Select Poetry.

ABOUT THIS TIME OF YEAR.

Now doth the pensive painter's brush
Renew the merchant's sign,
And, perchance above the sidewalk,
Cause
Regilded age to shine.

Now doth the busy housewife tear
The carpet from the floor,
And scrub with mop and whitewash brush
The peaceful dwelling o'er.

And now the husband seeks divorce
From home and kindred dear,
And washes down house-cleaning dust
With draughts of potent beer.

Now doth the editor sneak out
When long-haired poets bring
Great rolls of manuscript to him
Containing songs of spring.

And now the speculator bold
Goes long on future wheat,
And tells of growing crops destroyed
By frosts and storms of sleet.

And many other things take place
About this time of year,
Which cause mankind to hold the spring
Above all seasons dear.

The old, old story, in a new, new way.

CHAPTER XIV.—Continued.

"I—I beg pardon, I am sure, for calling so late, but my business will not wait, and I wanted Clem as witness—he and Cyn—so as to make no mistake now!" then turning to the astonished Nattie, he went on,

"Nattie, I—I—my feelings for you have long been of adoration—no, please, hear me—" as she made a gesture to interrupt him. "To-night, in this room, I addressed another—Celeste—" here he moaned, but recovered himself and went on, "in the dark, you know, with words intended for you. I want to know now, what, had I not been so deceived, you would have said?"

"But what difference can it make now?" asked Nattie, hesitating, and wishing to spare him, as he paused for a reply.

"Every difference!" said Quimby, wildly. "I beg you to—to answer me truly, in order that I may know what course to take!"

"Then since you wish," replied Nattie, with a pitying glance, "I will tell you that as a friend I think very highly of you, and always shall. But, that is all."

"Then come on, Celeste!" exclaimed Quimby, in a burst of despair. "She—she says, she loves me, and I—I may get used to it in time! all but her teeth," he added, in his strict honesty, "to those I never can!"

Cyn felt a mischievous desire to hint that time might relieve him of his objection, but restrained herself and said, "But you can explain the matter to her, you know!"

"Just what I have been telling him," said Clem. "No woman would force herself on a man under such circumstances!"

"She would, I feel it!" answered the unconvinced Quimby. "Miss Rogers—Nattie, I—I thank you, I—I shall always remember you as something unattainable and dear, and hope somebody more worthy may be to you what I would have been if I could. But I—I was born to make mistakes, you know, and I—I am used to it—and ought to be thankful it was not Miss Kling!"

"I am very, very sorry!" murmured Nattie, and Clem saw there were tears in her eyes.

"Moral—never make love in the dark!" said Cyn, looking with solemn warning at Clem.

"Be sure that all—the gas in the room is lighted if ever you propose!"

added Quimby, miserably, to his friend.

"I will remember," said Clem, glancing at Nattie. "There are worse mistakes made in the dark than on the wire, it seems!"

"Far—far worse!" groaned Quimby, as Nattie hastily turned her head aside. "But now, really, Quimby!" urged Cyn, seriously, "do be sensible. Do not be foolish enough to marry a woman you do not want, because you cannot have the one you do!"

But Quimby, with the fear of old Fishplate, and a breach of promise suit, and a dread of explanations in his mind—moreover, having firmly decided that a little more or less of misery did not matter, could not be persuaded to take any steps himself, or allow them to be taken, to free himself from the result of his latest mistake.

Therefore, it came about, to the surprise of those not in the secret, and the unconcealed exultation of one of the parties immediately concerned, that the engagement of Quimby and Celeste was announced.

CHAPTER XV.

ONE SUMMER DAY.

The week that decided Quimby's fate so unexpectedly and brought him so much woe, to Cyn brought good tidings. Her success at the concert had been so decided that she was the recipient of many offers for the coming season, and was enabled to accept those that promised most advantageously. No one was more honestly glad than was Nattie in her congratulations; Nattie, who had fought and overcome that selfish pain and bitter wonder of hers, why Cyn should have everything and she nothing.

Since the approach of summer, a much-talked-of project among them had been a little picnic party in the woods and as Clem now proposed to get it up in honor of Cyn's success, the plan was immediately carried out. Mrs. Simonson, with a feeble protest, because Miss Kling was not invited, accompanied of Cyn, Nattie, Clem, Jo, and the newly betrothed ones.

Nature was kind to these seekers of her solitudes, and gave them a perfect day; one of those that occur in our uncertain climate less often than might be wished, but that penetrate everywhere with their sunshine, when they do come, even into our hearts where sunshine seldom glances. So, for the nonce, our friends forgot all their little troubles; even Quimby brightening up, and ceasing to think of his engagement, as they stood underneath the green trees, by the banks of a small river; sunshine everywhere, and the music of birds in the air.

"Is it not glorious?" cried Cyn, like a child, in her exuberance.

"Why not camp out here, and stay all summer?" ecstatically suggested Clem, as he fondled his fishing tackle.

"But it might not always be like this," said practical Mrs. Simonson.

"When the sun shines we forget it may ever storm," said Jo, and looking admiringly at Cyn as he spoke.

"Is our artist a philosopher, as well as all the rest we know he is?" asked Cyn, laughing.

"A very little one; five feet six!" replied Joe.

"Well, we will have no shadows to-day," said Cyn.

"No shadows to-day!" echoed Jo; then turning to Mrs. Simonson, asked, "I hope you do not still regret Miss Kling!"

"I suppose she would spoil it all!" that good lady committed herself to say.

"Well, really, I must say," remarked Celeste, who now gave herself many airs, and evidently looked upon Cyn and Nattie as commonplace creatures not engaged!—"I must say, now that you are speaking of her, that she does Kling in a way that is not pleasant sometimes. She actually annoys pa!"

"I thought she entertained a high regard for the Tor—for your father!" said mischievous Cyn.

"That is exactly it!" replied Celeste. "Too high a regard! Truly she behaves very ridiculously! Why, she positively waylays pa! so indelicate in a woman, you know!" with sublime unconsciousness of ever having indulged in the pastime of waylaying herself "Such an old creature too! she is always coming and wanting to mend old clothes and stockings! Poor pa actually has to lock himself in his room some times!"

The vision "poor pa" thus pursued was too much for the gravity of the company, and there was a general laugh.

It is true, asserted Celeste. "Now, isn't it, Ralfy?" appealing to her betrothed with appropriate bashfulness.

Everybody stared at this. No one before ever really knew that Quimby possessed a front door to his name, and he, as any one at the cognomen Love had discovered, fell back on a rolling log, and clutched his leg to that extent that they must have been black and blue for a week afterwards.

Clem saved the discomfited "Ralfy" the necessity of replying, by interposing with,

"Come! come! let us not talk on such incongruous subjects this lovely day! let us rather talk sentiment!" and he gave a prodigious wink in Jo's direction.

I fear we are not a very sentimental party!" laughed Cyn, adding except of course Quimby and Celeste!

"Oh! I—I am not, I assure you; I am not in the least you know!" protested Quimby, taking a roll on the log; "never felt less so in my life."

"Why Ralfy!" exclaimed Celeste, reproachfully and to his distress went up close to him, and would have sat down by his side, but for the uncontrollable rolling propensity of that log, which made it impossible.

How is it with you, Jo?" queried Cyn: "can you not for once forget your horrible hobby, and be a little sentimental, in honor of the day!"

Jo who was throwing sticks into the water; the great disturbance of the bugs and plainly-shown annoyance of a frog, made a somewhat surprising reply.

Seriously, he said, "I fear if I should attempt it, I might get too much in earnest!"

"Oh! we will risk that; so please begin!" said Cyn, but staring at him a little as she spoke "Jo sentimental! Just imagine it!"

"Will you ask it?" he asked, still serious, and with so peculiar an expression that she could reply only by another, astonished stare.

"But really, it does not pay to be sentimental, as you all ought to have found out long ago! as Jo and I have!" Nattie said, jestingly, yet with an undertone of earnestness.

"Then," said Clem, dryly, "since it is so with us, let us fish!" and he threw his line into the stream.

Cyn, Jo, and Mrs. Simonson followed his example. Quimby declined joining in the sport, and perhaps, likening himself to the fish, balanced himself on the log, and looked on with a pathetic face. Celeste, as in duty bound, remained by his side. Nattie, too, was an observer only, and from the expression of her face was decidedly not amused.

"I think it is cruel!" she exclaimed, as Jo took a fish off Cyn's hook.

"I—I quite agree with you!" Quimby replied quickly, in answer to Nattie's observation. "It is cruel!"

"But perhaps the fish were made for people to catch," suggested the pacific Mrs. Simonson, who had not yet been able to get a bite.

"Yes," acquiesced Clem, pulling up a skinny little fish. "They are no worse off than we poor mortals after all. We must each fulfil our destiny, whether man or fish."

"Yes! it is all fate!" exclaimed Quimby vehemently. "We cannot help ourselves!"

"You believe in fate then? I don't think I do!" said Cyn, with a glance half-humorous, half-pitying, at its victim on the log; "what incentive would we have to an effort, if we were sure everything was marked out for us in advance?"

"That is a question requiring too much effort for us to discuss on a warm day," said Nattie.

"Certain circumstances must bring about certain results, you will acknowledge," Clem gravely remarked.

"But it is said that every soul that is born has a twin somewhere; and if so, that must be fate!" said Mrs. Simonson.

"Miss Kling's theory, I believe!" laughed Nattie.

"If it is so, the right ones don't often come together," said Quimby gloomily.

"We are an exception, then, to the general rule!" simpered Celeste.

Quimby groaned, and then murmured something about the toothache.

"Poor fellow!" said Cyn, in a low voice, to Nattie.

"After all, there is something in fate," Nattie sighed.

"Perhaps so," she said.

"Well, we will not get solemn over fate," said Jo, cheerily; then, in a lower voice, as he glanced at Cyn, he added—"yet."

"And do not frighten away what few fish there are here, with your theories," commanded Clem.

Although this mandate was obeyed, and for a time silence reigned, it was not long before they were all singing a gay song, started by Clem himself, Quimby joining in the chorus with a feeble tenor. But they were tired of fishing by that time, and began to feel as if a little refreshment would not be out of place, and would indeed enhance the loveliness of nature, so a fire was made, and lunch-baskets unpacked.

"It will take a good many of those fish for a mouthful," declared Clem, who was cook.

"You may have my share, I can't eat creatures I have seen squirm," said Nattie.

"Ah, you fastidious young woman! what shall I ever do with you, if you are cast away on a desert island with me?" exclaimed Clem, in mock despair.

"Set up a telegraph wire, and then she would need nothing more," insinuated Cyn.

"And get snubbed for my pains!" muttered Clem, sotto voce. But Nattie caught the words, and an expression of distress passed over her face.

"This reminds me of that feast!" Cyn declared, as they seated themselves wherever convenient, with a dish of whatever was handy.

"Only more so," added Clem.

What feast?" asked Celeste, curiously.

"One we had once," Cyn replied evasively, glad there was something Celeste did not know about. In fact, in the matter of curiosity, Celeste was an embryo Miss Kling.

"I am sorry we have no Charlotte Russes to-day, Quimby," remarked Clem, with an expression of transparent innocence.

Quimby could only reply with a groan. The recollections awakened were too much.

"What is the matter now, Ralfy?" asked the loving Celeste.

Again Quimby muttered something about "that tooth."

"Oh!" said Celeste, tenderly, "you really must have it out, Ralfy!"

The possibility of being obliged to part with a sound tooth in self-defence, restored him for the time being. But he was not the only one to whom the retrospect brought a momentary pain. Nattie sighed as she looked back to the day that had brought Clem, but not restored as she then supposed, but taken away, her "C."

THE ACADIAN,

WOLFVILLE, N. S., MAY 8, 1885

THAT DYKE ROAD.

Since our last issue our attention has again been called to the dyke approach to the Port Williams Bridge. It seems that the ownership of that piece of road is still in dispute. The Council claim it is a Government road and that the Government is responsible for the keeping of it in good repair.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

The Spring Session of the Municipal Council met on Tuesday, April 28th, and continued its session until Thursday afternoon. The Warden took the chair at 10 o'clock a. m., and on the roll being called the following Councillors responded to their names:—Cox, Steel, Mack, Roscoe, Davison, Northrup, Bishop, Taylor, and Fitch.

Table with 2 columns: Ward, County. Rows include Ward 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, 1 with corresponding rates.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES. On expenditure of money on Deep Hollow road, by S. P. Benjamin, report that the sum of $150 be allowed, which was not received but that the sum of $90, from the reserve fund be appropriated therefor.

On Horton Poor affairs be received and the recommendation therein, together with the regulations for the conducting of the Poor business within the county, be adopted and that commendation regarding a municipal poor house for the county be postponed till next meeting of the Council, and that the form of accounts in said report be issued in the Poor district.

On Finance, in favor of allowing the Sheriff the additional sum of $60 on his bill, and that it be paid out of the contingent fund.

APPOINTMENTS.

Surveyors of Highways—Stephen Griffin district 7 ward 10, R. M. Dickie district 16, William Venott district 7 ward 14, Thomas Nichols district 13 ward 12, M. Ratchford district 6 ward 4, Albert Ciak district 12 ward 4, Justin Warner district 8 ward 2, William Hays district 26 ward 4, Jas Kenedv district 23 ward 3, Edward Snow district 9 ward 1, Blenkhorn district 24 ward 1, Albert Margeson district 13 ward 14, Caleb Ray district 17, Israel Gould district 4, Chas Sweet district 7 ward 9, Jas O. Lyons district 20 ward 3, Henry Cowdell district 2 ward 8.

Constables—William Norton, James A. Fraser, J. S. Morse, Geo. Harvey, and T. L. Dodge, Trustees of School Lands in Horton, Councillor Fisher added to Licence committee. Edwin Bishop, Street Driver for Kentville Road District. James Avery, Cattle Reeve for Horton.

RESOLUTIONS.

That the Provincial road and bridge grant be expended by commissioners. That the commissioners be allowed 3 per cent for the expenditure of road money, and one dollar per day. That in case the government do not take charge of five of the bridges on the Annapolis river in Aylesford within six months from this date, that the sum of $300 be allowed for repairs on said bridges. That the sum of $500 be reserved out of the road and bridge money for the purpose of keeping the bridges on the Cornwallis river in repair.

RATES OF EXPENDITURE.

Commissioner, $1.00 per day and 3 per cent; Laborer, Foreman, yoke oxen and cart, $1.00 each; plow, 50 cts; horse and cart, 75 cts; iron scraper 25c. A day, shall mean ten hours. That the Randville bridge, between Wards 2 & 3; Moody bridge in Ward 12; and the Nathan Benjamin bridge, between Wards 7 & 8, be put under the Bridge Act. That the new road, leading from the foot of Church Hill to the dyke, be added to the Wolfville road district. That the Commiss'r of streets, Kentville road district, be requested to build the approaches to the Cornwallis bridge near Kentville, out of the funds arising from compensation of statute labor in said road district, forthwith.

That in future no rates be struck off Collectors Roll until an attempt has been made to collect the same by warrant, as by law provided. Petition asking for road to west point of Long Island granted. Damages $167.70.

Distribution of Gov't road money amounting to $6801.55, Eldrkip Creek and Cornwallis River, $501.55. Annapolis river, $300. Resolved that any person finding cattle running at large may impound the same, but receive nothing therefrom, and that the pound-keeper charge the present fee. Council adjourned.

UNCLE JOE'S LETTER.

OTTAWA, APRIL 25th 1885.

TO MY MERRY BOYS AND PRETTY GIRLS OF WOLFVILLE, ABOUT BREAD:

"It is very unwise to quarrel with your bread and butter," or bread and molasses! "Always ascertain which side your bread is buttered on."

The "unmentionable official" in the ACADIAN office made such havoc of my last French that I will not attempt that language again. But now about "bread." I need not tell you about raising the wheat, you know something of that. And if not, ask your father to tell you all about it. If he don't he requires a little "instruction," and he will get it by-and-by. Up here, in Ottawa, and in the N. West however, wheat raising is done on a rather larger scale than in N. Scotia; though no spot on the continent can beat us in quantity to the acre.

Up here the wheat fields contain from ten to a hundred acres, and in the N. W. two or three hundred acres; and the reapers bind and tie the sheaves. Quite a change since the old "reaping days." I have the scar of my first attempt on my left little finger to this day. Well after threshing and cleaning, the wheat is shipped in cars to the mills. We have one in Ottawa which I have been through and I want to tell you how they make the "patent roller flour," and other grades. First the wheat is weighed and then dumped into an immense store-house, from which it is carried underground to the mill by machinery. It then passes through a process of cleaning, riddling, brushing, winnowing, etc. enough to grind it to flour one would think. After this the grinding commences, or rather the roller crushing. There are no stones; it passes between bright steel rollers driven very rapidly, about six inches in diameter. The first set gives it a slight crack, then it is carried up to the bolting department, and the finest particles separated; after which it returns again to another set of rollers, set a little closer and gets another crack, this is separated in another bolt; and so on till it passes through six sets of rollers and as many bolts, and travels round generally a mile or two through screws and bucket-band-shoots. During this journey it is brushed, and blown through a fine silk double bolt, which is supposed to separate all impurities in the shape of dust, etc. Each set of rollers takes out a "grade" of flour. The first and second make the "finest of the wheat," the fifth and sixth, the coarsest, is generally mixed with a finer grade, to be edible. A popular, and perhaps the best of all flour, is made by mixing the first four grades in one; then every ingredient of the wheat is retained. Some mills produce nearly all of this kind, McKay's in Ottawa does. By machinery it is stored in immense perpendicular hollow cylinders, and from a spout at the bottom it is bagged and barreled, weighed and sent away to the eater,—that's not you! By the time the separation is complete I do not think a mouse could get a dinner out of a barn-ful of the hulls. To make other "grades," it is mixed, according to the required grade. Now all this; and how much more your father, who has it to buy, and your mother, who has it to mix and bake in order to feed you, only knows. It is to be hoped that you eat it thankfully and "asking no questions for conscience sake," even if it is a little "sour" sometimes,—which probably is because you (boys) do not get good dry wood to bake it with. And how much will you eat before you will be able to earn a barrel? probably a quantity which you could pile into a church! At any rate several quantities which you pile into another place of worship. Well, well, you are as welcome to it all as you are to the air and flowers and sunshine, if you will only show to those who give it you that you appreciate the gift. And remember that it is somewhere written that "man does not live by bread alone" etc. Just turn up the old Book and see what else it does say.

UNCLE JOE.

A neighbor of ours lost a valuable mare recently, it is supposed from bots. If he had used 25 cents worth of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders he would have been driving his pretty Chestnut today. Sorry for you, Doctor. These powders are immensely valuable.

ANOTHER LIFE SAVED.—Mr. W. Morrison writes: "I have been suffering from pain in lungs and chest. Unable to do work for three months. Have tried Eucalyptus and other medicines without benefit, in fact became weaker daily. I was induced to try EAGAR'S PHOSPHORINE, and from first dose I commenced to improve, appetite returned, pain left my lungs and I am now as well as ever."

Chapped hands. A few drops of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment rubbed into the hands occasionally will keep them soft and free from soreness. Soldiers, sailors and fishermen should remember this. It is the best Liniment in the world for any purpose.

THE BOOKSTORE!

Eagles' Building, Wolfville, April 9th, 1885.

Dear Fellow Citizens and Citizenesses:

Ahem! Hear ye we while we assert the most astounding truths. We have combed our hair and performed our ablutions, and now appear before you clothed and in the last suit we possess. But, in spite of all these great natural advantages, we have determined to be great public benefactors.

Owing to the war in Egypt, the impending war with Russia, and the North-Western Rebellion, and the fact that we may be called out at any minute to defend our beloved Country, and possibly to "be numbered with the missing, with the missing mother but never found among the slain, Not for Joe!" We have determined to sacrifice all our Magnificent Stock of Fine English Room Paper at Less than Cost.

Our ladies of this beautiful County of King's be advised ere it is too late in the season, that we are selling the same paper for 10 cents that is sold elsewhere for 15, and it is full width too. Our other papers are marked down to like proportions. We are selling American-Gilt Papers (19 inches wide) at 50 cents and every one else charges 65.

Why? do you ask. Well, we must reduce our stock and are determined to do it at any cost.

Come early and often. The trouble has commenced and people are already scrambling for our papers. Don't bring the children this time for you will need to devote all your attention to the large lot of patterns, numbering over One Hundred in all.

We want you all to have first choice, and if you come at once you will get it. Beware of cheap imitations and have none but the genuine.

We are not remarkable for the good looks of either ourselves or our staff, but we have a good rat trap and the neatest display of everything in our line to be found in this county. And our Room Paper, Oh my!—But do come and buy it.

Yours till death,

WESTERN BOOK & NEWS CO.

A. M. HOARE, MANAGER.

P. S.—A nice wife and family, in good repair, will be taken in exchange for Room Paper.

1885-CALDWELL & MURRAY. 1885

To our Customers in Wolfville and elsewhere.

We have not had time to paint our Store, whitewash the hitching post, or straighten up our wood pile this spring, but we have cleaned up the old paint, washed the windows, and are selling that unsightly pile of wood as quickly as we possibly can.

What has kept us so busy? Why we have been selecting, receiving and putting in shape one of the finest stocks of Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes, and Furniture, etc. that we have ever had the pleasure of showing in this place before.

We are a good deal like the proverbial singed cat, better than we look, and don't try to look better than we are.

We now ask you to come in and see for yourselves that we can back up what we advertise.

Seasonable Dry Goods,

In Dress Goods we have a splendid variety of shades in the following fabrics:—Ottomans, Nun's Cloths (plain and fancy), Serges, Sateens (plain and fancy), Gaiateas, Peques, etc.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., MAY 8, 1885.

Local and Provincial.

Mr. C. W. Williams is stopping in the village.

Subscribe for the ACADIAN? Only 50 cents per year.

Drs. Sawyer and Rand returned from Toronto this week.

Rev. B. C. Borden will preach in the Methodist church next Sabbath.

Go to Borden's for Brogan Shoes; cheapest in the market. 31

Judge Weatherly lost a valuable Holstein heifer last Saturday. It cost him $300 last summer.

Lace Curtains and Sots very cheap at Burpee Witter's. 29

Smelts are being caught in the Gasperau and we understand a few Gasperaux have been taken near the mouth of the river.

Men's Hand Sewed French Calf Strap Tie Shoes, Hand Sewed Congress and Hand Sewed Balmorals at Borden's 31-3

Miss Mary McKen was presented, by her pupils on leaving the Windsor school, with a Vase, and Silver Napkin Ring, accompanied with an address.

NEW HOSIERY, NEW GLOVES.—Caldwell & Murray's much talked of, Lisle thread hosiery has arrived. Ladies, come and see them. 31

We have received the first two numbers of a new paper called The Week's Doings, published at Acadia Mines. It promises well, and we wish it success.

Buy the Standard Library of Poets Cloth, 60 to 75c each at Western Book & News Co's.

The small bridge near Grand Pre is sadly in need of repairs and should be attended to at once. This is the same bridge that the W. A. R. authorities put in last year.

Go to Rockwell & Co's for your School Books, and general school supplies.

FOR SALE.—25 bush. Seed Barley and 50 bush. very fine "Mammoth Pearl" Potatoes. Apply to E. D. BISHOP, Greenwich.

A railing is much needed on the bridge over the Habitant River, at Canning. By the way, before the railing is put up it would be well to build a proper bridge for it.

Ready made Kidder Carpets, Tapestries, Rugs, and Felt Crumb Cloths at Caldwell & Murray's. 31

Mr. D. Mumford brought into our office the other day an egg, laid by a pullet six months old, which measured 6½ by 8 inches. Mr. M. says he would like for someone to beat it if this is the right time of year for big eggs.

LACE CURTAINS! LACE CURTAINS!—Caldwell & Murray have just received a new line of Lace Curtains something different from the ordinary. For beauty, durability and cheapness cannot be surpassed. 31-2

Our contemporary, the Truro Guardian, has been again enlarged and now claims to be the largest weekly in the maritime provinces. It has for some time ranked among our best provincial papers, and its enterprising publisher seems determined to keep up with the times. His endeavor to give a good paper will no doubt be appreciated by his numerous patrons. We wish him every success.

Ladies' Hand Sewed French Kid and French Oil Goat Button Boots just opened at C. H. Borden's, Wolfville. 31

LOOK HERE!—Rockwell & Co; are going to frame pictures from the 25th of April to the 25th of May at 15 per cent less than the usual prices. Parties having pictures to frame had better bring them along and take advantage of this low offer. ROCKWELL & Co., Wolfville.

If you have not already seen these new PENCIL TABLETS at the Western Book & News Co's go in at once, as they are going rapidly.

Local and Provincial.

Our report of the Public School Examinations unavoidably crowded out of this issue will appear next week, also letter from A FISHERMAN and other interesting matter.

PERAMBULATORS.—Air the baby in one of those beautiful Whitney perambulators which Caldwell & Murray are showing. Mind they import these direct from Boston and can sell them as cheap as any firm in the Province. 31

LECTURE.—Rev. J. L. Batty lectures to-night in the Methodist church, subject—"Halifax to Halifax, via Great Britain." His lecture is highly spoken of by the Halifax press.

Straw Hats just opened in great variety at Borden's. 31

S. of T.—At a regular meeting of Maple Leaf Division, S. of T., Greenwich, the following officers were installed for the present quarter:

W. P.—Mrs. A. H. Bishop. W. A.—Mrs. J. L. Bishop. R. S.—John Pudsey. A. R. S.—Miss Julia Griffin. F. S.—A. K. Forsyth. Treas.—Mrs. Verloa Griffin. Con.—Frederic Porter. A. C.—Miss Emma Bishop. I. S.—Miss Carrie Bishop. O. S.—E. C. Bishop. Chap.—Miss Roxey Griffin. P. W. P.—Miss Minnie Bishop.

Nuns' Veilings in black, old gold, and pale shades at BURPEE WITTER'S. 31

As will be seen by his adv. in another column, Mr. J. M. Shaw has now got ready for work. He has had the room in the rear fitted up in first-class style for barbering and hair-dressing, and has gone to large expense for mirrors, chairs and other furnishings. In the front he has opened a tobacco store and the public can there be supplied with anything in that line. Mr. Shaw first opened a Hair-dressing saloon here about two years ago under considerable difficulty and has since been continually trying to improve his rooms and make them comfortable and attractive. We congratulate him on his success and bespeak for him a liberal patronage.

C. H. Borden has just received a splendid stock of Gents' Furnishings. 31

MUSIC HALL.—The theatre-going public of Wolfville is to be visited by the Ideal Musical and Comedy Company, composed of first-class, talented artists from the leading theatres of New York and Boston. The following, taken from the Halifax Evening Mail, speaks for itself:

"There was standing room only at the Lyceum last evening. An entirely new programme was presented. The entertainment was carried through well, a number of good songs and jokes being introduced. Miss Percival, violin soloist, made her first appearance. The lady is certainly a fine performer, and last evening was well received. The Maras remain strong favorites, and deserve the generous applause they receive nightly. Clarence Percival in lightning changes proved an entertaining artist. His act is a novel one. The concluding farce caused roars of laughter, and closed one of the best programmes yet presented at this theatre."

We are now furnishing Letter and Statements, Business Cards, Shipping Tags, and all kinds of plain and ornamental printing at extremely low prices. Samples and prices furnished on application.

BURDETTE.—Bob Burdette delivered his lecture on "Home" to a full house in Assembly Hall, Acadia College on Wednesday evening. Probably few men have gained the place in the hearts of Wolfville people that Bob Burdette has, and few are as welcome visitors to our Village. His gentlemanliness and his genial smile, not to speak of his beautiful mustache, has endeared him to all. So we listened to him as an old friend. We cannot write up the lecture, because, as a city contemporary said, it is indescribable. It is the gift of very few men to carry an audience with him as Burdette does. Probably the most remarkable thing about the lecture was that it was all news. How striking a contrast to that conglomerated epitome of rehashed quack medicine, almanacs, to whom we listened some weeks ago. Our space won't let us say further than that we feel certain Bob Burdette can lecture in his own particular line just a little better than anyone we have ever heard, and as for his word pictures—yum! yum!

EUREKA!

Found! a Plum Tree that will not Black Knot!
The Masters Plum Tree has stood the test 40 years in Kentville, King's County, Nova Scotia. Chas. A. Masters, of Kentville, found this tree growing on lands now owned by Judge G. A. Blanchard forty years ago, and removed the tree to his garden in the village, where it now stands a healthy bearing tree, and is now owned by me. There are scores of trees throughout the village in bearing from 4 to 20 years old which bear every year, and not a vestige of black knot appears on one of them. The tree is an annual bearer of rapid growth, growing tall not spreading. The Plum is quite large, purple color, and of excellent quality. It is the best preserving plum grown, and sells higher than any plum brought into the market. Last year, while the crop was immense, this plum readily brought $4.00 per bushel, $1.00 more than any other variety offered for sale. We have several hundred first class trees to offer for the spring planting and intend to plant 5,000 more grafts here. That this is the best and most profitable Plum Tree to plant that is grown in the Dominion of Canada, and that it will not black knot we refer the planters of this delicious fruit to
F. S. Masters, Barrister, of whom we purchased the original tree; also to Chas. A. Masters, G. A. Blanchard (Judge), J. B. Blanchard, H. B. Webster, M. D., J. E. Mulloney, M. D., Otho Eaton, John Byrne, T. E. Smith, J. A. Shaw.

IN THE WATCHES OF THE NIGHT.

Beneath the midnight moon of May,
Through dusk on either hand,
One sheet of silver spreads the bay,
One crescent jet the land;
The dark ships, mirrored in the stream,
Their ghostly tresses shake—
When will the dead world cease to dream?
When will the morning break?

Depent a night no longer May,
Where only cold stars shine,
One glimmering ocean spreads away
This haunted life of mine;
And, shattered on the frozen shore,
My harp can never wake—
When will the dream of death be o'er?
When will the morning break?

"DEAD."

She placed her hand on his white forehead and whispered in his ear: "You have always been very dear to me, my love! my love!

But the time had come when these words that once would have sounded so sweet, might as well have been unspoken. Dead!

"My love, my love, do you remember?" and as she spoke, from his temples she clipped a lock of silvery hair.

Once, how his heart would have bounded in response to a word of sympathy;

once, how wide his eyes would have opened at that look of tenderness which came to him too late!

Dead!

Gone from this world to another!

Gone where no memory of sin, or sorrow,
or of unattained desire can ever come!

Dead!

She looked at him in his coffin and kissed his eyes; she might as well have kissed a stone, for those eyes never opened, and from those rigid lips came never er a whisper.

Dead!

The procession of time moves on and on, and of the majority of the thousands that drop by the wayside, little else can be written than that their lives were full of disappointment and fruitless in result.

THE OCEAN.

The ocean says to the dweller on its shores:

"You are neither welcome nor unwelcome. I do not trouble myself with the living tribes that come down to my waters. I have my own people, an older race than yours, that grow to mightier dimensions than your mastodons and elephants; more numerous than all the swarms that fill the air or move over the thin crust of the earth. Who are you that build your gay palaces on my margin? I see your white faces as I saw the dark faces of the tribes that came before you, as I shall look upon the unknown family of mankind that will come after you. And what is your whole human family but a parenthesis in a single page of my history? The raindrops stereotyped themselves on my beaches before a
