Keep Your Display Windows Free from Frost.

For preventing the Frosting of Display Windows in winter time there is nothing Simpler or more Effective than

The Air Blast of an Electric Fan directed against the glass.

The philosophy of the thing is plain. The evaporative effect of the air current simply prevents condensation of moisture upon the window and affords relief from the annoyance which is generally sought but only imperfectly attained through various awkward means.

WON AT LAST.

CHAPTER XIV.

The affair passed off with that, Mademoiselle was voluble and eloquent about it at dinner, but, with her usual tact, took her cue from madame's face, and, seeing that the subject was not a congenial one, soon let it drop. Nat's pretty face was a little pale when she came down, and she was rather silent through the meal, but she did not drop so much as a syllable with respect to the late scene. But by and by, when we were back in the drawing-room, with mademoiselle as usual at the piano and madame at work by her special little table by the fire, I spoke of it, being, in fact, bubbling over with curiosity. Nat had, according to her custom of late, established herself upon one of the wide window-seats, half crouching, half sitting upon its broad cushioned ledge, with her book on her lap. But she had apparently forgotten it, and her eyes were straying out to the bright December moonlight, when presently I crossed over to her and touched her shoulder.

"I say, Nat!" I whispered, and she turned with a start.

"How you startled me, Ned! I didn't hear you. What did you say?"

"Why, so far, I haven't said anything beyond 'I say.' I returned, laughing. 'What a lark that was upstairs just now, wasn't it?'"

"A lark, do you call it? I don't. It frightened me."

"Yes, I dare say; but then I didn't see it, you know. What on earth was it all about, though?"

"Why, they quarreled. That is all I know."

"Yes, of course; but why did they? People don't throw water-jugs at each other for nothing."

"I tell you I don't know. They were as quiet as could be before Val la struck Virtue, both helping me to dress, for I came up awfully late, you know. There was no warning—no word. The blow was given in a instant."

"And then Virtue pitched the water-jug, eh?" I said, laughing at the idea of the scene.

"Yes. Wasn't it an awful crash?"

"Rather. How came Mistress Val la's turban and hair down, though?"

"Oh, she pulled it down! She always does when she is in a temper."

"By Jove! I say, Nat, if I were you, I'd give her a good talking to. Tantrums of that sort are altogether too much of a good thing. I suppose now she'll be sulky for a week, won't she?"

"What—with me?" cried Nat.

Could Not Digest His Food

Suffered For Years From Indigestion Until Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. J. D. S. Barrett.

If you suffer from chronic indigestion, forget about the stomach and pay attention to the condition of the liver and bowels. Ten to one that is where the real trouble lies.

The liver gets sluggish and fails to filter the bile from the blood, the bowels become constipated and the whole digestive system is upset.

As to cure, you cannot do better than to read of Mr. Barrett's experience with Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no treatment so prompt and thoroughly effective.

Mr. J. D. S. Barrett, Nelson, B. C., and formerly of Twillingate, Nfld., writes:—"For several years I was a great sufferer from indigestion. The least bit of food caused me considerable trouble and often I could scarcely eat a meal a day. The many remedies I tried proved futile until in 1906 I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after using about eight boxes I was completely cured. Since that time I have not been troubled with indigestion, which I consider a great blessing."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers or Edmondson Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

opening her eyes at me. "No. To-night I shall have quite a scene with her. It is always so. She goes down upon her knees and cries and kisses my hands. It is painful—worse than her temper itself, poor thing; but I can't help it. I dare say she has beseeched me to forgive her for some such fit of passion twenty times since I have been here, and always in the same wild, raving kind of way."

"And you will, I suppose?" I said.

"What—forgive her? Of course. Why, if anyone I was fond of tried to till me and then seemed sorry I couldn't help making it up! Oh, Ned, let us have a game of chess! I am tired of this stupid book."

She jumped off her perch and crossed to the fire, leaving me to get out the chess-board and men. When I had found them, we established ourselves close to madame's work-table, mademoiselle's soft, dreamy music forming a pleasant accompaniment. We played a couple of games, Nat winning one and I the other, and was placing the men to commence a third, when my mother looked up from her work and checked us by saying:

"Natalie, my dear, I have been thinking that you ought to have your ewels."

"What—to wear, madame?" cried Nat, twisting round in her chair.

"Of course, dear."

"But I thought you said you didn't like girls to wear jewelry," said Nat, slyly, leaving her seat to kneel in her childish fashion by madame's knee.

"I said I did not like to see the wear overmuch, I think," my mother corrected, her fine white hand caressing the silky black curls. "But I should like you to wear some of these this Christmas, I think, since we are to have so much gaiety. They were your mother's, were they not?"

Nat nodded.

"Yes—all of them. They were the principal part of her dowry, I think. No one has worn them since she died. I never wore them in Jamaica; I didn't like to."

"Then it is quite time they saw the light again!" madame said cheerfully.

"Where are they, mother?" I put in.

"Where they have been ever since. Natalie came here, my dear—in the plate-chest in the strong-room. Why?"

"Can't we get them out to-night. It will fill up the time to look over them. It isn't late."

"To-night!" repeated my mother doubtfully. "Would you like to, Natalie?"

Evidently Natalie would, for her black eyes were sparkling, and a quick color had flushed her little dusky face. Madame noted this, and rose with a smile.

"You are a perfect baby!" she said, with the caressing gentleness which she used to no other person. "Well, we will have these wonderful jewels out then. Some may want resetting. I am not sure."

Mademoiselle had stopped playing when the subject began, although she still kept her place at the piano, her thin white hands moving over the keys without striking them—a favorite trick of hers. But she rose now in her quiet, graceful way, and came forward.

"Pardon, madame—can I assist you?"

"No, thank you, mademoiselle. No, don't come, Natalie, my dear, I shall not be many minutes."

Madame went out. Mlle. Valdin glanced after her, and then moved to the fire, holding out her hands to the blaze. She was shivering, and Nat looked at her wonderingly.

"Are you cold, mademoiselle?"

"A little—yes. I stayed too long by the piano."

"It was more than a little to make you shake like that," I said, for she was fairly shivering. "Shall I get you a glass of wine, mademoiselle?"

"Thank you—no. It's nothing. It will pass," she returned, in her usual way; and then, as if vexed at not noticing her, she walked over to the window, and, drawing aside the curtain, stood looking out with her back to us.

Nat, kneeling on the edge of the marble fender, crossed her two forefingers and glanced up at me with a laughing grimace. I nodded expressively. Mademoiselle, pattern of propriety as she was, was quite capable of losing her temper. For a little while we were silent.

"I say, Nat—those jewels of yours are valuable, aren't they?" I said then.

"Very, I think. Madame said so when I came here, you remember. Before, I had never thought much about them. I don't think my poor father really remembered that I had them. I'm glad madame is going to get them out. There is one dear little diamond cross that I want to give Alice. They ought to be valuable, at any rate," she concluded, with a laugh—"locked up among all the silver dishes and the best forks and spoons."

The rustle of madame's silken skirt sounded outside, and she came in, followed by old Styles the butler bearing half a dozen shabby-looking morocco cases. We turned round from the fire.

"So they are all safe and sound, madame!" Nat cried, gayly. "I'm glad no one has run away with them. I—Oh, what's that?"

For Mlle. Valdin had suddenly recoiled from the window with a cry that made the room ring, and, clasping her hands over her eyes as she shrunk back, staggered for an instant and then dropped to the floor in a fainting fit.

CHAPTER XV.

There was a "scene" of course. Nat gave a scream hardly louder than madame's exclamation of astonishment, and Styles, dropping all the cases on to the table with a clatter, ran across to help me to raise the insensible woman. Her spare, thin figure was not of much weight, and between us we got her upon a couch. Old Batteredbin came hurrying in in reply to my mother's loud ring; and then what with vinegar, brandy and smelling-salts, Nat and I were pressed out of the sympathetic circle gathered round the couch.

"What is it, Ned?" she whispered in my ear.

"Goodness knows! One would think she had seen a ghost."

"I believe she did see something."

We both turned instinctively toward the window. The thick curtain hung just as mademoiselle had dragged it in falling. Deep blue winter sky, a large bright moon, bare tree trunks, a light sprinkling of snow—that was all I could see. Nat's bright eyes, peering out too, evidently could make out no more.

"Well, I can't see anything," she said. "What are you going to do?"

"For I was unfastening the hasp of the window."

"Just have a look around. Don't say anything. I won't be more than a minute."

I had a look round, but I did not discover anything. I peered about among the clumps of bushes, went down the Lady's Walk, peeped into the Lady's Chapel, stumbled over a barrow load of rubbish which some idiot of a gardener had left about, and finally got back to the house at the end of about five minutes, no wiser, though a good deal colder, than when I went out. Nat still stood at the window.

"Well, did you see anything?" she demanded eagerly.

"Not a thing. If she fancied she saw anything, it must have been through the reflection of the moonlight."

"Perhaps so, I say, Ned, are all those footmarks yours?"

"Eh?" I ejaculated, pausing as I was about to shut the window. "I guess so. Why?"

"Some of them look larger than the others. I fancy. Were there any marks before you went out?"

"I declare I didn't notice—never gave it a thought. I don't think so, though."

"I don't think so, either, but I'm not certain. It was very stupid of us not to look."

It was, and I thought so, although I felt pretty sure too that all the footmarks made in the thin covering of snow came from my own boots. I closed the window, pulled the curtains together, and then followed Nat to the couch. Mademoiselle had recovered consciousness now, and was leaning back, still deadly pale. Madame had dismissed Batteredbin and the rest of them, and was herself urging the governess to take some more brandy. Mademoiselle demurred.

"Nonsense, my dear!" my mother was saying with unusual kindness, but with the quiet determination to have her own way which was natural to the mistress of Chavasse. "Brandy is the best possible thing for you. Come—I must really insist."

The Impossibility of Repeating

By RUTH CAMERON.

When the appointed evening came, the jolliest guest was ill, and the best story-teller had been called out of town on business. Furthermore, it was much too warm to really enjoy an open fire. Thirdly, an exciting event had occurred in our little circle of acquaintances and the talk clung persistently around that and refused to be led off into the realms of the mystic. We sat uncomfortably about the fire for almost an hour like a spiritualist waiting vainly for his "control," until it was finally borne in, even upon Mollie, that things were not as they should be. The seance broke up in a jolly game of whist, capped with a midnight chafing-dish. We had a thoroughly good time, but it certainly wasn't the same, any more than sun light is the same thing as moon light or fire light.

And that's the way it always is when we try to repeat.

Surely you also have tried to repeat some enjoyable vacation, some happy holiday, some interesting evening, and found how impossible it is. You may have as pleasant a time, that is, if you don't let yourself be troubled by regrets for the former occasion,—but you won't have the same kind of a time. By some rare chance you may possibly be able to collect the same people, but even if you do accomplish that miracle, the atmosphere will surely be different.

Life is a kaleidoscope; each day is a turn that presents a new combination. All the king's horses and all the king's men cannot prevail to bring back a combination that has been destroyed.

So don't try to repeat. It doesn't pay. Just enjoy each new combination to the fullest and let it go at that.

And it wasn't.

Ruth Cameron

FOR THE WOMAN WHO THINKS AND FEELS.

Some women complain that they periodically suffer from dull and heavy feelings, or dizziness in the head, nervousness, pain and bearing-down feelings which should not occur to the normal healthy woman. But most every woman is subjected to these pains at some time in her life, due to abnormal conditions in life, such as corsets, over-taxed strength, bad air, poor or improper food, wet feet, sluggish liver, etc. A regulator and female tonic made from native medicinal roots with pure glycerin, and without the use of alcohol, called has proven its value in thousands of cases, like the following:

Mrs. DONA M. MARTIN, of Auburn, Neb., Route 1, Box 84, says: "I think I would write you in regard to what your medicine has done for me. I have used them for thirty years for female trouble and general weakness with the very best results, and they have saved me hundreds of dollars in doctors' bills. I buy the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and take them together. I never was disappointed in your remedies and take pleasure in recommending them to any suffering lady. I am now almost fifty years old; at forty-five I took your medicine and I passed the period very easily and left me fat and healthy. I feel like a young girl. If any lady cares to write me, I will gladly tell her more about the good work of your medicine."

Dr. PIERCE'S GREAT FAMILY DOCTOR BOOK, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition—of 1008 pages, answers hosts of delicate questions which every woman, single or married, ought to know. Sent free in cloth binding to any address on receipt of 50 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of wrapping and mailing only.

Household Notes.

Boiling in soapsuds will make an oil lamp burn as good as new.

When sweeping thick carpets always follow the weave of the pile.

If for any reason you want a coal that burns rapidly, use nut coal.

Chalk and borax spread on a mildew spot and place the article in the sun.

Stair carpets should be heavily padded if one desires them to wear well.

Black stockings should be rinsed in blue water to make them a good color.

Vegetables which grow under the ground should be cooked with the lid on.

To improve the light of a lamp, put a small piece of camphor in the reservoir.

To banish roaches, use equal parts of plaster of paris and powdered sugar.

Damp sawdust is an excellent substitute for tea leaves when sweeping a carpet.

Old gloves should always be saved to slip on the hands when dusting or sweeping.

Tincture of myrrh is a good thing in the water used to rinse after brushing your teeth.

Good eggs will sink in a brine of two ounces salt to a pint of water; bad ones will float.

If you wish to be sure of keeping the oilcloth on the kitchen table smooth, paste it on.

Let potatoes lie in cold water for a little while before paring if you wish them to be white.

When fruit leaves a stain on the teeth, it should be removed a once by rubbing on a little salt.

A slip for a balm pillow is best made of tan linen with a pine tree cross-stitched upon it.

When you wish to wrap presents in the prettiest, most unique fashion, use raffia in several shades.

In preparing dates for dessert wash and drain them; they will be much juicier and more palatable.

Glasses or pitchers which have been used for milk should be rinsed in cold water before being washed in hot.

If a youngster gets his rubber boots wet inside, a good way to dry them is to fill them with hot yellow corn.

When stoves are about to be put away for the summer, apply kerosene to them with a rag; it will prevent rust.

Cut flowers, especially roses, will last longer if they are given a good bath up to their necks just after they are cut.

If you haven't a funnel handy when you fill salt and pepper boxes, an envelope with the corner cut off will do.

When making sage pudding allow three dessertspoonsful for each pint of milk; let all soak two hours before cooking.

When the sick room is being ventilated, a screen should be placed in front of the window to prevent danger of a draught.

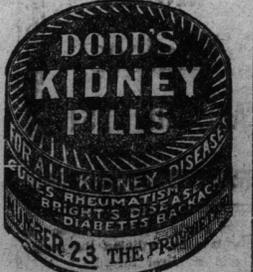

A bit of cloth or chamois should always be kept in the sewing machine drawer to wipe off the machine before beginning to stitch.

When storing cutlery, wipe the blades lightly with a little vaseline, before using wash in soda water and clean in the usual way.

When you wash your door panels of lace or net applique, to fit the door glass tack them on the door to dry and they will keep their shape.

To make jam or marmalade look clear without skimming it, add a piece of butter the size of an egg before removing the fruit from the fire.

Warm towels are a great comfort in the bathroom, and may be secured by having a towel rack made of pipe connected with the heating system.

Another Big Week AT THE NICKEL.

The attendance at the Nickel Theatre for last week was a record one, which considering the disagreeable weather is an indication of the great popularity of this first class moving picture house. No such theatre in any part of the world has a better reputation than the St. John's Nickel. Patrons always look forward to and receive a programme artistic and attractive. To-night's pictures should not be missed as they have been specially selected. Mr. Reginald Thomas has another charming vocal selection which he will present and which we feel sure will be pleasing to the audience.

Here and There

ANNUAL MEETING.—The Phoenix Whaling Company held their annual meeting on Saturday when all last year's officers were re-elected.

GETTING BETTER.—Capt. Parsons, of the Solway, who has been unwell since the ship arrived here last is getting better and will be soon about again.

BRUCE PASSENGERS.—The S. S. Bruce arrived at Port aux Basques at 6 p.m. Saturday. Her passengers were Capt. W. Parsons, F. Hynes and S. Keen.

MAN HURT.—While proceeding down Bell Street yesterday forenoon Mr. L. Goodland slipped on the ice and fell heavily. He sustained a wound to his head and Dr. O'Connell inserted two stitches in it.

PATIENTS FOR HOSPITAL.—A young man named Gillingham who was hurt at Bishop's Falls, arrived by the express Saturday night and was taken to the Hospital. A man named White, of Bell Island, suffering from defective sight, was also taken there.

S. S. A. MEETING.—The Star of the Sea Association held their quarterly meeting yesterday afternoon, there being a large attendance present. Rev. Father O'Callaghan, Spiritual Director, addressed the members impressively and exhorted them to attend to their religious duties.

The C. L. B. Band, who played so well at the C. L. B. "At Home," are going to play even better at Feild-Spencer "At Home." Be sure and be there. Jan 24, 27.

WILL UNDOCK.—The S. S. Wilhelmina will come off dock this evening or to-morrow after which further repairs will be given her at the dock pier. The Argyle will then go on for the yearly overhaul and repairs and will be done with despatch to resume her work on Placentia Bay and re-leave the Ethie.

Mr. A. H. ALLEN will be glad to receive names for his Private Singing Classes—one for ladies only and one for gentlemen only. Fee for the term (payable in advance), $5.00. Address, 71 Renfrew's Mill Road.—Jan 25, 21

FIRE ALARM.—An alarm was sent in from box 221 on Saturday evening at six o'clock bringing two fire companies to the residence of Mr. M. P. Cashin, on Queen's Road, where sparks from the chimney had ignited some woodwork. The fire was quenched before any damage was done, and the "all out" signal sounded at 6.18.

FANCY NEEDLEWORK.—Miss Bremner has re-opened her Fancy Needlework Classes for Ladies and Children. Further particulars on application at 99 Military Road.—Jan 25, 21

To Our Patrons

We are making a visit to the British Markets to personally select the Latest Fashions and Fabrics for the coming season, and hope to return in about four weeks with the best selection of Goods for High-Class Tailoring yet displayed in this city. During our absence our Genuine American Cutter, Mr. P. A. McCafferty, will attend to all orders entrusted to us with his customary courtesy and thorough attention to detail that characterizes all his work.

We also take this opportunity to tender our sincere thanks for the generous patronage we have received during the past year, and trust by strict attention to business to merit even a larger share the present year.

Notes and Comments.

The grab-balls must go. Folks are wondering these cold days when the cheap coal is coming. Sir Edward Morris promised over four years ago. Morris is making good for the Grabballs. "Union without intelligence is useless; intelligence without union is powerless."

Oregon had a crop last year of "beetatoes," a combination of the beet and potato. It is said to be very prolific and of delicious flavour.

Morris times are good times for the grabbers.

The outport people were told in the Outport Public Message that Sir Edward Morris had an enthusiastic welcome at Bay Roberts. An outport correspondent writes to tell us that the Public News of the 21st says Dr. Lloyd and Mr. Coaker were not allowed to address a public meeting at Bay Roberts.

Judging from the nature of the comments in the Western Star, the inference left to be drawn was that Coaker and Lloyd did not address public meetings at Bay Roberts and that Coaker was not allowed by the fishermen of Bay Roberts to start a Union there. We find no reference to the magnificent demonstrations and meetings at Port de Grave and Bay Roberts, nor of the fact that Bay Roberts fishermen made a record in the number of fishermen who joined the local council, when it was started.

This is not the only occasion in which we have taken exception to the use of the Outport Public Message for partizan purposes. It is high time such objectionable practices were put an end to. We however, have no hope in this direction until the fishermen drives out the Grabball party next fall.

Morris is making good money for the Grabballs. Great fees for Morris and Morrison on the Hague Arbitration; big salaries and expenses for Downey and Devereaux; pickings for Emerson, Howley, Goodison and McGrath. Good reason for McGrath shouting that Morris is making good.

Shannahan, Tucker and the Cute Man,

Accompanied by Mrs. Tucker, Visit Delaney.

Delaney has been suffering from a heavy cold for the past fortnight or so, and last night our party met at Tucker's and decided that we'd proceed to his abode in professional order and tender him our sincerest brand of sympathy, accompanied by a bag of oranges and a few peppermint sweets.

Accordingly Mrs. Tucker led the way, followed by Mrs. Tucker, while the Cute Man, shod in creepers, crept along on the starboard side of your humble servant. We trudged up Carter's Hill, sticking our toes, as it were, in the slippery snow and offering up a fervent prayer now and then that the giddy lads on their slides wouldn't meet us in a head-on collision. Mrs. Tucker, who had been slipping 'till she lost her temper, muttering some choice Anglo-Saxon in praise of the Councillors, and turning round to one of the residents, who was bending under the weight of two buckets of water, asked him if all the ashes on the hill had been cornered by a trust. The Snug Man in the water hoop told Mrs. Tucker he didn't quite understand what she was driving at, and informed her he was a new-comer in these parts.

I thought as much, said Mrs. Tucker. Why, haven't you sense enough to fire some ashes on this hill, said she, and make the walking possible without running the risk of having your backbone twisted and you being lugged to the Hospital? How on earth does your wife get up and down here in winter, and for goodness sake inform me how do the poor old men who scramble out before daybreak to look for a day's work—how do they escape meeting with a dozen or more complete or compound fractures during the winter?

The Man in the Hoop laid down the buckets and, peering into Mrs. Tucker's burning mountain orbits, asked: What do you take us for? Do you imagine, says he, that we are going to do the work of the Council for nothing? Not likely, said he, we'd rather run the risk of breaking all the necks in the country. And flinging his buckets again, walked off with the air of a conqueror.

Queer people in this country, said the Cute Man, and the half of it will never be known.

We trudged along up across Le Marchant Road and struck Parade Street. Tucker stood still and gazed in wonder at the Armoury. Fine building that, said he, and the thought just struck me what a fine place this would be to put up some nice snug houses for the highly esteemed and often talked of class known as the working men.

Some thing was just crossing my mind, says the Cute Man. You could run up four or five hundred telephones here and 't would be a fine healthy place for the children; but what's the use of talking, there's a mystery surrounding the ownership of this land and no one in the last century ever took the trouble to clear it up. Anyway, 't would be too sensible to solve the building or housing question in this simple style. We never do any thing like that in this country. We must have a generator or two worn out talking about it, and then we die and of course forget all about it.

We had now reached Delaney's domicile and were met by a barking crackle that seemed to take us for a stranded crew. Pushing open the creaky door Mrs. Tucker led the way and soon we beheld our friend shining the bogie and enjoying a good old-fashioned draw of the pipe. His eyes beamed with delight as Mrs. Tucker grasped his hand, and produced the bag of Valencia's. We all shook Delaney till he seemed to get a relapse of his illness and then took our seats as near the stove as possible.

Well, says Delaney, your visit is a surprise to me. I had made up my mind that ye had joined the throng who forget friends when they go on lock for repairs, and although you have not improved upon the quality of your refreshments, though ye stick religiously to the yellow skin orange as a last shove off for a man on his last one's, still I appreciate your thoughtfulness and like the men who are presented with addresses and presents, "I am taken completely by surprise."

There are a lot of citizens being "taken by surprise," this winter according to the papers, said Tucker. I was speaking to one of a committee that called on one of our citizens to present him with an address and a pipe the other night, and his description of the event is worth relating. He says they called at the house about a quarter to nine and found the object of their bubbling enthusiasm seated in a Morris chair arrayed in his best suit, while a pair of furry moccasins adorned his No. 10's. His wife appeared on the scene as if she had just emerged from a hand box, perfect in dress, and the right size of a smile adorning her countenance. The grate held a carefully selected nob fire, and the cat looked as if she had received the feed of her life, and sported a pink ribbon on her neck, while a tray containing Root Beer occupied a position close behind some dark glossy cake on the table. The chief spokesman of the delegation read a long address which said more than was true of "he in the furry moccasins," but that gentleman arose at the end of the address, and told us that he thanked us on behalf of himself and wife (here the wife bowed) and also had the audacity to inform us that we had "completely taken him by surprise."

Delaney laughed till he woke the cat, and promised us that he would make an effort to get down to Tucker's as soon as possible, for as he says himself there's much to be done and we have a busy time before us ere the Daylight Bill becomes law in this country.

TIM SHANNAHAN.

The Police Court.

A 19 year old laborer, drunk and disorderly, was discharged. A laborer of Plymouth Road, drunk, and breaking a pane of glass in the house of Isaac Newell, was fined $1. A fisherman of Bailline, charged with vagrancy, was remanded. Const. Tucker had two youths up or coasting on Buchanan Street. They ad to pay court expenses. A horse owner, who was summoned by the S. P. C. A. for ill-treating his horse, was fined $1 or 3 days. An assault case was withdrawn, and another between two residents of the battery was dismissed.

Admiral to Visit Here.

The Rear-Admiral and the cruiser squadron of the Atlantic fleet will visit our waters in June next. At the time of their arrival in St. John's one or more French ships will likely be in port so that some interesting functions must occur. The Admiral and officers of the squadron will have some fishing up country.

An Imposing Funeral.

The funeral of the late Mr. Curnew took place at 2.30 p.m. yesterday from his late residence, Cabot Street. It was attended by the Salvation Army with their band and also by the Loyal Orange Association. After a service at the S. A. Barracks the remains were interred at the S. A. Cemetery.

Here and There.

W. M. S. SALE.—The Women's Missionary Society holds a tea at Wesley Church Basement, Wednesday night, the proceeds of which will go to the mission fund.

FIRE ENQUIRY.—An enquiry into the cause of the fire at Mr. M. Mayers' house on Allandale Road was commenced in Judge Knight's office to-day.

A POPULAR SONG.—A great many people who intend to be present at the Mount Cashel concert Wednesday night, would like to hear Mr. Slattery and his "jolly jesters" sing the "Kelliebrews Soiree." This song is making a big hit in the States, especially where Newfoundlanders have located and was composed by Mr. John Burke or the famous "Mohawk" Minstrels.

MOUNT CASHEL CONCERT.—Music and laughter are the main attractions at the British Hall on Wednesday night. The lady and gentleman volunteers who give the annual concert for the benefit of Mount Cashel have excelled themselves this year in the preparation of a programme. The best local talent—musical and dramatic—are taking part, and the charitable object will, no doubt, as usual, bring an overflowing house.

FLORIZEL ARRIVES.—The Red Cross Liner Florizel, Capt. Smith, arrived at 2.15 o'clock to-day from New York and Halifax. She left New York on Tuesday last and had moderate weather going to Halifax but from the later port met it rough strong head winds being continuous. She brought a full freight and the following passengers: W. Miller, Mrs. L. J. Taylor, Miss Taylor, W. D. Williams, R. Ireland, M. D. Shears, R. E. Chaffin, J. P. Meehan, Mrs. J. Richards, W. A. Brown, T. T. Cartwright, Mrs. Cartwright, J. M. Johnson, Mrs. Johnson, A. W. Mead, Miss M. Tucker, S. Johnston, G. A. Moulton, D. McKelzie, Rev. A. G. G. Stamp, P. Grace, J. Foley, Miss Jones, G. A Peculiar Way to Coast.

It seems odd to think that coasting is possible in the tropics, for when this sport is mentioned one invariably thinks of snow. But it is a fact that coasting affords great amusement to the natives of some of the tropical regions.

They build long sledges and also choose steep hills just as we do, but for their course they have, instead of snow, dry grass, which grows there abundantly. Stones are also used in the building of the courses, which must cost a great deal of labor, but the enjoyment derived from them amply repays for the trouble.

It is an amusing sight to see the natives on their sledges, only about six inches wide, three inches deep and twelve feet long, speed down the course and go quite a surprising distance across the plain.—The Contrade.

PREPARING PLAY—The B. I. S. Dramatic Troupe are now making arrangements for a play which they will produce on St. Patrick's Night. The name of the play is not yet decided on.

Intense Indignation.

People in from St. Mary's Bay to-day say that there is intense indignation all over the Bay and along the Southern Shore over the callous manner in which the family of Peter Ryan, of North Harbour, were treated. Five out six in the family died with diphtheria of a most malignant type, and our informants say that they were only visited once and then left to their own resources to fight the dread disease. The ages of the children who died ranged from 21 to 19 downwards, and they were without proper medical treatment and had no nurse. The Government showed indifference in the matter and naturally they are execrated by all the people of that section. Why was not a doctor sent from the city? Mrs. Ryan herself was dangerously ill of the disease but fortunately recovered.

Photographs by Telegraph

In France the transmission of photographs over a telegraph-wire is now practical for newspaper work, and pictures sent in this way appear in the Paris papers. L'illustration is taking the lead, and one station is installed at its Paris office and another at Monte Carlo. The "Scientific American" has the following account of the process:

Photographs are taken in the afternoon at Monte Carlo, and quickly developed in the laboratory. Next, the photographers prepare a copper film by direct printing from the negative. The copper plate is covered with narrow parallel lines of insulating substance, very thin in the white parts and broad in the blacks, not unlike a half-tone, except that lines are used instead of dots to make the picture. Next they wrap the copper film round a metal cylinder not unlike a phonograph cylinder against which a small metal point bears. As the cylinder turns, the point passes across the lines of the image. In the white places, represented by the bare copper, this point makes a contact that sends an electrical current through the line. In the black spaces, which are formed by the insulated coating, the current is cut off.

At the Paris end, the operator has wrapped a photographic film round a cylinder contained in a dark box, and the image is transferred to this film by an electro-magnetic shutter that is operated by the electric current that comes from Monte Carlo. The operator removes the film and develops it, and after a quick washing and drying, makes a half-tone from it. The operators at Monte Carlo prepare the plates two or three times, and telegraph the pictures during the night for the morning papers. — "Youth's Companion."

BALTIMORE, To-day.
President Taft in speaking at the annual banquet of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, defended his administration's attitude on the Panama Canal disagreements. He declared his position was not unpatriotic and dishonorable. He said there was no reason for anyone to oppose the proposal for arbitration before an impartial tribunal. Whether you call it subsidy or not, I am in favor of making transportation rates between coasts through the Panama Canal lower, said the President. Now the question is can we do that under our international obligations? I think we can and if you read the authorities you will find we may, but if we are bound not to exempt coastwise vessels we can agree to submit the question to an impartial tribunal. I am willing to admit there are arguments on the other side; we are willing, however, to submit our views to arbitration. There is nothing in the attitude of the administration as I have stated, to show we have been dishonorable. There is nothing to show a disposition to evade. We are willing to rest the case with a tribunal that is impartial.

LONDON, To-day.
A Cabinet Council will assemble to decide the momentous question how to deal with the dilemma caused by the Speaker's ruling on the Franchise question. This ruling which was made on Thursday in answer to a question asked by Bonar Law, was to the effect that if the form or substance of the bill were materially changed by the amendment it should be withdrawn and a new bill presented. Such strong conflicting opinions have been provoked by the thorny problem of women's vote that fears have begun to be expressed whether the Government will be able to weather the storm, faced on one hand by suffragists who are calling upon the Premier to redeem his pledge to women and on the other hand by those even some Liberals, who express the opinion that the Government has no right to force through Parliament such a revolutionary reform as giving votes to women without first appealing to the country. Ministers insist that the question cannot involve any Cabinet resignations. Fear of some new militant action on the part of the Suffragettes, if the Bill is dropped causes great anxiety in official quarters. The Scotland Yard authorities are taking elaborate measures to protect the cabinet against possible attacks.

LONDON, To-day.
That the policy of the allies is to gain time is patent and does not deceive anybody. The Delegates have decided the advantages to be derived from resumption of hostilities would not be in proportion to the risks they ran, and that they would not take that step unless absolutely forced to do so. They realize that even a partial reverse would have grave moral and material consequences, apart from the loss of thousands of men. In addition the fact is not overlooked that there is danger of Roumania advancing from the rear, and of Austria imposing on Serbia and Montenegro, her conditions for remaining neutral. The only disadvantage of delaying action is the keeping of large armies inactive and on a war footing for a long time, thus heavily taxing both the financial and agricultural resources of the countries. A Greek project is under examination, aiming to land troops in the Gulf of Saros and occupy the Gallipoli Peninsula. This would give the allies control of the Turkish fortifications of the Dardanelles, enabling the Greek fleet to enter the Sea of Marmora and threaten Constantinople. All this and similar projects are subordinate to the decision of the Powers and to events in Constantinople where many consider a military counter-revolution is inevitable within a short time.

In this world's broad field of battle, in the bivouac of life, hump around and make things rattle, hustle for your kids and wife. Not enjoyment and not trouble is our destined end, ay tank, but to put the shining robe safely in the village bank. Lives of rich men all remind us we may well be shining marks, and departing leave behind us pickings for the legal sharks. Pickings that some court and jury will distribute here and there, while our orphans, in a fury, draw a blank and paw the air. Let us then be saving twenty million dollars or the like, so the lawyers will have plenty when it comes our time to hike. Let us practice self denial, so that on a future day, when the case comes up for trial, courts may find the business pay.

Three Companies Worked.

When the fire on Harvey Road started last night, the first intimation received of it at the Central Station was by telephone from Mr. Blatch's residence, Long's Hill. Shortly after box No. 226 was rung in and the Western firemen as well as the Central responded as this box is on Cookstown Road. The East End men also responded so that the three companies were at work at the fire. Just as the Central and Eastern men reached their quarters, all wet and tired as they were, they had to respond to the alarm for the Gower Street fire and they were all used up when they got back this morning.

Two Destructive Fires.

While Intense Frost Prevailed Last Night Conflagrations Raged—Several Houses Gutted—Firemen Suffer While Working.

Two very destructive fires broke out in the city last night and several residences were gutted as a result and their occupants rendered homeless, while their furniture and effects were either partially destroyed by the flames or saturated with water which quickly turned to ice owing to the intense frost prevailing. Fortunately, however, no wind blew and the danger of a

Spread of the Conflagration was obtained. The first fire broke out at Harvey Road at about 9.40 p. m. and had good headway when it was noticed and the alarm sent in. When the Central and Western fire companies with their apparatus arrived on the scene the residence of Mr. Timothy Connors, where the fire started, was enveloped in flames, and when first the fire was observed by by-passers houses of fire were shooting across Harvey Road from the front of the building and across Long's Hill at the rear. The firemen who

Worked Splendidly
under most adverse and trying conditions soon had several streams of water playing on the fire from hydrants on Harvey Road, Long's Hill and Freshwater Road, and the chemical was also set to work and did effective service. There was a plentiful supply of water from the start but despite this the fire having no headway at its way through to the residence of Mrs. Ryan, who resides on Long's Hill, into Mr. John Burton's house just west of and adjoining the burning fabric where it first started, and also into the fruit and confectionary store of Mr. Wm. Fanning which is on the flat below the Burton residence. The fire also ate its way into the residence of Mr. Quintall's dwelling east of and adjoining the Connors dwelling and

Partly Guttled It
and considerably damaged the furniture. A strong force of police was on the scene keeping order and the men with citizens worked well in removing furniture from the dwellings and the stock from Mr. Fanning's store. Mr. Burton's two little boys, Walter and Willie, were in the house alone when the fire occurred but were removed early to Mrs. Murphy's house, Long's Hill, covered with warm blankets and remained there for the night. The firemen while at work also ran up ladders to the buildings and chopped away portions of the roofs when fire was found smouldering in between the joists and rough boards. Under the guidance of I. G. Sullivan, Supt. Dunne and Chiefs Winsor and Keane the men had the fire well under control in about half an hour, but it was well after 11 o'clock before the outbreak was Completely Conquered.

The firemen suffered much while fighting the flames; all were drenched with water and their clothing was frozen on them early in the fight, so that when it was over they were glad to get back to their stations, though the Central men had only a short rest when they were called to another outbreak at Gower Street. A recapitulation of the damage done shows that the residence of Mr. Timothy Connors, which is owned by his father-in-law, Mr. John Rice, was completely gutted out and most of the furniture damaged or destroyed. Burton's and Quintall's residence with the furniture were also badly damaged, and Mrs. Ryan's place was charred and damaged also by water. Most of the stock in Mr. Fanning's shop was Destroyed by Smoke and Water.

Mr. Fanning has his stock only partially covered by insurance and will lose considerably. Mr. Connors' house and furniture are also partially insured as well as Mr. Quintall's, but as far as we learn Mr. Benton has no insurance. As regards the cause of the fire, Mr. Connors and his family have been living for some time past with his father-in-law, Mr. John Rice, who is ill. He went to the house about 9 o'clock last night and while there lit a match in the kitchen to see that everything was all right. It is thought he might have unwittingly dropped the end of a lighted match before he left, that it smouldered for awhile then burnt into a blaze.

GOWER ST. FIRE.
Having just returned to their halls the firemen had not sufficient time to change their icy-covered garments when they had to respond to a call from box 34, bringing the Central and East End Companies to Gower Street. The fire broke out in the house occupied by a family named Cullen. At the time two young women and two boys were in the house, the mother, who is stewardess on the Prospero, being absent. About eleven o'clock Lawrence Cullen went below in the cellar to get water, but it was shut off owing to the blaze on Harvey Rd. The lad thought the pipes were frozen and brought down a lighted lamp with him to thaw them out. Accidently the lamp dropped from his hand and exploded and soon the cellar, which was half filled with coal, was in a mass of flames. All along this range are tenement houses and Mr. Samuelson, who lives on the ground flat of the next house, heard wood smouldering and rushing into Cullen's saw the flames and broke in the fire alarm box at the corner of Prescott and Gower Sts. The brigades responded hurriedly but not until ten minutes after they reached the scene could they get a supply of water. In the meanwhile the fire was gaining serious proportions and caught the adjoining house occupied by the families, Samuelson's Wadden's and Butler's and the Chemical engine was used. When the force of water did come on two streams of water were kept playing on the burning structures. The firemen worked

Under adverse conditions.
With the frost at nearly zero point and being worn out and exhausted by their labors at the previous fire, they fought the flames faithfully and without fear. Volunteers also rendered good service, notably Messrs. J. P. Vinicombe, N. J. Vinicombe, J. P. Crotty and J. Nottall, who were responsible for saving a great deal of furniture at the outset of the fire. I. G. Sullivan, who was present, inspected the entire work. Not until nearly an hour after the alarm was sent in, was a full force of water obtained. The house occupied by a family named Dobbin, was in grave danger of being destroyed.

It was well the fire did not occur at a later hour than it did, as there may have been loss of life, as some of the occupants barely escaped as it was in their night clothes and were removed to houses on the opposite side of the street with their furniture by the volunteers, already mentioned, who gave yeoman service. Mrs. Butler, who lived in the upper flat of the house, had a narrow escape. Only a few days ago she was released from Hospital, being very ill and her experience last night will not help towards her recovery.

Fortunately there was no wind blowing, as if there were in such a thickly inhabited neighborhood, a conflagration would be the outcome. Most of the furniture in two houses and all that in the third, were destroyed and none of it was insured and the loss to the owners is heavy.

"Pape's Diapepsin" settles upset Stomachs and ends Indigestion in five minutes.

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic jot this down: Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no cructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.

A Voice From Long Pond, C.B.

The C. of E. Ladies here very willingly gave a tea and soup supper for the benefit of their school-room. They were pleased to see a large number of people attend, who did justice to the good things that were provided. It was a splendid success, and the sum of twenty-one dollars and eighty cents were raised. After the people were satisfied with the eatables, Mr. Peter Greenslade said a few encouraging words to the ladies and also to the new teacher, Mr. Elam Elliott. The teacher then thanked Mr. Greenslade for his kind words, and also the ladies who had played the chief part of the evening.

Following the teacher came Mr. C. C. Rendell, who very strongly endorsed Mr. Greenslade's words, and said that as now the school was made comfortable, he felt sure education would go ahead rapidly.

Mr. James Rideout then spoke in a similar way as Mr. Rendell, and he hoped that things would look brighter in the future, as the school was better fitted for working than before.

The ladies need well to be praised for the kind way they came together for the uplifting of their little ones, and we trust that some day they will be rewarded for their labors.

Wanton Act.

Saturday evening a horse, frightened by two lads with a hockey stick ran away, while its driver was at Edens' store. The animal dashed up King's Road. The sled was capsize and an old man seated on it was thrown to the ground and got his face cut. The horse brought up near Lawrence's Factory. Constables Kelly and Tulk are endeavoring to round up the lads.

LONDON, Jan. 26.
The first report of the Radium Institute, published in the British Medical Journal, indicates the addition of a long list of minor non-malignant conditions, such as birthmarks, eczema, tubercular glands, etc., which radium often cures. It almost always improves the health of patients suffering from cancer of a deadly type. Out of 539 patients treated, 53 were apparently cured, 28 certainly cured, 245 improved, 70 not improved, 88 abandoned the treatment and 55 died. By "apparently cured" are meant those cases of cancer where all traces of the original disease have disappeared, and no signs of any recurrence, so far as can be ascertained. Those who abandoned treatment include those cases in which the patient had to leave London, or could not afford to travel repeatedly from the country to the Institute.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.
Chairman Adamson predicts that one of the first requests of President-elect Wilson will be for the repeal of the free passage provision, applying to American ships in the Panama Canal. If Secretary Knox succeeds in avoiding or postponing Britain's demands, it is said by Adamson that the President will undoubtedly remove all foundation for illogical claims of those people who, professing themselves opposed to subsidies, are still in favor of discrimination. England may justly claim that if the Canal is to be used as an instrument to distribute subsidies under treaty, these must be equal to all nations. The true issue is, shall we rob our own people by unjust discrimination to enrich a coastwise shipping trust. I would, not, says Mr. Adamson, at all object to a brush with England, if we had just cause, but it looks very foolish and unprofitable to maintain any sort of a row with her to defend the immoral and unjust robbery of our treasury—and the masses of our people to confer benefits upon special interests.

VIENNA, Jan. 26.
Advices from Constantinople say that the Young Turks Party, is thus far, backed only by a part of the Army, and that the majority of the Army, including the older officers in high positions and the majority of the influential clergy are against the Young Turks. Enver Bey's following, adds the despatch, consists of several hundred officers, infatuated by the cry of liberation of the sacred places, and these by men who are likely to turn against the Young Turks, if they do not succeed in saving Adrianople.

BERLIN, Jan. 26.
In view of the suddenness of the change in the Turkish situation, officials here believe that the new administration should be given time to work out an answer to the joint note of the Powers. It is understood that the Balkan officials hold the same view, and will not crowd the Young Turks. Regarding the proposed naval demonstrations by France, it is believed that they are not authorized by the French government, and the opinion is expressed that there is no likelihood that the consent of all the Powers could be obtained for such action.

LONDON, Jan. 26.
The Balkan plenipotentiaries, who have received full powers from their Governments appointed a committee to-day to draft a note to the Turkish plenipotentiaries, explaining why the Peace Conference must now be considered as broken off. It is hoped that the draft will be ready for the approval of the full delegation on Monday. This action on the part of the Allies is one of a series of well considered forms of pressure by which the Balkan delegates hope to obtain their object without resorting to war. The meeting to-day lasted for an hour and a half, and the course followed was given earnest consideration. Two distinct views were manifested, one for an immediate rupture of negotiations, with a view to resumption of war, and the other favoring a temporizing policy in order to avoid any irrevocable steps. The latter course triumphed, and a committee was appointed, consisting of one member from each delegation.

HER PERFECT WORK.
The pretty trained nurse bent over her patient, a young curate of some what impressionable disposition, who was beginning to get better.
"Shall I turn your head?" she asked, in her low, kind voice.
"No, thank you, Nurse," returned the convalescent, with a beaming smile. "You have turned it already."

"KEEP YER 'EAD!"
At a local match, the first of the season, two batsmen of the stonewalling type became partners, and for a full hour gave an exhibition of how cricket ought not to be played. At last one of them, more by accident than design, made a hit that very nearly resulted in a run. Derisive cheers came from the weary spectators, followed by a shout from the local butcher, who had been impatiently waiting for a knock.
"Keep yer 'ead, Bill! Keep yer 'ead!" he yelled. "If yer git so bloomin' reckless we shall hev to wake the scorer!"

A WAY OUT.
It was in a little village in Warwickshire, the election of parish councillors had been fought, and John Smith, farm laborer, had been returned head of the poll. When the time fixed for the first meeting of the council arrived there were only four members present, the weather being very tempestuous. After waiting a little while in the hope of additional members turning up, the clerk declared that nothing could be done, as there was no quorum. Whereupon John Smith rose and said: "I propose that Mr. Roberts, of Iron farm, shall be the quorum for the night, so that we can get along with the business!"

The Home Arrives.

The S. S. Home, Capt. Hardy, arrived here at 3 p.m. yesterday after giving up the Bay of Islands-Battle Harbour service. The ship came here by way of Port aux Basques and Placencia and brought a full freight here for the Reid M.D. Company. She was into St. Lawrence to make temporary repairs to her draft engine, and had to shelter at Trepassy out of Friday's snow storm. She had it very rough on her last trip north, and the Straits being blocked with ice did not get further than Port Saunders. She will lay up here for an overhaul and repairs.

With the Puck.

The Feldians and Crescentes set down to play at the Prince's Rink to-night. The ice is in splendid condition and the game will be a fast one. The first Inter-Collegiate hockey match for the season takes place on Saturday next between the St. Bon's and Bishop Field Colleges.

The Full Dress Suit.

BY H. L. RANN.

The full dress suit is an instrument of torture which men climb into once a year in order to keep peace in the family. It is an expensive, two-piece garment, and if neglected for any length of time loses its shape faster than an obese patient. When a man goes into a closet to dig up a dress suit he wore at the wedding of his wife's sister two years ago last Thanksgiving, he will find that he can't take a full breath in it without ripping off several high-priced buttons.

Men do not like to wear full dress suits, but are obliged to or stand a suit for divorce. For some reason or other a woman is never so well pleased with her husband's appearance as when he is clad in a swallow-tail coat and a sickly smile. He may be so bow-legged that he can walk over a flour barrel without getting out of step, but she will hide his Prince Albert coat in a woodshed and employ other subterfuges in order to drive him into full dress. There is no more pitiful, soul-harrowing sight in the universe than a lean, curly-legged citizen feeling around for the pockets in a full dress coat and finally winding up by secreting them in his shirt front, and yet our laws offer no redress.

Nearly all of the de luxe full dress trousers are distinguished from ordinary $2 pants by silk stripes, so that a man won't make a mistake and put them on to empty the ashes in. As the style in pants change every thirty minutes, the owner of a full dress suit is never invited anywhere without having to invest in a new pair of trousers.

The tuxedo is a bob-tailed edition of the full dress coat, and was invented by an English lord who became tired of parting his coat tails in the middle with a graceful flourish, every time he wanted to sit down. Unlike the full dress article, it can be worn at breakfast or lunch without causing the members of the Four Hundred to glare at the wearer in a temperature of 30 degrees below zero.

Lost Art of Biting

A TOOTHLESS RACE!

"Use your teeth more. Be primaevial in your use of them. Crunch up bones, munch sea biscuits—any food, in fact, of a hardness which will really exercise your jaws.

"Our jaws are considerably narrower than those of our ancestors. Nature, in attempting to give us our full complement of teeth, is finding it increasingly difficult to get them all in."

"As a consequence the big wisdom teeth often do not appear at all or are cut at a late period of life! There is general overcrowding of the teeth, which leads to premature decay and discomfort.

"In the end—unless some great changes are made in our mode of life—evolution will breed a race of men who are practically toothless.

"Like animals that lose their sight through living in darkness, so shall we lose our teeth through not using them."

These somewhat startling opinions have been given to The Daily Mirror by a clever London doctor, who has studied this interesting side of eugenics.

"We have only to compare the skull of an ancient Britisher with that of a man of the present day to see the great difference in the size of the jaw," he said.

"That of the primaevial man—or a present-day African savage, for that matter—is broad and strong with big even and well-spaced teeth. It also projects slightly beyond the perpendicular face line, suggestive of a gorilla.

Wisdom Teeth at Fifty-two.
"The jaw of the average twentieth century young man is narrow, sometimes almost pointed and more often than not recedes from the perpendicular face line.

"Instead of being even and well spaced the teeth are crowded and irregular. Some of the molars have not even room to protrude above the gums.

"Nature's attempt to crowd into a much smaller space the same number of teeth as were provided for our ancestors is bound to be a failure. But Nature never has a failure for long, and the inevitable result is that the surplus teeth will gradually disappear.

"The reason why our jaws are getting smaller and less powerful is simply that we do not exercise them sufficiently—we do not use our teeth to crunch bones and other hard foods like the early Britishers.

"By neglecting the function of the teeth, the molars are not preserved, but quickly decay. A diet of hard biscuits and chop bones is the food which should be given to growing young people of to-day.

"Personally I think that it will be a good thing for everybody's comfort when the process of evolution has diminished the number of our teeth, or even, from certain points of view, totally abolished them.
"Wisdom teeth are cut at all manner of times nowadays owing to the general narrowness of the jaw.
"A man of fifty-two told me a few weeks ago that he had just cut a wisdom tooth which, owing to the removal of other molars, had at last been able to show itself above the gum!"

In Bad State.

At 8 a.m. yesterday Officers O'Flaherty and Sheppard found an unfortunate named Mark Parsons, of Bauline, wandering about the streets in a bad state. The man was almost frozen with the cold, and for some time past has been sleeping about in stables or any place where he could obtain shelter. His boots were in pieces and his socks had no soles in them and he suffered intensely. The guard in the lock up supplied him with footwear and when he had partaken of some warm drinks he was all right. The man is an imbecile, will not remain home and if allowed to wander about will come to grief.

The Testimony of Facts!

From a letter published in the "Autocar" of Sept. 14th, '12, we notice that out of 13 Cars in a garage at Harrogate the following splendid tribute to

MICHELIN TYRES:

- 3 Cars fitted with 2 MICHELINS each out of 4 Tyres.
- 2 Cars fitted with 3 MICHELINS each out of 4 Tyres.
- 5 Cars fitted with 4 MICHELINS each out of 4 Tyres.
- 3 Cars fitted without any MICHELINS at all, which shows out of 52 Tyres, 32 were MICHELINS. In other words, 61 1/2 per cent of Tyres fitted were MICHELINS, the remainder being divided between five other makers.
