13,500 BOERS UNDER ARMS!

Lord Kitchener's Report of the Situation in South Africa.

Great Patience Still Required "To See the Inevitable End of Insensate Resistance" --- British Losses Up to Date.

dated July 8, and detailing the condition of affairs at the front at that time, Lord Kitchener says: "There are no more than 13,500 Boers now under arms. Although they are not able longer to undertake extensive operations, their apparently inexhaustible supplies of food enables them to maintain an obstinate resistance without retaining anything or defending the smallest portion of this vast country. "The wearing down process is necessarily slow, rendering the employment of a large number of troops still necessary. Great patience is still required to see the inevitable end of an insensate resistance, which, while it can not affect the result, has become unjustifiable in prolonging the war and the sufferings of women and children." Since the dispatch was written osses of Boers have brought their forces down to about 11,000. A WEEK'S WORK. Lord Kitchener's weekly report from Pretoria, dated Aug. 19, shows that 64 Boer's were killed, 20 were wounded, 248 were made prisoners and 95 surrendered during that time. The prisoners include Landrost Steyn of Vredefort, and Commandant De Villiers, father of Mrs. Schalkburger, wife of the acting president, and Commandant Brytenbach, of Lilliefontein. BRITISH LOSSES IN AFRICA. London, Aug. 21.-The monthly return of casualties in South Africa, issued by the War Office, shows that our total losses to July 31 are:

STORIES OF THE WRECK!

Capt. Ferry's Clear Account of the Disaster.

More Would Have Been Saved-Bravery of the Women-Eleven Stowaways Shut Up and Drowned.

Victoria, Aug. 20.—The arrival of the Farallon yesterday added little to the knowledge already possessed of the causes of the unfortunate accident whereby the C. P. N. flagship Islander went to her doom. CAPT. FERRY'S ACCOUNT. A clear account of the disaster is given by Capt. Geo. Ferry, who was a dangerously ill in South Africa. He personal friend of Capt. Foot and who took the position of quartermaster of the vessel at the request of the deceased officer; the latter was, of course, tablets in honor of Sergts. Barr and a properly qualified navigator. Ferry was at the wheel when the accident occurred and is thus particularly qualified to speak of the conditions prevailing at that time. According to Ferry's statement ice was expected. The man whom he had relieved at the wheel had told him that there was ice about, that he had seen it and that they would require to London, Aug. 20.—There is a renewed clear overhead, but for a few feet from hard-a-shore, but it would not spond, as the inrush of water at the side created an influence which coun-It is stated that the funds of the teracted that of the rudder. Then the Boer leaders in Europe are now absolutely exhausted, and it is certain that that by backing a little she might be headed for the shore. is no need to lower them yet." "WE WILL HAVE TO GO." Two men still remained in the wheelhouse, both of them having the impression that the bulkheads would prevent her sinking, and that even if she did take water she would merely settle and not go to the bottom. Finally, as the doomed ship began to mistakable signs of going down the two men, who were close personal friends, looked into one another's eyes, and Ferry said, "Captain, I guess we will

To this the skipper replied deliberately: "I guess we will have to." NO RUSH.

Everybody at this time was calm, there was no shouting, no screaming, and no rush. Indeed, had there been a little more rush, in Ferry's opinions more might have been saved. Both of the captains in the house moved along St. Johns, Nfld., Aug. 20.-Marconi's to get their belts. When Foot swam to his door he found that eight men had climbed on to it, and he started to swim off again. Near Captain Ferry was a little girl on a door. She was crying piteously, and Captain Ferry endeavored to her. Finally she stopped, and he heard no more from her. Cold and exposure was about 7 or 8 years of age. PATHETIC SCENES.

WOMEN WERE BRAVE. The women behaved excellently. One of them screamed, and they did their best to pacify her, and one or two others were shouting lustily. The women behaved no less bravely after reaching shore. Two bottles of liquor floated ashore, and their opportune was taken advantage of by the women, who took charge of them and doled the liquor out in sparing quantities to the sufferers as they arrived. Two doctors who were among the passengers saved also rendered great assistance. Many who were ashore apparently dead were resuscitated through almost supreme efforts of the women and the doctors. Mr. Ferry himself was unconscious, and lay in the bottom of the rescuing boat with three or four corpses.

ABOUT MRS. ROSS. Mr. Applebaum, of Dawson, stated that as he came out of his cabin for the last time he saw a woman, whom he now knows must have been Mrs. Ross, the commissioner's wife, standing in the saloon with a child in her arms. She seemed to be in a dazed condition. It is Applebaum's conviction that Parisians Pleased Because Czar Will Visit France.

Australians Want a Faster Mail Service Between Brisbane and London.

Constantinople, Aug. 21.-The French ambassador, M. Constans, has notified the sultan's first secretary that all diplomatic relations between France and Turkey are broken off, and that the ambassador has informed his government to this effect.
M. Constans communicated with the sultan because the latest ultan personally. The ambassador justified his action on the ground that the sultan broke his personal promise given to M. Constans, at an audience in the Yildiz Palace, Thursday, regarding the pur-chase of the quays and the settlement of the disputed French claims. The foreign minister also gave formal assurances that the agreement would be carried out, so, in view of this duti-able breach of faith, M. Constans holds that it is impossible for France to continue diplomatic relations with

It was announced in a dispatch from Constantinople Sunday that the sultan had agreed to raise a loan of 40,-000,000 francs, with which to purchase the quays at Constantinople, constructed by a French company, on the understanding that, eventually, would be taken over by the Turkish Government. The French ambassador at Constantinople has been pressing the claims of the French company for some time past and threatened to break off diplomatic relations with Turkey unless the sultan's promises were fulfilled by noon on Aug. 19. It is reported that the Bulgarian forces on the frontier at Secatasch have been reinforced, and it is feared that unless the two companies of Ottoman troops occupying Klisobair (disputed territory across the Bulgarian frontier) promptly evacuate, the con-sequences will be serious. SUICIDE IN HIGH LIFE.

The Parisians were delighted today by the unexpected announcement that the Czar of Russia has accepted President Loubet's invitation to witness the of the grand maneuvers Rheims, and that he will land at Dunnessed, with President Loubet, a, review of the northern squadron which will welcome his majesty to French waters. It is also said that the czarina will accompany the czar during his visit to France. There is a drop of bitterness, however, mingled in the cup of joy, and that is, that the czar will stop on his way for the purpose of seeing Emperor William of Gerbut the papers are consoling the Parisians with assertions that the interview between the czar and Emperor William will take place at sea, off Dantsic, so the czar will not set foot on German soil before treading that of France. The exact date of the arrival and departure of the czar are not fixed. The only thing certain is that he will arrive between Sept. 15 and Sept. 20. He will remain four or five days. The Temps says the visit was personally arranged between President Loubet and the czar themselves through the intermediary of a Russian court. President Loubet only informed the ministers a fortnight ago, when the matter was practically settled. He then showed them the warm letter of invitation which he had sent to the czar, whose cordial acceptance was shortly afterwards received. BROTHERS AND COUSINS. London, Aug. 21.-The International Law Association began a four days' session at Glasgow yesterday, the lord chief justice, Lord Alverstone, presiding. Regret was expressed at the failure of the British-American treaty (the Hay-Pauncefote treaty), and Judge Lynde Harrison, of Connecticut, said, speaking as an American citizen, that since the Spanish-American war Americans had recognized the British as brothers and cousins. The judge also said he believed the senate at the next session of congress would accept a treaty on the same lines as the one rejected. American people were now in favor of such a course.

Those Not Burned to Death or Hanged Driven Out of the County---Negro Burned at the Stake in Texas.

Pierce City, Mo., Aug. 20.-Will to wreak their hatred than for any Godley, a negro, was lynched by a mob composed of 1,000 armed citizens, shortly after dark last night, for the murder of Miss Caralle Wild, whose dead body was found in the woods near here. The mob went to the jail about 9 o'clock and battered down the doors, and threw ropes around the necks of Godley and Jean Carter, another suspect. Godley was hanged in front of the Lawrence Hotel and his body riddled with bullets. Carter's guilt was not clearly established, and | he was taken back to jail. Jean Carter has since been taken out by the mob, riddled with bullets and left dy-

ALL NEGRO HOUSES FIRED. murder of Miss Caralle Wild, is today in the hands of hundreds of armed men, who are intent in driving all negroes from the town. All negro houses in the city are being fired by the enraged whites. One negro Peter Hampton, is said to have been cremated in his home. The mob broke into the arsenal of the local military company, and is now in possession of improved rifles. BLOODHUNDS USED.

Later-Most of the negroes have left Pierce City and abandoned their homes, which have been burned. Geo. Lark, a porter on the St. Louis and San Francisco Railway, whom Carter charged with being Miss Wild's murderer, was arrested in Springfield this morning, and is in jail here. Lark declares his innocence, and says the man who committed the crime boarded with him and fled. Bloodhounds have been put on the trail at the scene of the murder, and led, it is said, to Lark's house.

Eugene Barrett, a negro suspect, has stated that a man named Flavors, who formerly boarded with Lark, was the real culprit. Flavors is said to be under arrest at Tulsa, I. T., over the territory line from here, and Barrett is under arrest at Mount Vernon, 25 miles from Pierce City. Flavors un-doubtedly will be lynched if brought back. It is not believed Barrett will

OLD MEN MURDERED. Excitement, which led up to the lynching of the Godleys, continued all night, and morning found the enraged white people determined to rid the city and vicinity of negroes. After stringing young Godley up to a pole and riddling his body with bullets, the mob went to the house of French Godley, the young man's grandfather, and shot him to death. They then bombarded Ike Carter's house, in which were Peter and Robert Hampton, all negroes. Peter Hampton, who was 75 years old, was burned to death when the house was set afire. His wife and Robert Hampton escaped through the flames. The mob then marched from place to place, burning negro houses and firing into them. The negroes fled in all directions, many taking refuge in the woods, while others are coming as far as Springfield to find places of

ARSENALS ROBBED OF RIFLES. The authorities telephoned Monett and Aurora, near-by towns, for help, but at 10 o'clock this morning the city was still in the hands of the mob, which finally broke into the arsenal of the Pierce City militia company and abstracted all the state rifles stored there. Every train to Pierce City is bringing in excited crowds that add to the general confusion. The report sent out last night that a boy was shot is denied today, and the name of the man shot today is given as French Godley, instead of Jean Carter, as previously stated. BLACKS MUST LEAVE. Pierce City, Mo., Aug. 20 .- For nearly fifteen hours, ending about noon today, this town of 3,000 people has been the hands of a mob of armed whites, determined to drive every negro from its precincts. In addition being distributed aboard ship, they to the lynching last night of William were surprised and delighted at the his grandfather, French Godley, the mob today cremated Peter Hampton, an aged negro, in his home, set the torch to the house of five blacks, and TOWN, except a few railway porters, known to be respectable, but these also must leave. The citizens say that as negroes have committed several crimes in the last ten years, none shall live here in the future.

KILLED WRONG MAN. It is now believed the man, William Godley, lynched, was not the real culprit. A negro, named Stark, under arrest at Tulsa, I. T., across the border from here, tallies exactly with the description of the assailant. He is held there awaiting identification.

Eugene Barrett, also known as Carter, in a confession, while a rope was around his neck today, accused Joe. Lark, a 'Frisco railroad porter, of being implicated in the crime, and Lark was arrested at Springfield. Lark gave a detailed statement as to Springfield, Mo., Aug. 20.—Pierce City, where Wm. Godley and Jean Center (colored) were lymphed and Carter (colored) were lynched and to Pierce City while the excitement shot last night, in connection with the runs high. Some persons here think Barrett told any story, in order to save his life.

MOB FIRED UPON. When the mob went to the section of the city occupied by the negroes, some one in the cabins opened fire, but no one was hit. The mob then destroyed the five houses. firing broke several plate glass windows, and a train was fired into. None of the passengers were hit. Members of the Pierce City Military Company themselves were out hunting for the escaping negro, with rifles. hardware stores sold out their arms early, but applications from negroes were refused. The mob was composed of a thousand or more, and no masks were worn. Thirty negro families were driven from their houses.

THE KILLING OF MISS WILD. It appears that Miss Wild started home from church alone Sunday afternoon, her brother lingering behind. About one mile from town the brother found her with her throat cut, lying lifeless near a culvert, under which her assailant had attempted to drag Evidence of a terrible struggle shown. Monday bloodhounds Was were taken to the scene and the girl's bloody handkerchief was laid before They immediately caught the them. trail and ran at full speed to the home of Joe Lark, where they rushed into his bedroom and sprang upon the bed. When he speaks gation and complete publicity might be in the colossal dispute now going on in the steel works of the United States. Public opinion has not pronounced decisively on either side, largely because of incomplete information. The Science Partisan With a Chip on the Shoulder.

The Dominion Educational Association met last week in Ottawa, and adjourned to meet two years hence in Winnipeg. The attendance this time was small, very small as compared with the large convention held two years ago in Halifax. How is this to be accounted for? Perhaps there has been a lack of advertising and organization. In these days, when there are so many conventions, much depends upon an energetic secretary "working up" the business. Or perhaps the season of the year is not propitious; it is scarcely fair to ask teachers to rush off in the middle of their holiday to discuss educational matters. At any rate, the attendance was small, and this, while showing perhaps a lack of enthusiasm, is not exactly a disaster, as those who attend can get nearer together, and exchange views more completely. A big convention is in danger of becoming a mere public meeting. with showy speeches, rather than business discussions. At these conventions a great variety of opinions are expressed; in fact, sometimes the variety is so brilliant that we are forcibly reminded of the fact that the science of education is by no means an exact science. There is consolation in thinking that many men or women may be very good teachers of their own subjects, who are very poor as theorists, and still poorer as philoso-

We cannot now give many illustrations of this, but anyone reading reports of educational conventions can easily find them, and will agree with us that speakers would be wiser if they avoided vague, hasty generalizations, and gave the results of their own actual experience. For example, the principal of one of the largest collegiate institutes in Ontario is reported to have said that "science had done more for the world in fifty years than all the centuries of Greek and Latin." We are tempted to say that this remark is neither correct nor incorrect; it is simply nonsense. It is an attempt to cut the knot with a hatchet. It attacks a great subject in a crude way. What is the great idea under which science has worked? It is that of development. Is there any appreciation of develonment in this remark of the high school master? How is it that science sprang up, not among savages, but precisely in the lands that had enjoyed the discipline of Greek and Latin? What is the use of separating things that are so closely bound together? Besides, what do we mean by doing good to the world? Surely the making of men is something as well as the making of telephones, steam engines, and other useful things! Man cannot live by bread alone, or science alone, and what does good to the world is not to be settled in this rude fashion. We have no doubt that at these conventions many useful suggestions are | come the idea of making the municigiven, but we are sure that general pal council, rather than school boards superficial statements do not carry us very far.

Weighing Lord Rosebery.

The Christian Leader, a weekly record of religious thought and work, is published in Glasgow, and hence it is interesting to note what it has to say about Lord Rosebery's recent speech. We may presume that it gives us a view of Scotchmen who take a keen interest in religious and social life. It asks: "What is it that Lord Rosebery finds impossible in Liberal politics? Apparently it just amounts to this, that a party should contain people of varying views who agree to differ; a party of one view and one voice is what his lordship desires-what he Charles Francis Adams, a name of postulates as necessary. Into the mouth of the cave where he has secluded himself he steps at last, prophetically clothed, and uttering deep-mouthed in seeing how the necessary force prediction. To gain a party of one voice and one view he is prepared to throw any existing body, however historic, and respectable, to the winds. He would make a wilderness, and call it

This is a strong statement; it is not our present business to consider whethkind of impression made by the noble lord's last speech, and how that speech seems, according to many, to have landed him in an impossible pomuch of the end sought by a thorough sition. The Christian Leader is, in its one side of Scottish life, and it gives us each side of the question. These facts, a picture of Lord Rosebery, which makes him out to be a sort of washedpublic. This finding would "represent out edition of Lord Beaconsfield, the famous Disraeli. "It is very curious how something of the Sidonian-that is, the Disraelian-rhetoric and mystery and vaticination are heard in the Rosebery utterances and clothe the Rosebery figure. Something there is, too, of the Disraelian vagueness, the electric car, the sewing machine, were mask over the mind. It was original; all at one time thought impracticable, it was masterly, decisive; it never trembled-it was Oriental. In the disciple it seems a half-wistful inaptness. He stands in his mantle weaving The veil over the face shortens the sight, and when he says that a party comprehending various ideas is 'impossible,' he means that he wants a of a great opportunity, he means to use fine phrases. When he says that 'an open mind spells impotence,' he forgets that leadership of men means the power to unite them in action, however much they may differ in theory. Lord Rosebery wants to ride the winning horse from the starting point, all the way. He should know enough of a race course to be aware that this is

> The foregoing is severe, but it sents a growing feeling that Lord Rosebery needs to take a firmer hold of the practical situation, or that as a politician he will be "impossible."

The Whisky Money.

Anyone traveling in . England, and discussing educational matters, or reading speeches on that subject, will sometimes note references to "the whisky money," and wonder what this may mean. He may ask intelligent people, and even men who are engaged in the practical work of education, only to find that they have forgotten exactly how this money came to be applied to education, or that their ideas on the subject are of a very hazy kind. This money is in the hands of the county councils, and has been very largely applied to "technical education." To trace its origin shows in what a strange way changes come about in an old country like England that possesses such varied and complicated systems, and how important changes may come in by a side issue. It is well to remember this now, when the British Government has just rushed through the House a short bill involving a new principle, namely, the subjection in certain matters of the school boards to the county council. However, confining ourselves for the present to one point, the origin of the "whisky money," we may use the words of Dr. Macnamara: "Thirteen years ago, a new element of confusion was thrust into the arena of local management of public education. The Government had put into its budget a sum of three-quarters of a million for the purpose of compensating licenses hereafter not to be renewed. Its licensing scheme fell through; but the money had been voted. At that moment the great craze was for "technical instruction": and the few educational enthusiasts managed to secure that this three-quarters of a million should be allocated preferentially to the development of this subject. But who was to administer the money in the localities? The school boards were not universal, and in many places where they did exist, they were confessedly ineffective. On the other hand, the country had just been covered under the act of 1888 with municipal councils administering suitable areas. So the money was promptly handed over to the municipal authorities. In the first instance, many of them devoted the money as they are entitled to do, to the relief of rates. But one by one they established technical instruction committees, spent this money in the work, and even in some cases went the length of locally rating themselves under the Technical Instruction Act of 1889, which permitted them to lay a rate of a penny on the pound."

This was the beginning of a great movement; it brought the municipal pater, addressing Young Canada, a authorities in connection with educa- lad in blouse and knickers: "Never elected for the purpose, the perman- view. ent local authority. The Government has not been able to pass. its bill this session, but by the Short bill they have got in the thin edge of the wedge. It seems strange to us that the action of temperance people rejecting the principle of compensation. should act in this way on the educational affairs of the country.

The Beet Sugar Factory.

"Contracts have been let for the main building of the new $600,000 beet sugar factory at Wallaceburg. It is to be 244 feet long, four stories high, the roofs to be of steel. The remainder of the building is to be wholly of brick, cement and stone. The storage build-ing for sugar will be 200 feet long, two stories high, and built of brick and iron. There are to be ten beet sheds, with a storing capacity of from 15,000 to 18,000 tons of beets, each of which is to be 400 feet long, and built of stone, cement and iron.

London is one of the best points in Canada at which to establish a firstclass beet sugar factory. The committee having such matters in hand could not better spend a few dollars than in ascertaining the hard facts, and starting the ball rolling, that will eventually bring to London so desirable on industry.

The Architecture of New York

There is as much pleasure and profit, to be derived from looking at a fine building as there is from looking at a fine painting. Whoever visited New York twenty years ago, and visits it again today, would see great changes in its architecture. Then four, five, and six story buildings were the rule. today they are five times as high. As you come up the harbor the sky line is completely changed. Nearly all the high buildings have been erected "down town," in the heavy business centers; but they are finding their way uptown as well. As far up as Seventy-fourth street is the largest hotel building in the world, thirtytwo stories high. Macy's new building is to be built at Thirty-fourth street, and will be the greatest departmental store building on the globe. Many of these sky-scrapers are very ornate buildings, but there is no vantage ground from which you can get a good view of them, and hence much of their beauty is lost; in fact, as you stretch your neck to see the top of them, it is their size and height rather One cannot help thinking that they do buildings are lower. The pleasant spots in New York three or four exceptionally fine buildings, but all low, comparatively. The spot on Broadway that perhaps pleases the eye most is Grace Church, situated about Tenth street. The church and rectory adjoining make a pretty picture that, looked at ever so often, never grows stale. A little further up, and on the easterly side of Union Square, is the building recently erected for the Court of Appeals. It is beautiful, and, of course, the principal room is the court room. Here you see a carpet, all made in one piece; chairs, those occupied by the judges said to have cost $700 each, and in the body of the room $60 each. Perhaps the most noteworthy circumstance in connection with this building is the fact that the ventilation is perfect, and that because one of the judges made it his business to study up the question, and had the means for ventilation put in accordingly. It is strange that a judge should in a short time master so difficult a subject, and surpass those whose business it is to understand such matters. The court room is a beautiful one, and the exterior of the building very fine. Further on up to Thirty-fifth street, and there stands the uptown office of The Herald, at Herald Square. Thousands admire the building, and thousands more stand to look in at the windows to see the mammoth presses at work. This ornate building, too, is a low one. Of all the buildings in New York there is one that more completely than any other fills the eye, that is St. Patrick's Cathedral on Fifth avenue. It is in its proportions and outlines perfect. The building itself would cost many times as much as Grace Church and its rectory, but both are beautiful to look at. The cathedral on Fifth avenue stands out as if boldly challenging criticism, but Grace Church is a picture of modesty in the very midst of rushing Broadway, set in a smiling space of green. It is to be hoped it will long remain, preaching its silent sermon to the millions who pass it. Buildings are educators, and it is strange that those which strike you as possessing the greatest beauty, should be in size the least pretentious. What the future, even the near future, will see of gigantic sky scraping buildings it is difficult to imagine, but it is pretty safe to predict that, demand our wonder as they may, they are not likely to secure our admiration or affection to the same extent that the other buildings, such as we have referred to,

The traveling correspondent of The Westminster, writing of the "Soo," sounds this note of warning: "That there will be the bitter disappointments which are inseparable from any great forward movement there is little doubt. People are slow to learn from the past, and there is always a feverish rush toward any rapidly developing center in the hope of getting in 'on the ground floor.' Professional men, laborers, adventurers, and all sorts and conditions of men are flocking to this new Eldorado, and it is inevitable that many will be disappointed and bitterly anathematize the whole movement.But the 'boom' features will pass away, and things will settle down to their normal condition. In the prevailing excitement it may be well for those who have comfortable positions in other parts, to remember the old proverb. Dress that 'a birl in the hand is worth two in the bush '"

Insurance and Assurance.

[Scottish Critic.]

The history of the use of the two words insurance and assurance is given in the great English dictionary now in course of publication, edited by Dr. Murray. Assurance is the earlier term used equally of marine and life insurance before the end of the sixteenth century. Its general application is retained in the titles of policies of some long-established companies—for example, the London Assurance Corporation. Insurance in the seventeenth century occurs first in reference to fires, but soon became o-extensive with assurance, the two terms being synonymous. Assurance would probably have dropped out of use, as it has almost done in the United States, but that Babbage, in 1826, proposed to restrict insurance to property, and assurance to life insur-This has been followed so far that assurance is now rarely used of marine, fire or accident insurance, and is retained in Great Britain in the nomenclature and use of the majority of life insurance companies. But in general popular use, insurance is the prevalent term. Mr. T. B. Sprague followed by others, considered assurance, assure, assurer, etc., the proper word for the action of the company or person undertaking the risk; insurance, insure, insurer, etc., for the person paying the premium. This we bein some respects a useful distinction if it can be carried out. but it would leave numbers of mutual societies at once assurers and in-

Even the mill itself has an assigned output which must not be exceeded. If the owner exceeds these limits, his mill may be blacklisted. His employes may not overwork, either, regardless of the condition of the order book; for "after the crew has started, and for breakage or other cause, they stopped for one or more hours, they shall stop work at the end of eight hours from when they started." There are minute regulations as to when vork shall begin and as to when work shall stop. The owners have nothing whatever to say about the management of the plant, and apparently after the workman has joined the association he has nothing whatever to say about his methods of working or his hours of employment. Everything is regulated for him by the association.

It is hardly necessary to say that this is precisely the sort of thing that is costing Great Britain her industrial supremacy. Her factories have been unionized to death. The individual efficiency of the men has been gradually decreasing under the benumbing regulations of the unions, and while it may afford "snaps" for the first generation, the second will find that its opportunities for earning a living have en stifled by the arrogance of its

The most serious blunder of American trades unions is in seeking to compel uniformity of effort, which after all, means only that the capable men must be reduced to the plane of incapable. They seek to encourage inefficiency rather than efficiency, and such a system spells death to industry.

4,000 PERSONS RENDERED HOMELESS!

By a Supposed Incendiary Fire at Grand Bourg.

Farmer's Heavy Loss at Fergus-U. P. Railway Loses Heavily-Blaze in Quebec.

St. Louis, Island of Marie Galanti, W. I., Aug. 20 (via Haytian cable). -The fire which nearly destroyed Grand Bourg, the principal town of this island (having a population of about 15,000 persons), broke out at 1 o'clock yesterday morning in the residence of the commissary of police. The conflagration is supposed to have been of incendiary origin, due to malevolence. All the public buildings, except the church. prison, and headquarters of the Genda armory, were destroyed, as were some 500 houses. The flames were extinguished at 9 in the morning. From 3,000 to 4.000 persons are without shelter, and suffering from the want of food. The governor of Guadaloupe, Joseph Francois, has chartered a steamer, which left that island yesterday with the first relief supplies of food and money. The loss is estimated at over $200,000.

STILL BURNING. Philadelphia, Aug. 20. - The fire which began yesterday afternoon at the works of the Atlantic Refining Company at Point Breeze, in the southwestern section of the city, is still burning fiercely tonight. Chief Baxter, of the city fire department, has given no hope of saving any of the company's property. It is believed to-night that the five lives lost in the explosion of the big gasoline tank last night completes the list of fatalities. ONE HUNDRED INJURED.

In the explosion which occurred this afternoon fifteen persons were injured seriously enough to be taken to hospitals, and about 40 others were treated on the scene by the ambulance surgeons. The roll of injured mounts up altogether to about 100. Many of these are trivial cases. A few are serious and may prove fatal.

Insurance men and firemen early today said the loss could not be less than $500,000, but since then great quantities of refined petroleum and benzine have been consumed, and several tanks have been rendered use-less by the flames.

FARMERS LOSE HEAVILY. Fergus, Ont., Aug. 20.-One of the most severe storms in many years passed over this section yesterday afpassed over this section yesterday afternoon. The lightning struck the barn of Wm. Richardson, of Garafraxa, about three miles east of here. The contents, which consisted of about half of this year's crop and a large quantity of last season's grain, along with the building, were completely destroy-ed. A team of horses, belonging to Mr. Brennan, had been driven into Mr.

Richardson's shed to escape the storm. The horses were killed, while the driver and another man, not six feet away, escaped untouched. Mr. Richardson's loss will be about $3,000; insurance, $1,- Harriston, Aug. 20. - The barn of Wm. Hale, farmer, about five miles from Harriston, was struck by light-ning during the heavy thunderstorm yesterday afternoon. All the season's crops were burned. Insurance $1,000, which only partially covers the loss. A QUEBEC BLAZE.

Quebec, Aug. 20.—A fire, which in-volved the total destruction of three buildings, as well as a large quantity of coal, occurred during last night, at Grosse Isle. The blaze started in a pile of coal on the wharf and spread to the adjoining buildings. The damage is considerable.

LOSS $100,000. Omaha, Neb., Aug. 21.-The freight sheds and fifty freight cars belonging to the Union Pacific road were burned at the transfer depot of that company in Council Bluffs yesterday, causing a loss estimated at $100,000. The sheds were full of freight, which was also destroyed. A GREAT SMOKE.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 20. — Fire de-stroyed what is locally known as the J. Wright Company plant of the American Cigar Company yesterday. There were about 400,000 pounds of leaf tobacco in the building. The total loss is placed at about $200,000; insurance.

Wreck of Islander Recalls Loss of the Elbe.

Believed That 42 Lives Were Lost and 115 Saved in the Disaster.

London, Aug. 21.—The disaster to ination, and today Master Campbell the Canadian Pacific liner Islander is opened the letter. It proved to be the Canadian Pacific liner Islander is commented on by nearly all of today's papers. In some particulars the tragedy recalls the loss of the North German Lloyd steamer Elbe, which sank off the southeast coast of England in January, 1895. On that occasion 385 lives were lost, but the circumstances of both collisions were curiously sim-

THE LOSS OF LIFE. Victoria, B, C., Aug. 20.-Latest reports of the disaster to the steamer Islander place the loss of life at 42, but no further names are obtainable except that of Howard Fowler, which was given in the list published as Howard Smith, second steward. Another name has also to be added to the list of saved, that of Quartermaster Hintz. Purser Bishop has gone to Skaguay to get a full list of those who took passage on the steamer.

OFFICERS WERE SOBER. Pilot Leblanc and all the officers deny the report that either he or the captain were intoxicated, and assert that the Islander was well supplied with life belts.

DEVELOPMENTS OF INQUEST. Seattle, Wash., Aug. 20.—At the inquest held at Juneau, which Mr. Snyder attended, evidence developed which tend to excuse the captain for not beaching the steamer at once. Mr.

"The pilot testified that he was on the bridge and that as soon as she struck he told the captain that he was going to beach her, but the captain 'No, there's a better place about three miles from here and she will asily float that long."

"The testimony showed that there was a stowaway in the forward water tight compartment. When the vessel struck the water rushed in on him and he set up a big howl, and being immediately under the sailors' quarters one of them thoughtlessly rushed down and opened the compartment, which allowed the sea to come rolling into the hold, carrying the body of the stowaway and the sailor with it. This was done without the captain's knowledge, and I think excused him for thinking vessel would float several hours which it would have done had the water tight compartment not been opened, and he could have beached her in a small bay about three miles away "It was established that if the pilot had carried out his intention he could have gotten her on the beach without loss of any lives except the stowawav.'

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 20.-Following the rapid moves of yesterday on either side of the great steel strike there was a lull today, and neither side took decisive action that showed up-on the service. It has been a running fight so far, with small victories and minor defeats for both sides, but it now seems to be settling down into a hard, determined struggle in which neither side will acknowledge defeat while there is hope left. and Bellaire, the strongholds of the A WOMAN IN THE CASE. One feature of the fight at the Star tin mill, in this city, is contributed by the claim of the strikers that Mrs. Fred Baugh, wife of the superintendent, is escorting strike breakers to and from the mill. She has always been very popular with the mill men, and the pickets say they would rather face a regiment of soldiers than do anything improper in her presence. They say that in peace times she nursed their families and that they simply cannot interfere with her or the men

she escorts. STRIKERS' CLAIM.

The strikers meet the movement to reopen mills with non-union men with the claim that it will be simply im-possible to secure a sufficient number some information about his family, asked a number of questions about London and Canada. Master Campof skilled men to operate them. Their men, they declare, are standing firm. They claim that South Chicago will in the end come out and that there is no danger of Joliet men going back to work whatever Chicago does. They are still fighting for a foothold in the Carnegie properties, but so far Another case of smallpox has been have not shown their hand.

HARD ON WILSON. Montreal, Aug. 21.-In an interview here Mr. McTagert, who represented the bridgemen on the board of conciliation on the trackmen's strike, said the strike would have been settled long ago if it had not been for President Wilson, who seeks only his own glory and aggrandizement. He says The chairman's scholarship, valued at $150, of the School of Mining, the strike would have been settled in Kingston, awarded to the student taking the highest marks in the senior three weeks but for President Wilson's efforts. THE TYPOS. Before the International Typographical Union adjourned, an amendment to the constitution was adopted by which the plurality rule shall hereafter apply in the election of the president and secretary-treasurer. A proposition to levy a special assessment for label agitation was adopted, as was also a proposition to make machine tender's assistants members of the union. A proposition excluding the testimony of non-union printers when a union man is on trial was carried. tion of farms. Hon. E. J. Davis, the commissioner of crown lands, does not know how soon the work of examining the claims can be started, but The proposal to abrogate the agreewith the pressmen and book binders' unions will also be submitted to the referendum.

LITTLE CHANGE

In the Steel Strike Situation In and Around Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 21.-The strike situation was not materially changed today. The strikers have not called any more men out and none of the plans of the manufacturers for addiresumptions with non-union tional men have matured.

Thirty strike breakers have been appointed as special officers to guard the plant of the American Sheet Steel Company, at Wellsville, and the police here have had to disperse noisy and who was drowned in the wreck of that vessel, was formerly a navigator

FOR INFLAMMATION OF THE EYES.—Among the many good qualities which Parmelee's Vegetable Pills possess, besides regulating the digestive organs, is their efficacy in reducing inflammation of the eyes. It has called forth many letters of recommendation from those who were afflicted with this complaint and found a cure in the pills. They affect the nerve centers and the blood in a surprisingly active way, and the result is almost immediately seen. INFLAMMATION OF THE

Tuesday matinee. The piece, which was favorably received here last year, is put together simply for the purpose of giving the comedians an opportunity to exhibit themselves in the various specialty performances. It is separated into three acts, and these acts are full of action rather than dialogue. The first scene is laid in a young student's apartments in Boston. The second act shifts to Vermont. It may not be necessary to say that there is a young girl who is in love with a young student, and that the young student reciprocates the love. His creditors stand in the way of his marriage, and 'A Breezy Time" is like other pieces in this, at least, but all ends happily in the last act.

Only a week ago, it was stated in the press, that one of his colts made a world's record on a halfmile track at Listowel. At the races just closed at Port Huron another colt sired by him won one of the hard-est-fought battles of the season. Hardbars, owned by Dr. Price, of Almont, Mich., starting in the three-minute class, was forced to go in 2:24 to win the race, which he did in grand style. It must be gratifying to Messrs. Bateman and Pierce to find their efforts to breed fast horses rewarded. ARSENIC FACTORIES

Habits Acquired by the People Who Work in Them.

White arsenic is the form in which arsenic is taken by the peasants of Styria and the Tyrol. Prof. Schallgrueber, of Gaetz, was the first to call attention to this practice, in a report which he made in 1822 to the Austrian government on the cause of the numerous deaths from arsenic poisoning in those districts. He found that arsenic was kept in most of the houses in Upper Styria, under the name of "hydrach," evidently a corruption of "huttenrauch," or furnace smoke. His statements made were subsequently confirmed from personal observation by a Dr. McClagan, of Edinburgh, but for many years afterwards the arsenic eaters were generally disbelived in; and it was not till 1860 that C. Heisch published convincing evidence. Arsenic is principally eaten by hunters and woodcutters, with the proving their staying powers. Owing to the fact that the sale of arsenic is certificate it is difficult to obtain definite information of a habit which is kept as secret as possible. According to a Dr. Lorenzo, in that district, the arsenic is taking fast, usually in a cup of coffee, the first dose being minute, but increased day by day, until it sometimes amounts to the enormous dose of twelve to fifteen grains. He found that the arsenic eaters were usually long-lived, though liable to sudden death. They have a very fresh, youthful appearance, and are seldom attacked by infectious dis-

If a confirmed arsenic eater suddenly at-tempts to do altogether without the drug he immediately succumbs to the effects of arsenic poisoning. The only way to obviate this is gradually to acclimatize the system by reducing the dose from day to day. As another the dose from day to day. As another allows the body to drive ahead from the body to driv of arsenic it is interesting to note that when the graveyards in Upper Styria are opened the bodies of the arsenic eaters can be distinguished by their almost perfect state of preservation, due to the gradually accumulated

SWIMMING LESSONS IN THE TANK!

This summer's girl should know how to swim, if one may judge by the number of young women to be found in the Turkish bath tanks at unnaturally "Learning to swim at the seashore early hours in the morning, taking is difficult because women are so hamthe Turkish bath tanks at unnaturally fancy strokes or sometimes taking lessons from an attendant.

Oddly enough, these girls say they learn more quickly in the tanks than at the regular swimming schools. At the schools most of the teachers use cork floats or trolley belts, and for some reason or other women fail to gain confidence while they have these artificial supports.

"I don't believe in the cork floats," said a Turkish bath attendant who numbers many New York women among her swimming pupils. "They give some aid in acquiring the proper movements, but they fail to give the learner confidence in herself at the very beginning. Once she has learned with a belt she must begin and learn all over again without it.

"The best way is to learn in a tank before going into deep water at all. The very first lesson in swimming is to make the pupil confident. If she strikes out in a tank she knows that if she goes under she has only to pick herself up again. "Sometimes I have stretched a rope half way across the tank and have shown the learner that it is possible to reach it from the steps by pushing the foot back against the steps as one starts. Once this has been done successfully and the swimmer has caught the rope at the end of the drive she has learned an important lesson, that is that the water will bear her up if the body is properly poised. "Women learn to swim easily enough, but they are slow in acquiring style. They will not go slow enough, and they never, or at least very rarely, understand the impetus that sends the body along through the water. They depend too much on the hands and legs. But evident, but these soon disappear on style in swimming means much besides being graceful, for it indicates courage, coolness, self-confidence and a "Women soon learn to use their arms

In the swimming schools the jugits are provided with a one-piece garment loosely made and worn without a skirt. "The old-fashioned flannel suits were the worst of all. They keld the water like a sponge, thickened and grew heavy as lead and became coid and clammy when the wearer came on shore. The alpaca or brilliantine that is at present word for bathing dresses is the most appropriate and suitable material for bathing dresses. Silk and satin are in bad taste and are only worn for show."

Juliana laughed. 'I should like to do 50," she said, after a slight pause. "Yes, I should decidedly like to have a peep into my future."

"Your future! Is it not already known to you? You are to become Mrs. Deacon Prynne, and so on, eh?"

The girl bit her lips in silence, and walked on by the side of her companion. Their road lay between two high hills. On one side of them flowed a broad.

On one side of them flowed a broad, winding stream, on the other, fertile meadows, with here and there a cluster of fine trees.

After a walk of a couple of miles,
Juliana and Vaughan came upon a group of humble dwellings, in one of which lived old Mother Morgan and her widowed daughter.
"I think I'd better go in first and speak to Bessy," Juliana observed to her companion.

"Very well; but I should like to see Bessy, for I remember her before I went abroad, and should like, if possible, to be of service to her."

Juliana nodded her head, and then hastened onward in the direction of Mother Morgan's cottage, at the open door of which she found the old woman sitting with an infant on her lap.
"Good morning, Mrs. Morgan," Juliana commenced.

"Good morning, miss," returned the other, glancing at the young girl under a pair of thick, inky eyebrows.
"Is that Bessy's baby?" inquired Juliana, kneeling down and removing the light covering which concealed its little red face. What's its name? Oh, how pretty it is! How is it called?" cried the girl, rapidly. It ha'n't been christened," returned

"It ha'n't been christened," returned the grandame.
"Not been christened?"
"No, miss; it was to have been christened this merning, but its intended godparents, John Jones and Mary Williams, have disappointed us, and the child had its best clothes put on for nothing."
"That's a pity, and the village church ose by," Juliana remarked. Then she se and beckoned to Vaughan, who was tanding a short distance off, and he at once obeyed the signal and hurried toward her.

"And so should I," Vaughan replied, quickly, "on condition that the child be called Juliana." "What say you to accepting this gentleman and myself for your Infant's godparents?" asked the girl, addressing the old woman. "Bessy will make no objection to it, I am sure."

Mother Morgan stared at the handsome couple standing before her scarcely be-

Bessy make no objection to it, I should think, indeed! Why, she'll be fit to jump out of her skin with joy and gratitude! Here, Bessy! make here!" Bessy! make haste and come here!" continued the dame, shouting out at the top of her voice. "Come, Bessy, I say! Here's Miss Monkshawe and a gentleman, Mr. Vaughan, I think, who are ready and willing to do you and the child a great honor!"

The girl hesitated, and Vaughan made n ugly grimace, "Shall I, Vaughan?" she asked, un-

Neither Vaughan nor Juliana could give utterance to a syllable, for each felt that the woman had read the hidden secret of their hearts.

"Ah!" cried the old woman, with a shudder, and dropping the young girl's hand; "I'll read no more, for you would not thank me for what I might tell you, miss; and—"

"What you might tell me, Mrs. Mor-gan!" repeated Juliana, rapidly chang-ing color. "What does my hand inform you of? Speak! let me hear."
"Don't ask me, for I dare not speak! Heaven bless your beautiful face, and yours too, Mr. Vaughan; and may the angels keep you, miss, from the harm that too plainly I see is threatening you.

And with those words Mother Morgan turned away and speedily disappeared. CHAPTER V.

"A mistake? Yes, indeed!" answered "A mistake? Yes, indeed!" answered the girl, absently, a warm flush mantling her cheeks and her brow up to the very roots of her hair.

Then they walked on together quite silently, and so much occupied with their own thoughts that they did not notice the dark clouds which had gathered above their heads and obscured all the sun's rave suddenly there was a rumbling in the distance.

Juliana looked up in terror.

"That was thunder, surely, Vaughan?"

"That was thunder, surely, Vaughan?" said she.

"Yes, I think so," was the young man's answer. "Let us hasten our steps," he added, glancing around at the horizon.
"A thunderstorm is fast approaching.
"Into the wood—into the wood! where I shall not be able to see the awful lightning flash, Vaughan!" the girl cried out in alarm, and at the same time dashing onward.

Onward.

Vaughan fellowed his companion's steps and after a short space they reached the wood, the trees of which would, at any rate, afferd them temporary shelter.

As yet not a drop of rain had fallen, but the thunder was crashing, peal after peal, in rapid succession.

Juliana's face was void of all color, and she was trembling from head to foot.

They sought the protection of a mighty oak, at the foot of which the girl sank, quite overcome with alarm. But she had not been seated many seconds before she sprang up again.

"Oh, Vaughan, my bracelet is gone—my bracelet containing Deacon's portrait!" she cried in great distress. "Whatever shall I do?" And without waiting to hear what her companion would reply, she hastened back in the direction she had just come.

Vaughan followed her, and hardly had he gained her side, when he exclaimed, joyfully, "I have found it—I have found.

It! Oh, how fortunate I am!" And stooping down he picked up the missing trinket and handed it to her.

"Oh, thank you, Vaughan!" she said, very gratefully. And then their eyes were blinded by a sudden lurid flash, and a peal resounded which seemed to shake the very earth beneath their feet. They looked behind them, and lo! the tree under which they had been resting only a moment ago was torn up by the roots and felled to the ground.

And yet this pair could scarcely realize what had happened.

A momentary bewilderment had seized upon them both. And Vaughan was only sensible that he was holding Juliana in his arms, and that her head was supported by his shoulder.

JEFFRIES AND RUHLIN SIGN. San Francisco, Aug. 21.—James J. Jeffries and Gus Ruhlin, the pugilists, signed an agreement yesterday to fight for the heavy-weight championship of the world. It is agreed that the match is to take place on some day in either November or December before the club offering the largest purse. The pugilists expressed preference for either the San Francisco A. C. or the Twentieth Century Club.

Caused by overwork? No, caused is worry—the outcome of a low condition of the nervous system and inadequate nutrition which generally causes collapse. The collapse seems sudden, but in reality it is a slow process. The stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition are diseased, the nourishment in the food eaten is only partially extracted and imperfectly assimilated. The blood becomes impure; the very fount of life is poisoned, and some day all the faculties and functions go on a strike. That's collapse. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the organs of sound healthy flesh.

AT WINDSOR.

Windsor, Aug. 21.—A heavy rain commenced shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday, and continued until post time, leaving the track a sea of mud. In the first race Elba was favorite in the beginning, but got off badly, and made a desperate effort to win from Northumbria, at 15 to 1, but the latter had four lengths to the good turning into the stretch, and won by a neck from Elba; Jim Nap, third. Henry Zitt and All Gray, coupled as the Harlin entry, and 1 to 2 in the books, ran first and third. Zitt led all the way, winning by four lengths from Newton W. Jim McGibben was picked by the talent to win the steeplechase, but second position was the best he could get. Coley and George W. Jenkins raced like a team to the sixth hurdle; where Coley dropped back, McGibben taking up his place, but could do no better. Jenkins won by three lengths. Toulaca, 10 to 1, won the fourth as she pleased. Raveling, an even money favorite, finished among the also rans. The Geiser ran second and Himtime AT WINDSOR.

THE RAIN AND EPWORTH

LEAGUERS. Rains and pienics don't go hand in hand-a truth that four or five hundred Epworth Leaguers learned yesterday, when they had an outing at Springbank. Except that the day was a little hot, it promised all right, and great show. The 9:20 a.m. train on the leaguers were bent upon having a from London, landing passengers at merry time. They left their lunchbaskets at the open space past the end of the railway track, intending to have the evening meal together, and went back to carry out the programme of sports. When the ball game was being played, and all were watching it, the rain began to fall. Everybody made a bee-line for the pavilion, and got there pretty wet. A few young women had stayed down with the baskets to get the lunch ready, and they were caught badly-hadn't a place to get When it was over a hurried examination showed that the biscuits were flat pit-crusts were soggy, and all the eat ables were more or less waterlogged. Enough was got together, however, satisfy most appetites, and a happy meal was eaten at the pavilion.

Of the local bankers, there is perhaps none better known to the Montreal public than Mr. Henry Vincent Meredith, of the Bank of Montreal. In his capacity as local manager of Can- | sory. has constantly to deal with men and affairs, and his private office is the scene of the coming and going of those who have financial dealings on hand. Mr. Meredith comes of a distinguished Canadian family. He was born in London, Ont., educated at Hellmuth College, and began his banking experience in the Bank of Montreal's Hamilton branch in 1867. He was made an accountant at the main office in this city in 1879 and the same year he was appointed assistant inspector. Ten years later he was of Stratford. The bride was support- made manager of the Montreal office, one of the most important positions of the groom, and Mr. G. Alway, bro-ther of the bride, was best man. Toronto Boy Dies of Diphtheria—Father Charged With Criminal Neglect.

Toronto, Aug. 21.—Roy Lewis, a son of J. H. Lewis, a street railway employe, died of diphtheria on Aug. 13 last, and Coroner Cotton, who investigated the case, found that the boy had been treated by a Christian Scientist named Richard Perry, who had allowed him to die without medical attention.

Perry admitted to the coroner's jury that he had made no efforts to isolate the Perry admitted to the coroner's jury that he had made no efforts to isolate the case or to cure the child, except what he could by the "silent treatment." He said he knew nothing about diphtheria, but simply followed the teachings of Mrs. Eddy's books, and what he had learned in the course of a series of lessons which he had taken from another demonstrator.

STOP THAT HEAD COLD IN 10 MINUTES-or it will develop chronic catarrh. Dr. Agnew's Ca-tarrhal Powder stops cold in the head in ten minutes, and relieves most acute and deep seated catarrh after one application. Cures quickly and permanently. "I have used Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder with best results. It is a great remedy, and I never cease recommending it." John E. Dell, Paulding, O. For sale by C. McCallum & Co.-23.

"Put on Your Overcoat." Senseless advice this for hot weather, yet no more senseless than the practice of eating foods that unduly raise the heat of the body without furnishing the nutriment needed for the obtaining and retaining of perfect health. Granose and Granola are perfect foods, and when their use is sup-plemented by drinking Caremel Cereal nstead of tea or coffee, the result in improved health and strength is mardisappear before their use.
