NOTICE

When a newspaper offers its advertising space at a nominal figure, it is a practical admission of "no circulation." THE KLONDIKE NUGGET asks a good figure for its space and in justification thereof guarantees to its advertisers a paid circulation five times that of any other paper published between Juneau and the North Pole.

A STRANGELY UNIVERSAL PEACE.

The dove of peace is brooding over the world where but a space ago was the clanging of contesting arms and the clash of rival interests. Two nations were fighting and other nations were stirred to their profoundest depths with sympathy for or against one or the other. The attention of a world was riveted upon the unequal contest and it seemed for a time an impossibility that it could result in ought else than in a bloody contest of races as has not been seen on this hoary old earth of ours since the crusades divided one-half the population thereof against the other. No sure did this appear to be the inevitable outcome that the staticians of all nations were kept busy compiling columns of figures showing the comparative military and naval strength of the soon to be opposing half-worlds. That such did not result in a large measure due to the unflinching and determined attitude of the United States herself. Had she shown any disposition to hesitate in the course she had mapped out for herself; or had she even for one moment displayed a disposition to compromise with the nations bringing their influence to bear upon her; then the importunities of interceding representatives would have become so ardent as to fatally commit their governments to the doctrine of armed intervention. That Spain fully expected such armed intervention is so clearly apparent as not to need demonstration.

A strange peace overshadows the world. The great war is over and there is a relieved relaxing of the strained attention of the nations of the earth. Not a gun is being fired, not even a tribal disturbance between the poles or from accident to orient at the present writing. It is not within the recollection of this generation when there has been such a sudden cessation of bloody war throughout the world. Insurrection has been stilled by the mighty uplifted hand of the United States. Think of peace in the Philippines, and in Cuba, and in all the Latin nations to the south of us—and simultaneous. Not an uplifted sword in the whole of Europe, Asia, Africa or America—an universal peace. It is hardly possible this generation will live to see the day again when such a hushed stillness pervades all quarters of the earth.

A RANK DECISION.

The "don't give a damn for common miners" nature of the present incumbent of the gold commissioner's office was never more apparent than in his recent action regarding the relocation of old claims. Under the old law, claims were 500 feet up or down the creek. The new law gives but 250 feet, but it is not at the diminished size of the claims we object, for that is a matter dictated from Ottawa. Mr. Fawcett notified the miners that on September 1 all unrepresented claims would be open to re-location. Taking him at his word the crooks and gulches for several days before the first were thronged with people on the qui vive for vacant claims. Most of the men were familiar with the new 250-foot law and therefore each vacant claim was divided into halves and both halves staked. After several days of waiting in line, upon arrival at the recorder's desk, imagine the discomfiture of the men to learn that by a sudden ruling of the gold commissioner one-half of them were to lose the results of their long tramp in the rain of last week. Mr. Fawcett had simply at the last moment decided that only one-half of each claim he had advertised as open for relocation was actually subject to such staking. In the fearful and cadaverous recesses of his wondrous mind, after the wet and bedraggled and footsore pilgrims had returned to record, the brain of Mr. Fawcett became in labor and gave birth to a thought. The thought took definite shape. "The crown was entitled to one-half of the discovered country and must have the half of each claim farthest from the discovery."

Why the gentleman's mind did not suggest this to him in time to notify the prospectors is not apparent. By his ruling one-half the stakers are dispossessed and yet, so calloused is he to the hardships of a common prospector, he scorns them too much to enlighten them before it is too late for them to avoid a fruitless journey of days in the pouring rain all for nothing but to add to his merriment at their discontented mutterings.

Mr. Fawcett's record in Klondike shows him to be possessed of a supercilious disregard of and contempt for the common miner. If the miner should become fortunately possessed of comparative wealth he is welcomed night or day and effusively greeted by this effulgent representative of a nation which dates its greatness from the signing of the Magna Charta by King John—a document which then and there gave the common man equality before the law with his princely baron.

AN AVALANCHE OF PERJURY.

The peculiar vacillating, hesitating and then all at once impetuous methods of the gold commissioner have resulted in a perfect avalanche of perjury. Applicants are alternately sworn that they have found gold on the claims they desire to record and afterwards allowed to record without swearing. Bona fide prospectors have been requested to make oath they had found "pay" on the claim they desired to record and they were forced to refuse, then within a few days members of the "demi-monde" were allowed to record the same claims after a few smiles and winks, and if they took that oath they do not know it. One has only to stand by the recorder's window for a very few minutes to become thoroughly convinced that either applications are not being made according to law or else that to expedite matters the applicants are being purposely kept in ignorance of the affidavit they make. Recorder Bolton mumbles over a few of the many sentences of the prescribed form and the applicant signs what he considers to be a register or a book of signatures such as they keep in a bank in order to be able to detect false signatures.

But the largest lot of hard swearing is being done by men sent out, semi-officially to stake or re-stake certain well described ground. Before they start they are furnished with certain facts they will be required to swear to and even though some of them have been held off with rifles there has been no discrepancy in the articles they were prepared to agree and subscribe to upon their return.

EVERY American who has been in the Klondike during the past six months will always feel a regret that it was his lot to be away from home while his country was engaged in a great war. Distance has not in the least dampened the patriotism of the American Klondiker. His pulse has thrilled with the news of every victory achieved by the American arms and every battle has been fought over in his tent or cabin with just as much enthusiasm as though he had been present on the actual field of battle. When he returns home, affairs will have resumed their normal quiet and all that he will ever know of the great Spanish-American war will be what he reads and what he is told. The knowledge which comes from actual contact with war conditions will not be his.

The spontaneous recognition on all sides at once of the imperative necessity of incorporation for the city of Dawson shows that there will be no opposition to the movement at all and that the time is ripe right now. There is much to be accomplished before the advent of another summer in the way of avoiding a recurrence of the unsanitary conditions which have prevailed this summer. One of the many suggestions we have heard made by citizens is that we get in and raise the grade of the town-site by graveling it, the gravel to be obtained underneath, the "pay" said to be in the gravel defraying the cost of raising the grade.

"I've sent out to stake and I must do it," was the general reply of the employees of the gang on the night of August 31, when actual residents on and worker of the claims to be "jumped" would protest against such proceedings. Some look downright ashamed of themselves and a remark quite common from these gentry is "Well, you see, we couldn't do anything for ourselves, and we thought we might as well get a hold of something as the other fellow. If we had not accepted, why someone else would, and such is the excuse offered by the henchmen of the "gang."

SEVERAL cases of dog theft have been reported recently. Next to stealing a man's outfit, robbing him of his dog is about the blackest piece of vandalism that can be committed in this country. The dog thief deserves and doubtless will receive severe treatment at the hands of the authorities.

Work on the creeks will begin in earnest pretty soon. Cabins are going up and wood is being secured for the winter's work. Nearly every creek that has been located will be given an opportunity to prove its value during the coming season.

Dawson's streets are still disgracefully dirty. It is to be hoped that when incorporation day arrives, an era of cleanliness will set in. We might be able to get along without a mayor but a street cleaner is a crying necessity.

The letter was presented to Mr. Fawcett through his clerk, but the gold commissioner haughtily disclaimed a reply. The gentlemen saw Mr. Fawcett shortly afterwards and the sincerity of the man was at once made apparent by his words.

Ordinarily the purchase of such a comparatively unimportant thing as a lamp is a matter of very little moment. Not so, however, in Dawson—at least, just now. The fact of the matter is that the lamp supply is decidedly limited.

A Club to be Organized. The leading business and professional men in Dawson are organizing a club. It is intended to erect a large and commodious building which will be equipped with everything requisite to the comfort and convenience of members.

Dumped in Bonanza Creek. On Thursday morning of last week Mrs. Julia Smith started to walk from Eldorado to Dawson. She was carrying her two-year old child in her arms and when a gentleman on horseback volunteered to carry the little one, as he was going the same way, the mother quite willingly resigned to him her precious burden.

badly when they arose to the surface. However, neither were injured, except for a good wetting, and, after drying out the child's clothing at a convenient cabin, the party continued on their way.

A JOKE ON DAWSON.

The "May West" Standered By a Hoaxer—And The Band Played Annie Laurie.

That was a stupendous joke played upon the "sporty" element of Dawson by someone who started the report that the May West was coming up from St. Michaels loaded down to the gills with a precious cargo of dazzling female beauty.

"Soy, Capt. Have you got enough to go round?" "Say, I'll give my sack for my pick," and so on. There was quite a rush to get on board and it took two policemen to keep them back.

Another Death in a Shaft.

Word came to headquarters last week that a man was dead over on Dominion. Inquiry develops the fact that Geo. Patton, who was working on 21 below, Dominion was the man in question.

That Malamoot Dog.

Mr. Editor, I see you published my last, so I send you some more. The malamute dog, how I love him, an oh how long I will remember him. He is a born Kiplomandae and kept his head.

How delightful and invigorating is the pastime of driving a dog team. It is a constant pleasure from the time you start until a kilometer again. Driving a dog team is very conducive to Christianity only if it is liable to make the beginner homesick.

But above all the Yukon dogs had habits he is cheaply kept—by the old timer here in Dawson. He is a successful prize fighter, you can hear him for hours before an after the fight, and he seldom hurts his foe.

Removal. After sundown, August 27th, the Canadian Bank of Commerce will be found in the new premises between the Barracks and the Gold Commissioner's office.

WHY THE PRICE OF POTATOES WENT UP.

The Secret of the Unpopularity of a Certain Company.

How the Miners Were "Cinched" and How the Stone Rebounded, to the Eternal Discomfiture of a Company Manager.

It has been some time since Messrs. Sour Dough and Chee Charko have met, as reported several issues ago. Several steamboats were in and among the hundreds of people "rubber necking" to catch a glimpse of the new arrivals were the two gentlemen named. They shook hands and Chee spoke up:

"Well, said Sour, "you ought to know me sufficiently by this time, not to spring the subject in a crowd."

"I don't think the A. C. company profited. When the grabbing was at its worst, they gave me ten sacks at six dollars. I was offered a thousand for them and the company could easily have got the same."

Healy Tries to Create Havoc By Reducing the Prices in His Eating and Drinking Department.

It is not a secret but a matter of common and general report that with the advent of Healy into power as the manager of the former giant octopus in the North West Territory and American-Alaska, that whenever an opportunity presented itself, the miners and "old timers" were "cinched" in their necessities. It began away back, years ago, and was specially in evidence at Forty-Mile. It culminated in Dawson last winter, when food and grub was scarce, and men up the gulches and those engaged in business here unable to procure their proper needs, the persons of easy virtue, members of the demi-monde and satellites who revolve in their particular sphere, had the ear of the N. A. T. & C. Co. at any moment for what they required. The N. A. T. & C. Co. does not occupy the position of a private corporation but one of public concern, therefore its acts are open to public criticism. For years it has been a power in this Territory, and, while ostensibly a competitor of the Hudson Bay Company, it has been so grasping and greedy as to have that institution in its pinkest days. Reports, if not wholly authorized, have been silently approved when sent broadcast over the world, to the effect, that this company owned the only boats navigating the Yukon that all the pilots familiar with its channels were in their employ; that all the wood on both sides of the river, from St. Michaels to Dawson, was owned by this great octopus, whose tentacles enclosed in murderous grasp everything movable and unmovable in the Yukon valley, and finally, that as no freight would be carried on their boats for passengers, all the supplies to be had must necessarily come from or through the auspices of the Chicago capitalists of which Captain Healy stands as manager. All of these things have been sworn to be utterly false. Competition straightforward and honest has come into the field. The people are released from the biting grasp of its self-made monopoly and consequent unpopularity. The Yukon is navigated today by innumerable boats infested by the superior of those of the old company, manned by skillful and courteous officers, and controlled by gentlemen of wide experience in the transportation business. The day of reaction has come, and it is a singular retribution in this particular instance that biblical language comes into play here "that the sins of the fathers shall come unto the children, even to the third and fourth generation."

Men are here who have expended large sums of money in fitting up business places and so on, carry large pay rolls, are foremost in the enterprises and enthusiastic in public spirit. These men have been heavy supporters of Capt. Healy's company in the past; have been his patrons and for heavy sums of money with attendant heavy profits. The management of the N. A. T. & C. Co. has, however, become so unpopular under the regime of Capt. Healy, that former active stock is now a drag on the market; as, being supplied from other sources these patrons refuse to longer patronize the concern which had so avareiciously handled them in the past.

The saloon keepers must be punished, as was done recently in cutting prices on the fares to Seattle by the N. A. T. & C. Co., now it is a cut on the prices of drinks. There is an eating and drinking department connected with the establishment. It occupies one of the company's corrugated iron buildings, and has a cafe buffet bar attachment, and through this medium, it is to be made the outlet for the surplus stock of the Healy warehouses.

Refusing to pay $180 per barrel for bottled beer to the company, the cafe retains the labels for $2.00 per bottle, and mixed drinks, whiskies, brandies, cocktails are retained at 25 cents, while the general price everywhere is 50 cents. It seems to be a move to either ruin or ruin it. All can see the effect of such a movement. It means the making of Dawson a cheap town, the breaking down of prices and as every workman must plainly see the hopeless destruction of wages and salaries. Do the people of Dawson want that?

The present manager leaves shortly for the outside, his successor now being on the way here, and probably this is his last move in the direction of doing what harm he can to the people of Dawson, but this story shows the fearful downfall of a man from the handling of millions down to the little business of selling mixed drinks at cut rates.

Credit to Whom Credit is Due. Mr. J. A. Acklen, of California, who came to Dawson over the ice last winter, has spent his whole time during the past summer experimenting on both sides of the Yukon River as well as the Klondike in the raising of vegetables and has so far proven to his entire satisfaction that lettuce, radishes, onions, turnips, rutabagas, beets, green peas, carrots, parsnips, and even potatoes can be raised in favorable localities along the foot hills of the Klondike, that he is preparing to put in a large garden the coming season. During the past summer Mr. Acklen has sold quite a large quantity of nice fresh vegetables. He has also donated to the hospital for the use of the patients many a dollar's worth at Dawson city prices. His experiment has not proven a success in all the localities in which he has tried, but so far he has proven that the south side of the hill along the north bank of the Klondike is the best for gardening purposes, and if it is there he has concluded to locate and expand his future energies in that direction. Besides his own labors he has expended over $2000 in cash over and above what he has realized from his gardens this summer in preparing the seed and caring for the crops as it grew. Among the various seeds which he brought here with him he found a few grains of barley and oats which he also planted, and they are to be seen today in his garden fully matured. This is very significant, considering the fact that hay is selling at $900 per ton in Dawson. Mr. Acklen is a practical gardener and his venture should not only receive encouragement from the people and administration here but also from the Government at Ottawa.

'We've Got 'Em Now.' A very excited gentleman was looking for some friends some few days ago and when questioned by an acquaintance, as to the cause of his excitement, he answered: "We've got 'em now, by Jinks! We've got 'em. You know the United States has passed a law giving Canadians exactly the same rights in regard to mining in Alaska that is enjoyed by Americans in the Northwest Territory. Don't you see, we've got 'em. They only allow us 250 feet of ground here, and but one claim in the district and down on the other side the allowance is 20 acres of ground, and as many of them as they can represent. We've got 'em all right for they are only entitled to 250 feet down on the American side," and the gentleman rushed off to advise some other friend of his new ideas.

Coroner's Inquest. An inquest was held over the body of J. B. Smith on Monday before Coroner Harper to inquire into the cause of death. Evidence was taken, and the verdict of the jury was as follows: "We find the deceased, J. B. Smith, came to his death by typhoid fever, while in charge of the steamer Columbia, and from the evidence given the deceased did not have the medical attention which he should have had, which shows a gross neglect. This jury recommends that all hospitals be placed under the superintendence of the N. W. M. P."

Major Steele being now on the ground and representing the head of the police department, the verdict will be placed before him in due time.

PERSONALS. Mr. H. Davis has left for his home in London. Col. Domville has left for his Canadian home. Mr. Barney Sagrue left for the outside on the Columbia. Broker Collins was among the Columbia's outgoing passengers. Mr. Goldschmidt, of the wood dealing firm, left on the Columbia. Corporal Ruff and Corporal Belcher are both down with fever. Ruff has passed the crisis. Dr. Good has received his cases of costly surgical instruments from Denver, where he left them behind.

Mr. A. W. Fairchild, the well known American attorney, went out on the Columbia to carry some very important mining cases on appeal to Ottawa.

Dr. H. H. Williams and Hepworth were summoned on Tuesday to answer a charge of practicing without registration. The case comes up next Wednesday.

Mr. H. Willis Carr, of Seattle, came in on the steamer Columbia on Monday. Mr. Carr left with a few days delay. He reports a pleasant trip.

Mr. Geo. Corsi is going to the outside on one of the first boats. He has disposed of his interests in the Mining Exchange business with which he has been intimately connected, to his partner, E. Leroy Pelletier. Mr. Corsi takes out with him some very good Dominion and other property to sell.

Admiral Cervera has been ordered to report immediately at Madrid. Seventy-five thousand of the American volunteers will be mustered out of the service immediately, and others will be retained until until the peace terms are finally arranged.

Judge Day, Secretary of State, will resign his position in a short time to accept an appointment on the U. S. Bench. His successor will be the present ambassador to England, Mr. Day.

In a number of the surrendered Cuban towns, notices were found by the American officers proclaiming great victories to the Spanish arms in the Philippines, and assuring the people of the inevitable triumph of the Spanish forces.

Admiral Dewey has sent word to the authorities asking for assistance relative to the treatment of the Philippine insurgents. He has been directed to govern Manila leniently, and treat all alike, including both insurgents and Spaniards.

None but the best quality of goods have been purchased by us and all have been specially prepared and adapted for Klondike use. JOSEPH LADUE, PRESIDENT.

The Columbian Returns. The Canadian Development Co's steamer, Columbia arrived in Dawson on Monday and left on her second trip to White Horse rapids on Tuesday. The return of the Columbia is a noteworthy event in steamboat circles, by reason of the fact that a great many people had predicted that the steamer would not be able to make the trip. Capt. Geo. M. Shaver states, however, that no difficulty was encountered on the entire trip. The Columbia even went up the Five Finger rapids without the use of cable or rope of any kind. She brought down with her 100 passengers and her freight consisted of outfit and general merchandise amounting to 25 tons, in addition to 18 head of cattle.

Public Notice. Public notice is hereby given that under a writ of execution issued on the 30th day of August, 1898, upon a judgment made and entered in the court of the Yukon Territory, in the case of Alexander vs. A.
