Son of Whitby Irish Secretary

THE fifty years of life Sir Hamar Greenwood, the new Irish Secretary, have been divided exactly equally between Canada and the Motherland, the first twenty-five in Canada, the last twenty-five in England. If in his early years he definitely planned a great career in British politics no one here knew of it. His trip to England as soon as he graduated from college was regarded by his friends merely as the casual visit of a young graduate anxious to see a little of the world before settling down. Tradition has it, perhaps falsely, that he made that trip in a cattle boat, in charge of a consignment of stock on the hoof for the Liverpool market. Part of the payment for the service was a free trip home, but Greenwood didn't come home.

No pioneer challenging the wilderness for a fortune ever surpassed in romance the career of the Canadian youth, unknown and friendless and penniless, who challenged fortune where life was most dense and complex and difficult, and who to-day holds in his hands the destiny of the most troublesome issue in modern domestic British politics.

When Greenwood lived in Toronto he was regarded as a born orator. It is not on record that he has set the Thames on fire by his oratory, or that he has been classed by British critics in the upper flights of great orators. But certain it is that he had even as a youth that comparatively rare thing known as platform magnetism.

It was as a forerunner of "Pussy-foot" Johnson that he got his first opening in England. Temperance societies were then getting active, but they found difficulty in getting speakers with ability and enough courage to go out on the platform and espouse a most unpopular cause. Greenwood had that ability and courage to burn.

Paralleling the cattle boat tradition is another story of one occasion when Greenwood was sent to deliver a speech and was for the visit put up as a guest at a pretentious country house. In the morning a valet of the house entered Greenwood's room to brush his suit. During the operation two shillings, all the money Greenwood possessed in the world, fell out. Significantly the valet picked them up, indicating to Greenwood where he laid them, "Oh, take them, my man," said the sleepy but quick-witted Greenwood; "I left them in that pocket for you."

Greenwood's experience as a temperance speaker was valuable in that it served as a stepping stone to politics, and he soon found steady employment in the Liberal organization. He studied law at the same time, and was called to the Bar. And in ten short years he had made himself so valuable to the party that a seat in Parliament was found for him, and he entered the House of Commons in the great Liberal triumph of 1906. It was not long before he was asked to take an under-secretaryship, and his progress has been uninterrupted. Apparently he has made no mistakes so far, if he settles Ireland who can say what future still lies ahead of him?

Before and during his university course Greenwood taught school and held positions as temporary clerk in some of the Government departments. Once he organized a theatrical troupe which toured Western Ontario, but it is not on record that this venture helped much in a financial way. Greenwood was himself advance agent and heavy tragedian of the company. The striking figure he made when he struck a new one-night stand, with his silk hat, very long-skirted Prince Albert coat and bright patent leather shoes, is still remembered after twenty-five years in many an Ontario town. He always made a tour of the main street calling at all the shops, making himself agreeable, and drumming up business for the show. In those days he was, as he is yet, a fine figure of a man.

One of his early hobbies was military training and, while yet an undergraduate, he held a commission in the home town regiment of militia. Another story of him which also may be apocryphal is that he went to his first camp against his father's wishes. When his father followed him there Greenwood refused to recognize him but instead had him arrested and detained in the military jail. Does this incident give a forecast of what he will do in Ireland? A man who will arrest his own father and who has taken "Dare to be a Daniel" as his motto ought not to be lacking either in firmness or in humor.

In Whitby, his birthplace, and afterwards in Toronto he was always

"Tom" Greenwood, but when he went to England he used his second name of Hamar and it is as Sir Hamar Greenwood, Bart, he is known now. His return visits to Canada since he left her shores have been infrequent. On his last visit he was accompanied by his wife, formerly Miss Spencer, a member of a distinguished and wealthy English family to whom he was married nine years ago.

Those who were intimately associated with Greenwood here regarded him as having the potentialities of a great man. Even in his theatrical outburst he was under restraint. And he had fire, mixed with coolness, judgment, courage, and tact. On one visit home an old friend asked him if he cultivated advancement in the English Liberal party by making a specialty of free trade. "No chance," he replied. "A schoolboy in England has forgotten more about the tariff issue than I ever knew. I talked to them about Canada, something I knew a lot about and they knew nothing."

Significance in Greenwood's appointment lies in the fact that as a Canadian he is familiar with Dominion Home Rule as it works out, as no purely British statesman can be.

Our Native Birds.

One of the most valuable assets our nation has is its native birds. Too much cannot be written in their favor.

Destroy them and in a few years the injurious insects will have multiplied to such an extent that trees will be denuded of their foliage, plants and crops cannot be produced.

There are more than 1,200 species of our native birds, and millions of individuals. As a result of the examination of over 50,000 stomachs of birds, they established beyond a reasonable doubt that birds are of economic value, first in eating harmful insects, their eggs and larvae. Second, in eating the seeds of noxious weeds. Third, in devouring field mice, and other small rodents that injure the crops, and fourth, in acting as scavengers. While the economic value of birds should be kept in mind the aesthetic value should also be considered. Man does not live by bread alone.

We should protect them for their graceful forms, their charming beauty, their delightful melody, and their joyous activity.

Retraining 25,485 Veterans.

In comparison with the United States, Canada continues to lead in the industrial retraining of disabled ex-service men. According to official figures published at Washington by the Federal Board of Vocational Education, a total of 32,204 men have entered training out of 41,813 men who had been approved. In Canada at the same period 48,365 men had been approved of for courses under the vocational branch of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, and 43,124 had actually commenced retraining.

In the United States 3,409 men are recorded as having completed or discontinued training. During the same period in Canada 13,039 men graduated as trained. At present in Canada 25,485 men are shown as undergoing re-training. In all, 49,501 men have been approved for courses and 41,669 actually started on such re-training courses.

Agricultural Products In Saskatchewan.

Despite the very poor crop conditions that prevailed over the greater part of Saskatchewan last year, the total value of agricultural products in 1919, exclusive of the increase in the value of live stock, was $367,993,000, an increase of thirty million dollars over the year previous. The gain was chiefly due to better prices paid for grain crops, flax fibre, and to the growth of the dairy industry in that province. Oats, barley and flax were, generally speaking, better yielding crops in 1919 than in 1918.

He Was Wrong.

Perhaps you have already heard this incident of a Toronto motorist, and if you have, you may marvel that it does not occur oftener. The motorist stopped at a corner and offered to give a woman a ride downtown. "Sir!" she exclaimed, in great indignation, "what do you take me for?" "My mistake, madam," replied the motorist graciously, "I took you for a lady."

Henry Bray Edwards

Mr. Henry Bray Edwards, a former highly respected resident of this village, died suddenly on Saturday evening last at his home in Hamilton, apoplexy being the direct cause of his death. He was apparently in his usual health when he retired to his room, succumbing a few minutes after the attack.

Deceased was born in Waterdown 67 years ago, and resided here until fifteen years ago when he went to Hamilton to reside. Mr. Edwards was held in high esteem by a large circle of friends here who will deeply regret his death.

Deceased was a valued employe of the International Plow Works, and the firm loses a faithful worker. He was a member of Court Oronhyatekhe I. O. F. Besides his widow, he leaves two sons and five daughters; also two sisters, Mrs. W. S. Featherston and Mrs. John Reid of Waterdown, all of whom have the deepest sympathy of the community.

The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon from his late residence, 59 Cedar Avenue, Hamilton. Interment being in Hamilton cemetery.

Base Ball

(By the Sporting Editor)

One more scalp added to the war belt of the W. A. A. At Wabasso on Saturday last the Waterdown Seniors again demonstrated to the large crowd they are the most consistent winners in the league. Their defence work kept the opposition to three lone tallies, while their attack had their opponents chasing the ball to all corners of the lot. The end of the seventh innings found that the W. A. A. had nineteen runners touch the four bags. Stewart in right field for the winners featured, salvaging a fast ball through the diamond, and throwing his man out at first base.

Team play is badly needed, and will be more so before the end of the season. The only way to acquire it is to get out and practice. The boys are taking things too easy. Reverses are bound to come unless the team gets busy and gets out to practice. The game cannot be played on the town streets, so get together on the diamond if you expect to bring home the gonfalon.

The Juniors motored to Millgrove last Saturday, but owing to rain and wet grounds were unable to cross bats with the Millgrovites, or they too might have added a scalp to their belts. It is high time they were getting in the win column again. However they are only learning the game, and while a win looks good, a loss is a good lesson if taken in the right spirit. So keep up a brave front boys, the season is young.

Carlisle defeated Flamboro Centre on Saturday by score of 10 to 3. Carlisle is running away from the rest with four straight wins. Keep it up Carlisle.

Method of Orchard Cultivation

(Experimental Farm's Note).

The method or system of cultivation to be adopted may be varied to some extent to meet local conditions. In reality, however, all systems should be, and in most cases are, a slight modification of the "clean cultivation and cover crop system."

The clean cultivation method calls for all the ground under and around the trees to be plowed and frequently harrowed until around July 1st.

This system has much to recommend it, viz. (1) Maximum conservation of soil moisture; (2) excellent conditions for liberation of plant food, especially nitrogen; (3) sightliness and

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

This is a Short Letter, But It Proves the Reliability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Bothwell, Ont.—"I was weak and run down, had no appetite and was nervous. The nurse who took care of me told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now I am getting strong. I recommend your medicine to my friends, and you may use my testimonial."—Mrs. W. J. Brady, R. R. 2, Bothwell, Ont.

The reason why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful in overcoming woman's ills is because it contains the tonic, strengthening properties of good old-fashioned roots and herbs, which act on the female organism. Women from all parts of the country are continually testifying to its strengthening, curative influence, and as it contains no narcotics or harmful drugs it is a safe medicine for women.

cleanliness of the orchard and (4) control of insect pests.

In connection with this, either fall or spring plowing may be practiced, the former, however, only in those localities with a favorable enough winter to so permit. The great secret of success with any system of cultivation designed to conserve moisture and liberate plant food is to get on the land as early in spring as possible, otherwise, if the orchard is not plowed until late, most of the advantages of cultivation are lost.

Modifications of the above consist of leaving a strip of sod about four feet in width next to the trees. In old orchards, where it is difficult to get close to the trees this may be practiced successfully, in which case the grass is cut once or twice during the season and allowed to remain as a mulch.

In both these instances, on the cultivated portion a mulch is maintained until about July 1st, when a cover crop of some sort should be sowed. If the seed is not too expensive, some leguminous crop like red clover or crimson clover at the rate of about twelve pounds per acre for the former and ten pounds for the latter, or summer vetch at the rate of fifty pounds per acre is advisable, as these will add a considerable quantity of plant food to the soil.

If too costly rape may be used as a cover crop, at the rate of thirty pounds per acre.

The sod mulch system, if properly handled, may be advisable on moist soils where there is abundance of plant food. This system must not be confused with the sod system, which is not to be recommended. In the former, for the first few years, grass or old straw is hauled on to the orchard and placed around the trees to form a mulch. This practice is continued until the cuttings from beneath the sod beneath the trees is sufficient in themselves to form a heavy mulch.—M. B. Davis, Pomologist.

Taste.

The sensation of taste, while of common and constant experience, is highly complicated in its nature. What is commonly called taste is not a simple sensation at all, but rather a complex. In addition to the actual functioning of the apparatus properly pertaining to the sense of taste, the tongue receives impressions of various other sorts, all of which go to make up this complex. As finally recorded in the consciousness, the taste of any substance has to do with its heat or coolness, perhaps with a mild amount of pain, certainly with astringency or acidity—which are in themselves further complexes of thermic and tactile sensations—and above all with smell. The reader will probably agree that ice cream and coffee are entirely different from their true selves when served at inopportune temperature; and it is a matter of record that a person of the keenest taste may make the most ludicrous errors if asked, blindfolded and with his nose stopped, to identify substances placed in his mouth.

CONTROL OF SWARMING

(Experimental Farm's Note).

Swarming is the bees' natural method of increase, and the instinct to swarm is particularly strong under the extremely favorable conditions for bee activity of the Canadian spring and summer.

The uncertainty of swarming, the loss of honey following the division of the working force of the colony, the possibility of swarms escaping, and the difficulty in preventing swarming in many parts of Canada without considerable labor, all make the control of swarming quite the greatest problem in bee management.

To encourage work in the hive and to discourage the desire to swarm, plenty of room, both in the brood chamber and in the super and large entrances should be given to all colonies as soon as conditions are favorable, but these measures will not always be enough to prevent swarming in many places, especially in the north.

If the colony can be watched all day, it is a good plan to clip the queen's wings at fruit-bloom time. When the colony swarms, remove the hive to a new stand, place on the old stand an empty hive, to which the swarm will return, the queen having been meanwhile picked up and placed in a cage in the new hive. The field bees will join the swarm and the parent colony will be so much weakened by their loss that it is not likely to swarm again.

Where the apary cannot be watched, the plan of preventing swarming by examining every brood comb in every colony every week, and destroying all the queen cells is very laborious and not always effective. A simpler plan is to remove the queen at the beginning of the clover honey flow, and eight or nine days later destroy all the queen cells except one, or destroy all and give a ripe cell of select parentage. In this way a young queen is obtained which will not swarm, and, besides, will be much more prolific in the fall and next year than the old queen, and will be less likely to swarm next year. This plan, however, causes a certain amount of loafing until the new queen starts laying. This loafing can be much reduced by introducing a ripe queen cell at the time the queen is removed, and if this is done early enough, before any preparations for swarming have been started, the bees are unlikely to build further queen cells. Where, however, one prefers to use the surer method, only those colonies that are actually preparing to swarm should be treated, and some means for quickly ascertaining if a colony is building queen-cells in preparation for swarming should be employed. One of the best of these is to have the brood nest occupy two chambers, and then by prying up the upper chamber one can see at a glance if the queen cells are being built along the lower edge of the comb in this chamber.

In many parts of southern Ontario, southern Quebec and similar regions the desire to swarm is strong only during the first two or three weeks of the honey flow from clover, and the separation of queen and brood by a queen excluder, the queen being put into a lower chamber containing only empty combs and foundation, may be enough to tide the colony over this period. Another good plan that may be enough to prevent swarming in this region is to use two brood chambers and confine the queen in the lower one early in the honey flow, at which time the combs in this chamber usually contain a large number of empty cells.—F. W. L. Sladen, apiarist.

A Day in Spring.

O day most rare, accept my salutation!
Dame Spring dwells not in the world with you;
But, summoning her brood in trepidation,
She flies before your cloudless eye of blue.

Beneath her hat wings how her children hover!
As if they knew that God's own gloried light
Would all their little nothingness discover
And show them one with emptiness and night.

And what is night but shadow of this bubble,
This storied, rainbow globe we call our earth.
Shot through with shifting gleams of joy and trouble,
And struck with stars of song and moons of mirth?

But when there comes a day like this we mortal—
Behold that City of the Open Portals,
And know in truth there shall be no night there.
Feeling God's warmth around us everywhere—

Several weeks ago my aunt stirred up the family by suddenly eloping with a young man with whom she was acquainted. A few days later little Eleanor visited her grandmother, and, finding it dull, was asking to be allowed to play with the family's poodle. She was told that aunt took Fluxie with her. She came home greatly excited and before she was fairly within the house exclaimed: "Oh, muvver, Fluxie 'loped, too."—Chicago Tribune.

To Wear With Sports Suits.

When furs are laid aside one wears a smart scarf.

And to go with the ever-popular sports suit the new camel's hair scarfs seem especially intended.

They come all the way from England, are very fine, very soft and very light of weight.

Tan is the most fashionable color at this minute, and these scarfs are made with fringed ends and very generous as to width.

The tan, one must add, is but the predominating color, for the scarfs are finished at the ends with two-color block designs.

VEGETATION IS VERY LATE

Ten Days to Two Weeks Behind in Ontario.

Seed Bed is Fine—Fall Wheat Average.

The following is a summary of the May Crop Bulletin prepared by the Statistics and Publications Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, based upon information furnished by a staff of about a thousand correspondents under date of May 22: Vegetation is estimated as being from ten days to two weeks behind the average.

Most of the live stock were on the grass by the third week of May, but in many instances there was not enough pasture to satisfy, as growth had been slow on account of the rather cool spring.

Spring sowing was being rushed as correspondents wrote, the weather then being bright and open. In some favored localities all spring grains were in and corn and roots were being planted, but the majority were not so far on. The seed bed, generally speaking, was never in better condition. Opinions are greatly divided as to the likelihood of an increase in the acreage of spring crops. Less spring wheat and more oats, corn and sugar beets are reported by some. A number of correspondents state that more land will be pastured than formerly.

Fall wheat, which came through the winter in excellent form, received somewhat of a setback by the raw spring weather, but is expected to have at least an average yield. The acreage is about ten per cent. greater than last year.

Clover has not done so well as winter wheat. The mid-summer drouth last year was very trying to the crop, and it suffered in places from spring heaving.

Alfalfa has done relatively better than clover.

Sweet clover is rapidly coming into favor, being in good demand both for fodder and for seed. Fruit trees where well kept are blossoming profusely as a rule. Some raspberries and grapes have been more or less put back by frost, but small fruits generally are expected to be generous in yield if the weather continues favorable.

Fodder supplies have been greatly drawn on, on account of the cold winter and the lateness of spring pasture. Hay is scarce, and grain scarce; many farmers had to buy north-western oats for feed. The good quality and large supply of corn ensilage was the main factor in saving the situation.

Many farmers have exchanged work and are using improved machinery, as help has been so hard to procure. "We do what we can ourselves and let the rest go," is a frequent expression of those reporting.

16 YEARS FOR A HUN LOOTER

Geneva cable: Sixteen years in a French prison was the sentence pronounced yesterday by a French military judge at Ludwigshaven, in the occupied zone, upon Captain Imhof, a German officer accused of looting French chateaux during the war, according to a Basle despatch to-day. Captain Imhof, it is stated, was arrested by the French during their occupancy of Frankfurt. Imhof's house was found to be full of furniture, pictures and tapestries stolen from French chateaux during the German occupation. In defence, Imhof pleaded that thousands of officers, from the former Crown Prince downward, did the same as he. The French judge said he regretted he was unable to treat the prisoner as an ordinary burglar and inflict a heavier sentence.

WERE TRAPPED IN SHIP'S HOLD

Cut Way Out of Blazing Vessel at N. Y.

Rescuers From Within Nearly Perish.

New York report: Trapped in a blazing hold of the burning steamer Powhattan at the Morse drydocks, Brooklyn, several men, driven into a corner by the onrushing smoke and flame wall, cut their way through the steel plates of the ship, while firemen and companions of the trapped men were dropped like flies in the heavy smoke trying to rescue them from within.

Led by Lieut. William Van Loan, five men fought their way down the smoke-choked hatchway toward the refrigerating plant, where several men were trapped. They were nearing their goal when struck by a terrific back draught. All fell unconscious. The message of trouble among the rescuers was wig-wagged to the firemen outside by the actions of the line of hose that had gone "wild." Deputy Chief John J. O'Hara summoned several firemen and crawled into the inferno, and after a struggle against the terrific heat, managed to drag the unconscious men out.

In the meantime more than 100 workmen, who had been at work above, where the fire burst out, fought their way to safety. Those on the outside could hear the cries of the imprisoned men and hear the hammering on the inside of the heavy steel side plates.

William Carlin, of 1002 Forty-fifth street, Brooklyn, one of the men trapped in the refrigerator, still held an acetylene torch with which he had been welding when the fire trapped them. Retaining his presence of mind and ordering all of the other men to

U.S. Government to Fight Freak Styles

Cleveland, Ohio, June 1.—That the United States Government is seeking the elimination of extreme and freak styles in women's wearing apparel as a means of lowering the cost of clothing was revealed by J. G. Weatherly, of Washington, special assistant of Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer, in conference with President Morris A. Black and members of the Cleveland Garment Manufacturers' Association.

He flat on their faces in order to get the last bit of oxygen in the room, he started to work on the side of the vessel.

Slowly the small spark of intense heat started to eat its way through the heavy steel plate. Choking and gasping for breath in the heavy corks smoke, Carlin stuck bravely to allow a man to crawl through was cut in the side. He dropped unconscious to the floor of the refrigerating plant before he could drink in a lung full of the fresh air of the outside.

Four firemen were so badly overcooled in trying to rescue the imprisoned men that they were taken to the Morse Drydock Hospital, where it is said that Fireman Jacob Hegrich is in a serious condition.

GREECE UNDER MARTIAL LAW

on Monday asked permission of the Chamber of Deputies to restore martial law, declaring this would be the only way of avoiding bloodshed, owing to the tactics of the Opposition, says a despatch to the London Times from Athens. Martial law thus will come into force again Tuesday.

$1,500 PROFIT UPON HIS $60

Hickman, Ky., report: Roy Shaw, a well-known farmer living near Hickman, took 200 pounds of wool to Hickman the other day, which he sold for 30 cents a pound, or for $60. Then he purchased a suit of clothes for his son, and found that the money he received for the wool was just enough to pay for the suit. He says there are about four pounds of wool in a suit of clothes, and on that basis the wool he sold will make 50 suits, which if sold at $60 a suit would bring the seller $3,000. Allowing one-half for labor and other materials going into the suit, somebody will get a profit of $1,500 on a $60 investment, he figures.

From Beaver and Sucker Lakes to Eagle Lake in Cavendish Township, in the north end of Peterboro County, about twenty miles from Buckhorn, and in the best deer grounds of Peterboro hunt lovers, fierce forest fires are raging and threaten to destroy the Eagle Lake Camp, Bottle Lake and Stoney Creek Camps.

SINN FEIN SEIZE MACHINE GUNS

Surprise Soldiers Guarding Dublin Building.

Hook Lighthouse at Waterford Raided.

Dublin cable says: Twelve soldiers, comprising the guard of a public building here, were surprised this afternoon by a party of armed men, who took away their arms and ammunition and two machine guns.

The raiding party consisted of fifty men, and the building attacked was the office of the registry of deeds, a Government department which records titles to land. The raiders were armed with revolvers, and first disposed of the soldiers on guard, whom they compelled to surrender their rifles and equipment. Nobody was allowed to leave the building until the raiders had accomplished their purpose and departed.

This was the first daylight raid in Dublin on a Government building. The Hook lighthouse at the entrance to Waterford harbor was raided Monday night by masked and armed men. They carried away the detonators and rockets.

REPUBLICANS POLICE ELECTION. Mullingar, Ireland, June 1.—Members of the Irish Republican army in this vicinity constituted themselves guardians of the peace at the local elections, commanded the county hall "in the name of the Irish Republic," and converted it into a temporary barracks. These guards assumed police duty and arrested a number of rioters and jailed them in the guardroom of the county hall.

A GROUP OF THE REVOLUTIONISTS IN MEXICO.

The dusky man with the X marked upon his manly form is the leader of this group of Mexicans, though his dress might not indicate it. He rejoices in the name Genoveva de la O, and he is the successor of the famous Zapata. He has been won over to the new government of Mexico after being in the field as a revolutionist for eight years. The picture was taken after the entry of Obregon into Mexico upon the flight of Carranza.

Friends who donate them are asked to tie magazines and papers in separate bundles using enough strong string to keep them from falling apart. The Women's Institute appreciate the services of the boys and those who save papers for this purpose. A goodly sum has been realized from the sale of over two ton of paper, and will help furnish our Memorial hall which seems at present to be possible.

The W. M. S. of the Methodist church held a very interesting and well attended meeting at the home of Mrs. W. R. Pearson on Wednesday afternoon. A number of ladies from the Rock Chapel W. M. S. were present. Mrs. Daly, the delegate to the district convention in Galt, gave an excellent report. The keynote of the whole convention was that in order to bring the world back to normal again and to send the gospel in effective manner to all the world it is absolutely necessary that the church members and workers should live more consecrated christian lives. It being Mrs. (Rev.) Facey's last meeting with the Waterdown branch as a member, she was asked to give a talk, which she did in a very charming and touching manner. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. T. Everitt.

LAST BIG BLOCK

Of Canadian Pacific Reserve Farm Lands
 In Central Alberta and Saskatchewan

We would call your attention to these lands, the last large block of good virgin farm land in Western Canada, which marks the end of wholesale prices for virgin farm lands in the Prairie West.

News of this block being opened up is being advertised throughout Europe and the United States, and is being read by hundreds of thousands of people every week. The American farmers have been quick to see the opportunities offered in the Western Provinces of Canada in the past, and I am sure that they will see this last opportunity as quickly as any, and that there will be thousands of them going to see these lands as soon as the snow begins to thaw in the spring. It is, therefore, up to us in Eastern Canada to make arrangements to visit the West and see these lands at the earliest possible opportunity, and I cannot urge you too strongly if you are at all interested in getting a farm of your own, to take advantage of this last opportunity. Those who act now and secure some of these lands will reap the benefit of quicker increase in value than at any period in the past, and the land will pay for itself from the crops in a few years.

Those who do not wish to improve the land at once may purchase land on our ten year contract, one-tenth cash, balance in nine equal payments at 6%, which does not require improvement of the land, or you can pay in full if you choose.

Those who get there first will get best selection and best location.

WRITE and ask for further information NOW.

FEW MURDER MYSTERIES.

Eight Unexplained Crimes in Toronto Since 1887.

Is Hamilton in danger of losing first place to Toronto in the matter of unsolved police mysteries?

Many anxious citizens of Toronto are alarmed at the fact that there are on the police books two recent murders in that city, one unsolved shooting, and the disappearance of a prominent millionaire citizen.

That there is no cause for alarm and little room for criticism of the city and county police in all these mysteries is the claim of prominent city police officials and lawyers. A complete list of unexplained and unpaid murder mysteries in Toronto since the year 1887, shows eight. In every one of them, that element of chance which always enters into the relation of crime versus police, was extraordinary. Against eight mysteries in thirty-three years in a city the size of Toronto, there is to be credited the solution of hundreds of murder cases and crimes of violence.

In two of the murder cases, the names of the suspected murderers are known. The fact that both victims and both suspects are foreigners adds to the problem, for a foreigner has advantages of escape and security owing to the clannishness and secrecy of foreign races. On November 19 last, Joe Camandi was killed by a man who struck him on the head with a shovel in a sandy works. Gio Mastriolini is wanted for this. On September 24 last, Joe Berelidio was shot, and Frank Lombardo, a well-known Toronto Italian, is wanted in this case. The next mystery is about the only real mystery of recent years. On September 25, 1918, the year before, Dio de la Scandria was shot in the railroad shops at the foot of Spadina avenue. No trace of the murderer has ever been found.

The two chauffeur murder mysteries are real mysteries, and both occurred in the county on the outskirts of the city, and therefore come under county police. But both victims were Toronto men who drove out to the outskirts, as it were, to be murdered. The Toronto police assumed some of the burden in both cases.

On November 5 last, John G. Rowland, a chauffeur, was found murdered in his car out at Leaside. On July 26, 1917, two years before, Carmen Lapello or Ross, another chauffeur, was found murdered and wrapped in a blanket beside his car out at Swansea.

These both occurred out in lonely suburbs. The police, either of county or city, could not be expected to do more than search every available source for motives, which they did. These are the type of cases where the police have to deal with unknown or unknowable quantities. The recent addition of several fast motor cars to the city police equipment gives the police a greater show in dealing with these undefined, detached crimes.

Among other old unsolved mysteries in and around Toronto are those concerning Hugh Hassan, found murdered on the Humber in August, 1913; Frank Malitto, murdered, November, 1917; John W. Dick, who was punched by an unknown man on King street in October, 1911, after the Argonaut-Tiger rugby match, who died; and away back, Frank Westwood, shot, 1894; Rachel Ferguson, murdered at the entrance to the Don Jail in 1894; Joseph Priestman, murdered at the Exhibition grounds in 1887, and Jane Speers, the old charwoman, found murdered apparently from motives of robbery, in 1887.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Kl. June 13, 1920. A Shepherd Boy Chosen King. 1 Samuel 16; 1-13, 16-4-13.

COMMENTARY.—I. Samuel's mission to Bethlehem (vs. 1-5). 1-3. Samuel's love for Saul moved him to grieve for him because of his failure and rejection. While he was still mourning over this sad state of his people and their kingdom, the Lord came to him with a rebuke and then sent him to Bethlehem on a most important errand. He told him to take with him a horn of prepared oil, for he had chosen a king from the family of Jesse. Samuel feared what Saul might do to him if he should appoint another to be king in his place. The Lord told him to arrange to offer a sacrifice there, and call Jesse to the sacrifice and he would show him what to do. Samuel was accustomed to hold religious meetings at various places. It was not necessary for him to reveal to Saul the fact that he anointed one as king. 4. Came to Bethlehem—Bethlehem is about ten miles south of Ramah where Samuel lived. In making the journey he doubtless passed close to the site of Jerusalem. Elders of the town trembled—Samuel was a prophet and one of his duties was to rebuke sin, and the leaders of the city were afraid that some particular wrong had been committed, for which they were about to be reproved. It has been suggested that they feared to receive Samuel, since by doing so they might incur Saul's displeasure. Comest thou peaceably—The people of Bethlehem desired to know whether Samuel's visit to the place meant anything ill to them. 5. I am come to sacrifice unto the Lord—Samuel had not only come peaceably, but he had also come to observe a religious rite. Sanctify yourselves—The people were to get ready for the sacrifices by washing their bodies and their clothes (Exod. 19: 10). Come with me to the sacrifice—The invitation to this religious service was general. He sanctified Jesse and his sons—Samuel gave special attention to the members of this family, that they might be ceremonially clean. It is probable that others were invited to the sacrifice, but only Jesse and his family were present at the feast which followed.

II. The Lord's choice indicated (vs. 6-12). 6. When they were come—the sons of Jesse came into the presence of Samuel. It is quite possible that Samuel made known to Jesse that he was about to anoint one of his sons, but did not say for what purpose it was to be done. Said—To himself. The Lord's anointed is before him—Establish by his height and his counten-

What Prominent Ontario Women Say

TILSONBURG, Ont.—"I found Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription very beneficial during pregnancy. I felt quite poorly, was nauseated and sick, could not eat anything and I was extremely nervous and weak. I took 'Favorite Prescription' and it soon stopped the nausea, my appetite returned, also my strength and I was soon feeling fine and strong. My baby was strong and healthy and has always been so. I consider 'Favorite Prescription' a great help to the expectant mother and am glad to recommend it."—MRS. AMOS MILLS, Box 238.

A HAMILTON WITNESS

HAMILTON, Ont.—"A few months ago I was stricken down and was confined to bed about ten days. My strength all left me. It was my first illness since a child. I lost five pounds and felt awfully weak afterward. I could hardly do my work. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in tablet form. I tried a couple of bottles and before I knew it, I was well and strong and had gained 9½ pounds. I can recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to build you up."—MRS. E. MARTIN, 397 Dundas St.

After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged down by weakness of her sex—with eyes swollen, black circles and pale cheeks—such a woman is quickly restored to health by the Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce. Charged, too, to bathe, for after taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the skin becomes clear, the eyes brighter, the cheeks plump. It is purely vegetable, contains no alcohol.

ance seemed the natural counterpart of Saul, whose successor the prophet came to select; but the day was gone when kings were chosen because they were head and shoulders taller than the rest." 7. The Lord said—Samuel was in direct communication with Jehovah. Dr. Clarke thinks that his communion with God was as close and full as was that of Moses. Look not on his countenance, etc.—Samuel could see only the outside, but God was looking within, and would indicate to Samuel his choice. I have refused him—The Lord had seen all that Samuel saw and had passed Eliab by. The Lord looketh on the heart—God first gave the people a king of stately stature and majestic appearance, such as they would have chosen for themselves (1 Sam. 16: 24); now he will choose "a man after his own heart" on the true ground of his inner moral worth.—Cam. Bib. It is a comforting thought to the true child of God that he looks on the heart and sees all that is there. The wicked may well tremble for the same reason.

8. neither hath the Lord chosen this—These are the words of Samuel as Abinadab was brought before him. The Lord made it clear to Samuel that he was not the one whom he was to anoint. 9. Shammah—He is called Shimeah in 2 Sam. 13: 3. 10. again, Jesse made seven of his sons to pass.—R. V. The seven included the three who had already passed before Samuel. The Lord had not chosen these—If Jesse had been told by Samuel that one of his sons was to be anointed, he might possibly have been tempted to doubt the word of the prophet, for the most likely of his sons, as he regarded them, had been rejected. 11. are here all thy children—Samuel was convinced that not all of Jesse's sons were present, for he was to anoint one, and all those who had passed before him had been rejected. There remaineth yet the youngest—He was probably a youth of eighteen years. He kepteth the sheep—It was doubtless necessary for one to look after the sheep, and as it seemed unlikely that this young and inexperienced lad would be chosen, he was left to act as shepherd. He was performing well his humble task when the call came that indicated the way to higher duties. We will not sit down—To eat the sacrificial feast. Samuel's real mission was not yet accomplished, nor would it be until he had anointed one of Jesse's sons for the throne of Israel. By the law of exclusion the son which was absent must be the future king, for he was the only one he had not seen and the Lord's word was that a son of Jesse should be anointed king. 12. he was ruddy—The language indicates that David had auburn hair and a fair complexion. In those lands, red or golden, hair and a fair skin were considered especially beautiful. Of a beautiful countenance—Literally, "beautiful-eyed." There was an attractiveness about the eyes of David, in that they were keen and denoted intelligence and were full of expression. They denoted that their possessor was of more than ordinary capacity. The eyes tell much of what one is. Goodly to look to—Goodly in appearance, this is he—The one of whom it was thought he was much less than the other sons of Jesse was at once indicated as the young man to be anointed.

III. David anointed (v. 13). 13. Samuel took the horn of oil—He had brought it with him according to divine directions. Samuel had anointed Saul king and probably used the oil with which men were anointed for the priesthood. The oil used on such occasions was carefully prepared. Anointed him in the midst of his brethren—It appears that the anointing took place in Jesse's house in the presence of the family. None of the members of the family knew the purpose of the anointing. They might have supposed that Samuel did it to set him apart to make him a student in his school of the prophets. It is probable that David himself did not understand the significance of the anointing, yet Josephus thinks that Samuel took David by himself and whispered to him the reason for it. The Spirit of the Lord came upon David—The shepherd boy had been faithful in the performance of the duties that thus far had devolved upon him. We can not suppose that the thought of kingship had entered his mind. The Spirit of the Lord came upon him as a most fitting accompaniment of the anointing with oil, and he was being prepared in mind and heart for what lay before him. It is recorded of Saul that after his anointing God gave him another heart (1 Sam. 10: 9), so David was being equipped for his work by the coming of the Spirit upon him.

The Shah Travels.

The Shah of Persia is on his travels. London will see him and keep him, apparently, for some little time. Europe has memories of the peregrinations of other shahs. They are quaint memories, some of them. There was Nasir-ed-Din, in 1872, and there was Ahmed Mirza, many years later. There would have been a visit, in 1894, on the part of Nasir-ed-Din, but for a Brussels journalist. It happened that, on the Shah's traveling programme becoming known, a Brussels daily published an article which seemed to prognosticate a cool welcome in Belgium. The Minister of Justice of the period thought fit to give the article the publicity of judicial proceedings. The writer was summoned before a Brabant tribunal, but he was exonerated. But the verdict had the immediate effect of keeping Nasir-ed-Din at home in Teheran.

OLD FOLKS' COUGHS, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS QUICKLY CURED

This Tells of a Method That Cures Without Using Drugs

Elderly people take cold easily. Unlike young folks, they recover slowly. That is why so many people past middle life die of pneumonia.

Cough Syrup seldom do much good because they upset digestion. Any doctor knows that a much more effective treatment is "CATARRHO-ZONE," which heals and soothes the irritated surface of the throat. In using Catarrhozone you do not take medicine into the stomach—you simply breathe into the throat, nose and lungs rich, piney, balsamic vapor, so full of healing power that colds, catarrh and bronchitis disappear almost instantly.

The germ-killing balsamic vapor mixes with the breath, descends through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, and finally reaches the deepest air cells in the lungs. All parts are soothed with rich, pure medicinal essences, whereas with a syrup the affected parts could not be reached and harm would result through benumbing the stomach with drugs. A Catarrhozone Inhaler, in your pocket or purse enables you to stop a cold with the first sneeze. Large size costs $1.00 and supplies treatment for two months; small size, 50c; trial size, 25c; all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

LEADS DOUBLE LIFE.

Parasite Known as Cedar Apple Does So.

"It may seem strange that a parasite should attack the stems and leaves of the cedars and produce these tumor-like growths, but this is only one-half of the story," says Frank D. Kern, writing of the parasite known as Cedar Apples, in 'Boys' Life.' "The other half is the climax of strangeness. The parasite leads a double life. In its other stage it lives on the apple tree, chiefly affecting the leaves, but sometimes the fruit. Wild crabapples and cultivated apples are both affected. The apple grower speaks of it as orchard rust, and on the apple it produces an entirely different effect. From its appearance one would never suspect its relation to the cedar apple which appears on the apple leaves. On the upper side of these spots small dots develop and later become blackish. On the underside of the leaves delicate feathery projections develop. In the fall, winter and spring, the parasite lives on the cedar. It goes back and forth by means of tiny germs known as spores, which are carried by the wind. The history of the parasite suggests that it would find conditions best where cedars and apples grow together, and such is the case. On the apple this season is a serious disease in some localities. The best method of prevention is the destruction of the cedars in the vicinity. It is not likely that the wind will carry the spore for more than a few miles. The State of West Virginia has a law regarding the destruction of cedars near apple orchards. The parasite does not spread from apple to apple nor from cedar to cedar. Some varieties of apples resist the attacks better than others. I have seen Stayman Winesaps practically untouched when Grimes Golden, in the same orchard, were badly affected."

She Says She Can Now Do Her Work

MRS. M. MAGNANT GIVES THE CREDIT TO DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Her Back Ached and She Was Always Tired, But She States She Found the Relief She Longed For in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

St. Lina, Alta., June 7.—(Special).—"Thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills, I can now do my work." So says Mrs. M. Magnant, a well known and highly respected resident of this place. Mrs. Magnant was a sufferer from that terrible weariness so many women know. "My back ached," she says, "and I felt so tired all the time." But she used Dodd's Kidney Pills. She persevered with them, taking sixteen boxes in all, with the result given in the glad words of the opening paragraph. Other women in all parts of Canada make the same statement. They were weighed down with weariness, weakness and pain, and found the relief they longed for in Dodd's Kidney Pills. For sick kidneys are the cause of the great majority of the ills from which women suffer. To treat them the kidneys must be strengthened so they will strain all the impurities out of the blood.

Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills do not help sick kidneys.

A DOUBLE SURPRISE

The young man with the uncultured and hungry look had submitted a poem for editorial consideration.
"Well," said the man behind the blue pencil, after a hurried glance at it, "how does thirty shillings strike you?"
"Why—er—really," stammered the doer, "that is more than I—er—"
"Well, that's the best I can do," interrupted the busy editor. "I couldn't think of printing a poem like that for less!"

The Oil of Power.—It is not claimed for Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil that it will cure every ill, but its uses are so various that it may be looked upon as a general pain killer. It has achieved that greatness for itself and all attempts to surpass it have failed. Its excellence is known to all who have tested its virtues and learnt by experience.

Handkerchief linen is very popular. Both for dresses and for lingerie. Predictions for the future are that there will be a more plentiful supply of linen in the market.

No Rest With Asthma.—Asthma usually attacks at night, the one time when rest is needed most. Hence the loss of strength, the nervous debility, the loss of fresh and other evils which must be expected unless relief is secured. Fortunately relief is possible. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has proved its merit through years of service. A trial will surely convince you.

NOURISHING FOOD AND GOOD HOURS

Help You to Resist Disease—All These With a Tonic to Keep the Blood Pure.

The power of your body to resist disease and to fight it after disease gets a foothold, is one of the most precious possessions you have. You weaken this power when you let your general health run down, your blood gets thin and your nerves unsteady. You weaken it when you worry, when you over-work, when you do not get sufficient sleep, and when you are under-nourished, either because you do not eat the right kind of food or because your digestion is out of order.

You preserve your power to resist diseases when you keep good hours and eat proper food at regular intervals. You further increase and strengthen resistance to disease when you build up your blood and nerves by the occasional use of a tonic like Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which are free from opiates and harmful drugs of any kind. The value of these pills as a health builder is fully shown by the experience of Mrs. E. C. Taylor, Hanover, Ont., who says: "At various times since I was a girl of fifteen I have proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after taking about a half-dozen boxes I was restored to normal health. Again after my marriage, and before my boy was born, I felt miserable again, took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had not been taking them long before I could tell that they were helping me. Day by day I could feel my strength returning, and was soon enjoying good health once more. In view of my experience I think I can safely say there is nothing in the way of medicine better than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Worth Knowing.

Cakes seem bound to stick to some pans; if you grease the pans thoroughly, then dust them lightly with flour, the difficulty will be overcome. If you do not feel quite sure of success, stand the pans on a cold, wet cloth for five minutes before trying to remove the cake.

Sour milk, soda and cream of tartar are allowable in any cake, where sweet milk and baking powder are called for. The rule is, half a teaspoonful of bicarbonate and one teaspoonful of cream of tartar to each half-pint cupful of sour milk, and if a fluffy extra light cake is desired, put half a teaspoonful of baking powder to each cupful of flour also.

GIRLS! WOMEN! DO YOUR LOOKS SATISFY YOU?

Is your color fresh and rosy? Does the glow of health shine out in your cheeks?

Do your eyes glisten with health, or are they dull, dark circled and tired? Alas—your bloodless face indicates trouble. Your watery blood menaces your health. What you need is the toning, cleansing assistance of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They will clean out the surplus of bile that makes your skin so murky—they will put new life into the stomach, brace up digestion and make you eat sufficient food to get a blood supply ahead.

Good blood always means more strength and vigor—that's why Dr. Hamilton's Pills are so successful in building up weak, thin folks. You'll feel better at once, your looks will improve and that has dead, lazy feeling will depart, because Dr. Hamilton's Pills cleanse and fortify every ailing organ in the body.

Ask your friends, your neighbors—most anyone can tell you of the enormous good done by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, but beware of any substitute.

HEIGHT OF HAPPINESS.

"What is the height of happiness?" mused the philosophical girl.
"Well, in my case," laughed the pretty bride, "he is about five feet ten."

A Cure for Rheumatism.—A painful and persistent form of rheumatism is caused by impurities in the blood, the result of defective action of the liver and kidneys. The blood becomes tainted by the introduction of uric acid, which causes much pain in the tissues and in the joints. Paralee's Vegetable Pills are known to have effected many remarkable cures, and their use is strongly recommended. A trial of them will convince anyone of their value.

Righted in Time

"Why should I not speak of it?" cried Barry. "I have been thinking of it all this time. Of course I can understand it. He is far superior to me. You can look up to him, not down, as you do to me. He is a man after your own heart. He has all the glamour that his work for the poor can give him. His self-denial, his nobility. It is just the sort of thing that would appeal to you, I know. While I am an ordinary kind of fel-

And as Moya's wistful lines of pain, suddenly at her thoughts changed. She lost sight of herself—how selfish she had been, thinking only of her self-respect, her own sense of humiliation! And now he was going away with this burden of guilt that he had acted dishonorably in telling her of his love. All through the future that memory would haunt him. And she, for the sake of her own wretched pride, could let him go away with that burden.

low. With nothing in me worth the loving."

"Do you know what you are saying?" broke in Una. She only spoke in a shaking whisper. Her face was white.

"Yes," he cried quickly. "I'd forgotten for a moment, it's true. But it may as well come now. It would have come anyway some day. I've begun. I guessed, somehow, you would be here. And I wanted to say good-bye, since we shall never perhaps see each other again."

Never again! Then there would never be another chance of explanation. This was the last, her only chance. The thought darted through Moya's mind, but close on it went another. "I can't explain," went that thought. "It's impossible. It's best that there should be no more chance. That he should go right away—and never know."

"We can say good-bye—as friends," went on Guy, quietly. "We have been friends. And we will forget everything else. I felt I could not go away without saying that—without feeling we were friends again, even if we do meet no more."

Moya stared down at the smooth sand. She was wrestling with two impulses, and each seemed as strong as the other. The struggle was such pain that she could not speak. "Tell him," urged one impulse. And the other protested feebly: "I cannot!" Suddenly Guy's quiet voice deepened and quivered. "I wish I could wipe yesterday afternoon out of your memory," he said, passionately. "I was false to myself in those few moments—false to honor, and false to my love for you. That is why I would have you forget. I would I could only forget it myself!"

Then Moya looked up. She heard the struggle in his voice, and she saw

He had fallen in his own eyes, he had hurt his own sense of honor. Then she must be willing to fall in his eyes, too. It was the price she had to pay.

And bending low her head, Moya faltered out her confession.

It sounded so childish, so foolish, as she did so. In actual words it was so futile a thing. Well, he would know her for what she was—not the girl he had loved and thought worthy—but just a silly child.

But being such a foolish, silly confession, it was strange it was so hard to make. Yet it was—desperately hard. So hard that Moya could never have made it but for one thought—Guy's going away blaming himself, fallen in his own self-respect because he had fallen in honor. And so Moya was willing that her own self-respect should be laid in the dust instead. It was the one reparation she could make. And she made it.

There followed silence. Of course, he would be angry—scornful. He was so upright himself. Such little crooked dealings were incongruous to that largeness of mind which knew nothing of deception and pretence.

Moya awaited the visits of wrath, and gave a cry with an emotion so sharp that she winced. Her head leaned against Barry's shoulder. His cheek touched hers. He was looking into her clear, steadfast eyes, but her eyes were on those clear, sunlit ripples of the river, glinting towards the west.

"I expect they liked love stories," was all she said. "Even if they had none of their own. And who knows? I begin to think differently. I believe there is some love even in the loneliest life, if only one looks for it."

Who knows? Even if it is the love that gives, and does not receive. That sows and does not reap—at least, in this life. Who knows? But we all know there is a world to come where love is perfected and finds its selfless, spiritual life, and for that world we who love love. This world will wait, even as, so perhaps, waited and worked and prayed those old maid who once lived in this peaceful old-world garden.

CHAPTER VII

"There is nothing in me to love," stated Una, with the utmost candid conviction. "Now, Moya is so bright, so lovable. There's heaps in her to love."

Barry tucked his arm in hers with an air of proprietorship, and agreed quite gravely that there was nothing at all in her to love.

The boys and Una had been out for an early morning bathe, and Barry had met them coming back. The boys were ahead now and out of sight, but these two had engrossing enough subjects for conversation that necessitated a strolling pace and an unhurried progress.

And they talked on, discoursing on those subjects which are so very uninteresting to outsiders and so enthralling to the two who make one complete little world to themselves.

"Why, here comes Moya," said Barry. He tucked his arm more firmly in Una's. "Now or never for it!" he decreed, blithely. "We may as well tell her now."

He laughed as they came level with Moya. "I've taken matters into my own hands, you see, Moya. Not very chivalrous of me, I'm ready to own. It's generally considered the lady's province to break off an engagement, isn't it? At least, it looks better that way. However, you have your remedy. You can prosecute me for breach of promise! You look surprised. Well, I simply couldn't stand it any longer. And that's just all about it!"

Not a very comprehensive statement, perhaps. But Moya, looking from Barry to Una, seeing the linked arms, the happy faces, understood easily enough "just all about it."

"Oh," she gasped. "I am—I am so glad about it."

Barry laughed again. "I thought you were going to say you were sorry," he said. "But it's no good crying over spilled milk. It's been and gone, and done, you see. After all, someone had to do it—to take the plunge. I don't believe you would ever have had courage enough to take it yourself."

And that, perhaps, was Moya's thought at that moment. Barry had had courage to cut the Gordian knot. She was the coward. If she could have had his courage, his simple straightforwardness!

"You always said you would never get married, but liked your freedom too well," she said, reproachfully. She could not help a little hit at Barry, she was just then.

"So I did," he laughed. "But I lost my freedom when I became engaged to you. And so I made the best of a bad matter. You're not going bathing now, are you, Moya? Everyone is out of the water and gone home to breakfast."

"Oh, I had breakfast early," she returned. "And did not find that she had slept very little, woke with a headache, and breakfasted little, too, in her wish to avoid Guy. She would be out, away from the house—not even say good-bye to him. It was so much the best."

"I'm going for a walk," she told Barry, and nodded good-bye meaningly enough to the two.

But the smile faded as they parted. So Barry had had courage. He had done the right thing undoubtedly. And Moya was glad he had done it. She went on thoughtfully till she came to her favorite seat on the old, worn arm of the breakwater. The tide was ebbing. Little rivulets wound away to the waves, coursing down from rocky pools. The sand was gloriously smooth and white—a fair, unwritten

"I was wrong," she sighed. "Not only foolish, but wrong. I should have known I could not do a thing like that without influencing other lives. And there was Una, too, after all."

That also cut into her heart with reproach. Una! Looking back, she could understand what she had been blind to before. Una's pained grey eyes, her sweet, unselfish desire that Moya might be happy, her gentle hints that Barry was dissatisfied, that they were missing the best life could bring about.

"I might have ruined Una's happiness as well as my own," thought Moya, fearfully. "And all with one foolish, thoughtless step."

Her eyes were on those footsteps in the sand. But all at once a little wave ran up, higher and more boldly than the other. It ebbed away, it is true, sinking back into the falling tide. But its crystal, shining ripples had swept over those footprints. As Moya watched that wave ebb and ebb, she looked—and lo! the footsteps were gone as if they had never been.

PROPER SAUCES

There is nothing that adds to the "just-right-ness" of a nice juicy roast than the proper sauce as, every good cook knows. And there are some sauces that seem to belong to one kind of meat and no other. Who would ever think of serving mint sauce, for example, with anything else but roast lamb? It could go with boiled mutton, but oh, how much better this dish is accompanied with caper sauce. To make this cream two tablespoonsful of flour with half a cupful of butter and add to it a pint of boiling water. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Season well with salt and pepper; add a tablespoonful of lemon juice and three tablespoonfuls of capers, and serve.

Cheap Greenbacks.

Time was in Toronto when the American dollar, to-day worth $1.17 in our Canadian money, could be picked up for 40 cents. Those were the far-off days of the American Civil War, before most of Toronto money magnates had entered the world, and when Sir Edmund Walker, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, was a youth in his uncle's private banking office at Hamilton, where to handle the great influx of depreciated American money, separate ledgers were kept for it and our own Canadian currency.

The financial situation of the Northern States at that time has no parallel to that of Britain and Canada to-day. The North had not borrowed money abroad to secure the silvers of war. Uncle Sam had merely expanded his currency to an enormous extent. Early in the war most of the gold and silver in the States had been sent abroad to pay for supplies. There was nothing but paper in the country and with that and the uncertain fortunes of war, from early in the campaign American notes were at a big discount over here. During a considerable portion of the period between 1861 and 1865 the American dollar brought 50 cents and even 40 cents. At one time things looked so black for the North that in Quebec the American greenback fell to 40 cents, whereas the Confederate dollar, which hardly passed current at all in Canada, brought 35 cents. Not until about 1873 did the American dollar get to par.
