That Jessie Keith's Murderer Has Been Found.

Detective Murray Says Chattelle is the Man.

Suspicious Stains on His Knife-The Prisoner Identified as Being on the Scene of the Murder-An Escaped Lunatic From London Arrested and Released.

FARMER HALL'S STATEMENT. LUCAN, Oat., Oct. 24.-Mr. Jos. Hall, farmer living just outside the town, confirms, with one exception, the statements made by Almedia Chattelle, the supposed murderer of Miss Jessie Keith, at Listowel. $11,250,000 in 3 per cent inscribed stock, The prisoner says he left Mr. Hall's on repayable in 1938. The minimum price Tuesday, Oct. 16. Mr. Hall says positively he left his place at 11 o'clock on Sunday ing the floating maturing debt on the large | morning, 14th inst. He worked there for about a week. The day he arrived he had a black valise.

WHAT WALKER JELL SAW. Walker Jell, a brother-in-law of Mr. Hall's, opened the valise and saw the woman's skirt and other articles of female apparel therein, Mr. Jell had heard about the stolen valise in Ailsa Craig, and, suspecting the prisoner, suggested a trip to Ailsa Craig. The man became alarmed and left the place the following day. He said he was on his way to Toronto from the mines, and the clothes belonged to his wite. Both Mr. Hall and Mr. Jell can readily recognize this man,

CHATTELLE PROBABLY THE MAN. LISTOWEL, Ont., Oct. 24.-The man Chattelle arrested at Erin is believed to be BERLIN, Oct. 24. - Advices this morning | undoubtedly the murder of Jessie Keith. A telegram just received from Crown Attorney Idington conveys this informa-

The lady's dress waist he threw away as the constable apprehended him, corresponds with the skirt found in the valise, and both have been identified as articles stolen from the house of Mr. McLeod, at Ailsa Craig, where the prisoner was seen also at the time of the theft.

CHATTELLE'S ADMISSIONS. At an examination of the prisoner in his cell at the county jail today he admitted having stolen the valise containing the articles already named, together with the Tam o' Shanter cap which fooled the Listowel people as to his identity. He also says he slept in the Keith bush on the night before the murder and left the valise there. There appears to be no doubt whatever that the authorities have the right man.

THE STORY OF THE SUSPECT. The story of the suspected tramp's arrest and of his odd experiences is a somewhat strange one. He gives his name as Almeda Chattelle and says that he was born at St. Hyacinthe, Que. He is about 60 years of age. He says he has traveled several times around the world, has lived in Texas, where he says he on one occasion harbored the notorious Jesse James for two days from his pursuers.

THE PARCELS The parcel which he dropped on the track proved to be a woman's waist, very neatly and tightly folded and tied, but not covered by any wrapper. The measurements showed that it belonged to a large

RECOGNIZED.

Government Detective Murray, Constable Woods and several witnesses from Listowel upon being confronted by the prisoner today identified him as the tramp seen in the vicinity before and after the murder took place.

BLOOD ON THE KNIFE. The knife which was found on Chattelle may develop another link in the chain of circumstances. It is large and very sharp, and though it had been carefully washed, it yet bore stains and spots about the hinge, which, on microscopical examination, may be found to indicate blood. It will be taken apart and subjected to a critical inspec-

Surprise is expressed by some that, in view of the ready identification of the man today, he was not recognized at Listowel station yesterday in passing through. The explanation is shrewdly advanced that it was because the witnesses had been warned as to the possible result of an open identification in such a crowd. It would also have been somewhat difficult for any person to have asserted positively as to his identity in the pushing, jostling crowd that thronged about him. MURRAY THINKS HE'S THE MAN. Detective Murray acknowledged having obtained an important admission from the prisoner. He said that the chain of evidence was complete except an unimportant link, and that Chattelle was the right man. He returned to Listowel on a freight train at 3 o'cleck this afternoon to hunt for the missing link. Doubtless a formal charge of murder will be preferred against the prisoner efter the inquest, but he cannot be tried till the spring. ESCAPED FROM LONDON ASYLUM. George McKay the man arrested on suspicion, and locked up in Listowel and subsequently released, has since been found to be an escaped lunatic from London Asylum, which accounts for his queer manner. His

Probably the next most important evidence to that of Mrs. McLeod was given by Mr. Robert Morris, teamster, of Listowel. He emphatically stated that the prisoner is the man whom he saw going east on Friday between 11 and 12 o'clock noon, near the had given her husband a pill, which had track, and not far south of the scene of the tragedy. Said Mr. Morris: "I first met a man, whom I think was this man, but I won't swear to it, crossing the track between Gotham and Britton about 10:45 a.m. on Friday last. The man had a her house together, and that while there valise. I continued a mile and a quarter further north, and turned up a mile and a quarter west and went half across another line, when I met the prisoner coming from the west. This was between 11 and 12 o'clock. He carried no valise then. I that of Ling. It is suspected by many here that there may have been two persons engaged in the perpetration of this horrible murder. Several circumstances have transpired to make this suspicion deserving of some credence. The excitement has somewhat abated at present, posif the prisoner should be brought here to the adjourned inquest.

Trial of Maria Martley on the Charge of Murder.

Motives for the Crime.

Opening of the Testimony for the Prosecution-Damaging Statements.

BRANTFORD, Oct. 26.—The trial in the Hartley poisoning case opened at the Brantford Assizes before Judge MacMahon this morning, Maria Hartley, of New Durham, being charged with having administered poison to her hushand, Caleb Hartley, from which he died on Sunday, May 13, at the village of New Durham.

The case for the defense was conducted by B. B. Osler, Q.C., and for the crown by Mr. Lount, Q.C. The forenoon was spent in selecting jurors for the case. The defense made twenty challenges and the crown

Mr. Lount presented the case for the crown. He said the accused had three motives for committing the act with which she was charged. First, there was unhappy marital relations between the parties; second, the illicit-connection between the accused and the young man Ling; and third, the fact that certain life insurance and moneys had been made out in her name by her late husband. Mrs. Sarah Allen, wife of Wm. Allen,

New Durham, was the first witness called. She deposed: I live about a mile from where Mr. Caleb Hartley lived, and had known Mr. and Mrs. Hartley 30 years. They had been married 21 or 22 years and have lived there since that time. I have not been on visiting relations with Mrs. Hartley for some years, but had conversations with her. I had a conversation with her at Christmas, and not again till her husband's death. Mr. and Mrs. and Fred Hartley were at my place for dinner on Christmas. She said if Caleb Hartley was out of the way she would marry Ling. She began the conversation by talking about Ling, and I asked her what she wanted to do with Ling when she had a good husband and a grown family. She said she did not like her husband, and I told her Ling was young for her. She said she could keep him and would use him well. She frequently said she did not like her husband. I knew Ling by sight, and had seen him between Christmas and Hartley's

Cross-examined by Mr. Osler, she said she had told her children that fact on the night that Caleb Hartley died.

Daniel Quigg, of New Durham, swore to the unfriendly relations existing between deceased and his wife.

NETTIE QUIGG had been quite intimate with the prisoner and had made dresses for her. The prisoner and her husband seemed to live all right, but she didn't seem to like him, nor did she want him to touch her. Witness also spoke of the prisoner's relations with Ling as being somewhat intimate. She was always talking of him. Witness advised prisoner to have nothing to do with him. When asked what was the matter with her husband, prisoner said he had acute inflammation of the stomach. Witness told both Ling and prisoner that people said they were duping Hartley. Mrs. Hartley smiled, didn't pay any attention, and said it was

Witness heard Hartley say that if he died the Workmen would be out $2,000, and that he would like to leave Fred $1,000 to carry him through his studies. Q .- What reply did she make? A .-She said that he should do no such thing, as Fred would take everything and leave her nothing. As I was leaving the house and was standing with her at the back door, she said she must go in and give Caleb another dose of rhubarb, and I said, 'For pity's sake, Maria, what do you want to do that for, when he's so bad already?" THE DOCTOR GOOD ENOUGH. James Doherty, sen., a farmer of New Durham, testified to having seen Hartiey on the Saturday previous to his death. He could hardly walk. Witness suggested correct name is given by the asylum not keep Ling around there, but she did authorities as Nicholas Ackersviller, and not reply. Ling had told him that he owed authorities as Nicholas Ackersviller, and he is a German, being released on Tuesday. Hartley $5, and had been brought there to work it out.

BOUGHT STRYCHNINE FOR MRS. HARTLEY. James Doherty, jun., said that last April was let go. Proceeding west from there, or May, a year ago, he had procured for he had only reached Attwood, the first Mrs. Hartley a small quantity of strychnine; station away, when he was rearrested, and she said she wanted to kill rats. He again produced his papers. This was as he thought nothing of it at the time. In predicted, so that for a lunatic he showed April last prisoner inquired of bim much prophetic wisdom. He is thought to regarding Ling's whereabouts on be still wandering about the country in the certain evening, and wondered if north, although Mr. Idington has given Ling had, after seeing her home from Woodward's, gone back and spent the evening at the house of the latter. She said she went with her girl to call on Mrs. Woodward, and was surprised to find Ling there and he had insisted on seeing her home; that while they were there Ling and Mrs. Woodward were fooling around in the kitchen, and she thought Mrs. Woodward > put him asleep. This evidence becomes very important, in view of the testimony given by Mrs. Woodward, the next witness called, who says that Ling and Mrs. Hartley came to they acted in an unbecoming manner. SENSATIONAL EVIDENCE.

Mrs. Catharine Woodward's name when called created a sensation on account of the way in which it had been connected with house on the occasion when they were there with Ling. It was on a Sunday husband had a bad sick headache when Ling arrived along with Mrs. Hartley and Elsie. After dinner witness' husband went LISTOWEL, Ont., Oct. 25 .- It is under- into the sitting room and the other three stood that the evidence at the inquest to- remained with her in the kitchen. morrow will be finally complete. Detective Then Ling sat down on a chair, Murray and a constable left here this and Mrs. Hartley went and sat morning about 10 o'clock to drive to Erin, down on his knee and put her Witness told purpose probably of obtaining further accused that she should not do that, and knowledge as to the route the man took to accused replied that she did not care for Caleb. She then got up and they all went into the other room. Witness related other incidents of the same afternoon, including a conversation between Ling and Mrs. Hartley, in which Ling said that if ac cused would do what he wanted they could soon end the talk that was going round. sibly to be renewed tomorrow, especially After tea Ling and Mrs. Hartley laid down together on the lounge, Mrs. Hartley being in Ling's arms. Witness interrupted them and reproached them, telling them that they had better go home, which they did shortly after.

THE WITNESS BREAKS DOWN. Mr. Osler put in extracts from Mrs. Woodward's previous testimony, in contradiction to her account of the doings of that afternoon, attempting to invalidate the testimony by proving either a defective memory or by implying a desire to misstate facts. The witness stood the strain of the cross-examination for a considerable time, but at last broke down and burst into tears. She was directed to sit down for a few moments in order that she might regain her self-possession, but instead of becoming calmer, her sobs increased until it seemed as though an hysterical attack was imminent. She was accordingly removed from the court-room, and, it being 6:30, his lordship edjourned the case until Thursday morning at 9:30 c'clock, when Mrs. Woodward's cross-examinatian will be continued.

Columns have already been devoted to the details of these stocks. It seems we're always talking of Dress Fabrics of one kind or another, but it is not to be wondered at with such a collection -not such another store within your reach that shows such a wealth of Dress Fabrics. It is our gauntlet. We challenge all competition. The gathering of stylish wares surpasses all former competing collections. It isn't possible, in the limits of a newspaper, to picture the exquisite taste and unique effects of new Dress Goods, Clever genius has been at work, and improved machinery has helped to make stuffs better than they were. We'd be slow indeed to offer you this season the counterpart of what you had last. Among the more exclusive lines we would like you to see our range of Holland & Sherry's Dress Tweed Suitings and Vestings. They are confined to us for this section and cannot be had elsewhere. Of all desirable weaves this season, perhaps, those English Covert Cloths take the lead. There is a feel about them that is almost irresistible. We have them in all pretty shades of fawn, tan, brown, gray and blue, also black. English Broadcloths for street wear are among the quick-selling things. We have them in 21 different shades, 56 inches wide, 51-2 yards to the dress pattern, only one of a color. To finish off with, all we can say is that if you want to know what is the fashion we have here the very extremes of present styles, Not a penny wasted in buying them. It's hardly possible for anyone to own the stock for less than we, which means lower pricea than others can afford. Colors are good, styles excellent, qualities perfect, and values better than ever.

GLADSTONE'S LIBRARY HOTEL. English Correspondence of the N. Y. Churchman. As might have been expected, Mr. Gladstone's hotel-keeping has proved very successful. He first of all equipped a library ef 25,000 volumes, and then last month opened a hostel hard by for the use of readers and students, who are charged 25 shillings a week for board, ledging and the use of the library. Apart from the attraction of its nearness to Hawarden, it is within sight of the Welsh hills, good walks abound, and go f can be had within easy reach. It is not to be wondered at that the applications for rooms have exceeded the supply. What an example to other owners of libraries! Instead of allowing books to collect the dust on the shelves until some spendthrift heir is short of money, when the volumes may go in all directions, here is a means by which the books are assured of good useful employment, and poor students enabled to cousult them at a minimum cost. Bibliophiles are generally seifish. How delightful to find an exception!

Funeral of the Late Rev. J. A. Murray.

Impressive Service in St. Andrew's Church.

Addresses by Rev. W. J. Clark, Rev. Dr. Milligan, the Bishop of Huron and Rev. J. R. Gundy-Clergymen Present.

The last sad services over the remains of London's oldest Presbyterian minister-Rev. J. Allister Murray-took place in St. Andrew's Church yesterday afternoon in the presence of probably 3,000 people. The time set for the service was 3 o'clock, but for an hour before citizens came pouring in from every quarter of the city. Soon the large edifice was filled, and the ushers had to inform late comers that not an inch of which only the family of the deceased and a few intimate friends were present, was first held in the manse. It was conducted and was especially solemn. The public service in St. Andrew's was presided over by Rev. W. J. Clark, pastor Moorehouse. From outside places a large number of Presbyterian clergymen attend-Macdonald (St. Thomas), Millar (Mosa), time when he occupied his pulpit. Hutt (Ingersoil), Wilson (Dutton), Haig (Hyde Park), Little (Birr), Sutherland (Fingal), Sawers (Westminster), Cuthbertson (Wyoming), Henderson (Appin), and Rev. William Patterson, B.A., of Monduring the past summer. The Western Ontario Bible Society was represented by the president, the Bishop of Huron, and the honorary secretary, Mr. John Cameron The managers and elders were seated on the west and east sides respectively, and with the ushers wore mourning badge . The interior of the edifice presented a menced when the bearers entered with the sage of scripture which begins am the resurrection and the life." speakers were introduced by Rev. W. J.

Clark. "We are united this afternoon," said Rev. W. J. Clark, "by a common sorrow. It seems very strange, indeed, to be gathered in this building, where you have so often listened to him who now lies low proclaiming so powerfully the words of love and truth that he was favored to preach through many years. It brought many thoughts to the minds of the congregation. There were many homes where he had stayed by the bedsides of the sick; he had comforted you in time of distress and trouble, and there are those who can remember that he was the instrument by which they came to know God and his love and his salvation. If all men were to speak today who knew his love and gratitude there would be no time to hear his eloquent story. There are those who are weeping for the loss of a husband and of a father taken away from the home, but when we think of our loss our thoughts are carried to God, who only is able to comfort." Mr. Clark then stated that the Bishop of Huron, representing the Bible Society, of which he is president, and of which Mr. Murray was a vice-president; Rev. J. R. Gundy, representing the Ministerial Association, and Rev. Dr. Milligan, of Toronto, representing the Presbyterian Church in Canada, were to deliver short addresses. Bishop Baldwin was the first to speak. His remarks were of a very earnest character, and moved many of the vast assemblage to tears. "We are called upon this afternoon," said he, "to mourn for one who was not only deeply revered among the members of his own church but by all those who had the pleasure of his acquaintance throughout this city and throughout Canada. I myself felt deeply attached to him, and that attachment arose from the intrinsic worth which I saw within him. I valued him as a witness for the truth the best standard a Christian can possess. I valued him for that integrity to the blessed Word God which he exhibited, for his faithfulness in all that concerns the advancement of God's glory and the personal kingdom of our blessed Redeemer, who, while we mourn his loss, while we express the sorrow and the bereavement which we suffer, yet at the same time there hangs a halo of glory over all that fall asleep in Jesus. Indeed, one might envy, not pity, the dead. They are translated from the vale of tears below to the calm, profound rest which reigns in the presence of the Lord." To think of being done, forever done, with all the shades, the alarms of life for the calm beautitude of the Redeemer's presence was a beautiful thought. It was well to look at that which gives us comfort, which tones down the keen edge of sorrow, and not only that, but surmounted it with a deepening joy that shall be realized only on the resurrection morn. What is it that makes it possible to die without regret? It is not rationalism. which throws only ghastly doubts, but it is the Master, who, in looking down on the body of the departed, says he will rise again. There were three consolations, said the speaker, which were advanced in laid to rest the material tabernacle which they had all known, they could remember that it was not forever, not for interminable ages, but for that morning when the as hearty and happy as ever, trumpet would sound and when the dead shall rise. "I can think," said Bishop Baldwin, in concluding, "that I see our departed triend standing shoulder to ralgia, and have failed to get a remedy shoulder and fighting the battles of this will aford relief, we want you to tr world; but now I look on him after he has son's Nerviline. No remedy in the done treading this weary world and is has given anything like the same de gone to his reward. Let us remember that satisfaction. Its action on nerve our dear ones have only gone before-gone simply marvelous, and as it is put to to meet us on the blessed morn. We cent bottles no great expense is in express our deepest sympathy with the giving it a trial. Polson's Nervili congregation in the loss which they have most pleasant, powerful, and ce experienced. The flower has been taken." remedy in the world. Sold b

but yesterday since Rev. Mr. Murray was the bearer of fraternal greetings, with other honored ministers, from the Ministerial Association to the Conference of the Methodist Church in this city. He supposed it was remembered by many the departed had spoken words of brotherly feeling. His voice was now hushed in death. He would no longer bear fraternal greetings, he would no ager speak to his people the living words. The voice was hushed, but the memory of that voice and the memory of those words was dear, and his efforts on behalf his people and the people of the city would not soon be obliterated from the minds of those associated with him. He was ready at any time to take his place in the association and perform such work as was necessary for moral reform. It was remembered how he stood firm for the right in the temperance reform, and how on other material questions be always stood shoulder to shoulder with his brother ministers. There would be many prayers that God would bless the widow and the fatherless. Rev. Dr. Milligan, of Toronto, delivered a most brilliant address, in which he paid a high tribute of praise to the worth of St. Andrew's deceased paster. After a few introductory words Dr. Milligan said he need speak briefly of the departed brother. room was to be had. The service was concluded with the benediction, and an opportunity was given those so desirous to take a last look at the beloved pastor. Slowly the audience filed around, the organ pealing forth "The treal, who acted as assistant to Mr. Mul Pay Dead March." Proceedings of the Convention at Belleville-Scholars in the Churches.

WEDNESDAY MORNING. Belleville. Oct. 24 .- At the Sunday school convention today after devotional exercises, Mr. A. Day, general secretary, read his annual report, which was replete with veluable information. He stated there were 20.828 scholars who are known to be members of churches, and of these 4,000 have joined this year. Rev. J. McEwan, normal secretary, directed the attention of the workers to the northwest counties of New Ontario, as he designated it, where there was much need of work. The session then adjourned, and eight district conferences were held in as many departments. Miss Vella, of Boston, gave a very comprehensive address on "The Church Garden" in connection with primary teaching. E. Donley, of Simcoe, spoke to the superintendents on the "Home Department of the Sabbath School." A conference of pastors was held in the Reform Episcopal Church, at which Rev. C. W. Walsh, of Brighton, gave an interesting address on "The Pastor's Relation to the Public Schools, Etc."

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

At the afternoon session a number of visiting delegates from other fields were received. Rev. John McEwen spoke on the "Ideal Teacher." "Nearer My God to Thee" was interpreted in sign language by twelve pupils of the Deaf and Dumb Institute. Several ineresting exercises by George Anderson,

Valle, filled up a highly interesting session, which then adjourned. EVENING SESSION. Two thousand people attended the evening session, while 400 or 500 overflowed the Sunday school room below and held another meeting. The meeting was opened with Anniversary services were held in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday last, when Rev. Dr. McMullen, of Woodstock, preached able sermons to large congregations both morning and evening. The paster, Rev. W. G. Jordan, was in Woodstock filling Dr. McMullen's pulpit. Our new G. T. R. station agent, Mr.

Sadlier, late of Lucan, is now in charge, and is making a very favorable impression. Mr. Thomas Fawcett has been visiting in Strathroy the last few days.
Mr. L. H. Smith, banker, and Mr. James

Campbell, formerly of Strathroy, but lately residing in Forest, have returned and taken up their residence here, Welcome back. Mrs. Ann Nicholls, an old and respected resident of Caradoc, died on Friday last, aged 71. The funeral on Sunday afternoon was largely attended.
The I. O. O. F. district committee will hold a lodge of instruction in the initiatory degree at Kerwood on Friday evening.

Dr. Geo. Billington, jun., has returned to Strathroy and taken up his residence here with his father.

Harvest home services were held in the Baptist Church last Sunday. The church was suitably decorated, and the new pastor, Rev. T. M. Fothergill, preached very acceptably to large congregations both morning and evening.

The Strathroy Branch Bible Society has donated the sum of $200 as follows: The Western Ontario Bible Society, London, $50; to British and Foreign Bible Society, $150. This is considerably in advance of any previous year.

GLENCOE.

[Agent for the Advertiser, John McNeil.] While out shooting about three weeks ago Mr. Harry Dyer, of Glencoe, met with a very serious accident, and has been confined to his bed almost ever since; but we are glad to say that he is again able to be around with the aid of crutches. It appears that Harry and his chum while out shooting freed a couple of coons, and then shooting began from all quarters. During the fusil-ade he sent a rifle ball through his foot, making a very ugiy and painful wound.

DIPHTHERIA DISARMED,

How the New Anti-Toxine Remedy A Venturesome Londoner Captured Is Prepared.

Remarkable Cures Effected in Recent

Dr. Gibier, the head of the Pasteur Institute in New York, is now prepared to supply the anti-toxine remedy for diphtheria, and the details of preparation have been made public. The first step is to obtain a collection of microbes from a very deadly case of diphtheria. The doctor attending the case places a portion of the diphtheritic membrane on a piece of cotton wool, which has been carefully prepared and is inclosed in a glass tube to preserve it from other microbes. In the laboratory the diphtheritic microbes are removed with a needle and placed on a layer of solidified serum. Within 24 hours the germs will grow very rapidly. After 24 hours the microbes are transferred to a broth made from peptone and weal. This liquid is then put in vials having two openings. This is nourishing for the microbes and they continue to grow. A current of wet air is passed through the vials in order to keep the atmosphere fresh.

After four to six weeks there should be enough toxin in the iquid to make it ready for filtering. The broth containing the microbe cultures is passed through the Pasteur porcelain filter, and the liquid given off, which, by the way, is absolutely colorless, is given for injection. The next step is to introduce this liquid into the veins of some animal, a horse having been so far found to be best. The injection is given in a vein of the horse's neck. A large syringe, resembling the ordinary hypodermic, is used. The skin is prepared antiseptically, and the animal apparently suffers no pain. The first injection is usually one gramme. It is repeated daily, and is increased up to about 30 grammes, or an ounce. In some cases it has been increased to 150 grammes. The horse shows feverish symptoms on the day of the first injection, but these pass away very quickly. It is necessary, however, to begin with a light injection. In Paris a cow died of a first injection of five grammes.

After six weeks the serum of the horse shows strong antitoxic power. Blocd is drawn from the horse, and the serum, or liquid part of the blood, is allowed to separate from the clot and removed. By continuing the treatment of the horse for two or three months the antitoxic power of the serum will increase tenfold. The animal's health is not injured by the process, and it can be used for years with increasing efficacy for the production of the serum. It has been calculated that two or three horses would serve the needs of a city the size of Toronto. The statistics supplied by the Paris hospitals seem to establish the value of the new treatment beyond question. In the knots, but should need be they can make Chrildren's Hospital, where there are 24 or 25 knots, and they use the four sets. special wards for diphtheria cases, 3,971 There are three fire rooms and plenty of mitted during 1891, 1892 and 1893, and of This is the pilot house, and here are the the number 2,029 died. The difference between the average of 51.71 inch groove all round is where he sights and 24.5 shows the benefit obtained from the treatment.

During the months of April, May and June of this year 520 children entered another Paris bospital where the treatment with serum was not used, and 316 died, or about 60 per cent. In the class of cases where tracheotomy had not to be resorted to the average mortality was only 10 per cent. These figures can scarcely be ignored, for they point to a great discovery in the treatment of one of the most fatal diseases that afflicts humanity.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

MARIE BURROUGHS.

Marie Burroughs will make her first appearance as a star at the Grand Opera House tonight in "Ine Scapegoat." Theater-goers were in raptures over her acting here last season with E. S. Willard. She has branched out with a company of her own, and opened her season last week at Detroit. The critics of that city pronounced her a success and passed a verdict of entire approval upon the company, prophesying that she will in future command an enviable position on the American stage. Marie Burroughs has never been seen at a disadvantage. She brings with her one of the most competent companies that ever appeared supporting a new star. The play is in four acts. The principal characters are well worked out and skillfully contrasted. The climaxes are strikingly effective, the language well chosen, with occasional lines of great beauty. The production will be a treat, and a crowded house should witness the performance.

at Brooklyn Navy Yard.

How John Law Fared on Board the Famous "New York."

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 23 .- Yesterday I found my way to the Brooklyn navy yard which we used to call Wallabout Bay-that is before I was a Canadian. It used to be considerable of a swamp. At the entrance there is an officer in uniform, who will ask you, as he did me, who or what you are wanting. He is a soldier with a gun and bayonet, so I said, "A visitor." He marked a paper and gave it to me kindly, and I walked down to the dock. I saw a warship just coming in, so only passed the different guns that lay around, kind of cast iron deer fashion, as seen on grass plots in your city, only they have piles of old-fashioned round cannon balls which will have to go to be milled over again, having had their day. The ship was the steam warship Maine, of what is called second-class. To me she was of high grade stock, anyway. I passed by men who were at practice in flag signals. They were in squads of three to five each, and at 50 yards distance, perhaps, and in two parties. A red flag of the man was using. He stands out from the rest. By waving to the right or left so many times and bringing up in front cf is at attention watching the other man, who is answering him, while the officer is recording the questions and answers. They all are able to read the signals. If you get near you can see what is being talked. There will be no more bugles on field days, as they don't intend to let their enemy know what they are about to do, and no couriers sent with orders to be shot down and put the movement in peril. Adjutant Dawson might make a note of this, and Major John Peters would do well to notice, for I have practiced right incline at his command, and he may do so now to me with profit.

Going along the wharf to where the New York lay I was soon on board the greatest steam cruiser war ship in the American navy-and perhaps any other navy-for she is a fine ship. Your correspondent being once a fireman, I told Mr. Anthony Murphy, a fireman (very like an old friend who went down with the mail steamship Arctic) I would like to see the engine room. He took me through the different rooms. This is a watertight compartment which can be closed in a few seconds, if needed. If this had been the case with the Victoria, Lord Tryon would be living and his ship affoat today. The engines are inverted triple compound and condensing engines. There are four sets, two of which they use on ordinary service and make 21 children suffering from the disease were ad- boiler room, but the firemen have little room. cent. That three-quarter from. The admiral would not stop here when this ship rammed the Brazilian steam warship Aqudeban, but went out on the bridge, where he could see what was being done. On the sides of the engine-rooms lown there are the magazines, and down here is the machine shop-a lathe that will swing 36 inches, 14 feet long, a shaper and planer and lathe head combined, and tools and vises - a fine but compact shop for repairs. Down here is the skins of the shipa space near the keel where men were at work. This is in compartments and can be shut, and the water kept out or in. Up here are the quick-firing gues. It used to take fourteen men to work a gun of this size, but now two men can load and spin her around like a top. Here is a torpedo in the glass cupboard. This is the torpedo shute. It is worked by compressed air. and as soon as the torpedo strikes the water a pin is knocked out and it starts on its course by electricity. It works that little propeller is it under control. QUERIES ANSWERED.

J. J.-A hires B to look after his place while away. After he came home and B had gone he went to get some things that he put away before he left home and could not find them. After waiting some time A wrote a note to B's people asking them if they would please ask B when they wrote to him if he remembered seeing them. B's people being mad about it never told B about it. But one day, sometime after, B's father came to me and said he did not think B would take things and was mad about it. A told him that he never blamed B for taking them, only asked if he rememseeing them, and that he did not think B would lift a pin that was not his own. But when B came home they told him that A blamed him for taking them. B said he would not believe it, but they kept at him till they made B believe A blamed him. Could B have A up when A never said that B took them, but said when he told his partner in life that he would never blame B, and only asked him so that if he could tell him anything about them A would have been very glad. A never told anyone else. What action can A take against B and family for saying that A accused B for taking them, when A never did, and has proof to that? ANS .-Upon the facts stated B has no legal ground of action against A; neither has A any against B or his family, unless either can prove special damages to have resulted to him from the words spoken by the other.

-The question of betting was raised by Mr. Hume Elliot at the Conservative meeting last night. Mr. Elliot is the son of Judge William Elliot, and he attacked the citizens of London who had lost money by betting that his father would observe the law as laid down by six of the Superior Court judges in this Province, including two chief justices. It is probably unnecessary for us at the present time to refer to that iniquity. But it is as well for the friends of fair play to understand that betting is really no argument, and that it is eften calculated to divert time and attention into channels which could be better devoted to persistent voted for the the issue. A BAD BREAK. At the meeting of city Conservatives last night Lawyers Hellmuth and E. Meredith made bitter attacks on the London the length of asserting that it would be a that no one rose to resent the attack of this Interesting Addresses on Missionary and Evangelistic Effort.

Wednesday's Work at the St.

Encouraging Report from the Sunday School Committee-A Lively Meeting in the Evening.

WEDNESDAY. ST. THOMAS, Oct. 24. -At 9 a.m. a prayer meeting and conference was led by Pastor Charlesworth, subject, "The Love of the Spirit," after which Rev. O. C. S. Wallace, of Toronto, gave a most stirring and eioquent address on "The Call of Grande Ligne to the Young Baptists of Ontario and Quebec." It was a call for our patriotism, compassion and apostolic devotion.

A paper was also read by Rev. S. J. Farmer, B.A., on "The Relation of Our Educational Work to French Evangeliza-

Sunday school work occupied a prominent place in the day's business. The annual report of the Sunday school committee was presented by Mr. Thomas Unquhart, and showed 84,513 scholars on the roll and 4,086 teachers and officers. During the year 1,405 scholars were added to the church; the total number of scholars members of the churches at the present time being 6,104. The pupils of the schools had contributed during the year for home missions $2,167 97, and for foreign missions

Messrs. Crossley and Hunter, the popular evangelists, were then introduced to the convention, and met with a very cordial reception. Each spoke briefly and Mr. Crossley sang a solo.

WEDNESDAY EVENING. By 7:30 the Center Street Church was packed with a vast crowd of bright and intelligent looking young Baptists. The Lake Erie road brought in nearly 100 from London. Prompt to time, Rev. P. K. Dayfoot gave out a hymn, and the prayer and praise service commenced. The singing was hearty and went with a swing that told of hearts and voices uniting in praise. Short, earnest prayers were offered by a number of friends, and a volley of brief, bright testimonies. Mr. E. L. Hill, of Guelph, then took charge of the meeting. Two five-minute addresses were given on "Signals in Young People's Work." First, "Safety Signals," by Rev. J. W. "What's that? Essery, is it! Well that settles it. The party's beater." The scene was just outside the door of the Masonic Temple banqueting hall. The time, last night about 10 o'clock, when the first faint cheers from the neighboring room announced the result of the fourth ballot of the Conservative convention. The speaker was a Conservative who, with probably 100 others of the same mind, had been waiting and fuming for over two hours in the corridor anxious for a chance to get inside.

"It's hermetically sealed," said Mr. Henry Macklin, one of the candidates, as he referred to the convention. And it certainly was a wonder how the 180 delegates managed to survive for over two one was allowed in who had not the neces- the storm. The vote polled was kept a sary cardboard. Even candidates themselves were denied. At least Mr. Henry Macklin was, and he did not feel in the best of humor over the occurrence either. He had approached the door in company with Mr. Beattie, the president of the Conservative Association.

"Tickets!" demanded the doorkeeper. Mr. Beattie produced the card. Mr. Macklin had none.

"But I am a candidate," explained the latter, as he gazed earnestly into the hall and after the retreating form of the portly

"Can't help it. I want a ticket." And the door closed, and Mr. Macklin was left standing in the hall. Among the prominent Conservatives who kept him company were Messrs. Llewellyn Meredith, Dr. Bayly, Henry Dreaney, jun., P. H. Bartlett and others.

The last-named young man is a hustler and a candidate for the presidential chair of the Young Conservative Club. While the crowd was waiting and fretting he calmly proceeded to canvass for votes, and was promised not a few. While this was going on there were frequent sounds of singing inside, and it turned out that while the ballots were being counted impromptu soloists among the delegates sang songs. One young man with a lusty voice warbled

"I wonder if they really are anywhere near it," said a bystander in an audible "I am getting tired of waiting." Mr. Hellmuth was admitted to the room for a few moments about 9 o'clock. If he made a speech it was inaudible in the corridors. He came out shortly, but said nary

And so the time slipped around. Shortly concluded—there was a buzz of excitement the proportions of a cheer when it died of "Essery."

> and the scrutineers were bound to secrecy. May or Essery began his speech by taking off the coat that he will need so badly on the night of the election. He said that he had not expected that he would receive the nomination, but he had taken off his coat to enter into the fight, and it would remain off until he was declared the next member of Parliament for London. Just what he will do without a coat during the coming and following winters Mr. Essery did not state, but his friends strongly suspect that he was speak-ing figuratively. The mayor next ex-patiated on his belief in conventions. He thought people should choose their candidates that way, and said that every one of the men whose names had been mentioned that night could defeat their opponent whenever they met him. It was not a question of man at all. It was a question of principle. Some municipal reminiscences of the mayor's self-styled "great runs" followed at this point. Then Mr. Essery said that the candidates on the platform were just like straws. "If you throw us up, up we go. And if you put your foot on our necks, then we go down where the man who is at the foot of the polls on the night of next election will be, and-very assuredly-his name won't be Then Mr. Essery went into alleged reasons why this would be so. The principal one was: "It is not my fight, but it is your fight. You have nominated me to be the standard-bearer, and when we go into the fight you have got to be along with me." This eloquent plea for party shelter was followed by a history of the man from "our ranks" who had held the seat ever since "this Province of Ontario was a Province." He became sarcastic about here, and said that Mr. W. R. Meredith had never been thought fit to represent the city of London until he had become chief justice. Now those who had been fighting him thought he was simply a cherub without winge. He warned his hearers not to "Do you want to send down to Toronto from the great city of London a silent member? Or do you want to send down a man who, when laws are being altered, will be able to pick up the statute and know what it means and what the matter is that is proposed to be cut out or inserted, and will have some dea of what the result may be? If you want to send a man down there for that kind of thing, who has made a life study of the laws of his country and the laws of ther countries, then I am fit to go." They (the Liberals) could make all the statements they liked, but he pledged himself to stand by the principles of the late leader of the Opposition, and whoever struck that platform incidentally struck him also. He would be sure to do his duty, and if they backed him as they did that night there was a man named Hobbs who was running, and who, if he ran all around

A White Deer Shot by a Rosseau Hunter -The Hamilton Bridge Company's Affairs.

A telegram from Buffalo announces the death of ex-Health Inspector Ford, of Hamilton.

B. B. Osler has written to the mayor of Dundas proposing that for a bonus of $25,-000 he will convert the Hamilton and Dundas street railway into an electric road. Judge Muir, of Hamilton, has directed that Cornelius F. Murphy, the ex-commission merchant of Chicago, must be extradited to stand trial on the charge of Robert Shuttleworth, of Rosseau, shot a deer on Wednesday which was perfectly white, with the exception of the head and neck, which were spotted red and white. This makes the second white deer shot in

Charles Baker Shoots Himself and Walks Home.

He Would Give No Reason for the Rash Act.

Shortly before 12 o'clock last night a young man walked into John McKelvin's hotel on Rectory street with an ugly wound in the right temple, and blood streaming down his face. He was recognized by the boarders as Charles Baker, who had been stopping at the hotel for

Baker was hanging around the house all evening and appeared in a very despondent mood. He was not inclined to talk, and about 11 o'clock he walked out, taking his revolver with him. His object in doing so was unknown to the rest of the men. Baker proceeded to the site of the old Ontario car works, and placing the revolver to his forehead pulled the trigger. The ball entered directly behind the eye, but did not have the desired effect. The recipient of the lead was not even rendered dazed condition. Dr. English was immediately telephoned for, and found the man conscious. He admitted trying to kill himself, but would give no reason. The ambulance was called and he was removed to the hospital, where unconscious, and walked to the hotel in a at 2 a.m. he was still conscious. Baker is the son of a rag peddler who formerly resided in the East End, but who now lives at Nelles' Bush, in London township. Young Baker is about 21 years old, and has served a term in the Central on petty charges, and is not unknown to the ADDITIONAL PARTICULARS. The injured youth Baker, who made such a deliberate effort to kill himself last night, was resting easily at the hospital today and was fully conscious. He still stolidly refused to give any reason for the act. During the night the hospital surgeons probed for the bullet but were unable to locate it. They are of the opinion that the ball did not enter the cranial cavity of the brain, but rather took a downward course and went more to the back of the nasal cavity. There is a fighting chance of the young fellow's recovery.

Baker's fellow boarders are at a loss to account for his action. He had only been stopping at the house for a couple of weeks, and did not owe for his board. Durpeared to worry about something. He followed his father's occupation as rag peddler, but had only been out a couple of times during the fortnight. He had a wagon but no horse, and had to Trunk, if possible, for terminal facilities hire or borrow one when he went on the road. Just after supper last night -In the case of the Bank of Toronto vs. Baker started out with a fellow boarder named Jackson. The latter left him in front of the house and went south while Baker went north towards Dundas street. Where he was, and what he did between 7 and 11 o'clock is not known. It was just 11:01 p.m. when Mr. Robert Howard, switchman at the junction of the Stratford branch and the main line of the G. T. R., whether they were protested or not; that heard a shot ring out on the clear night the bank knew only the defendant in the air. Three quarters of an hour transaction and paid the money to him. afterwards Baker staggered through the back door of the boarding house and into -Mrs. Maggie O'Neill, who lives with the kitchen. The young fellow Jackson

> "What's the matter? Have you been Baker did not answer, and did not appear to hear. He sank into a chair, saying "Let me alone. Let me die here." Even then they thought he had been fighting, or drinking, perhaps. Mrs. Mc-Kelvin caught sight of the wound in his head and she was horror-struck. "Have you been struck by a train?" she

"No," answered Baker, quite rationally. 'I tried to commit suicide.' Then the doctors and the ambulance were summoned as related above. This morning Mr. J. Allin, who lives near McKelvin's place, was crossing the site of the old Ontario car shops. Immediately on a line with the back of McKelvin's lot, and about ten paces north, he found a revolver and an umbrella. Between the two were two pools of blood and several pieces of paper, also bloody. This was where Baker fell. He must have lain unconscious for over half an hour. Then he arose and walked to where some palings were misplaced and made his way into the house. The revolver was a small-sized one, of 22 calibre, and had five chambers. One had been discharged. Mr. Allin turned the articles over to Dr. English. Baker's father visited him during the night.

On Monday last Baker showed his revolver to a woman employed at Joseph Graham's, and told her that he was tired of living and intended to shoot himself. Mr. Graham is a brotherin-law to Baker's father. Only yesterday

A pleasant-looking woman of medium height came to town yesterday in search of her husband, who she claims has deserted her. She had with her two children, and talks English so broken as to be almost unintelligible. Her story is that she came from Cleveland, Ohio, that her faithless spouse long ago ceased to contribute to her support, and that for six weeks has eluded her. Hearing that he was at London, she visited the Forest City, but finding he had left and was supposed to be in Woodstock, she went there. DEAD, DYING AND MISSING.

Fatal Results of a Small Fire in Montreal-Escape Cut Off.

Montreal, Que., Oct. 25.-A fire broke out in the Hotel De Normandie on St. Gabriala street early this morning. The fiames breaking out in the kitchen cut off all means of escape from the four upper stories. Frantic cries could be heard within the building while the firemen were raising the ladders. A man named Ray was rescued from the third floor in an unconscious condition. He was badly burned, and it is believed he will not live. August Petrie, the cook, was smothered. He was found kneeling at his bedside and taken out into the open air, but life had departed. Another man, named Mantal, is also supposed to have perished. The fire itself was a small affair.

And I suppose it is the strike that is broubling Mr. North? I think him so very 'It troubles him, of course-and there are

"Trouble me!" he rejoined surprised at the unnecessary question. "Why, it invol-ves simply ruin, unless we can go on again. Ruin to me, and to my father with me. There's your brother." They had reached the lawn at length, and saw Francis Dailory, who had come for his sister. He was a short, fair young man, with open countenance. Madam had already appropriated him.

"Where's Arthur?" demanded madam, imperiously, as Miss Dallory came up on Richard's arm. "I thought he was with Miss Dallery answered that she had not seen Arthur Bohun since quitting the dinnertable. No one had seem him, as far as madam could discover. She suspected he must have gone off somewhere to smoke; and would have liked to put his pipe behind the

But the pipe was not in fault. Arthur Bohun, possibly thinking there were enough without him, had quietly made his escape, and gone for a stroll towards the Ham. took him so near to Mas. Cumberland's that he might as well call and ask after the headache she had been suffering from in the Sophistry! Nothing but sophistry. Captain Arthur Bohun did not really care whether her headache was worse or better; until a moment ago he had not even remembered that she had complained of headache. he simple truth was, that he could not bear to rest even one evening without a glimpse of Ellen Adair. No mother ever hungered for a lost child as he hungered for her presence.

They were at tea. Mrs. Cumberland, Ellen, and Mr. Seeley. When Jelly showed Captain Bohun in, the doctor was just tak-ing his second cup. Ellen, who presided at the tea-tray, asked Captain Bohun if he would take some, and he rather shortly answered, No. Warfare lay in his mind. What business had that man to be sitting there on a footing of companionship with Ellen

Mrs. Cumberland's head was a little worse, if anything, she replied, thanking Captain Bohun for his solicitude in regard to it. Mr. Seeley had given her two draughts of something - ether, she believed - in the afternoon, but they had not done her head

It might have come to a question as to which would sit out the other-for Mr. See-ley detected somewhat of the state of Arthur Bohun's mind, and resented it - but for the entrance of Dr. Rane. Dr. Rane appeared to have no present intention of leaving again for he plunged into a hot discussion with his brother-practitioner, touching some difficult question in surgery, which seemed quite likely to continue all night, and Arthur Bohun rose. He would have remained willingly, but he was ever sensitive as to intruding, and fancied Mrs. Cumberland might wonder why he stayed. As he went out, Francis Dallory and his sister were passing on their walk homeward. Captain Bohun turned with them, and went to the end of the Ham.

The shades of evening—nay, of night—had stolen over the earth as he went back again, the light night of summer. The northwest was bright with its opal tints; a star or two shone in the heavens. Dr. Rane was pacing his garden walks, his wife on his

"Good-night, Bessy!" he called out to her, whom he had always regarded as his step-

"Good-night, Arthur!" came the hearty rejoinder as Bessy recognized his voice.
Onwards a few steps—only a few—and it brought Arthur Bohun level with the window of Mrs. Cumberland's drawing-room. It was not yet lighted. At the window, standing very closely together, stood the other doctor and Ellen Adair. In Captain Bohun's desperate jealousy, he stared Ellen full in the face, and made no movement of recognition. Turning away with contemptuous movement, plainly discernible in the dusk, he went striding on.

Shakesphere never read more truly the human heart than when he said that jealousy makes the food it feeds on. Arthur Bohun went home almost maddened; not so much with jealousy in its absolute sense, as with indignation at the doctor's iniquitous presumption. Could be have analyzed his own heart fairly, he would have found there full rust in the good faith of Ellen Adair. But he was swaved by man's erring nature, and

How innocent it all was! how little suggestive, could Captain Bohun only have read SWAYNE'S OINTMENT. Lyman, Sons & Co., correctly. There had been no invitation to tea at all; Mr. Seeley had gone in just as they began to take it, and was offered a cup by Mrs. Cumberland. As to being together at the window, Elien had been standing there to catch the fading light for her wood work, perhaps as an excuse for leaving him and Mrs. Cumberland to converse alone; and he had just come up to her to say good-night is Captain Bohun passed.

If we could only divine the truth of these fancies when jeaicusy puts them before us in its false and glaring light, some phases of our lives might be all the happier in consequence. Arthur Bohun lay tossing the whole right long on his sicepless pillow, tormenting himself by wondering what Ellen Adair's answer to Seeley would be. That the fellow in his audacity was proposing to her as they stood at the window, he could have sworn before the Lord Chief Baron of England. It was a wretched night; his tremultuous thoughts were sufficient to wear him out. Arthur had Collins' "Ode to the Passions" House.

CHAPTER VII.

When Arthur Bohun rose next morning, his senses had returned to him. That Ellen Adair's love was his, and that no fear existed of her accepting any other man, let him be prince or peasant, reason assured him. He wanted to see her; for that his heart was as it seemed, he had been judging her harshly, the necessity seemed overwhelmingly great. His impatient feet would have carried him to Mrs. Cumberland's immediately after breakfest; but his spirit was a little rebellious still, and kept him back. He would not betray his impatience, he thought; would not go down till the afternoon; and he began to resort to all sorts of expedients for killing time. He walked with R chard North the best part of the way to Dallory; he came back and wrote to his aunt, Miss Bohun; he went sauntering about the flower-beds with Mr. North. As the day were on towards noon, his restless feet betook him to Ham Lane-which the reader has not visited since he saw Dr. Rane hastening through it on the dark and troubled night that opened this history. The hedges were green now, beautiful with their dog-roses of delicate pink and white, and Friday night they eloped. giving out the perfume of sweet briar. Captain Bohun went along, switching at these same pleasant hedges with his cane. Avoiding the turning that would take him to Dallory Ham, he continued his way to another and less luxurious lane; the lane that skirted the back of the houses of the Ham, amiliarly called by their inhabitants "the back lane." Stro ling onwards, he had the satisfaction of finding himself passing the dead wall of Mrs. Cumberland's garden, and of seeing the root and chimneys of her house. Should be go round and call? A few seeps lower down, just beyond Dr. Rane's, was an opening that would take him there, a public-house at its corner. He had told nimself that he would not go until the afternoon, and now it was barely twelve bootmaker pointed him ou o'clock; should be call, or should be not and thus expressed himself:

Moving on, in his indecision, at a slow pace, he had arrived just opposite Dr. Rane's back garden door, when it suddenly opened, and the doctor himself came forth. "Ah, how d'ye do?" said the doctor, rather surprised at seeing Arthur Bohun there. "Were you coming in this way? The door was bolted.'

When in a good and pure stomach was almost unbearable and life only seemed a drag to me. When I would | color to the complexion and general tone to go to sleep I would have horrible dreams, the entire system. The value of a medicine and my life became very miserable, as there | that is powerful to build up and purify the was no rest either day or night. But with blood should be readily appreciated. For the use of only two bottles of Northrop & this purpose there is nothing that equals Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY this unhappy state has all been changed and I am a well man. I can assure you, my case was a bad one, and I send you this that it may be the means of convincing others of the wonderful curative qualities possessed by this medicine, that are specially adapted for the cure of Dyspepsia. A lady customer of mine had the Dyspepsia very bad, she could scarcely eat anything, and was troubled with pains similar to those I suffered with; and she cured herself with two bottles of Northrop & Lyman's VEGE-TABLE DISCOVERY. I wish you success with your medicine, as I am fully convinced that it will do all you claim for it.

Wrath of Her Parents. NEW YORK, Oct. 24. - Estella Dietz has been missing from her home at East White Plains since Friday at 8 p.m., when she bade her father and mother good-night. At the same time Otto Von Luck disappeared. He was formerly employed on the Dietz place, but later found work in the town in various occupations, the last being as bartender. Now word has been received at the Dietz home that the couple had been married in Hoboken. Charles Dietz, who is wealthy, came to White Plains about three years ago, when he purchased a large tract of land about a mile from town. This property belonged to Richard Croker before he became famous as a politician. Von Luck, a handsome young fellow, was employed to take charge of Mr. Dietz's stable. Estelle, the daughter of the house, attended to the purchase of the articles needed by the family at the village stores. Otto would always drive her to the village and took a great interest in teaching his employer's handsome daughter to drive. He was an excellent teacher and she was an apt pupil. Soon they fell in love, and Miss Dietz's parents, learning the fact, raised a row. Von Luck was cast adrift, but the couple continued to meet,

NOT HEALTHFUL.

Bare Legs Are Not Good for Children-What a Bootmaker Has to Say.

[New York Press.] A chubby little boy, with several inches of brown bare leg between the top of his stocking and the bottom of his knee breeches, passed before the window of my bootmaker on Broadway. He was led by his nurse, and had evidently spent a summer in the country. He looked like a child who had been born well and had been taken the best of care of ever since. My bootmaker pointed him out mournfully,

"If that child doesn't die of consumption before he is 12 years old he will grow up to be a gouty young man, and probably die of apoplexy. Nothing is worse for a child of that age than bare legs at any time, perticularly in the autumn. That's the way fashion kills off its victims. Every child should wear boots, I mean boots with legs on them, reaching up nearly to the knee, and for the matter of that so should every man. I have worn bootlegs all my life, both in summer and winter, and I have also seen experiments made by turning a draft of cold air upon the legs of men who were asleep. The effect is the same as when a wet bandage is applied to the feet of a sleeping man. It chills the stomach, congests the brain, and generally disorganizes the system. The man who wears hightopped boots lengthens his life by ten years, and a bare-legged child is doomed to an early grave."

-At a congregational meeting of the Presbyterian Church, Claremont, held on Monday night, it was decided to extend a call to the Rev. W. A. Cook, of Dorchester. The charge is a very desirable one in many respects. The prospecrs are bright should Mr. Cook decide to accept the call.

-Three men, giving their names as Wm. Brooks, James Rodgers, and Joseph Hobson, and claiming to belong to Toronto, were arrested early last night by Con stables R. W. and James Ward. The tric were leisurely reposing beside a bonfire on the C. P. R. track and boiling some tea, which was intended to wash down dry bread and cheese. Squire Lacey remanded them for a week and suggested that their friends in Toronto be informed of their present headquarters. A large sum of noney was found in possession of the gang and it is believed that they are wanted in other places. -The concert by the London Symphony Orchestra, booked for the Grand Opera House for Nov. 6, is already receiving attention, and being looked forward to by music lovers with unusual interest. Be sides the orchestral numbers, which have been carefully selected by Mr. Roselle Pococke, the services of Miss Marie Louise Bailey, pianist to the King of Saxony, have been secured. This in itself will guarantee a good house, as Miss Bailey stands pre-eminent as one of the greatest pianists of the day. Mr. Angus, late of Detroit, and a baritone of repute, will urnish the vocal part of the programme.

He writes from Hamilton, Dec. 9, 1890, as follows: Isaac Williams Company, London, Ont.:

Baac Williams Company, London, Ont.:

Dear Sirs.—After suffering for a long time with pains in my back, extending to my lower parts, also no ambition to do my daily work, I was induced by Mr. Bickell to try Royal Crown Remedy. After taking two bottles, and Pills. as directed, I consider myself entirely cured, and can highly recommend your medicine, R. C. R. and Pills, to do all you claim them to do. Should be in every home. It saves hundreds of dollars in doctors' bills. Yours truly.

ANOTHER OUTRAGE.

It Also Was Perpetrated in Bread Daylight and Near a Village-A 13-Year-Old Girl the Victim.

BROCKVILLE, Oct. 25 .- News has been received here from Newboro, about 25 miles northwest of here, on the line of the Brockville and Westport Railway, of a brutal outrage perpetrated there on Monday on the person of a girl named Annie Canning, 13 years of age. The girl had been to a neighbor's house, a short distance north of the village, and was returning home on the railway track when she was met by a man and brutally assaulted and outraged, under threats of being killed if she revealed who her assailant was. Under fear of the threat she at first said it was a tramp who had so abused her. When it became known so terrible a crime had been committed in broad daylight and close to the village, the greatest excitement prevailed. The village bells Either call in or write for prices and were rung to alarm the inhabitants, and the people turned out en masse and scoured the country in all directions in hope of capturing the perpetrator of the deed, but without avail. The girl told several conflicting stories last night, however. About midnight she awoke her parents, saying she could not go to sleep until she had told the truth regarding the matter. She then stated that her assailant was a young man named Mac. Alford, a resident of the village, that he had threatened to kill her if she informed on him, and for that reason she had told the ciety will hold its regular meeting tomor-row afternoon. story about the tramp. Alford is the son of a blacksmith in the village, and the family is quite respectable. Alford was at once arrested at his father's house and the preliminary examination before a magistrate is taking place at Newboro this evening. He is about 20 years of age. It is expected he will be brought to Brockville jail today. From what can be learned the girl was terribly injured. Doubts of her recovery were at one time entertained, but it is now thought she will recover.

THE BATTLE CREEK WRECK. A Fiendish Confession-Soft-Scaped the Track. -Members of the London Hunt wishing

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Oct. 25 .- John Bodwig, one of the men accused of wrecking the Grand Trunk train at Battle Creek, gave important testimony yesterday against George Johnston. He told of several meetings between himself, Jewett, ing a very pleasant summer with her Johnston, Hall and and Vedder, at which train wrecking was fully discussed. Witness gave an account of the procuring of several fruitless attempts at other places they sneaked through a cornfield with it and hid it in the grass near Mott street. On the night of the wreck he went with Hall and showed him where the bar was hidden. Bodwig then declared he and Hall separated leaving the bar in the grass. The bar, however, was found next day near the wreck and was undoubtedly the tool used on a former occasion. Bodwig, Jewett, Johnson and Vedder were to remove the bolts with a wrench, pry up the rails with saplings and soap the tracks. The first three went to the scene of operations with a pail of soft soap and a broom. Bodwig acted as guard and patrolled the track. The rails were soaped but he thinks Vidder did not come with with the wrench. The examination adjourned for a month.

FOUND A FORTUNE

In an Old Cave-Gold Coin and Ornaments Worth $30,000.

DURANGO, Mexico, Oct. 24. - While Jose Maria Hurrer, was herding a flock of sheep on the ranch of Julia Flores, 40 miles west of here, Tuesday, he discovered a cave which he partly explored. He found stored in the cavern a box filled with gold coin and ornaments valued at $30,000. It is supposed that it is a part of the ill-gotten gains of Brigand Marz, who operated in that section 30 years ago and was killed in one of his expedition. Ten per cent of the amount goes to the Government.

Earthquake Shocks in California.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 24.-A very sharp earthquake shock drove the people from the large buildings at 3:07 p.m. yesterday. No damage was done beyond the breaking of windows. A telephone message from Campo, a small town on the Mexican border, 55 miles east, says the shock was very severe there.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 24,-A slight earthquake shock was felt on the streets here at 3:05 p.m. yesterday.

Engraving and Manu acturing. Engraving is an art that is far from being easy to study. Years of apprenticeship must be served before a person can be at all competent, and proficiency in engraving and executing the delicate work necessary in the trade is possessed by comparatively few. Richard H. Giese has been located in this city for several years, and has lately moved to the top flat above 190 Dundas street. The jewelers of this city and vicinity have recognized the ability of Mr. Giese, and he has secured the trade of some of the best retail jewelers of London and outside towns. Jewelry of all kinds is manufactured on the premises. All who wish original designs can have them made to their liking. New machinery of the most modern style will shortly be placed in the premises. A Coming Attraction. The following from Halitax Our Society refers to an artist who appears in Dundas Center Methodist Church on Monday evening: "The event of the evening was the appearance of Mrs. Harrison. We have not had the pleasure of hearing this lady before, but heard enough on Tuesday evening to be able to say without reserve that she is splendid. Mrs. Harrison has a very charming style and a very sweet voice, capable of wonderful inflections and of great range. In her first song, "L'Incontro," she simply showed what she could do, impressing rather than charming us. "The Fairies," given as an encore, showed more feeling. "The New Kingdom" entirely captivated us—a beautiful song and perfect-ly rendered. Mrs. Harrison finished up with "I Will Extol Thee" (from Eli) as an encore, evoking more enthusiasm than we
