SEES OCCULT IN DEATH OF LORD
CARNARVON

Conan Doyle, in New York, Speaks of Elementals.

Egyptians Know Lot About Spiritism, He Says—Believes, However, that King Tut's Spirit is Not Concerned With His Bones.

When Conan Doyle, who arrived in this country yesterday for a second series of lectures on spiritualism, today expressed the belief that an "evil elemental" brought into being by Egyptian occultism, or the spirit of Tutankhamen might have caused the death of Lord Carnarvon, who opened the tomb of the Egyptian Pharaoh.

Sir Arthur was asked if he agreed with Miss Marie Corbell, the English novelist, who warned the explorer that it was dangerous to enter the tomb because the spirit of the Egyptian King might be angered.

Lord Carnarvon's death, which occurred early yesterday from blood-poisoning, resulted from an insect bite following his excavations. "It might be a dangerous thing to dig into those graves," admitted Sir Arthur, who claims to have conversed with the souls of those departed. "One does not know what elementals existed in those days and how long these elemental spirits existed or what might be their force."

The Egyptians knew a great deal about these things that we do if they could put these elemental spirits into a bottle, they certainly would have done so."

Continuing, Sir Arthur said: "An elemental is a built-up, artificial thing, an imbued force which may be brought into being by a spirit mind or by nature. It exists of itself for a specific purpose and is not pre-created. We know very little about them, but we have had evidence of their existence, especially in regard to the Egyptians."

"There was a mummy once in the British Museum which we believe was guarded by one of these elemental spirits, a journalist who investigated the circumstances surrounding the happenings that befell the person who handled the mummy, was himself stricken immediately with typhoid and died."

"The son of a friend of mine, Sir William Ingram, found a mummy while hunting in Somaliland. Incribed on the mummy's breast were the words, 'May the person who unwraps me die rapidly and may his bones not be buried.'"

"This young man in a few days was drowned in a water course, which rose with the spring freshets, and his body never was found. "Therefore, I think it quite possible that Lord Carnarvon was misled by his death through one of these elemental spirits."

"I know the Egyptians know a lot about spiritism; all the easterners did. We are in communication with them quite often. Wise old eastern spirits are our spiritual guides. "In fact, I have such a spiritual guide myself. Through my wife, who is a medium, I often get advice from him on spiritual matters. I never consult him on material things. He says he often helps me without my knowing it. He lived 3,000 or 4,000 years ago in Arabia and was a man high in his country, and like most eastern spirits, is highly developed. "Still, we don't know whether the occult power of the Egyptians extended far enough to bring into being an elemental which could exist for several thousand years, although it is possible, since a spirit is eternal." "The Sir Arthur, smiling, added: "You know, a great many people have dug into graves without anything happening to them, and I'm inclined to believe that by now old King Tut's spirit is far enough along not to care a tuppence what happens to his old bones."

STATUE FIFTY-TWO CENTURIES OLD FOUND IN MESOPOTAMIA

Philadelphia, April 6.—A statue 5,200 years old has been unearthed in Mesopotamia by the joint expedition of the University of Pennsylvania and the British Museum, according to a report received yesterday by Dr. George B. Gordon, director of the expedition. The report, from C. L. Woolley, head of the excavation, said the statue was found while unearthing the Ziggurat Gate, on the site of Ur, of the Chaldees. It is a statue of Enannatum, King of Lagash, who reigned in 3200 B. C., and was said to be one of the oldest in existence. The statue is covered with historic inscriptions.

CANADA HAS RICH LITERARY FUTURE

Fine Outlook is Opinion of Sir Arthur Currie at Toronto Meeting—Sir Henry Newbolt Speaks.

(Canadian Press) Toronto, April 6.—Oratory of a brilliant and arresting character marked the second evening meeting in Massey Hall of the convention of the National Council of Education. "Literature and the Future," was dealt with by Sir Henry Newbolt, an address which was an earnest appeal for a return to Bible reading. As the greatest thing in human literature, Sir Henry said, it might be expected that it would take the very highest place in education, instead of which, he said, the reading of the Bible was becoming less instead of more of a habit.

A statement, delivered in the United States of the National Bureau of French Literature, proved a fascinating speaker on the subject of "Literature and International Understanding." Rev. Elmer Crumphy, former principal of Wesley College, Winnipeg, spoke on "Biography in Education."

Canada's Future. Sir Arthur Currie, President of McGill University, chairman of the evening said he could not regard Canada's literary future as rich with promises. Formed of two great races, rich with traditions, a fine Canadian literature was certain to be ultimately realized.

Literature, said Sir Arthur, was not something reserved for the cultured few. Every great writer, he said, had written for the many. Great literature had always gone in search of the humblest child who can read.

Power Company's Request For Injunction Denied

Chief Justice Takes Ground That Company Would Suffer No Irreparable Injury by Construction of Civic Distribution System—Trial Before Chancery Court on April 17.

Chief Justice Sir Douglas Hazen yesterday refused to grant an interlocutory injunction to restrain the city from constructing a distribution system. His judgment was delivered very soon after Hon. Dr. J. B. M. Baxter, K.C., M.P., City Solicitor, had concluded his rebuttal in reply to arguments advanced by Dr. F. R. Taylor, K.C., and M. G. Teed, K.C., acting for the plaintiff company.

Dr. Taylor opened his argument at the commencement of the afternoon session. He said that, as the Musquash development had been estimated at $800,000, and that already an expenditure of nearly $200,000 had been incurred, by the same process of "progression" it could be said that the civic distribution system estimated by Mr. Teed at $600,000, would cost in the end several millions.

Dr. Baxter—"Your authorities?" Dr. Taylor—"I shall cite them in a moment." He went on to discuss the Kennit report, the Ross report and the Scheidtmann report, all of which, he said, had been paid for by the city and all of which condemned the Musquash. Yet, on the face of these adverse reports, the city had contracted for the current. "It is time to call a halt," said Dr. Taylor.

The Chief Justice remarked that while the courts might think that the Common Council was acting unwisely, they had no power to prevent their actions. Dr. Taylor replied that the councillors were not acting as trustees for the public by so doing. He developed his argument against the Common Council at considerable length.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING.

The Board of Trade does well to take up the question of vocational training and to bring into conference with itself the Board of School Trustees and City Council. St. John must make provision for the training of its boys and girls along practical lines. There are two ways of doing it. One would be to erect a vocational high school, and the other to erect a composite school where the vocational as well as the classical training could be given.

THE REAL ISSUE.

It is not with any degree of relish The Times finds itself in direct opposition to some excellent citizens in the matter of hydro distribution. It believes they are wrong, and that time will prove them to have been so.

THE GENDER OF THE JOB.

Her Play—Don't you think it is just a little bit queer that whenever a man happens to give any consideration to his wife's household duties, he efforts to think them piquant and small and trifling, but that whenever he engages in some chore around the place he goes at it as if the fate of nations depended on the task? I manage to keep the house bright and cheerful, clean and habitable, prepare twenty-one meals a week, not to mention a dozen snacks between times, and you seem to think it is only a matter of the turning of a hand. But I have observed, my dear, that when you put me around in the basement for a half an hour, you present yourself in a state of utter exhaustion and seem offended that I do not decorate your house and dress you as you wish.

THE RIDDLE OF THE SPINNING WHEEL

Being An Exploit in the Career of Hamilton Cleek, Detective By MARY E. AND THOMAS W. HANSEW

(Continued from yesterday) "Thanks very much. I'll rely on you then. And we might even want you to lend a hand. What's that, Miss Duggan? Lead a hand for what? Oh, simply in capturing a somewhat wild mare that has got loose in this part of the country and has been kicking up a pretty shindy all over the place."

And yet—I don't know. Anyhow, I want you all to come along to the library again this morning—and for the last time. After today you ought not to be put to any further worry and inconvenience, my dear young lady. But what I want you to do is to assemble all the members of the immediate household together for me, and tell them I've discovered a perfectly new person—someone who, so far as you or I know, has never even entered the house at all, at any time. So you see, that's not such bad news, is it?"

"You mean to say that—you mean to say that you can prove that neither Ross nor—Captain Macdonald is guilty of that terrible crime?" she gave out in a shrill voice, shutting her hands together in her emotion, and breathing hard. "Oh, Mr. Deland, if you have only found out that—"

"Not quite so fast, please," he responded a trifle sternly. "I'm afraid I can't give you any of the facts yet. Only I want you to know that—in one direction, at any rate—you may have some cause to hope. That is, of course, if my deductions are correct. It all depends. Even a policeman can make a mistake— isn't that so, Mr. Narkom?—and find himself led away upon a false scent. It depends a lot upon the willingness of the fox he's in pursuit of. And in this case, when there's a—animal's female, one has the disadvantage of the woman's intuitive faculties and natural gifts of detection. The female of the species—you know what Kipling said, of course? That sounds rude, doesn't it? But it's amazingly true, all the same—yourself, I'm sure, always excepted."

"Then you have nothing more to tell me, Mr. Deland? Nothing more to tell me?"

"I did that, sir."

"Good. No names mentioned. Constantable, but you found some clues there, I take it?"

"Yes, sir. I'm looking from side to side of the room, as though uncertain how to produce the clue in case of discovery. But the door was within the confines of the small place. Then he put his hand into his breast-pocket and drew forth a little box of crimson-covered flexible electric wire."

"Yes, sir—except for a photograph of a young woman. It was hidden in a carved wood box on the dressing-table. I brought it along in case you might find some use for it. Here it is."

"Speaking, he drew the bit of paste-board from his pocket and handed it across to Cleek, who bent his eyes upon it, gave a little start at something which was written across it in bold capitals and underlined three lines, gazed a moment at the pictured face, and then promptly opened his pocket-book and placed it within."

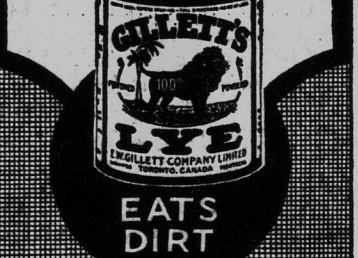

"Very good, Constantable. Mr. Narkom, you will do me a personal favour if you arrange for P. C. Mackay's promotion. He did good work last night, and it must not be forgotten. You may go, Constantable."

GILLETT'S LYE

Comparatively few people realize to what extent Gillett's Lye can be used to advantage in every home.

For instance, with one can of Gillett's Lye and five and a half pounds of lard or grease, ten pounds of good hard soap can be made. Use one tablespoon of Gillett's Lye in gallon of water for cleaning and disinfecting refrigerators, sinks, garbage cans, tiled floors, baths and toilets.

Useful for over 500 purposes.

build my hopes on save that a new element has entered the case—"

"Together with an old element—yes," responded Cleek softly, with a stab at his heart for her pathetic appearance. "Just that. No more. I can tell nothing until I have you all there before me, and then—we'll, perhaps I shall be able to unravel the mystery for you, and put an end to your sufferings in that direction, at any rate. Would you be good enough, and you're passing to ask the constable on duty outside the library door to come to me a moment? Mr. Narkom and I want to question him about one or two things. There's another one inside the room, so there's no chance of any one getting in and falsifying clues while he's away. Thank very much, and please."

She passed out, pale-faced, utterly forlorn, and the sagging droop of her shoulders sent another stab of pity through Cleek's heart, while Mr. Narkom—tender-hearted as a chicken, as he himself often put it—blew his nostrils and passed the handkerchief servitiously across his eyes, and turned a sad face to his famous ally. "I might have been a bit of help to her, you know. Human sympathy's a comforting thing."

"But not always so comforting when it emanates from the police, who will probably write her up as a mad woman, and Cleek with a twisted smile, said: "No, my friend. Bless your tender heart for the kind thought, but in this case it's up to me to treat wisely. And the least suspicious glance cast at a guilty party, the least flutter of eye, the lid or brow in expression of one's knowledge—and the cat would be out of the bag, and all our trouble would be nothing. I'm going to play 'possum today and lay low. And you've just got to forgive me before-hand and put up with it. I've no doubt your own theories coincide with mine but—"

Here P. C. Mackay's foot struck the Constable. Mr. Narkom and I just wanted to have a few words with you, with reference to what arrangements you made for me last night. You followed out my instructions?"

P. C. Mackay, who bent his eyes upon Cleek for the very work he had been given to do, nodded his head, and his hand came to the salute.

"I did that, sir."

"Good. No names mentioned. Constantable, but you found some clues there, I take it?"

"Yes, sir. I'm looking from side to side of the room, as though uncertain how to produce the clue in case of discovery. But the door was within the confines of the small place. Then he put his hand into his breast-pocket and drew forth a little box of crimson-covered flexible electric wire."

"Yes, sir—except for a photograph of a young woman. It was hidden in a carved wood box on the dressing-table. I brought it along in case you might find some use for it. Here it is."

"Speaking, he drew the bit of paste-board from his pocket and handed it across to Cleek, who bent his eyes upon it, gave a little start at something which was written across it in bold capitals and underlined three lines, gazed a moment at the pictured face, and then promptly opened his pocket-book and placed it within."

"Very good, Constantable. Mr. Narkom, you will do me a personal favour if you arrange for P. C. Mackay's promotion. He did good work last night, and it must not be forgotten. You may go, Constantable."

"Thank you, sir."

"The man saluted smartly, grunted all over his ruddy Scotch face at the word 'promotion,' and went back to his position outside the library door, his head in the clouds and his heart longing for the time when he could impart this wonderful knowledge to his Maggie, and see her big eyes brighten."

Meanwhile Cleek, the door shut once more, dived down into his pocket and traced the little bit of red electric wire which he had picked up in the library that first day before the tragedy had

Again there was silence; meanwhile each looked at the other and the same name framed itself unconsciously upon every lip—Ross Duggan. It was not spoken aloud, but Cleek could read it as he looked about him. Then Lady Paula spoke.

"Then—it was Ross? It was that fearful and cruel son of an unknowing and innocent old man, just as I knew it to be?" she shrieked excitedly, jumping to her feet and turning to Ross and seizing him by the shoulder as though she would tear him link from limb. "Oh, sacramento! I knew it! I knew it! Wicked, cruel creature that you are! Ungrateful—best—"

Cleek caught her sharply by the arm and spun her around as though she had been made of paper. His face was grim.

"One moment," he cried in a sharp staccato. "This lady is going to give trouble. Well, then, the moment can be delayed no longer. Constantable—bring in your prisoner!"

"He gave a shrill whistle, strode across the room, fixed the key into the lock, and in an instant there was pandemonium.

For of a sudden there was a stifled scream from somewhere in the room, a hurried breath and a woman's voice shrieked out, "Oh, I cannot bear it any longer—I cannot! I cannot!" Then the door flashed open to admit of two policemen, who had slung between them the stooping figure of a man cise-

THINKS MAYA RUINS GO BACK TO 450 A. D.

Dr. Morley Believes Chichen-Itza Civilization was the Oldest in America—Finds Signs of Great City.

Merida, Yucatan, Mexico, April 5.—(Associated Press)—The careful examination of the Maya ruins of Chichen-Itza, just completed by the American scientist, Dr. Sylvanus G. Morley, has brought to light evidences of civilization dating back to the middle of the fifth century A. D., which Dr. Morley says the most advanced of any in the Western Hemisphere prior to the discovery of America by Columbus.

and spent some time at Chichen-Itza studying scientific and practical aspects of the archaeological problem which it presents. It was apparent from this that the work would involve the services of a large number of scientific specialists, as well as extensive excavations covering a long term of years. Dr. Morley said today that the ruins of Chichen-Itza were very extensive, the religious and civic centres covering an area two miles long and one mile wide. Extending from this centre in all directions for three to five miles are the remains of stone buildings. These include pyramids, platforms, terraces, plazas and paved roads, all now buried in a thick tropical foliage. They do not include the dwellings of the early people, which were more lightly constructed and are now so obliterated that no trace of them has been found.

than a quarter of a million, and possibly half a million." Dr. Morley is leaving for Mexico City, where he will stop for two weeks, travelling thence overland to Guatemala, where he will excavate two temples at the ruins of Quirigua during the latter part of April. Upon the completion of his work he intends to return to Washington.

Three Week-End

The Maid of the Mountains song that "the first love is the last love and the best love of all" seems pretty well applicable to those 39c Chocolates. We try to tell people they are not the best in the world—simply a special value for the money. They listen to the last words we utter, take a chance and keep asking for more. So that's that. Ten centers this week and coatings and all belong to one of the best families—but we've said too much already!

East End Street Car
Sits Down to Reflect

The Way Was Long, The Wind Was Cold, the Vehicle Infirm And Old.

The East St. John street car does not propose to let the West St. John cars get into print alone as gay and reckless caretakers who start out now and then to muss up the scenery along the line. The East End on one of its trips last evening developed a small fire, and a short circuit or something else that gave a lady passenger a shock that made her and others sit up and take notice. The incipient flame was extinguished by using snow. The car then sped gallily on, but when returning toward the summit of the hill beyond the County Hospital it hepped off the rails and sat down to reflect. Visitors to the County Hospital, after waiting a long time in the cold and damp air for the car's arrival to bring them back to the city, trailed over the hill and found the motorman trying to coax the car back on the rails. It flatly refused to be coaxed or coerced. Some men who had got on board and paid their fares had got off again and set out on foot. They could not get their fares back, for these had been dropped into the New Brunswick Power Company's safe. The folk from the hospital boarded the car and sat down. The car was made to haul the other car still. Finally the motorman walked to the County Hospital and telephoned for help. After another long wait a car in charge of one man arrived. An attempt was made to haul the other car on the rails. There was no lantern, not even a searchlight. Some sand was needed but there was no dish in which to carry it. A passenger produced some paper and a piece of cloth was also found. This saved the motorman from carrying the sand in his hat. But time passed and still the stalled car refused to be disturbed. Another journey was made to the County Hospital and more help implored. The passengers were transferred to the other car that had previously arrived and were brought in to Haymarket Square. Those coming to the head King Street station were able to get a car to that point, but those for the south end were told the car walking there was the motorman's barn for the night. To go to the barn would not shorten the journey of one passenger for the east side. Henceforth walked home through dark and sloppy streets, arriving at midnight, after a most conviving evening of an up-to-date street car service by a company that yearns to make its patrons happy.

CHARGES AGAINST AGRARIAN CHIEF

Westmorland Member Says Mr. Fawcett "Flooded the Country With Rum" During Municipal Election—No Response.

Fredericton, N. B., April 6.—(By Canadian Press)—That he had "flooded the country with rum when running municipal elections in Westmorland county" and that he "did not then think of the poor man whom he was thereby driving to Hell" was the charge leveled at A. Chase Fawcett, leader of the Progressive group by Fred W. Estabrook, Liberal member for Westmorland, during the budget debate in the legislature last night.

"And now he comes here as the apostle of temperance and advocate of prohibition," added Mr. Estabrook.

"He won his elections, didn't he?" queried Lewis Smith, member for Albert and whip of the opposition party.

"He won some of them," replied Mr. Estabrook, "I don't know if it was the rum that won them or not."

Mr. Fawcett was present in the House at the time but did not reply.

VESSEL ASHORE
ON CAPE COD

Chatham, Mass., April 6.—The British steamship Competitor, a freighter of 2,200 tons, ran ashore on Cape Cod near Nauset, today, in a fog. The steamer, at first believed to be a rum-runner, was apparently light.

The Competitor was last reported at Seaport, Maine, on March 30, after a voyage from Port Talbot, Wales. She was under command of Captain Benn.

The Competitor was high and dry at low tide, and the coast guards from the Nauset station were able to walk out to help.

LOCAL NEWS

TO LECTURE IN SACKVILLE. Mrs. E. Atherton Smith will give her lecture, "France and Belgium revisited," next Wednesday evening in Peetovon Hall, Sackville, under the auspices of the Local Council of Women.

REV. MR. SWETNAM BETTER. Many friends of Rev. J. A. Swetnam, pastor of Waterloo street Baptist church, will be pleased to know that he is steadily improving in health. He has been advised by his doctor, however, not to resume his duties until at least a week, and then only partially. The rest of Mr. Swetnam's family are improving.

THE LATE THOMAS BOURKE. Thomas Bourke, whose death occurred in Boston recently, and an account of which was published in last evening's edition, is survived by his wife, who was formerly Rebecca Moore of this city; two sons, George and Alexander of Boston, and three nephews, Peter Bourke of West St. John, Arthur Bourke of this city, and William J. Bourke of Bristol, Conn.

MONCTON PERSONALS. Miss Rita McDade of St. John, is spending a few days in the city, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edward McClelland.

Harry Wyse left on Wednesday afternoon for Boston, where he has accepted a position with the Bank of Montreal. Mr. Wyse has been promoted to the position of Cashier.

Mrs. A. B. Pipes, who has been wintering in Sackville all winter, has returned to St. John and will shortly open her residence at Westfield.

MRS. GEO. H. EVANS. At her home, 81 Peters St. this morning at 7.30 a.m. three passed away Mrs. George H. Evans, wife of the late Mr. Evans, after about one month's illness. She was in her sixtieth year and leaves to her husband, four sons and three daughters, Herbert G. W. Russell, Harold O. and G. Lloyd, all of this city; Mrs. Douglas D. McCaughy of Montreal, and Mrs. A. Mary Emberley and M. Mildred at home, also one brother, William H. Clappitt of London, Ont.

The funeral will be held from 81 Peters St. at 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon. Interment will be at Cedar Hill.

MRS. CHARLES E. DEBOW. Many friends will regret to learn of the death of Mrs. Elizabeth DeBow, wife of Charles E. DeBow of this city, which occurred this morning at her residence, Thorne avenue. Although she had been ill for some time, her death came suddenly and was a great shock to her relatives and friends. She was a native of Upper Canada and had been residing in St. John for many years. Besides her husband, Mrs. DeBow leaves two sons, Mr. Harry DeBow and Mr. J. M. DeBow, and two daughters, Mrs. William Boyle of Natick, Mass. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

NORMAN MAGNUSSON HURT. Norman Magnusson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Magnusson, Germain street, is in hospital as the result of a serious accident. He was splitting some wood when the axe glanced and struck him on the foot, making a deep gash. Dr. O'Brien received the foot and the hand was taken to the General Public Hospital, where the wound was closed and stitched.

He suffered a good deal of pain last night. Tonight he and his father were to have appeared as entertainers at the St. John's mission. He was preparing to take an important part in a coming entertainment by the Trinity Church.

All who have heard him in that capacity will have a special interest in his speedy recovery.

NOVEL AND MUCH ENJOYED. An unusual and enjoyable entertainment was given by members of the Mission Circle of Brookville and Torriburn in the hall at Brookville last night. The principal event was the portrayal of characters from the family album, and the applause each "photograph" received showed how well the original had been followed.

The acting of Miss Jean Anderson, as the hostess, and of the great (Mrs. Finley) deserves special comment. The remarks of the latter brought forth much laughter. The singing of Miss Downey and Miss Barton was much enjoyed, as were solos by Mrs. McClelland and Mrs. Downey. Much praise was bestowed on the artistic abilities of Wm. Stone for his building of the album, and especially for his six feet high portraits of Jiggs and Maggie, these being most life like; in fact, as one of the audience remarked, "if Magnus saw those he would cry with envy." Proceeds of the concert are to be devoted to the building of a larger hall, as the necessity of such could not be better illustrated than last night.

Selections were given by an orchestra composed of members of the Federation family and the Misses Downey were present in piano duets. The accompanist for the evening was Miss Heffer.

PRIZE WINNERS IN AMHERST SHORT STORY CONTEST. Amherst, N. S., April 6.—Jean B. Lay, 70 College avenue, Ottawa, won first prize in the short story contest recently conducted by the Amherst Daily News, the results of which were announced tonight.

Miss Lay, a native of Amherst and daughter of the late E. J. Lay, for a number of years supervisor of the Amherst public schools, was the contest with "The White Feather," a story with old Fort Cumberland as the setting and a little French refugee a victim of German atrocities as the hero. Second prize was won by Josephine Bishop, principal of West High School, Amherst, and a native of Digby.

Mr. Arthur M. Purdy of Oxford won third prize and special prizes were awarded to Gus Lambert, Halifax, Mrs. Ida Huntley, Amherst, Clara Kirkpatrick, Parrishboro, and Lloyd S. Barnes, Amherst.

FOR COMMUNITY HOUSE. The Lord Sackville Chapter, I. D. D. E. has decided to make its special aim the establishing of a Community House in Sackville, and a proportion of all moneys made will be set aside to form a fund for this purpose.

JUDGMENT FOR THE DEFENDANT

Chief Justice Renders Decision in Grand Manan Land Case—Circuit Court Case to Jury.

Judgment was given this morning in Chancery by Chief Justice Sir Douglas Hazen in the matter of Ganong Bros. Ltd., vs Stanley et al, an action brought to have a deed to property in Grand Manan set aside. The judgment was against the application and upheld the transfer of the property. The plaintiffs were judgment creditors of Florence Stanley. Upon their asking judgment against her it was found that she had no property in her own name but had transferred it to her son Harold Stanley Smith.

Some question entered into the case as to the priority of the judgment over that of the transfer and dates of the transaction and registration of the instrument formed an important feature of the evidence. The court could find nothing to warrant fraud against the plaintiffs and declared in favor of the defendant. E. A. B. Smith of St. Stephen appeared for the plaintiff and H. H. Elkin for the defendant.

The case of John Sergeant vs Smith Gordon in the circuit court will likely go to the jury this afternoon. E. P. Raymond for the defendant finished his address this morning and D. Mullin, K.C., was speaking for the plaintiff at time of adjournment for lunch.

The River

Just when navigation on the St. John river and tributaries will be resumed this year is causing speculation at Indian town. On Wednesday teams were still crossing at some places and the ice was reported to be strong. On the Kennebecus fishermen say that it will be some time yet before the ice will break up. They contend that there will have to be a lot of sunshine and a considerable raise in the water. Some of the older men predict that in two weeks the large field ice should be on the move.

The river steamer are being overhauled and repaired.

Last year the ice started to break up early in March, but it was April 11 before the first tug boat reached Fredericton. On April 17 the majestic sailed for Fredericton, and on the same day the Ocean went to Washburn. On April 18 the Champlain went to the Jemseg, and the Hampton to Hatfield's Point on the Belleisle. The D. J. Purdy made her first trip to Fredericton on April 24, and the majestic went to Cole's Island on the Washemeaseak on April 22. The last to leave was the Premier, which went up the Grand Lake on April 28.

They were transferred to the Tampa. All the men were well on arrival here except Louis Miller, who had taken ill when seven days out from Oporto. He was taken to the hospital.

CHARGES AGAINST TWO POLICEMEN

Provincial Constables, in Sydney Because of Expected Strike, Arrested for Drunkenness.

Sydney, N. S., April 6.—Two members of the recently formed Provincial police, Michael Myers and Charles Bryson, are in jail here charged with being drunk and resisting the city police officers.

Both Fined. Sydney, N. S., April 6.—Michael Myers pleaded guilty this morning to a charge of drunkenness and was fined $4.

On charges of carrying a concealed weapon, resisting arrest and using profane language, he was remanded for trial.

Mrs. Bryson told that he was formerly a member of the provincial police in Halifax, but had recently left the force.

TROUT FISHING MAY BE. Trout fishermen who in the past have usually got their start for the opening of the season, April 1st, will not have to worry about the ice at present, as the Dominion Government amended the law last year so as to allow the spring fishing to start until May 1st.

"No one shall at any time fish for, catch or kill trout otherwise than by angling. Judging is strictly prohibited. Fishing for trout through the ice is prohibited.

"No one shall catch in one day a greater number of trout than weigh more than ten pounds in the aggregate and no greater number than thirty, and they shall weigh less than ten pounds."

Two or three persons are reported to have been killed and several others injured by the explosion of a stick of dynamite in West Nashville. The explosion wrecked some buildings.

The confidence that you place in the man to whom you give charge of your dead, is a sacred trust that we hold to be one of the greatest in the world.

Mrs. E. H. Randle

San Antonio, Texas, April 6.—For the first time in the history of the United States Army an officer has brought action against another in civil court.

Capt. Edwin H. Randle, who is suing Col. A. L. Coker, commanding officer of his regiment at Fort Sam Houston, asks $100,000 damages for alleged statements defaming the character of Capt. Randle's young and beautiful wife.

The charge is that after a party given by Mrs. Randle at her home in Officers Row the colonel was moved to speak about his pay to other officers, and that he told Captain Randle, in effect, that he must divorce his wife or get out of the service.

Colonel Coker, in a denial made before officers, declared he had never suggested to Randle that he divorce his wife, nor said anything that could be construed as meaning this. However, this "retraction" did not satisfy Randle, who requested a court of inquiry.

The case hung fire for some time, but the court of inquiry was eventually not granted. This means of airing the matter having failed, Capt. Randle has gone outside official army practice for the first time and brought suit against his commanding officer for $100,000 damages.

SYDNEY PICKETS CASE. Sydney, April 6.—At the close of this morning's hearing of strike pickets in the police court Col. G. S. Harrington, counsel for the steel workers, asked that no further arrests of pickets be made, but that names of men against whom information was laid, be handed to him and he would guarantee their appearance in court.

Warrants have already been served on eleven of the thirty-five men against whom it is understood information has been laid. If the request of the steel workers' counsel is granted, there will be no further arrests. Crown Prosecutor Malcolm Patterson promised to take the matter up with the attorney general.

Battery Connections. Care should be taken in connecting up any battery, wet or dry cells, with a good grade of insulated rubber-covered wire. See that the ends of the wire attached to the binding posts are scraped clean and bright.

A car will ride better over a rough road if the engine is constantly pulling it. With the car running along slowly—in "high"—the rear wheels seem to cling to the road better, and the wheels are not so free to be jiggled around by the bumps.

GOOD THINGS COMING TO THE THEATRES OF ST. JOHN

QUEEN SQUARE MAKES IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

According to an announcement issued by the Queen Square Theatre management today, patrons of this popular place of amusement will be treated to two weeks of special picture attractions following the close of the Mac Edwards Stock Company engagement.

The production booked are acknowledged to be the cream of the Fox studio this year; two of them having been imported for a pre-release showing in this city.

Commencing Monday and running for the first half of the week, they will present "The Custard Cup" adapted from the books of the same name, which Mary Carr, loved by everyone, will have the leading role as "Penny".

It is promised that this picture will surround Mary Carr with a story entirely different from anything she has yet been seen in. Those who remember her in "Over the Hill" and, just recently, "Silver Wings" will not require any further introduction.

For the latter half of the week one of the best known pictures of the year will be presented, entitled "The Face on the Barroom Floor". The popularity of this production is a foregone conclusion, having smashed records wherever shown. Both of these productions, we are informed, have been procured at great expense, but are nevertheless going to be shown to the public at popular admission prices. A week of excellent entertainment is therefore assured.

REPORT HAD NO FOUNDATION

Sugar Matter Investigated by Trinidad Chamber of Commerce—Move for a Trade Commissioner Here

An announcement affecting the Canadian sugar trade was made in a report of the Trinidad Chamber of Commerce, received by the St. John Board of Trade this morning. It said that there had been a report to the effect that Canadian sugar refiners had been buying foreign sugar and refining it for export to the United Kingdom, thus getting the advantage of the preferential tariff rate to which they were not entitled. This had been investigated, the report said, and has been discovered to be without foundation.

The report also referred to the visit to Trinidad of Sir George E. Foster and the members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association during their recent West Indies tour. It advocated the formation of a West Indies trade commissioner in Canada.

CECIL PRAISES COMMERCE BODIES

Their Practice Forms Basis of Commercial Progress—Business Men Not War Advocates, He Asserts.

New York, April 6.—Lord Robert Cecil, speaking before the New York State Chamber of Commerce, yesterday, praised the work of the Chambers of Commerce of the U. S. and, kindred organizations in Great Britain, saying that their practice of co-operation and consultation had formed the basis of commercial progress in all the civilized countries of the world.

The same principles utilized by commercial bodies to bring about commercial peace in the world, he said, could be used to bring about peaceful relations between nations and an avoidance of war.

"The oft-repeated statement that men of commerce are advocates of war for the more profit it might bring is a slander," he asserted. "It is not only a wicked slander, but an exceedingly foolish statement, as well for peace is essential and vital to commerce. It is the very foundation of commerce."

Press Raps People For Lack of Interest In Air Force Matters

France Declared to be Leaving Ally Far Behind in Air Force Matters

It is notorious among those who know, says the News of the World, that Great Britain is all but defenceless against attack from the air. Our ally, France, since the war has developed her air force so that to-day she has more air strength than all the rest of Europe combined. Any future war will be much more a machine war than the last, and the effective machines will be in the air. An adequate air force for attack and defence is essential to our existence, and fleets and armies can never make up for weakness in the air. Had the French been content with control of the German railways through the British zone on the Rhine they would probably have next asked for the tree use of the great aviation field just outside Cologne, which is certain one day to be the most important air port in Europe and the central junction for the great air traffic going from France to Central Europe, from England to the Continent, and from Germany to France and England. The great aerodrome belongs to the City of Cologne, but the hangars and fixtures are the property of the German Government. It was requisitioned by the British at the beginning of the occupation, and a small portion is still used as a field for the British tanks. The remainder, while under the supreme control of the British military, has been thrown open to commercial flying, and the Instone Air Line has a regular daily service between London and Cologne. The question of the control of the great air port of Cologne is being more and more a factor of increasing importance in Anglo-French relations. The French air lines increased their tonnage down in 1922 to more than four times the mileage recorded in 1920, and carried 100,000 more passengers than the number of passengers.

Commons Hear Plea To Pension Mothers

Rhys Davies Urged Provision for Children in Their Own Homes Instead of Institutions

Pensioners for widows with children were advocated by a motion submitted to the Commons by Mr. Rhys Davies. He estimated that to give pensions to 120,000 widows and 250,000 children on the war pension scale would cost from £12,000,000 to £13,000,000, but the saving in present Poor Law relief allowances would bring this figure down to £8,000,000 to £10,000,000. Mrs. Wintingham supported the motion. It costs 17s. a week to keep a child in a Poor Law institution, and it would be an economy to allow a widow 10s. for a child at home, she said. Sir William Joynson-Hicks, who replied for the Ministry of Health, stated that out of 136,000 children being maintained by the Poor Law only 3,331 were in institutions, the others were at home. He estimated that 400,000 widows and 750,000 children would come under the scheme, and taking into account also the wives of incapacitated men and the children of unmarried mothers, it was calculated that the cost would be well over £50,000,000 a year. How could those who had gone to the colors promising economy and retrenchment vote for this motion, he asked. "What shall I bring you back from Delhi, Mrs. Cotton?" Alas, he was killed there. Among others who always had great personal regard for Mrs. Cotton was Lord Roberts, who was at that time on Sir Sydney Cotton's staff. Mrs. Cotton was placed for safety with other Peshawar ladies in the Residency where they were guarded for six months. She remained at Peshawar the whole time of the Mutiny, and for some years afterwards.

NINETY-YEAR-OLD TWINS NEVER HAD A QUARREL

Believed to be the oldest twins in Britain, Mark Gunn and Matthew Gunn celebrated their 90th birthday at Brighton, Sussex, on Monday. Mark, who lives with his eldest son, aged 70, at Hanover street, is still hale and hearty. Matthew, who is the eldest by a few minutes, was in fine physical condition until three months ago, when he had a fall and fractured his thigh. He is still in bright spirits and hopes soon to be on his feet. They are the only surviving members of a family of eleven children of an old-fashioned farmer. Although we have been each other's closest friends we have never once quarrelled, stated Mark to an interviewer.

97 Murderers Owe Arrest To One Man

Grand Old Man of Scotland Yard Unravels Scores of Famous Mysteries

A grand old man of Scotland Yard has passed away in the person of ex-Chief Inspector John C. Littlechild, for many years one of the "chiefs of the Yard," and still to the last in close touch with the police and led to many departmental changes in the force. After this he embarked upon the most dangerous job of his career when he was put in charge of the investigations following the hideous assassination of Lord Frederick Cavendish and Mr. Burke in Phoenix Park. After months of work he brought 18 men to justice, including the "Murder Gang." One turned informer—a man named Gary—was sent to the gallows for safety, but met his death at the hands of a lurking gunman aboard the Melrose, a steamer of Port Elizabeth. Littlechild had scores of threatening letters informing him that he was condemned to death, and he used to tear them up and put them in the fire. He remained at his post until he was 97 murderers—believed to be a record.

Braved Terrors of Mutiny in Peshawar

Probably the oldest survivor of the Indian Mutiny, Mrs. Lynch Stapleton Cotton, has died at Woodson Lodge, Leyland, at the age of 98. When the Mutiny broke out, she was at Peshawar with her father-in-law, General Sir Sydney Cotton, commanding the North-West Frontier. Her husband had previously been ordered home from Peshawar to join his regiment with a view to going to the Crimea. Mrs. Cotton was present when the momentous meeting took place at midnight between Sir Sydney Cotton, Sir Herbert Edwards, and General Nicholson, which resulted in the successful disarming by surprise of a large number of mutinous troops by a very small British garrison. After this General Nicholson was sent with a firing column from the garrison to Delhi, and before his departure Mrs. Cotton gave him breakfast. As he rode away his last words to her were, "What shall I bring you back from Delhi, Mrs. Cotton?" Alas, he was killed there. Among others who always had great personal regard for Mrs. Cotton was Lord Roberts, who was at that time on Sir Sydney Cotton's staff. Mrs. Cotton was placed for safety with other Peshawar ladies in the Residency where they were guarded for six months. She remained at Peshawar the whole time of the Mutiny, and for some years afterwards.

Brave British Tars Given Prize Money

Doughty deeds by our naval forces in Mesopotamia were described in the Admiralty Court when application for prize bounty was made by Captain William D.S.O., commander of the Star of India. The application had reference to the capture or destruction of nearly thirty Turkish vessels on the Tigris and Euphrates, not from Babylon, in 1914 and 1915. General Townshend and his staff watched the operations from the bridge of Captain Nunn's flagship Ensign. Sir Henry Duke, in giving judgment for £10,196, declared that the vessels were of a kind which entitled claimants to prize bounty. He also accepted claimants' figures as to the numbers on board the vessels. One of the British craft engaged was H.M.S. Shushan, which was a vessel specially built for relief of General Gordon at Khartoum.

Alderwoman Takes Baby To Meeting

Mrs. Bailey, wife of a Darwin weaver's secretary, created a mild sensation on Tuesday at Darwin Town Council, of which she is a solitary woman member, by taking an accustomed seat nursing a month-old baby, who quietly surveyed the councillors, and for nearly 45 minutes made herself at home. Reference was made to the little stranger, and the mother was congratulated.

Grimsey Fishermen Return From Dead

Twelve Men Swept North in Gale Were Finally Towed to Port in Iceland

Stranger than fiction is the adventure of twelve Grimsey fishermen after being blown away from their kinsfolk for over a month, as reported safe and sound in Iceland. With her food supplies exhausted and her coal consumed, the trawler, which was officially given up as lost, was blown into Reykjavik. For sixteen days the crew had subsisted entirely upon fish, and in the absence of fuel had been burning the ship's gear. The news of the rescue of the trawler and her crew was conveyed in a cable received by the owners, the Standard Steam Fishing Company, and has caused boundless joy to the relatives and friends of the men. The trawler was blown away from the goldfields by the German trawler Schlegel, and towed for over 200 miles. ## Woman Defied Thieves Who Sought Miser's Gold Hoard

Her Husband Had Fallen Heir to Fortune Gathered by Wretched Man Who Died in Meaneast and Most Uncomfortable Circumstances

With a revolver placed at her head, a brave Irish woman declined to disclose to armed robbers the hiding place of a miser's hoard her husband had just inherited, states a recent message from Dublin. An old-age pensioner, Patrick Leech, 77, and unmarried, died in a little hotel ten feet square at Ballinabber (County Roscommon). He had lived alone, almost denying himself the bare necessities of life. In a few hours armed men visited his premises in search of the miser's hoard, but fortunately for him, he had had it conveyed to a place of safety. The raiders threatened to shoot his wife if she did not hand over the money, which she refused to do at the point of the revolver. The men then left, after firing a few shots in the house.

Famous Artist Has Answered Last Call

Sir James Shannon Once Had to Have Credit for Board and Lodgings

One of the most eminent portrait painters of his day, Sir James Shannon, R.A., died in a London nursing home from the effects of an accidental fall from a horse about nine years ago. The injuries he sustained crippled him, and set up an illness from which he finally succumbed at the age of 61. Born at Auburn, New York, in 1823, Sir James came to England at the age of 15 to study at South Kensington School, under Sir Edward Poynter. While he was still a student his father lost all his money, and the young painter was thrown on his own resources. At that time he had been commissioned by Queen Victoria to paint two maids of honor, one of whom, the Hon. Horatio Sturdee, was the son of his first exhibit at the Royal Academy. Owing to the fall in his fortunes he was unable to complete the portraits. For some time he had to face a very severe struggle, but he eventually succeeded in allowing him to stay on in his rooms for three years without paying any rent. He was then employed by the Admiralty to paint the portraits of the Duke of Marlborough and Lord Frodo. He was elected an R.A. in 1897, and an R.S.A. in 1909. Sir James was a keen sportsman, and a full-length of Lady Cavendish Bentinck in his garden. He was elected an R.A. in 1897, and an R.S.A. in 1909. They were followed by a rain of mud and damaged fruit as well as by a crowd of riotous youths who they fell in with a couple of constables who escorted them to the police station.

Sunday Services For Lovers Only

The first of a series of Sunday evening services for sweethearts was held recently at the Surrey County Cinema, Sutton, and a similar service was held at Acton Wesleyan Church. The services were one of those little towns which allow no Sunday recreations, and the streets are crowded with young men and women. The Anglican and Nonconformist churches, with the help of the Salvation Army, have taken this picture-house with the best of intentions, and a happy Sunday night service likely to appeal to those not attracted by more formal methods of worship.

Early Morning Fire
Stirs 1500 in Hotel

Blaze in Cooling Plant in New York Hotel Brings Scores to Lobby—Her Gems Excite Woman.

New York, April 5.—About 1,500 guests of the Great Northern Hotel were aroused early on Monday by a fire which started in a defective flue in the refrigeration plant in the basement and for an hour filled the building with dense smoke. The fire was confined to the basement, however. The damage was placed at $10,000, principally to the cooling plant. The fire was discovered by George Kehoe, night auditor, who called Fireman Philip Parker, of the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station and turned in an alarm from Fifty-sixth street and Sixth avenue, bringing Deputy Chief L. Ross, Battalion Chief Daniel Curtis, Engine Company 25 and Truck No. 75. Almost immediately guests on the lower floors were awakened by the pungent smoke which seeped up through ventilation shafts. Between a hundred and a hundred and fifty men and women, most of them scantily clad, fled to the hotel lobby by elevators and stairways. Having located the fire and knowing there was no danger, Night Manager John Pegani, Mr. Kehoe and one of the guests, J. C. Dashback, manned elevators which were standing idle with out operators at that time of the morning. Running the cars to each floor in turn, the men went through the corridors and assured the guests that there was no danger. Those who could not be quieted were taken down to see the location of the fire, then requested to return to their rooms, telling others on their way that there was no danger.

Many had witnessed the fatal apartment house fire at 322 West Fifty-seventh street just a week ago, and the recollection added to their apprehension. Among the guests was a woman in one of the upper floors who Saturday had taken from a safety deposit vault $100,000 worth of jewelry, which she wore Sunday in the Easter parade on Fifth Avenue. This jewelry was still in her room, and fearing that she was going to lose it she made up a package and rushed to the hotel office. On undoing her package there she found that in her anxiety she had bundled up an old waist instead of the jewelry. Fearing that in her absence some one would enter her room and take the jewelry, her excitement mounted until by the time she was again taken upstairs in one of the elevators and her jewelry found intact she was near a collapse. On the arrival of the truck company a thirty-foot ladder was run up at the front of the hotel, and seeing this, several guests appeared at third and fourth floor windows, several of them shouting to the firemen to raise the ladder higher so they could reach it. They were quieted when advised to don their street clothing and assured that if there was the least danger of the fire spreading they would be taken out of the hotel in ample time. The density of the smoke was due to the scorching of the cork and sawdust icebox insulation, which smouldered, but was slow to burst into flames, firemen said. The fire was under control an hour after the alarm was turned in, when a side of the refrigeration plant had been torn out and the burning flue made accessible.

First Wireless Lighthouse Is A Full Success

London, April 5.—The first "wireless lighthouse" to be established in the British Isles is now in operation on Inchkeith Island in the Firth of Forth.

Wireless waves are projected from this apparatus to sweep around the surrounding sea in the same way as the light from a lighthouse. Thus the point is fixed by aerial instead of visual means, and there can be no interference whatever by weather conditions.

The first vessel to try out the new installation is the Royal Scot, owned by the London and Edinburgh Shipping Company, plying between London and Leith. She is fitted with a special type of receiver which picks up signals sent out from the lighthouse, enabling the navigating officer to thread his way through the channels of the Firth of Forth in the thickest fog.

The report from the ship after the first round trip with the apparatus aboard shows that the signals are exceedingly clear and intelligible the whole time the vessel is within range, and the ship's officers had no difficulty whatever in using the installation.

The receiving apparatus is of the simplest type and is calibrated so as to give a very fair indication of the distance from the shore as well as the actual bearing. Among the advantages of the apparatus is pointed out the fact that aside from the diminished risk to the ship during thick weather there is also the factor that often one or more tides may be saved.

The station on Inchkeith Island, which was established by the Marconi International Marine Communication Company, will be duplicated by similar stations aimed at facilitating navigation through other dangerous channels. The Faroe Islands are one area where such "wireless lighthouses" should be most useful as vessels in the vicinity of this group during thick weather have the greatest difficulty in localizing the foghorn.

TREND IN HAT SHAPES.
New York, April 5.—Shapes on the order of a tam, but with a small brim in front, are finding favor with many buyers of millinery at the present time. Small hats are again dominating the demand, and it is the medium poke and the small cloche that are selling beyond all others. Pokes slanted on each side, or toques that are reminiscent of Egyptian headdresses, with side pieces and similar "ear" effects, have suddenly taken hold of buyers again. The first flurry of large shapes is over, and the medium brim prevails for current retailing.

The brim edge and crown are the most distinctive features of shape lines at present. Many and varied are the flanges that cover the poke and mushroom brims, edge them or face them underneath. The same inconsistency is true of bandeaus. With the wealth of Watteau versions, high backs and raised sailor shapes, the back bandeau is prominent. There are shapes, however, that have left-side bandeaus and front bandeaus that tilt the shape to the back of the head. In fact the tilt to the back of the head vies with the face-shading angle of the Louis XIV. high-back lines.

PLAN FINANCING OF BELVEA'S TRIPS

Clubs Join in Preparations to Send St. John Oarsman to Henley and U. S. and Canadian Regattas.

Representatives of the Rotary Club, the Y. M. C. I., the St. John Power Boat Club, the Royal Kennebecasis Yacht Club, the St. John Rowing Club, the Henfort Athletic and Outing Association, the Millidgeville Summer Club, the St. George Athletic Club, the South End Improvement League and the Gyro Club held a joint meeting last evening in the Board of Trade rooms to discuss plans for the financing of Hilton Belvea's trips during the summer. Hilton's programme includes the English Henley Diamond Sculls in July, the Canadian national championships, also in July, and the United States championships, probably in August. Hilton's entry for the Henley will be forwarded immediately and no difficulty is expected in this regard. It was thought at the meeting that he should be accompanied to England by a trainer. He will leave here early in June.

A proposal that a motor car be bought and tickets sold at $1 each, was left in the hands of the executive. It was thought that the money raised in this way, together with the amount realized by a fair under the auspices of the Citizens' Committee and the Carleton Curling Club would be enough to enable the champion to carry out his programme.

It was decided to have a general meeting on April 16 in the Board of Trade Underwriters rooms to hear reports and to learn what action each club would take in the matter of the proposal.

The meeting, which was called following a decision reached at the annual meeting of the St. John Rowing Club, the organization that has backed Hilton so strongly in the last two years, quickly resolved itself into a Citizens' Committee and elected the following officers: President, J. A. Gregory; secretary, Elmer B. Ingraham; treasurer, F. Hunter; managing committee, J. C. Chesley, K. J. MacRae, W. Turner, D. Armstrong and H. Ervin.

Those present as representatives last night were: St. John Rowing Club, J. C. Chesley, J. A. Gregory, and Elmer Ingraham; Gyro Club, J. V. Hamm and D. Armstrong; Rotary Club, K. J. MacRae; St. George, C. D. Millidge; Y. M. C. I., Humphrey Sheehan; South End Improvement League, Frank White; R. K. Y. C., G. Mullin; St. John Power Boat Club, R. J. Adams; Renforth, R. D. Fuiger; Millidgeville Club, W. Turner and L. Ritchie.

The High School Alumnae Reading Club met last night at the residence of Mrs. G. W. Parker, 27 Goodrich street, and the programme of the evening was in charge of Miss Bertha Estabrooks, who delighted and greatly interested the members with an account of her recent trip to Alaska. Miss Grace Campbell, the president, was in the chair and the meeting was largely attended. The tickets for Miss Campbell's evening of readings were distributed to the members to take charge of their sale.

THISTLE CURLERS ELECT OFFICERS

Reports presented last evening at the annual meeting of the Thistle Curling Club, which was held in the Board of Trade rooms, were most gratifying and show the organization to be in a flourishing condition. The club passed their forty-ninth anniversary on March 27. Although the season recently brought to a close was one of the best from a playing standpoint that the members ever experienced, the records were not to be compared with that of former years.

The report for the season of the retiring president was heartily received as was also the report of the secretary, W. H. Gashlin, and the retiring treasurer, H. W. Stubbs. The latter report showed that the club was in excellent financial condition. The report of the audit committee was read by the chairman, E. Murray Olive. The retiring president then presented the trophies awarded to the rink winning the elimination series at the club to Skip A. J. Machum's rink, which included E. P. Howard, H. D. Sullivan and D. Pirie.

The Trap

When all failed him, Gaspard lost himself and became a wolf in human form. Then a child's tiny fingers tightened round his heart and filled his cup of happiness to overflowing. But this song of joy was destined to be stilled and Gaspard planned a terrible revenge.

How, in the big moment, he found himself again, brings to a thundering climax a dramatic thunderbolt you'll long remember. A powerful, beautiful picture, made for every member of your family.
