

POLICE FIND TRACE OF TWO MISSING GIRLS

33 CHEERS FOR WENIGE

George gets all tangled up cheering for himself.—
"Co-operation" and Eskimo Pie—33 Items on the list, but what about the loaded street railway ballot?

Mayor Wenige is having a bad time figuring out his election advertisements.

He wants to overcome the reputation he has earned as a troublemaker and breeder of quarrels—a mayor who can not lead his council. He wants to tell people that he is really the prize co-operator of the whole city.

On the other hand Mr. Wenige does not want to share credit with anyone for anything that has happened anywhere in London at any time during the last year.

It is quite a puzzle even for George. How can he show himself to be the co-operative and persuading leader of a united council and at the same time the single-handed, persistent, consistent, headsunbowed, hearts-unfraid, red-blooded, go-getter, he-man, single-handed champion of the people which he loves to describe from the platform?

A puzzle, but the nimble George gets around it. He produces an advertisement that is not without its humorous side and he uses all the above high pressure adjectives in doing it.

CO-OPERATION AND ESKIMO PIE.

Mr. Wenige simply took a thick black pencil and wrote in large letters the word "Co-operation." This was supposed to be the subject of what he said below. But he might just as well have written "Eskimo Pie" because what he wrote below had no more connection than that with "Co-operation."

However, that's just George's way.

Underneath the title "Co-operation" Mr. Wenige produced a paragraph delicately inferring that the city council and everyone in London but himself are "spineless jellyfish," "pattering pussy-footers" and "purring procrastinators." One gathered that he, George Adolphus Wenige, is really the only full-blooded, red-blooded, clear-brained, stout-hearted Britisher in the city of London.

There were other adjectives than that in the paragraph and some people might find it just a bit overdone, but it was really merely an appetizer to what came below and it was pretty good reading anyway.

HE DESCRIBES "CO-OPERATION."

Underneath "Co-operation" this paragraph Mr. Wenige took his pencil firmly in his hand, scratched his thick black curls, and wrote down a list of everything nice he could think of that had happened in or near the city since last Christmas.

He put down everything except births, marriages and deaths, and the first snowfall. It was a sort of "Me und Gott" list and he had to leave something.

Anyway it made quite a list—33 items in all.

So then George took a still bigger black pencil and printed in capitals in front of each item "WENIGE." He had to write
"WENIGE" 33 times, but after all he liked writing "WENIGE."

Wenige had done it all. Everything that had happened all year—WENIGE. Everything that ever would happen—WENIGE.

The subject of the essay was "Co-operation" and it all came to—33 "WENIGES."
Oh Eskimo Pie!

WHAT HE SAID AND MIGHT HAVE SAID.

"Wenige," so George said, "reduced the tax rate." And increased the assessment so that more taxes were paid in 1924 than in 1923.

"Wenige built Empress avenue school." The board of education, Empress avenue mothers' club, and West London deputations had nothing to do with it.

"Wenige is all for Western University." The board of governors of the University of Western Ontario and the provincial government have nothing to do with it.

"Wenige put new life in the fire department." And now nearly wrecked it by quarrelling for two years with Chief Aitken and getting a report against the firemen's union.

"Wenige saw the big idea for the police." And now is trying to breed graft with the American idea of an elective police commission.

"Wenige improved the street lighting." The public utilities commission had nothing to do with it.

"Wenige reorganized Victoria hospital." The hospital trust had nothing to do with it.

Wenige, in short, built up the sidewalks, pavements, buildings, and everything. The twelve aldermen, the board of education, the public utilities commission, the university board of governors, the hospital trust, the police force, the fire department, the city clerk, the city treasurer, the city engineer—they all had nothing to do with anything. Wenige did it all. "Wenige"—33 times.

Oh George, thy conceit is refreshing.

Oh Co-operation, thy name is Eskimo Pie.

HE MIGHT HAVE ADDED THIS.

But if Mr. Wenige had really and truly wanted to continue his election advertisement along that style The Advertiser could have suggested another paragraph.

It would have begun with "Wenige" too.

It would have read something like this:

WENIGE two years ago shouted loudly for a showdown with the street railway company. But something happened to switch him around. Last spring Wenige visited with President Currie and brought back the company's price of $1,295,000 plus extras.
And then Wenige tried to put through council a two-question ballot giving London a choice between buying at the company's ridiculous price of $1,295,000 or giving a new long term franchise.

THAT TWO-QUESTION BALLOT WAS FRAMED BY THE COMPANY. Wenige knows it was and so does The Advertiser.

THAT TWO-QUESTION BALLOT WAS SIMPLY HOLDING A GUN AT LONDON RATEPAYERS and saying: "Your money or your streets."

THAT BALLOT GAVE LONDON NO CHANCE. AND WENIGE WANTED IT. He tried to force it through council and when there was objection he said "That's out of order." The aldermen fought him and beat him. WENIGE VOTED ALONE FOR THE STREET RAILWAY'S LOADED BALLOT.

Mr. Wenige could have added something like that to his list and taken all the credit for it.

WHY DIDN'T HE?

It was "Co-operation"—with the street railway!

Britain Defers Any Further Action In Egypt

NEW CABINET IN EGYPT TO GET CHANCE

Ziwar Pasha Is Expected to Accede to Demands of Great Britain.

ACTION DEFERRED
Solution of Problems Sought
During Recess of Parliament.

Associated Press Despatch.
Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 25.—The Egyptian parliament was adjourned by royal decree today to Dec. 25. The new ministry will seek in the meantime a solution of Egyptian problems.
An improved atmosphere prevailed in Cairo today, following yesterday's sensational political developments resulting from the course taken by Great Britain in consequence of the assassination last week of the sirdar.
Major-Gen. Sir Lee Stack. The British troops paraded the streets again this morning, but otherwise there were few outward signs of the unusual. The students in the educational institutions who had struck in protest against the British demands returned to the schools, but are still refusing to take up their work.

The new ministers in the cabinet formed by Ziwar Pasha called at the house of ex-Premier Zagloul Pasha and discussed the situation with him.
With regard to the new ministry, it is pointed out that its make-up is notable from one standpoint, in that it includes representatives of Islam, Christianity and Judaism. It is also remarked that although Ziwar Pasha was taken by surprise in being requested to form a government, he was able to complete within six hours the task of getting a cabinet together.

The British government is going

IRISH UNION RIVALRY BRINGS BIG OUTBREAK

James Larkin's Followers Are Half Successful in Latest Move.

Associated Press Despatch.
Dublin, Nov. 25.—The rivalry between the Irish transport workers' union and the new Irish workers' union founded by James Larkin when he was ousted from the former organization again caused trouble in Dublin last night.
The Larkinites, defying police orders, posted pickets before various motion picture theatres, endeavoring to engineer a strike. Enormous crowds gathered in all directions.
The police, finding themselves unable to cope with the crowds at two points in Brunswick and Sackville streets, were ordered to fire their revolvers in the air as a warning. The Brunswick street gathering stood its ground, but that in Sackville street broke and fled in all directions.
The excitement lasted until a late hour, when the police finally cleared the streets.

THOUSANDS ATTEND CARDINAL'S FUNERAL

All Ireland Mourns as Beloved Prelate Is Laid to Rest.

Associated Press Despatch.
Armagh, Ireland, Nov. 25.—This was a city of mourning today, the occasion being the funeral of Cardinal Michael Logue, primate of all Ireland, who died last Wednesday.
Despite the heavy downfall of rain, thousands came here to attend the obsequies. The crowds would have been larger had it not been for a railway mishap which held up many hundreds at Kedy station. Virtually all of Ireland was represented, the mourners coming from Dublin, Belfast, Derry and other outlying points.
The burial was preceded by the celebration of a pontifical mass in St.
Patrick's cathedral.

CANADIAN BANK DEBITS INCREASE DURING OCTOBER

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, Nov. 25.—The bank debits to individual accounts in the clearinghouse centers of Canada during October, as reported to the dominion bureau of statistics, were $2,963,000, as compared with $2,138,000,000 in the preceding month, representing an increase of nearly $765,000,000, or 35.3 per cent.
A large part of this increase is seasonal,
but when this factor is allowed for,
the advance was about 2.4 per cent.
The bank clearings in October increased $408,000,000, to $1,772,000, 000, or about 30 per cent, and when the seasonal factor is eliminated the clearings were nearly maintained.

BARNARD IS GUILTY ON ALL COUNTS

Home Bank Director Convicted After Lengthy Trial at Toronto.

SENTENCE DEC. 1
Judge Coatsworth to Decide the Question of Appeal on Friday.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Nov. 25.—C. A. Barnard, K.C., of Montreal, one of the directors of the defunct Home Bank of Canada, was this morning found guilty on three counts under the Canadian banking act arising out of the collapse of that institution. The three charges are that he did: "Make a wilfully false or deceptive statement; unlawfully use a false or deceptive statement, and negligently sign, approve or concur in an account containing false or deceptive statements."

The statement referred to in each case is the annual statement of the bank's affairs for the fiscal year ending May 31, 1923, to the minister of finance.

Another director, Lieut.-Col. C. E.
Smith, of Montreal, was convicted on one count as were also Ocean G.
Smith, former chief accountant, and Sidney H. Jones, former auditor. J.
F. M. Stewart, a third director, is now being tried.

With those previously convicted,
Barnard will be sentenced on Dec. 1.
He is the first of those tried to be found guilty on all three charges made by the crown. R. S. Robertson, K.C., who is counsel for Barnard,
asked for a certificate for appeal.
Judge Coatsworth will give his decision on the application on Friday.

The crown contended that such application must be based on law only and not on fact, although Mr. Robertson stated that his case was a mixed law and fact. Until his sentence, Barnard is allowed the same bail as he had during his trial.

Reviews Director's History.
As in all other Home Bank cases the judge found that the annual statement for 1923 contained false statements. The judgment reviews
Mr. Barnard's history as a director of the bank, pointing out that in his seven and a half years on the board he attended 29 meetings out of 250 held and that he drew $2,765 as director's fees, and that his dividends amounted to $12,830.37, personally to another in trust, $34,890.37, and to his company, the Fidelity Trust, $79, 885. The judge, says the judgment, were not paid out of realized profits.

HAROLD MEER APPLIES FOR U. S. CITIZENSHIP

Native of Port Stanley Now Director of Washington Opera Company.

Special to The Advertiser.
Washington, Nov. 24.—A Canadian artist, director of the Washington Opera Company, with his American wife, have just applied to the naturalization courts here for their final citizenship papers. They are Harold Meer and his wife, Mrs. Marietta Stockard Meer, who are better known as Edouard Albin, director of the Washington Opera Company, and as Peggy Albin, soprano of the Bedtime Stores over the radio. The applicants made their declaration of intention Nov. 30, 1917.

Mr. Meer will discard the name
Harold and will be known as Edouard Albin Meer, while Mrs. Meer will make no change in her given name.

Meer was born at Port Stanley, Ontario, and came to the United States in 1916.

Mrs. Meer lost her citizenship by marriage to a foreigner.

Meer is described in the petition as a concert singer, while the wife's occupation is given as a writer.

THREE NARROWLY ESCAPE AS SMALL TRUCK DITCHES

Allen Douglas, 18 years old, of Hyde Park, his sister, Margaret Douglas, and Edgar Morden narrowly escaped being seriously hurt yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock this morning when their car, a small roadster truck, plunged into a ditch on the Sarnia highway a short distance west of the Wharfcliffe road.

Morden suffered a sprained wrist but the other occupants of the car were not injured.

The windshield of the auto was broken and the hood, which had been fastened by a chain, was bent and prevented the car from turning over.

BRUSSELS REACHES PEAK IN THE COST OF LIVING

Associated Press Despatch.
Brussels, Nov. 25.—The index 100 as the index figure for 1914, the cost of living in Brussels has reached its highest level since the beginning of the war, being 553. The cost of living for the whole country is placed at 520.

HASTINGS CASTING RECORD VOTE TODAY

Both Sides in the By-Election Express Confidence as the Balloting Proceeds.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Belleville, Nov. 25.—West Hastings is balloting today to elect a member of parliament. The campaign, which closed last night, with mass meetings in Belleville and Trenton, addressed by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen and Premier W. L. Mackenzie King, respectively, has been by long odds the most exciting ever held in this riding. The voting today goes on pace, and the top ballot will almost certainly constitute a record.

Fine shades of parliamentary practice have been discussed by both sides, and personalities about both candidates have crept into the campaigning, as well as some discussion of the tariff. E. Gust Porter, the conservative candidate, and member for the riding for twenty-three years, resigned his seat when the committee on privileges and elections in the federal house brought in a report favorable to Hon. James Murrdoch, minister of labor, who had been charged by the opposition with using the name of the riding in a report obtained in his capacity as minister of the crown.

Mr. Porter decided to ask the approval of his constituents of the part he had taken in the attack on the minister of labor, and for this purpose brought on a by-election. The government party, which is represented by Charles E. Hanna, claims that Mr. Porter should have accepted the decision of the house committee.

AUSTRALIA NOT TO HIT BRITISH INDUSTRIES

Associated Press Despatch.
Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 25.—
The Commonwealth government has no intention of penalizing bona-fide British manufacturers in its proposed tariff. The tariff, which is represented by the tariff board, has been made up of 75 per cent. of British material and British workmanship, instead of the present minimum of 25 per cent. in order to qualify for the preference policy decided upon by the Australian government.
So H. E. Pratt, minister of trade and customs, stated in a speech here last night.

Mr. Pratt said that in cases where all possible British work and material were put into goods exported to Australia, the preference would be conceded.

ARGENTINA SHOWS BALANCE FOR FIRST TIME IN YEARS

Associated Press Despatch.
Buenos Aires, Nov. 25.—For the first time in many years Argentina's yearly revenue receipts exceed the expenditures, according to an official forecast of the workings of the 1924 budget. It is estimated that the total income by Dec. 31 will amount to 597,241,000 paper pesos, exceeding the expenditures by 908,000 pesos.

Radio Builders Make Progress

Radio set builders competing for $150 prizes in the Advertiser contest are making rapid progress.
Many of the sets are nearing completion. Many others are about to be assembled, the parts having been all procured and made ready for "hooking up." The Advertiser has learned of some dark horses in the contest. One in Forest and another in Ingersoll are reported to be turning up something new in clarity of reception. St. Thomas is confident of cutting itself some of the cake at the prize party, but Londoners say they haven't a chance. New entrants are flocking in. This snappy radio weather makes the appeal of radio irresistible.

The University Grant

Mark your ballot like this on the $55,000 grant question—support a great London institution—build for the future.

December 1st, 1924
Voting on the following question—"Are you in favor of the Council continuing the annual grant of $55,000.00 to the University of Western Ontario?"

YES	X
NO

London will vote an emphatic "Yes" on this question—it will say in a decided manner that it approves of the University of Western Ontario.

London students are having the advantage of a university training. There are 350 of them in the various branches of Western.
Many of them would be denied this opportunity were it necessary for them to go to a university outside of London.

The measure of support given by London has a very direct bearing on what the province will do in the way of financial assistance.

When London gave $10,000 a year the province gave $25,000—when the city increased the amount to $20,000, the provincial grant came up to $60,000. Later when London placed its grant at $55,000, the provincial assistance was raised to $84,000, then to $200,000, with the promise of $250,000 per annum.

The University of Western Ontario is the best all-year-round advertisement London possesses. It is bringing families here who have children to educate—it will do this increasingly in the future.

In the near future Western will have an enrollment of 1,000 students.

The advertiser believes voters will settle this matter in such a way that it will be known for sure that the city is solidly behind the university.

VOTE "YES" ON THIS QUESTION.

CANADIANS ESCAPE AS FIRE SWEEPS OLD LONDON CLUB

Hon. H. H. Stevens and H. B.
Thomson Saved From Burning Building.

THRILLING RESCUE

Housekeeper of British Empire Club Annex Perishes in Flames.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Nov. 25.—A party of Canadians had a thrilling escape from being burned to death early this morning in a fire in the annex to the British Empire club, Piccadilly street, which is used as residential quarters for overseas visitors.

The housekeeper, a woman, lost her life, but all the visitors escaped unharmed, although the early addition of the London evening papers state that other lives were lost in the fire.

Canadians in the burning building who managed to get out into the street were: Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce in the Meighen government; H. B. Thomson, former Canadian foreign minister, now permanently engaged in business in London; and Herbert Otto Fried, Vancouver, B. C. Col. Sullivan of Newfoundland also was among those who narrowly escaped injury or death in the fire.

Mr. Stevens was awakened by the roaring flames at 1 o'clock this morning. He found that the fire had enveloped the elevator shaft and the staircase. At once he roused the rest of the inmates. They threw up the windows and all called for help at the top of their voices.

Nightworkers and policemen quickly gathered at the scene of the fire and in a few minutes the fire brigade arrived equipped with ladders to assist in the escape of those who were trapped by the flames.

TWO GIRLS SOUGHT AT U.S. BORDER

Police Fail To Find Any Trace of Two Londoners.

BOTH IN TEENS

Both Believed To Be Trying To Enter the United States.

Two young London girls, both in their teens, have mysteriously disappeared from their homes in the city within the past few days.

Police were notified last night that Mariel Whitworth, 17 years old, the daughter of H. Whitworth, 798 Hamilton road, was missing. Police of Windsor have also been asked to conduct a search for Violet Allen, 16-year-old London girl who left her home here several days ago.

Both girls are believed to be in the Windsor vicinity, and the police of that city began a search in an effort to have them located and brought back to their homes before they crossed the international boundary.

Describe Girl.
Violet Allen, described as weighing about 130 pounds and when last seen was dressed in a fawn colored coat with black velvet hat.
When Mariel Whitworth left home she was wearing a brown dress and brown coat trimmed with fur. Her features are described by her father as being round with Roman nose. Her eyes are grayish brown in color and she had bobbed light brown hair.
It is Violet Allen father's belief that she ran away to get married.
He informed Chief of Police Robert Birrell of her disappearance several days ago and solicited police aid in the search for her.

Disappeared Yesterday.
According to Mr. Whitworth, his daughter kept house for him. She disappeared yesterday morning while he was at work. Last night the girl left home and was found by detectives in Port Huron, Michigan.

Mr. Whitworth moved to the Hamilton road last week and had purchased a large amount of new furniture for the girl to make the home surroundings more pleasant. He can give no reason for the girl's leaving, as he feels that he has done his best to give her a good home to live in.
Mr. Whitworth has no idea where the girl went, but he does think that she is in St. Marys, although he has notified the officials of that place to be on the lookout.

According to Mr. Whitworth, his daughter kept house for him. She disappeared yesterday morning while
girl left home and was found by
detectives in Port Huron, Michigan.

PROMINENT MERCHANT IS HURT IN RUNAWAY

R. J. Young Found on Highway by Motorists—Rein Believed to Have Broken.

R. J. Young, well-known merchant of the city and senior member of R. J.
Young and Company, was seriously hurt this morning on the River road when he was thrown from the buggy in which he was riding following a runaway.

Motorists along the River road came upon Mr. Young lying on the highway severely hurt. They took him to a nearby house. Later a team of horses was seen galloping along the road towards London.
Dr. A. E. Wood of Byron sanatorium administered aid. Mr. Young was badly cut about the face and head, and his back was injured. Internal injuries may result, the physician states.

The team of horses was recovered near the Wharfcliffe road by Police Sergeant James Oakley.

The accident occurred on the River road near the C. N. R. bridge. Mr.
Young is in the habit of driving each morning. Today it is believed the horses became unmanageable when a rein broke. The horses bolted and in a jurch to the side Mr. Young was thrown out.

SKEPTICAL CLERK LANDS SWINDLER

Leo Koretz Goes Back to Chicago to Face Serious Charges.

FLAUNTED WEALTH

Associated Press Despatch.
Chicago, Nov. 25.—A skeptical clerk and detective work on the part of Abel Davis, vice-president of the Chicago Title and Trust Company, proved the undoing of Leo Koretz, master swindler, it was revealed last night. The clerk in the bank at Halifax, where Leo Keyte had opened an account, noted that Keyte's deposits were unusually large, but that he had no definite income.

He thought it strange that an extremely wealthy man should have no earnings whatsoever, and communicated his suspicions to a Chicago client, who, in turn, through his attorneys, informed Davis. Then Davis, as trustee for the Keyte's estate, turned detective and definitely established by an exchange of photographs and handwriting specimens, that Leo Keyte was Leo Koretz. At the same time he began proceedings in Halifax in the name of the Chicago Title and Trust Company, laying claim to the Keyte's newly-acquired estate, his yacht, his cars and his library.

Secret Extradition Warrant.
The trustee had the state authorities make the arrest, as Koretz could not be extradited for the federal offense of using the mails to defraud, but could be returned to this country on the state charge of embezzlement. Governor Len Small had secretly signed an extradition warrant before the arrest was made. Assistant States Attorney Thomas Marshall went to Washington and obtained a federal warrant.

Chester Davis, son of the trustee, left last night for Halifax, after a meeting of the creditors. With him were Adrian Hoover, attorney representing several of the creditors. They will take steps in Nova Scotia to conserve the tangible assets there of Koretz.

They departed with a list of assets telegraphed by Assistant States Attorney John Sharbaro, to prosecute Robert E. Crowe here. This list showed that Koretz had a 100-acre estate, valued at $35,000, in Nova Scotia, deposits of $35,000 in the Eastern National Bank in New York city; stocks and bonds amounting to $50,000 deposited in the bank of Nova Scotia; and deposits of $2,000 in a branch of the same bank in Liverpool, England. He was also listed as the owner of a house at 922 Madison avenue, New York, the manager of which is Temple Scott. All these assets appeared under the name of Leo Keyte.

Applied for Passports.
"I have also authentic information," Sharbaro wired, "that Koretz had made application for passports to sail to South America the latter part of this week."

When Koretz is returned to Chicago a capias will be served upon him and he will be placed in jail without being allowed to bail. It was said at Mr. Crowe's office. Trial on the state charge of operating a confidence game and embezzlement will be started at once. The penalty for conviction on this count is ten years' imprisonment. Then Koretz will be turned over to the federal authorities to face trial on an indictment for using the mails to defraud. Conviction in this case will mean a fine of $1,000, a five-year prison sentence, or both.

MAYOR FORCED TO MEET STREET RAILWAY ISSUE

Challenge of John Anderson Wenige Away From Questions of Lesser Importance and Brings Guarded Statement As To His Stand On Transportation Problem.

TRUSTEE ATTACKS MAYOR'S SCHOOL STAND

Broadening out to include hot debates on the street railway question the majority campaign warmed intensify at ward meetings last night. John Anderson, candidate for the chief magistracy, laid open the mayor's record on transportation matters. His clear-cut utterances of Mr. Wenige's somersault in the handling of the London Street Railway, found the mayor ready to discard other planks in his platform, and come from his retreat on the transportation question. Capacity audiences listened attentively to all candidates at Knollwood park and Lorne avenue schools.

Facing the direct challenge of John Anderson to come out into the open on the street railway issue, Mayor Wenige, declared himself the upholder of law and order, stating that he would favor reduced fares if the law provided for such. Mr. Wenige asserted that no one man could regulate the law in the matter of lower fares, but in the end did not declare himself definitely on any of the many questions which were flung at him.

Schools in Limelight.
School questions, too, took up much of the limelight, though Mayor Wenige confined himself to taking up practically all of the time allotted him to a discussion of street railway matters, and handing out bitter bouquets to the press. At Lorne avenue S. L. Lawerson and Mrs. Hunt were attacked by Adam Palmer, erstwhile candidate to the board, on the matter of figures. At Knollwood park, Trustee Lawerson came out plainly in favor of a council which would show some sympathy and intelligence in school matters.

"You gave the mayor 30 minutes to get off a lot of abuse," declared Mr. Lawerson at the Knollwood park gathering. "I'm saying this because I'm interested in who gets back to the council. We had to fight to get a new school for London West. When the mayor came up the mayor drew his pencil through the items in the estimates and said 'You can't get that.'"

Later on when the mothers' club came along and asked for the school, he said 'very well.' Mr. Lawerson did not attempt to personify take the initiative in the West London school movement, but he gave none of his plaudits to Mayor Wenige. He declared that the board of education had handled its affairs in a businesslike manner during the past year, but it had not received cooperation from the council under Mayor Wenige's regime.

Blames Council.

"Twelve men in the council were jellyfishes and wouldn't do it," declared Mayor Wenige in speaking of his action in wanting to forcibly seize the funds of the street railway when they owed money to the city last year. "They wouldn't do it until I put a provision in there, subject to the approval of the city solicitor."

He scouted the advice of City Solicitor T. G. Meredith on street railway matters, and declared the whole question was a matter of law. He said that he had never been, and never would be, in favor of the street railway until "the right price" be secured. He doubted if anyone knew what "the right price" was, though he had voted to submit a ballot to the people for purchase at the company's price. That price was, he said, only one he could get, he told the audience.

"I would like to get your opinion on the enforcement of the O. T. A.," came a query.

"That's a provincial matter," answered the mayor.

"What would you have done had you been in Sir Adam Beck's place when the fare question came up in the legislature?" came another question.

"I wasn't in his position," was the mayor's answer.

"You've been championing the cause of the workingman," pointed out S. F. Lawerson. "Do you favor seven and nine tickets for a quarter?"

"Whatever is the law will have to be enforced," came back the mayor.

"How will you vote when it comes up in the council?"

"When it comes to a vote in the council, I'll back up the law," was his worship's plain reply.

Takes Definite Stand.

John Anderson, the mayor's opponent, did the sidestep the mayor issues of the campaign, but received applause on his definite statements of vital matters which have been provided in the election fight. He flayed the mayor for his change in policy towards the street railway, first wanting co-operation to fight the company, and then wanting co-operation to lend the company money, and later to purchase the road at the company's price.

"There is no clique or organization behind me. I am running on my own hook and anything I do is absolutely without fear or favor."

He had opposed the Quebec street storm sewer because it had been declared an illegal expenditure, and a delegation had petitioned against it. He recounted the mayor's lack of co-operation in unemployment matters, even though Mr. Wenige had, in front of his council, told a delegation of unemployed that the council "is doing all in its power to provide relief."

The mayor had intimated that co-operation must have been shown when he voted with Ald. Anderson on no less than 267 occasions. But the mayor had not said that Ald. Anderson was the second man on the council to vote on all questions, and therefore had no chance to see which way the vote was going, and play to the gallery. The vote of the mayor is always taken last, if taken at all.

Aldermanic Candidates.

Aldermanic candidates for ward four briefly presented their election claims. Ald. Ed. Hayden announced a definite stand in favor of the Western university plebiscite and against the abolition of the ward system. He declared that the council had done much to alleviate unemployment and stated his favor for a street railway route through Knollwood park. Ald. Ed. Smith, seeking re-election, declared himself for doing away with the smoke nuisance at the C. P. tracks and pledged himself to support a Knollwood park street car line.

Attacking the chamber of commerce and the city council's grant to that body, Homer Neely went to some lengths to advocate employment for all citizens. He declared that more industries should be brought to the city to provide work. He would cut off the cost of sending out circulars to citizens urging them to vote, stating that this was a move started by city officials who had no right to tell citizens to vote.

Thomas Cliff, endorsed by Labor, declared that he had been in the ward for 41 years and had been a union man for 27 years. He favored the Western university grant, but opposed doing away with the ward system. Lloyd Hockin, a new aspirant, lauded Knollwood park and the work of Ald. Ernie Shaw in the council during the past year.

Candidates for the board of education included Mrs. J. L. A. Hunt, Mrs. Edith Turf, F. Lawerson, David Mills and Arthur Evans. Mrs. Hunt declared herself in favor of cadet training as a means to discipline rather than to teach military ideas.

At Lorne Avenue.

With a full house of interested taxpayers as an audience, Mayor Wenige and Alderman John Anderson, candidates for the majority of the coming year, held horns last night in joint debate at Lorne avenue school. The Lorne avenue meeting was a warm one, interspersed with candid remarks from the audience and considerable questioning of the candidates at the close of their speeches.

Alderman Anderson, by virtue of being the first on hand, was granted the privilege of speaking first, and in a well directed speech of 15 minutes' duration, gave the taxpayers a clear-cut outline of his platform and his intended actions and policy should he be elected as mayor.

He stated at the outset of his remarks that he had not voted with the mayor, as Mayor Wenige claimed, on some 200 odd occasions, for by virtue of the arrangement of the members in the council, it was necessary for him to vote second, while the vote of the mayor is always the last to be registered.

If there was harmony on the occasions cited," stated Alderman Anderson, "it was because the vote of the mayor happened to coincide with the votes of the majority of the council, and the majority wish on the part of Mayor Wenige."

Take Up Big Issues.

In developing his platform before last night's audience, Alderman Anderson replied to the assaults of Mayor Wenige on the minor issues which he has seen fit to bring into his campaign, and swung at once to the vital issues which confront the people, and for which the people must pay the bill in one form or another.

"The most vital issue before the people of London today, and for that matter for the past number of years, is that of street transportation. In his inaugural address for election as mayor of this city, Wenige said that he was high time the London Street Railway was brought to time; that things had reached a pass where the situation could no longer be handled with gentleness and that provided the citizens elected him as mayor, Mr. Wenige would bring the defaulting railway to the point where it would fulfill its obligations to the city."

"What has he done in effecting this? Nothing! Quite the reverse. He has stated in the past year, not once but repeatedly, that if the city is to get anywhere with the London Street Railway the civic authorities must co-operate with the railway and help them finance the balance of the year's operating expenses."

"This is Mayor Wenige's idea of bringing the railway to time. As far as the company is concerned it is a pleasant way to be disciplined, but it is expensive from the taxpayer's viewpoint."

"Perhaps," he added, with a humorous turn, "it is otherwise serious address, 'this is what the mayor means by co-operation.'"

That Ballot.

In the matter of the purchase of the street railway, Alderman Anderson stated, without mincing matters, that the attitude of the council and of himself was best shown by the council's negative vote when the mayor introduced his proposed ballot for the purchase of the railway.

"In either case the railway stood to gain everything, while the city at the best could acquire a dilapidated railway bolstered up with a few second-hand cars from Cleveland. The other alternative of the loaded ballot gave the company a constant lease of London's transportation profits for a period of fifteen years."

The age-old matter of estimates came up for another breath when Alderman Anderson reiterated his charge that the budget had been manipulated, if not actually padded. As an instance of this he cited the matter of advertising.

"When last year's budget was being 'pruned' to its last extremity, someone asked the mayor in council if the sum of three thousand dollars for publicity were an actual necessity. 'The mayor replied: 'No. Cut it off.'"

"In spite of this pretended economy on the mayor's part, the fact stands out that in this particular item, the year's disbursements already show an expenditure of over two thousand dollars."

Where Urgency Calls.

At the close of his address, Alderman Anderson answered a question on the matter of obtaining funds without a vote of the people, by stating that in general terms he was opposed to such a practice, especially where sums exceeded the set figure of $25,000, but that if he thought the act could be justified by the need of urgent action, and would probably show a benefit to the city at large, he would sponsor it.

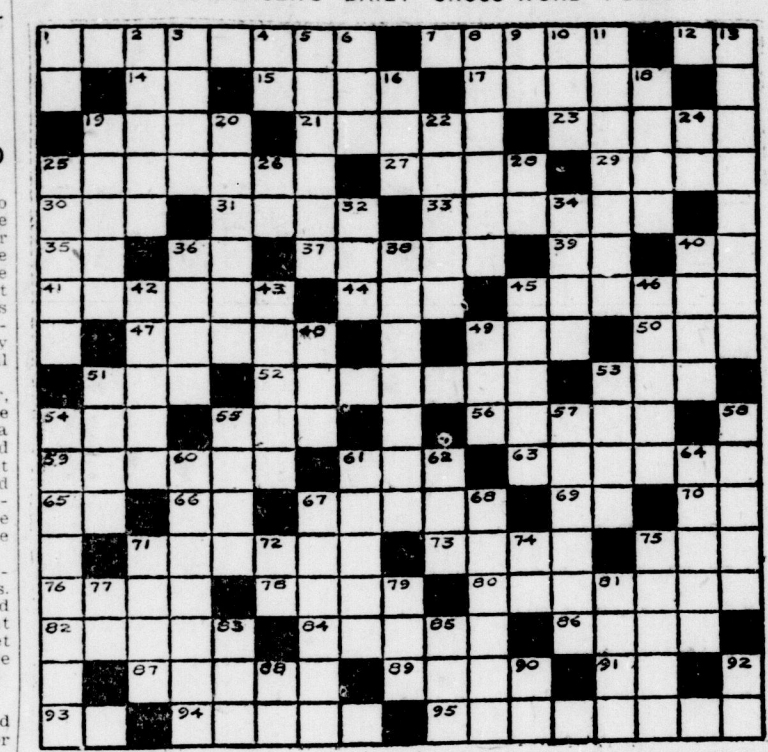

In rebuttal to Alderman Anderson's address, Mayor Wenige refuted the statement that there was discord on the council, and said the great amount of work accomplished by himself and his colleagues stood as a monument to the constructive spirit of the council, which, rather than discord, had featured the 1924 council meetings.

Replying to Ald. Anderson's reference to the street railway question, the mayor said simply that he had followed the instructions of the council.

TINY FISH TUGS BATTLE

HEAVY BREAKERS AT PORT

With the wind blowing at a terrific rate and the breakers rolling high, the tiny tugs experienced difficulty in gaining Port Stanley harbor last night.

About 6:30 the fishermen sighted the Bessemer the Second, the Pere Marquette steamer which brinks coal to the port, hugging the Canadian shore not more than 50 yards from the land.

The boat had been despatched to Port Burwell on account of the registration of the Canadian ship, and had remained close to the shore to avoid the waves.

All the lights on the ship were burning as she neared the harbor, because of the danger of colliding with one of the small fish tugs.

ANDERSON SPEAKS TO CARSHOPS MEN

Alderman Denounces Wenige's Stand on Street Railway Question.

MAYOR HEARD TWICE

Alderman John Anderson visited the C. N. R. carshops today and explained his platform for the mayor's stand on the street railway question. The alderman, who was well received and was listened to attentively, in a general outline of his reasons for standing as a candidate, stressed especially the mayor's stand, or as he put it, "lack of stand," on the London street railway question.

He denounced various statements made by the mayor on this question from time to time in the last two years. He referred to the fact that the mayor had supported the five-cent fare as late as this summer when he ground that it would help unemployment by allowing the company to pay higher wages to their employees, and to the loaded ballot which he had introduced into the council for presentation to the people for a vote in this election.

"It is absolutely essential," he said, "under the circumstances now surrounding the transportation question in our city that we should have a united council standing four square for public ownership, headed by a mayor who has never equivocated on the matter. This is the most important matter facing the city council, and it is to your best advantage to have men in control of the affairs of the city who are absolutely sure of their ground."

Attitude Known. "You know my attitude. I would neither buy the railway nor extend its franchise on the company's own terms, which is what the 'loaded' ballot meant. "Moreover, I do not believe that any concession should be made to the company which would give it the right to extend its franchise on the company's own terms, which is what the 'loaded' ballot meant. "Moreover, I do not believe that any concession should be made to the company which would give it the right to extend its franchise on the company's own terms, which is what the 'loaded' ballot meant."

Several times Alderman Anderson was interrupted by hecklers, and after he had finished speaking he remained for half an hour and one heckler stated that five times this year fires had occurred with varying loss of property owing to the lack of water mains in the east end. He was told that this was a matter for the public utilities, and that it was only a matter of local arrangement with the P. U. C. as to payment for the installation.

Mayor Speaks Twice. Mayor Wenige, during the noon hour today, delivered two campaign speeches at the McCormick plant in London East. His address was identical in that they reviewed a long chain of completed jobs which the mayor claims to have promised the city and which he also claims were finished owing to his energy and aggressiveness. In speaking of the work of the city council during the year, he reiterated his statement that he has never "bull-dozed" the council, nor has he been a dictator. He also stated that it was impossible under the civic constitution.

He pointed out an opportunity which he offered to the council, and which he claimed was impossible under the civic constitution. He pointed out an opportunity which he offered to the council, and which he claimed was impossible under the civic constitution. He pointed out an opportunity which he offered to the council, and which he claimed was impossible under the civic constitution.

As at last night's meeting at Lorne avenue school, the mayor had a little to say in store for the press, and stated that he had no use for any local paper; that he had been repeatedly misquoted by the press, and that on one occasion had the London Advertiser reported his meetings fairly or fully.

Obituaries. Mrs. Jemima Pannell, widow of Oliver Pannell, died at the family residence, 130 Sydenham street, Dec. 2, who was in her 80th year, had been a resident of this city for over 40 years, coming here from England. She was a member of Talbot street Baptist church. Mrs. Pannell is survived by three daughters and two sons. Her funeral services will be conducted on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 by Rev. Bowley Green, D.D., with interment at Woodland cemetery.

KEEPER OF HOUSE FINED, BUT WIFE IS DISMISSED. Charles Kennedy, arrested a week ago on a charge of being a keeper of a house of ill fame, and remanded at that time until today, paid a fine of $50 and costs in court this morning after pleading guilty to the charge. His wife, Mary Kennedy, who pleaded guilty to the same charge, was dismissed.

HE VOTED ALONE

Wenige is talking about 267 questions of routine business when he voted with Anderson—but says nothing about that loaded street railway ballot—Anderson fought him to a finish and won.

Mayor Wenige is boasting these days that "Anderson voted with me on 267 questions." It would be more accurate to say "I voted with Anderson on 267 questions." And neither boast would mean very much because the questions to which Mr. Wenige refers are chiefly bylaws on local improvements, appointments of clerks, naming of deputations and scores of similar little routine business on which a vote was merely matter of form.

If Wenige had counted more carefully he could find not merely 267 such votes in the year's minutes, but over 350. But they are pretty poor material for an election appeal.

The mayor should also explain, by the way, that he is the last person in the council to record his vote, and half the time on such questions he does not bother voting at all. Alderman Anderson has been the second member of the council to be called by the clerk all year and Mayor Wenige the last. It would, therefore, be more accurate if it really mattered to say "Wenige voted with Anderson" than to boast: "Anderson voted with me on 267 questions." It looks as though the mayor is pretty hard pressed to find campaign arguments.

BUT THERE ARE OTHER QUESTIONS—! There were some occasions, however, which Mr. Wenige has skipped over in his perusal of the council minutes.

Anderson opposed the mayor on the appointment of a full-time police magistrate at the additional cost of $1,000. A full-time magistrate was not appointed.

Anderson opposed the mayor when Anderson moved to have the gratuity to ex-Licence Inspector McCallum reconsidered. In this vote Anderson lost, and no gratuity to an official who had served the city for over a score of years was forthcoming.

When the mayor wanted to present another bylaw to the people for the erection of a $150,000 dam at Springbank, Anderson helped to vote it down.

AND— Oh, yes, and— THAT STREET RAILWAY MATTER.

That is not one of the 267 questions. Indeed not. It is, in fact, the troublesome question which the mayor is trying to dodge and soft-pedal.

WENIGE TRIED TO BETRAY THE CITY ON THE STREET RAILWAY VOTE, AND HE KNOWS IT. He also knows that it was Anderson who led the fight of the twelve aldermen against Wenige's attempt.

Wenige wanted to send a ballot to the people giving them a choice between: 1.—Buy at the company's price of $1,295,000. 2.—Give the company a new long-term franchise.

Those were the two things the company most wanted. There was nothing there about "forcing the company to keep its agreement." It was a hold-up—a loaded ballot.

WENIGE URGED THAT IT BE PASSED. Anderson opposed it. Wenige shouted: "That's out of order." But Anderson persisted and so did the other eleven aldermen.

And they beat Wenige. WENIGE VOTED ALONE FOR THE RAILWAY COMPANY'S LOADED BALLOT.

Wenige voted alone to pay the company their own price, or give them a new franchise.

WHY DOESN'T HE EXPLAIN? WHY DOESN'T WENIGE TALK ABOUT THE STREET RAILWAY?

MAJORITY FAVOR PRESENT CHURCH. Result of Vote in St. George's Presbyterian Church Is Announced. That 90 per cent of the members of St. George's Presbyterian association are opposed to church union was demonstrated at a meeting in St. George's Presbyterian church last night. Reports from the four districts showed majority in favor of the continuance of the Presbyterian church.

Mrs. Stanley Grosvenor, who was a delegate at the Presbyterian league convention held recently in Toronto, gave her report from that convention, where Mr. Thorburn of Ottawa and Dr. MacGillivray of Orillia were the main speakers. She said that there were delegates from Toronto, Kitchener, Hamilton, and London, the last sending twelve delegates. There were also representatives from Calgary and Lethbridge in the west, and St. John's, N. B., in the east.

During Mrs. Thorburn's address she asked the question, "What can we as Presbyterian women do to help maintain the Presbyterian church?" Her answer was: "There is nothing but what we can do." Mrs. Thorburn also said that women were successful in other organizations, and stated that they can be just as successful in helping to save the church of their fathers.

"It is a fact that over half of the membership of the Presbyterian church is composed of women, and yet the assembly were not going to consult the women of the church on this great issue," she said. An example was given by Mrs. Grosvenor, "If Ottawa wanted to merge Canada with the United States would we, as local Canadians, sit back and say, 'If Ottawa think it is right, then it is right?' No. We would assert ourselves, and say we have something to say on such an issue." Then the women are not going to sit back and let the assembly say what is right without the voice of the women being heard.

This question of union is a movement of preachers, high court officials, and not a few over-zealous professors, and they are only, after all, the servants of the church, and must serve with their loyalty by placing before the people of the church this issue and let them decide it."

GOING TO LIFE MUST BE EARNED

Normal Students Hear Inspiring Address From J. L. Paton, M.A.

In his address to the students at the London Normal school this afternoon John Lewis Paton, M.A., well-known English educationalist, spoke on "The Widening Circles of Education."

Mr. Paton declared that in securing an education a boy or girl should have three prime objects in mind. The first to make a livelihood; the second to make life worth living for himself and the third to make life worth living for others.

Elaborating on these three points, Mr. Paton pointed out that each and all must earn their footing in the world. Through education life may be enriched by those things that are really human. In urging the students to utilize their education in making others happy and improving their conditions of living, Mr. Paton held up the example of the British empire, which had grown to its present size and power today simply because of having given of its best for others throughout the entire period of its history.

Mr. Paton touched upon the study of art, music and literature, the so-called frills of the education system, and strongly urged that they be retained and their scope enlarged. Such subjects tend to expand and enrich the curriculum and make for contentment in life.

In closing, Mr. Paton made the observation that Canada is working very largely under the same conditions as England with regard to education.

Principal William Prendergast bespoke the thanks of the students to Mr. Paton for his very helpful and inspiring address.

Later in the afternoon Mr. Paton spoke to the pupils of the south collegiate and the Victoria public schools in the auditorium of the latter school. This evening he addressed a public meeting in the auditorium of the central collegiate university, in which representatives of the local branch of the National Council of Education, London Teachers' Institute, Canadian Club and University of Western Ontario.

Tomorrow Mr. Paton will visit the university and address the students there.

to withhold further action in Egypt to allow the new cabinet there time to reconsider the British demands, only part of which the Zagloul ministry agreed to, and to communicate officially with London regarding them. It was stated in official circles today that Great Britain has hopes the cabinet of Great Britain will be able to see its way to agree to the demands, in which case the British government will consider the incident of the sirdar's assassination closed, so far as the diplomatic relations of Great Britain and Egypt are concerned.

DIFFER ON LEAGUE. Associated Press Despatch. London, Nov. 25.—The contention by some foreign newspapers and publicists that the Egyptian trouble ought to be referred to the league of nations is received with considerable impatience in those quarters where the Egyptian government is active. It was stated in official circles today that the British government is acting on the basis of the Egyptian government's action following the assassination of the sirdar.

The Times, while holding that "no great good can be expected to result from the Egyptian government's action following the assassination of the sirdar," strongly maintains that the British government is acting on the basis of the Egyptian government's action following the assassination of the sirdar.

It further makes the point that "the declaration of Egyptian independence was explicitly limited from the first by a sort of Monroe doctrine, safeguarding special British interests, such as that which safeguards American interests in Cuba."

The Daily Telegraph remarks that if the new Egyptian government is to be operative and ratified by Great Britain, the problem would have been different and the question of indemnity would have been the subject of compulsory arbitration.

"Indeed," it adds, "if carried to its logical conclusion in practice, the protocol would have infringed the Monroe doctrine, permitting the use of weapons of war by the Egyptian government in the conduct of its foreign policy."

Two chief points are the combining of the offices of the inspector and secretary under the head of senior for inspector-administrator, and the reduction of the number of members on the board from 14 to 6.

Little trouble is anticipated in securing permission to effect the first named change, which would result in the appointment of V. K. Greer to the position.

The delegation of the board will include Trustee Dr. Alfred J. Grant, chairman pro-tem of the special committee to bring into effect the actions of the board in the matter, Chairman Bryden N. Campbell and Trustee E. F. Lawson.

RAIN IS NEEDED. C. C. Henry, warden of Middlesex told The Advertiser this morning that less plowing had been done in the county this fall than any fall for a long time, owing to the lack of rain and the exceeding dryness of the land. He said that unless there was still plowing weather it would make things very difficult for the farmer with much plowing to do.

CANADA-WEST INDIES LINK HAILED BY C. N. PRESIDENT

Thornton Claims Pact Would Make Dominion as Self-Contained as U. S.

BOOSTS FLEET

Canadian Newspapers Lauded For Aid Given Canadian National Railways.

Special to The Advertiser. Charlottetown, P. E. I., Nov. 24.—The need for Canada to establish closer trade relations with the West Indies and promise of the Canadian National railways to support the fullest measure of its ability any such trade program and a tribute to the newspapers of Canada for the support they have accorded him personally and officially since he accepted the presidency of the company, were the outstanding features of an address delivered tonight before the board of trade of Charlottetown by Sir Henry W. Thornton, president of the Canadian National railway system.

"I should like to see a fleet of fast vessels carrying the Canadian West Indies trade," said Sir Henry. "and we propose to be second to none in doing all we can to further such trade."

"One of the advantages I have heard attributed to the United States is that they form a self-contained nation. They produce both the products of the north and of the tropics. We in Canada, adjacent to the United States, can produce everything produced in the northern part of the United States, but we are lacking in making ourselves self-contained. We lack tropical products, but Canada and the West Indies properly united by transportation facilities can make themselves as self-contained as the United States. It is our purpose to increase our facilities, and as Canadians to work in closer co-operation with our sister dominions in the West Indies."

Reference having been made to the value of the newspapers to Canada by S. A. MacDonald, president of the board of trade, during his speech introducing Sir Henry to the gathering, the president of the C. N. R. took advantage of the opportunity so afforded to express his appreciation of the service the press of the dominion had rendered the company and himself during his tenure of office.

"I should like to take advantage of this opportunity," said Sir Henry, "to say something I have wanted to say for a long time, and that is to offer my heartfelt thanks to the press of Canada for the kindly way they have received me personally and officially. At the same time I want to thank them for the splendid, honest and unprejudiced support and from time to time their valuable constructive criticism."

TWO WARD MEETINGS PLANNED FOR TONIGHT. Two ward meetings will be held tonight for the discussion of election issues in the present campaign. At Ealing school voters of the Hamilton road district will gather at 7:30 o'clock to hear the arguments of mayoralty, board of education and aldermanic candidates. At 8:30 o'clock a meeting of citizens living near Boyle Memorial school will be held.

VAGRANT GIVEN LIBERTY THOUGH TALES CONFLICTED. Joseph Richardson, arrested last night on a charge of vagrancy, appeared before Magistrate Graydon in police court this morning. He gave Stradford as his home and stated that if the magistrate would let him go he would leave the city at once.

Chief Birrell told his worship that Richardson had given conflicting stories as to his address to the police. The man was allowed to go, however, providing he would leave London.

INSPECTS CORPS. Col. Morehen of the Salvation Army, Toronto, left London today for Strathroy. Following an inspection of the corps there he will go to Petrolia tomorrow and Sarnia on Thursday. On Friday Col. Morehen will be in Windsor for the annual demonstration to be given by the young people of the division. He will return to Toronto on Tuesday.

CASE AGAINST YOUTHS DROPPED

Crown Unable To Prove the Defendants Owned Keg of Cider.

Claiming that their appearance in police court this morning was a frame-up, William Howlett, 220 Richmond street, and John Leigh, 5 Victoria street, were dismissed by Magistrate Graydon after the crown's evidence failed to prove ownership of liquor which they were alleged to have had in their possession.

Both young men stated that they had heard a barrel of potent apple cider was reposing on the roadside of north Adelaide street. They told Charles Yeoman their secret, they said, and he volunteered to take them out.

Meanwhile, according to the police, Yeoman informed License Inspector Walter Bolton that the young men intended going after the cider, and that they were looking for a motor car. The license inspector offered his own automobile for the job and appointed Yeoman driver.

Howlett and Leigh stated in court that they were under the impression they were aiding Yeoman to secure the cider for himself.

Police stated that they were arrested at the corner of Talbot and Dundas streets last night by Police Sergeant Middaugh and License Inspector Walter Bolton.

Counsel for the defendants stated that no evidence had been submitted to show that the cider belonged to either Howlett or Leigh, and that as it was taken into the city in the license inspector's motor it belonged to him.

CARS "COAST" ACROSS STREET INTERSECTION. A break in the trolley wire at the diamond of the Richmond and Dundas streets intersection of the London street railway caused slight inconvenience to several lineamen of the company. A heavy rain resulted in speedy emergency repairs, and service was scarcely impaired. Before repairs were completed street cars forged their way across the intersection with trolley poles drawn down, the cars "coasting" across the corner after short sprints.

PATON MARVELS AT TECH. SCHOOL

Noted English Educationalist Is Shown Institution This Morning.

REAL EFFICIENCY

The hour spent at the Technical high school this morning by John Lewis Paton, M.A., Manchester, England, repaid in some measure the debt the city owes him for the many masterful and inspiring addresses he has delivered since arriving in the city yesterday morning, and will deliver his departure tomorrow evening.

Mr. Paton's own words as he was being shown about the building by Principal H. B. Beal indicated the deep impression the Tech school made upon him.

"I'm being so rapidly fed," he said, "that I don't know whether I can digest it all or not. The visitor was visibly impressed with the school as "a marvel of efficiency, economy and service."

Principal Beal sketched the school's meteoric history during the past ten years until it has a day enrollment of over 800 students and carries on night class work in 50 courses with an ever larger enrollment of boys and girls and men and women.

Methods Impress. Mr. Paton was greatly interested in the methods adopted in dealing with the boys and girls of the adolescent age, and to 16 years, and commented favorably upon the part-time system in operation at the Tech.

He expressed satisfaction upon being informed that the Technical school had greatly increased the full-time attendance of adolescents at the day school. Such, it was pointed out by Principal Beal, was the original intention of the adolescent act.

Principal Beal outlined the alternative courses offered the different classes of students admitted to the school, all of which drew from Mr. Paton comments as to their comprehensiveness and practicality.

Mr. Paton spoke in terms of the highest praise of the system followed by the technical school authorities from the time connection is first established with the students in assisting them to choose an educational course, and after they have secured a position through the efforts of the authorities. The system of maintaining the personal touch with all graduates in order to learn what comments concerning them, their employers have and also what opinion the graduates form themselves of what particular benefit they secured at the Tech school or what they did not get which they believed they should have received, was declared by Mr. Paton to be absolutely unique in all his experience as an educationalist.

Interest Maintained. Mr. Paton remarked upon the fact that the boys and girls maintained their interest in their work despite the disturbance of a party of visitors passing through the room.

He was delighted with the suite of rooms for instruction in house-keeping, and in fact, this was one of the features of the school which impressed him most.

The miniature rooms used in the electric wiring department also drew from Mr. Paton their need of training as being "exceptionally well devised."

POSTAL DEPT. ADVISES ON MONEY ORDERS ABROAD. To insure the delivery of money orders in Great Britain and points abroad before Christmas, they must be mailed within the next two weeks, is the advice received by Postmaster T. Duncan from the postal department, Ottawa.

Unless the advice of the orders reach the exchange offices in time for despatch for Christmas mail, payment of the orders will not be made before Christmas, says the communication.

POST PARCELS EARLY. URGES MAIL OFFICIALS. The big Christmas rush has not started in postal circles yet, but the postal office department is trying to ease the situation which is almost upon it by distributing posters pleading for the co-operation of the public.

"The earlier you mail them the better chance your parcels have of reaching your friends and relatives before Christmas," says one poster. Another suggests careful wrapping so that the parcels will go through the strain of Christmas conditions and arrive in good order.

SINCLAIR WILL DEMAND DEALS BE FULLY SIFTED

Leader of Provincial Party Seeks Purification of Public Life in Ontario—Wants To Know Where Money From Transaction in 1919 Has Gone.

URGE INVESTIGATION OF SETTLE CHARGES

Toronto, Nov. 24.—Ontario Liberals, in session here today, decided to demand in the Ontario legislature an investigation into bond deals by the government previous to the advent of the Drury government.

They also demanded the publication of all the charges made by Clarence Settle in his letter against the Ontario hydro administration, and further, decided to ask for a full and complete investigation of such charges.

Both points were elaborated tonight by W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader in the legislature, at a dinner he tendered the newly-formed Liberal leader's advisory committee. This committee was organized at a meeting in the afternoon, with Dr. J. H. Cascarden of Toronto as chairman.

The meeting also advised the Liberal members to press for a separate cabinet member as minister of education instead of the portfolio being held by the premier.

The Settle Charges.
With Mr. Sinclair at the banquet tonight was Hon. H. B. McGivern, M.P., of Ottawa, minister without portfolio, who spoke of federal matters. Mr. Sinclair explained that the new advisory committee was in no way an opposition to the Ontario reform association.

He said that the Settle letter, charging the hydro with offences, seemed to have become the property of a government instead of the people for whom it was intended. "The people all the facts of these charges and to have a full investigation into them," said Mr. Sinclair, adding that the Liberals would take a determined stand on the matter in the house. He also declared that from now on the Liberal opposition would be much to the fore.

"We have also the matter of the purification of public life to occupy our attention," said the Liberal leader. "Recent happenings have caused a decided uneasiness among the people, and we cannot forget that in 1919 we had a $4,000,000 bond transaction and that there was a commission paid to someone unknown. That was before the Hearst government left office, and the sum was $37,000. The money went somewhere, but there has been no evidence as to where or to whom it went. It is the duty of the Liberal to demand that such evidence be produced."

Fill All Ridings.

Mr. Sinclair said that of 111 ridings in Ontario that the forces opposing the Conservatives had more votes than the Conservatives in 59 of them. If these votes had gone to one man in each riding the Conservatives would have made a majority of seven in the house. The lesson to be learned, he said, was the failure of third parties. He repeated his statements of previous addresses that the Liberal party must not get entangled with any other party and that it should never make an alliance with another party. If Liberalism did its duty the necessity for a third party would be done away with. "In the next provincial election there will be a Liberal candidate in every riding and there will also be a Liberal candidate in any by-elections in the meantime," said the Liberal leader, who in conclusion appealed for the united support of all the Liberals in the province.

Hon. Mr. McGivern said that he had always been a follower of the greatest Canadian—Laurier, and that today he was following a great leader, Mr. King. He said Mr. King had made a tremendous impression overseas. He criticized the unionist Tories for not taxing the profiteers in the war, and for allowing him to buy up tax free bonds so that he could not be taxed even now. "We are weighed down with a debt today that we are proud to pay as far as the war is concerned, but we are not proud for letting the men get profits who were not entitled to them," said Mr. McGivern.

Federal Surplus.

Mr. McGivern said that last year the government had a surplus of $35,000,000 and that it had reduced taxation by $24,000,000. He pointed to the Canadian dollar at par in foreign countries, and the fact that Canada was getting money at less interest than before, as proof of her good standing. He said the government had reduced the tariff on the implements of production based on the four basic industries, farming, mining, lumbering and fishing. "High protection is high taxation," said Mr. McGivern, and in conclusion he said that the King administration was bringing back the prosperity that had marked the regime of the last Liberal government under Laurier.

Other speakers were Senator Andrew Haydon, Wellington, Ont., former Liberal leader in Ontario, Mrs. A. H. Beaton of Toronto, and Mrs. H. H. Carpenter of Hamilton, former president of the Ontario Women's Liberal Association. The executive of the women's association also met today and heard addresses by Mr. Sinclair, Nelson Parliament and Mr. McGivern.

HAPPINESS REIGNS IN BRITISH PICTURE

Betty Balfour Triumphs in Comedy at the Grand.

"Love, Life and Laughter," the feature presentation at the Grand theatre this week, is a new British film which deliberately throws down the gauntlet to California. It challenges comparison with the best work of the American studios and in the title role, Betty Balfour achieves a personal triumph.

The picture is not marred by poor photography, dimly-lighted scenes and lack of action, characteristic of many British productions. It is American in the artistic sense and yet it bears an appealing English atmosphere.

In "Love, Life and Laughter," Betty Balfour has a radiant role as a little London chorus girl in a romantic comedy and with her whimsical air and weak of carriage won the sympathy, smiles and tears of yesterday's audience. She captures by her clever comedy and sympathetic interpretation of human feelings.

The picture itself is a dream of real life, and it bears the message "Live and be happy for the world is one of laughter as well as tears." Laughter and tears, success and fail-

ELECTORS TO VOTE ON 15-YEAR EXTENSION OF STREET RAILWAY FRANCHISE OR BUYING ROAD

Finance Committee Sets Purchase Price At $1,295,000.
"Plus the Cost of 1924 Improvements."

"Are you in favor of the purchase of the London Street Railway at $1,295,000, plus the cost of improvements made this year?"

"Are you in favor of extending the franchise for a period of not more than 15 years with the right to purchase by arbitration at the end of any one year?"

These are the two, and the only, questions which the ratepayers of London will be asked to vote on in reference to the transportation problem this year, if the recommendation made by No. 1 committee last night is accepted by the council on Monday night next. Mayor Wenig suggested that a third question, asking for an expression of opinion as to purchase under arbitration, should be submitted, but the committee decided against that.

BEFORE TO DEMAND SHOWDOWN ON STREET RAILROAD

Understood That Company Has Refused To Pave Its Right-of-Way.

MAYOR URGES TEST
CASE THROUGH COURT

Special Meeting of Transportation Committee Tonight
To Discuss Issue.

The first definite steps towards a showdown with the London Street Railway Company will be taken tonight at the meeting of the transportation committee. Mayor Wenig stated. A hurried call has been sent out to the members of this committee, and his not be a lengthy discussion, there is certain to be "something doing."

According to authentic reports, the London Street Railway Company has refused to comply with the request of City Engineer Near to pave certain streets. It is understood that this is the reason for the calling of the transportation committee together tonight. The mayor believes that it is now time to bring the question to a head to determine definitely the position of the city with reference to the company and bylaw 916.

"The only question is whether the company has a franchise now or not," his worship declared. "I maintain that it has broken the regulations of the bylaw so often that it can no longer claim to hold a franchise. IF THAT IS SO, THE ONE THING TO DO IS TO ORDER THE COMPANY OFF THE STREETS AT ONCE. I think there are enough members in the council who take the same view to take this case to the courts."

AFTER

At the transportation committee meeting the mayor took the attitude as outlined in his interview given alongside. And the committee stood by him. But when the report of that meeting came to the council for consideration, just four days later, the mayor amended the report to give the company ten years in which to pay for the paving. That was done after Pres. Currie of the L. S. R. addressed the meeting. Following is an extract from the council minutes of 1923, giving an account of what happened:

"His worship the mayor states that the solicitor was of the opinion that the council had not the power to pave track allowances under the local improvement act, nor by advancing money to be repaid in instalments, nor to make any agreement except as provided under bylaw 916.

"His worship the mayor amended the second report of the special transportation committee by adding the words, 'Richmond street north, Adelaide street, Oxford street, Horton street, Hamilton road, Oxford street west and Central avenue,' after the word Stanley street in line two and in line four, and by adding the words, 'and the city solicitor instructed to prepare an agreement providing for

"THE PAYMENT OF THE COSTS OF CONSTRUCTION OF TRACK ALLOWANCE IN TEN ANNUAL PAYMENTS."

"The report, as amended, is then adopted."

Ald. Anderson did not weaken toward the London Street Railway Company as the time of expiration of the franchise approached.

He favors public ownership, but not at the expense of the first principles of business.

He has opposed the suggestion of any concession to the London Street Railway Company.

He took the sound position that since the street railway entered into an agreement with the city it must be made to abide by it.

The suggestion of yielding a permanent five-cent fare to the London Street Railway without a struggle did NOT come from Anderson. On the other hand, he DID suggest cancellation of the franchise as a means of bringing about purchase negotiations favorable to the city.

Anderson opposed the sending of a LOADED BALLOT on the street railway question to the people. He would neither buy the road nor extend its franchise on the company's own terms.

In council, Anderson voted AGAINST submitting either clause of the loaded ballot to the ratepayers.

Anderson can be trusted to work in the interests of the people and not the street railway when the time for action comes next March. There is only dead silence from the Mayor on the street railway issue, the one big issue of the campaign.

In the negotiations with the street railway next year, Anderson will be true to his trust.

BRITAIN TO ADOPT PREFERENCE PLAN

Lt.-Col. Amery Promises Tariff Promises Will Be Carried Out.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Nov. 24.—Lieutenant-

Colonel L. C. Amery, colonial secretary, speaking at a luncheon of the Empire producers here today, announced that the Baldwin government would carry out the preference plan adopted by the imperial economic conference of 1923, and he hinted at their being possible opportunities within the general fiscal system of Great Britain for giving further extensions of the preferences.

The colonial secretary added that the government would also aim at clearing the channels of empire trade which were choked with various prejudices against imperial preferences. Touching on the subject of emigration the colonial secretary said: "In carrying out the emigration work of our predecessors we certainly shall endeavor not to fall behind them but on the contrary to develop in co-operation with the dominions. If we could combine the policies of the different governments in the empire towards a common ideal of mutual development I see no reason why we should not develop as rapidly as the United States, or even faster. If we stop thinking about ourselves as the old country we shall set about our task in a wholly different spirit, with a vigor and strength which no difficulties can withstand."

SPLENDID ACTING IN 'JUST MARRIED'

Roaring Comedy at Majestic Draws Large and Appreciative Audience.

"Just Married," the farce comedy success by Adelaide Matthews and Anne Nichols, was chosen by the Majestic Stock Company for its initial appearance in the Majestic Theatre last night. The new company was greeted by an audience which showered real appreciation upon the members.

It was but natural that the first night should be a happy one for those before and behind the footlights.

"Just Married" is a genuinely funny farce. One could scarcely expect otherwise from the pen of the creator of "Able's Irish Rose," and then there were the players themselves. We had heard about them and read about them. When they stepped upon the stage it was apparent that they were equal to the vehicle they had chosen for their first and it is to be hoped many weeks in London.

Then, too, the Majestic has been redecorated, transformed into a new theatre for the comfort of the patrons, which proves that the new company knows the full meaning of service. And service greeted service yesterday, for huzzah from the boxes were the emblems of the word—Rotary, Kiwanis and Chamber of Commerce.

Mayor Venize, in a brief address, welcomed the players to London. During the intermission, Forest Cummings, director, introduced the members of the cast. It was a breezy introduction and the more happy because the many gifts of beautiful flowers showered upon the players brought the realization that London wanted to be friends.

Every Line Funny.

And the play, well "Just Married" is an intriguing title. The authors just started one blissful couple off on a honeymoon, a wedding trip that was to take them from France to America. It starts with smiles and chuckles, which turn to laughs and more laughs. There is much hilarity in "Just Married," for every line is downright funny.

It's exciting, too, for the bride is so happy and so talkative. The groom is so attentive, and their little tiffs are so real that one knows that experience has been called upon to furnish a lot of material.

An inebriated gentleman, who cannot bear the thought of seeing a lady in distress, is the cause of the near tragedy aboard the honeymoon ship. He quite innocently turns the comedy into a bedroom, or rather a state-room farce. He quickly becomes the storm center of lovers' quarrels and the cynical remarks of a couple who have been married long enough to become sentimental about honeymoons and critical about marriage.

Edward Cullen plays the part of Robert Adams, the handsome and intoxicated young man, who forms all the entangling alliances. He played his part well. He was the perfect gentleman, gallant, restrained, ever ready to help a friend out of the difficulties for which he was responsible.

Miss Peggy Coudray as Roberta Adams played a thoroughly lovable character. She is possessed of a likeable personality, which together with her histrionic ability give her much power for her role.

Miss Nelly Neil takes the part of the bride, a young slip of a girl just happy, jocosely happy, and so anxious to keep her secrets and at the same time tell them.

Plays the Henpeck.

Malcolm Arthur and Miss Rita Davis were Mr. and Mrs. U. Makepeace Whittier, who had been married for twenty years and knew something of wedded bliss. The husband plays the part of the traditional "Henpeck" to the enjoyment of all. His lines are clever and he is equal to them. His wife, the striking, exacting and thoroughly dominating influence in her husband's wedded life, gives a splendid interpretation of the role.

Lyle Clement as Percy Jones is good. He has an easy almost careless way of treating his work. His role is that of the type of man who has no difficulty in making friends with the girls. His acting portrays that easy assurance such men possess.

Mary Richards is a member of the cast who will bear watching in future productions. Miss Richards made a lot of friends last night. She played a difficult part, that of the girl who had given her affection to a man who did give her more than a passing thought. Hers was a role that commanded training and was well done.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Walker, George Henry and Miss Hazel Allen hadn't much to say but they got a laugh every time they stepped briskly across the stage. Matt McHugh, E. M. Johnstone, Gordon Anderson, Forest H. Cummings and Walter Sherwood complete a strong cast.

BEER BY THE GLASS URGED BY BINGHAM

Saskatchewan M. P. Declares Concession Must Be Made—Tells of Conditions.

Associated Press Despatch.
Regina, Nov. 25.—The sale of beer by the glass was advocated by Sydney Bingham, opposition member for Wilkie, Sask., and D. J. Sykes, government member for Swift Current, during the debate on the speech from the throne in the Saskatchewan Legislature yesterday.

Mr. Sykes declared he had carefully investigated conditions in Alberta and Manitoba for himself and had no hesitation in favoring the Alberta system.

"In the interests of truth," he said, "I should say I did not see a single woman in any of the so-called beer gardens in Alberta," he declared.

Mr. Sykes expressed confidence in the ability of the government to produce a scheme superior to both Alberta and Manitoba systems.

Mr. Bingham said if they were to get a clean, workable scheme, they must make the accessibility of a glass of beer fairly easy.

PUDNEY ORCHESTRA APPEARS AT LOEW'S

London Band Delights Large Audience—"Three Women" Proves Entertaining.

"Three Women," the feature picture showing at Loew's for the first half of this week, is a splendid film and resplendent with picture stars of the first magnitude, including May McAvoy, Marie Prevost and Pauline Frederick.

The story is of a middle-aged widow, who falls in love with a man about town, infatuated with her wealth. Soon he decides that her daughter would be a better match for him, and the mother loses a lover and gains a son. A charming wife does not change his habits, for it is not long before he is in the midst of an affair with another woman. Then the complications begin and are brought to a very satisfactory conclusion.

Leading the vaudeville attractions is Jack Pudney's orchestra with eight splendid numbers. The audience both yesterday afternoon and last night simply would not let the boys leave the stage until they had responded to several choruses, and to say that they made a hit would be putting the fact but mildly. Among the numbers heartily applauded were "Bagdad," "Sally Lou," "Please," "Asleep in the Deep," "At Dawning," "Encores," "Song of India," and "Sweet Little You."

Archie Cunningham's saxophone solo and Art Jones' selection were specially good. Members of the orchestra are Jack Pudney (leader), Lloyd Kibler, Archie Cunningham, Cliffe Thompson, Harold Bentley, Harry Joly, Eddie King, Art Jones and Russell Patten.

Eleanor Frampton, Helen Hewitt and Muriel Walker have a mighty pretty dancing act with special scenery called "Rhythms of Dance Land."

The young ladies are all good dancers and received the excellent reception they deserve.

NATIONAL STATUS IN CANADA CLAIMED

Senator Sir George Foster Speaks Before Colonial Institute.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 25.—In a discussion of "the first links of the empire" by several speakers from the overseas dominions at the colonial institute last night, Senator Sir George Foster of Canada, declared that the dominions had a national status in policy, if not in actuality.

He hoped that the dominions would not make the mistake of asserting their equality of nationhood with Great Britain and that the latter would continue to be the dominant partner until the dominions approximated her population and the burden of her defence.

He said that while Canada had taken a prominent part in demanding separate representation in imperial matters, she had not taken the step to avail herself of it. He urged careful consideration before taking the first step to a single voice in foreign diplomacy.

Lord Selborne, who presided, said he thought the Lloyd George government had launched the idea of separate representation without fully thinking out the possible consequences.

Referring to the inconveniences which might arise if every dominion appointed a minister to Cairo as well as to Washington, Lord Selborne urged the dominion statesmen to realize the implications of the imposition before difficulties arose which even the goodwill of the dominions might be unable to solve.

Cut Jail Terms For Shirts' Sake

Hamilton, Nov. 24.—For the first time in the history of Hamilton's police court, Chinese Sunday gamblers have decided to go to jail rather than pay a fine. Sixteen of them this morning chose fifteen days rather than pay fines. When their counsel, J. D. Sullivan, pictured the city's future with sixteen of its laundries locked up, the terms were cut to ten days.

FRENCH COMMUNISTS PLANNING REVOLUTION

Government Faces Demand for Explanation Why Incidents Are Tolerated.

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, Nov. 25.—Deputy Pierre Taittinger intends to interpellate the government in the chamber of deputies regarding the incidents which marked the march across Paris by "revolutionaries" following the cortege which transferred the ashes of Jean Jaures to the pantheon Sunday.

The deputy announced his intention before the general assembly of the league of patriots yesterday. He declared he and his friends were aware of a plan of mobilization by the Communists, who hoped to launch into the streets of Paris five hundred thousand foreigners, upon whom the revolution depends. The league of patriots, he declared, should line up against these revolutionaries to save France.

The assembly, by acclamation, elected former Premier Millerand as honorary president and General de Castelnau as president in the place of the late Maurice Barres.

SPLENDID CAST IN CHU CHIN CHOW

Betty Blythe and Herbert Langley Are Leaders in Film.

One is almost tempted to say that it has come at last—an English picture comparable with those made in the United States.

"Chu Chin Chow," a Graham Wilcox production playing at the Capitol theatre the first three days of this week, is quite the best English movie yet shown Canadian audiences. It is a wonderful picture as to plot, scenery and staging.

While "Chu Chin Chow" headlines the bill the program includes also an amusing Pat Sullivan comedy, "Felix Strikes It Rich," Camera Rambles, interesting sidelight on the settlements in British Columbia, entitled "Rich and Penniless," a Mermaid comedy, "Wild Game," with Lize Colley in the leading role, and last but not least, something distinctly new in "Plastigrams," superior even to those shown at the Capitol a few weeks ago.

The Capitol orchestra, which has already established a following for itself in this city, played a musical score throughout the feature picture that was as appropriate as it was pleasing.

In sharp contrast to other recent big pictures, "Chu Chin Chow" has two stars of almost equal cleverness. They are Miss Betty Blythe and Herbert Langley. Miss Blythe starred in "The Queen of Sheba," a Fox production, while Langley is a former baritone with the Beecham Opera Company. The two, assuming the roles of Zohrab, the flower of the desert, and Abou Hassan, desert robber chief, alias Prince Constantine, alias Chu Chin Chow, give to the picture many tensely thrilling moments through their fine dramatic acting.

The settings of the picture are decidedly ambitious and particularly so for an English picture. More than ten acres of old Bagdad were constructed for some of the scenes. Several thousand people were kept busy for months on the picture, while over 8,000 people participated in the actual filming of the story.

A striking feature of the picture is the robber's magic treasure cave filled with treasures assembled from all parts of Europe and including jewels of different kinds which formerly belonged to the Tsar of Russia and ex-Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany. "Chu Chin Chow" and the program surrounding it, is well worth seeing, and should not be missed.

Man Informs On Blind Pig; and Finds Himself In Toils

Canadian Press Despatch.

Welland, Nov. 24.—A Welland man who had visited a blind pig in Crossland Saturday and became engaged in a quarrel, later called Chief of Police Crabb of Welland and informed on the place. As the house in question was outside the chief's jurisdiction, and the chief made no move in the matter, the "squealer" went further, and informed the chief that he had a bottle which he had purchased there.

The bottle being produced, the chief escorted the squealer to a cell, and laid two charges against him, having liquor in an illegal place and making an illegal purchase.

Rude Shocks Follow After Men Die

Even those considered "well-to-do" have left their families in such poor circumstances that they cannot properly "carry on."

THE UNIVERSITY PLEBISCITE

On December 1st next the voters of the City of London will be asked to express their opinion on the following question:

Are you in favor of the council continuing the grant of $55,000 to the University of Western Ontario?

The Members of the City Council have year by year unanimously approved of the grant to the University, but some of the members feel that public approval should be asked—whether or not the grant should be continued. Consequently the plebiscite is being submitted this year.

The City Council has been making annual grants to the University since 1908, while during the years 1920-21-22-23-24 the grant has been $55,000 per annum.

Since 1914 the Ontario Government has been making grants toward the maintenance of the University. These grants were conditioned on the local support received. When the City gave $10,000, the Provincial Government gave $25,000; when the City gave $20,000, the Provincial Government gave $60,000. When the City raised their grant to $55,000, the Provincial Government increased to $84,000 and then to $200,000 and has promised to give $250,000 to $300,000 per annum.

The University of Western Ontario is worth far more than $55,000 a year to the City of London. The out-of-town students attending the University during the present academic year will spend about $88,000 in board alone. The University spends the major portion of its entire revenues in the City of London. Many families move to the City to educate their children. It is estimated that the income to the City from the University is a least $500,000 per annum. When the total enrollment reaches 1,000 regular students the University will be worth a million dollars a year to the City of London.

Every citizen who is anxious for the future prosperity of his own city should vote for the University Bylaw.

SHOPPING FOR OTHERS IS FASCINATING BUSINESS

Individual Touch More Satisfactory Than Buying Through Catalogues.

By JULIA HOYT.

A business which has developed greatly, if it has not actually started within the last few years, is that of shopping for other people. It seems to me that this should be quite an amusing work, provided one is physically strong. It could be started on a small scale and might very easily grow to quite a large business, as has one that already exists in New York.

There are many people who do not live in large cities and yet would like to have certain things bought for them there and who would rather trust to the taste of an individual than to a catalogue or to buying from illustrations. I certainly should never advise anyone to buy from illustrations after some of the experiences I have had. Only the other day I went gaily and hopefully into a certain shop, asking for something I had seen enticingly illustrated. The actual article was entirely different.

No Time To Hunt.

In addition to the people who would like to have their shopping done in the large cities, and who do not live there, there are some who have not the time to hunt, and are very glad to pay a small commission to a lady who will do the necessary hunting for them, even if she does not actually do the final buying. She shops until she has tracked down the best of whatever is desired, and the prospective buyer then goes to one or two places to make her choice.

Attractive circulars are rather important to this business as they are to many others, and even if one is going to start on a small scale a certain amount of money must be spent on having them made and sending them out. If one has absolutely no money for initial expenditure and yet this work seems appealing, it should be possible to start it going in a very small way by writing acquaintances, and then, if one proved efficient and pleased the first clients, I believe the business would undoubtedly grow, and it would then be to send out circulars and develop it to the extent one wishes.

Must Be Strong.

As I said at the beginning of the article, it is essential to be strong in order to do this work. We all know there is nothing much more tiring than shopping as it is at times—than shopping. In addition to this requirement, one should also have instinct with regard to the probable taste of clients besides having good taste oneself. Needless to say, the woman doing this work must remember that what might please Jane Smith might not please Ruth Jones, but in my opinion this would be almost the most amusing side. There is nothing as interesting as studying other people, and I can imagine becoming quite excited over mentally picturing the appearance, taste and personality of each correspondent. One would, undoubtedly, improve in this through experience and would also soon learn how successful she had been through the success or failure of the business.

Then, taking it for granted that the business has become larger and that assistants are employed, the head of the business would choose women for specialized buying; in other words, one woman who had taste for clothes might not have taste for furniture, etc.

DRESS By MARY MARSHALL

The Redingote of Directoire and Coachman Fame Serves Now to Inspire. Designers of Women's Clothes.

The picturesque redingote worn by the men of the directoire period in France has curiously remained with us until within comparatively recent years. Not as the coat worn by the generality of men, but as part and parcel of the well-uniformed coachman's livery. Doubtless, here and there, there are still coachmen who wear these selfsame redingotes—for there are still conservative old folk who prefer being drawn by horse-flesh than by gasoline. But this directoire mode is practically extinct.

The tiered cape over the shoulders is one of the most picturesque details of this directoire coat and this was known as the "capot a la Polonoise." These little capes originated as collars, which became longer and fell one over the other to form these little shoulder capes. This was at the time when the waistcoat of men became shorter and shorter until it was provided with two additional flaps—which made it look as if the wearer were wearing three waistcoats. The effect was all the more interesting when the waistcoat was green, with flaps of yellow and mother of pearl. The redingote was double-breasted, of course, with closely fitted sleeves and wide cuffs, and a high upstanding collar at the back, beneath which was a padded neckcloth, over which was wound a muslin cravat. With this was worn the high, postilion hat of the period and this with the caped redingote was for generations the livery of the coachman—picturesque old costume that has no part in this motor age.

The directoire redingote is, however, looked upon with favor by designers as inspiration for present-day women's dress. The three-tiered cape appears on the jackets of some of the newest suits, and Premier is responsible for a redingote that looks as if it might have been worn by Beau Brummel himself. It is of beige cloth with velvet collar and cuffs. It is worn with a high stock collar and the high postilion hat of the period.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

THE EARLY RISER.

In the good old days when house servants were cheap and plentiful, almost every family not in actually straitened circumstances had a maid servant or man servant of some sort whose duty it was to rise by candle or lamp light an hour or two or three before anyone else did, and do a hundred and one little things before the "family" descended for breakfast.

Look over any book of a generation or so ago, giving instructions for the young housewife, and you may see a most illuminating list of what the maid of all work is supposed to do. Just what she ought to do before breakfast offers an appalling list. She not only sweeps the sidewalks before the house, gets the breakfast and sets the table, but she sees that there is a cheery fire burning in the dining-room, and airs the downstairs rooms. If it is wash day she may even get the first tubful of clothes well soaped.

Some maids in days gone by even had certain early matutinal upstairs duties to perform. They rapped lightly on the bedroom doors, entered at the sound of a sleepy "come," closed windows, turned on heat, drew bath water, and sometimes carried up trays of early morning coffee. Now that maids are less easy to get and those that we do get so often sleep home, arriving not until eight or later, we seldom have such service.

There are so many little things that ought to be done in the early morning that it is a shame that in every family there is not some one member who will accomplish such daybreak tasks and thereby be excused from tasks later in the day.

What a pleasure it is in cold weather to have windows closed a half hour before time to arise and to find the radiators turned on and the steam already in the pipes! Winter rising is truly robbed of most of its terrors if some such early riser has been at work.

RED IS POPULAR.

London, Nov. 25.—Red—yes, but not a conflagration. The proper use of this rather trying color was exemplified in a costume seen at the Savoy today, consisting of a two-piece frock of black casha, the upper part of which consisted of dull red embroidered in black ciro braid. The long coat of black had just a touch of red at the pockets and a red lining.

A Tale of Three Women

Woman No. 1—

A few days ago a lady in this city was called on by a transient peddler, who persuaded her to buy a length of cloth for ten dollars. The peddler assured her that this price was extraordinarily low and that only by buying it from him could she obtain such a bargain.

Woman No. 2—

Imagine her surprise and mortification when she discovered that a neighbor had purchased the same amount of the same material from the same peddler for seven dollars.

Woman No. 3—

But the climax came when a mutual friend of theirs, who had admired the cloth, found she could buy a like quantity of the identical goods at a prominent downtown store for five dollars and seventy-five cents.

The transient peddler, no matter how he may argue or how convincing he may seem, cannot undersell the retail merchant. City-to-city, house-to-house selling, besides doing inestimable damage to the business interests of the city visited, employees and the whole community at large, is the most expensive method of merchandising.

The permanent merchants of London, through their modern establishments, offer you protection, assurance of full value for your money, the right of exchange or refund, a large and variable stock to choose from and many important services impossible to the here-today, gone-tomorrow peddler.

Every dollar spent in a London store contributes to the prosperity of the city. Money spent with the transient peddler contributes to nothing but his own success.

For your own good and the welfare of the community, patronize London's Permanent Merchants.

Paddy the Beaver and Mrs. Paddy Complete Their Work On the Dam

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Paddy the Beaver swam behind Mrs. Paddy over to the dam which made the pond in which was their home. They climbed out on the dam. It was a well built dam. The top was quite a bit above the level of the water. The point at which they had climbed out was near one end. Just beyond where they were sitting the dam was a little lower. At this point the water was running from the pond over the dam down to the Laughing Brook below.

"All we have to do is to build the dam higher right there and keep that water from running over," said Mrs. Paddy. "That won't be a very big job. When we get that done the water is held back, the pond will soon get deeper and will spread out and grow bigger. When it gets near enough to those aspen trees we must cut for food so that we can work in safety. We can make a place in the dam for the extra water to run over. Let's go to work right away."

Paddy sighed. He had thought the work on the dam finished for that year. Then, without a word, he plunged into the water and swam over to the shore, where some sticks were lying. He dragged one of these into the water and then swam with it back toward the dam. Mrs. Paddy was right behind him with another stick.

All the rest of the night they worked. They waited no time talking. They cut slender young saplings growing on the shore of the pond and worked these in with the sticks. They brought brushy branches and used these. They dug up mud from along the foot of the dam and used this. They stuffed in grass roots. Slowly the water stopped running over the dam. It trickled through between the sticks and branches, but as more and more grass roots and mud were stuffed in even this was stopped.

Paddy and Mrs. Paddy worked until they were tired out. Then they went to their house and curled up for a nap in their splendid big bedroom. In the morning when they awoke the first thing they did was to swim over to the dam and look it over. The water was already considerably higher in the pond. They swam over to the place where their food trees were growing. The water was nearer to those trees than it had been the night before. They had breakfast there of aspen bark. Then they went back to work on the dam again. It was necessary to get this done as soon as possible, and so they intended to work by day as well as by night.

Once in a while they would stop to rest, but only for a few minutes. Occasionally they swam over to see how much nearer the water was to those trees. Each time they found it a little nearer. That pond was growing deeper and at the same time spreading out and becoming bigger. At last the work on the dam was finished to suit them. There was nothing to do now but to wait for the water to creep near enough to those trees to make it safe for them to resume the cutting of their food supply. While they waited they rested. They took a long sleep, for they had worked hard and were very tired. They needed that rest, for they knew there was a great deal of work to be done before their food supply could be wholly harvested. (Copyright, 1924, by T. W. Burgess.)

WEDDINGS

WAUD-BRENNAN.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season was that held this morning at 8 o'clock in St. Peter's cathedral, when Irene Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brennan of this city, became the bride of Frederick Joseph Waud, son of Mrs. Ellen Waud and the late John Waud of this city. The Rev. Father Stanley, rector of the cathedral, officiated.

Golden mums had been placed on the altar, which formed an attractive background for the bridal party. The bride was charming in a lovely French tulle gown of cinnamon brown, made with pin tucks and trimmed with bands of fur and gold lace. A slip of brown satin extended below the hem of the tulle skirt. A large black hat of panne velvet trimmed with French flowers and gold lace, and a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley completed her costume.

Attending her as bridesmaid was her sister, Miss Corn Freeman, who wore a smart gown of black satin with touches of eury lace. Her hat was of black panne velvet trimmed with gold lace, and her flowers an arm bouquet of American Beauty roses. Mr. Ben Waud of Detroit, brother of the groom, acted as best man. The wedding music was played by Mr. Balogh, organist of the church.

Following the ceremony, a reception and wedding breakfast was held at the home of the bride's parents, Picton street. About thirty guests, immediate relatives of the bridal couple, were present. American Beauty roses and yellow mums were used with pretty effect throughout the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Waud left on the 12:30 train for New York city, the bride travelling in a modish gown of brown satin trimmed with bands of iridescent heads, a soft brown coat with kolinsky trimmings, and a small brown hat with feather mount. She also wore a corsage bouquet of pink roses. On their return the happy couple will reside at 925 Waterloo street.

The groom's gift to the best man was a handsome watch chain and gold knife; to the bridesmaid, a sterling silver toilet set, and to the bride a platinum watch set with sapphires.

The Husband Who Belittles His Wife Before Their Children—What Is the Difference Between a Man's Love and His Devotion—Does It Injure a Doctor's Practice for His Wife to Go Shabby?

Dear Miss Dix—I have a friend whose husband provides for her and their four children as well as could be expected, but whenever his wife does anything that displeases him, which is whenever she does anything that he has not told her to do, he abuses her and calls her vile names before the children. He also teaches the children to disobey their mother, and treat her disrespectfully and to do as they please, so far as she is concerned. He even goes so far as to tell the mother in the presence of the children that he will slap her if she dares to punish them.

The mother is devoted to her children, and she is afraid that on account of her husband working against her and encouraging the children not to do as she tells them, that they will not listen to any of her advice and that she will have no influence over them at the time they need her most. The children are all girls.

Do you think this woman should get a divorce and take as many of the children as the court will give her and bring at least some of them up to be as good as she can?

K. E. G.

Answer: The trouble about a divorce in a case of this kind is that the mother rarely has money enough to provide for herself and the children. Doubtless it would be good for the souls of the children to be removed from the influence of such a father, but the welfare of the body has also to be considered, and if the mother cannot give them the food, the clothes, the comfortable home, the education that their father could give them, their last estate might be worse than their first.

But a man has little sense and judgment, as well as little good feeling, if he belittles his mother to his children and makes her of no worth in their eyes. He is deliberately throwing away the greatest restraining influence and power for good that can ever come in their lives.

For the mother, who is with her children all day and in whose hands they are when they are plastic clay, forms their characters and sets their ideals. And if their father flouts her opinions and derides her views he breaks down all her teachings.

If a headstrong, half-grown girl obeys mother, it is because she has the habit of obedience that was formed in her babyhood. If a young girl, mad for pleasure and crazy to do what all the other girls are doing, listens to mother's advice it is because she has seen mother occupying the position of family oracle all her life. If mother's influence is strong enough to keep a wayward girl in the straight and narrow path, it is because she has always been guided by mother's opinion.

Certainly in these days of emancipated youth no man can afford to deprive his children of a mother's influence. It is hard enough to control young people nowadays, with father and mother working hand in hand. With them fighting each other it is impossible. It takes team work to bring up a family properly. Neither father nor mother can do it alone.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I have a friend who is very devoted to me, but he says he does not know whether he loves me or not. What is the difference between love and devotion?

JOSEPHINE.

Answer: Strictly speaking, devotion is the quintessence of love, but evidently your friend is not devoted in this sense. You mean by "devotion" that he pays you a great deal of attention, that he is always under your foot, so to speak, and that he prefers your society to that of other women.

That sort of devotion means absolutely nothing from the sentimental standpoint. Many a man camps on a girl's sofa, eats her food, is warmed by her fires in winter and cooled by her lemonade in summer; takes her to places of amusement and hangs around her for years and years without her ever touching his heart or making him think of a wedding ring.

A man may go to see a girl for a thousand reasons—because he likes her mother's cooking; because she furnishes a good, free place to spend his evenings; because she is interesting to talk to; because he enjoys having somebody to go around with; because it flatters him to know that she is in love with him, whether he cares for her or not.

This kind of "devotion" is fun for the man, but it is pretty hard on the girl because it keeps her hoping that some time his lukewarm affection will warm up into a sizzling passion that will take him to the proposing point, but it rarely does.

If I were diagnosing the case, I should say that the man who had been "devoted" to a girl for several years, and still didn't know whether he loved her or not, most emphatically did not love her, and never would.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am married to a man twenty years my senior. My husband is a doctor, but I work in a store and draw a salary. My husband is not willing for me to spend even the money I make myself on clothes, although I tell him that it injures his practice for me to look shabby. What do you think about it?

HAZEL.

Answer: If you earn your own money, it is certainly your right to spend it as you please, and you are foolish even to discuss the matter with your husband.

If he were paying for your dress, he would be privileged to limit your dress allowance, although a good husband always wants to give his wife as many pretty things as he can afford. But when you earn the money for your clothes yourself, it is yours to blow in for millinery and furbelows if you like; provided, of course, you are not dress-mad and extravagant.

You are certainly right in thinking that a wife's appearance has much to do with her husband's rating in the community. She is his show window, so to speak, in which he displays his prosperity or the lack of it. If she is a daily hint from Paris, we take it for granted that a woman's husband is successful and that he is generous to her, while if she is shabby and dumpy, we conclude that her husband is either stingy and niggardly or else a failure.

ENGLAND WANTS YOUTHFUL IDEAS

Educational Systems of Two Countries Compared by Dr. Caroline Brown.

TEACHER'S STATUS

An interesting comparison of the educational system of old London and of the province of Ontario was made by Dr. Caroline Brown of Toronto before the Women's Canadian club yesterday afternoon. Dr. Brown, who is a member of the Toronto school board and a prominent Ontario educationalist, has just returned from attending an important international educational conference in old London. Her address was given in the Talbot street Baptist church before a large audience.

The speaker's chief business at the convention was to deliver an address on "The Status of the Canadian Teacher in the School." And she was pleased to tell the assembled educationalists there that while many of the London teachers were not privileged to attend the convention, there were many of the Canadian teachers there. This one fact showed the difference between the status of the Canadian and English teacher.

Interchange Ideas. The speaker stressed the importance of interchange of ideas between the old land and the dominions. Such conventions as that held this summer were good for both the dominions and the motherland.

"England is old," she said. "She is adding and she wants to imbibe something of the youthful ideas and vigor of her colonies. The colonies, on the other hand, can gain something from the experience of the mother country."

Dr. Brown had the opportunity of studying educational facilities in London at first hand. She made a point of interviewing the important educationalists of that great city and of visiting some of the typical schools of which there are 604 under the London county council. A million children are educated every year in these schools at a cost of $62,500,000. In addition there were many parochial schools under the direction of the churches and the great public schools.

System Corresponds.

The board of education in old London corresponded rather to the Canadian department of education than to the Canadian municipal school board. The schools were not as attractive as the Canadian schools, but very fine work was done there. The boys and girls attended together up to the age of eight years under a woman principal. They were then separated, the boys under a man principal and the girls under a woman principal.

The elementary schools of England correspond to the Canadian public schools and their secondary schools to the old London. They had gone far ahead in this respect than did the educationalists of Canada.

Dr. Brown spoke also of her visits to Wembley and of her attendance at the great international medical conference in old London. Mrs. F. W. Hughes occupied the chair.

Best Way To Cut Expense.

The provincial treasurer admits a deficit of $3,556,033, and takes refuge for this behind the fact that he inherited liabilities from the Drury government. Allowing plenty of latitude for a degree of truth in such a claim, it is still a fact that revenue increased by $6,402,565, while expenses decreased by only $248,756.

When the Conservative party was in opposition, and while it was conducting its campaign of May and June, 1923, much was said of the new sources of taxation which had been tapped by the government of that time. It is noteworthy that since coming into power the Conservative government has approved of all these taxes by continuing to levy them, although in so doing the prime minister knows he is invading fields of taxation that belong to the municipalities.

Yet, with all these taxes in operation, the treasurer of the province admits a deficit of $3,556,033, and the statement is given at a time when it is not open to the searching and criticism of the financial experts of the opposition. The revenue is buoyant; it is time to cut expenditure.

The finance minister touched on the prospect of making a move toward wiping out the capital debt of the province. Former provincial treasurers have advocated the same thing, but found that the rate at which money was being spent made it impossible to start it. It is the same as a man who gets into debt; he feels that he must pay his current expenses, and hopes that some time he may be able to wipe out that other obligation. He may hope to increase his revenue, but in the case of the government that means taking more money from the people, and governments are doing too much of that now. His surer way is to cut down his expenses until he has something left over to apply on his indebtedness. The same course is open to the government of Ontario, and if it is capable of supplying the leadership people have a right to expect it will move in that direction, and do so fearlessly and quickly. Mr. Price should have that in mind as an objective toward which to work—paying off a certain amount of the debt of the province each year, and doing it without increasing the amount of taxation taken from the people.

The Ferguson government has an exceptional opportunity. It has been in power for sixteen months; it has a majority that will enable it to carry any measure that it may bring in to cut expenses and curtail proposed outlays. In the face of a rising revenue from more sources of revenue than previous governments ever enjoyed it should get busy and show what it can do. It has things its own way and people are not particularly impressed with the present effort of blaming deficits on the government formerly in power.

Was This Girl Protected?

A 17-year-old girl has been shot to death near Cornwall because she persistently refused to marry a man who had foisted his attentions on her for three years. This case has peculiar features which raise the question: Had the law given this girl the full amount of protection to which she was entitled?

In the summer of 1922 the girl had refused his advances, and at that time Collison made an attempt on her life, for which he was placed under arrest on a charge of aggravated assault and carrying firearms. He was found guilty, but allowed his freedom if he left the country for a year. For a few months he went away, but was found in October in the district again, and was rearrested. This time he was sent to Guelph prison farm, but secured parole and went west. A month ago he came back again and renewed his attentions, the climax being murder.

It is not overstating the case to claim that this man was a prospective murderer all the time. He had threatened to kill the girl before, had broken his suspended sentence to get back to where she was, and eventually carried out his idea as soon as the opportunity afforded.

When he left for Western Canada there was nothing to prevent him returning. When he bought a ticket for Cornwall there was no power to prevent him from so doing. In this country we go on the assumption that people can go and come as they please. When he went to the little hamlet of Halbert there was no authority there to ask him what he wanted, or to demand that he show a passport or some form of registration. The way was open to him to do the very thing he had attempted over two years before and for which he had been arrested. The authorities who twice arrested him and those who granted him parole knew the history of the case; it may or may not have occurred to them that this girl's life was in danger as the result of his freedom.

It is easy enough now that she has been shot to recount these events, but the question remains—did the law grant to this girl the protection to which she was entitled?

Of Course We're Democratic.

Leo Koretz went to Liverpool, N.S., about a year ago, a stranger. He bought himself a country estate for $18,000, paid cash for it; since then he has made improvements to the extent of $35,000, and never found it necessary to issue debentures or ask people to come around next week and get their money.

His country place was in a rural section, where a man who makes a dollar has to put in about $1.05 worth of effort. So Leo, with his lavish spending, became the center of interest. He even made inroads on the blue blood of Halifax, became a member of the Nova Scotia yacht squadron, and when he entertained there the sky was the limit and no I.O.U. was passed. In his own community he had carried on his campaign so successfully that an invitation had been extended to him to preach a sermon in the little church where the countryside gathered.

Leo's fame spread, and that's where he made his mistake. He hid neither himself nor his good works under a bushel, and the result was that a couple of officers from Chicago visited him a day or so back, and took Leo away on the charge of having swindled Chicago people of $2,000,000.

All of which goes to show that even in a sober old country like the rural sections of Nova Scotia a man with $2,000,000 as a travelling partner has a number of doors opened for him that would require a lot of rapping and thumping on the part of the man who went in minus the $2,000,000. Had Leo done so he would have been doing fairly well to be calling the milkman by his first name and be handed his mail without calling out his name at the local postoffice. Certainly he would not have been able to wander into the yacht club headquarters at Halifax; if he had he would probably have been asked to wander out again.

We like to pride ourselves that we are a wonderfully democratic people, and that Burns' line, "A man's a man for a' that," has been woven into our code of ethics. Yet every now and then one of these Leo persons turns up, and it is whispered about that he's an extremely wealthy individual, and strange as it may seem the rumor doesn't do him a bit of harm—not that we put ourselves out at all to be considerate to him, but people don't dodge the newcomer, in fact they feel just a little puffed up as he haunts them from the window of his $10,000 car.

Of course we're democratic—we love people for what they are and not for what they possess—remember, you must never lose sight of that. But when Leo Koretz went into Scotia he found the going a trifle easier with $2,000,000 than he would have with 20 cents, and had he experimented in Ontario, chances are he would have made a similar discovery. But never for a moment lose sight of the fact that we are a real democratic people.

Note and Comment.

Ottawa Journal: An Ottawa hunter was asked if he had any luck. Pointing to a hole in his hat he said "yes."

If there's anything that has happened in London in the last two years for which Mayor Wenige does not claim credit, will some person please call his attention to it.

Windsor woman was in court charged with hitting her husband with an axe, although she claimed she smote him with a perfume bottle. Court freed her on condition that she attend church for two years. After which, in case of a scrap, she'll turn the other cheek.

The Johnny in New York who sets the discount on Canadian money announces it as 3-64 of one per cent. Wouldn't that be a great chance for those who set school papers? Find the cost of a peck of potatoes at $1.09 1/4 a bushel, paid for in money discounted 3-64 of one per cent.

Nearly 40,000 Canadians returned from United States in the last seven months. That fact should have just as much prominence as is given to those who go away, and perhaps a little more, because the movement is on the increase.

The announcement by Premier Ferguson that the government is ready to spend thousands for better buildings for the royal winter fair at Toronto will probably recall how the Guelph people kept the winter fair idea alive for years and secured nothing in the way of government assistance for this purpose.

One of the most forceful speeches delivered in the Italian parliament in recent years came from Deputy Carlo Delcroix, who lost both hands and his eyesight in the world war. His accomplishment, in which a high standard of reasoning was maintained and real oratorical brilliancy displayed, is added proof that physical disability does not dim mental capacity.

About Farmin'

President Coolidge has appointed a committee to investigate farming conditions.—News item.

Once more they'll go and squint around and watch the farmer bust the sod, and figure then for seven days if he knows how to run his job. It seems the same in any place, a party gets in power four days, they name ten men to go about investigatin' farmers' ways.

The farmer he works every day, when night has come he isn't through, he's up again at five o'clock a-bustin' through the mornin' dew. He gouges holes into the ground and sticks a peck of oats in there, he feeds 'em to the stock about and fattens up the old gray mare, he takes the rest to raise some cash to help him live and make things go, and sells it for a whole heap less than what it cost the things to grow.

And then committees come along and ask him questions for two days, a-askin' 'bout the hired man's name and what he does and what he pays. They put these things down on a pad, they write reports what's long and stout, the farmer payin' in his share to keep these men a-roamin' 'bout. Then when they've wandered up and down they quit a-travellin' for a spell, and figure out ten reasons why the farmer ain't doin' quite so well.

If I was farmin' nowadays I'd raise a holler on this point, I'd treat investigators rough and tell 'em to get off my joint. For I'd be sore as sixteen bolts, I'd put a musket on my knee, and tell the experts for to quit this job of 'vestigatin' me.

For if they want to get the facts, I'd have a plan drawn up right quick, 'twould be as plain as mud to them, no mean electioneerin' trick.

I'd say unto the man who came as how he couldn't in two days catch on to all the funny things and less the present farmin' ways. I'd want him to know many things what happened in and 'round the place, that put gray silvers in my locks and wrinkles on my sun-burned face.

And so I'd say if he was keen to find just how I made my wealth, he'd better buy the farm from me and start and run the place himself.—ARK.

METHODS.

Maisie raved about her college.
Mentioned her B.A. degree.
But such academic knowledge
Failed to make a hit with me.

Jessie was a much admired
Vocalist of rare technique,
Yet I must confess I tired
Of her high notes in a week.

Molly thought that conversation
Mildly highbrow would suffice
To induce infatuation,
But with me it cut no ice.

Bessie talked about me; never
To herself would she refer,
Said that I was handsome, clever—
That is why I married her.

OUR OWN SPORTS COMMISSIONERS.

Introducing ARCHIE ARTICHOK, commissioner of mah jong. Mr. Artichok gave up a responsible position as Ku Klux organizer in Greenland to accept this position at a salary of $600,000 a year. He got $12 a week from the Klan. Mr. Artichok knows nothing about mah jong, but as soon as the mah jong interests offered him $600,000 a year he became convinced the game needed him.

"I intend to clean up mah jong," he announced.

"The chow system must go and the cow system be encouraged. The buying of mah jong pants must stop. I am also against using too many bamboos because it puts up the price of fishing poles."

Introducing OSWALD OSSIFY, commissioner of merry-go-rounds, scenic railways and shooting galleries. Mr. Ossify has been under-secretary of Indian affairs for 37 years and consequently his knowledge of merry-go-rounds and scenic railways must be great.

His salary in his new position will be something like $200,000 a year. Not much like it, but something like it.

"The merry-go-round proprietors have got to get together and stop running around in circles," declared the commissioner. "The public is dizzy watching them, and is demanding better music and longer rides. I think three hours at a stretch is long enough for an organ to play any one piece. Then, too, there is the question of morals. Personally, I think the fifth horse from the end in the outside row should wear more conservative harness."

"As far as the Ferris wheels are concerned, I look for a revolution. With respect to shooting galleries, all I can say is that unless the proprietors give away better cigars the censorship will close down on them like a starving actor on a ham sandwich."

MARTIN MINKER, commissioner of tennis. Mr. Minker has just been selected by the tennis clubs to clean up tennis. He has never seen the game played, but loves to look at the newspaper pictures of women stars ten feet off the ground. He thinks it's just wonderful the attitudes they take. Mr. Minker is getting $400,000 a year as poobah of jennies.

"I shall clean up tennis," he said, taking his first check and looking at the signature carefully. "The star system must go. I am for the little fellow in tennis even if we have to lower the net for him. I favor the cement court over the supreme or division, and see no reason why a player shouldn't fall on the court if he wants to. 'No, I have not heard that Bill Tilden is considering a vaudeville tour. I shall refuse to sanction unless I get a percentage of the gate money and moving picture rights. It is high time that these temperamental artists began to feed the hand that bites them.'"

Editorial Opinion

GETTING THE EASY MONEY.

(From the Kincardine Reporter)

It was great fun last week watching the ladies of the town visit the Royal hotel. You know there was a lady there who read the palm for you. She told a lot of things to those who called. In some instances she made good guesses. We interviewed a few of those who consulted her. She told one lady she had to work too hard. It was an easy guess because her hand showed it. The same lady was a severe sufferer. Her fingers were drawn up with rheumatism. It was a sure guess that she suffered. Who doesn't that has rheumatism?

One young lady borrowed her friend's wedding ring and infant daughter and appeared before the palmist. One glance at the hand and she said: "You can't put that stuff over me. This is not your child and you are not married." It is our bet that the young lady wasn't holding the baby like a mother would, and that the wedding ring was half a size too large.

The health line, the long life line, the early death line, the great crisis in life line, the things to be avoided in future. All these came in the readings. The married were, as a general rule, going to see better times. One lady said: "Certainly we will—after we're dead." Apparently she had asked the spark of hope to die. The single girls had the time of their lives. A lot of them are going to be married within the next two years. The lines showed this plainly. This is a hope that maketh the heart glad if it has been deferred. Two years is not long to wait. In the meantime the palmist will be able to visit this town a couple of more times and grab off some easy money.

CALLS IT PLAIN STEALING.

(From the Buffalo Express)

Chicago steals 10,000 gallons of great lakes water per second. This lowers the levels of great lakes harbors below Sault Ste. Marie at least six inches. Shipping interests alone are estimated to lose $30,000,000 a year. The flow of water over Niagara Falls is adversely affected. Chicago takes this water on a temporary permit of the secretary of war for less than half that amount. Chicago's justification of the theft is that Chicago needs it for dilution of sewage. Actually it wants the water for development of hydro-electricity a few miles south of the mid-west metropolises. The Great Lakes Harbor Association is going to hold a "demonstration conference" in Cleveland. It is hoped by this means to bring home to the great lakes interests on both sides of the international boundary the seriousness of the situation resulting from Chicago's selfishness. Great lakes water belongs in the great lakes. Its only proper outlet is the St. Lawrence river.

Talking to Thousands.

Are you drinking more tea? If not, you're behind the procession. The British this year are setting the United States 137 pounds of tea for every 52 pounds last year. Such things do not happen by chance. In this case, the reason is advertising. British interests have been advertising heavily, portraying tea temptingly, urging its use. Advertising talks to tens of thousands while the individual salesman talks to one.—Halifax Herald.

To the Editor

Favors Mayor Wenige.

Citizen Believes He Has Acted All the Way Through in the Best Interests of the City.
London, Nov. 21.

Editor of The Advertiser:
Sir,—In confidence that your valuable paper is open for the publication of opinions other than those held by yourself, I would like to say a few words in support of our present mayor in his campaign. I have nothing whatever to say of Ald. Anderson, either for or against; I do not ever know him; but it is my firm belief that Mayor Wenige, in spite of some qualifications (without which he would be better), is the most energetic man who has held the office in my time in the city (nearly twenty years).

I have been at a few meetings of the council this year, and as far as I could see, I judge that some of the aldermen if they had not the mayor to scrap with would soon find someone else.

I can readily understand that some of the business interests in the city as well as some of the officials of the municipality would rather see someone else mayor, somebody that would simply announce the business to be done and from that on he would dignified that they could not even express an opinion. And we have had them, too!

Another thing, the humblest citizen can go to Mayor Wenige and be sure of as great consideration being given to his or her complaint as the proudest, perhaps just a little more so. I well remember some years ago at election time a great cry was: "If you want things done in a business way, elect a business council." Well it was done. Result, one of the poorest councils the city ever had. Mayor Wenige has, I believe, done his level best for this city, and not without results either, and a great deal of the bickering in the council is only what every man who is energetic and a go-getter has to contend with. Call it jealousy if you will, and I believe he is our chief magistrate for 1925.

Yours, for good municipal government.

LONDON CARSHOPS WIN DRILL CONTEST

Number Two Company Is Victorious in Dry Run Competition.

Special to The Advertiser.
Montreal, Nov. 24.—In the remarkably fast time of 41 seconds, the No. 2 company of the London C. N. R.

carshops won the "dry run" competition in the 36th annual fire drill competition of the Canadian National railroad brigades.

Point St. Charles shops, Montreal, took first place in the ladder competition with the time of 17 4-5 seconds. Stratford carshops, No. 1 company, won the "wet run" competition in 1 minute and 1-5 seconds.

The dry run, which was won by the London No. 2 company, consisted of a run of 100 yards from scratch to a hydrant, the laying of 200 feet of hose after attaching to the hydrant, the coupling of the play pipe, or nozzle, the addition of another length of hose, which requires the uncoupling of the play pipe, and the replacing of the third length from the hydrant to signify the substitution of a good length for one supposedly defective. To have completed all these movements in the short time of 41 seconds indicates that the London men are speedy and active.

The wet run contest is conducted on similar lines to that of the dry run, but necessitates the flow of water. With the first stream the branchman is expected to hit a paper disc 205 feet from the hydrant. After the third length has been replaced the branchman has as a target a paper disc 255 feet from the hydrant. All this was done in one-fifth of a second over a minute by No. 1 company of the Stratford shops, an exceptionally good performance.

Canadiens Go Under 4-2 Before Saskatoon Sheiks

World's Champion Pro Team Outplayed by Western Outfit.

BIFF! BING! BANG!

Neway Lalonde's Saskatoon Sheiks handed Leo Dandurand's world's champion Canadiens a decisive 4-2 beating last night before the second capacity jam of fans the local arena has housed since it first opened its doors.

The Prairie Sheiks sent lots of the customers away with the impression that the map of the world which the Canadiens tote around on their chests was simply a rough sketch of the province of Quebec.

The big crowd, a third of which must have been gathered from around the district, preserved a slightly cynical attitude for the first period, became slightly more animated in the second and reached a state of mild frenzy in the third, as the Sheiks staged a comeback on the aged Vezina that had the Chicoutimi Cucumber almost dizzy and pickled. The crowd was mostly all with the Sheiks, the lot always of champions, boxing or hockey.

Despite the lack of delirium on the part of the crowd approval shone through their early neutrality as they began to appreciate the finer points of the pro game. There was lots of evidence to hand that it was an exhibition, but there were enough incipient clashes to effect that, and lots of jolts that would have looked real rough in amateur hockey were taken with a shrug and a smile. Because the athletes were not skating wild in circles and at random, there was the usual cry of the sticks for more action and more claret, but as the game wore on the majority of the crowd were beginning to appreciate the style of play, the quick breakaways for an attack, the snap with which passes were looked out, the terrific drives made at the nets from all angles and positions.

It Happens Quickly. Those who like the roundhouse swings and the dancing and grimaced warnings of blows given by amateur boxers missed the scientific bumps the pros handed out in large chunks; the quick, sharp, strong-arm, the quick jab, the jab, but only for awhile. Then they began to feel the jar of the six-inch jolts and the drive down the line, the game so strenuous and a pastime where curtains or stitches come quickly. The pros pull cranks and pull cranks; they telegraph their punches but they never throw off their sweaters, stamp on the ice and then swing to swing. Whatever happens, happens quickly.

The Sheiks earned the approval of the crowd in the first quarter by getting two nice goals past Vezina. Lighter but speedier than the Canadiens, they won the game's honors at Tintwep. On the St. Patrick's team was Albert McCaffrey, who had been a member of the Canadian Olympic team of 1924, winners of the world's championship at Montreal. He was in shape, due to lack of practice.

The opening game of the S. P. A. series will be played next Saturday night at the St. Patrick's rink. The game between St. Mary's (the cup holders) and University of Toronto. Both teams are in shape, due to lack of practice.

Aura Leo seniors will play Parkdale in the first S. P. A. senior game a week from today. The players already signed up as follows: Goal, Alf. Moore; "Len" Cook; defence, "Mel" Walkem and Tracy Shaw; center, Jerry Deniro, Clayton right wing, Frankie Burley, "Shrimp" Morris; left wing, Jack Bond and Doug Staines.

Niagara Falls has sixteen candidates for the intermediate O. H. A. team. They will open the season at home with a game on Friday night.

Cleghorn, until he blushed. Cook and Lalonde pulled a little game that looked almost as real as some of the famous wrestling bouts of the old days at Seneca park. Cameron shot the side, who passed to Berlinguette, who yawned and beat Vezina. The Sheiks' third goal, Cameron intentionally got in Moren's net. Howie took time off to tell Percy Lalonde all about it, and the little blonde Scot simply looked several of Howie's best spurts to a stop to make it a bad period for the Stratford boy.

W. Cook nearly shot the Stratford boy through four Canadiens to start the game. Cameron, who came back with a nasty shot at Hainsworth, which the Kitchener boy calmly deflected with the toe of his skate. Scottie with several big Canadian sticks hurled a sparkling little rush, but was cheated by a nice piece of defence by a rolling puck. Boucher gave Hainsworth a mean shot to handle from between the legs, and then Reiss sailed down, lost his balance, and swooping around on one skate, batted the rolling puck past the finger of Chicoutimi at exactly seven minutes.

Vezina Still Agile. B. Cook and Cameron had the still agile Vezina proving it with four quick shots. As Cook unslung a Texas slapper, he calmly reached out and pulled it down out of the air and soothed it down the side, and dived for a goal. Scott went off for flipping Moren nearly just before Spague Cleghorn went down, passed to Joliat, who clicked his way through both Cameron and Reiss and scored on the third click.

Berlinguette took a rest for making an abattoir slice at Boucher, after the right wing had bodied him to the ice. A Joliat to Boucher combination sifted through the Sheik defence and drew Hainsworth out, but the puck slid across the open net. The same combination seeped through again, and Moren, darting in and slammed in the rebound. The line-ups: Canadiens—Goal, Vezina; right defence, S. Cleghorn; left defence, W. Cook; center, Moren; right wing, Boucher; left wing, A. Joliat; subs, S. Mantha, O. Cleghorn, C. Cotch, R. LaRue, E. Decosse. Joliat: right defence, S. Cleghorn; left defence, Cameron; center, W. Cook; right wing, B. Cook; left wing, L. Scott; subs, Matte, Berlinguette, Reiss, Stevens, Denenay.

Poke and Cross Checks

A big crowd of Sarnia fans were disappointed that Charlie Cook was not used. They made the long drive up especially to see the former city league sub in action in the Sarnia rink.

Lalonde may have lost some of his speed but he's still got his head and as long as he's able to hobble around on his skates he won't need to bench himself. It shows every now and then with every move. "Dirty Lalonde" he used to be, but he never said it all up for home ice.

Lalonde, Cameron, Couta and Cleghorn, the seven that were sent out to get the hang of about ten years from now, if they are in the game that long.

Dapper Leo Dandurand was with his team last night, sent them out to even up in the second period, but they came back a goal worse off.

It is possible that Jerry Lowrey, who is the best size-up of the Ironstone situation, might get into Friday night's game against Owen Sound, Dominion champions.

Sudbury Star: The reported release of Joe Ironstone from the Senators has had the town by the ears for the past few days, but seems to be a little premature. Joe had with Ottawa, but his friends give him credit for being a pretty good business man. About the best size-up of the Ironstone situation appeared in an Ottawa paper the other day. It said Joe was away over-eight weeks and to find his feet. Sudbury's will readily agree with this statement, for it has been an annual complaint of the Ironstone.

Saskatoon opens the pro hockey season in Boston on Thursday. Neway Lalonde's team will give N. H. L. fans an accurate line on Boston's prospective strength.

Jack Adams is working like a horse to get down to playing weight. He is making plenty of progress. Willie Campbell, the former trainer, says that the fat is fading like Joe in July.

Reg. Noble, the St. Pat forward, is not as big as he looked Saturday night. He wore six yards of flannel stamp on the ice and then swung to swing. Whatever happens, happens quickly.

The Sheiks earned the approval of the crowd in the first quarter by getting two nice goals past Vezina. Lighter but speedier than the Canadiens, they won the game's honors at Tintwep. In the second period the Canadiens were all out to even it up, but Hainsworth and the Saskatoon defence were too tight. Hainsworth had nothing to learn in coolness and clever net-minding from his aged opposition. He moved when the puck got there, and not before the occasion demanded. Moren moved the center route to crash hard shots at him, and then flashed in the rebound, the alert Hainsworth always had him beaten by a couple of moves. Denenay pulled a wide-sweeping rush that was a draft, and Mantha drew his first of two trips to the penalty-box for holding his stick. Berlinguette, the rocking looking youth, pirouetted on a ten cent piece over by the boards, and fooled the marcelled Olie, brother of Spague.

South C.I. Cagers Begin Workouts

Many of Last Year's Juniors Available For Team.

Last night the candidates for the basketball team which will represent South C. I. in the senior Vosses cage series this winter went through their initial workout in the school gym. Judging from the form displayed, the South London school should make as much of a name in this competition as it has done in soccer for the last two seasons.

Although Ernie Hadfield is the only member of last year's team available, there are several players from the 1923 juniors who are expected to make good in the major division. They are Jack Ferguson, Jack Pritchett, Warren Smith, Bert Russell, Maurice George and a few others. The squad is in charge of Frank Beard, a member of the south collegiate staff.

On the Side Lines

With C. S. G.

Sudden vs. Slow Death.

Walter Johnson will probably go back to Washington, as reports say, at a $50,000 stipend covering a three-year term. There must be sentiment in baseball because Walter Johnson cannot possibly be worth that much in three years as an active workman, and the moment he ceases to pitch, he ceases to become a box-office attraction. Only two courses face Johnson. Either he must step right out and become an owner or be prepared to go through the slow and humiliating experience of going back to the minors. Stengel and Scott were examples of how the baseball magnates view heroes. Now the Yankees are preparing, and admit it, to cast Winty Witt out and Everett Scott is also mentioned. They've both been heroes in their day.

Are We Downhearted?

Vincent, the little English fighter who made Mayberry stop Friday night and then had Hamilton fans divided on whether or not he didn't win instead of draw with the Canadian bantam, has made a home for himself under the shadow of the mountain, where they've been disconsolate ever since Eber began to fall them. Eber himself appeared in the ring at Hamilton and shook hands with both boys. One of the greatest little fighting machines that the bantam division ever numbered was inflated out to 154 pounds. No wonder they called him the human sponge. Even when he was fighting he would go from 130 and over to the bantam limit with very little trouble.

Vincent not only had the Hamilton fans pop-eyed with his unusual cleverness but the Toronto contingent as well. Vincent also showed Obnessor and a few others that everything that comes out of the British Isles are not Joe Becketts.

WOMAN STANDS TRIAL ON FIREBUG CHARGE

Mrs. B. Tate, Sudbury, Alleged To Have Tried To Burn Buildings.

Canadian Press Despatch. Sudbury, Nov. 24.—Mrs. Bessie Tate, aged 22, appeared in police court this morning charged with setting fire to farm buildings belonging to her relatives. She was remanded until December 2.

Provincial Police Inspector Storey stated afterwards that two charges of attempting to wreck trains and of giving false testimony on the trial of Adelaar Roy for one of those offences would be preferred by the police at the next hearing.

On two occasions when ties were found across the railway tracks near the late home, Mrs. Tate has eagerly taken part in the search for the person who placed them there, and on one occasion was a witness for the crown against Roy, who was acquitted of the charge. The police, after extended observation and investigation claim to have evidence connecting Mrs. Tate with the attempt to wreck the trains, and also the attempt to burn down several buildings on the Tate property and railway property adjoining.

CLAIMS JAP WELCOME EXTREMELY CORDIAL

Chief of Canadian Militia Staff Returns From Oriental Trip.

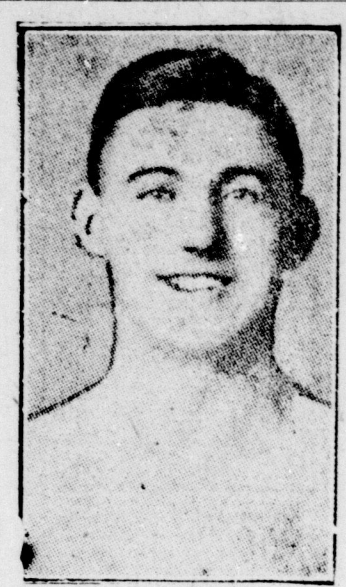

Canadian Press Despatch. Victoria, B. C., Nov. 24.—Returning to Canada today on the Empress of Canada from Japan, where he was sent to attend the Japanese military manoeuvres by the Canadian department of defence, Major-General James MacBrien, chief of staff of the Canadian militia, declared that he was given a wonderful welcome, and that much valuable experience had been gained as a result of his observations.

"Never before have I experienced such a cordial welcome and such generosity, which took the form of numerous dinners, receptions and gifts. Upon leaving Japan General Kawari, chief of the general staff, made me a gift of a beautiful sword, said to be nearly 300 years old."

"During my visit I was received several times by the prince regent, and witnessed the Imperial birthday review at Tokio, when 2,000 troops, including guards divisions, took part."

Former Champ Tries Comeback

Associated Press Despatch. London, Nov. 24.—Judging from the discussions and arrangements made at a special meeting of local baseball fans last night, Blenheim will be lined up in the Kent county senior O. H. A. loop in 1925. President A. R. Williams occupied the chair. Short addresses were given by Manager Watson, Alex. Clunis, E. W. Knight, T. B. Shillington, and others. Whether or not to enter with when it was shown that all who gave a guarantee last year were ready to give a similar guarantee this year, although they had been called upon to make up a deficit.

The majority were in the opinion that Blenheim should remain in senior company in preference to entering into a guarantee, when these are forthcoming, and that fans demanded a fast brand of ball and would not be satisfied with anything slower than that which characterized this year's playing.

A committee consisting of Jack McArthur, W. Adams and A. G. Shillington was appointed to select the fast brand of ball and would not be satisfied with anything slower than that which characterized this year's playing.

The local youngsters worked out last night and it was a spirited affair. They are putting in a strenuous week in order to get in real shape for the Friday struggle.

The juniors are being taught the idea that team play is the essential thing these days and they are being drilled on that principle.

OWEN SOUND ELATED. Owen Sound, Nov. 24.—Manager Jimmy Jamieson of the Owen Sound Greys, dominant junior hockey champions, declared this morning when they concluded arrangements with Manager Clay Gibson of the London Juniors, for an exhibition game at London on Friday. The Greys have been doing some real indoor training for the past three weeks, and in addition have had five workouts on ice out-of-doors to show their work in pretty fair condition and should be able to go the route. Manager Jamieson has an abundance of material from which to select a team and is satisfied to show their worth. Of last year's team there remain Hedley Smith in the nets and "Butch" Kere in the line, who is a good run for the position. The fans here are getting red-hot to see the Greys in action, and the cold weather cannot come too soon.

TWO DEFEATED FEATHERS MAY GET SECOND CHANCE

Associated Press Despatch. New York, Nov. 24.—Public dissatisfaction over the result of the first round of the featherweight championship tournament at Madison Square Garden last Friday night, in which at least one of the decisions apparently met with popular disfavor, may result in a readjustment of the rules of the tournament, according to George Brown, chairman of the state athletic commission.

Officially only the three winners, Danny Kramer (Kid) Kaplan and Jose Lombardo, still remain in the tournament. Chairman Brown said, "There is a possibility that at the commission's meeting tomorrow Bobby Garcia and Mike Dundee may be placed back in the competition despite their defeats at the hands of Kaplan and Kramer, respectively."

Toronto St. Mary's may enter a team in the O. H. A. intermediate series, and the Greys, who are a number of local fans who may give some of the others a good run for the position. The fans here are getting red-hot to see the Greys in action, and the cold weather cannot come too soon.

Past Football Season Best In History of City

Committee in Charge Will Wind Up Business at Meeting Thursday.

POPULARITY GROWS

At the meeting of the football committee of the L. A. A. A. in the chamber of commerce Thursday night at 10 the most successful grid season in the history of London will be brought to a close officially when reports will be submitted, and all business for the year will be disposed of.

The football fans could be gratified to know that the sterling support they have given the team all season has made possible a surplus, not a great one, of course, but one sufficient to defray doctor bills and similar expenses contracted by injured players. These facilities are something entirely new

Those men who have engineered local football teams for years past with little or no recognition for their services have finally been rewarded and spurred to work all the harder next year by the general enthusiasm displayed by Londoners over the local football squads in this past season.

BANK OF MONTREAL ASSETS INCREASE

Annual Report Shows Marked Growth in Deposits—In Strong Position.

The annual report of the Bank of Montreal for the fiscal year ending October 31st indicates to an extent the more quiet business conditions which have prevailed in many lines of business in Canada during the past twelve months.

On the one hand there has been a steady gain in deposits with this institution, thus increasing the funds available for the business of the country, while on the other hand there was a recession in the requirements for trade and commerce. As a result, the excess funds over commercial requirements are reflected in a marked increase in the holdings of government bonds and other high-grade securities, which in present conditions give a relatively low yield.

An analysis of the statement of assets and liabilities shows the strong position in which the bank has placed itself.

Liquid Assets at High Level.

Total assets at October 31st, the end of the fiscal year, amounted to $748,836,088, as against $692,382,109 at the end of the previous year. Of this amount liquid assets total $468,518,968, at which level they are equivalent to 62.5% of liabilities to the public, as compared with $391,227,827, or 62.5% a year ago.

The principal gain has been under the heading of government securities and railway bonds and stocks, indicating that, due to lessened commercial activity throughout the country there has been an endeavor to keep as much as possible of the bank's funds continually employed. Dominion and provincial government securities now stand at $91,612,453, up from $63,185,030; railway and other bonds, debentures and stocks $6,385,569, as against $2,328,864 at the end of the previous year. In cash holdings the bank reports gold, subsidiary coin current and dominion notes, $94,996,723, up from $81,589,581, and deposit to central gold reserves, $1,000,000 compared with $17,000,000.

Deposits Increase.

From month to month the bank has been reporting gains in deposits and at the end of the fiscal year total deposits amounted to $636,869,521, as against $579,056,783, a gain of over $57,000,000 during the year. These figures indicate a substantial increase in savings accounts and it is also probable that a portion of the large gain is accounted for by government deposits that were being accumulated in anticipation of the payment of loans maturing on November 1st.

Total loans of $254,259,229 compare with $276,968,456 at the end of the previous year. The principal accounts in this classification are current loans and discounts in Canada, which now stand at $214,566,215, as against $236,656,924; and loans to cities, towns and municipalities of $15,432,780, in comparison with last year's figures of $21,703,848.

Profit and Loss Account.

Net profits for the year, after deducting charges of management and making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts, were $4,454,504, as compared with $4,496,416 for the previous year. The profit, added to the balance carried forward brought the total amount available for distribution up to $5,114,088.

This was distributed as follows: Regular dividends and bonus $3,815,000; provision for taxes dominion government, $412,500; reserve for bank premises, $125,000; leaving the amount to be carried forward to balance of profit and loss at the end of the year at $771,586, as compared with $659,582.

The report will be submitted to shareholders at the annual meeting, which will be held on Monday, December 1st.

MOTHER ASKS DAMAGES IN DEATH OF CHILD

Lucy Knott, mother of John Edwin Knott, who was killed in a motor accident on Aug. 6, is claiming $5,000 damages from William R. Hodges, salesman, in an action entered for the jury sittings of the county court on Dec. 2.

The defendant, in his statement of defence, denies that the county court has jurisdiction to act in the case, and maintains that the supreme court of Ontario is the only court with the necessary jurisdiction to deal with this case. Menzies & Cluff are acting for the plaintiff, and McEvoy & Henderson for the defendant.

A WOMAN'S SUFFERING

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Verdun, Montreal, Quebec.—"I am one of thousands who have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have great faith in it. I can safely say it has relieved my troubles and I shall never be without a bottle of it in my house. Since my last baby was born I suffered from pains and backache and would feel so tired I could not do anything in my home. Since I have been taking the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine I feel so different. I recommend it to all my friends and hope it will cure other women who are suffering from the troubles I had."—MRS. THOMAS H. GARDNER, 821 Evelyn Street, Verdun, Montreal, Quebec.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine for the new mother. It is prepared from roots and herbs, contains no harmful drugs and can be taken by the nursing mother.

Its worth in restoring the mother to normal health and strength is told again and again in just such letters as Mrs. Gardner's.

A recent canvass of women users of the Vegetable Compound shows that 38 out of every 100 women taking the medicine are benefited by it. They write and tell so. Such evidence entitles us to call it a dependable medicine for women. It is for sale by druggists everywhere.

City Churches

ST. ANDREW'S FEDERATION. The federation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church held a very successful party last night, when they entertained the students of the University of Western Ontario. St. Andrew's hall, the scene of the jolly event, was fittingly decorated with the university colors, purple and white, and here the young people enjoyed games of all kinds under the direction of Frank McNeill. Later in the evening delightful solos were given by Miss Vivian Ferguson and Miss Phyllis Gray, with Miss Jessie Manson at the piano. Rev. W. K. Harris presided, and following the little program dainty refreshments were served under the convenship of Mrs. Emerson Nichols, assisted by Misses Peggy Casselman, Jean Mosley-Williams and Margaret Hutton.

VIKINGS WIN.

The Vikings of St. Andrew's attained the highest average at a recent provincial examination in Bible study set by the Ontario boys' work board in Toronto. Much of the credit for this provincial honor is due to the mentor of the group, B. S. Scott, who taught the Bible study class. The average of the boys was $5.1 per cent, and there were six in the group, including Jack Gunn, Bert Martin, Lorne Morrison, Allan Foot and Ernest Cooke. The shield, which is a very beautiful one will be presented at the supper meeting of the St. Andrew's boys this evening.

ST. ANDREW'S FEDERATION.

The young people's federation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church held their regular meeting on Sunday night after the evening service, when the B. S. C. took charge of the devotional period, which was led by Miss Wallace and Miss McLennan. The friendly hour with which the meeting was concluded was in charge of the Olympians.

HOPE B. Y. P. U.

There was a most successful closing meeting of the Hope B. Y. P. U. contest held recently, when the boys, who were behind during the whole contest, surprised the group by coming out the winners. After the decision was made, Mrs. Harris, missionary on furlough from China, gave an address, telling interesting stories of her work, which was greatly appreciated.

"Thanksgiving Ann" was given by the young people, the cast including Evelyn Pittaway, Dick Webster, Paul Pittaway and Edith Webster. The young people reached their missionary objective by taking a special collection at the meeting.

Mrs. E. M. Russell, convener of the room for the Ridout street Methodist church bazaar, entertained her committee at her home on Windsor avenue yesterday afternoon, when final arrangements were made for the bazaar, which takes place on Thursday, Nov. 27. Fight For Office Grows Warmer and Funny Situations Crop Up.

"I" IN FOREGROUND

Scintillating bits of humor, intentional and otherwise, have been developed during the present election campaign. The fight for office waxed more intense and capacity audiences gathered nightly to listen to the election oratory that is offered.

"My aldermen were a bunch of jellyfishes. I never saw a bunch of men with such spineless backbones."—Mr. Wenige at Emery street civic workers' meeting.

"Lend Me Twenty"

"No, I won't lend you a twenty during the election campaign. That would make us bad friends as you wouldn't want to pass me on the street while you owed me money."—John Anderson to an unknown and partly intoxicated solicitor for funds. Only a few of the prime "bon-mots" of the past week are listed here.

"The press is 'gargling' my speeches."

"My name is near the bottom of the ballot. Please start marking your crosses from the bottom."

"I never was so nervous in all my life. I'm as scared as I was in the first speech I made when the campaign started."

"I don't know why I entered this campaign."

Pronoun "I."

The pronoun "I" is the most overworked term in the vocabulary. Some election promises include provision for much expenditure of others ruthlessly wield the axe, while some candidates just stand for "good government."

Hall and William Shales took the negative, the latter winning. The judges were Dr. Paddell, Miss Watson and Mr. Green, and following their decision Miss Harrington gave a pleasing piano solo and Miss G. Panton contributed a reading. Miss B. Gregory was appointed press reporter, and there was a good attendance.

The scripture was given by Bessie Black, after which five verses of the 24th psalm and 20 books of the New Testament were repeated in unison by memory. It was the sewing meeting of the band, and the girls and boys busied themselves sewing quilt patches while the younger members sewed on their commandment cards. A letter was read by Donna Dye from the day nursery thanking the members for their generous gift of jam. It was also decided during the meeting to have the election of officers at the next meeting, when an annual report of the year's work will be given.

The literary meeting will be under the convenship of Kenneth Totten. CENTENNIAL LEAGUE.

There were 100 present at the joint league meeting held in Centennial Methodist church last night, when they had as their guests the members of the league of Dundas Center Methodist church. The evening was the occasion of a debate, "Resolved: That the Influence of Heredity is Greater Than Environment." Geese Baggled.

O. F. Bowman and Lloyd Aldridge of this city bagged fourteen wild geese this morning with fourteen shots about seven miles out on the London road. They returned to the city with the big birds hanging to the side of an automobile and were just six hours in making the trip out, shooting their game and returning. The geese were encountered in large numbers.

"Liver Trouble so Severe I Had to Quit Work"

Mr. Thomas Honey, Brantford, Ont., writes:

"I was a great sufferer from enlargement of the liver for ten months, and finally I had to quit work. I would wake up in the mornings with a bitter taste in my mouth, had frequent headaches, yellow complexion, and pain in my right side, and between the shoulder blades. It was almost unbearable, and terribly weakening. I could not sleep at night and my heart also bothered me. But the whole trouble has now left me, thanks to that wonderful medicine, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

CITY RADIO FANS ANXIOUS TO GET EUROPEAN STATIONS

Radio fans tuned in last night to pick up the European broadcasters. The air was clear of American sending between 11 o'clock and midnight to give receiving stations, as well as small sets, a chance to get Europe if possible.

The air was clear and continental messages should have been picked up, but as far as the Advertiser could learn nothing from overseas was heard.

It was quite evident that the radio bugs were right after the long distance messages last night for the air was filled with their efforts to get something.

There will be no broadcasting between 11 p.m. and midnight for the balance of the week so that receivers will have a good chance to try again for Europe.

Those present were Chairman John Ashton, E. R. Dennis, Harry Wray, R. Hessel, and the manager of the commission, J. W. Caniffie.

ASTHMA NEVER CAME BACK

Since Taking the Fruit Treatment in "Fruit-a-tives"

Read this letter from Mrs. J. M. Pennington of Box 58, Kingsbury, Que.

"In 1919, I was taken with Bronchial Asthma and no one knows what I suffered during the winter. I began having choking spells and would just gasp for breath and could not speak. The doctor said he could do nothing for me.

"In the spring of 1920, I started taking 'Fruit-a-tives' and soon the choking spells became easier and I have not had one since May 7th, 1920. It is such a relief to be able to go to bed and have no thought of having to get up in the night for an hour or more as I did all that winter, but never have to now, all because I take a 'Fruit-a-tive' tablet every night."

victim Of Constipation

Mrs. Fannie White of 678 Marcy Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"Almost every morning, for the last five years I suffered with sick headaches, I felt this was due to nervousness, never dreaming that faulty intestinal elimination caused my suffering. I felt wretched, my appetite was gone, I lost interest in preparing my meals, life was not worth living. A few days' treatment with Carter's Little Liver Pills, and I was cured. They are small, easy to take, gripping—and leave no bad after-effects."

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief For Acid Indigestion.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomach-ache and inability to retain food are in probability nine cases out of ten, simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

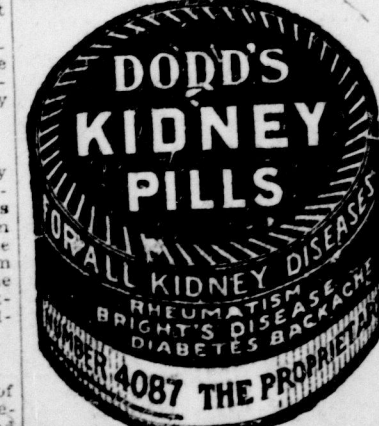

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of Bisulphate of Magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or whenever gas, sourness or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments and is a stomachic harmlessness and inexpensive remedy to use.

An antacid, such as Bisulphate of Magnesia, which can be effective from any druggist in either powder or tablet form, enables the stomach to do its work properly without the use of artificial forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bisulphate of Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purpose.—Adv.

The BREATH of the AVENUE

FASHION NEWS NOTES

Reported by "The Breath of the Avenue" from New York.

The winter's first and best interest turns out to be its love of color. As the weather gets colder, the colors of Fifth Avenue costumes grow gay.

First of all, winter coats, which are usually conservative in color, have flashed out this season into reds, browns, and greens. Dresses equal coats in their choice of colors that are vibrant and yet soft, like the mel-lowed, living tones of old paintings.

Evening dresses delight in all the colors that glow. Velvets and brocades hold to the jewel tones—sapphire and ruby, pearl and emerald and amethyst. And chiffon frocks play up the pastel tones of summer gardens out of season.

And how about black? Oh yes, Black, because black is never anything but smart. But these colors—all of them—are new and compelling!
