MEN AND WOMEN,
The Big Chief for unnatural discharges, inflammation, irritations or obstructions of the prostate membrane. Painful, and not adhering, and not adhering, and not adhering.

The Big Chief's Resolution.

By ALEXANDER BUNN.
Copyright, 1907, by Mary McKoon.

The big chief cut the porterhouse steak with an air of pleasant anticipation. It was broiled just right, and the onions were not the least bit greasy. There flitted through his mind a hazy realization of the fact that even a man with a terrible cold in his head might be able to get some joy out of life while porterhouse steaks and fried onions existed.

"Put that screen between me and the door, Jack," he said to the waiter who was showing off his curves to earn the tip that so well groomed a man generally proved good for. "I have an abominable cold and feel chilly every time the air strikes me."

The negro's mind was stimulated by the friendliness of the tone, and he quickly multiplied his first vision of a tip by two. He surrounded the big chief by so large a Japanese screen that the latter had a private dining room to himself, and the other people in the room soon forgot he was there.

A few minutes later a man and a girl stood in the door of the cafe and scanned the room eagerly for a vacant table.

There was only one, a small table wedged up close to a Japanese screen. They sat down, the girl talking rapidly while she removed her gloves and veil.

"It's nice to be up here in a corner," she said joyously; "it's so cozy, and we have it all to ourselves."

She sighed with pleasure when the bill of fare was finally laid aside and the waiter departed with his order.

"It's shockingly extravagant for us to come here to dine, but as tomorrow is New Year's day you will of course have to make good resolutions about economizing, so we will enjoy a little fling tonight."

The man raised his glass of water and touched hers.

"Here's to the hope that we will be dining in our own home next New Year's eve," he said.

"Here's to all the good things possible," she said, her young eyes sparkling with enthusiasm, "and here's to the big chief. He spoke to me in the hall today and was really quite nice and almost like a human being. One forgets sometimes that he can possibly have a bit of humanity about him. He is as hard as nails, and his opinions are absolute. He doesn't know it, but he passes sentence always before he hears our side of the case."

The man on the other side of the screen, almost choking with indignation and almost like a human being, he had just put into his mouth, sat suddenly alert.

"Some one else in the office been getting into trouble?" Karl hazarded.

"Nothing decided. It's the same girl telling tales that causes it all. She will come across the simplest kind of error; some other clerk has made, and she never rests until she has managed to call the big chief's attention to it in some way."

"Wants to shine by comparison, does she? Well, the life of a government clerk has got to be something strenuous lately."

The girl threw up her head audaciously.

"I wish I could be the big chief one day," she said, bringing her teeth together with a determined little click. "I don't know how your chief is, but the trouble with ours and with all the rest of them, I suppose, is that they have never been a clerk, and they can't see from the clerk's standpoint."

Karl helped her to the piece of broiled chicken he knew she liked best and laughed indulgently.

"What would be your first step if you were given full power of management for one day?"

She put two lumps of sugar in his coffee and pondered seriously a moment as to whether she should have one or two lumps in her own.

"You know there is a $1,400 vacancy just now?" she asked meditatively; "poor old Mr. Timberlake died last week. I know his desk perfectly. I did his work all the time he was sick; well—I'm afraid I should follow the doctrine of the egotist and give your trump, Margaret Clayton, $1,200 yearly, just to $1,400. Of course, it's an

What Do They Cure?

The above question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription."
The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and is especially valuable in all cases of impurities in the system, as well as upon all the mucous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, and in all cases of catarrhs of these organs. It is a most effective cathartic, and cleanses the system of all impurities. It is often successful in affections of the heart, lungs and kidneys.

"The Favorite Prescription" is advised for the cure of all diseases—those peculiar to women—such as irregularities incident to women only. It is a powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and nerve. For weak women, over-worked women, or those who suffer from the breakdown, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, relieving the nervous system, and restoring the vigor and elasticity of a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

A book of particulars wraps each bottle giving the formula of each medicine, and the authors, whose works are consulted as guides in prescribing, of the practice of physicians of all the schools of practice from the olden times, and who know whereof they speak.

Both medicines are non-alcoholic, non-secret, and contain no opiates or habit-forming ingredients. They are composed of extracts of the roots of native American medicinal forest plants. They are sold by dealers in medicine, and can be sent by mail as a substitute for one of those medicines of known composition, any secret nostrum.

Dr. Pierce's Pills, small, sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

A Patient Dog.
My brother has two dogs, one a large mastiff, the other a tiny Spitz which he can hold in the hollow of his hand. The big dog, had been taught to lie down and face his food, but not to eat until the command, "Eat," had been given him. His mistress, in a hurry to leave for a day's shopping, gave him his breakfast one day, but forgot the permission to "eat," and when she returned late that night the faithful dog lay with his paws on the plate of food, but not a particle had been touched!

Some Men Get Up Six Times
during the night because their bladder is so inflamed that it will not retain more than a tablespoonful of urine. Some old men, especially, urinate twenty-five times a day. These are the men who need Bu-Ju—the Gentle Kidney Pill. The first few pills give relief. Acid urine is neutralized—the delicate membrane, lining the bladder, is soothed and the kidneys are strengthened and healed. Many say that Bu-Ju gave them the only uninterrupted night's sleep they had enjoyed in years. See a large box. At druggists or from The Clinif Chemical Co., Limited, Windsor, Ont. 57

CITY OF DISILLUSIONS

JOHANNESBURG THE GRAVE OF MANY DISAPPOINTED HOPES.

Suffering and Want Where the World's Greatest Gold Mines Are Located—Tragic Progressions of Unemployed—Fed Daily at Relief Camps—Spirit of Pessimism Prevails.

The cry of "distress in Johannesburg" has ceased by now to impress the inhabitants as a thing that will pass—as a temporary paradox. For a time people said it was inconceivable that a city so placed could ever suffer from more than a passing spasm of depression. Hope reigned supreme, and optimism was the cult of the day. But gradually hope has vanished—like a mist, and the disillusion has become complete. In a city whose southern boundary is a gold reef, extending for 30 miles, it is accepted as a truism that it is more difficult to earn a living than in most towns.

For many years men flocked here in search of a fortune or a home; their numbers increased, and their expectations were raised. But when it was found that the gold was not there, and the inevitable turn of the tide came, the result was a veritable famine of hope. Buildings were erected and big vestments were worn in anticipation of the day when the gold would come. The people started in anticipation of the day when the gold would come. The people started in anticipation of the day when the gold would come.

Hardships were cheerfully borne—when they were only temporary. The turn must come.

Such was the creed.

Then slowly the change came; pessimism arose, who painted the future blacker than the past or the present, declaring that the giant output of gold would never benefit the people, that worse was ahead. At first these men were scoffed at as cranks, but their numbers increased, and then they came to be regarded as truer prophets than those whose words had deceived them.

The seasons passed, and with them passed that spirit of hope which had sustained the peoples through many a crisis, political and financial. Every some news was added to show some new stoppage; the great sites, which were erected as temples of hope, stood waiting for their busy tenants, and the feeling arose that it would be better to go back to the old state. But that can never be done, and now they accept the news with a permanent gloom. Many have left for other countries, but more remain to fight it out to the end. Over all—those who have gone and those who stay—sits the shadow of disillusion—the very spirit of irony.

Daily processions of the unemployed are watched with apathetic eyes. The tragedy is keenly felt, but none now venture to suggest a remedy.

And surely the height of the disillusion is reached when 300 homeless, workless men march to the capital to interview a Boer colonial secretary, who greets them with sympathy, but warns them that they can offer little in the way of help. They are a mixture of men these, who have been parading the streets of Johannesburg lately to gain sympathy and funds for their cause. They look like wild dogs in the way of their clothing, and their professional men and clerks—men of education and ambition—are among them; for the Rand is a hard place in these days for the man who is down. Probably they arrived here in high hopes not long ago; and now all that is offered them is a shelter in a relief camp.

The Australian Government has stepped in and helped some back to their own country, but the majority of these men have no prospects beyond the morrow. They get their scanty rations and sufficient shelter for wife and children—and something may happen some day. The breeze waits to them the dull roar of the blast mills, where gold is being won each minute. From the mill can be seen the white heaps of tailings, with a line of trucks ever tipping more. East and west the gaunt chimney stacks and headgears extend as far as the eye can see.

Truly, the disillusion is complete.

Blunt Dr. Dougal.
Dr. Dougal of Kelth, who was made an honorary member of the Aberdeen Society in 1795, had a reputation for bluntness. A talkative woman went to him one day and said to him, "Doctor, what is the matter with my tongue?" "Just needin' a rest," he replied shortly. On another day a patient went to him and complained, "I have a deal to suffer with my eyes, doctor," where upon he answered, "Better suffer with them than without."

A Great Polyglot.
Solomon Caesar Malen habitually conversed with his children in Latin but on his deathbed, when Solomon's son, began to recite a psalm in the familiar Vulgate of his youth, the dying man, scholar to the last, muttered "Non ita, non ita, Hebraice," so the son repeated it in Hebrew.

MR. TAIT ACCEPTS CALL

Wallaceburg, July 22.—The edict was read in Knox church yesterday by the Rev. Mr. Borland, announcing the induction of the Rev. Murray Tait, of St. Thomas, into the pastorate of Knox church here, on the evening of August 1.

Rev. Mr. Lindsay, of Dresden, will reside over the meeting. Rev. Hugh Swan will preach the sermon, while Rev. J. Rose will address the minister. Rev. A. H. MacGillivray will address the congregation.

At the close of the induction service a reception will be tendered the Rev. Mr. Tait by the congregation. The Rev. Mr. Borland congratulated Knox church on securing the services of Mr. Tait, as he was located recently in a town where Mr. Tait had charge and he knew that the congregation was getting a gentleman who would do good work in his midst. His late charge, which was at Claremont, was greatly benefited spiritually and otherwise, and the congregation were loath to lose him.

HIKED FOR SWEET LIBERTY.

Prisoner at Brockville Takes Advantage of Wash Day.

Brockville, July 23.—William Turner, better known as "Problem," a tough character, made a daring escape from the jail yesterday, where he was awaiting removal to the Central Prison on a six months' sentence for vagrancy. This was washday at the jail, and since his incarceration, seven weeks ago, Turner had been engaged at this work. The work had been completed, and with two prisoners, Turner was taken to the yard to hang out the clothes. Turnkey Wright was in charge and first assigned Turner to emptying a pail of ashes. He obeyed the command, but throwing the bucket on the pile, took advantage of the yard through a gate into the street. Up to a late hour last night he had not been recaptured.

There is such a thing as being oppressively good.

A CORRECTION. In the announcement of the Bechard-Bishop case, which appeared in this paper, it was stated through a clerical error that Bruce Bishop was to be tried on two charges, viz. obstructing a C. W. & L. E. conductor while on duty, and assaulting his father. It should have been stated that he was to come up on the first charge alone, as no charge of assault was laid against him.

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH. Although the weather was warm on Sunday there were good attendances at both services of the Central Baptist Church. The Rev. Mr. Roberts, of Leamington, preached. In the morning he spoke on self-sacrifice, and the rewards the Christian would receive for sacrificing his or her pleasures in order to do the work of God. In the evening he spoke upon the infinite love of God for His people here on earth. There was a good turnout at Sunday school in the afternoon, and it was announced that there would be a picnic at Electric Park for the children on Civic Holiday.

BISHOP IS DISMISSED

Details Of His Alleged Attack On Conductor Bechard

Prisoner May Come Up On Charge of Using Bad Language

Judge Houston's Court was crowded yesterday morning, when the case against Bruce Bishop, charged with obstructing a C. W. & L. E. conductor while the latter was on duty, came up. Bishop was dismissed with a severe reprimand on this charge, but it is likely that he may come up later on a charge of using improper language in a public place. By the testimony of Conductor Bechard, the complainant was to the effect that on the evening of July 12 Bishop got on his car on King street. As will be remembered, all accommodation both on the steam roads and the electric line was overcrowded on the twelfth. Bechard's car was packed, and there was standing room only when Bishop got on. Bechard claimed that as soon as Bishop got on, he commenced to complain about the poor accommodation. Bechard told him it could not be helped and that all lines were overcrowded with passengers that day. He further told the prisoner that there were four other cars going out, and that if he--Bishop--didn't like the accommodation he was getting he could have his money back, and take another car, whereupon Bishop commenced to swear and abuse the road. Bechard says that he again offered him his money back, and told him if he had any complaint to make to go to the C. W. & L. E. offices and make it. After the Aberdeen bridge was crossed, Bishop commenced swearing again. Bechard told him that he would have to get off the car. Bishop replied that he wouldn't get off. "I have heard enough from you," said Bishop, and Bechard says he grabbed him by the throat and one ear. A struggle followed, in which Bechard admitted hitting Bishop several times. The scuffle continued till the car was stopped, when both fell out on the pavement, with Bishop on top. Bishop afterwards struck Bechard several times. The motorman then came to the rescue and pulled Bishop off.

Bruce Bishop, the prisoner, when called upon, said that when he had asked Bechard about a seat for himself and his wife, Bechard had told him that if he didn't like it he could get off. He claimed that Bechard grabbed him first in the scuffle that followed. He said he never used any improper language. Cross-examined by Crown Attorney Smith, Bishop admitted having been up in Magistrate McDougall's Court no less than three times on charges of fighting. In each case he had been fined. One of these scraps took place at a dance in Wallaceburg. On the other hand, Conductor Bechard, under cross-examination by O. L. Lewis, counsel for the defence, admitted that he had previously had scraps with two other passengers--one named Martin, and another named O'Brien. Other witnesses who were called were Motorman Jess Dibley, Wm. Mead, Geo. Reid, Mrs. Wm. Tobey, Mrs. Mary Pettifer, Mr. and Mrs. Steen, and others.

ALDERMAN W. POTTER. Continued from Page 1. whose honesty and integrity could be questioned. Ald. Westman--I stated to the News in the interview which I had that I did not think that a five cent piece had passed to any member of the Council. I was honest in that respect. I know Ald. Potter well and I know that he was not crooked, and I stated that." It is at least worthy of note that the Banner did not include this part of Ald. Westman's interview in their "Pop-flop" article.

SAW MAN ON TRACK. Continued from Page 1. to collect some money and put my father's stuff in Mr. Whitson's yard. I never drink intoxicating liquors or smoke and was perfectly sane when I discovered man on the track. Read over and approved. (Signed) WALTER YOUNG. Witness A. H. SKIRVING.

NATURAL GAS KILLS. Tilbury, July 22.--A three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Dennison, of Tilbury East Township, was asphyxiated by natural gas Saturday afternoon. The little tot was playing in the yard with a couple of other small children, and after romping a while, two of the children went to the house and told their mother that their little brother was asleep on the grass. Upon going out Mrs. Dennison found her little child lying motionless beside a leaking gas pipe, and all efforts to resuscitate him failed. The body was taken to Toronto for interment. One always thinks one's own experience is a safe guide for everyone else to consider.

MID-SUMMER CUT-PRICE SALE

"How can Ball do it and Live?"

Was the pertinently put question of a big merchant from another big city, and likely he's gone home to figure it out. We've figured it out, we made our "living" prices weeks ago. This store was busy selling goods when other stores were quiet. You may call it "sensational" bargain giving or "frenzied" finance, but the facts are here in great big substantial piles of Dry Goods, and that we are selling the finest qualities at prices that wouldn't cover 'invoice' if we were buying over again. It's goods we bought for this season's trade that we're selling and every yard has to fly--now it's up to you to catch the flyers and save yourself dollars & dollars in the finest merchandise we've ever had to sell you. The Mid-Summer Sale is going a swift pace and you wouldn't wonder if you took the pains to see how prices are snapped in two.
