Consecration of Mt. Calvary Evangelical Lutheran Church at Upper Northfield.

"O that men would praise the Lord for His goodness and for His wonderful works to the children of men. Praise the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all His benefits. Such were the the feelings with which the hearts of the Lutheran people of Upper Northfield were filled on Sunday, the 16th day of November. That was to them, indeed, a day of gladness and of rejoicing; for it was the day that marked the successful close of many months of toil and sacrifice in the erection of a house to the glory of God. On that day Mt. Calvary stood forth complete, beautiful and graceful in the centre of its pretty little valley—a perpetual reminder to all who pass that way that the sacrifice made upon Calvary is the centre of the Christian's faith and hope and life. On that day this house which they had builded was to be solemnly set apart and dedicated to the worship and the service of the Triune God. The day itself was propitious. The dull drizzly weather that prevailed for several days before gave way on Sunday morning to the bright warm sunshine of a fine November day. And at the appointed hour the people of Mt. Calvary with their friends from far and near joyfully turned their footsteps toward their new spiritual home. Before them marched the pastors in their vestments and the officers bearing the Holy Bible and the sacred vessels. As the procession reached the door, the beautiful, impressive dedication service of song, responses and prayer was begun. This was continued as the procession moved slowly up the aisles to the altar, upon which the Bible and the sacred vessels were deposited. After the reading of the lessons and the dedication prayer the Church was formally set apart and consecrated as a House of God by the Rev. L. M. McCreery, the President of the Nova Scotia Lutheran Conference. This was followed by the regular order of morning service beginning with the Nicene Creed. An eloquent and instructive dedication sermon was then preached by the Rev. J. Maurer of Rose Bay from the 22nd Psalm. In the afternoon services were again held and sermons preached by Revs. Little and Weaver of the New Germany and Lunenburg parishes. In the evening the Vesper service was used and sermons preached by Revs. Lindtved of Bridgewater and Beck of Mahone Bay. The attendance at all these services was large and the free will offerings taken up during the day amounted to $115. A marked feature of the worship was the excellent rendering of both morning and vesper services with full musical setting by the congregation, led by the choir. All who were in the vast congregations that gathered for the different services seemed to enjoy the occasion and to feel that it was good to be there.

The Church Edifice is Corinthian in style and is a model of Convenience and Elegance. The main building is 30 feet wide by 40 feet long. To this is attached a tower, 7 by 8 feet in front and a chancel, 11 by 12 feet in the rear. To the right of the Chancel is the vestry room and to the left a handsome stall for the choir. The altar, the pulpit, the reading desk and the chancel railing are all of oak beautifully carved and varnished. The pews are a combination of taste and comfort. The windows are of leaded sash finished with Cathedral and variegated glass, and present a pretty effect. The walls are finished with pure white plastering and the ceiling with artistic steel-sheeting.

Among the most attractive features of the Church are the three stained glass mullion windows that occupy the back of the chancel. The middle one of these contains a representation of the Holy Bible; the other two contain symbols of the two Sacraments, Holy Baptism and the Lord's Supper. These windows together with the Chandeliers, pulpit Bible, handsome silver Communion set and Baptismal bowl were secured from friends in the States through the instrumentality of the pastor's wife, who in this, as in every other good work, has been a helpmeet for him. Among the other presents made to the congregation were; first of all, the land on which the church stands, presented by Councilor Jacob Penney; a pulpit chair, given by Joshua Lohnes and James Penney; a Bible for the reading desk, presented by Mrs. Charles Dorey, of Mahone Bay, formerly a member of the congregation; and the carpet in the Chancel, presented by the ladies of the congregation. The splendid bell in the tower, which cost $125, was largely paid for by money collected by Mr. Joshua Lohnes. The total cost of the Church is in the neighborhood of $4000. But no money or pains were wasted in its construction, and the result is one of the handsomest buildings in this part of the County. When it is remembered that Mt. Calvary congregation was organized with only 42 members less than a year and a half ago, June 20, 1901, one is amazed at the rapid progress made. The Church is a credit to the community and a standing monument to the untiring energy and zeal of the pastor, the Rev. L. M. McCreery, and to the noble support given him by his people. They have the consciousness of duty well done and the satisfaction of seeing their labors in the Lord rewarded. May the Lord bless them and all who worship with them as they now enter upon the fruit of their labours.

Here is an English journalist's description of 1902, considered meteorologically:—"Everybody has been complaining of the present year, and not unreasonably. How many well-earned and longed-for holidays it has spoiled! How many days of enforced hard work have its piercing winds and cheerless skies rendered more than ordinary trying! In a couple of months we shall have said good-bye to it, and their will be little sadness in the farewell. We said good-bye to the spring without regret, for, indeed, there was no spring. We said good-bye to the summer without regret, for indeed there was no summer. It seems that now we shall say good-bye to the autumn without regret, for who will dream of calling it 'season of mellow fruitfulness, close bosom-friend of the maturing sun'? The corn fields never ripened to gold. The apples never reddened in the orchards. The very blackberries on the hedges for all their promised profusion hang their still stunted." Our summer was not quite as bad as that. Apples, tomatoes and grapes ripened, and as a compensation for a cool, wet summer we have had a fine fall.

It is charged not only that American manufacturers sell cheaper abroad than at home, but that they pay their workmen lower wages for making export goods. This would certainly be an astonishing result of the American invasion. American workmen have for many years stood by protection as a means of defending them from the "pauper labor of Europe." Now that American manufacturers are invading the European field, it is alleged that they must come down to the European standard of wages. If this is true, the American workman will not look forward with joy to the conquest of the industrial world by American manufacturers, because the more goods are exported the less their average wages will be.

Notes and Comment.

A general improvement in trade conditions in the Island of Jamaica has already public discontent, and annexation is now not mentioned.

The Christmaside of 1902 should be a merry and joyous season with the farmers of Manitoba. From their wheat crop alone they will have divided up between them some $30,000,000.

An old Scotchman's advice to his son, was: "Wullie, when yere doing naething else, plant a tree; it'll be growing while yer sleepin." Along the fences and in vacant corners, in this County, tree planting would not be a bad investment.

The appointment of Mr. Flint, M. P., for Yarmouth as Clerk of the House of Commons, is an excellent one. Mr. Flint will be the first Liberal who has ever held that distinguished position. He is well qualified both by ability and temperament for the office.

As an aid to preserve and popularize the Gaelic or Irish language and music movement in Ireland, open air meetings are being held where speakers and singers in Gaelic attract people and arouse their interest. At a recent Sunday meeting in Dublin there were Gaelic songs and a Gaelic address, coupled with Father Prout's grand song, "The Bells of Shannon," in Gaelic.

It is said that nearly 3,000 quakers will settle in the Northwest next year. This will be done only through the efforts of Joseph Elkington, the wealthy Philadelphia quaker and philanthropist. This gentleman and his good people had considerable to do with locating the Doukhobors in Canada. It might be a wise move for the Government to locate the new colony close up to the Doukhobors line fence.

The Charlottetown prohibition act is likely to be repealed. Last week a temperance delegation, seeking its enforcement, were politely informed by Premier Peters that such legislation was evidently not suited to Charlottetown, and that to remedy the evils complained of the Government's attention was being given to practical legislation. The Island prohibition law is on a par with the Scott Act. Both should be repealed.

Notwithstanding the talk over the border of reciprocity with Canada, the recent elections there show that the protection sentiment throughout the country has a remarkable hold on the American people, and more particularly is this true of the great agricultural states, twelve of which went nearly solid for the Republicans and protection. Take the Eastern states, for instance, while the cities and towns, with a few exceptions, went Democratic and free trade, the agricultural districts went Republican and protection. The expectation is that in the rural districts the electors think before voting, and that they believe that protection is the best policy for them.

A dispute over four ballots in North Grey, has resulted in both parties agreeing to open the constituency and so avoid the expense of a protracted trial. The seat is Liberal by a small majority. So far two Conservative seats have been vacated and one Liberal. A second Liberal vacancy is caused by death. Theoretically this reduces Ross majority to two, with two Liberal and two Conservative seats vacant.

The Ottawa Citizen has an editorial on the Post Office Department, in the course of which it says:—"The Citizen believes in giving credit where credit is due, even to a political opponent, and we think some congratulation is due to Sir William Mulock on the fact that he can show even a small surplus, $5,000 in the Post Office Department, as the result of the past year's work. It could only have been accomplished by considerable hard work and close attention to the details of the department under his charge, in which he had the co-operation of an able staff."

Toronto Globe: It comes as a surprise to learn that there is still a civilized country in the world in which religious liberty is not recognized. In Peru no public religious services can be held except by Roman Catholics. Protestants endeavor to get round the law by issuing tickets of admission to their worshippers. Rev. John Lee of Peaton, Ill., has taken the matter up, and by the exercise of some persistence he has got the English, German and United States Governments to instruct their representatives in Peru to do whatever they can to convince the Peruvian Government of the illiberality of the present rate.

Railway managers will soon have a choice between the Standard Oil Trust and the coal combine. On the western division of the Southern Pacific Railway 63 locomotives are now operated by oil and 83 are to be converted from coal to oil burners. During September last the oil-burning engines travelled 200,000 miles, and the coal-burning engine 306,000 miles. It is claimed that the use of oil effects a saving of from $16 to $20 per hundred miles.

At a meeting of the Dominion Cabinet last week, writs were issued for the vacancies in Argenteuil and Maisonneuve in Quebec, and Yarmouth. Nominations will take place on Wednesday, Nov. 26, polling Dec. 3rd. Terrebonne and Two Mountains are in the courts on an appeal, so no writs can be issued for them for some time. In North Grey the remaining vacancy in Ontario, the election will be held in January. Argenteuil was vacated by the death of Thomas Christie, late Liberal member, who was returned with 320 majority. There will be a contest. In Maisonneuve, Hon. J. B. Prefontaine will be returned by acclamation. The Yarmouth vacancy is caused by the appointment of the sitting member to the clerkship of the Commons. Terrebonne is represented by Hon. Mr. Prefontaine, but an election trial is pending. Two Mountains was represented by Jas. A. C. Ethier, who was elected by 132 majority. The seat was vacated by the courts, but an appeal has been taken to the Supreme Court. In North Grey, the late Edward H. Horsley (Liberal) had a majority of 19.

MISAPPLIED ENERGY.

The Montreal Homestead has the following article, which should be read with interest:

"Perhaps one of the saddest things conceivable is the persistent misapplication of energy in any department in life. It is not merely a case of fruitful labor, or comparatively so; the bitterness lies rather in this consideration; that had one-half of that earnest though ill-directed effort been properly applied, the encouragement of success would have replaced the chronic discouragement of a result akin to failure.

Now failure is not necessarily a reproach it cannot be so when a man can say with clear conscience: 'I have done my very best, I have consulted every authority likely to aid me in my venture, and I have worked on the most enlightened basis, and to the limit of modern research and experience.' Many instances of failure even under such conditions are on record; in fact, it may be truthfully said that great industries all over the world have been gradually developed to a profitable basis from the ashes of fruitless labor, aimless groping in darkness, from the ashes of broken hearts. Most great things have but small commencements, and in the majority of cases the experiences of their pioneers is little more than the laying of stepping stones on which a later generation may rise in better things.

The foregoing remarks are, however, general, and the purpose here is to touch on what is certainly the most flagrant local instance of misapplied energy—that of our agricultural community. This must be only too evident to every up-to-date agriculturist; and it is difficult to decide just whether it is pitiable or contemptible, simply because such misapplication of agricultural energy is absolutely inexcusable in this period of agricultural enlightenment. There is no need to grope in darkness and to glean knowledge from a series of bitter experiences; and there is less need and as little reason to systematically repeat such experiences with each succeeding year. And yet this hopeless condition of affairs confronts everywhere through these provinces. We see men toiling from early morning till night, really toiling and sparing themselves no manner of pains, and all to scrape the merest human necessities from a farm which, properly worked, ought to yield handsomely in response to but half the toil so faithfully misdirected.

And why is it that it seems to be impossible to convince such hard working toilers of their methods, of the leakage of their labor, of the less laborious and infinitely more profitable means both of raising crops and handling live stock. In most trades and professions men eagerly watch for each fresh discovery which will increase production and lessen its cost; and the discoverer of such gains universal acknowledgement, and his name goes down to history, in all probability, with a title prefixed. In agriculture, however, the majority of our people actually resent the introduction of new and more intelligent methods; they scoff at them, and will not even try them and stranger still, they will not look over the fences and note the difference alike in the farm as in the home of their progressive neighbor—the man who reads and who puts the knowledge he has acquired through careful reading to practical use. No, our average farmer prefers with an almost childish stubbornness to toil himself into premature age in the old laborious rut of traditional agriculture that was good enough for his father; it is good enough for him. And it is putting it well within the mark to affirm that over fifty per cent of such a misguided individual's toil availeth nothing.

Let us consider the matter for a moment from a moral standpoint. It is simple to demonstrate the fact that the unprogressive farmer's offense is more than a mere national matter, for in not accepting of the agricultural enlightenment which the Almighty has placed within his reach through the patient researches of experts he is actually prostituting his God-given intelligence by persistently denying its promptings and hardening his heart against the reception of truth. Now, were such truths likely to detrimentally affect his worldly welfare, one could understand their emphatic rejection. The fact that it is just the other way about makes the rejection of progressive agriculture by the majority of our farmers one of the most inconceivable puzzles in human experience.

Ignorance is no plea; nowadays farmers can all read, and in these provinces they have the advantage of two good agricultural papers—The Homestead and the Maritime Farmer—not to speak of others which come in from outside. Then there are institutes and exhibitions with their ring and platform lectures on subjects of the greatest moment to farmers—in fact, in no other country under heaven is there more done to urge the farmer to more progressive methods, to lead him, nay, even to draw him into them, than in this Canada of ours. Another remark might be appended, though it is scarcely required, that is, that in no other country have similar, though infinitely feebler efforts met with so disappointing a response. The Dominion government has piped to our farmers and they have not danced.

In endeavoring to fathom the root of our agricultural conservatism, one feature prominently asserts itself as one of its leading causes; our farmers have not yet accepted their profession as intellectual; they have not yet soared above the realm of drudgery—a mere matter of physical strength and endurance, exerted without the guidance of intelligence—that is, cultivated intelligence; in simple words, a matter of muscle and not brain. Was ever such a monstrous error!

Until our farmers realize as the most living truth, next to that of their religious faiths, that muscle is nothing without brain in all matters agricultural, the agricultural progress of these provinces will continue a matter of the dreariest and most desperately melancholy evolution. Our great grandchildren may see a better condition of things if they live to a ripe age. So far, the thin edge of progression has scarcely more than been inserted. We are inoculated with conservatism against the inroads of agricultural progress. There has been too much done for us, and the number and variety of efforts made on our behalf has robbed them of novelty, and appreciation has lapsed to indifference.

What sensible man can conscientiously assert that any trade or profession outside of agriculture requires the exertion of more intelligence, more brain sweat than does agriculture? Most progressive farmers will emphatically affirm that farming calls for more strenuous brain exertion than any other means of livelihood, and it is even so. The brain must work more than the hand, and the hand be the servant of the brain merely. If a farmer is not employing his brain and hands conjointly, there can be no noble element enter in his life of his work. Such men are a reproach to the robust, the grandest and most intellectual of all professions that of the agriculturist. And it is just because his profession, in its proper conditions, is intensely intellectual that it is so noble; and for this reason the frail mannikin who deigns to look down upon the progressive tiller of the soil proves himself a senseless and abandoned idiot.

The foregoing remarks may appear to be rather hard, but their hardness lies in the fact of their truthfulness, and they are the result of a recent somewhat extensive tour throughout these provinces. There is no space here to particularize the various branches in which agricultural stagnation is most conspicuously evident; that has been done in these columns over and over again; but one thing, however, might be commented upon, and that is the absence of clover growing, both as feed and as a fertilizer. What a pity it is. And this is the only objection one hears to clover; 'Oh, it dies out, and that is why I don't sow it.' This reply, or rather objection, conclusively proves that the matter has never received one moment's thoughtful consideration from the individual who utters it. Yet, the altogether remarkable advantages of clover cultivation have been harped upon for a long time now in agricultural papers, and in addition, our experimental farms and Ottawa experts have given us the results of careful experiments which alone would convince anyone open to conviction. But there is the rub; how many of our farmers are open to conviction? For answer one has merely to look on our general agricultural condition to-day; our live stock, cattle and horses, the absence of sheep, the fact that the entire annual pork produced in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick would scarcely suffice to keep one small local packingery going full-swing for three months; and to that appended the fact that we are only beginning to discover that fruit can be grown to as great perfection in New Brunswick as in Nova Scotia. Of course, somebody said long ago that apples could not grow in the very places where they are now grown to perfection, and if orchard work is faithfully exploited in New Brunswick now, we shall yet see that province on a par with Nova Scotia as a producer of the finest apples grown.

The whole of this article may be summed up thus: Let the unprogressive farmer be convinced that he is working probably twice as hard as his progressive brother with, very likely, less than half the results, that unprogressive methods involve a wastage of at least one half of his toil, that it is, therefore, easier and more profitable to be progressive than to remain unprogressive; that while an unprogressive farmer deserves to be looked down upon, an intellectual, up-to-date farmer is a man to be honored and respected. And, in conclusion, agricultural ignorance can never be so unextenuated, no plea for agricultural literature is cheap; so is the dose of medicine that saves a life. The brain must guide the hand, and the two work in unison; old and inadequate methods have been relegated to the limbo of the forgotten past, for science and the studious research of patient men have given to us one and all never and better things."

When it Hurts To Cough
The cough that hurts, the cough that gets tight in the chest is daily getting deeper and deeper into the bronchial tubes and is making directly for the lungs, to become pneumonia, inflammation of the lungs or consumption. Such coughs are sometimes referred to as "graveyard coughs," because they usually bring their victims to that last resting place.
Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has long been known as Mother's favorite remedy for coughs, bronchitis, croup and colds. It gives by far the largest sale of any similar preparation.
It loosens the tightness in the chest, allays the inflammation, cures the cold and prevents pneumonia, consumption and other lung troubles. 25 cents, all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

REJECTED BECAUSE OF BAD COLOR
Hundreds of packages of butter are rejected each week by expert butter buyers in Canada, simply because the color is bad. The shade demanded by home consumers and for export is the June golden tint which can only be produced by Wells, Richardson & Co's Improved Butter Color. Other colors sold by some dealers are poor imitations, and must continue to give trouble and cause loss of money to all who use them. The government creameries and schools and the most experienced bremerymen and dairymen in Canada use Wells, Richardson & Co's Improved Butter Color at all seasons for the production of prize butter. No mud, no impurities; every drop pure and clear. All druggists and dealers.
London kills 11 tons of salt a day. Paris only 4 tons.
To Increase Your Weight.
If you are thin, weak and emaciated and want to increase your flesh and weight you should try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You can feel it doing you good from day to-day, as it strikes at the root of trouble and creates new rich blood. You can prove that it builds up new tissue and adds flesh if you weigh yourself each week while using it.

Loss of Flesh
When you can't eat breakfast, take Scott's Emulsion. When you can't eat bread and butter, take Scott's Emulsion. When you have been living on a milk diet and want something a little more nourishing, take Scott's Emulsion. To get fat you must eat fat. Scott's Emulsion is a great fattener, a great strength giver.
Those who have lost flesh want to increase all body tissues, not only fat. Scott's Emulsion increases them all, bone, flesh, blood and nerve.
For invalids, for convalescents, for consumptives, for weak children, for all who need flesh, Scott's Emulsion is a rich and comfortable food, and a natural tonic.

The Week's News.

Brockville, Ont., Nov. 24.—Mrs. Laflamme, of this town, visiting in St. Mary's, Ont., with her daughter, Mrs. K. C. Smith, has had her right arm amputated at the elbow. She was suffering from blood poisoning, and an operation was necessary to save her life. Some time ago, while peeling a pear, she accidentally cut her thumb. Blood poisoning developed with the result stated. Dr. Smith performed the operation, and thinks that unless complications arise that she will recover.

New York, Nov. 24.—William C. Mahoney, 23 years old, said to be a member of a wealthy Boston family and a graduate of Harvard, has committed suicide in this city because a woman who had refused to marry him, and caused his arrest twice recently for persisting in his intentions, had declared her purpose of marrying another. The woman, whose home is said to be in Paris, was employed in this city as a designer. Mahoney called upon her, entered a violent protest against her intended marriage, and then poisoned himself in her presence.

Stamford, Conn., Nov. 24.—One of the most daring and successful robberies ever perpetrated in this city took place early evening in the jewellery store of Alexander Weed, and as a result that merchant has lost diamonds valued at about $4,000. Shortly before 7 o'clock a stranger entered the store and requested Mr. Weed to show him some diamond rings. The jeweller produced two trays containing 21 diamond rings. At this juncture Frederick Sacket, a New York messenger, entered and retired to the further end of the store. Mr. Weed left his customer for a moment when the stranger made a hasty exit, saying as he went out: "I have got what I want."

Brantford, Ont., Nov. 24.—An unknown man visited this city on Saturday and passed a number of bogus cheques on local merchants. The exact amount of the defalcations is not yet known, but five cases have already been discovered, the amount of the cheques in each instance being about ten dollars. It transpires that the stranger, who is a young man of thirty-five years of age, dark complexion and round-shouldered, arrived on Saturday morning, having come directly from Harrisburg. Upon arriving in Brantford he procured a number of Standard Bank cheques and made them out for various amounts, ranging about ten dollars. In all cases the cheques were made payable to himself, Charles Gibson, and were signed by "The Mickle-Dymont Lumber Company."

Quebec, Nov. 24.—Captain Bernier arrived in Quebec on Saturday last from Ontario, when he went nearly three months ago to lecture and seek support in aid of his expedition to the North Pole. He says that he is now ready to build his expedition for the Arctic regions. He is confident that he will succeed in reaching the pole. Captain Bernier has worked four years in his endeavors to obtain financial aid for his project, and during that time has made frequent trips to Europe and spent $25,000 of his own savings. The Dominion Government has promised him $60,000 conditionally that he raised a similar amount, and if the province of Quebec Government comes to his aid with a grant he will have succeeded in obtaining the requisite money, when he will commence the construction of his vessel at this port.

An Aching Back
Is the first indication of kidney disease, and should be taken as a signal of danger—a warning to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills while yet there is time to avoid the dreadful pains and certain fatality of this terrible disease. There is no guess work, no experimenting when you use this prescription. It brings relief in a remarkably short time, and because of its combined action of liver and kidneys, cures complicated cases which cannot be reached by any ordinary treatment.

St. John, Nov. 24.—As a result of several conferences between John F. Stairs and other Halifax capitalists, and the directors of the Alexander Gibson Company, of this province, a financial deal of great importance and magnitude was practically completed to-day. The new company will be capitalized at $6,000,000. The properties involved are the Canada Eastern railway, extending from Fredericton to Chatham; the Gibson cotton mill at Marysville, said to be the largest single establishment of the kind in Canada; the Gibson lumber lands, comprising 250,000 acres free hold; the large lumber mill at Marysville, with two smaller ones; a grist mill at Blackville; a brick yard at Marysville, and the whole village of Marysville, including several hundred dwellings, with shops, a church and other properties.

New York, Nov. 24.—Delia Mulligan, who came from Ireland in October and secured work as a servant here, has laid in a state of coma at the J. Hood Wright hospital for the past 23 days. Her case is almost as puzzling and interesting to the doctors as that of Nellie Corcoran, who died after her three weeks' trance in St. Vincent hospital. Only twice in the whole period has the girl spoken and then it was to mutter a few words, which showed that she was delirious. The girl was taken to the hospital suffering from partial asphyxiation, due to blowing out the gas. The usual means of resuscitation were used. The only effect was to restore the patient's appetite. Her pulse and temperature became normal. The state of coma has, however, resisted the doctors' best efforts, and they have given up hope of restoring her to consciousness.

Auburn, N. Y., Nov. 24.—John Truck was put to death in the electric chair in the state prison here this morning. Virgil Truck's crime was committed in the town of Cortland County, on the night of March 14, 1890. Neighbors discovered the house of Frank W. Miller, who lived alone, in flames. Before the burning dwelling had been entirely consumed they made out the body of a man in the ruins. Water was thrown upon the body to prevent cremation, and it was afterward identified as Miller's. The autopsy showed that death had occurred before fire had touched the body, the skull having been crushed by a blunt instrument. It was known that Truck had spent the night before with Miller and had been in the neighborhood for several days. The next day Miller's wagon was discovered in Truck's barn, in Homer, and when arrested Truck was wearing Miller's clothes, and had his watch and his horse and wagon. He claimed to have bought the latter, but told several conflicting stories. He was convicted and sentenced to the chair.

New York, November 24.—Mrs. Doxheimer, who asserts that until she became a member of the First M. E. church at Hoboken two years ago, she was associated with an anarchistic society in that place, is reported to have related to the Mothers' Club and the pastor of her church, in a moment of religious fervor and excitement, a story of alleged anarchist plottings against the life of President Roosevelt. According to Mrs. Doxheimer, three persons have been assigned in these last fourteen months to the task of "removing" the president. Of these a Frenchman named Meloy, she says she persuaded to return to Paris, where he was killed by a street car. Next the assassin's work was assigned to an American named Mueller, living in Avenue B, this city, who a few days later died of poison, self administered. The last of the three designated for the murderous work, Mrs. Doxheimer alleges, was a Mrs. Schroeder, of Harlem, who also ended her life by poison. The Rev. Charles L. Made, Mrs. Doxheimer's pastor, will make no statement regarding the so-called confession.

London, Nov. 23.—Extraordinary charges of cruelty on the part of a mother to her child, resulting in the Morley case in the North of Ireland which created world-wide interest about ten years ago are now being heard at the Old Bailey. In the present case Mrs. Annie Penruddock of Champton Park, Wiltshire, the wife of a magistrate and large landed proprietor, was charged with brutally assaulting and ill-treating her seven-year-old daughter. The court was filled with fashionable women many of whom were leaders of the County society of Wiltshire and close friends of the defendant. Several of the best known counsel were engaged. According to the statement of the Crown prosecutor, which was corroborated by the Governor and servants, the cruelties which had been going on for years and included beating the child with nettles, systematic neglect, ill-treatment, assault and partial starvation. One form of the punishment was to make the child stand on the lough of a tree in inclement weather for three hours at a time.

THE STORY OF A PIONEER.

H. S. BARNES, OF RAT PORTAGE, TELLS OF THE TRIALS OF THE EARLY SETTLER.

Suffered Terribly from Kidney Complaint but was Speedily Relieved and Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

RAT PORTAGE, ONT., Nov. 24 (Special).—Everybody in Rat Portage knows H. S. Barnes, father of a farmer mayor and one of the oldest inhabitants of the metropolis of New Ontario. Though seventy-nine years of age, Mr. Barnes looks younger than many men of many fewer years, and is possessed of wonderful vitality and activity. A pioneer of this district, Mr. Barnes tells many tales of early life in the wilds of Ontario, but none more interesting than the following: "I was terribly troubled with Kidney Complaint. I suffered severely with pain across my back, and with a scalding, burning sensation when urinating that was very painful. "Though I had little faith in proprietary medicines, I had a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house that I had procured for my wife, and commenced taking them with good effect. "It wasn't long till my acquaintances started to greet me on the street with 'Hello, Mr. Barnes, how young you are looking.' They were not astray. I felt smart too, and feel younger and better in health than I have been for years. My Kidney Complaint was completely cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills."

So Ethel's refusal has broken your heart. Are you sure that that old man? Sure! Why all the other girls' refusals had the same effect, so I ought to know the symptoms by this time!"

The schooner Independence, Capt. Joseph Cusick, has the honor of being the first arrival at Gloucester from Bay of Islands this season with a cargo of salt herring. She arrived Thursday evening after a splendid passage. She brought a monster cargo of salt herring, consisting of 1650 barrels in bulk, 180 in barrels and sent by steamer Harlar to Halifax in bond, 50 barrels. Capt. Cusick said when leaving none of the vessels there had more than 600 barrels of herring. The fish were not very plentiful, but there were a large number of boats fishing and that is how he secured his cargo so quickly. The herring were of a large size, fat, and of excellent quality and just what is needed for bladders. At Bonne Bay the herring were inferior and not so well suited for loading. A wealthy concern from Scotland had come out there and was putting up herring in an attractive form for the American market. They had just commenced, but in future would enter into it quite extensively.

A suit of unusual interest was tried before Justice Griffiths on Friday last. The plaintiff was Jas. Niford, who laid an information against Capt. Martin Pentz for withholding $40 from the wages of his son, Arthur Niford. It seems that Arthur Niford shipped on the schooner G. S. Troop last spring as header at a certain amount per month. He ran up a store bill for $61.21 at a certain merchant's store on the banks of the LaHave.

The goods comprised his own outfit for the fishery, such as boots underwear, socks, oilcloths &c. &c. He also purchased such goods as sugar, tea, waists, dress goods, skirts etc., which no doubt were taken home and used by the boy's family. The captain also gave him some tobacco whilst on the voyage. Shortly after he arrived home he gave the merchant $18 cash, and sometime afterwards an order on the captain of the vessel for $40.

The merchant took the order to the captain and procured the money. When the father went with the boy to settle the captain had the amount of the order, $40, charged against the boy. The plaintiff then came to town and explained the circumstances to his lawyer, who wrote Capt. Pentz to the effect that he should not have accepted and paid the order as the boy was a minor—was not of age. Capt. Pentz did not feel like paying the amount twice, and consequently Niford's lawyer brought suit. The plaintiff's plea was that the boy was only 16 years of age, that he should not pay for such things as sugar, tea, tobacco, ladies' wearing apparel etc., and that the statute says the boy, being a seaman, can repudiate an order signed by himself and made before the disposal of the voyage. Justice Griffiths therefore gave judgment against the defendant, and Capt. Pentz has to pay $40 again.

No doubt it is law, but it is very bad law, on a par with Longley's collection act, and the sooner such a law is repealed the better. A number of fishing captains were present at the trial.

Mr. Samuel Mosher, lighthouse keeper at Mosher's Island, sends us the following interesting item:—
The tern schooner Success, Captain LeMerchant, from Barbados, for Pasphebian, P. Q., in ballast, put in Mosher's Harbor on the 14th, out of wood, water and provisions. She was 32 days on the passage and experienced very rough weather. The captain reports that there was about 1,074 cases of smallpox inland at Barbados, and that the people were in an almost starving condition when he left there.
Mr. and Mrs. Howard Spidle are called upon to grieve the loss of their dearly beloved son, Clarence E., who died at his parents' home, East Bridgewater, on Friday, Nov. 21st. This promising young man went to the States last April and secured a lucrative position in a shoe factory. About two months ago he contracted a heavy cold, and when he found his health did not improve he decided to return home. The home-coming seemed to use up all his remaining strength, as, after arriving here, he gradually grew worse, and on Friday morning breathed his last. He was 19 years of age. He was a fine specimen of young manhood. He served one year with the Royal Canadian Regiment, at Halifax, receiving his discharge with no black marks against him, and with the regrets of the officers. He was justly proud of his record while in garrison at Halifax. Clarence Spidle was one of the young men, who are not too old to attend Church and Sabbath School, and his sorrowing friends have the satisfaction of knowing that he died in the full assurance of a glorious resurrection. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Freeman. His parents have the sympathy of the entire community.

BONDED TO NEW YORKERS.
American Syndicate Likely to Complete Purchase of the Davison Timber Areas.
CRUISERS IN THE WOODS.
The Property is said to be the Most Valuable in Nova Scotia—Purchase Price $1,250,000.
Another large Nova Scotia lumber property is likely to pass into the hands of an American syndicate. For some time negotiations have been in progress on behalf of New York capitalists for the purchase of the extensive and valuable timber areas of E. Davison & Sons, of this town. The valuable property of this firm was bonded a few weeks ago on behalf of the New York capitalists, the purchase price named being $1,250,000.
Since that time cruising parties have been in the woods examining the extent and productiveness of the areas on the LaHave and Port Medway Rivers. The option will expire early in the New Year and it is believed here that the purchase will be completed.
The property owned by the Davison firm is heavily timbered and is pronounced by experts the best and most valuable in Nova Scotia. It comprises about 230,000 acres with three mills, the output of which in recent years has been about twelve million feet.
In addition to this there is the store property at East Bridgewater, properties at Hayspring and Upper LaHave, wharf property at shipyard and other valuable holdings.
If the purchase is completed it is said to be the intention of the company to largely increase the output to establish pulp and paper mills thus utilizing the large quantity of pulp trees available. New mills and a tannery will also probably be erected. The syndicate is represented here by Mr. F. B. Chapin of New York.

Best Laid Schemes.

By A New Author.

Rash conclusion, Jack Danehurst. Most events have their consequences, and it has been known that those consequences have been of a nature quite unforeseen by the actors in the comedy of events. Perhaps we have not altogether done with Miss Fanny Manners.

The ease with which Jack had managed the affair, and the rapidity with which Miss Manners had sunk her demands to this sum, so small compared with what he had feared, did not seem to strike Allen as remarkable. Accustomed to be assisted in all his difficulties, he forgot his anxieties as soon as they were ended. Plunged into the nethermost depths of despair when threatened by events, he rose with the lightness of irresponsibility to extreme buoyancy the moment a danger was passed.

But to Jack Danehurst the simple manner in which things had settled themselves appeared remarkable.

"I wonder what it means," he said. "There's certainly something mysterious about it. I wonder," he mused, "if by any chance, Fanny Manners is already married?"

"What rot! Of course not," said Allen. "Poor little Fan, she was awfully fond of me," he went on, sentimentally reasserting itself in his atmosphere of safety. "What ideas you get into your head!"

"Nevertheless," said Jack, "I can't account for her giving way, unless she had some strong reason. Girls of her stamp don't compound breach of promise cases with the sons of millionaires for such small sums."

"Oh! well, it's all over now, so it's no good speculating about her motives," said Allen.

"Well, look here, old man," said Jack; "I don't want to wound your vanity; but, between you and me, I don't believe that girl cared a farthing about you, and I don't believe she was keen after the money either; in fact, I don't believe she would have made use of the letters at all."

"Oh! what the deuce are you driving at?" asked Allen, impatiently. "How can you know whether she was fond of me or not; and why should you think she meant any way?"

"She seemed to me," said Jack, "as I said before, to be acting a part. I can't get away from the impression that she is simply a cat-spaw of some one—some one who wanted to get money out of you, but not money alone."

"What the deuce do you mean?" exclaimed Allen.

"I mean," Jack went on, "that the whole affair has fizzled off in a very unusual way."

"Well, when I first spoke of it to you," Allen said, "you made light of it; it was nothing to bother about, and all that. Now you seem to have changed your opinion, and you want to make a great deal too much of it."

"Let me put the case to you," said Jack. "A woman—and an actress—carries on a flirtation with the son of a millionaire, who writes letters to her of a nature that would possibly extract an award of damages from a sympathetic jury and an admiring judge. A friend of the man calls upon the woman, armed with the very weak story that she will gain nothing by taking the matter into court, and offers her a ridiculously small sum (under the circumstances) for the damaging documents. Now, you seem to think her ready acceptance of these terms quite in the natural order of things?"

"Well!" interrupted Allen. "you made the position clear to her, didn't you?"

"I certainly did my best to be lucid," continued Jack. "But what woman, and actress, would believe such a story as I told, unless—and this is what I want you to mark—she either had some very full and particular knowledge of the truth of my story from other sources, or some special reason for not pressing the matter?"

"Oh, hang it!" said Allen. "Shall I send round for your wig and gown?"

"Even supposing," Jack went on, disregarding the interruption, "even supposing she did not get the verdict and damages, think of the advertisement, which would have inevitably raised her from her present obscure position on the stage to principal parts, with proportionate salaries."

"Well, there's something in that," Allen yielded, reluctantly; "but I wish to goodness, Jack, you'd drop the forensic manner, and tell me what you really are getting at?"

"My dear fellow, I don't know what I am getting at myself," said his friend; "I'm trying to find out. You see, this affair is, in itself, unimportant; in the great majority of cases, a man in your position would simply have confided in his father, who would, acting under legal advice, have either settled with the lady out of court, or allowed the affair to come before a jury. Your position being exceptional, you were forced into another course of action, and you have escaped the consequences with great ease. That is the element in the case I don't like. When the cat releases the agitated mouse from her clutches, that animal, I daresay, congratulates itself that it has only to walk home with as much dignity of manner as possible; but it is not very long before the mouse discovers that its view of the situation is a mistaken one."

"I verily believe," said Allen, "that you are making all this to do because Druse introduced me to the girl; why don't you suggest at once that it is some deep-laid scheme of his that has induced Fanny to comply so readily?"

Jack was silent, but he could not help admitting to himself that such a state of affairs as Allen had sarcastically mentioned, would not seem to him altogether impossible. But he had no right, he was aware, to entertain such a thought. Still, right or no right, to think of Druse was, with Jack, to suspect him.

"Hang it," he said to himself, "Druse is becoming a regular Charles the First's head with me. If I'm not careful I shall fall a victim to moromania."

Allen was anxious to change the subject, so he said: "You'll dine with me at the Empyrean, and we'll go somewhere afterwards?"

"Well, when I first spoke of it to you," Allen said, "you made light of it; it was nothing to bother about, and all that. Now you seem to have changed your opinion, and you want to make a great deal too much of it."

"Let me put the case to you," said Jack. "No, not to-night," said Jack. "I can't, thanks, old man."

"Oh, I say," grumbled Allen, "you never can now. If anybody didn't know what a self-contained Johnny you are they'd think you had some special attraction. Can't you give it up to-night? We ought to celebrate the occasion, you know."

Jack thought, may, he was sure, that he could not give it up. He did not think it necessary to mention that it was an at-home at Mrs. Hilary's. Perhaps he anticipated being chaffed if he explained, for Allen had met that lively little lady, and Jack had never spoken in complimentary terms of her. So it might have been a little difficult to explain why he elected to go to an at-home, a form of entertainment he generally denounced at the house of a lady he derided. Perhaps he expected to meet the Connistons there, and was anxious to make his peace with the Baronet.

It is an excellent trait in a young man's character when he is anxious to make amends for any annoyance he may have caused a man older than himself. The cynic has observed that fathers of beautiful girls are often treated with much consideration. But why pays any heed to the harsh utterances of the cynic?

"Very well," said Allen, in an injured tone, "if you won't, you won't; but as you're so full of engagements I fix you now for September at the governor's place. Now you won't refuse?"

"Want me there to protect you against the fair lady, eh?" laughed Jack. "Well, so far as I know—"

"Oh, none of that!" broke in Allen impatiently; "you know well enough now. Say you'll come, there's a good chap. It always seems so odd to me that you've never been to the Grange. It's a jolly old place, too. You know it was my mother's? It's said to be one of the best specimens of the moated grange left in England. I always feel depressed there, though, in spite of my liking for it. Calamity seems to hang over it, for from what I remember of my mother, she was always a sad, pale-faced figure there. The incongruity, too, of my father's thick-set frame wandering through the rooms, and standing in unobscured contrast near some of our old Vandykes, our own people, always fills me with wonder."

Allen always spoke of the departed Henriots as "our people." He seemed unconscious of being an Aldridge; and to do him justice, it was not a snobbish assumption, but an innate sentiment. Selfish and irresolute, and possessing no strong principles, his one feeling with which there was anything of reverence mingled, was his memory of his mother. In fact, one might say it was his only strong feeling, as yet.

In speaking of her he dropped unknowingly, his slanginess and peevishness. Had Lady Gertrude Aldridge lived, her son's history might have been a different one.

CHAPTER IV.

It was a fortnight after the events narrated in the last chapter and London was shimmering in the hot clasp of August.

London is a marvellous city in every respect, and not the least wonderful feature about it is the possibility of finding within its area people who really like it in August. I have heard it whispered that there are people who like London at all times; but Nature has not been lavish enough towards me with the gift of credulity, perhaps, for I can scarcely bring myself to believe in this infatuation.

Certainly, Allen Aldridge was not one of these phenomena, but if he disliked London in August, he disliked the trouble of deciding for himself what place to exchange it for, still more. And so in London he remained, trying to kill time until the date of his visit to Dytton Grange should arrive.

True, he might have started for that place at any moment, but the society of his father, when there was no one staying in the house got on his nerves, and so he lounged about in an aimless sort of way, lunching at his deserted club, and dining wherever his fancy took him.

Jack was away; but had promised to join him at the Grange, as early in September as possible. Allen had seen him once only since the day when he had brought him the letters.

On that occasion, Jack had seemed not in his usual good spirits. Not being of a confidential turn of mind, he had not told his friend that the Connistons had not, after all, been at Mrs. Hilary's at-home, nor that he had called twice at their house, to find them not at home on the first occasion, and on the second to hear that they had abruptly left town for the Baronet's place at Hazelwood.

Upon hearing this Jack had decided that a week on the river would be of benefit to his health, and he seemed to think he would enjoy that holiday more if he went quite alone. At Medmenham he developed an engraving taste for love stories, and a habit (which was, of course, quite peculiar to himself) of identifying himself with the heroes when those interesting individuals were, young, good-looking, and not well enough off to contemplate marriage. And there, lying in a boat beneath the shade of the willows, pipe in mouth, and book in hand, he would leave him for the present.

Partly, no doubt, the result of his aimless existence, Allen was moody and discontented. He feared, too, that his father had a scheme afoot for marrying him, and he knew that what his father had definitely made up his mind to, he (Allen) would be powerless to resist.

He pictured the girl chosen for him as everything at which his nature would revolt. His sense of absolute dependence was so strong, and his lack of sympathy with his father was so great that, though it may seem unnatural, it almost amounted to dislike. Musing on these matters, he stepped from his house, which had drawn up outside a well-known restaurant not far from Piccadilly Circus. To his surprise and satisfaction he saw the figure of Druse standing in the doorway.

"What, still in town?" he exclaimed, as they shook hands.

"I might make the same remark with more pertinency to you," replied Druse. "I am a slave to business, while you," and the black eyes glanced from their half-closed lids, "you are a free man, Aldridge. As a matter of fact," he went on, "I have been away for a fortnight or so, but my brief holiday was cut short by a telegram, which fetched me at once back to town. Ah, you don't know what a miserable fate it is to have to slave for a living," and Mr. Druse smiled more than ever as he complained of his bad lot.

"I wish to goodness I was in your shoes, Druse," Allen exclaimed. "You are your own master and free to do what you like with your life, while I—"

"While you," said Druse, striking his small black moustache "have simply to exercise a little patience and then step into the inheritance of millions."

A MERE SKELETON 16 Years Gains 10 Pounds In Two Months.

Bever Bridge, Northumberland Co. N. B.

Evangeline Medicine Co., Middleton.

Dear Sirs:—I was sick for sixteen years of Dyspepsia. Could not keep anything on my stomach except in the morning. The smell of food made me sick. Was treated by nine different doctors who said I could not get better and advised me to go to the Hospital. Began taking their medicine. I took lots of patent medicines, but got no relief until I began to take Dr. Miller's Tonic Dinner Pills one year ago which saved my life. I gained 10 lbs. in two months and have had no return of the disease since.

Yours respectfully,
GLORNAH ANDERBECK

Some interest has recently been aroused in Mahone in the subject of starting a gymnasium or athletic club. The exhibition building is suggested as a suitable place for the headquarters of the Society and could probably be put in condition at a comparatively small cost. It is to be hoped that this will be something more than talk and that active steps will soon be taken to realize the project.

The waterworks Committee, composed of Messrs. C. U. Mader, Abram Ernst, Wm. Strum, F. B. Zwicker, E. A. Ernst, W. E. Colp and T. G. Nichol met on Saturday the 16th inst. Various matters connected with the proposed water service for Mahone were discussed, and it was decided to employ Mr. Archibald Foster of Kingston and Mr. Mulhall, Middleton to prepare plans and submit estimates of the cost of the two schemes, now under consideration. With expert opinion on the matter it will be comparatively easy to come to a decision with regard to the relative merits of the Mush-a-Mush River and Oakland Lake as sources of supply. The committee also decided to interview the owners of the mill properties about the mouth of the Mush-a-Mush with a view of securing options on those properties. The matter of a sewerage for the town was also discussed informally and will probably be brought up at the next general meeting of the ratepayers. The engineers report may not be forthcoming for some little time, but will probably be ready by the middle or latter part of January.

It was a sad day in the Belvin home that Sabbath—sadder than any previous day since the boys had left; for it was not until that morning that the sorrowing mother had allowed herself to believe, for the first time, that her sons would never return. The father had said so the night before.

The day passed wearily, though many had been in to sympathize with the bereaved couple. As Mrs. Belvin was setting the table that evening for supper she put down John's and Archie's plates as usual. It was easier to do that than to leave the places vacant.

Supper was announced, and halfheartedly the children were taking their accustomed places, when little Willie ran in and shouted: "There's a strange boat down at the stage-head. I think John's in it!"

Everybody rushed out of doors, and, sure enough, there was John walking up over the rocks with a strange man.

It was not the stranger's presence that caused them to approach John carefully. It was Archie's absence. And as they embraced the brave little wanderer the captain of the Nova Zembla told them as much as he knew of John's first cruise.

MUST BE CAPTAIN ENOCH!

A Tale of Hardship in Which A Mahone Bay Skipper Figures.

In the December issue of the Wide World Magazine there appears an article from the pen of the Rev. William Forbes, a former missionary to the Canadian Labrador.

It tells of the experience and suffering of two young lads of nine and fourteen years of age, who were living with their parents at Pigeon Island, Labrador.

They were fishing in a small boat one summer morn. The fog set in and when it was time to make for the land they lost their way, and after rowing a long time were further at sea than ever.

The two little fellows rowed until their progress was stopped by a field of ice, which stretched as far as the eye could see.

They were out for four days and four nights. The younger lad succumbed on the third day.

On the fifth day the older lad, John Belvin, managed to reach St. Augustine Harbor and crawl to the nearest house.

He related his experience, and as the latter part of the story relates to one of our Lunenburg County men, we will publish it as it reads in the magazine:—

"He tried hard to get home, ma'am, and he was praying," said John, "and I expect he's gone to the good Home that mamma's told us about."

Before night word of John's cruise had spread to the Nova Scotia vessels lying in the harbor, and that evening Mr. Robar's house was filled with the brawny toilers of the deep listening eagerly to John as he related his adventures.

"I wish one of you fellows would come with me," he said, in conclusion. "I want to take Archie home. Will you?"

One! There were fifty volunteers eager for the privilege of serving so brave a little fellow-fisherman. But the honor was given to the big captain of the Nova Zembla and John's host.

Early on the Sabbath morning the Nova Zembla's best boat set sail for Pigeon Island. It is needless to say that John was relieved of all responsibility in the navigation. He had already done his part well. His little boat, now so famous, was taken in tow.

It was a sad day in the Belvin home that Sabbath—sadder than any previous day since the boys had left; for it was not until that morning that the sorrowing mother had allowed herself to believe, for the first time, that her sons would never return. The father had said so the night before.

The day passed wearily, though many had been in to sympathize with the bereaved couple. As Mrs. Belvin was setting the table that evening for supper she put down John's and Archie's plates as usual. It was easier to do that than to leave the places vacant.

Supper was announced, and halfheartedly the children were taking their accustomed places, when little Willie ran in and shouted: "There's a strange boat down at the stage-head. I think John's in it!"

Everybody rushed out of doors, and, sure enough, there was John walking up over the rocks with a strange man.

It was not the stranger's presence that caused them to approach John carefully. It was Archie's absence. And as they embraced the brave little wanderer the captain of the Nova Zembla told them as much as he knew of John's first cruise.

Hints For Young Reporters.

A young man, desiring to become a reporter on the daily press, received the following suggestions from an old hand, to whom he applied for professional tips:

"In rescuing drowning men, it must always be when they are 'going down for the third time.' No case is on record of a rescue when the sufferer was going down for the first time.

"When a gentleman gives a bank note it must always be 'crisp.'"

"Thurs are of two descriptions, the 'dull' and the 'sickening.'"

"Of course, every writer knows that fire is always mentioned as the 'devouring flame.'"

"Flags must always be 'flung to the breeze,' no matter whether there is any breeze or not.

"If you manage to get an assault, a forgery, and a burglary all into one column, do it, for it will secure that beautiful and well known heading, 'A Carnival of Crime.'"

"Speaking of winning or losing money, it must always be a 'cool' £500 or $5,000. However heated the struggle, the amount must always be 'cool.'"

"Always remember that a man is 'launched into eternity,' not 'taken a certain time.'"

"When a person after an accident is found to be dead, it is best not to say so, but that the 'vital spark had fled.'"

"Speeches on the political side which your paper advocates should always be 'ringing' speeches."

A NOVEL HOTEL BILL.

THE MAN TO WHOM IT WAS PRESENTED COULD NOT UNDERSTAND IT.

"Talking about bookkeeping, there used to be a man in Yankton whose system of bookkeeping accounts was wonderfully efficient. He kept a hotel, and he could neither read nor write. He did not know how to spell his own name, but he did a thriving business and collected every dollar of his accounts. Once, years ago, when I first came to this country, I went to his hotel and stopped there two weeks," writes Milt Brinben.

"When I left, he presented me with a statement of what I owed him, and it was a curiosity. He had copied it from his ledger. At the top of the sheet there was a rude picture of a soldier on the march and after it three straight marks. Then there was a scene showing a man at table eating. Then appeared a bed with a man in it. In the amount column there was a picture of a doll and after it the two letters 'R.S.'" After the picture of a man eating there were forty-two marks; after the view of the man in the bed, fourteen marks. I looked at the account, then at the proprietor, and told him it would take me a week to answer that conundrum.

"I was completely stumped, and when that hotel man decried the amount for me it was this: The picture of the soldier walking meant march, and the three marks supplied the date, March 3, when I began boarding. The man at the table with forty-two marks after it indicated that I had eaten forty-two meals. The man in bed with fourteen marks showed that I had slept in the house fourteen nights. The doll with the 'R.S.' after it meant 'dollars,' and in the figure columns appeared the figures 14, which was the amount I owed him. And it was a true bill."

Thousands of Women Are Kept in Suffering and Many Die Owing to False Treatment.

Paine's Celery Compound

Never Fails To Banish Disease and Re-Establish Lasting Health.

Thousands of women are kept in sickness for months and years owing to false treatment and the use of worthless medicines, and we are inclined to believe that Milton thought of this class of almost dying women when he said:

"The angelic guards ascended, mute and said,"

The common sense treatment of to-day for weak, rundown and suffering women, is Paine's Celery Compound. This marvellous medicine is spoken of in every part of the civilized world, and men and women of all classes find a new life from its uses. A glorious example of the curing powers of the great compound comes from Winnipeg, Man.; Mr. H. Harbour writes as follows:

"A month ago I was very sick and happened to see one of your publications, in which I read of others being cured. I concluded to try Paine's Celery Compound myself, and I now thank God for the wonders it accomplished for me. I was suffering from heart disease, kidney trouble and general weakness, and some days was not able to stand without experiencing great pain. Since I used the compound I am able to get about the house and work, and can now eat anything put before me."

"You miserable vagabond? said the indignant woman with the shawl over her head. 'You ought to be ashamed to go around asking for charity with a nose like that!'"

"That's where I was vaccinated, man!" replied Tuffold Knutt stilly.

Inflamed Nose and Throat.

All such diseases of the respiratory organs as Bronchitis, Weak Lungs, Cold in the Head, and Nasal Catarrh, are treated with marvellous success on strictly scientific principles by Catarrhose. The medicinal vapor of Catarrhose quickly traverses every air passage possible to be reached by any treatment. All excesses, irritations and inflammation are at once dispelled, and by means of the healing powers of Catarrhose the vitiated tissues are quickly restored. Where Catarrhose is used colds last only ten minutes, coughs half hour, and Catarrh, Consumption, Asthma and Bronchitis flee as from fire. A trial will convince anyone of the startling merit of Catarrhose. Costs $1.00, small size 25c. At Druggists, or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Minnie—Myrtle is really and truly our champion golfer.

Mabel—Nonsense!

Minnie—O, yes, she is. She has never yet made a round of the links without getting a proposal.

Completely Fagged Out.

The world is full of sickly, dependent, tired, overworked people, all hoping to be well some day. The secret "road to health" is along the way of taking Ferruzone after meals. Ferruzone is a great appetizer and enables one to eat plenty of wholesome food without fear of indigestion or dyspepsia. This results in the rapid formation of an abundance of red, vitalizing blood, which will restore the nerves, increase flesh and vigor, and nourish and feed every organ of the body. Ferruzone is an ideal restorative and invigorant. It is a tonic of unequalled merit that anyone can use with benefit. Price 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at Druggists, or N. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

I have taken Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for palpitation of the heart and shattered nerves, and for both troubles have found great relief.—Mrs. W. Ackert, Ingersoll, Ont.

FEELS SPLENDID NOW.

Before taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I was all run down, could not sleep at night and was terribly troubled with my heart. Since taking them I feel splendid. I sleep well at night and my heart does not trouble me at all. They have done me a world of good.—Jas. D. McLeod, Hagarville, P. E. I.
