred. Then it occurred to me that if I could get to William F. Story, the proprietor of the Detroit Free Press, I might be able to work out of my difficulty. I climbed up the stairs to his office and said:

"Mr. Story, I have only got money enough to buy 400 papers, and I want 500 more. I thought I might get them for them. I'm a newsboy. I got my thousand papers all right."

"That was a great day for me. At the first station the crowd was so big that I thought it was an excursion crowd. But no; when the people caught sight of me they began to yell for papers. I just doubled the price on the spot and charged 10 cents instead of 5 cents a copy."

"When I got to the last station I jumped the price up to 25 cents a copy and sold all I had left. I made $75 or $100 in that one trip, and I tell you I felt mighty good."

"That called my attention to what a telegraph operator could do. I thought to myself that telegraphing was simply great, and I made up my mind to become an operator as soon as possible."

"The first serious thing I invented was a machine which could count votes in congress in a very few moments. It was a good machine, too, but when I took it to Washington they said to me:

"Young man, that's the last thing we want here. Fiddling and the delay in counting the votes is the only means we have of defeating bad legislation."

"My next practical invention was the quadruplex telegraph. I started to work it on the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Line between Rochester and New York, but it was a dump at the other end of the wire, and the demonstration ended in a fizzle. It was years before the quadruplex was adopted."

"That landed me in New York without a cent in my pocket. I went to an operator and managed to borrow a dollar. I lived on that for a week, but I had to 'park it' a little, oh, I didn't mind it and I never did care much about eating, anyhow."

"Then I hustled for something to do. I could have got a job as an operator at $20 a month, but I wanted a chance to do something better. I happened one day into the office of a 'gold ticker' company which had about 500 subscribers."

"I was standing beside the apparatus when it gave a terrific rip roar and suddenly stopped. In a few minutes hundreds of messengers had blocked up the doorway and yelled for someone to fix the tickers in their office. The man in charge of the place was simply flabbergasted, so I stepped up to him and said:

"I think I know what's the matter."

"I simply had to remove a loose contact spring which had fallen between the wheels. The result was that I was employed to take charge of the service at $300 a month. I almost fainted when I heard how much salary I was to get."

"Then I joined hands with a man named Callahan and we set up several improved types of stock tickers."

A Hard Case to Overcome.

No longer necessary to suffer from muscular rheumatism. Every case can be cured. Ferrozene is unfailing as proved by David Johnston, of Ormond, Ont. "My wife was a dreadful sufferer he writes. 'For two years she could scarcely do any work. Her knuckles ached, and joints swelled, causing torture. To get up or down stairs was impossible. She took box after box of Ferrozene and rubbed the sore places with Nerviline. Improvement started and she mended fast. Today she is quite cured and we thank Ferrozene for her recovery.' No remedy more popular with doctors than Ferrozene, it does cure, 50c per box, at all dealers."

E.W. GILLET COMPANY LIMITED

TORONTO, ONT.

These improvements were a success. "When the day of settlement for my inventions approached I began to wonder how much money I would get. I was pretty raw and knew nothing about business, but I hoped that I might get $5,000."

"I dreamed of what I could do with big money like that, of the tools and other things I could buy to work out inventions; but I knew Wall Street to be a pretty bad place, and had a general suspicion that man was apt to get beat out of his money there. So I tried to keep my hopes down; but the thought of $5,000 kept rising in my mind."

"Well, one day I was sent for by the president of the Gold and Stock Telegraph Company to talk about a settlement for my improvements. He was Gen. Marshall Lefferts, colonel of the Seventh Regiment."

"I tell you, I was trembling all over with embarrassment, and when I got in his presence my vision of $5,000 began to vanish. When he asked me how much I wanted I was afraid to speak. I feared that if I mentioned $5,000 I might get nothing."

"That was one of the most painful and exciting moments of my life. My, how I beat my brains to know what to say. Finally, I said:

"Suppose you make me an offer."

"By that time I was paralyzed. I was more than scared, I was petrified."

"How would $40,000 do?" asked Gen. Lefferts."

"It was all I could do to keep my face straight and my knees from giving way. I was afraid he would hear my heart beat. I said:

"With a great effort I said that I guessed that would be all right. He said they would have the contract ready in a few days and I could come back and sign it. In the meantime I scarcely slept. I couldn't believe it."

"When I went back the contract was ready and I signed it in a hurry. I don't know even now what was in it. A check for $40,000 was handed me and I went to the bank as fast as my feet would carry me."

"It was the first time I was ever inside of a bank. I got in line and when I came I handed in my check. Of course I had not indorsed it."

"The teller looked at it, then pushed it back to me and roared out something which I could not understand, being partly deaf. My heart sank and my legs trembled. I handed the check back to him, but again he pushed it back with the same unintelligible explosion of words."

"That settled it. I went out of the bank feeling miserable. I was the victim of another Wall Street 'skin game.' I never felt worse in my life."

"I went around to the brother of the treasurer who had drawn the check and said, 'I'm skinned, all right.'"

"When I told him my story he burst out laughing, and when he went into the treasurer's office to explain matters there was a loud roar of laughter at my expense. They sent somebody to the bank with me, and the bank officials thought it so great a joke that they gave me a check on me by paying the whole $40,000 in ten, twenty and fifty dollar bills."

"It made an enormous pile of money. I stuffed the bills in my inside pockets and outside pockets, my trousers pockets and everywhere I could put them. Then I started for my home in Newark. I wouldn't sit at a table with anybody on the train nor let anybody approach me. When I got to my room I couldn't sleep for fear of being robbed."

"So the next day I took it back to Gen. Lefferts and told him I didn't know where to keep it. He had it placed in a bank to my credit, and that was my first bank account. With that money I opened a new shop and worked out new apparatus."

"My automatic telegraph, which handled a thousand words a minute between New York and Washington; was brought out by Jay Gould and the Western Union Company. It is in litigation yet."

"Then the quadruplex was installed. I sold that to Jay Gould and the Western Union Company for $30,000. The next invention was the mimeograph, a copying machine."

"When I got out his telephone transmitters and receivers were one Professor Orton, of the Western Union Company asked me to do something to make the telephone a commercial success."

"I tackled it and got up the present transmitter. The Western Union Company eventually made millions of dollars out of it. I got a hundred thousand dollars for it."

"At last President Orton sent for me and said: 'Young man, how much do you want in full payment for all the inventions you have given the Western Union Company?'"

"I had $40,000 in my mind, but my tongue wouldn't move. I hadn't the nerve to name such a sum."

"Make me an offer," I ventured. "How would a hundred thousand dollars seem to you?" he asked."

"I must feel over. It made me dizzy, but I kept my face straight, and with as much coolness as I could muster, that the offer appeared to be a fair one. Then another thought occurred to me, and I said that I would accept a hundred thousand dollars if the company would keep it and pay me in seventeen yearly installments."

"I know that if I got it all at once it would soon go in experiment. It took me seventeen years to get that money, and it was one of the wisest things I ever did. By putting a check on my extravagance I always had funds."

Mr. Edison's deafness is directly due to his early love of science. When he was a newsboy on the train he used to carry on experiments at leisure moments."

One day a bottle of phosphorus became uncocked and set the car on fire. The indignant conductor boxed the ears of the youthful scientist and threw the boy and his paraphernalia off the train. It was this box on the ears which caused the deafness which has troubled him ever since."

IS THE SAXON DYING OUT?

WILL BE IN A MINORITY ON THIS CONTINENT.

So Thinks the Montreal Witness—Aversion To Matrimony a Cause.

A great deal is being said—and the more the better, perhaps—about the decadence in numbers of the Anglo-Saxon race. Following on the lines of the nineteenth century, the time cannot be distant when the Anglo-Saxon will be in the minority on this continent, and the French race has only to go on as it has been doing to possess the continent. We see the process going on about ourselves, the French continuously increasing, the English, but for immigration, decreasing. The French are not the only people that are gaining on the Anglo-Saxon. There is now a Jew for every five Protestants in Montreal, and the proportion increases steadily year by year. But the increase of the French is absolutely without the aid of immigration. So far, this process goes on the French will refuse to assimilate with the English. They say we have only to wait and the country will be ours. Apart from race ambition, their moralists naturally point to the disproportionate increase as an undeniable evidence of superiority of morals, and therefore a good reason for keeping out of the paths of the wicked. It is not likely that the French will move on to continental domination. They will, in turn, yield to the same influences of the multiplication of classes, and be overflown by and engulfed in still other race waves. But the matter of present interest is the numerical decadence of the Anglo-Saxon. It is certainly important to know how far this is a moral question. It is important to our moralists, and our preachers of righteousness to know how far this immorality is a factor in the case. There have of late been lurid revelations to show that criminality is not uncommon, and that a fearfully low standard of morals prevails with regard to what our ancestors accounted murder. It will be a long time against our country and against our race if these revelations are not followed up with denunciation without respect of persons until the heinousness of the crime is burned into the public conscience."

But quite apart from crime there is a moral side to the question. The French people, to judge from the record in France, are not a multiplying race. Yet here in Canada they have no equals. The difference is not in their nature, but in their ideals. When they first came to this continent they were a people of the duty of multiplication, and they were diligently both by church and state, and every inducement offered to large families. When times changed and, under free institutions, domination became a question of numbers, this race was diligently cultivated and urged as a primary duty of citizenship, while among the newcomers, and among the primal command, to be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth and subdue it was not so much as thought of as a moral duty. Quite apart from anything that carries with it any sense of right and wrong a very considerable proportion of the Anglo-Saxon people never get married, and it has to be confessed that of those who do many women only do so at the cost of physical misery. A large proportion indeed consider it their duty not to marry. With the men it is largely a concession to the stress of affairs. The contingencies of business are such as to suggest postponement, and prudence and precaution increase with years. The result is that, altogether apart from any wrongdoing, the race has ceased to multiply. Taking counsel from the facts, however, as seen in the case of our French neighbors, it might be found that different ideas a reversed result might follow. With them it is assumed in all family intercourse that each will marry as soon as old enough, while with the English the purpose of a great deal of family teaching is to fortify the young people against rashness, or in the case of many girls, to advise them against marriage altogether. There is probably a great mistake in a great deal of this prudential and even practical attitude towards the normal condition of man. It has been found that men as a rule are the power for having to fight the battle of life under family conditions. There would probably be a great deal less of waste upon fruitless frivolity and a much greater enjoyment of simple pleasures. Life is far more to the young man who has a family to provide for than to him who swaggers from his bachelor house with many fresh neckties, looking on his daily task as a bore and on his amusements as what he lives for, as a large proportion of our Anglo-Saxon young men do.—Montreal Witness.

In the matter of women's clubs London is undoubtedly leading the world. There was not a single institution of the kind there twenty-one years ago. There is now a total membership in women's clubs of over 20,000.

TIME HAS TESTED IT. Time tests all things, that which is worthy lives; that which is inimical to man's welfare perishes. Time has proved Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. From a few thousand bottles in the early days of its manufacture the demand has risen so that now the production is running into the hundreds of thousands of bottles. What is so eagerly sought for must be good.

RAREST DINNER EVER PREPARED

LONDON EPICURES' CLUB RECENTLY ENJOYED IT.

Dainties Secured From Many Countries—Spread Cost Hundreds of Dollars Per Plate.

The London Epicures' Club called upon the world to supply it a feast such as never before man ate—and the world responded with its choicest delicacies. And then, to add another surprise to the banquet, the menu card, embossed in beautiful sugar crystals upon a field of sugar, was served as the dessert, and each guest concluded the odd feast by eating his own menu card. Yet despite that fact the man who prepared the dinner left a duplicate copy and the world learned from it of the annual demand that the world supply it with its choicest, but also demanded that these choicest be unusual to a degree and that only the best be sent."

The dinner was arranged by W. Willoughby, it being his turn to supply the club with a monthly feast. As there are but twenty members and as each serves the feast once in twelve months, Mr. Willoughby knew long in advance that it would be his duty and his pleasure to preside over the dinner in July. It is said he began his preparations during the winter."

WILLOUGHBY'S AIM.

The Epicure's Club has been in existence for many years, and, as each member has striven to find the best and newest dishes, the field was considered rather narrow and limited until Mr. Willoughby gave his dinner. Willoughby, by the way, created something of a sensation in the club about five years ago, when he served at his dinner the great dish known in the United States as corned beef and cabbage. He believed to have been the discoverer of the dish, as far as the club goes, and his importation became immensely popular. He took an American cook to London to prepare the corned beef and cabbage."

This time, however, he determined to give the epicureans a dinner worthy their own tastes, and, as he knew, in all parts of the world, he knew where to get things and what to get. It is true that some of the things he decided to put on his menu had been eaten in the club before, but he wanted to make it the greatest collection of epicurean rarities and dainties ever served."

SEARCHED WORLD OVER FOR DAINITIES.

He knew that the green turtles of the Indian Ocean make better soup than any other spot on earth, and also he knew the man, who, as he believes, makes the best green turtle soup in the world. He arranged with this chef to secure the turtle, to feed and care for it in his tanks until time for the feast. He sent to Spain for his porpoise and employed the best fish cook of France, who was destroyed, in all London, to prepare the porpoise steak."

Then he ordered sharks' fins from China and employed a Chinese cook to prepare the fins. He secured bear steaks from the United States and his South of France, Holland, and arrangements for a shipment of Australian sea slugs, considered one of the daintiest of dishes by those who like them, and, in the same order, he made arrangements to get one dozen tails of young kangaroos."

Then, seeking to complete his strange dinner, he decided upon simple desserts and called for Avocado pears from South Africa and arranged to serve them both preserved and in their native condition."

MENU CARD WAS EATEN.

Then, to cap the climax, he consulted with a confectioner, who agreed to serve the oddest possible dessert and asked time to prepare it. In the end the confectioner decided upon his best and daintiest sugar cream confection, flavored with chocolate, and, as an added touch, he agreed to make it in thin flat fields and to letter the menu upon the brownish field in white sugar."

The arrangements, of course, were secret from the other members and, when, late in July, they gathered for their monthly feast they found the desserts at each place—in the form of a menu card—except that, lettered across the bottom of the odd card, were the words:

"Menu to be eaten."

Fearing that the dinner might fail because of inexperienced preparation of some dish Mr. Willoughby arranged to have each dish prepared by an expert, and most of them were imported from their native countries to be prepared and direct the service of their own dish."

From South Africa, from South America, from India, from Australia the cooks were brought—and for days before the feast they superintended its preparation."

The dinner proved the most successful ever given by the club. It required the services of five cooks, besides the club's own chef, to prepare it, and it was served by girls who changed to the costumes of the country from which the dish came between each course."

As to the cost of the unique feast, Mr. Willoughby is silent, although it must have been hundreds of dollars to short plate."

SHORT SENTENCES IN FAVOR.

"The English sentence grows shorter and shorter," said an essayist. "Spenser, Sir Thomas More, Lyly and Sydney used sentences of the average length of 55 words. Nowadays the sentences of the average journalist are only 15 words long. Bacon introduced the short sentence. At a time when everybody else was using 50 words he took to 22. Praise be to Bacon! Macaulay used a very short sentence. Its average length was 23 words. Dickens' average was 23. Thackeray's was 31. Matthew Arnold's sentences are long, but beautifully balanced. They are thirty-sevens. Henry James' are longer, and, though intricate, graceful and well thought out, for in each of them a wonderful meaning is concealed. They are thirty-niners. Kipling's sentences are twenty-oners.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

THE FOOD OF THE FUTURE

IT WILL BE MANUFACTURED THROUGH SYNTHETIC CHEMISTRY.

Coal and Wood Will Be Replaced—World Will Be Revolutionized.

[From the Arena.]

Professor Berthelot, of Paris, at a dinner given by the Society of Chemical and Mechanical Industries, Paris, some years ago spoke of the scientific food of the future. According to experiment and investigation, he stated, at the present rate of progress, in the first half of the next century, coal, oil, and wood will be displaced as fuel by new and more powerful sources of mechanical energy. He further asserted that a large portion of our food products would be directly manufactured through the advance of synthetic chemistry, from the constituent elements, carbon, oxygen, hydrogen and nitrogen."

Our milk, eggs and flour will eventually be made in factories. Already eggs have been manufactured by artificial means."

Alizarin is a compound manufactured by chemists by means of which a great agricultural industry was destroyed. Alizarin is the principle of the madder root, from which were extracted the juices necessary for dyeing cloth and different materials. The madder root was grown to an enormous extent in Persia, India and the Levant. From there it spread to Spain, Holland, and the Rhine Provinces. It was used very largely in continental Europe, and 30 years ago its annual importation into England was to the amount of $2,500,000. By the new and synthetic process of manufacture alizarin has displaced and supplanted the natural product so that the madder fields in Europe have ceased to exist."

Again, pure indigo, as a product, has been manufactured direct from its elements, and the natural product will soon give up the ghost."

The natural caffeine are obtained from different sources, yet as tea and coffee they are chemically identical in construction. Theobromine is the essential principle of cocoa, and cocoa has already been reproduced in the laboratory. The pure nicotine of the tobacco has been obtained by Professor Berthelot through the treatment of salomine, a natural glucoside, with hydrogen. Tobacco is but so much vegetable fibre in which nicotine is largely stored. So, if all signs fall not, the tea plants, the coffee shrubs, the tobacco plants and the cocoa trees will soon follow the madder root into limbo."

THEY ADVERTISE THEMSELVES.—Immediately they were offered to the public, Parmentier's Vegetable Pills became popular because of the good report they made for themselves. That reputation has grown, and they now rank among the first medicines for use in attacks of dyspepsia and biliousness, complaints of the liver and kidneys, rheumatism, fever and ague, and the innumerable complications to which these ailments give rise.

Hyomei Cures Catarrh

Its Healing Balsams Kill All Catarrhal Germs.

There is no more common disease than catarrh, and none that is more dangerous. It weakens and debilitates the whole system, if it is allowed to run, leads to serious, and sometimes fatal complications. No dangerous drugs are taken into the stomach when Hyomei is used. Breathed through the small pocket inhaler that comes with every Hyomei outfit, its healing balsams penetrate to the most remote cells of the throat, nose and lungs, killing the germs of catarrh, healing the irritated mucous membrane, and making complete and lasting cures.

The complete Hyomei outfit, consisting of an inhaler that can be carried in the purse or vest pocket, a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hyomei, costs only $1. The inhaler will last a lifetime, while extra bottles of Hyomei can be procured whenever needed, for only 50 cents.

If you cannot obtain Hyomei of your dealer, it will be forwarded by mail, postage paid, on receipt of price. Write today for consultation blank that will entitle you to services of our medical department without charge. The R. T. Booth Company, Hyomei Building, Ithaca, N. Y.

EARTH EATERS INFEST INDIA

TERRIBLE EFFECTS OF A WIDE-SPREAD HABIT.

Efforts are being made to stamp out the habit of earth-eating, which is prevalent among natives over almost all India, writes the Calcutta correspondent of the Express. In Northern India the favorite form of earth is a gray or drab-colored shale. This is excavated mostly at Math, in Blakanir, and is exported to the Punjab at the rate of 2,000 camel loads a year. In different districts different varieties of clay are eaten, but if the natives have at one time a taste for a special kind of mud, as the habit increases the depraved appetite soon becomes satisfied with bricks and broken pots. White ant soil, with the nests and ants themselves, is a great delicacy. The reasons given for indulging in the habit are classified under the following heads: (1) A peculiar fascinating odor and taste in the clay, rendering it a delicacy; (2) an unnatural craving for the earth; (3) to satisfy hunger (4) force of example; (5) supposed medicinal virtues."

A university graduate confessed to a friend that the bland earthy odor was a great temptation to him, and the thought of it made him moan with desire. He always enjoyed the odor, he said, when April showers fell upon previously parched earth. The effects of the habit are disastrous. Those women addicted for it soon complain first of pain and weakness in the limbs, palpitation and difficulty of walking a little distance uphill. After some time all the other symptoms of anaemia, pale complexion, tongue and gums bloodless, and general debility. Often dropsy completely suppresses the appetite, and by making the offenders stand out in the mud in each hand, exposed to the ridicule of the rest of the coolies.—London Express.

Famous Passages From the Best Prose and Oratory

On the Sublime in Writing.

It is, generally speaking, among the most ancient authors that we are to look for the most striking instances of the sublime. The early ages of the world, and the rude unimproved state of society, are peculiarly favorable to the strong emotion of sublimity. The genius of men is then much turned to admiration and astonishment. Meeting with many objects, to them new and strange, their imagination is kept glowing, and their passions are often raised to the utmost. They think and express themselves boldly, and without restraint. In the progress of society, the genius and manners of men undergo a change more favorable to accuracy, than to strength of sublimity.

Of all writings, ancient or modern, the Sacred Scriptures afford us the highest instances of the sublime. The descriptions of the Deity, in them, are wonderfully noble, both from the grandeur of the object, and the manner of representing it. What an assemblage is presented to us, in that passage of the VIIIth Psalm, where an appearance of the Almighty is described? "In my distress I called upon the Lord; he heard my voice out of his temple, and my cry came before him. Then the earthquake and the hills were moved, because he was wroth. He bowed the heavens and came down, and darkness was under his feet; and he did ride upon a cherub, and did fly: yea, he did fly upon the wings of the wind. He made darkness his secret place; his pavilion round about him were dark waters, and thick clouds of the sky." We see with what propriety and success the circumstances of darkness and terror are applied for heightening the sublime. So, also, the prophet Habakkuk, in a similar passage: "And measured the earth; he beheld, and drove asunder the nations. The everlasting mountains were scattered; the perpetual hills did bow. His ways are everlasting. The mountains saw thee, and they trembled; the overflowing of the water passed by; the deep uttered his voice, and lifted up his hands on high."

The noted instance given by Longinus from Moses—"God said, let there be light; and there was light"—is not liable to be the cause, which was passed on some of his instances, of being foreign to the subject. It belongs to the true sublime, and the sublimity of it arises from the strong conception it gives of an exertion of power, producing light.

the plain and venerable manner of the ancient times. He deals in no superfluous or gaudy ornaments; but throws forth his images with a rapid concision, which enables them to strike the mind with the greatest force. Among poets of more polished times, we are to look for the graces of correct writing; for just proportion of parts, and skillfully-connected narration. In the midst of smiling scenery and pleasant abodes, the gay and beautiful will appear, undoubtedly, and more advantage; but amidst the rude scenes of nature of society, such as Ovidian describes—amidst rocks, and torrents, and whirlwinds, and battles—dwells the sublime; and naturally associates itself with the grave and solemn spirit which distinguishes the author. From the autumnal dark storms pour from two echoing hills, so towards each other approached the heroes. As two dark streams from high rocks meet, and mix, and roar on the plain; loud, rough, and dark—in battle, met Lochlin and Innis-fail. Chief mixed his sturdy with chief, and man with man. Steel clanging sounded on steel. Helmets are cleft on high; blood bursts, and smokes around. As the troubled noise of the ocean, when roll the waves on high; as the last peal of the thunder of heaven; such is the noise of battle. As roll a thousand waves to the rock, so Svaran's host came on; as meets a rock a thousand waves, so Innis-fail met Svaran. Death raises all his voices around. And lo! with the sound of shields. The field echoes from wing to wing, as a hundred hammers that fall by turns on the red son of the furnace. As a hundred winds on Morven, as the streams of a hundred hills, as clouds fly successive over the heavens, or as the dark ocean assaults the shore of the desert—so roaring, so vast, so terrible, the armies mixed on Lena's echoing heath. The groan of the people spread over the hills. It was like the thunder of night, when the cloud burst on Cona, and a thousand ghosts shriek at once on the hollow wind. Never were images of more awful sublimity, to heighten the terror of battle—Blair.

PLANTS THAT FEED ON FLESH OVER 500 VARIETIES OF THEM

Are Known to Rob and Kill—Eat Beef as Well as Insects, and Can Suffer Pain—Their Methods and Contrivances Used in the Capture of Victims.

Imagine leaves that walk and fly! The leaves that perform these remarkable feats are the leaves that look like leaves but in reality are voracious and ingeniously timed little animals that are mastering as leaves in order to conceal themselves from enemies that go about seeking to devour them.

But the true leaves are just as remarkable in their movements as these clever beasts. The more they are studied and the better their silent life lives are understood, the more marvelous they appear. R. H. France is one of the most appreciative of the new flower lovers who look into the lives of the flowers rather than at the number of their roots and leaves; and he says that the plants perform just exactly as much movement as their life demands.

It is known why their lives are ordinarily still and restful. Their simple life demands no exertion. But if they cannot help themselves otherwise, they do not hesitate before a continuance, tireless, even violent activity; if necessary, they spring with the lightning speed of the animal.

PLANTS THAT ROB AND KILL.

There are certain insect devouring plants that justify all these incredible assertions. With the animal method of gaining a livelihood come also the animal desires and activities. One of these robbing and murdering plants is the flax dodder. Its fine pale, silky threads reach out like a spider's tentacles, embracing leaf after leaf, and like the Empusa of antiquity, kill those whom it kisses. Its tender shoots creep, tasting and testing, like a little yellow worm about its whole surroundings until it comes to another stalk to which it can cling. In damp woods we often find in early spring a house effectively fills the place of our still stranger pale, odd colored, spongy-like object. Every forester knows and hates it as a murderer of trees. It is the toothwort, which lives from the sap in the roots of the poplar and some shrubs. This spongy-like object also smells out its prey. It is the most malicious murderer that human phantasmagoria ever conceived. All of the terrible tales of strange horrors concealed in subterranean caves are here actually realized in miniature.

Under the leafy covering of the great forest floor things are happening that few will believe until they have seen them with their own eyes. To be sure, they are so small that a microscope is needed to examine into their actual workings. However, they are no less interesting on this account. Should one take hold of the faded looking stem or scape of such a toothwort and pull it out of the ground he would discover first, that it has an extremely long underground scape, closely set with fleshy discolored leaflets. What are these scales? Looked at in the light, they are seen to be the most intricate sort of murderous traps that could be conceived. In the miniature world of the Cretan labyrinth we constitute an actual Cretan labyrinth with a veritable Minotaur in the center. Each one of the scalelike leaves contains numerous tiny holes that wind around and have a minute opening to the outer world.

FEED UPON MINUTE INSECTS.

These form the grandest sort of hiding-places for little animals of the humus earth. Whoever has closely examined the ground in the thickly populated it is, little black spring traps hop back and forth, plant lice and minute spiders creep cautiously around and tiny beetles and mites stream in and out of the countless cracks and rifts that lead into the earth. Anyone who looks at a bit of damp leaf mold under a microscope cannot fail to be astonished to see how thickly it is populated with the thousands of radiolaria, water bears, hair worms, rhipizopods, infusoria and amoebae. Nature is doing the greatest and smallest. And the whole crawling host whose single life work is the transformation of the decaying matter into utilizable life elements while they devour it, this many-colored protection seeking host, make use of such a convenient home as is offered by these little caves in the scales of the toothwort. They hasten inside, never to return.

TELEGRAPH PLANT A MARVEL.

On the banks of the Ganges, made sacred in song and story, there grows a marvelous bush, the telegraph plant, of which the Indian poem of Mahabharata and Bhagavad-Gita and the tale of the thousand and one nights tell us that it is forever condemned to move its leaves round and round in a circle without rest or respite until it dies. Botany shows that these poetical marvels are an actual marvel. Plant physiologists testify with many shakings of the head that this Oriental tale, like many another one, is true.

The leaves of the little bush are arranged in a trinity, like those of the clover, with a large one in the middle and a smaller one on each side. The latter turn in a restless circle, noticeable even to a fleeting glance. They swing up and down about once every minute and a half. The life of the plant is a marvel. Even at a 21 degree centigrade they are dead and motionless. Why is this activity? The leaves are only a warm period of a day. Why do only the side leaves swing? No one can tell. Meanwhile the bush is in a constant motion, swinging restlessly back and forth day and night. It is a marvel. It is a marvel. It is a marvel.

PLANTS CAN SUFFER PAIN.

Only the facts themselves are positively known, and these furnish the strongest proof of a sort of inner life in plants that opens to us hitherto unimagined horizons. These are the facts, as in our own, of which we are yet know little. Only here and there does the veil lift. The interior of the plant cells always contains a mystical, tranquil stream. Recently 12,000, has been discovered that this stream appears only when the body is injured, and also that when a leaf or blossom is torn a movement as of pain goes in a wide circle through the whole plant body. Their contents move from one wall to the other, and has also been discovered that the little green disks to which the plant owes its color are attracted by the sunlight as magnets. When the light strikes them they creep to the illuminated side of their cells. Then darkness comes they creep back. But all these things are still little understood.

It is a marvel rather than know that there is an inner life of the plants with capacities, powers and processes that reach down deep into the regions where our sense, our intelligence and our imagination have their boundaries. Who knows what new knowledge is here? Out of this endless abundance of experience there necessarily press new convictions that must necessarily have some such means of communication between them and the outer world as with us are called senses and sense organs.

MANY PLANTS ARE FLESH EATERS.

It was Count Solms-Laubach who discovered that certain parasitic plants can recognize the slightest trace of the odor of their victim, and overrunning all obstacles, crawl directly to it, something almost incredible had it not been proved over and over again. In the damp-raising districts there is found every year a strange flesh-colored substance known and feared by the farmer as the blight. This growth, which the botanist calls Orobancha, lives from the sap in the hemp roots, and with unfailing certainty it turns every one of its subterranean sprouts in the direction of these roots.

There are more than 500 varieties of carnivorous plants, and this name is more nearly correct than that of insect eating. They are commonly divided into three classes: the insectivorous, the blood-sucking, and the blood-eating. The methods and contrivances utilized in the capture of victims are inexhaustible. Sometimes there are tentacles as with the sundew; sometimes the leaves wrap around their prey, as with the bladderwort; or sticky hairs are sent up, as in the fly-catching Drosera, or as with the Portulaca family, from which a sticky substance is secreted that fills the place of our disgusting flytraps.

In addition, there is a whole mass of beautiful mountain rock plants similarly occupied, such as Depfordia pink and the Peperwort. Many of the most beautiful of the primroses and the mountain saxifrage will, in case of necessity, utilize their sticky appendages to capture insects. From which to prepare a banquet. In the tropics they grow to a most horrible cannibalism, with great pitchers set with inward pointing horns, as in the Nepenthes and Sarracenia families, which the plant lover can often see in the hot-houses of botanical gardens. The bottoms of these vessels are often thickly covered with rotting animal bodies, so many in deed that the stench of putrefaction proclaimed from afar the proximity of these murderous plants.

SLOWLY SEIZE THEIR PREY.

Although our sundew and bladderwort are able to move but slowly when seizing their prey, there is no lack of rapid action when necessary.

There floats in shallow ditches and ponds an unnoticed, insignificant-looking plant in which one of the greatest wonders of nature is revealed. After the old Ulysses Aldrovand, who 300 years ago spent many years in a restless circle, and who, nevertheless, has wondrously opened the beauties of God's world, this plant is called the Utricularia. It is not firmly rooted, but swims freely about, sailing as the wind may blow, through the water. From which to prepare a banquet. In the tropics they grow to a most horrible cannibalism, with great pitchers set with inward pointing horns, as in the Nepenthes and Sarracenia families, which the plant lover can often see in the hot-houses of botanical gardens. MORMON TEMPLE IS NOW 72 YEARS OLD

FIRST STRUCTURE OF KIND EVER BUILT AT KIRTLAND, OHIO.

The first shrine of Mormonism is still standing at Kirtland, Ohio. If the occupants of the little cemetery near it could rise, says the Ohio Magazine, they would tell how many a fevered zealot gave his lands, his home and his all to provide funds for the building of the temple. It was in 1830 that Smith appeared in Kirtland, and with his coming there was a social revolution the like of which Ohio has never witnessed. Husbands left their wives and children, mothers deserted their homes, and babes were placed in the poorhouse. The end came when Joseph Smith was compelled to flee the State of Ohio. The temple was all that was left behind.

"A Store House of the Lord," as Smith called it, was begun in 1831, and by 1834 was completed. Its foundation was laid on seven small ridges, or hills, in imitation of the Rome of old. The dimensions were about 50 by 125 feet. The stone walls were two feet in thickness.

The temple stands today about as it was when built. On the first floor is the main audience room, filled with walnut benches surrounded by a high railing. The doors to the pews are locked or catches, which when closed whoever is speaking is reasonably sure of holding his audience. At each end of the room a series of elevated thrones, one rising above the other, marks the position of the dignitaries of the church. Rows of lockers in the ceiling show how the curtains which were once used were arranged to divide the floor into four apartments.

The floor above is bare and desolate-looking. About sixty chairs placed here indicate that it is used as a sort of lecture room, but in the days of Smith's reign it was the place of the most important religious services. The floor above the main audience room, together with a system of pulleys, enabled the operator to raise or lower the curtains of both first and second floors at the same time. In the third story several partitioned running north and south make a number of separate chambers.

The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, the body which worships in this temple now, tries to follow literally the Book of Mormon, which, it is known, prohibits polygamy. The doctrine of plural wives was one of Smith's "revelations."

A LADY WRITES: "I was enabled to remove the corns, root and branch, by the use of Holloway's Corn Cure." Others who have tried it have the same experience.

For the Home Dressmaker

Voiles for Street Wear

VOILES in every color are to be used for the street this winter. While very fine in weave, they have slightly more body than formerly. Most exquisite is a red with a coppery tint not too loud for a dressy tailor gown. Another perfect shade is a green shadow check toned like a rich emerald shining through a transparent reseda veil.

Panama cloth more than holds its own for the winter; indeed, it is pushing to the foremost place in popularity. The chief beauty of the new panama is that most of it is self-plaided or over-plaided, giving a tiny touch of color that is rich but not conspicuous.

One of the leading favorites for house gowns is to be marquisette. Of all silk-and-wool fabrics this has most of the "dressy" quality of a gauze or net. The color range is specially good, with soft pastel tones in the lead.

New Jackets That Contrast With Skirts

SOME attractive models of the plainer types of suits show jackets which are made of contrasting material to the skirt, the only thing that connects the two being collars and cuffs of the skirt material added to the coat.

With one particularly stunning walking suit, even that connection was missing, yet jacket and skirt very evidently belonged together.

The skirt was of striped material, so deftly made that it seemed like a plain cloth until you got close to it. And the way it was cut brought the stripes together directly in front into sharp diagonal lines. The jacket was of plain cloth, exactly the same color as the striped stuff, and the velvet collar repeated the color note—only more insistently—of the stripe itself.

For such coats the regulation coat sleeve is used almost entirely, usually with some sort of a trim little cuff.

In length, most of them are about hip length, and they are fitted closely—either double or single breasted—or are semi-fitting. The loose coat, for such purposes, is very seldom seen, except upon the very young girl.

A great many cassimere effects are seen in the new cloths—rich dark Scotch colorings and irregular weaves. Some of these have self-toned raised figures; others are in dull rich colors.

As for plaids—though we are told it is to be a strong plaid season—it is well to have it fad home, that this does not mean a garish and impossible mixture of reds, blues, yellows and greens put on in enormous squares. Such plaids may look well on the doughty "Highlander" or the small American girlie under a dozen years, but have never been appropriate for a grown woman for street wear even when in fashion. This year, fortunately, in our desire to avoid extremes even the plaids are subdued—generally invisible, but with a lovely undertone and unexpected bright dashes to give them character.

Darker shades are promised than were worn last year.

BLACK FOR EVERY POSSIBLE OCCASION

THOUGH we women no longer dress to look like members of an institution, to the utter destruction of individuality, and much more laxity is permissible as to material, cut and color than a few years since, there is every season one predominant color. This year it bids fair to be black for every possible occasion.

For black is to be in prime favor for both day and evening. It is prominent in every material, serge, panama, colienne, voile, crepe de chine, roxana, tamise, gypsy, crispine, marquisette, radium net and gauze—and the poor blonde or high-colored brunette may rejoice in the happy consciousness that she will look her best this coming season.

A feature of the new black is that much of it is embroidered in heavy serges as well as fine henriettes, and silk-and-wool colliennes show silk-embroidered figures, rings and dots scattered over the surface at somewhat wide intervals. Charming voiles are seen with openwork silk figures that give a very novel touch.

The old-time black grenadine is in again strongly for this winter, both in the plain barred mesh and in fancy weaves. The chiffon grenadine in shadow effects is particularly lovely.

Black crepe de chine and chiffon voile will make stylish house and theatre gowns, especially if it has the new shadow checks and stripes.

For the woman who thinks the light materials now worn in winter a downright tempting of Providence there is always broadcloth. The newest have the shadow checks, which are specially effective with the high lustre of the cloth. The chiffon broadcloth, so popular recently, is not found to be as satisfactory as the ordinary weaves.

This shadow effect is noticed in every material; indeed, it may be said to mark the season's black. It is seen in the heavier serges, panamas and broadcloths, as well as in the lighter grenadines and voiles.

A very good-looking material, better, however, for the house than distinctively street wear, is a silk-and-wool combination that closely resembles a bengaline.

The Prettiest Morning Dresses for College Girls

THE prettiest morning dresses are being evolved now for the girl who is going to college and her sister who has entered upon the business life—dresses made of plain stuffs or of the indistinct plaids and stripes which are as good this year.

Unlike the dresses and the shirt-waist suits of a year ago, most of them are trimmed quite a little, although always in conservative ways, and usually with the coloring kept to quite sombre tones, or to black—the use of black, for trimming, as for suits and dresses, being steadily on the increase.

As much stitching and as many tucks are used as ever, and braids and buttons promise to be as popular as they were last year. To both may be added little ruffles of silk; or sleeves are cut to elbow and three-quarter length, and long, apparently separate, cuffs are set in.

Most of the skirts shown so far follow circular models.

The waist of an occasional dress ends in one of the pretty pointed waists which are so becoming to almost every figure; but most of them are worn under the skirt and finished with a belt and the traditional buckle. Never, surely, since buckles began have they been worn to such an extreme. And to have many changes in buckles has come to be a positive fad.

Brown is being treated in a dozen fascinating ways: interesting plaids made by plenty of threads of dark rich seal brown and of black woven into them; soft leaf shades with a curious shifting of threads that results in shadow stripes or checks—the only way, incidentally, that checks have remained in fashion; and deep rich browns embroidered in tiny set figures with silk of their own color.

Blue is even more popular than brown, although less noticeably so, because of the peculiar staple position it enjoys; and plaids—odd editions of Scotch plaids, rendered even more sober than the soberest of them usually are—are in daily requisition.

MILLINERY FOR MOURNING—SOME FRENCH IDEAS

FRENCH mourning, while more pronounced, more crape-loaded than ours, has an air that quite relieves its sombreness. In nothing is this more evident than in its millinery. Always striking and stylish, the advance imported models for the coming fall and winter are not only lovelier than ever, but better adapted to American ideas than sometimes happens.

As a rule, the hats are small, close-fitting toques, resting well down on the hair and without the startling tips and tilts to which we have grown accustomed. Mushroom-shaped many of them are—but the modified sailor is also seen.

The large picture hat for mourning is reserved for the rather young girl.

Fancy, dull jetted silk braids are much in evidence. Frequently the whole hat is made of it. Sometimes it is used in combination with silk or even with crape folds. Whole braid crowns or brims are seen, or a deep facing of the braid on a plain silk foundation.

An extremely stylish little black silk turban, to be worn over the face, had a soft crown of jetted braid and a shapely rolling brim of silk, higher on one side, faced half way down with the braid. The sole trimming was folds of soft crape brought round the crown and tied in a loose loop at the back, the folds being held in flat plaits like a closed fan and falling, one about ten inches, the other eight, down the back.

Another turban had a silk Tam-shaped crown, higher at the back, the front held flat by a straight band about an inch wide of stitched silk with bias ends. This ran directly across the top of the crown, held down by two dull jet buckles like two large round buttons. The brim, made of the braid, was fairly broad in front, rolling gradually on each side until it reached about six inches in the back. It was sharply divided in the middle of the back, each side folding outward in a triple cascade. Between the opening of the braid fell numerous loops of heavy, gros-grain ribbon and two long ends reaching to the shoulders.

A larger hat, flat, round and low-crowned, is reminiscent of a sun hat of the early sixties. It is trimmed with folds of crape at the back, held flat toward the front with two round jet buttons.

A large Alsatian bow, edged with half-inch folds of crape, was the only trimming of a silk turban whose rolling brim was faced with narrow bands of crape.

Somewhat fancier is a mushroom, shape hat, its high brim made of silk braid folded to simulate flower petals, with centres of dull jet. A flat, looped bow of silk ran back on each side.

Another dressy little hat had a crown covered with plain black silk, and a rim made of many jabots of soutache braid. The trimming was a large choux of ribbon at one side and a wide wing held by a long jet buckle.

For the older woman who is "dressy" in her tastes, a tiny peaked bonnet made of black chain links of silk through which narrow ribbon is run should prove very popular.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN!

A Bad Bump on Her Forehead.

Radical Treatment for Choking

CERTAIN rules for emergencies should be learned by heart by every woman living, for never in the world can she gauge when she will be called upon to act as doctor and hospital nurse, and respond to the wildest kind of a "hurry-up call."

And especially should nurses and mothers train themselves in such knowledge, for accidents will happen even more frequently among children than among their elders.

A set of simple, compact rules, mounted upon a card and hung up in the nursery, will be found a boon to the woman whose memory is so treacherous that she tries the treatment for burns upon some one in a fainting fit.

A small cupboard, or, at least, a shelf, should be set aside, where everything in the surgical line should be kept—well out of the reach of children and ignorant persons.

Drastic treatment for choking is to liberally turn the child inside down, holding it firmly by the heels; and choking is what many a mother has grown to fear most of all the many nursery accidents. For buttons and marbles, and even those tinest of all china dolls, are often put in their mouths by little children, with grave consequences, unless the treatment is instant and efficacious.

When pins are swallowed, give the child all the mashed white potatoes he will eat and no water, for a day, and the danger will be reduced to a minimum.

Hot water is a good cure for a bumped forehead, and with hazel or arnica patting on takes the sting out of bruises by the time the child has stopped crying.

For a pinched finger (and who of us doesn't remember the time when we caught fingers in a door?) the best thing to do is one that seems cruel, and that is to pound the child's finger lightly with the closed fist. Much as that hurts for a moment, it starts up the circulation more quickly than can be done in any other way.

For burns, the great point to remember is that air must be excluded; so cover the burned surface with oil or flour, with baking soda or vasoline, and don't put a rag unless it is so saturated with oil that it can't get dry and stick to the skin. Quite simple burns have been turned into ugly sores by bandages that stuck and which tore skin and even bits of the burned flesh away when they were being removed.

Nosobles is best used for the time-honored way of applying cold compresses or a bit of ice done up in a cloth at the back of the neck. Encourage the child to sit up instead of leaning over, letting her stoop for a moment when ever the choking sensation comes on.

After all, though, the ounce of prevention is the greatest thing about household accidents. If the child is given only fairly large toys to play with, and buttons and such "small fry" put out of his reach until he is old enough to know that such things aren't to be touched, there is little to fear from choking; and most of the ugly cuts come from knives and scissors which have been left out of his reach until he is old enough to know

Sick Headaches and their Cure

A Hot Foot-Bath Draws the Blood from the Head.

Wring Flannel Rags out of Hot Water

the formula in the answer to "Mrs. R. H."

Affects No Other Part

"I am fleshy every way but my bust. Does Dr. Vaucare's treatment make one fatter, or simply enlarge the bust?" I never had a large one as a girl, and am now 36 years old. Would you advise me to use it, or is it better for slender people only?"

Dr. Vaucare's remedy affects no part of the body other than that for which it is intended. It is not a flesh builder, but a tonic.

Massage for a Red Nose

Will you kindly tell me what causes a red nose? I am a girl 14 years of age and regret very much having a red nose. I also have pimples on my face which start at the tip of the nose. Never touch it with water.

Massage is an excellent thing to relieve this condition. Massage vigorously along the leading nerve of the nose at each side. Use the tip of the finger at the bottom, and rub up the nose on each side, and then under the eyebrows, following the nerve in this way is sure to relieve the congested circulation, which is often the secret of that unsightly redness. If the nose is extremely red, massage the temples and cheeks, using a brisk vigorous movement. This helps to take away the blood from the nose.

Hollow Cheeks

Will you please publish in your Beauty Column the physician's prescription for hollow cheeks? I am a girl 14 years of age and regret very much having hollow cheeks and thin lips.

To Restore the Natural Color of the Hair

(A physician's prescription.) Sugar of lead, 1/2 ounce; lac sulphur, 1/2 ounce; essence of bergamot, 1/2 ounce; alcohol, 1/2 pint; glycerine, 1/2 pint; tincture of cantharides, 1/2 ounce; ammonia, 1/2 ounce.

Mix all in one pint of soft water. Apply to the roots of the hair. It must be clean.

Use the lotion for premature wrinkles once a day.

To Fatten the Cheeks

To make thin cheeks plump rub a good skin food in with the following movements: To treat the right cheek, place the thumb of the left hand just beyond the corner of the mouth on the left cheek as a brace. Make rotary movements upward and outward, beginning at the corner of the mouth, and making three diverging lines of manipulation over the cheek. With the right hand treat the left cheek. About six times over each cheek is sufficient.

Use the lotion for premature wrinkles once a day.

Waist Too Large

I read your columns all the time. Have had many recipes filled which I find excellent. I am 36 years old, and when I was a young lady my waist measure was 22 inches, now it is 30 inches. My waist is as large as my bust almost, and my whole figure is so awkward. I have tried many of the recipes, but none have helped me. I have tried many of the recipes, but none have helped me.

Exercise is the best means by which you can correct the faults of your figure. I will give you three exercises, which, if practiced faithfully for two or three months, should tone your body up to strength and grace.

To Reduce the Waist Measure

Deep breathing will help to reduce the waist measure and enlarge the bust. The stretching exercises, too, and especially the waist exercises. Raise the arms high above the head, then, holding knees and feet, try to touch the floor with the fingertips. Stand erect, place hands on hips, bend from waist as far as possible to the right, then to the left.

To Reduce the Hips

His circling can be done with good results in the way of decreasing size if the principle of resistance is employed. Taking standing position, knees on hips, bending the knees and keeping the chest and shoulders immovable, contract all the muscles used in this exercise and resist.

To Reduce the Abdomen

In standing position, clasp the hands over the abdomen. Contract the muscles of the abdomen and bend at the hips six times, keeping the muscles well contracted throughout the bending. Rest by taking three deep breaths between each exercise.

Try a Plaster Stick

Will you please tell me of some way to get rid of short white hairs on the nose? Also, how to keep wrinkles from coming on the forehead?

Rubbing Sometimes Helps.

Aromatic Spirits of Ammonia Tones Up the Stomach.

Nothing in all the category of little illnesses, which are so many and varied, has the faculty of making you feel so absolutely wretched as does a sick headache of the real, old-fashioned type, from which so many women suffer.

Often, it seems to have no connection with the stomach, and the sufferer will complemently inform you that "It's just her wretched nerves!" But if the stomach is in perfect order, it is a mighty exceptional case where nerves alone cause it.

At any rate, from whatever cause they come, getting the stomach right is the first step; getting the blood away from the head the second, and rest—perfect relaxation—is an absolute necessity to effect a cure.

Often bicarbonate of soda—half a teaspoonful in a little water—will correct the acidity of the stomach. Aromatic spirits of ammonia is another good thing to take at such a time, and an occasional woman finds her greatest relief comes from mixing them.

Putting the feet in hot mustard water and keeping them there for full ten minutes is the quickest way to bring relief, and does it by drawing the blood, which seems to be all in the head, away from it.

The best test as to whether or not the water is at just the right temperature is to try it with the back of your hand. If the skin, which is very sensitive there, can stand it, it is not too hot.

For the women who find the hot water something of a shock, the best way is to partly fill bucket or footbath with warm water, and gradually add very hot water until the receptacle is full.

If the headache has any connection with the eyes, a splendid treatment is that of wringing out flannel from boiling water and laying the rags upon the eyes as soon as they cool just enough to be borne. Two rags and a couple of short, clean sticks (forks will do if you haven't sticks handy) are necessary; the second rag put in the hot water as soon as the first one is taken out. The sticks are for wringing the cloths with—you can use so much hotter water than if you limit it to that only warm enough to let you put your hands in.

Repeated applications are bound to help, and in nine cases out of ten a cure, the headache. For that obstinate tenth case try alternating the treatments of hot water with a rag wrung out from ice water—a sort of Turkish bath in a very small way.

Then rest in a darkened room, if possible, with the window open so that plenty of fresh air circulates through, and in very little while your headache should be a thing of the past.

But if you are wise, and want to avoid sowing the seeds of the next one, rest awhile after it, and the exhaustion consequent upon severe suffering of any sort, leave you; and don't be in too great a hurry to eat—restrain your appetite for a few days.

Massage the bust from underneath upward and out in a series of rotary motions. Make the movements slowly and gently, as haste or heavy pressure will do harm in this region. Deep breathing and chest-expanding exercises are just as necessary for you as massage.

Massage Cream for the Bust. Lanolin, 5 ounces; spermaceti, 1/2 ounce; mutton tallow (freshly trolled), 5 ounces; coconut oil, 1 ounce; oil of sweet almonds, 4 ounces; tincture of benzoin, 1 dram; extract of Portugal, 4 ounces; oil of neroli, 20 drops. Mix as you would any cream of the sort. Rub on gently at night.

The Remedy is Harmless

I want to know if Dr. Vaucare's Remedy is safe to use in any case of rotatory taking it, and if the prescription one filled will be enough. I am 36 years old and my bust is not as large as I want it. V. C. Dr. Vaucare's Remedy is perfectly harmless. I cannot help you as to the quantity required, for that varies widely in different cases. I would suggest that you take the treatment until satisfactory results are obtained.

Orange-Flower Cream. Oil of sweet almonds, 4 ounces; white wax, 6 drams; spermaceti, 4 drams; castor oil, 1 ounce; oil of sweet almonds, 2 drams; glycerine, 1/2 ounce; orange-flower water, 2 ounces; oil of neroli, 15 drops; oil of lemon, 15 drops; oil of lime, 15 drops; oil of petit grain, 15 drops. Melt the first three ingredients, add the glycerine to the orange-flower water and dissolve the wax in the mixture, then pour it slowly into the blended fats, stirring continuously.

Massage for the Bust

Will you kindly give me information in regard to enlarging the bust? I used to have a good bust, but since nursing two children have gone to sleep. Am 33 years old and would like to bring back some of my former plumpness if possible. In giving formula, kindly state if you can any particular place where I can obtain it.

Mrs. Henry Symes' Advice to Correspondents

Recipe Repeated

Will you kindly publish in your health and beauty column a recipe I saw some time ago which I have lost? It was tannic acid and glycerine for external use under the eyes, and the price of the quantity I have been benefited so often by your recipe I want to try this one.

The formula to which you refer is as follows:

For Puffiness Under the Eyes.
Tannic acid 20 grains
Glycerine 1 ounce
Apply by means of a brush or a bit of cotton to the baggy skin night and morning.

Prices Vary Greatly

Kindly advise me whether I can secure "Dr. Vaucare's" prescription for "Best Desquamation" (dandruff) from you, and the price?

The only way in which I can assist my readers to obtain Dr. Vaucare's bust developer is to give them the correct formula, which frequently appears in this column. Any first-class druggist will fill the prescription, even if he has not all the ingredients himself, for he knows, or should know, where to get them. The prices probably vary in different localities, since various dealers set their own prices.

Gather Them Yourself

Could you tell me where to get the walnut skins to use for making walnut stain for the hair?

I have tried in Baltimore and Philadelphia and was unable to get them in either city.

I have seen the walnut stain lotion given at different times in your department to use as a harmless hair stain. I am not quite 30, and my hair is turning gray very fast.

Falling Hair

Please publish a hair tonic for me. My hair has been falling out for about ten years, and is very thin in front. I have used lots of patent medicines, but to no good. My hair is so very oily I wash it twice a week, and in these few days it gets very oily; it is almost necessary to wash it.

I should be very thankful indeed if you would publish a good tonic to prevent the hair from falling out and make it grow again; also to help this very great hair of mine.

Discontinue this frequent washing of your hair, and shampoo about once a month. Apply this lotion to correct the oiliness.

Formula for Oily Hair.
Use the following mixture daily, rubbing well into the scalp.
Alcohol, 2 ounces; witch hazel, 2 ounces; resorcin, 1/2 grain.

Then use the Jaborandi tonic, which has less oil than many others.

Jaborandi Tonic.
Quinine sulphur, 20 grains; tincture of cantharides, 2 fluid drams; fluid extract of Jaborandi, 2 fluid drams; alcohol, 2 fluid ounces; glycerine, 2 fluid ounces; bay rum, 6 fluid ounces; rosewater, 16 fluid ounces.

The quinine should be dissolved in the alcoholic liquids by warming slightly, then the other ingredients added, and the whole filtered.

Rub into the roots of the hair every night.

Waxy Hair

Will you kindly tell me through your valued page of a harmless recipe to make the hair waxy? My hair is a pretty brown, very fine, but straight.

To Make the Hair Curl

Potassium carbonate, 120 grains; ammonia water, 1 fluid dram; alcohol, 12 fluid drams; rosewater enough to make 16 fluid ounces.

Formula Misled

Please publish your prescription for bust development which you gave some time ago. I mislaid the paper, and have not seen the recipe printed since. Please let me have the one that contains the goat's milk and simple syrup.

Dr. Vaucare's Remedy for the Bust.
Liquid extract of galega (goat's milk), 10 grains; lacto phosphate of lime, 10 grains; tincture of fenel, 10 grains; simple syrup, 400 grains.

The dose is two soupspoonfuls with water before each meal.

Dr. Vaucare also advises the drinking of malt extract during meals.

See Answer to "Mrs. R. H."

After having cut out a recipe I saw in your column for enlarging the bust I lost it, and would thank you very much if you will please reprint the same.
