To Sell Summer Residents

City people in the country for the Summer can be sold groceries and meats by Long Distance. Some grocers (and butchers) call up out-of-town customers once a week and get their orders. Deliveries are made by truck or express.

Some grocers arrange with their customers before they leave town, to give this service. They say they can well afford to pay for Long Distance calls on weekly orders.

K. K. K. Cross Burns in Waterdown

Waterdown was the scene of a flaming Klan cross on Wednesday night, presumably the work of parties from Hamilton. The cross which was placed on the school grounds and burned about an hour, is similar in construction to others which has been seen in Hamilton and vicinity, being of iron piping rapped with oil soaked rags. An empty oil can was also left on the grounds.

Knox Church Anniversary

Anniversary Services will be held in Knox Presbyterian Church Sunday, November 2nd at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Rev. Russell McGillivray B. D., of Burlington, will officiate at both services.

On Thanksgiving night, November 10th, a Supper and Entertainment will be given. George E. Morley, B. A., of London, Dramatic Elocutionist, assisted by Hamilton and local talent will provide an excellent program. Admission to supper and concert 50 cents.

Women's Institute

The November meeting of the Waterdown Women's Institute will be held in the Memorial Hall Wednesday afternoon, November 5th. Miss Buckbee, the school nurse, will be present and address the meeting. A spelling match conducted by Mrs. Greene is also on the program. The music committee for the afternoon is Mrs. Geo. Reid and Mrs. Wm. Guenther. The ladies who promised fruit for the Mountain Ban, and any others who wish, are asked to bring it to this meeting. Dr. Holbrook has arranged for delivery and also the return of jars.

The marriage of Miss Elsie I. Nicholson of Hamilton, and Mr. Edward Gallin of this village, was solemnized by Archdeacon Forneret at All Saints Church, Hamilton, on Friday, October 24th.

The funeral of Patrick Gunshon took place from his daughter's home, Mrs. John Crusoe, at 9:30 Tuesday morning to St. Thomas Church, interment being at Holy Sepulchre cemetery.

"When Hearts Command"—

By ELIZABETH YORK MILLER

"When hearts command,
From minds the sagest counsellings depart."

Hugo smiled unconcernedly and shrugged his shoulders.

"That was all gone into when they tried me for shooting him. We needn't rake it up now."

"Certainly not, Hugo," Jean agreed hastily. "Only—whatever money Mrs. Egan has, you can make no claim on it. You're about the last person in the world who could do so."

Hugo's smile broadened a little. He looked almost enigmatic.

"She'll pay," he said, with a satisfied nod.

Gaunt and Jean exchanged glances, and Gaunt tapped his forehead significantly.

"You frightened the poor lady," he said with brutal directness. "No doubt she thought you still safe at Broadmoor, and to be suddenly confronted by the man who shot down her husband—well, she'd likely promise anything."

But Hugo was unaffected by this bold reference to his crime. He continued to smile—it had become a smirk now—sought in his waistcoat pocket for a tattered packet of cigarettes, lit one, puffed at it in such a way that furious sparks flew out, and swung one knee over the other, thus displaying his utter and perfect confidence in himself and what he had asserted.

Gaunt went back to the original argument with Jean, and he made use of what he did not believe in—Hugo's fortune that was to come from Mrs. Egan.

"Well, you can pay me back when you've more money," he said, and swept all the bills and memoranda into his pocket.

Jean's eyes filled with reproachful tears and Gaunt leaned across the table and took her hand, patting it gently.

"Won't you let me do anything for you and Alice?" he asked. "Could you be cruel enough not to give me just that one little morsel of pleasure?"

Hugo looked at him sidewise—a fluttering, admiring gaze—and blew out a perfect shower of sparks.

"You needn't be cruel, Jean," he prompted her. "Old Hector means well, and of course we can pay him back when Mrs. Egan settles her debt to me."

Carnay gave in, but principally because she was dreadfully short of money. They would have to pay their rooms at the hotel in lieu of proper notice, and taking this little villa was not nearly so cheap as it looked to be at four o'clock that morning. She considered that Gaunt been grossly extravagant in his bidding. Yet the thing had been quickly, as she had hoped it might be, and she realized now that herself she could never have managed it in so short a time. Such a relief that Hugo need not make any further appearance at the hotel.

But he left behind him Carrie Egan and the trail of unkind gossip which only a word or two from her might start. There was also Philip Ardeyne to be considered.

Jean had watched Dr. Ardeyne closely—oh, so closely. Could one say there was the slightest change in his manner towards Alice? Jean had not detected any. "Uncle John" seemed to have been accepted by him without question.

Her mind reviewed uneasily all that had taken place during the past five hours. Hadn't she herself made a few blunders? Her brows drew together in the weary effort to recall; her lips puckered dismally. How many times had she said "Hugo" instead of "John"? Perhaps it was only her imagination.

"I must see about things," she said vaguely. "You'll stay to supper, Hector?"

"I'll stay, but there's nothing for you to see about. Go in and lie down for awhile."

"Yes, you must take care of yourself," piped Hugo. "Hector and I have a lot to talk about. Men's talk. We haven't seen each other for so long, you know."

Jean hesitated for a brief moment, but she realized that Gaunt really wanted her to go, so she went, wondering what they would talk about when they were alone together.

CHAPTER XVII.

Dr. Ardeyne finished first with his share of the packing. Hugo's slender belongings all went into the two handbags and it did not take long to dispose of them.

The doctor was just about as unhappy as a man in love can be when things are not going altogether well. To begin with, there was the unalterable fact that he cared more for Alice than he had ever believed it would be possible for a man to care for any woman, and he was old enough to know his mind in that respect. Quite apart from any feeling of chivalry, there was his love for her. Yet what sort of a marriage could their be? How could he explain to her that she must never have any children? It was an explanation which would involve a great deal of suffering and humiliation for her.

On the surface, Hugo Smarle was no more than eccentric, and no more eccentric than thousands of other people. But this history of the Smarle family was a terrible one; and "Uncle John," the apparently harmless eccentric, had spent fifteen years of his life in captivity, a criminal lunatic. Yet not—in Philip Ardeyne's opinion—a dyed-in-the-wool homicidal maniac. Smarle's asylum record had been carefully kept, of course, and never once during the whole of those fifteen years was there one mark against him for violence or even for bad temper. He had been at times sulky, depressed, peevish, irritable, mischievous—but those adjectives apply to sane people as well as to lunatics. Confined in such a place as Broadmoor, with but the faintest hope of ultimate release, it would be strange indeed if a man did not occasionally lose patience and self-control. On the whole, Hugo Smarle's asylum record had been excellent. But one could not overlook the fact that he had killed a man, and although they had set him free as sane, he was by no means normal, and there was no way of being sure that, given certain circumstances, the old man would not assert itself. Ardeyne wished there was an extra room at the Villa Charmil, so that he might propose himself as a guest.

He felt that he ought to have a clear understanding with that preposterous Mrs. Carnay, but it would be difficult to broach the subject to her.

As he waited on the veranda of the hotel for Alice and the chambermaid to finish with the trunks, he debated the matter.

His conscience and his reason were all against this marriage. A different sort of man might have complained bitterly, if only to himself, that he had been trapped into the engagement. For that was what it was. Yet sometimes he felt a little sorry for Mrs. Carnay. She lived with such passionate unselfishness for her daughter, was so determined that Alice should be happy, that Ardeyne—now sharing those sentiments—could not altogether dislike her.

At this hour of the day the hotel verandah was always more or less deserted, and the doctor had it quite to himself. He ordered a cup of coffee and smoked a cigarette while he waited in the pleasant shadow cast by the big awnings. It was a very hot spring day, and already the various birds of passage were beginning to wing their way north, or to think about it. There would be no more new arrivals. Ardeyne's own holiday was drawing to its close.

As he sat on the balustrade, swinging one foot and thinking his gloomy, tangled thoughts, Mrs. Egan's car rounded the steep driveway and came to a stop before the hotel entrance. Her chauffeur, now restored to health and her service, jumped out and immediately got into conference with the assistant concierge. There was a ringing of bells and some shouting from the concierge to the lift-boy and from the lift-boy down a speaking tube to the porters' office. Then the chauffeur came back, walked around the silver car punching the tires in turn with his fist, opened the bonnet and looked into the engine, then lit a cigarette and began to undo straps on the luggage carrier. The lift-boy and assistant concierge came out to watch him, and presently the head waiter was seen hovering about inside hospitably ready to speed the parting guest. It gradually dawned upon Philip Ardeyne that Mrs. Egan might be going away.

This suspicion was confirmed presently by the appearance of her maid and luggage. The chauffeur and one of the porters began to strap on a couple of motor trunks; the maid, dressed for travelling, put small bags, rolls of rugs, umbrellas, parasols, golf-sticks and tennis racquets into the tonneau, reserving enough space in corner of the seat to tuck herself away.

Last of all came Mrs. Egan, hatless as usual, but encased in a big white coat and loose driving gloves. The chauffeur disposed of his cigarette and touched his cap. Everything was ready. The young manager stood near at hand to wish her good-bye and many happy returns; the head concierge, with his upturned moustache and ready smirk, had taken command of the door of the car.

"Going away?" Ardeyne asked, a little superfluously.

Mrs. Egan looked sidewise at him. There was a question in that glance, but he did not know what it was.

"Yes," she said. "I'm tired of this place. I'm going home."

"To England?" asked Ardeyne.

"N—no." She laughed a little nervously. "England isn't my home, really. I'm going to Kingston—Jamaica. I've just been looking up the boats, and I can catch one at Marseilles on Wednesday."

Ardeyne regarded her attentively. She certainly had the furtive manner of one who is running away. But from what? Surely not from Hugo Smarle. It should be the other way about, if anything.

"Isn't this rather sudden?" he asked.

Carrie Egan nodded and displayed her fine teeth in a smile, the quality of which was a little uncertain. She was a mysterious creature, hinting, always at subtleties which the ordinary mind is not quick enough to grasp. Here, as one might say, at a moment's notice she was flinging off to a distant portion of the world as unconcernedly—or less so—that Mrs. Carnay had taken the Villa Charmil.

"To tell you the truth, that awful little man, Smarle, gives me the shudders," she said. "Phil, you are a demon. You never let on that he was a relation of your precious Carnays and that you'd have him in tow. I suppose he's your patient?"

THE DELICATE GIRL

What Mothers Should Do as Their Daughters Approach Womanhood.

If growing girls are to become well-developed, healthy women, their health must be carefully guarded. Mothers should not ignore their unsettled moods or the various troubles that tell of approaching womanhood. It is an important time of life. Where pell-mell, headache, backache or other signs of anaemia are evident you must provide the sufferer with the surest means of making new blood.

Remember, pale bloodless girls need plenty of nourishment, plenty of sleep, and regular open-air exercise. But to save the bloodless sufferer she must have new blood—and nothing meets the case so well as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills increase the supply of new, red blood; they stimulate the appetite and relieve the weary back and limbs; thus they restore health and charm, and bring to anaemic girls the rosy cheeks and bright eyes of a happy girlhood.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Wise Pat.

An Irishman called at a dairy and asked the dairyman if he could supply him with a dozen eggs laid by a black hen.

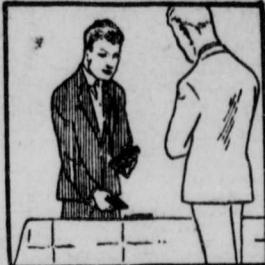

The dairyman was amazed at the Irishman's strange order, but informed Pat that he could pick them out himself.

After Pat had picked out his eggs, the dairyman asked him how he could distinguish eggs laid by a black hen.

"Oh, shure, man," replied Pat, "they're always the biggest."

When the winds fail, take to the stars.

EASY TRICKS One Hundred

Two packs of playing cards are usually used for this trick but matches, toothpicks, buttons, coins, etc., can be used. You will take fifty of the cards and your friend will take fifty. Then you declare you will show him an obviously fair game at which he cannot win.

You claim the privilege of dealing first and deal one card. He is to place on that card not more than ten cards. You are to deal alternately, the player dealing the 100th card winning.

The secret is simple and after you understand it thoroughly you will not have to claim the privilege of dealing first. Always deal on the other fellow's cards, enough to bring the total to one more than the next multiple of eleven. As he cannot add more than ten at a time, he will reach a point where he cannot prevent you from dealing the 89th card. The best he can do is to deal ten and you will need only to deal one card to make 100. If the other player understands the trick you will be unable to win unless you deal first and deal one card only.

(Clip this out and paste it, with other of the series, in a scrapbook.)

Adding her voice to the thousands who are praising Tanlac for the recovery of their health and strength, Mrs. Margaret Cranker, 84 Louis St., Brockville, Ont., says:

"Tanlac is such a grand, good medicine and has done so much for me that I will praise it. Following a spell of typhoid fever, two years ago, I was just a shadow of myself and remained so weak I couldn't walk across the floor. Stomach pains and backache tortured me and I was almost frantic from nervousness.

"My husband, who had used Tanlac with fine results, persuaded me to try it, too, and it proved to be just what I needed. Six bottles helped me back to health and strength and I also gained 12 pounds. That was two years ago and I have felt fine ever since. As a stomach medicine and tonic Tanlac is certainly wonderful."

Wembly's Naval Battles.

The Navy is represented at the British Empire Exhibition. A special water stage, seventy feet wide, has been erected, and on this indoor ocean ships take part in representations of famous battles.

Two of the most important British victories—the Armada and Trafalgar—are depicted with remarkable detail. It is impossible to portray the battle of Jutland in the same way owing to the immense area of sea over which it was fought. It has been decided, however, to illustrate the Navy's part in modern warfare by typical episodes of a naval action of to-day, and the storming of Zeebrugge is presented in full detail.

Spectators survey the whole history of the evolution of the ship of war and of the merchant ship, shown in a procession of vessels each of which is modelled upon its famous original from the Mora, A.D. 1066, to H.M.S. Hood, A.D. 1920; and from the high-poled, square-rigged merchantmen of the Normans to the steam-driven steel cargo boats of to-day.

Gave Wife as Royal Token.

In the early days of Virginia the head of all the allied tribes of Indians was Powhatan, father of Pocahontas. In Powhatan was centred all governmental powers. He had a royal retinue as bodyguard, composed of 60 or 70 of the most stalwart and fearless Indian warriors. His subjects planted all his corn and gathered for him when it was ripe. He had a large treasure house of many valuable possessions, such as skins, copper, paint and beads and arms of all kinds, and he had to himself the responsibility of many wives.

Most of the wives he left at home when he made excursions, but always carried with him two or more wherever he went. He is said to have had 20 sons and 12 daughters. When for any reason he became tired of a wife he gave her away to some of his friends as a token of his royal favor.

Powhatan had little relish for the coronation ceremonies that were inflicted upon him, and it is said that he accepted the gifts sent by the king of England with some apprehension, believing that in some way or other he would be obliged to give an account of them.

Danger of Blow Torch.

Do not permit painters to burn off old paint with a torch. There are several inexpensive liquid paint removers on the market which will do the work better. Warn plumbers and repair men to exercise every precaution in using blow torches or heaters about a building. Carelessness of workmen has caused many fires. Our church was recently set on fire when a blow torch, used on the bottom of a door, ignited paper on the other side.

CUTICURA HEALS SKIN TROUBLE

Face Broke Out In Pimples. Were Disfiguring.
Extremely Sore.

"My face broke out in a mass of pimples that were very annoying as well as disfiguring. The pimples were small, hard, red lumps at first, but increased in size and came to a head. The pimples were extremely sore and tender, and I was very much discouraged."

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I purchased more, and after using two cans of Cuticura Soap, together with the Cuticura Ointment, I was healed." (Signed) Miss Alberta Moore, Salt Springs Sta., Nova Scotia.

For every purpose of the toilet and bath, Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum are excellent.

Bargain in Newspapers

The Review has concluded an arrangement with the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal by which we can offer the greatest bargain ever given to newspaper readers. The offer includes a full year's subscription to both papers, an art calendar with a most beautiful picture subject ready for framing, and an opportunity to win a $5,000 prize.

In the Federal Election of 1921 there were 3,119,306 votes cast out of a total of 4,435,310 on the voters list. How many votes will be polled in the next Federal election?

The Family Herald and Weekly Star are offering $10,000 in 94 prizes for the best estimates, and our arrangement with the publishers of that great weekly gives every Review subscriber an opportunity to make an estimate and perhaps win the capital prize of $5,000. Some person will win. Why should it not be you.

Read This Bargain

The Review costs $1 per year, the Family Herald and Weekly Star costs $2 per year. We now offer a full year's subscription to both papers, including a copy of the Family Herald Art Calendar and the right to make one estimate in The Family Herald's Election Contest.

All for $2

Estimates must be made at time of subscribing, and no changes will be permitted afterwards. Order now at this office.

Here and There

Although the Canadian Pacific Railway has yet issued no forecast of construction contemplated for 1924, the fact that it has ordered 50,000 tons of steel from the Algoma Steel Company, of Sault Ste. Marie, seems to indicate that its program will be extensive.

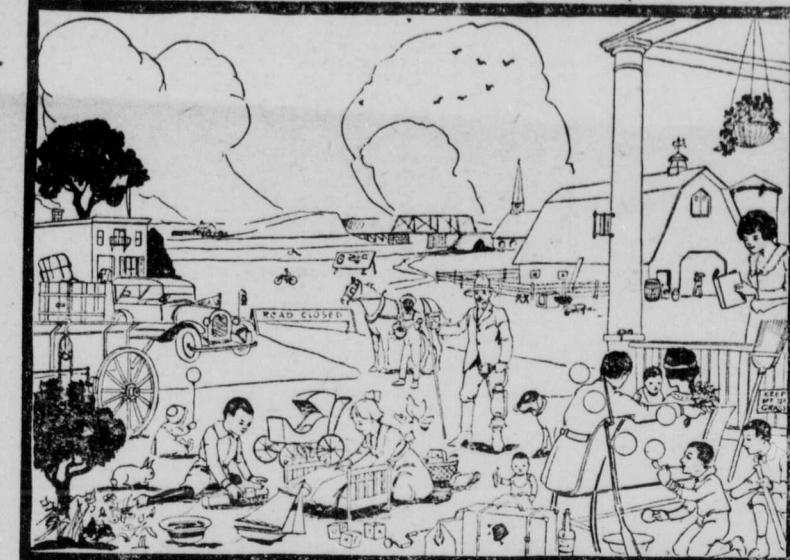

According to a statement recently made by the Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines for the Province of Ontario, 85 per cent of the world's nickel supply is being taken out in the vicinity of Sudbury, where there is an inexhaustible supply of this metal.

Alberta's butter production last year was 18,500,000 pounds, or 2,000,000 pounds more than in 1922, according to reports presented at the annual meeting of the Alberta Dairymen's Association. It was not so long ago that Alberta was using butter imported from New Zealand.

The year 1923 was a favorable one in the building and construction activities of Canada, and returns show an advance of about 10 per cent. In 1923 the total expenditures in this regard were $315,000,000, and in 1922 $345,000,000, an increase of $30,000,000.

Exports of pulpwood from Canada for the year 1923 amounted to 1,884,230 cords, compared with 1,011,832 for 1922, an increase of 372,898 cords or 35 per cent. The 1923 figures are equivalent to about 900,000 tons of newsprint, the amount which can be manufactured from that amount of wood.

C. E. E. Ussher, General Passenger Traffic Manager, and E. J. Hebert, First Assistant General Passenger Agent, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, have been presented with medals by the French Government, in recognition of their services to the French Exhibition train in Canada in 1921. The medals take the form of tablets on small stands.

The above picture contains a number of objects beginning with the letter "B". Just take a good look at the picture—there are all sorts of things that begin with the letter "B"—like "boy", "buggy", "baby" and so forth. Nothing is hidden; you don't have to turn the picture upside down. Make a list of all the objects in the picture, the names of which begin with the letter "B". Have the whole family join in—see who can find the most. Don't miss any. Fifty cash prizes will be awarded for the fifty best lists of words submitted. Young and Old Join in the Fun

The Mail and Empire announces to-day another puzzle game in which all can participate—from the tiniest child to grandfather and grandmother. No object is so small but that the poorest eyesight can see it. It is a test of skill. Your ability to find "B" words determines the prize you win. Right after supper this evening, gather all the members of your family together; give each of them a pencil and a sheet of paper—and see who can find the most "B" Words. You will be surprised to find how large a list of words you can get with a few minutes' study. Sit down NOW and try it—Then, send in your list and try for the big prizes.
