

The Weekly Monitor.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 28th, 1883.

A sect, calling themselves "Missionaries," claiming to belong to the division of the Episcopal church, known as the Rite of the Mission, held a series of meetings in Halifax last week, and preached doctrines that are specially distasteful to Low Churchmen, whom the Rite, the chief Missionary of the Mission, denounces as "perjured renegades ordained at the Restoration."

The "Presbyterian Witness" in a just article on the Missionaries says:—We do not know Mr. Maturin has heard of Thomas Scott, John Newton, Simon, Bickersteth, Ryle and other men of eminent piety and world-wide renown, but we do not think that he would describe them as "perjured renegades," if he knew them. The truth is, Mr. Maturin is not a wise man.

The Missionaries preach up the doctrine of the confessional and priestly absolution, and invited congregations by sending around from door to door tracts and notices when and where the meetings were to be held. The novelty of the matter of course attracted large numbers, but it is earnestly to be hoped that the doctrines that a sinner must "go to the priest to be absolved from sin," in direct contradiction to the teaching of the Bible, will not obtain any serious hearing in the Episcopal church.

Two parishes, St. Paul's and St. Mark's refused to welcome the "Missionaries." Rev. Dr. Hill, the talented Rector of St. Paul's church read the following protest on Sunday morning the 18th inst:—

"Although very deeply pained by the occurrence which has taken place in this Church of England in this city within a few days, I had intended for the present to pass by them in silence.

"As respects the observations made relative to the Rector of this Parish, they are of little moment to any one but myself, and I consider them unworthy of notice; but when attention is called to the doctrines of the church, when all that has been held dear by the Protestant Church of the Reformation is assailed, and when an attempt is made to subvert the teaching of God's Holy Word as to the forgiveness of sins, and to invite silly women and weak-minded men into the confessional of medieval times, silence can be no longer maintained, and in God's name and in God's House I enter my most solemn protest against the whole proceedings of the Missionaries now conducting service in this city.

"I present I say no more, and am united to the heart that, in my advanced years I am compelled to say so much.

"De. H.'s standing and learning entitle his opinions to great weight, and his protest will undoubtedly have the effect desired, particularly among those whose defective education might otherwise allow them to be led astray by the specious doctrines of the 'Missionaries.'"

STANDARD TIME.—On our outside will be found a lucid description of the manner by which the proposed standard time is to be established. If the time adopted in Nova Scotia, we would take our time from the same meridian, that is, from the 60th meridian, and when it was noon there it would be noon here and everywhere else in Canada east of the St. Croix. Standard time will be a great benefit generally, and once understood, there will be no difficulty. Time is so time at all watches or clocks are over alike except by chance. Some persons run their time keepers by Reed's whistle, some by the Foundry whistle, some by station time, some by Station's time, and the majority by guess work.

DR. REED'S FUTURE WORK.—Many may be in doubt as to the character of the duties at Acadia College for which Dr. Reed has been selected. The Acadia Athenaeum thus defines them:—

(1) To give a moral general diffusion to educational doctrines. (2) To promote the study of educational subjects. (3) To teach the history of education. (4) To stimulate the higher positions in the school service of the country. (5) To promote the transformation of teaching from an occupation to a profession.

Mr. Tufts of Acadia College has written a letter to the Halifax Herald denying the report that the St. Anne's Silver Mine has collapsed, but does not give any reason for his assertion. The Acadia Gazette also denies the statement of the collapse, saying that yet no fever has caused the temporary suspension of the work. We would like to ask Mr. Tufts and our contemporaries, whether or not it is correct that the secretary of the mine, based on the Director's report, and further that there has not been another call for a large sum of money?

The Marquis of Lorne is keeping to the promise not to forget Canada, though no longer officially connected with the Dominion. On the 20th of next month he will deliver a lecture on "Canada" in the Town Hall, Birmingham, and he will also read a paper on the same subject at the next meeting of the Colonial Institute. At the Birmingham lecture the Mayor will preside, and the municipal authorities will tender his Lordship a public reception on his arrival in the town.

It is understood that Mr. C. J. Bridges, general manager of the Hudson Bay Company, while in Ottawa, recently presented the claims of the Hudson Bay Company for losses sustained during the Rebel rebellion in 1865. The claim against the Dominion Government is $50,000.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS IN AHEAD.—We do not very often advert to the subject of arrears of subscription; but occasionally we are compelled to do so. We purpose adding some new machinery to our office at once, and we need considerable money to meet the bill for the same, therefore we earnestly request our friends, as we trust all our subscribers are, who are one, two, three or more years behind in their payments, to come forward with the arrears due us. Do not think because the individual amount you owe us is small, it is of little moment, rather remember that all our receipts as a rule are in small sums—it is the aggregate number of them that counts. Our subscribers, taking them as a whole, pay us quite promptly, and we do not wish to be understood as finding fault, this notice being meant as a spur to those who are in arrears, and our obligations without difficulty or unnecessary expense.

Parker, Esq., appeared for Mr. Lowrey, Mr. Chesley defending the boy. Wilcox was fined $2 and costs. The case excited considerable interest, owing to various circumstances in connection therewith, but as we understand an appeal is to be made from the judgment, we will not make any further comments. The parties in the suit all live at Granville.

SMOKE, MARINE.—A very large and representative meeting of the members of the school section took place according to notice in the school house on Monday evening last. Mr. James Fellows in the chair. Owing to some misunderstanding having arisen, doubts as to the constitutionality of the meeting were expressed, and as they could not be satisfactorily explained away, the meeting was practically an informal one.

UPON MOTION the minutes of a meeting held on the second Tuesday of November were read which simply stated that the meeting should be adjourned to the present night, and receive the report of the auditing committee.

Mr. Lockett, on behalf of the committee, stated that he had understood from the Secretary that the annual meeting had adjourned sine die, therefore, the present meeting was not constitutionally a meeting, and it was not necessary to have their report read. A motion was made to suspend the meeting until the next meeting, and it was carried.

ANOTHER BOMB.—On Wednesday night last the store of Mr. J. H. Chase, Middleton, was broken into and between $200 and $400 in value taken therefrom, consisting of goods of the store, and some cash that was left in the till. Entrance was effected by the back door. Suspicion pointed to two characters in the neighborhood, and a watch was set, which all appearances resulted in nothing beyond a doubt that they were guilty and in recovering a large portion of the stolen property. The thieves, however, unfortunately escaped, but a vigorous search is being made for them.

It is time this outlawing of the law should be made in the law to this effect, since it is one of the most distasteful practices that have come down to us from old times.

A valuable Trotter.

The Halifax Chronicle has the following in reference to the late Mrs. Belle, notice of whose sale for a high figure was made mention of in a late issue:—

"The mare 'Belle,' once owned by Mr. G. F. Blanchard, formerly of Kentville but now of Windsor, has gained a reputation second to no horse in the Province. Mr. Blanchard bought her in Cornwall in 1878 as an ordinary colt. Her dam was 'Old Trotting Dick,' a well-known horse in Kings County, and she was sired by a 'Lord Nelson.' Mr. Blanchard broke her with his own hands and he kept her for five years. During that time she showed speed, but only as a colt, and as an ordinary driving horse. She was once only on the course, and that was in 1881, when she won the race for colts on the ice, beating several Halifax horses. She was purchased last summer by Mr. H. H. Gardner of Montreal, and she was sold to Mr. Beckwith of Bridgetown, and shortly after she was bought by Mr. J. R. Ellis, of Boston, a well known commission merchant. She was taken to Boston and is now owned by Mr. Sterns Ellis, who paid for her the high price of $2,500. The owner wrote to Mr. Blanchard that he is highly pleased with her. He drives her along with his mare 'Lady Mack,' who can trot her 2 2/3, and says 'Belle' can outstrip her. She has won two races already and is improving all the time. She behaves well on the track and can trot a race. This is probably the most remarkable horse ever raised in the Province, and it may be satisfactory for sporting men to know that Mr. Blanchard owns her colt, sired by 'Confidence,' which shows the same characteristics of speed. She is 'Belle Belle' in color is blood red, and she weighs about 14 hands high and weighs only 850.

Did She Die?—No, she is injured and suffered from colic, sired by 'Confidence,' which shows the same characteristics of speed. She is 'Belle Belle' in color is blood red, and she weighs about 14 hands high and weighs only 850.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE for December is a Christmas Number, with extraordinary wealth and variety of papers, poems, and pictures, by an array of authors and artists (American and English) seldom, if ever, brought together before.

This will take the place of the magazine Harper's Christmas, '82, which will not be repeated this year.

The Number opens with a charming Christmas number page, drawn by Dismal, the artist of 'A Girl I Know.'

The opening paper is by George William Curtis, the distinguished orator and editor of the 'Commons,' which he has written for years. It deals with 'The Kingdom of the Child,' by a most beautiful, and will impress readers with its sentiment and lovely Christmas joy, while Mrs. Curtis adds to it a charming picture of child-faces.

The poet Whittier contributes a beautiful Christmas poem, 'The Supper of St. Gregory,' illustrated. But 'The Kingdom of the Child,' by a most beautiful, and will impress readers with its sentiment and lovely Christmas joy, while Mrs. Curtis adds to it a charming picture of child-faces.

General News.

To those who were born in a land whose history dates only from the 15th century, and where everything comparatively modern, there is a peculiar charm in these old German cities with their narrow streets, lofty houses, antiquated architecture, and quaint old market-places.

It was formerly strongly fortified; but the old walls have lately been removed, and on their site pleasant promenades have been laid, which separate the old city from more modern suburbs.

There is no more fertile field for observing the character and customs of a people than the streets of a large city. Although Leipzig is one of the most flourishing and progressive cities of Germany, it could hardly be said to be a typical German city.

right. This help would not only be pecuniary help, but by watching and taking care of the sick, it would speak of the hospitality which all persons visiting the Province were willing to accord to the inhabitants of the Province, not only where they sojourned, but they were invited to remain, and to be invited to those in Boston, as well as those in the Province. He ended by saying that the twenty thousand Provincialists of Boston and vicinity, and that he would like to see at least two thousand in the Association.

Mr. Alexander McKim made a few timely and pleasing remarks, and then he turned to the subject of the Provincialists of the Province, and he said that he was sure that the Provincialists of the Province were not only willing to be invited to remain, but they were invited to those in Boston, as well as those in the Province.

There is no more fertile field for observing the character and customs of a people than the streets of a large city. Although Leipzig is one of the most flourishing and progressive cities of Germany, it could hardly be said to be a typical German city.

A Nonplussed Monkey. An Italian organ-grinder was riding the "Little Widow" yesterday in the shade of a telegraph pole in South Fifth street. The antiprophet that was attending to the finances of the combination broke his string by climbing a pole too many around the lower part of the telegraph post and thus released he ascended to one of the cross-bars. The musician thinking that the monkey was not attending to business, gave the string a jerk without looking around or stopping the music. The resistance told him something was the matter. He glanced around, saw that the string was fastened to the telegraph pole, and that his collector had abandoned and asked in a troubled voice: "Where him monkey gone?" Then he saw the children looking toward the top of the pole and glancing upward. Taking his hat and swinging it, he addressed the monkey in vigorous Italian.

The monkey looked down upon him loftily, and the rotary musician puffed up an empty tomato can and flourished it in a threatening manner. The monkey retired to the top cross-bar, and apparently to secure himself from being knocked from his perch, grasped a telegraph wire on one side of him, and then carefully reached out with his other arm and caught hold of another wire. Suddenly he seemed to lose interest in the movements of his master, and looked curiously, first at one hand and then at the other. Then he let go of the wire, and began a minute inspection of the palm of his hand. Having satisfied himself that nothing was the matter with them, he took hold of the wire again, and glanced down at his master. Then he let go again, inspected his palms once more, looked around him in a suspicious way, and carefully let himself down with his tail from cross bar to cross bar, till he could descend the pole. This he did head foremost, and with a look that indicated that he thought it better to fly to his hole which he knew than to endure these the nature of which was a puzzle to him.

NEWSPAPER DUES.—Here is how a brother journalist puts it:— "We presume that some people think that newspaper men are persistent ducks: let a farmer place himself in a similar position and see if he would not do the same.

"Suppose he raises one thousand bushels of wheat, and his neighbor should come and buy a bushel, and the price was only the small sum of two dollars or less, and the neighbor says, 'I will pay you the amount in a few days.' As the farmer does not want to be snubbed as a small matter, he says 'all right.'"

"Another comes in the same way, until the whole of the thousand bushels is traded out to one thousand different persons, and not one of the purchasers concerns himself about it, for it is a small amount that the farmer and, of course, that would not help him any."

"He does not realize that the farmer has frittered away his large crop of wheat and that its value is due to the thousand little dealers, and that he is actually embarrassed in his business because his debtors treat it as a little matter. But if all would pay him promptly, which they could do as well as not, it would be a very large amount to the farmer and enable him to carry on his business without difficulty."

"The above comparison is too true of the difficulties that the newspaper man has to contend with."

A story of advice promptly taken by a young man of Boston, with results which staggered the adviser, is circulating in that city, and is thus recounted by the Courier: A young gentleman moving in good society, but whose prouk account is by no means flattering, sought out one of our wealthy citizens about a month ago and told him he wanted to speak to him on a very important affair. Cross said to his visitor: I am busy just now, and must request you to be brief. What is the business? The young man thoroughly embarrassed by the brusqueness of the other, could only stammer: "Very important business." "Well," said Cross, "let me give you this advice: don't put it off till to-morrow, if you can do it to-day. That has been the theory on which I have made my success in life." The young gentleman stammered his thanks, departed, and that very day went before a magistrate with the daughter of Cross and married her then and there. When the old gentleman found out he for the first time began to doubt the universal application of his theory. However, it is understood that all has been for given.

An interesting night experiment has been conducted on the race-course at Vienna, near the Electrical Exhibition. The volunteers of the association for the Saving of Life lit up an imaginary battlefield, in order to prove the advantage of reflectors in finding the wounded. The Crown Prince and several of the Archdukes were present, with a number of officers. By means of the great reflector of Messrs. Eggers placed above the entrance door of the Exhibition, some sixty medical students lying slowly representing wounded men were picked up, one hundred members of the volunteer fire brigade transported them to the hospital in less than a quarter of an hour.

As a matter of fact, the "Little Widow" reported that of a 247 steamer shipped during 1883, only 1,446 declared themselves American born, while the consulmaster, judging from their names, said that at least 10,000 of them were American born. Similar statements were made by the shipping commissioners in Philadelphia, Baltimore and Boston.

The wheat crop in France shows a falling off from last year. During the past few years her importations from America have been large; but this year she will be compelled to fill her increase her importations.

Fitting Young Horses for Hard Work. In some line of business in which horses take a principal part, the duties are light in summer, but increase when the fall season sets in. Those who work young horses do not usually give consideration enough to the fact that their natural growth creates a demand for liberal feeding, and that the attainment of large size can only be reached through abundant food being given. The working of young horses always involves risk, as the joints, tendons and ligaments are not strong, and the muscles are unaccustomed to the motions and severe strains that the duties of labor throw upon them. Hence we often see young horses that have done work upon the farm from three till four or five years old, travelling only on soft ground or dirt roads, worked with great moderation, looked up beside steady going horses, and, if driven faster than a walk, they give moderate jog, and if at the plow, moving with a very deliberate step, and allowing a breathing spell at the end of the furrow. These young horses have usually been shot but little of the time, wearing about for a few weeks in winter, provided they were wanted for an occasional trip upon the road.

It is a common complaint that the farm and farm life are not appreciated by our people. We long for the more elegant pursuits, or the ways and fashions of the town. But the farmer has the most sane and natural occupation, and ought to find life sweeter if he is highly seasonal, than any other. He alone, strictly speaking, has a home. How can a man take track and thrive without land? He writes his history upon his field. How many ties, how many resources he has; his friendships, with his cattle, his team, his dog, his trees, the satisfaction of his growing crops, in his improved fields; his intimacy with Nature, with bird and beast, and with the quickening elemental forces; his cooperation with the cloud, the sun, the seasons, heat, wind, rain, frost. Nothing will take the various social distempers which the town and artificial life breed out of a man like farming, like direct and loving contact with the soil. It draws out the patient, the humble, the patient, his patience and reverence, and restores the proper tone to his system.

Cling to the farm, make much of it, put yourself into it, bestow your heart and your brain upon it, so that it shall be yours. It humbles him; teaches him patience and reverence, and restores the proper tone to his system.

Good FARMING and GOOD STOCK.—A Canadian prize essay has it that a very true indication of the character of the farmer is the quality and condition of the animals he keeps around him; good farming is almost invariably associated with good stock, and to a man of cultivated taste there are few more prolific sources of enjoyment. All the different breeds of cattle, sheep, swine and poultry have their admirers, who can claim superiority for the breed, and doubtless each breed has its particular merits. There can, however, be but one breed of each kind kept to advantage, an ordinary sized farm; it requires wisdom to judiciously select which is the best suited to the place and circumstances. In attempting to raise more than one breed at the same time many an enterprising man has failed to earn a reputation for being a good breeder of any kind. The farmer who desires to stay to remain on the farm will certainly find the breeding of choice animals one of the most salutary inducements. It has powerful attractions for many, and they who see no beauty in these things are now fewer than in former times. One of the most encouraging hopes for our country is the prospective improvement of its live stock.

It has always appeared to the writer that the mode of killing fowls by wringing their necks was an unwholesome one, and also an unhealthy one to the consumer of the fowl. Killed in this way, the blood coagulates in the body of the fowl, and soon becomes putrid. It's tendency therefore is to render the flesh unwholesome. There may be no perceptible taste or smell about it, but decay has commenced, and the germs of disease have been formed. Instead of wringing the neck, let the head be severed from the body at one blow, and the feet hung up by the feet until the last drop of blood has left the veins. Whatever poisonous or injurious germs may have been in the blood will thus have escaped, leaving the flesh sweet and wholesome. Wringing the neck seems barbarous. When the life of an animal is taken let it be done with as little suffering as possible.

If you want to have no trouble with heaves in your horses be sure that they are fed no dusty and dirty hay, which is the prolific source of this annoyance. Ordinary clean hay can always be fed with safety if properly cut up, moistened, and mixed with good grain; but to feed the dusty or dirty sorts is very injurious. Clover, owing to its liability to crumble, often gets dirty, even after storage, and should never be fed without being previously moistened.

When a tree in an old orchard dies, dig it out and fill the hole with rich dirt from the roadside and a quantity of manure. Then do not plant a new tree in the same place, it will be of no use, as the roots of surrounding trees will find the new feeding place and eventually starve out the new comer. The trees on either side will bear more in an increased crop than the tree ever would, if it lived to fifty years old.

Choose trees for transplanting from the best parts of the woods (as much as possible) where they have not been exposed. Do not take them over night or ten feet in height, except with very special care. Do not judge the time necessary for taking them up well, with a good ball.
