It was a People's Funeral. There was no pump and pageantry, no attempt to make the proceedings an imposing spectacle, when all that was mortal of the late when all that was mortal of the late which Dominion—even that portion of it which, in the heat of political contention, once held otherwise—pronounced the decapital of the county which he served so well for many years. The vast concourse that gathered in Sarnia yesterday to show their respect for the memory of the decased statesman were not drawn this decased statesman were not drawn this decased will be under the decased statesman were not drawn this decased statesman were not drawn this decased statesman were not drawn this decased statesman were not drawn that the decased statesman were not drawn the decased statesman were make the proceedings an imposing spectacle, their last resting place in the peaceful capital of the county which he served so well for many years. The vast concourse that gathered in Sarnia yesterday the deceased statesman were not drawn thither by idle curiosity or out of expectation of personal profit. It can truthfully be said that they came from far and nearmany of them at great inconven-ience—for the sole purpose of paying their last tribute of regard to an Honest Man-a consistent statesman, a patriot, as true a friend as ever lived.

The morning opened with a heavy downof rain, but that did not prevent hundreds of the stalwart yeomanry of Lambton from driving long distances get a last look at their honored friend, while every train on the G. T. R. brought a large addition to the gathering. Indeed, there were few places in Western Canada which did not send a delegation.

Sarnia, the home of the Mackenzies, was in mourning. Almost every place of business was draped in black, and in dozens of windows were placed the portrait of the dead statesman, surrounded by crape. Much interest was taken by many in two pictures which were placed in the windows of Mr. John Watson's store. These represented the paternal home of the Mackenzies in the prettily-situated village of Logierait, and the manse and kirk of Logierait, near which the Mackenzie family spent their early years, and where the late Mr. Mackenzie imbibed those strong religious convictions which were his stay through life.

At 12 o'clock, the body was conveyed from the residence of Mr. Charles Mackenzie, M.P.P., to the Presbyterian Church on Christiana street, of which Rev. Dr. Thompson, son-in-law of the deceased, has been the respected pastor since 1866. There it lay for two hours, and during that period thousands of life-long friends, their children, and in some cases their grand-children, looked upon the well-known features for the last time on earth. It was features for the last time on earth. It was a solemn spectacle-never to be forgotten.

At 2 p.m. the funeral service was begun. The church was crowded in every part, even the aisles and the pulpit steps were occupied, and many hundreds were unable occupied, and many fundreus were unable to gain admission. A very old friend of the deceased, Professor Gregg, of Knox College, opened the services by giving out the grand old hymn, "Rock of Ages Cleft for Me," and Principal McLaren read a portion of the Scriptures appropriate to the occasion. Professor Gregg offered up an earnest prayer, and the hymn "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung—with the full electric leading.

God to Thee" was sung—with the full choir leading.

Professor Gregg, in a few appropriate remarks said: "It is now about twelve years since some of us, not many, assembled in the city of Toronto to consign to their last resting place a distinguished statesman known here as having for a time represented the county of Lambton in the Parliament of this country. To-day we assemble to carry to the tomb the remains of another distinguished statesman, who of another distinguished statesman, who also represented this county—a man of kindred spirit to him who died twelve years ago. George Brown and Alexander Mackenzie were indeed men of kindred spirits. Both of them natives of Scotland, they were legiers of mencies of noble men. apirits. Both of them natives of Scotland, they were heirs of memories of noble men who had bravely battled, bravely suffered and bravely died in the cause of civil and religious liberty. Both of them gifted by nature with a singularly powerful mental capability, the two fought for long years side by side for the cause of truth and right. Both had high aims, and both, I do not hesitate to say, by their precept and example, conferred blessings on their adopted land. They cease from their labors and their works do follow them. It is now 50 years since Alexander Mackenzie came to this country, and during that half century whatchanges have been witnessed." The speaker here referred to the improvements in modes of travel, and enlarged on the nents in modes of travel, and enlarged honorable warfare which Mr. Macon the honorable warfare which Mr. Mackenz'e had conducted in favor of the abolition of the clergy reserves and to the establishment of representation by population, though he was free to confess that the principle was not always carried out. Mr. Mackenzie also aided in making the great Provincial University thoroughly non-sectarian and in effecting the confederation of the Provinces.

In all of these metals well Dr. Confederation

In all of these matters, said Dr. Gregg, Mr. Mackenzie was not merely an interested spectator, but a laborious indefatiga-ble worker, and took an honorable place statesman.

Rev. Principal McLaren then pronounced the benediction, and the choir sang a beautiful anthem. This concluded the services in the church, but many latecomers lingered for a time to view the beautiful wreaths of flowers by which the casket was completely covered. A PRACTICAL JONE.

moreover a man of keen political insignt, untiring energy and rigid uprightness.

A practical joice, in which the late ex-Premier, with Sheriff McKellar, of Wentworth, and the late Elijah Leonard were the principals, came very near to ending in a tragedy. They went up to Thunder Bay together for a summer outing, and, with one of the McVicars, of what is now Port Arthur, they crossed the bay to spend aday on Thunder Cape. This promontory is about 1,800 feet high, capped with basaltic trap, which forms a series of natural steps from the cape for easy ascent. Having gained the summit they rested for awhile, surveying the grand scenery which spread en all sides around them. Mr. McKellar was the first to start down, the other two promising to follow very soon. Mr. Mackenzie had all the curiosity of a boy to see a stone roll down hill, and he also had an eye for a practical joke on his comrade, so he set to work with McVicar to push a boulder to the edge of the cliff. Off it bounded at an angle of 45 degrees from the course which Mr. McKellar had taken, and the two men gave a shout of, "Look out, there! look out!" But at that moment the boulder struck a projecting rock and its course was changed direct.

there! look out! look out!" But at that moment the boulder struck a projecting rock and its course was changed direct for Mr. McKellar, who was standing in terror some 300 feet lower down. The shouts of alarm were renewed with great earnestness as the boulder leaped from crag to crag, and there was not an instant to lose. Within a few feet of where Mr. McKellar stood was a birch tree, and instinctively he threw himself below it and hugged it with one arm for support. Next moment he threw himself below it and hugged it with one arm for support. Next moment the boulder struck the tree, only a foot above the arm, and, breaking it in two, the pieces grazed Mr. McKellar's body as they sped down to the dark, deep waters of the lake, more than 1,000 feet below. "I was sorry for Mr. Mackenzie," Mr. McKellar said, in telling the story to the writer a quarter of a century ago. "He prayed my forgiveness with the tears in his eyes. As for myself, the joke cost me a bad scare and an ugly cut on the knee."

West Lambton Reform Association pre ented the following to Mrs. Mackenzie: The members of the West Lambton Reorm Association, in common with the people of every section of Canada, without listinction of party, are greatly moved by the death of the Hon. Alex. Mackenzie, our the death of the Hon. Alex. Mackenzie, our able representative in Parliament for over twenty years. We feel that his removal is a public loss which his country can ill afford to sustain. The departed statesman was a patriot of peace and lofty motives, who has bequeathed to his country the rich inheritance of a public and private character in which the flery search light of flerce contemporary criticiem failed to disferce contemporary criticiem failed to disacter in which the fiery search light of flerce contemporary criticism failed to dis-cover and ceased to look for a blemish or a stain. To his friends, his neighbors and constituents who knew him best, no words of eulogism are required to endear his memory, and in the history of his town and of his country his name is indelibly record-ed as one who did what he believed to be ed as one who did what he believed to be his duty regardless of consequences; "who feared his God and feared none else besides." To his noble wife and widow, bereft of an honored and loving husband, and to all his sorrowing relatives we tender our heartfelt sympathy in this their day of sorrow and bereavement.

The Sarnia Observer, of last night, in referring to the sad event, says: "The greatest journalists, the foremost states men and the most eminent divines in the Dominion have pronounced their eulogies hear testimony to his uprightness of character, his stern determination in defense of what he believed was right and of opposition to evil. His eulogists had not to pick their way among the pages of his life work to separate the good he did from that which should be covered with the mantle of silence. No blemish mars the record he hands down to posterity. Tried in the fire of temptation that surrounds a public man with vast patronage at his disposal, he proved incorruptible. Few men have stood the ordeal as he, and the example he set to his followers has left an influence behind his followers has left an influence behind it for good that will be felt for generations it for good that will be felt for generations to come. It is a proud consolation to know that his stering honesty and uprightness have won the admiration of all men. A good name is better than riches, and to his family and friends he has left that which no wealth can buy and no empty titles win.

AMONG THE SOCIETIES.

It is astonishing the number of people still unassured, whilst in our towns are whole armies of agents anxious and willing to take the risks. Men see friends falling around them on every hand, leaving bereaved ones unprovided for. Mothers that have spent their last shilling in educating them to enable them to be a help to them later on. Wives that men have promised to love, cherish and care for, children they have begotten, caressed and affectionately fondled, all, all are left to the tender mercy of strangers, by him who should have taken care that, for some time at least, the home that was their home should still be theirs; that the roof that had covered them whils the lived should still be a shelter to them when he had passed away. If men would only give the matter a few minutes thoughtful consideration, a life policy would be found among the effects of each of us.—[London Guardian. fondled, all, all are left to the tender mercy of strangers, by him who should have taken care that, for some time at least, the home that was their home should still be theirs; that the roof that had covered them whilst he lived should still be a shelter to them when he had passed away. The only female Freemason in the world lives in Oakland, Cal.. Her name is Mrs. Salome Anderson, and her portrait adorns the temple of Live Oak Lodge, No. 61, where it is placed in a position of honor among the pictures of the past masters. The story of how she became one of the craftsmen is interesting. She was born in Alsace-Lorraine, in 1818, and becoming an orphan at an early age, she went to Paris to reside with her uncle, who was a zealcus and prominent Mason. The lodge meetings were held in his house, and with the curiosity of her sex, she concealed herself in the room during a couple of the sessions, and thus learned some of the mysteries of the order. W. D. Eberts, one of Chatham's oldest citizens, is dead. He was born in Windsor in July, 1811, in the house still standing, and now known as "The Hall Estate." His father, Joseph Eberts, and grandfather, Dr. Hermann von Eberts, both served in the war of 1812, the former as a captain and the latter as surgeon under General Brock. The destruction of his property during the early days of the war and in his absence led Captain Eberts to send his young family from the frontier up the Thames to land given to his wife Ann, by her father, Captain William Baker, he who first, in 1793, founded the post "to be called Chatham." Deceased has lived in Chatham since 1835, and in 1890 he celebrated his golden wedding. He had been a successful business man, and had been honored by being placed in many responsible positions during an active and useful fife.

Dr. Hutchinson, medical health officer, reported to the Board of Health yesterday afternoon as follows: I beg to report that during the month of March there were 12 cases of scarlet fever and no deaths; 3 cases of diphtheria, of which I died, and 3 deaths from typhoid fever. I also beg to state that for some time I have been making a cereful analysis of ice taken from different parts of the cove by myself and from the same place from which it is taken by the ice dealers of this city. In this work I have been assisted by the Government analyst, Dr. Harrison, with the result that this ice has been found unfit for domestic purposes. As there are thousands of dollars invested in buildings, land and equipments, I think it would be unfair for the board to take action until such time as a careful analysis can be made during low water, of samples from the north and south branches, where ice is also obtained for use in the city, and as the business employs many men and considerable capital is invested therein, I would suggest that the Government analyst be requested to make careful analysis of river water taken from

She talked of her accomplishments to a reporter yesterday, but was not inclined to give her yesterday, but was not inclined to give her-self too much credit for the position she has attained in the billiard world. She first commented upon the great amount of work required before proficiency can be obtained.

"Some young women," she said, "practice for hours at a piano, but two hours' practice at a billiard table would wear them out. This is why there are so few lady experts; it is the lack of energy to practice. The number of women billiardists, however, would surprise you, and there are more experts than the public are aware of. In some sections of the country billiard playing is a very popular drawing-room entertainment, and many of the women of a family become quite expert with the cue. To become expert in knocking the ivories about it is necessary to practice at least five hours a day. One must not forego practice, either, after he has become skillful. It requires strength to play billiards, and the majority of ladies whom forego practice, either, after he has become skillful. It requires strength to play billiards, and the majority of ladies whom I have seen play fail because they do not exert their strength and use their wrists properly. It I were teaching a young society lady billiards I would first grasp her arm at the elbow and shake her hand and wrist for half an hour each day for a week. This would take the stiffness out of these parts, and increase the strength of the muscles. These are the most important points in playing billiards. The greatest thing with which a woman has to contend, even when she has mastered the The greatest thing with which a woman has to contend, even when she has mastered the game, is playing in public. The moment she plays before anybody she gives way to a form of stage fright. This can be overcome, however, but it requires a long time. London, Friday, April 22.

Gladstone favors the adoption of the 21 note system in England. It has worked splendidly in Scotland, but the English issue only £5 notes. All other currency is in silver or gold.

Hon. C. F. Fraser, Ontario Minister of Public Works, has returned to To-ronto, after his prolonged absence in search of health. His many friends throughout the Province will be glad to hear that his condition has been greatly improved by temporary cessation from work and the change of scene.

California is getting some pretty severe shakes these days. The recent earthquakes recall the shocks of 1812, 1868 and 1872 in more or less serious form. Their origin seems to be in the Sierra Nevada range of mountains, as in 1872. The damage done has been equally marked with the visitation of 1868. These alarming disturbances will be puzzling things to explain when the lot boomer comes east to coax settlers to the land of the orange and fig.

The Canada Presbyterian, taking note of the fact that the Ontario Legislature has met for the last time in the old historic building, remarks that "the Legislatures who have met in that old building for the last fifteen or twenty years have for the most part been composed of men who were an honor and a credit to their Province. The 'moral and intellectual decadence' of which Dr. Douglas spoke lately has certainly not reached the Legislature of Ontario So far as the character and standing of the members are concerned the last years of the old building were quite as good as any of the earlier years. Many would say that they were distinctly better."

The Ontario Government, in order to encourage the benevolent, makes yearly grants to the charitable institutions throughout the Province. These grants are based on the aggregate stay of the inmates in each refuge, as proved by the books, and for the London city institutions the following are recommended for the current year: To the Home for Aged Men, $564 34; to the Home for Aged Women, $478 10; to the R. C. House of Refuge $1,407 42; Convalescent Home, $177 30; R. C. Orphans' Home, $556 78; Protestant Orphans' Home, $413 18; Women's Refuge and Infants' Home, $358 93, Middlesex House of Refuge, in accordance with recent legislation is entitled to a grant of $4,000 a year. The charitable institutions receive no aid from the Dominion Govern-

Great Britain is the most tolerant country on the face of the earth. The oppressed of all nationalities have looked to her as a friend, and some of the worst scoundrels have found refuge within her hospitable bounds. When, however, men urder as an agency to attain their ends, it is no wonder that the authorities lose their patience. Anarchy has no good cause for existence in England, and the Anarchist newspaper which advised the assassination of Home Secretary Matthews and of Judge Hawkins, who sentenced the Walsall dynamiters, courted suppression, The jail is none too good a place for its publisher and editor. Legitimate agitation against wrongdoing is always war-ranted, and even open rebellion has been commended when oppression became so great as to be no longer bearable. Rebels become patriots, indeed, when they succeed, but the advocacy of secret assassination can have no defenders among manly

MR. MACKENZIE AND THE CHAMBER OF INVALIDS.

A Quebec paper gives currency to the statement that if Mr. Mackenzie had been defeated in East York at any time Sir John Macdonald intended to offer him an appointment in the Senate.

It is idle to speculate upon what Sir John Macdonald might or might not have done. What we all know is that Sir John Macdonald countenanced the gerrymander of East York in 1882, so as, if possible, to secure the defeat of Mr. Mackenzie when he first ran for that constituency. He approved of the candidature of Alf. Boultbee in opposition to Mr. Mackenzie, and he did his very best, in this way, to drive his old antagonist from public life.

As to the Senate, it is well known that Mr. Mackenzie had not a good opinion of that nonrepresentative body. If there was to be a second chamber he favored its selection on a popular basis. When he was Prime Minister he had ample proof of its power to ence to the will of the people, and there is no record that he changed his views in regard to it. At as late a date as the last Dominion general election Mr. Mackenzie's opponents in East York tried to get votes for their man by assuring the elect-ors that if the ex-Premier were defeated he would be appointed Senator. An intimate personal friend of the deceased related the story to him, for he was unable, by illhealth, to enter the constituency and hear the campaign gossip for himself. With a twinkle in his eye, and with that dry, pawky humor which in private life he ofter turned to account, he replied: "Don't you think they have too many invalids in the Senate already?" No; Mr. Mackenzie was far from enamored of Senatorial honors as they have been bestowed in these later years.

A NOTABLE DELIVERANCE. At its recent meeting in Stratford, the Presbyterian Syned of Hamilton and London unanimously adopted the report of the Committee on the State of Religion. It contains some startling statements regarding the present condition of affairs in the Dominion. We append the conclusions

"The committee did not think that the facts justify the conclusion that there is at present a high or increasing state of spiritual life in the church. Nearly every report on the state of religion for a quarter of a century or more closed with the assurance that the spiritual life of the church was in advance of the previous year. If this were true we ought to be by this time the most saintly people that ever lived. But are we? We fear the facts are against us. There is so much revealed in the public actions of every-day life as to convince us that neither in our own church, nor in the sister churches of our land is spiritual life on the increase. Society is nor in the sister churches of our land is spiritual life on the increase. Society is broken into fragments, one part bristling against another because of the intense selfishness with which so many are actuated. Class combines against class in the way of self-protection or self-aggrandizement utterly regardless of the effects produced by the actions of one upon the other. Look at society in its political aspect and can we say, in view of present facts, that spiritual life is on the increase? See the universal tendency of parties to facts, that spiritual life is on the increase? See the universal tendency of parties to pander to Roman Catholicism. We, as a people, through our representatives in Parliament, are made to recognize and sanction nearly all the saints days in the Romish calendar. Parliament adjourns from time to time that these days may be publicly observed. By all means let the members of that church have full liberty to observe their saints' days, but why form time to time that these days may be publicly observed. By all means let the members of that church have full liberty to observe their saints' days, but why should we allow ourselves, through our representatives, to be made partakers of their evil deeds? Our country, at present, is cursed and dishonored by political corruption. It is carried on so ostematically that it might be classed as one of the fine arts. Satan's insination against Job that he was bribed or bought was a base he, but even the father of ites would for once tell the truth if he should now say that many in our land can be bribed and bought, and he might safely include in the statement constituencies and Provinces, and yet, in the face of this, we are expected to believe that the state of religion is improving. Look at a map of our Provinces and ago to the constituencies. They look as if their boundaries had been marked out by chain lightning. We all know why they are so irregular, and still, professedly the still the state of religion is constituent of men so devidence of great ability, and are encouraged to imitate the conduct of men so devidence of great ability, and are encouraged to imitate the conduct of men so devidence of great ability, and are encouraged to imitate the conduct of men so develoced to the state of religion is constituent of the provincy and the state of religion is constituent of the state of religion is constituent of the state of religion is comparatively low in our church and country."

Therefore a deprive their fellow-citizens of their just rights. How do sund actions correspond with the principles laid dow justify general adoption. Mr. Thornycroft describes a combination of valves and cylinders partially filled with water, which one of the highest authorities present pronounced a practical success. tried on a yacht of 230 tons, with 8 tons of water, or 31 per cent. of the displacement. At sea after a severe gale, with the waves on her port quarter, the yacht rolled normally through an arc of 36°. With the anti-rolling machine set in motion this are was reduced to 18°, or just one-half. With such an apparatus as this, ordinary ocean steamers might be made to plow through the waves in all kinds of weather, with comparative ease. Vibration was another subject ably discussed. In every steamship there is greater or less vibration from the operation of the screw. On the Sharpshooter warship decreased revolutions of the screw were always accompanied with increased vibrations. In the Blenheim, the fastest of the new English cruisers, which has attained a speed of 211 knots, the vibrations were powerful at three-quarter speed, but when the Minister he had ample proof of its power to use its partisan, irresponsible powers to harass a Government that owed its exist-harass a Government that owed its exist-sort and size of propeller the maximum sort and size of propeller the maximum sort and size of propeller the maximum lutions which stands for the maximum of vibration, change the propeller so that the two figures shall not agree. Neal Dow has announced that he will bequeath his scrap books to the archives of the new "Temperance Temple" in Chicago. There are 23 volumes of the general's reminiscences.

A new volume of The Century (New York) will begin in May with a number York) will begin in May with a number of unusual interest. Three important serial features will be commenced in this number, namely, Senor Castelar's "Life of Christopher Columbus"; "The Chosen Valley," a novel of western life by Mary Hallock Foste, and the scries of articles describing the architectural features of the World's Fair, which a well-known architect is to contribute. contribute.

The ladies of high caste who live in Nair, Malabar, have been prohibited by time-honored usage from crossing by time-honored usage from crossing the Karapoya River, which divides the province into two parts. It has just occurred to the more enlightened natives that this relic of the dark ages has existed long enough, and an attempt is now being made to do away with the senseless custom. The Nair ladies are delighted at the prospect that before long they will be able to go wherever they please in their native country.

When Emperor William entertains at Berlin the girl Queen of the Netherlands he will not wear too conspicuously one of his princely titles. The world has almost forgotten that the title, "Prince of Orange," born by the heir to the throne of Holiand, is also an adornment of the Prussian royal house. When William III., the Stadtholder, died 1702, there were two claimants to the principality and the title—one the person named in William's will, the other, Frederick I of Prussia, who claimed territory and title as being nearer of kin to William than William's nominee. Meanwhile France stepped in, seized the territory and held it. The princes of Holland and the kings of Prussia, however, have kept right on wearing the title and the coat of arms. Hart-ford people remember the stir occasioned lord people remember the stir occasioned some fifteen years ago by the conversion from Protestantism to the Roman Catholic Church of Miss Lulu Willox, a member of one of the most artistocratic families in the city, and a beautiful, charming and brilliant girl. It was while pursuing her secular studies that Miss Willox became imbued with the idea that Catholicity, and that alone would work out her soul's salvation. though bitterly opposed by her people when she formally announced her change

Only the bare fact that Miss Willcox has she left voluntarily, however, is beyond question. During all her years as a sister

wibration, change the propeller so that the two figures shall not agree. The disposition of the weights, the arrangement of the supports, the location and structure of the engine, and the power turned into it are all factors in vibration, and their individual effect and their most advantageous relations are constantly becoming better understood.

It need surprise no one if nearly all of these inconveniences of travel on the water are greatly minimized at an early date. The average big passenger vessel is a floating palace, but hitherto she has had two great drawbacks—her helplessness to keep straight in rough weather and the unpleasant shaking which her engines cause. With these, in large measure overlands are proved to the surplement of the surplement will be extincted when her or death of the same and the unpleasant shaking which her engines cause. With these, in large measure overlands are proved to the surplement will be extincted as the convent she was led to make that resolve quickly. Only the day before she gave up her garb and ring to the Mother Superior she seemed to he contented with her lot to the extent of extreme happiness. When she announced her intention of leaving she was prevailed upon to remain until the bishop, who was away, would return, when she could apply for a dispensation; but she declined to do this, saying that she had made up her mind to leave and that it was best she should go at once. This looks as if she meant to renounce the Roman Catholic religion as well as the row. She intends to join a comic opera troupe, where her musical accompliance. opera troupe, where her musical accom-plishments will be utilized.

"German Syrup"

G. Gloger, Druggist, Watertown, Wis. This is the opinion of a man who keeps a drug store, sells all medicines, comes in direct contact with the patients and their families, and knows better than anyone else how remedies sell, and what true merit they have. He hears of all the failures and successes, and can therefore judge: "I know of no medicine for Coughs, Sore Throat, or Hoarseness that had done such effective work in my Coughs, family as Boschee's Sore Throat, German Syrup. Last winter a lady called Hoarseness, at my store, who was suffering from a very severe cold. She could hardly talk, and I told her about German Syrup and that a few doses would give re-lief; but she had no confidence in patent medicines. I told her to take a bottle, and if the results were not satisfactory I would make no charge for it. A few days after she called and paid for it, saying that she would never be without it in future as a few doses had given her relief.

The House went into committee of the whole on a bill introduced by Mr. Tupper to amend in several particulars the Steambaat Inspection Act. One of the clauses was an example of how the Government is secking to draw to itself the powers of Parliament. The Government purposed to relieve vessel owners on inland waters and rivers in certain instances of the expense of providing steamers with metal life boats. To this there was no objection, but the method of doing it was strenuously objected to. The bill proposed that the "Governor in Council may make such regulations as are deemed advisable with respect to boats to be carried by steambaats or other vessels mentioned in this act." rider, is to be married in June.

FOUR NEW NURSES

Receive Their Diplomas at the General Hospital.

Commencement Exercises-Annual A dress by the Lady Superintendent —Interesting Facts About Nurses, Nursing and

Nattily attired in their gray suits, white aprons and caps were the fair lady nurses at the Hospital last evening. At the hou of 8 o'clock there was a pleasant gathering of ladies and gentlemen to winess the charming graduates receive their diploma and gold medals. There were only four of class, and one of these. Mrs. Janet this class, and one of these, Mrs. Janet Turnbull, was unfortunately unable to be present on account of illness. The other three were Misses Florence Noyle, Edith Augusta Read and Isabelia McLennan. They received their diplomas gracefully at the hands of prominent citizens, who at the same time delivered brief but encouraging and enlogitic addresses. Col. R.

the same time delivered brief but encouraging and eulogistic addresses. Col. R. Lewis presided, and Rev. Canon Smith opened the meeting with prayer.

As is customary in all progressive training schools for nurses the superintendent gives an annual address to the graduates. Miss Jessie Duncan, the lady superintendent, had the pleasure of doing this last evening. "Nursing has become," said Miss Duncan, "a recognized avenue for women of high social standing, and hospitals have gained much by the superiority of women gained much by the superiority of women who now apply for training. It is a well known fact that the best medical skill is known fact that the best medical skill is useless unless accompanied by good nursing. Like all other great reforms the training of women to attend the sick is the outcome of Christianity. The foundation of the modern system of training nurses was made in the village of Kaiserwerth in 1836 by Herr Fleidner, pastor of a small Protestant congregation. In this school Miss Florence Nightingale, whose name is now a household word for all that concerns nursing, gained the knowledge which enabled her to render such brilliant service among the sick and wounded on the battlefields of the Crimea. At the close of the war £50,000 was subwounded on the battlefields of the Crimea. At the close of the war £50,000 was subscribed by the English nation as a testimonial for her heroic services. In place of accepting it, however, she requested that the whole sum be given to found a training school for nurses in connection with the St. Thomas Hospital, London, Eng., in 1860. It is entirely due to Miss Nightingale's example that nursing has become gale's example that nursing has become what it is to-day. There is no doubt that strong attempts were made against ladies nursing in hospitals. It was deemed imnursing in hospitals. It was deemed impossible that they could or would do thework properly. However, experience has proved that women of refinement and education, when trained for nursing; are the best-qualified to care for the sick. A nurse is expected to have good common-sense, to be caim amid every excitement, cheerful in the midst of depression, and patient under the most trying circumstances. There the midst of depression, and patient under the most trying circumstances. There should be a fitness for the work and a love for humanity. Certain elements of charac-ter are essential as a foundation. Like all other arts it must be cultivated, practiced and studied before satisfactory results can be produced. A nurse's life leaves very little room for other interests; acquaint-ances often slip away, a great deal of pleasure is given up, but the pleasure that can be taken will be appreciated as it never was before.

America was organized in connection with the Bellevue Hospital, New York City. There are now over 33 training schools in the United States, and 11 in Canada. The London Training School was organized on Sept. 1, 1883. From that time until on Sept. 1, 1883. From that time until April, 1886, 23 young ladies joined the school. Of these 10 left before finishing the course, 4 graduated, leaving 9 pupils in training on Oct. 1, 1886. Since then over 200 applications have been received, 100 sent in certificates, 44 entered the school, 32 proved satisfactory, 12 dropped out, 29 have graduated, leaving at present 10 nurses in training, 1 probationer, and 1 graduate who remains on duty in the graduate who remains on duty in the hospital until she has completed the full

"There are now 33 nurses who hold certificates from this school. Of these 5 are engaged in hospital work in New York City, St. Paul, Birmingham, Eng., and Denver, Col., 5 are married, and the remainder are doing private nursing in the large cities in the United States and Canada.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 21.—A slight earthquake shock visited San Francisco at 19.48 this morning. The vibrations lasted twenty seconds. The disturbance was felt at Sacramento. Biggs, Woodland and Chico, in this State, and at Reno, Nev.

At Biggs eight distinctive vibrations were felt. Clocks stopped and plaster foll. In Woodland the shock caused 50 feet of wall of the capitol to fall to the sidewalk. Other brick buildings were damaged.

At Chicago lamps in buildings all over the city were set swinging. Ceilings in some places were cracked and clocks stopped.

At Benicia windows rattled and buildings swayed.

At Wacaville some shaky walls were demolished and a number of ceilings cracked.

Miss Noyle was presented with her diploma by Dr. Flock, and with her medal by Mayor Spencer. Rev. Canon Smith and Mr. T. H. Purdom respectively honored Miss Read. Miss McLennan received her tokens from Dr. Balfour and Ald. Gartshore.

Ald. Moule, Ex-Mayor Cowan and Ex-Ald. Skinner spoke briefly, and showed that they each took an interest in the welfare of the hospital and the training school. It would be too bad to get your bees safely through the winter and then let them starve.

But that's just what you may do if you don't keep a sharp lookout.

Remember, it will not be wasted if they have too much.

Have you done anything toward helping to clean out the dead bees?

The bees can generally do it themselves if you let them alone.

Sometimes, though, I've known them to give it up as a bad job, and later to plaster over the corpses with bee glue.

If bottom boards are loose, exchange the dirty one for a clean one, and then clean of the dirty one so as to exchange with another hive. If bottom boards are fast to the hive, lift out the frames into a clean hive; then you can clean the hive thus emptied and give it to the next colony.

But don't, please don't bother the bees when it's too cold for them to fly.

And don't think it's warm enough for them to fly unless they are actually flying.
They know better than you whether it's warm enough for them.

LOCAL MARKET

Reported by A. M. Hamiton & Son,
London, Friday, April 22.
There was almost nothing done to-day; receipts in all lines were very light. Wheat sold at $1.25. Oats were the only line in which any life was manifest; there was a good inquiry, and as receipts were less than the demand values were foreed higher, one sale being made at $6c; from this point down to $9c was closing price for to-day. All other lines practically unchanged and almost no trade doing. Farmers are busy seeding and until they get that class of work well forward we look for small receipts. Quotations:

—The estimate of the amount expended on the city streets for 1891 was $2,837 33, against $58,283 for this year. Last year's estimates were appropriated as follows. Ward 1, $5,300 43; Ward 2, $6,227,774; Ward 3, $5,444 49; Ward 4, $6,259 44; Ward 5, $5,388 98; Ward 6, $4,176 25. A considerable amount above this was actually expended, however.

—On Thursday night a large number of young people enjoyed themselves at a concert given in St. James' Church Sunday school, South London, by the Young Men's Association. Selections were rendered by Messrs. Harrison, Wallace, Pope, Nugent and other gentlemen, and also the ladies took an interesting part, among them being Miss L. Marshall, McNab and Land. Mr. W. -At Osgoode Hall, in the case of Mc. Kenzie vs. Woods, judgment has been given on motion by the defendant to change the venue from London to Stratford. The action is brought against a county constable for false arrest, and one of the plaintiff's reasons for opposing the application was that the defendant was a man of such influence in the county of Perth that a fair trial could not be had there. The learned referee finds that the great preponderance of convenience is in favor of a trial at Stratford; and holds, after reviewing a number of cases, that the argument as to the impossibility of a fair trial at that place cannot prevail. Order made changing the venue as asked. Costs in the cause.

the members with the visiting brethren adjourned to the lodge room and President W. Tyler presided over a programme of songs, musical selections and recitations to which Bros. W. Griffiths, J. Chapman, jun., C. W. Walker, W. Osborne, F. Winstone, Harding, Roberts, Wedmore, Perry, Armitage and Bridge contributed. During the evening the district deputy, Bro. Anderson, at the request of the lodge presented a gold emblematic pin as a token of appreciation of his services to Past President Levi Hammond who thanked the donors in a brief and witty speech.

-Yesterday at Osgoode Hall in the case of Pavey vs. Davidson, judgment was given on demurrer by the defendants to the statement of claim. The action was by the plaintiffs on behalf of themselves and all plaintiffs on behalf of themselves and all other creditors of the firm of McKay & Davidson, of which the defendant, E. L. Davidson, was a member, for a declaration that the defendant, Alexander Purdom, was a trustee of the defendant, E. L. Davidson, of a certain mortgage over lands in the State of Oregon. Before the mortgage was given and before E. L. Davidson had acquired any interest in the lands, McKay & Davidson had made an assignment for the benefit of their creditassignment for the benefit of their credit.

assignment for the benefit of their creditors, and an assignee had been duly appointed and undertaken the administration of the estate. The ground of demurrer principally relied upon was that the court had no jurisdiction by reason of the lands not being in the Province. The learned chief justice, however, proceeds upon one of the other grounds taken, and allows the demurrer for the reason that, after an assignment has been made and acted upon, no creditor can bring an action on behalf of himself and all other creditors, without previously applying to the assignee. Off for the Coast.

Mr. F. Harding, of 138 Elmwood avenue, South London, leaves early in May for British Columbia by the advice of his physicians. Mr. Harding will combine business with recreation, and may ultimately take up his residence on the coast if his visit results favorably. Last night the members of South London Council, No. 663, Royal Arcanum, to which he belonged, met in the lodge room and presented him with a handsome emblematic gold pin. The purpose of the gift was explained in a neat address, setting forth their appreciation of his services as treasurer and as a brother in the council. The pin would serve as a reminder that when he was far away he had left royal friends who would always feel interested in his health and future prosecutive. To Prevent Smut in Oats.

Dairy Notes.

It does not behoove a dairyman, who acknowledges he practiced "night skimming" to howl because his cheese-maker could not make summer milk, thus skimmed, worth more than 50 cents per 100 pounds to put into cheese. The Practical Farmer tells of one such howler, who closed his wail with this remark, "I tell you, the cheese business ain't what it used to be." He was one of the kind of milk thieves who want to steal the cream from their own milk and have his neighbors put in the fat to make the cheese good. Such a man needs to have the Babcock test thrust into him and a few turns of the crank made, to develop his sense of justice.

We sometimes hear this expression among farmers, "I've got my stock through without a mouthful of grain," meaning through the winter. Is that economy or not? Would like the experience of some on that. Am in the habit of feeding some grain to mine, think they keep in better condition, and in good flesh they seem to stand the cold better, and if they go onto grass in good flesh it seems to me they make a better growth through the grass feeding season.

MAN'S SINGLE," "MY LADY MAN'S SINGLE," MY NICOTINE," ETC.

Even with the aid of my field-glass I could not estimate the damage on more distant farms, for the rain, though now thin and soft, as it continued for six days, was still heavy and of a brown color. After breakfast, which was interrupted by my beatham cock's twice spilling my milk, I saw Waster Lunny and his son, Matthew, running towards the shepherd's house with ropes in their hands. The house, I thought, must be in the mist beyond, and then I isckened, knowing all at once that it should be on this side of the mist. When I had serve to look again I saw that though the roof had fallen in, the shepherd was astride one of the walls, from which he was dragged presently through the water by the aid of the ropes. I remember noticing that he returned to his house with the rope still about him, and concluding that he had gone back to save some of his furniture. I was wrong, however. There was too much to be done at the farm to allow this, but Waster Lunny had consented to Duncan's foreing his way back to the shieling to stop the clock. To both men inseemed horrible love.

Presently I was letting my glass roam in the start of the start of to leave a clock thening in a deserted house.

Presently I was letting my glass roam in the opposite direction, when one of its shakes brought into view something on my own side of the river. I looked at it long, and saw it move slightly. Was it a human being? No, it was a dog and something elso. I hurried out to see more clearly, and after a first glance the glass shook so in my hands that I had to rest it on the dyke. For a full minute, I daresay, did I look through the glass without blinking, and then I needed to look no more. That black patch was, indeed, Gavin.

He lay quite near the school-house, but I had to make a circuit to reach him. It was painful to see the dog doing its best to was painful to see the dog doing its nest to come to me, and falling every few steps. The poor brute was discolored almost beyond recognition, and on reaching me, it lay down at my feet and licked them. I stepped over it and ran on recklessly to Gavin. At first I thought he was dead. If tears rolled down my cheeks, they were storn him. t for him.

I was no strong man even in those days, I was no strong man even in those days, but I carried him to the school-house, the igg crawling after us. Gavin I put upon my bed, and I lay down beside him, holding im close to me, that some of the heat of any body might be taken into his. When he was able to look at me, however, it was at with understanding, and in vain did my anxiety press him with questions. Only now and again would some word in my speech strike upon his brain and produce at least an echo. To "Did you meet Lord Rintoul's dog-cart?" he sat up, saying quickly,

"A cannon is to be fired as soon as they're man and wife," he bellowed.
"We'll hear it."

"We'll hear it."
With that we parted. On my way home, I remember, I stepped on a brood of drowned partridges. I was only out half an hour, but I had to wring my clothes as if they were fresh from the tub.
The day wore on, and I did not disturb the sleeper. A dozen times, I suppose, I had to relight my fire of wet peats and roots, but I had plenty of time to stare out as the window, plenty of time to think. Probably Gavin's life depended on his sleeping, but that was not what kept my hands off him. Knowing so little of what had happened in Thrums since I left it, I was forced to guess, and my conclusion was that the earl had gone off with his own, and that Gavin, in a frenzy, had followed them. My wisest course, I thought, was to let him sleep until I heard the cannon, when his struggle for a wife must end. Fifty times at least did I stand regarding him as he slept, and if I did not pity his plight sufficiently, you know the reason. What were Margaret's sufferings at this moment? Was she wringing her hands for her son lost in the flood, her son in disgrace with the congregation? By one o'clock no cannon had sounded, and my suspense had become intolerable. I shook Gavin awake, and even as I shook him demanded the story of all that had happened since we parted at Nanny's gate.

"How long ago is that?" he asked, with

He looked at the deg, but I kept my eyes on him, and I saw intelligence creep back, like a blush, into his face.

"Now I remember," he said shuddering. "You have proved yourself my friend, sir, twice in the four-and-twenty hours."

"Only once, I fear," I replied gloomily. "I was no friend when I sent you to the earl's bride last night."

"You know who she is?" he cried, elutching me, and finding it agony to move his limbs.

"And all that time," I said reproachfully,

"And all that time," I said reproachtully, when he had done, "you gave your mother not a thought!"

"Not a thought," he answered, and I saw that he pronounced a harsher sentence on himself than could have come from me.
"All that time!" he repeated. "It was only a few minutes, while the ten o'clock bell was ringing."

only a few minutes, while the ten o'clock bell was ringing."
"Only a few minutes," I said, "but they changed the channel of the Quharity, and perhaps they have done not less for you."
"That may be," he answered gravely, "but it is of the present I must think just now. "Mr. Ogllvy, what assurance have I, while lying here helpless, that the marriage at the Spittal is not going on?"
"None, I hope," I said to myself, and listened longingly for the cannon. But to him I only pointed out that no woman need go through a form of marriage against her will.

nim I only pointed out that no woman need go through a form of marriage against her will.

"Rintoul carried her off with no possible purport," he said, "but to set my marriage at defiance, and she has had a conviction always that to marry me would be to ruin me. It was only in the shiver Lord Rintoul's voice in the darkness sent through her that she yielded to my wishes. If she thought that marriage last night could be annulled by another to-day she would consent to the second, I believe, to save me from the effects of the first. You are incredulous, sir, but you do not know of what sacrifices love is capable."

Something of that I knew, but I did not tell him. I had seen from his manner rather than his words that he doubted the validity of the gypsy marriage, which the king had only consented to celebrate because Babbie was herself an Egyptian. The ceremony had been interrupted in the middle.

"It was no marriage," I said, with a confidence I was far from feeling.
"In the sight of God," he replied excitedly, "we took each other for man and wife."

I had to hold him down in bed.

I had to hold him down in bed.
"You are too weak to stand, man," I said, "and yet you think you could start off this minute for the Spittal."
"I must go," he cried. "She is my wife. That impious marriage may have taken place already."

At this part the breadth of the flood was not forty yards, yet for a time our voices could no more cross its roar than one may send a snowball through a stone wall. I know not whether the river then quieted for a space, or if it was only that the ears grow used to dins as the eyes distinguish the objects in a room that is at first black to them, but after a little we are able to shout our remarks across, much as boys fling pebbles, many to fall into the water, but one occasionally to reach the other side. Waster Lunny would have talked of the flood, but I had not come here for that.

"You were home very early from the prayer meeting last night," I bawled.

more than an hour. She said, among other things:

As I stand upon this platform to-day, and as I feel that the time is nearing when I shall bid good-bye to this great, kindly, generous-hearted land, I feel that when, with a heavy heart, I shall sail out of the harbor of New York, and watch the great Goddess of Liberty who guards your portals fade from view, I shall feel that that great goddess has yet one gift to give you in order that you may rise to the full measure of your strength. Il England woman's voice will be heard at the ballot-box before she will be allowed to speak in free America; and I believe the ballot-box before she will be allowed to speak in free America; and I believe that the time is coming when all over the land the people shall be free, and "the people" shall mean that men and women shall have the right to guard the interests of their nation. (Loud cheers.) Already in England we have the municipal vote, and it is in consequence of the way that vote has told that we see in England today a condition of things that resembles the coming millennium. Next month the Liberals will present a bill in the House of Commons praying for the enfranchisement the coming millennium. Next month the Liberals will present a bill in the House of Commons praying for the enfranchisement of women; and this very month the Conservatives will do the same! When the lion and the lamb lie down together, what are we going to expect? (Cheers.) In Glasgow—a city which, possibly, more nearly resembles some of your American cities than any other, because there we have the problem of a population that is not indigenous to the soil, a great Irish population—the way the women's vote has told is simply miraculous. Five men stood for the municipal election on the temperance ticket; and every single one of those five men was elected, mainly by the women's vote. (Cheers).

We believe in England that the woman's vote needs to be had in order that home should be really protected. I believe that there are still some men who do not view this question in the same light. They remind me of an old Highlander of whom my father told me. When he went to Balmoral in waiting on the Queen, her Majesty had insisted that the women should join in the Hielpland Fling—an innovation that mind me of an old Highlander of whom my father told me. When he went to Balmoral in waiting on the Queen, her Majesty had insisted that the women should join in the Highland Fling—an innovation that some of the older people did not approve of —and so this old man stood beside my father, looking very sad and very downcast, and presently he turned to my father and said: "Ah, it's a peety—a sad peety: they women spiles the dance!" And I think that there are to be found in this enlightened generation a few men who still think that "they women will spile the dance." (Cheers and laughter.)

"Mrs. Lynn Linton—a woman who, although my countrywoman, is one with whom I radically disagree—has said that the cradle forever blocks woman's way to the ballot-box. I have often wished that the cradle would block the man's way, too, and that he would pause as he stepped over that obstruction, and consider how best he could cast that vote for the safety of the little life he holds dear, and for the best interests of the home. (Cheers.) Why are we to build up barriers, and say that woman's protection of all she loves shall go so far and no farther? She who has watched through the long hours of the night, patiently sitting into the gray, cold morning, stooping over the sleeping form of her little one; she who with patient care has risen ere it was day to mend the little garments that should send him out to morning, stooping over the sleeping form of her little one; she who with patient care has risen ere it was day to mend the little garments that should send him out to school; who has pored by the evening lamp over the lesson books, in order to know that which should enable him to make his way in the world; who has walked to and fro, listening for his step, as he grew older, and knowing that the only foe she had to contend against, the greatest enemy to her great heart's love, was that saloon over which she had no control—dare we say to this woman: "Yes, protect your little ones, but when you have sent them out into the wide world your voice shall be forever silent, your hands forever bound; you shall no longer say, 'Herein lies the danger to these loved lives;' you shall no longer be able to hold out loving hands to draw them back from the great abyss into which so many fall'? We hear that women are to have no part in politics, that women are to have no part in politics, that women are to have no part in politics, that women are to have no part in politics, that women are to have no part in politics, that women are to many fall"? We hear that women are to have no part in politics, that women are to stand on no public platforms. We hear the cry to-day as to what is woman's sphere; but the ages have relled on, and we have not heard the cry that women shall not stand on the boards of the theater to amuse men, shall not sing songs which they would not dare to sing in their own circles. Let us have fair play upon these questions. Let us look at them in the new light of the coming century. Let us know that woman's place is to guard the best interests of the home, and that the nation is only the great, wider home-circle, where these same interests need to be preserved. (Cheers.)

Lloyd's first number received a triple emeror, and nis 'Lend Me Your Aid,' from Gouned's 'La Reine de Saba,' aroused prolonged applause. After the tenor halbowed his acknowledgments four times, which was not sufficient to still the unheard of enthusiasm of the audience, he sang 'Then You'll Remember Me,' which called for an ovation no less great than it was deserved." The subscription list for the "Lloyd" concert in this city on May 13 is now open at the Bell Piano Company's store and is rapidly filling. Mr. Lloyd's numbers will include those mentioned above, and we strongly advise all those who purpose going to get their names on at once or they will surely be disappointed with their reats. The concert promises to the biggest musical attraction ever give in London. The Minstrel Kings Te-Night.

The sale of seats for Primrose & West's show to-night has been immense, and the "kings of minstrelsy" are certain to have a big house. Every season they have something novel to offer their patrons. This season they have called beautiful scenic effects to the aid of wit and music. One of the test within features of their patrons. season they have called heatting seems effects to the aid of wit and music. One of the most striking features of their performance is said to be the charming picture disclosed at the beginning. And while the eye is feasting on the scene, alternately sentimental melodies, touching ballads, witty songs and a rattling fire of jokes please the ear. The "March of the Red Hussars," with its stalwart soldiers, in black faces, setting off magnificent uniforms, dexteriously playing with drum majors' batons as they march with rapidity and precision in the glow of bright colored lights is said to be a martial treat. The singing of G. H. Primrose and Larry Dooley are among the principal features. The musical specialty of "The Musical Dale" is a very great novelty, and the feate of the Borani Brothers are wonderful. The aughable sketch, "Trouble in Blackville," ends the performance. ends the performance.

The Engineer Submits Local Improvement Estimates—A Big Cut Made —Contractors at War.

The city engineer submitted his estimates for local improvements—chiefly sidewalks—in the various wards for 1892. The total —in the various wards for 1892. The total cost he placed at $48,293. As it was considered inexpedient to expend that amount he recommended that the appropriation be reduced to $39,293, by deducting $3.500 from ward $3,$2,000 from ward 4,$2,000 from ward 5 and $1,500 from ward 6. Wards 1 and 2 to remain as they are. Of course there was a good deal of discussion, each alderman being zealous for his own ward. Ald. Garratt moved another reduction of about $1,000 from South London's share. Ald. O'Meara thought the engineer's estimate a very fair one, and moved the sainer. Aid.
