New Romeo and Juliet.

CHAPTER III.

"IF I SHOULD FAIL!"

"I am so sorry I've kept you waiting, Jeffrey," she said, humbly, as she threw her hat on the sofa and went to the table.

"No matter," he said; "you have been walking up and down in the fields studying, I know," and he noticed. "It is just the hour—the mystic gloaming—when the brain quickens and ideas are born."

"Yes," she said, her long lashes covering her eyes. "I have been in the fields; and Jeffrey, I've had an adventure!"

"Cows?" he said, absently. "There is nothing like the open air for such work as you have in mind. Rachel, the greatest actress of her time, or any other, did most of her work in the open air."

"It wasn't cows," she broke in, trying to speak in a matter-of-fact voice; "it was a horse," and she laughed a little nervously.

"My kingdom for a horse," he quoted, failing to see the unusual colour in her face, and not observing that she was making a mere pretence of eating, just breaking a piece of toast with her fingers and sipping her coffee. "And are you more satisfied now? I have only just come from the theatre. The booking is the heaviest they have had for years. I have persuaded the manager to increase the orchestra. Have you seen your dress? It has come, and I had it sent up to your room."

"I did not go up. I will try it on directly."

He pushed his chair back, and began walking up and down the room, his hands crossed behind his bent back, his head drooping, his glittering eyes fixed on the floor.

Doris knew that it was hopeless to attempt to speak of anything but the dress, but she made another effort, for conscience's sake.

"Do you know who lives in that place on the hill, Jeffrey, the Towers, it is called?"

"No," he said, with a distinct indifference.

"Some marquis or other. What matter?" he added, impatiently.

"I saw the nephew of the marquis," she said, "this afternoon. He fell off his horse—"

"He said, with profound indignation, 'I remember a man fell off his horse on in the first scene of Romeo and Juliet.' It was effective and unnecessary. By the way, how do you arrange your train in the ball-room scene. Leave Romeo to get near you without having to look at you on one side; it attracts attention from the acting of the play at a most important moment. A detail; but it is the details that, massed together, make or mar the whole."

She made yet another effort. "I was going to tell you about the accident, Jeffrey."

He started, and, stopping in his walk, confronted her with alarm in his eyes.

"What accident? I had only just left the theatre; it was all right then. Oh! you allude to the man who tumbled off the horse? Never mind; put it out of your head; don't think of anything but your part. Have you finished your supper?"

"Yes," she said, with a sigh and a smile. It was, indeed, utterly useless to make any further attempt.

"Well, then, let us go over the balcony scene," and he snatched up the book and turned to the page with nervous fingers.

Doris rose and opened her lips; then, with a sudden blush, that was as quickly followed by a strange pallor, she went to him and gently took the book from his hand.

"Not to-night, not again, Jeffrey," she said, with a nervousness that was strange in her. "I—I could not. Don't be angry; but—she looked from side to side with a strangely troubled air—"I—I don't think I could do it to-night. Don't ask me."

He nodded once or twice, looking at her meditatively.

"I think I understand," he said, as if to himself. "You are afraid of getting hackneyed? Perhaps you are right. Yes, you are right," he added, quietly, "there is such a thing as over-training. Yes, I know what you mean. Better let it rest for to-night, after the rehearsal this morning and the study this afternoon."

Doris turned her head away with a guilty sense of having deceived him.

"It is not that," she faltered, "but—She stopped, and going to him suddenly, hid her face on his shoulder. "Oh, Jeffrey! if I should fail to-morrow!"

"There's no such word for us, Doris," he said, with grim confidence. "Don't speak of failing. Fail! What, after all these years!" His voice grew hoarse. "Why, child, what is the matter with you to-night?"

He broke off in alarm, for he could feel that she was crying softly, and crying was by no means one of Doris's customary habits.

She raised her head, and, hastily wiping her eyes, laughed.

"What is the matter with me, Jeffrey? I wish I knew. Perhaps it's the excitement. There! I'm all right now," and she slid away from him.

The old man seized her arm, and looked into her face intently.

"Doris!" he said, in a husky voice, "you—you are not unhappy?"

"Unhappy!" and she laughed again.

"Why should I be unhappy? Perhaps I cried because I'm too happy. Grief and joy are next of kin, you know. And oughtn't I to be filled with joy—I, the Doris Marlowe, who is to play Juliet to-morrow night?"

His hand dropped from her arm; but he was only half-satisfied.

"I thought—" he muttered. "Doris, you are all the world to me. Before Heaven I have had no thought but for you since"—he stopped abruptly—"since you became my care. Day and night, early and late, I have worked to one end—to make you great and famous and happy. If I thought—"

He wiped the perspiration from his brow, and looked at her almost wildly.

"I know, I know. Dear, dear, old Jeffrey!" she murmured, soothing him with touch and voice. "No, I don't know, but I can guess all you have been to me, all you have done for me. And I am happy, very, very happy. And I will be great and famous if you wish it. You shall see!" she said, nodding, and smiling through the tears that veiled her lovely eyes. "Wait! till to-morrow night. There! it is you who are excited now. And now I'm going to try my dress on. We must look the Juliet if we cannot act her," and she stooped and kissed his forehead and ran from the room.

The old man stood where she had left him, his hands working behind his back, his brows knotted into thick cords, his eyes fixed on the ground.

Doubt, almost remorse, were depicted on his countenance, with an intensity almost terrible. He sank into a chair, and, covering his face with his hands, seemed lost in a dream. Presently the door opened, and Doris, like a vision of loveliness, stood in her white satin dress before him.

She held the long train in one hand, and in the other a candle above her head, and stood with a grave smile upon her beautiful face, waiting. He looked up, then with a sudden cry, threw out his arms.

"Lucy! Lucy! I did it for the best—for the best!"

"Jeffrey!" exclaimed Doris. "Jeffrey!" and she hastened towards him in alarm; but the sound of her voice had recalled him to himself, and, passing his hand across his forehead, he rose and looked at her.

"Yes, yes," he said, still in a half-dazed manner. "Yes, it will do. Doris, you are very beautiful."

She coloured and shook her head. "What a wicked thing to say, you flatterer! But, Jeffrey, why did you call me Lucy?" she asked, bending over him, her brows drawn together anxiously.

"Did I?" he replied, evasively. "I—must have been dreaming. There! ask me no more questions. The dress is perfect. Perfect!" he repeated, emphatically, but looking at her face and not the dress. "Walk across the room." She did so. "Now, stand as I showed you. So! Yes, yes," he murmured, with a sigh of satisfaction; "perfect! You look the part, Doris. Not one of them could look it better—no! and to-morrow—" he stopped and regarded her with an earnestness that was almost fierce.

"Child, if you fail to-morrow you will kill me. Go now; go to bed and rest. Go!" he repeated, still looking at her, but waving her away with his hand as if she recalled some memory too painful to be borne; and Doris, stooping and kissing him, went up to her own room again. There she stood before the glass and looked at herself with a scrutiny that she had never used before.

Jeffrey had called her beautiful! Was she really beautiful? Did others think her so—did he? She took up the handkerchief and looked at it dreamily; then, still in her Juliet dress, she joined her hands together as she had done when she made a cup for him; and as she did so, the warm blood rushed to her face, for she could almost fancy that even now she could feel the touch of his lips and the golden moustache upon the soft, pink palms.

Rest! If to lie awake until the clock struck midnight, and then to fall asleep and dream that she was still bending over the handsome face, all pale but for the thin streak of red; to hear in her sleep the strong, musical voice murmuring "Will you forgive me?" was rest, then Doris was resting indeed!

CHAPTER IV.

AT THE TOWERS.

Cecil, Viscount Neville, rode off at a hard gallop at first, but presently he pulled up into a walk, for he wanted to think. Something had happened besides his tumble that afternoon to "shake the soul of him," as Tasso says. The blood was coursing through his veins at racing pace, and his heart was beating violently with a new and strange emotion. It seemed to him that he had been in fairyland. Just as Doris had taken out the

WOMEN EVERYWHERE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as the Greatest Remedy for Women's Ills.

New Haven, Conn.—"For two years I suffered with a female weakness, pains in my back and painful periods, and I was so weak and tired that I was not able to do my work. A friend told me to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it gave me great relief. My pains left me and I am now able to do my work and feel fine. You can publish my testimonial and if your Vegetable Compound does others as much good as it has me I will be very much pleased." —Mrs. CHARLES E. MORGAN, 37 Sea Street, New Haven, Conn.

The reason Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful is because it contains the curative, strengthening properties of good old-fashioned roots and herbs, which act directly on the female organism.

There are women everywhere who long for children in their homes yet are denied this happiness on account of some functional disorder which in most cases would readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Such women should not give up hope until they have given this wonderful medicine a trial, and for special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of 40 years' experience is at your service.

handkerchief and looked at it to convince herself that she had not been dreaming, so he put his hand to the cut on his forehead to help him to realize that imagination had not been playing panks with him.

He had seen beautiful women; in the language of his world he had had some half a dozen of them at least "pitched at his head;" but this one—

He stopped the horse, and recalled her face as it had looked down upon him when he came back to consciousness.

"I thought I was dead and that she was an angel!" he murmured, his face flushing. "There never were eyes like hers! And her voice! And I don't know her name even! And I may never see her again! I must, I must! And I might have ridden over that beautiful creature—she might have been lying there instead of me!" he shuddered. "I ought to have killed myself, clumsy, awkward idiot! But she forgave me, yes, she forgave me!"

And he tried to recall, and succeeded in recalling, every word she had spoken. "I wonder who she is?" he asked himself for the hundredth time.

"Why didn't I ask her name? No, I remember I could not. I—I never felt like that before—never! I felt actually afraid of her! I've half a mind to ride back. "Would she be angry, I wonder? I didn't thank her enough. Why, I behaved like a fool! She must have thought me one. I'll ride back and beg her to tell me who she is. I must know!" and he was about to turn the horse when the clock of the Towers solemnly chimed the hour.

He started and looked at his watch. "Dinner-time," he murmured, "and it's a mortal sin to be five minutes late! No matter, I must go back," and he swung round. Then he pulled up again. "No; she will not like it! It—it would seem as if I were forcing myself on her, and after all her goodness to me. But not to know her name even!" and with something between a sigh and a groan, he put the horse into a gallop and rode towards home.

127 PEOPLE KILLED; THOUSANDS INJURED.

Franco-American Sailors Fracas at Brest --- British Dirigible Started Transatlantic Voyage---National Thanksgiving Next Sunday.

EAST FORTUNE, Scotland, July 1. (By Associated Press.)—The dirigible R-34 started on its voyage to America at 1.48 this morning.

LONDON, July 1. Next Sunday 6th has been named as a day of national thanksgiving for coming of peace. Services will be held in all churches throughout the country. King George and Queen Mary and public officials will attend the services in St. Paul's. July 19 will be a day of national rejoicing and celebrations will be held everywhere and in the army and navy.

DUNKIRK, July 1. Engineer Clifford of the New York Central's Western Express, desperately tried, according to his dying statement, to avert the rear end collision with the train No. 41 here early to-day which caused the death of eleven persons, the serious injury of nineteen others and slight cuts and bruises to as many more. The air brake failed to work, the engineer declared. Witnesses said the siren was still screaming for the hand brakes when the Western going fifty miles an hour plowed into the rear coach of No. 41.

TOKIO, July 1. Japan is sending reinforcements consisting of a brigade of infantry and a company of engineers to Vladivostok because of conditions existing in the maritime provinces of Siberia. It is officially announced. The Bolsheviks recently have been active in this region and, the announcement says, have often attacked Japanese contingents causing casualties.

EKATERINODAR, July 7. The army of Kuban Cossacks operating in the bend of the Don river has captured four thousand Bolsheviks and ten guns. The Don Cossacks who are also advancing northward have captured fifteen hundred prisoners and three armoured trains.

PARIS, July 1. The agreement between France and the United States and between France and Great Britain for the defence of France against attack by Germany, it is understood, will not become valid as far as Great Britain is concerned until the Franco-American convention is ratified by the United States Senate.

PARIS, July 1. It was decided this afternoon to constitute a new Council of Five. This Council of Five will have as its members Foreign Minister Balfour, Secy. Lansing, M. Pichon, Foreign Minister Tittoni, and Baron Makino, head of the Japanese delegation. The council will temporarily assume direction of Peace Conference affairs.

WASHINGTON, June 30. War prohibition effective at midnight will be strictly enforced by the Department of Justice in so far as existing machinery can function to that end. It was said at the department that open violation of the law threatened in New York and other cities will be promptly dealt with by federal agents.

BERLIN, June 30. Those German leaders who are protesting so violently against the rigors of the peace terms are not representing what the real sentiment of the German people will come to be when it knows the whole truth, the Munich Post, a majority socialist newspaper, declared in an editorial in a recent issue. Germany's own acts are responsible for the losses of territory caused her by the peace terms, the newspaper admits, and her responsible satesmen knows that to be so.

ROME, June 30. Earthquake shocks at Tuscany Sunday caused deaths of 127 persons and injuries to several thousand, according to latest advices from Florence. The centre of the seismic movement apparently was Vicchio, a town of eleven thousand inhabitants, fifteen miles north of Florence.

BREST, June 30. Two French civilians were killed, five American soldiers and sailors injured severely, and more than one hundred were injured in riots here last night. The casualties occurred as a result of exchange of shots between American military and naval police and French sailors. The trouble began, according to available accounts, when an American naval officer who is said to be drinking heavily, tore down the French flag and tramped on it. A crowd of French seamen attacked the officer and it is said kicked and beat him. Americans who passed by and were not aware of the cause of the fight went to the aid of the naval officer. The fight then became more general. A mob of French civilians, soldiers and sailors attempted to rush hotel Moderne where American officers were quartered. They burned a sentry box and threw stones at Americans in uniform whenever they found them. The Americans, it is said, retaliated. A company of United States marines with fixed bayonets was hurried to the scene and soon restored order. Admiral Henri Salman, French naval commander at Brest, ordered the marines to return to their barracks. As the marines marched back to their quarters it is declared, they were pursued by a mob throwing stones and bricks. The city is quiet to-day.

LONDON, June 30. Bolshevik troops have occupied Vydliska, on the Finnish frontier, defeating the Finns and capturing numbers of them, according to a Russian wireless despatch received to-day.

WASHINGTON, June 30. War prohibition effective at mid-here to-day. It is added that the Bolshevik advance is developing successfully.

LONDON, June 30. The Allied governments have presented to the Government of Holland the necessity of taking steps to prevent the departure of the former German Emperor from Holland. C. B. Harmsworth, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, announced in the House of Commons this afternoon.

LONDON, June 30. Premier Lloyd George received a rousing ovation when he appeared in the House of Commons to-day. The Premier had been cheered by crowds on his way from Downing street to the House, but the reception from his fellow members in the House eclipsed the cheers he had received elsewhere since his return from Paris. A great majority of the members arose and cheered when the Premier entered and accompanied their cheering by waving newspapers. For a moment the Liberal opposition members remained in their seats, but after repeated demands from the other members they got up and joined in the ovation which concluded with the singing of the National Anthem in which all the members and spectators in the galleries joined. The Premier announced the Peace Treaty signed with Germany would be brought before the House of Commons Thursday. He said he would introduce a bill to enable the government to put the provisions of the treaty into effect. At the same time he will take the opportunity to discuss its terms.

ROME, June 30. "Germany signs to-day a scrap of paper," is the Epoch's comment on the signing of the Peace Treaty. "The event at Versailles may have caused emotion to those present," the Epoch says, "but it causes great anxiety to those far away, who, besides listening to the rhetoric, look into the hearts of peoples. Bauer, Erxberger, David and Mueller are the same men who voted war appropriations from the first to the last day of the conflict. In reality the same regime of 1914 now exists only it masquerades as being democratic. France, with a view to keeping Germany down will be obliged to maintain enormous contingents under colors. This will absorb all the benefits coming from control of the Saare Basin."

ROME, June 30. German counter revolutionaries have a motor launch in readiness to rescue the former German Crown Prince, wishing him to appear at the head of the military forces of Germany, according to a despatch from Rotterdam to the Daily Mail. The Dutch Queen, the despatch adds, has sent her consort to persuade the former Prince that he would be detrimental to Holland, which granted him hospitality if he participated in a revolt in Germany.

COPENHAGEN, June 30. Lettish troops are within nine miles of Riga, and the Germans are evacuating the city, according to a despatch received by the Lettish press bureau from Libau.

LONDON, June 30. German counter revolutionaries have a motor launch in readiness to rescue the former German Crown Prince, wishing him to appear at the head of the military forces of Germany, according to a despatch from Rotterdam to the Daily Mail. The Dutch Queen, the despatch adds, has sent her consort to persuade the former Prince that he would be detrimental to Holland, which granted him hospitality if he participated in a revolt in Germany.

The Modern Parson.

PART II.
(Being an Essay Written by J. SINCLAIR TAIT, M.D.)

In Part one of this Essay I endeavoured to outline in a general way the "Modern Pulpit" in its relation to modern thought and the reconstructive tendencies of the times. In further extending the subject I desire to put forth my views as to the requisite qualities of the "Modern Parson" if he is to measure up to the responsibilities, duties and demands of this wonderful and progressive age.

Those great problems of faith and unbelief, which agitate the mind and rattle the surface of Life, must be put on trial, so that the valid and reliable may be separated from the indifferent and unreal, and mankind saved from those "Sunless gulfs of doubt" into which so many are drifting to-day.

There never has been a time in the history of the Christian Church when an intelligent exposition of the Scriptures should be made, not so much in the refinements of theology, as in the essentials of simple, religious belief. Our readjustment to changing conditions demand this; so that the "Modern Parson" to be successful, and at his best, must be trained to think and act more in harmony with the spirit of the times, rather than in the theology of those fixed dogmas and mechanical standards which only cripple the mind, and stagnate the soul. We must not fear the "New Knowledge" as expressed by Darwin, Spenser, Driver and others. Neither science nor criticism can ever affect the truth and validity of the Sacred Scriptures, when rightly interpreted, or in any way lessen the life of God in the human soul.

The former has rendered a great service to man in giving him a larger control over the forces of Nature, together with a grander conception of the Universe. While the latter seeks to give us a more credible and verifiable account of the order, character and literature of the Bible, with a view of restating the truth contained therein in terms of modern philosophic thought. For we must bear in mind that the Bible is not a book of theology, but a book of religion.

Many timid Christians when brought face to face with difficulties never before considered, and confronted by truth not yet reconciled to the standards of modern belief, become fearful, and imagine that the foundations of our Holy Religion may be destroyed, and that Atheism and Anarchy will rule the world. To such persons may we be permitted to say that as long as the mind of man is free to think and act for itself, we need never look for any visible, authoritative guide to come to us and remove the difficulties, and make doubt and uncertainty impossible. Bailey tells us

"Who never doubted, never half believed. Where doubt, there truth is—'tis her shadow."
Our life is not only a pilgrimage, but a discipline as well, and in our passage through time there is no reason why we should not exercise honest and anxious inquiry in seeking a reason and authority for what we have been taught to believe. In all this, however, it is ours to feel that a conscious divinity still lives within the soul whose

"Dwelling is the light of setting suns. And the round ocean, and the living air, And the blue sky, and in the mind of man."
In coming down to the qualifications of the "Modern Parson" we must again remind our readers in the words of a recent writer that "A new day is upon us. The War has changed all lines of endeavour. Higher standards in Church and Nation are demanded. New types of leadership is required. Competition between the forces of good and evil will be keen. Only as the Church trains her future leaders can she hope to adequately meet her obligations and opportunities."

Our "Modern Parson" must be a man of good physique and of commanding personality. His life habits must solidify more and more into personal characteristics, the varying assortments of which will give him inspiration and power.

While all the elements of beauty and perfection of form cannot be found in any one person, yet the more of these our "Modern Parson" possesses, the more successful will he become. This composite character will give us the "Ideal Parson"—the one who will combine all the best virtues and qualities, whose imitation will help to insure a useful, profitable and honored life. Such a man cannot but succeed, for he is above his calling; he overtops his vocation.

In an article written by that distinguished theologian and writer, Dr. Denny of Glasgow, he offered the opinion that three elements were necessary for an efficient preacher, (a) He must know his Bible thoroughly well so as to find the Gospel in it; (b) He must be so thoroughly trained as regards his literary style, and his mode of delivery, as to command his message by its manner as well as its matter; and (c) He must be so familiar with the thought of the age as to adapt his preaching to its needs and requirements. If we analyze these requirements we shall soon discover that they are the fundamentals of a calling which require vision, humanism and indisputable learning. For in no calling must a person be more sure of his ground, and more careful in expressing his opinions, than in that of the "Modern Parson." He is forever on ground which he must make substantial by his works. He must invite confidence by his sincerity, and only when he knows himself, and his subject, can he be actually sincere.

The maxim "Know thyself" does not suffice, "Know others—know them well," is good advice.
It must be remembered that times change, and so must everything else. The preacher of to-day must be more human, and less stiff, than heretofore. The strait-laced, unbending clergyman, who fears to smile lest he should appear undignified, has but little charm in the pulpit, more especially to our younger generation. The distractions of the twentieth century are so many and varied that the Church must, in a sense, compete with them. The long drawn out theological sermons, which in other times were considered essential to the preacher's art, have lost their attractive power, and become practically obsolete. The music has gone out of them, and their liturgies are fast becoming lost. In fact the "Modern Parson" is one who must fall in as far as possible, with the prevailing fashion, and keep up with the movements of the times. Above all he must practice what he preaches, and be able to find out what most bothers the men and women to whom he preaches. He must talk to them in a practical way—not in set phrases and ready made speeches, but with spontaneity of thought, and that freedom of expression which stamps him as a sympathetic friend, who is desirous of helping them in times of difficulty and distress.

It is a mooted question how far our "Modern Parson" should go in the matter of "muck-raking." The sensational preacher, no doubt, attracts the crowd; but if he wishes to draw the crowd continuously, he must not only be sensational, but rational. The sensible man does not want an actor for his parson. He, however, wishes his minister to be full of animation and life. He wants him to deliver his sermons in a fashion which will not put him to sleep, as the droning and drivel of some pulpits do.

The social activities of the Church should receive a fair proportion of the pastor's attention, but he must not intrude too much religion into these endeavours, so as to make all Church and nothing else. While no one would like to drive the spiritual out of the people's mind, yet it must be remembered that we need change and relaxation. The Church prospers and grows if it keeps in touch with social advancement, yet the mantle of the Church must not be used to envelop these to an inordinate extent so as to lose sight of more vital things. Our "Modern Parson" must not be too radical nor too conservative. He must be able to adapt himself to changing conditions, and be able to meet his people on even ground.

He must not exploit either himself, or his sermons, too much through the newspapers, as such advertisements, like those of the vendors of quack medicines, are extremely offensive to all well thinking people.

Finally the man who thinks well and acts accordingly, who goes out of his way to help his people, and knows enough on a hot day to cut his sermon short, will be regarded by his parishioners, not only as a "Modern Parson" but a "Model" one as well.

"If the lamps are dull and pale, The stars are shining still; If shadows gather in the vale, The Sun is on the hill."

The Congregational Pulpit.

On Sunday morning the Rev. Denny B. Ashford spoke on the subject of "Mutual Helpfulness and Co-operation." He found a very appropriate text for his purpose in Isa. 41, 5-7. "Then helped everyone his neighbor; and everyone said to his brother, 'Be of good courage.'" So the carpenter encouraged the goldsmith, and he that smiteth the anvil, saying, "It is good. And he fastened it with nails that it should not be moved." These words were really a description of a work-shop scene and were written in sarcasm of the heathen idol-makers' attempt to manufacture a god for themselves. But though the energy and art of these heathens may have been mis-applied, there is something to be learned from the spirit in which they worked. Note for instance the spirit of friendliness and brotherliness amongst them. Everyone said to his brother "Be of good courage."

That is the spirit which is needed in the labour world to-day. It is used to characterise the ancient guilds to a large extent; then men worked with enthusiasm and vied with each other to do the best possible work. To-day there is too much envy of the man who does more or better work than ourselves and the tendency is rather to hinder than to encourage men to do more work and better. This same spirit is needed in the churches. How rarely are churches characterized by brotherliness. Many Christians are as cold as ice-bergs and some churches are religious refrigerators. Said a young fellow to me concerning a certain church in Hobart, "I went to that church for two years and not a soul spoke to me." And said another, "There's no room for me in that church; I'm not in their sphere."

There should be no social distinctions or superior cliques within the church; they all belong to one family and should be united in their love to Christ. Note also the spirit of co-operation amongst these idol-makers. "They helped everyone his neighbour; the carpenter encouraged the goldsmith." And in the church of to-day the same spirit is needed. One would think that the various denominations were opposing armies instead of regiments under the same Generalissimo. The one thing that a soldier dreads above everything else is firing into his own men; and yet that is what the churches are always doing. I for one do not look for immediate union of all the churches. So long as men are cast in different moulds so they will desire to think and worship differently. But what we do need is a more friendly attitude towards one another and more of this spirit of co-operation.

I notice that it took carpenters, goldsmiths, tinmiths and blacksmiths to make an idol. And there is scope for every kind of talent in the work of the church. We need the one talent men and women as well as the ten talent ones. A tourist expressed his admiration for Cologne Cathedral to a workman who was standing near by. "Yes," said the man, "It's a fine building and it took us many a year to build." "Took YOU?" said the tourist. "What did you have to do with it?" "Well sir, I mixed the mortar," replied the man. A Cathedral cannot be built without mortar mixers. These old idol-makers encouraged one another. "They said of the soldering, 'It is good' (R.V.) What a difference a word of encouragement makes. I remember making a fearful hash of a sermon on one occasion, at least I thought so. As I left the church feeling fearfully despondent, a lady slipped a scrap of paper into my hand on which were the simple words, "a beautiful sermon." It was a great encouragement; my message had helped someone at least. Friend be an encourager and an inspirer. Let us catch the spirit of these old heathen idol-makers and let us co-operate in the great work of establishing the Kingdom of God here upon earth.

FALSE STATEMENTS.

Certain parties, either through ignorance of facts or with criminal intent, have circulated the report that this company is in difficulties, that we were about to wind up, that we have no money to pay due bills, and that Shareholders would lose their investment. Statements like these are absolutely false in every respect. We have no unpaid obligations or liabilities of any kind, and we have all the funds necessary to carry on the legitimate business of the company, and our company is as strong to-day as it ever was. The financial affairs of Champion Machine Co. have no possible relation to the funds of J. J. Lacey & Co. and intelligent investors know that J. J. Lacey & Co. cannot be affected in any manner whatsoever by any development in the affairs of Champion Machine Co. False statements like the above are highly damaging to our business and cannot go unchecked, so we publish this flat denial of same for the information of our Shareholders and all clients in our American companies, and as a specific warning to all other parties concerned.

It isn't the cost of a paint that counts—it's the value—its service per dollar. So even though B-H is the cheapest paint, all who use it are convinced of its economy. No kind of no other kind of paint so dependable—none other has the covering capacity or the durability that distinguishes B-H. That's why we sell it—we feel safe in urging its use because the modern demand for paint is economy on every count, and that formula is the chief formula for paint, namely: 70% pure white lead—30% pure white zinc.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

DO YOU USE THIS LEXICON?

Yesterday I spoke of "translating" as one of the habits of mind which everyone ought to have. As the word might not carry its meaning to everyone I offered to explain it to-day. By translating I mean getting the other fellow's point of view by rendering his like, his dislike, his antipathy, his extravagance, his economy, your antipathy, your extravagance, your economy.

The Touch of Velvet Makes Her Crawl.

For instance, I have a friend who cannot bear the touch of certain materials. Especially after her hands have been in the water or after she has been bathing, the touch of such materials as silk or velvet makes her crawl. Now that is absolutely inconceivable to me as far as having the same sensation goes. The only way I can understand it is to translate it. I must say to myself, "Those things give her the same nerve discomfort as I get from hearing certain noises such as a pipe being scraped out, the squeak of a steel knife on a tin surface when someone in the kitchen is scraping a dish, etc."

That is, I couldn't get her point of view if I touched velvet and silk with newly washed hands all day, but I can get it at once if I remember the way my spine crawls at offending noises.

Bundles "A Confounded Nuisance." Here's another. A man I know (maybe you know his double) simply hates to carry a bundle, even the smallest. Though he loves to take pictures he will never carry any but the tiniest camera on a walk with him because the larger sizes are "such a confounded nuisance." His wife often finds this hate of any bundle a great annoyance. "I used to always be fussing about it," she said, "and then I remembered that while I don't mind carrying bundles,

I simply hate to do one up. The thought of having to get together the right size paper and strings and get an odd shaped bundle done up and tied up and addressed fairly puts a cloud on my day. But he doesn't mind that at all. So I decided that was the way he must feel about carrying bundles and that made it all clear."

The Bright Lexicon of Matrimony.

No husband or wife ought to be without the lexicon which helps one to translate another's feelings and points of view into the language of one's own feelings and points of view.

Think of the number of irritable criticisms, impatient bits of fault-finding and resultant quarrels that would be avoided if one had stopped to translate.

Translation reversed also helps one to understand one's self. One sees some act of another person in a new light. Can it be that similar acts of one's own look that way to other people? Can it be that they are justified in looking at them that way?

Of course, one does not always feel in the mood to use this lexicon even when one has it. One often feels more like hurling it to Jericho. But if one remembers one is also hurling some of one's chance for happiness, it may help to stay the impulse.

PUNCTUALITY.

When I was young my soul was tired, my heart was sore and hot; for I was nearly always fired from every job I got. I suffered many a grievous shock before I learned to see that one o'clock is one o'clock, and three o'clock is three o'clock is three. I'd loom up late for work each day, and thought that fact no crime; but when I went to draw my pay, I always was on time. The boss would say, "At half past two, do this or 't'other chore;" and I'd reflect, "That stunt will do as well at half past four." So I was always being fired, as you will understand; no sooner was I nicely hired than I was neatly canned. It took me long to realize that promptness is a thing that all the merchant princes prize, and all wise poets sing. It took me long to grasp the truth that heedlessness of time is fatal to aspiring youth who'd reach a goal sublime. I'd waste the golden hours in talk, and seldom kept a date; if I was due at six o'clock, I'd make my bow at eight. Then I resolved to mend my ways, these facts were realized; and I lined up with happy jays whose services are prized.

Nfld. Scotch Cured Herring.

The Newfoundland Scotch cured herring situation continues to be influenced by the lack of interest on the part of the buyers, and prices therefore are weak. The trade has looked for an improvement in the demand, but in view of the attitude of the retail trade and the extremely high prices being asked to consumers, there has been a slackening of business among distributors. Those who hold stocks of fancy Newfoundland Scotch cured herring of the fall catch have noted some small improvement, but the trade generally refrains from pressing offers. The stock of Newfoundland Scotch cured herring now held here is not large, but in view of the condition of the market, merchants are not inclined to take on stocks at this time. Winter herring are not in demand, and fall stocks, quoted at from $18 to $24 per barrel are selling only in a hand-to-mouth way. The domestic business in this trade has fallen off to some extent also, and the holders look for little improvement, unless, perhaps, there is a dearth in the supply of foreign herring in which the trade appears to be interested. The spring pack in Newfoundland was a failure so that stocks of this grade cannot be expected here except in very small quantities.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette June 21st.

DAN MCGANN DECLARES HIMSELF

Said Dan McGann to a foreign man who worked at the self-same bench.

"Let me tell you this," and for emphasis, he flourished a Stilson wrench. "Don't talk to me of the bourgeoisie, don't open your mouth to speak of your socialists or your anarchists, don't mention the bolshevik, For I've had enough of this foreign stuff. I'm sick as a man can be of the speech of hate, and I'm tellin' you straight that this is the land for me!"

"If you want to brag, just take that flag, an' boast of its field o' blue. An' praise the dead an' the blood they shed for the peace o' the likes o' you."

"I'll hear no more," and he waved once more, his wrench in a forceful way.

"O' the cunning creed o' some Russian breed, I stand for the U.S.A. I'm done with your fads, and your wild-eyed lads, don't flourish your rag o' red."

"Where I can see or at night there'll be talk candles around your bed."

"So tip your hat to a flag like that! Thank God for its stripes an' stars!"

Thank God you're here where the roads are clear, away from your kings and czars.

I can't just say what I feel to-day, for I'm not a talkin' man.

But first and last, I am standin' fast for all that's American.

So don't you speak of the bolshevik, it's sick of that stuff I am.

One God, one flag is the creed I brag; I'm boostin' for Uncle Sam."

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited. Dear Sirs.—This fall I got thrown on a fence and hurt my chest very bad, so I could not work and it hurt me to breathe. I tried all kinds of Liniments and they did me no good. One bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT, warmed on a pan and applied on my breast, cured me completely. C. H. COSSABOOM. Rossway, Digby Co., N.S.

Remembrance Day.

Newfoundland paid special honor to her heroic dead at yesterday's memorial services which were observed throughout the whole Dominion, and in honoring those who gave their lives, there was no less honor paid those who came through the fearful struggle in which the sons of Britain made a record for themselves which stands out beside the gallant deeds of noble forefathers. Modern Britain has shown that the courage of the men who made the Empire, has descended to their sons, and the heritage won by them has found equally gallant defenders.

The living, as well as the dead, received testimony of their valour yesterday. The floral memorials to those who died, were as well glowing tributes in God's own colours to the men who fought and lived. Placed upon and about the Cross—symbol of salvation and everlasting life—these decorations of earth's most beautiful flowers, were fit adornment for the Shrine which stands as a perpetual monument to the men who in fulfilling the words of the Carpenter of Nazareth, left a name which, honored and revered throughout succeeding generations, will forever be an exemplification and a directional signal toward the higher things of life, for in their deaths they gave us a newer and fresher incentive to strive for those things which are not of earth, but of heaven. The "Greater-Love-Hath-No-Man" motto has been newly written. Our men gave their lives for us—their friends. Our repayment to them is not to be measured by the outward and visible deed. Let it be then ours to keep faith, and to do all that we can for the ones who are left, that their loved ones who sleep under the cross of wood in the lands overseas may be perfectly satisfied that their lives were not given in vain.

"If we break faith
With those who died
They will not sleep, tho' poppies blow
On Flanders fields."

Personal Mention.

Memorial Service!
July 1st, 1919.

The Memorial Service Committee, on behalf of the Royal Naval Reserve (Newfoundland) and the Royal Newfoundland Regiment, desire to extend their grateful appreciation of the support and co-operation of all those who contributed in any way to the carrying out of the Memorial Ceremonies on July 1st. Where one and all have rendered assistance it would be invidious to single out particular individuals or organizations for special reference, and so to everybody who assisted the Committee in any way their sincere thanks are hereby tendered.

Last Draft Arrives.

The trooper Cassandra yesterday brought back to home all the men of "Ours" on service overseas, with the exception of a few hospital cases and the staff of the Pay and Record Office in London. The repatriates were under command of Major G. Emerson, Capt. J. Long, Adjutant, and Capt. Procmier, Medical Officer. The men left Winchester on Monday week, the contingent, numbering 580 of all ranks, going to Glasgow, where they embarked for home. After an uneventful run the ship had nearly made port when fog was encountered, causing some delay, but all went well and at 10 o'clock yesterday morning the ship steamed in through the Narrows, her entry being heralded by the blare of siren and steam whistles from the shipping in port. Numbers of people immediately flocked to Shea's wharf where debarkation was to take place, and following the conclusion of the ceremonies at Bannerman Park, the original gathering was augmented by many hundreds of others. So soon as the trooper was docked Major Montgomery and Major Paterson went on board, and following a consultation with the officers in charge, it was decided to give the men dinner before landing. The C. C. C. band was in attendance, playing airs which were most pleasing and familiar. The landing began at 1.15, those needing special attention being looked after by Lieut. Reeves and an ambulance squad. The soldiers, subsequently formed up and headed by the C. C. C. Band paraded up Water and Prescott Streets and down Military Road to the Prince of Wales Barracks, where they were drawn up in line and addressed by the Prime Minister and the Minister of Militia, who accorded them a hearty welcome home and thanked them for their services on behalf of the people of Newfoundland. Cheers were then given for the speakers and the parade was dismissed, the men going to their respective billets, 300 being looked after in town houses and about 60 at the Empire Barracks. The Conception Bay ranks left for their homes this morning. The others will be sent out as convenient, as by a special arrangement, made on the other side, the men were paid on the trip out, and this will facilitate their departure for home, when after 14 days leave of absence spent with friends they will report in the city for demobilization. The men speak very highly of the treatment accorded them on the Cassandra, and express the highest praise for Captain Brown and the officers of the transport.

Boy Hurt Yesterday.

A little boy named Cyril Comerford, fell off the handstand during the commemoration services at Bannerman Park yesterday morning, striking the ground on his neck and back. He was brought to the residence of Mrs. Smith nearby where Dr. Pritchard, of Bay Roberts, happened to be. He was found to be suffering from a slight concussion and was ordered to the hospital. Last night he had recovered sufficiently to enable the hospital authorities to send him to his home.

Heroic Dead Honored—Bannerman Park
Scene of Inspiring Ceremony—Commemoration Services in All Churches.

No more impressive ceremonies were ever witnessed in St. John's than those which took place yesterday in commemoration of Newfoundland's National day, the anniversary of the baptism of blood endured by the Royal Newfoundland Regiment at Beaumont Hamel on July 1st 1916, and the effects of yesterday's proceedings will remain with them who took part as an ever living memory of the events which brought about such tributes to the valor, glory and heroism of the best and bravest of the Dominion's sons.

The arrangements made by the officers and men of the regiment to commemorate the day were carried out to perfection, and the honors shown the memories of those gallant boys who had gone into the Sunset West, were fitting testimonials to their dauntless deeds. At Bannerman Park, particularly, the ceremony of decorating the erected shrine was beautiful, solemn and inspiring, and when the floral tributes had been laid at and around the cross the effect itself was that of a great pyramid of flowers, whose blended colors made a fair and magnificent foreground for the more dark and sombre beauties of the parks vernal surroundings and natural ornamentation.

To those who laid their floral tributes at the foot of the Cross, memories of the friends in whose honor these were presented came spontaneously and whether the offerings were those of fraternal organizations or the gift of nearer relations the feeling was the same pride and pleasure, not unmixed with sorrow, as thoughts of those who made the Supreme Sacrifice came uppermost in the minds of friends and acquaintances. The gallant bearing and glorious heroism of the sons of Terra Nova at Gallipoli, Beaumont Hamel, Guedecourt, Steenbeek, Monchy, Langemarck and Cambrai were freshly recalled, and many a wreath was given an added lustre by the tear drop shed upon it from loving eyes, the everliving and glittering jewels of human regard and love. Yesterday was a day filled with honor for the heroic dead, the men who gave, and were not afraid to give, and though they have gone from us, their names will never be forgotten so long as time lasts, and their memories will be publicly recalled and revered annually in similar celebrations to those which marked our appreciation of our khaki clad heroes, who sleep under the sod of foreign lands, but whose world stirring exploits will ever be an incentive and a stimulus to coming generations to emulate their sterling courage.

THE PARADE.

The official ceremonies began at 9.45 a.m., when the soldiers and sailors and city brigades and Nurses and V. A. D's assembled in the Prince's Rink grounds, where they formed in procession and paraded to the different churches to attend divine service. The parade marched out of the grounds in the following order: Detachment of Newfoundland Royal Naval Reserve.
C. C. C. Band.
Church of England Troops, War Veterans, Church Lads' Brigade.
Nurses V. A. D's.
Roman Catholic Troops, War Veterans, Catholic Cadet Corps.
Highlanders' Pipers.
Methodist, Presbyterian, Congregationalist, Salvation Army Troops, War Veterans, Newfoundland Highlanders.
The procession marched by way of Gover street to the square opposite the Synod Hall, the Catholic troops in the meantime breaking off at Prescott Street and continuing on to the Cathedral. The Church of England were next to fall out for service at the Cathedral, the Methodist at Gover Street, and the Presbyterian and Congregationalists at St. Andrew's.
After the services the parade reformed at Synod Hall Square, with the Colours' party in the centre, and proceeded to Government House grounds where the troops and war veterans received the colours upon which Lady Harris and Miss Armorer Harris had placed floral wreaths. The soldiers and sailors then proceeded to Bannerman Park, in which was erected a shrine consisting of a pyramid, surmounted by a cross.

DECORATING THE SHRINE.

Long before the arrival of the troops and sailors at Bannerman Park, thousands had assembled in the grounds, a special place being reserved for the next of kin of those who had fallen. Every walk of life was represented in the large gathering, while amongst those present were the Prime Minister Hon. Sir. M. P. Cashin, Hon. J. R. Bennett, Hon. W. Woodford, Hon.

J. S. Currie, Sir P. T. McGrath, Sir Joseph Outerbridge, French Consul Suzor, and officials of the French warship Somme, The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland, His Grace Archbishop Roche, His Lordship Bishop Power, His Lordship Bishop March, Rev. Canon Bolt, Rev. Dr. Jones, Rev. Dr. Curtis, Rev. E. W. Forbes, Rev. Dr. Green, Rev. D. B. Ashford, Rev. Fr. Sheehan, Rev. Dr. Carter, Col. Adby, officers of the various city societies. At 11.50 His Excellency the Governor and Lady Harris and suite arrived and were received by Lieut. Colonel Bernard, O. C. Royal Newfoundland Regiment. A few minutes later the C.C.C. Band rendered the Dead March in Saul as the floral offerings of the Regiment, the Royal Naval Reserve, the city Societies, colleges and schools and private individuals were deposited on the shrine. The Regiment's offering and that of the W. P. A. were placed on the shrine by Lady Harris, while the others were received by Capt. (Rev.) Nangle, Capt. Dicks and Lieut. Power. No more impressive ceremony was ever witnessed in the city. As the sad strains of the Dead March were wafted on the cool air, the wreath bearers in turn circled the shrine, on which were inserted the words "Greater love hath no man than this: that a man lay down his life for his friends," and handed their floral offerings to be laid around the cross and pyramid in honor of the dead. It was indeed a touching scene, and many a tear-dimmed eye could be seen while the heart burning of those who had lost their loved ones must have been tense. When the shrine had been bedecked with the numerous offerings and had taken on the appearance of a huge flower bed, of varied hues, and the Land of the Leal had been played by the Highlanders, His Excellency the Governor delivered the panegyric, saying in part:

The Governor's Address:

"Whatever date may eventually be accepted as the best for commemorating the achievements of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment, it is more than intelligible, it is extremely appropriate, that in this year the 1st of July should have been appointed. It was on the 1st of July last year that at the instance of the Great War Veterans' Association we held a commemoration of the deeds of the Regiment. On that occasion I insisted that it should be primarily a commemoration of the fallen and not an occasion of rejoicing, for I remembered with the glory of the Regiment, was also associated with the sadness of those who had lost the brave men who sustained that glory. This year the 1st of July is still more appropriate because it coincides so closely with the signing of that Peace Treaty, in which we hope to find the inauguration of a finer and better age.

"This celebration has been the spontaneous act of the officers of the Regiment itself, and in the wish that I should on this occasion pronounce a short panegyric upon those members of the Regiment who have passed to the Beyond they have some precedent in the past. You will remember Jesus the son of Sirach, in that fine chapter "Let us praise famous men and the fathers that Legat us." And at a period not far distant from the apocryphal writers, Thucydides records a wonderful speech in which a great Athenian democrat Pericles, pronounced a eulogy over those who had fallen in one of the wars of the Athenian Republic. That was not an isolated event. It was the regular practice of the Athenians, the most striking historic instance of a powerful democracy, to appoint a regular day in which they could commemorate the virtues of those who had given their lives for the State. And this speech of Pericles is one so beautiful in its thought and sympathetic in its diction that even now there is little one can wisely say about those who have fallen in war which does not find its echo in that classical utterance of more than 2,000 years ago. In the British Empire we think first of the Navy. It was in the Navy that the first Newfoundlander was killed, and during the whole period of the war they risked their lives in the North Sea and on the Atlantic. Of the Newfoundlanders in the Royal Naval Reserve, 270 have made the Supreme Sacrifice. No better men were obtainable in the Navy to crew the mine sweepers, and they did their duty fearlessly. For the Regiment, though the 1st of July is cited as the day which it found itself, it is in fact the date at which it was found by the British Army as a whole, because, as I have often said, it showed on that date for the first time that battle discipline in the face of terrible odds, which is the greatest test of any regiment, and came through. Still let us not forget that the 1st of July is not the only date. Before ever the Regiment went on to the Somme, they had established a fine reputation at Gallipoli, and later you will remember that at Guedecourt, Monchy, Steenbeek and Langemarck, and again at Cambrai, and still later—in other words in all areas of the war and throughout the period of the war the Regiment had been earning its laurels and adding to them. Those who fell in the course of these sad years total 1,280 men and 54 officers. A glance through the names will show that many of the best families suffered, that rich and poor, high and low, one with the other have fallen side by side.

"The great Athenian to whom I have referred, reminded his hearers that the lives of soldiers were given for the State, and laid stress upon the claim of the State to all that was highest and noblest in the man. He strove to comfort the mourners by showing the gain of the State. Now, in my opinion, the highest conception of the State is the good of a man's fellow citizens, and for those Newfoundlanders who sacrificed their lives in a distant land I claim that they stand as an example to all of the duty we owe to those around us. Whatever their motives, whatever their notion in joining, be it the spirit of adventure or the stern impulse of duty, these men made the sacrifice of their lives on behalf of a noble cause, and in order that the Newfoundlanders they left behind might realize how good was liberty and how good a place this is to live in when liberty held its sway. To those who have mourned for them, I can only say on this occasion that they should think rather of the glory attained by their dear ones than of the loss which they themselves have suffered, and if they have not near them the graves of those whom they loved, they may be comforted by a fine thought, for those who have so died the whole world in their tombs, and that for all time to come praise of their virtues will drop any criticism of their defects. For those who have lost sons or brothers or fathers in the war, there remains only the remembrance of their great goodness and deeds of valour. Any small fault is swept into oblivion. And in a brief sentence I think I can gist the whole matter: Our pride in their deeds is greater than any praise we can articulate, and our memory of their glory is finer than any monument we can erect."

THE LAST POST.

Following His Excellency's address came the final tribute to the dead from their comrades-in-arms. In front of the Shrine, a firing party with buglers attached, was lined up, and at the order for the assembled soldiers to present arms, the buglers sounded the "Last Post," while the firing squad discharged three volleys, the civilians standing in silence with bared heads. The Hallelujah chorus by the C.C.C. band brought the imposing service to a close.

TAKING THE SALUTE.

Ranks were then reformed, and the Regiment and Royal Naval Reservists left the Park. His Excellency the Governor taking the salute as they marched past to the Government House grounds with the colours. The colour party consisting of Lieuts. Field and Grace; Sergt. Major Daniels, Sergt. Field and Sergt. Hussey returned the flags to their depository, after which the soldiers continued on to the parade grounds and disbanded.

MEMORIAL DAY FITTINGLY OBSERVED

CHURCH SERVICES.

C. E. Cathedral.
The Memorial Service yesterday took the form of a solemn offering of the Holy Mysteries in memory of those who at Beaumont Hamel and throughout the war made the Supreme Sacrifice in the struggle for freedom and right. The sacred Ministers were, the Bishop (celebrant), Rev. Canon Bolt and Bayly. The Bishop who preached from Eccles. XLIV, 13-14, emphasized the purpose of the service in an admirable manner. Owing to the shortness of the time allowed it was necessary to curtail the musical part of the service somewhat but organist Stafford and his choir are to be congratulated on their part of the service, the Agnus Dei being sung to a restrained and beautiful setting in a very fine manner. A large congregation including besides the soldiers, the C. L. B. H. E. the Governor, and suite representatives of the Masonic, S. U. F. and L. O. A., and many officials, attended this solemn service of worship and prayers on behalf of those whom we have loved and lost awhile. The Dead March in Saul was played at the close of the services.

R. C. CATHEDRAL.

The Memorial Service at the R. C. Cathedral was in the form of a solemn Mass of Requiem. The celebrant was Capt. (Rev.) T. Nangle, of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment, with Rev. Fr. Wilson as deacon, and Rev. Fr. Dea as Sub-Deacon. His Grace Archbishop Roche occupied the Throne attended by Revs. Dr. Kitchin, J. Ashley and H. Renouf. His Lordship Bishop March, of Hr. Grace, occupied a temporary throne on the Epistle side of the Sanctuary, attended by Rev. Dr. Whelan and His Lordship Bp. Power, of St. George's, was seated on the Epistle side, attended by Rev. Fr. Brennan. In the Sanctuary were Revs. Dr. Carter and Rev. Fr. Sheeham, Chanter of the Mass, Revs. Coady and Ashley, and Rev. Dr. Greene, Master of ceremonies. The High Altar was appropriately draped with black and white, and also the pulpit, while inside the altar rails was the catafalque covered with the Union Jack, with a guard of sergeants with fixed bayonets, who presented arms at the consecration. The Thurifer was Lieut. McGrath, and the Acolytes were Sergt. Leonard Burke, Royal Nfld. Regt., and Seaman F. McNamara, Royal Naval Reserve. The choir of male voices was under the direction of Rev. Bro. Fennessey. The entire ceremony was both inspiring and impressive, and particularly at the granting of the final absolutions, conducted by His Grace Archbishop Roche. The Cathedral was filled with worshippers, amongst those present being Hon. Sir M. P. Cashin, Sir P. T. McGrath, Hon. W. J. Higgins, M. Suzor, French Consul, Lieut. Commander, J. N. Les Cloddes, of the French destroyer Somme, Capt. L. C. Murphy, A.D.C., Major G. T. Carry, and Major P. Cashin, who occupied special seats. Inside the Altar rails were the officers of the different Catholic Societies and a number of sailors from the French warship. His Lordship Bishop Power, of St. George's diocese, preached a most eloquent and impressive sermon, taking as his text the words, "It is better to die in battle."

After Mass had been celebrated the strains of the Dead March in Saul were played by the C. C. C. Band, the vast congregation standing with bowed heads.

GOWER STREET.

The service held in Gower Street

Methodist Church which was attended by a large gathering of worshippers was very impressive. Rev. Dr. Curtis, ex-President of the Conference, and the Rev. E. W. Forbes, the Pastor, of the Church conducted worship. The address was delivered by Dr. Curtis, who preliminary to his remarks read the following resolution which had been adopted by the Conference in session at Carbonear:

RESOLVED.—That this Conference, assembled in Carbonear, most heartily unite in expressing our deep and sincere gratitude for the service, and sacrifice of the noble and heroic men who have laid down their lives for all that we hold dear in relation to life and liberty. We rejoice that under God and with His divine blessing, their sacrifice has not been in vain, and we unite in earnest prayer that the God of all Grace may abundantly comfort all who have lost their loved ones in this world war.

During the service a solo, "O Rest in the Lord," was beautifully rendered by Miss Curtis. Chopins Dead March and the Hallelujah Chorus brought to a close one of the most inspiring and impressive services ever held in this church.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

A very impressive service was held at St. Andrew's Church, where the Congregational and Presbyterian Churches united for the Memorial Service in honor of the men who have given their lives during the great war, 1914-1918. A special order of service had been prepared and printed, and the worship was conducted by the Rev. Dudley B. Ashford. The Highlanders paraded. The St. Andrew's Society was officially represented. After the opening sentences had been read the Shepherd Psalm was sung in the metrical version. The lesson was taken from Revelation 21:1-8, beginning with the words, "And I saw a New Heaven and a New Earth..." after which the united choirs sang the very beautiful anthem by Strainer, "Who are these that are Strayed in White Robes?" Then followed responsive prayers, after which was read the names of the men who have fallen. The minister then led the people in an extempore prayer. The hymn, "For all the Saints who from Their Labors Rest" was next sung, and then followed the address. The Rev. Dudley B. Ashford took as his text the words in 2 Sam. 23, 17, "Be it far from me, O Lord, that I should do this: is not this the blood of the men that went in jeopardy of their lives?"

The service was brought to a close by the singing of that stirring and familiar hymn, "O God our help in ages past," after which the congregation stood while the organist played the "Dead March." After the singing of the National Anthem the "Last Post" was sounded, thus bringing to a conclusion, a service which will be long remembered.

We exceedingly regret that space does not permit us to give even the briefest synopsis of the very eloquent sermons preached at the various religious commemorative services, but that they were inspiring, and filled with the deepest sentiments of patriotism and spiritual invigoration all who had the privilege of hearing them will attest.

THE METHODIST CONFERENCE MEMORIAL SERVICE.

TUESDAY, JULY 1st at 10 a.m.
The Memorial Service in honor of those brave Newfoundland soldiers who laid down their lives in defence of all that we hold dear, was held in the Conference church at Carbonear, on Tuesday, 1st, at 10 a.m. Dr. Bond, president of the Conference, assisted by Revs. Chas. Lench, Edwin Moore, and (Capt.) W. W. Cotton, D.S.O. Hymn 370 was sung after which prayer was offered by the Rev. Chas. Lench.

Anthem by the choir.
The President then read the scriptures (Pa. 91, Eph. 6, 10-20) After singing of Hymn 562 the Resolution adopted by the Conference was then read:—

RESOLVED that this Conference assembled in Carbonear, most heartily unite in expressing our deep, and sincere gratitude for the service and sacrifice of the noble and heroic men who have laid down their lives for all that we hold dear, in relation to life and liberty. We rejoice that under God and with His Divine blessing this sacrifice has not been made in vain, and we unite in earnest prayer that the God of all Grace may abundantly comfort all who have lost their loved ones in this great world war."

After a very thrilling and sympathetic address from Dr. Bond and Capt. W. W. Cotton, D.S.O., the Conference unanimously adopted the resolution.

Benediction by Dr. James.
J.A.W.

Congratulatory Exchange.

The following telegraphic messages of congratulation have been exchanged between the officers and men of H.M.S. Cumberland and His Excellency the Governor; the same being a high tribute to Newfoundland and the part the Dominion bore in the war:

June 30, 1919.

To His Excellency the Governor, From H.M.S. Cumberland.
Captain Gordon Campbell, officers and men of H.M.S. Cumberland respectfully beg to congratulate Governor and people of Newfoundland on the successful termination of the Great War in which Newfoundland took such a magnificent part.

June 30, 1919.

To Captain of H.M.S. Cumberland, From His Excellency the Governor.

On behalf of the people of Newfoundland I heartily thank the Captain, officers and men of H.M.S. Cumberland for their gracious message of congratulation on the signature of the Peace Treaty. In their short stay at St. John's the officers, men and Cadets of the Cumberland left behind them an enduring impression of goodwill. We do not forget the distinguished part which you yourself have taken in the War.

GOVERNOR.

"Cassandra" Brings Shipwrecked Crew.

The captain and crew of the schr. Mabel Davis, which was lost recently in mid-ocean while on the way here from Alicante with a cargo of salt, arrived home yesterday by the Cassandra. They were picked up by a passing steamer after their vessel with her pumps choked had been battered by storms for 11 days, during which they suffered much from want of sleep and food. In being rescued they had to be hauled through the water, and at arrival at Hull were ill as a result of their experience. All have now recovered except cook Curtis, but he is gradually improving. After a month's delay at Hull, awaiting a chance to get home, the shipwrecked men proceeded to Glasgow where they joined the Cassandra.

Opening Game Players.

The opening football game for the season takes place to-night on St. George's Field, and ought to be a fast exhibition, as a glance at the names of the players will show:
The City line-up will be:—Goal, Lush; backs, T. Duggan, E. Kavanagh; half-backs, Elton, Dwyer, W. Duggan; forwards, Ralph Stick, Jerritt, Coultas, F. Brien, L. Kavanagh.

We Spent Royally for Defense.

Let Us Now Spend Wisely for Construction

We need more roads. MAKE THEM.
 We need more buildings—home, public and industrial. CONSTRUCT THEM.
 We need wide gauge railways and equipment. PRODUCE THEM.
 We need homesteads for many of our returned soldiers. Drain the swamp and irrigate the arid lands, and they will "blossom like the rose."

Possibly 500,000—certainly not less than 300,000—horse-power is literally running to waste in our streams. We need industrial power. Harness the streams. Build the dams. Construct the power plants.

The IMMEDIATE carrying out of only a fraction of our needs in these lines of production will put to work every idle man and every idle dollar in our country.

The PURCHASING POWER of the labor and capital thus profitably employed, plus normal demand, plus foreign demand, will keep every wheel turning, every factor of commerce busy at top speed.

Every DOLLAR wisely expended on productive lands, buildings, railways, good roads, power plants, and on the development of our MINING RESOURCES, particularly our COAL MINES and similar undertakings, is an addition to the permanent wealth and industrial progress of our country.

The development of our COAL FIELDS will accomplish all these great things. We have possibly THREE HUNDRED MILLION TONS of high grade COAL on our areas, with FIFTY THOUSAND TONS IN SIGHT.

SHARES ONLY $1.00 EACH.

SUMMARIES YESTERDAY'S GAME.

Bases on Balls—O'Leary, 1; off Hall, 4. Struck Out—By O'Leary, 13; by Hall, 13. Hit by Pitcher—By O'Leary, 0; by Hall, 2. Time—1 hour 30 minutes.

NOTES ON THE GAME.

Last year's champs—the Cubs—received another rude shock when the B.I.S. submarined them amidships by a score of 7 to 5, and sent them floundering to the bottom of the pennant path. A good brand of ball was handed out but three palpable errors in the Cubs' infield let in as many unearned runs, as an Irishman occupied the third sack in each instance when the blunder was made. The star of the series was Kid O'Donnell a youth of 17 summers, who played third base for the B.I.S. His fielding and throwing were quite professional, while his base-stealing thrilled the fans who turned out in great numbers to witness the clash. O'Leary pitched well and shows great improvement on each appearance. Hall—the old reliable—did good work but at times was unsupported by his battery mate.

Previous to the League game the Junior League presented a five innings game, the contestants being the Junior Wanderers and St. Patrick's Hall, which was won by the latter with a score of 11 to 5. The youngsters played well, and some of the play was quite clever.

NEXT GAME.

The last game of the first round will be played to-morrow night when the Wanderers and Red Lions will meet in battle array. The outcome will be quite important as it will place the winners on a par with the B.I.S. The game will start promptly at 6.30, and players are asked to bear in mind this change in the starting time.

The Majestic.

Patrons who attended the Majestic Theatre on Monday night are loud in their praise of the enterprise and modern ideas of the proprietors. The rendition of the "Star Spangled Banner" and "Rule Britannia" by Mrs. King, the prima donna of Newfoundland, was a revelation to the vast audience, who did not think that such sentiment and patriotism could be infused into a mere song. The quintette of French sailors from the destroyer Somme who sang the Marseillaise with such verve and abandon was a surprise to the audience, who while expecting something novel was not prepared for the innovation which the management had created. The response was spontaneous, the whole audience rising to their feet as the now familiar strains of the great battle song of France issued from the lips of the vocalists and resounded through the auditorium. Patriotic fervour was at its height and every one remembered the gallant deeds of Newfoundland's heroic sons on the great day in which they had braved and beaten the pride of the enemy. The applause was loud and long and Mrs. King and the sailors of La belle France received the approbation of the audience without stint. It is due to such efforts as these that the Majestic is without peer in entertainment and future patrons will not regret changing their allegiance for kindred shows.

McMurdo's Store News.

WEDNESDAY, July 2, '19.
 It is again our privilege to welcome home a company of lands where they have taken their part in saving civilization from the Huns. Newfoundland will never forget what they have done—yesterday's celebration, which will become an annual and, we hope, permanent feature in our national life, will assure that. And Newfoundland will not forget the boys themselves, but give them every assistance possible in helping them back to take their place in our social, political, industrial life. We are poorer—how much poorer we shall never know—for those who will never come back to us; but their examples will be a constant inspiration, their names a sacred possession. But to those who have survived and who have now come back, we tender a hearty welcome to-day.

Glasgow's Appreciation.

Shortly before the S. S. Cassandra left Glasgow on the afternoon of June 24th, the Mayor and Councillors visited the ship and were received by Major Emerson and officers of the Nfld. and Canadian regiments. On behalf of the citizens of Glasgow the Mayor addressed the troops and paid high encomiums to the splendid service performed by the Colonials in the Great War. He wished them all God-speed and a safe return to their homes and loved ones. Three rousing cheers were then given by the troops for the Mayor and citizens of Glasgow for their kind wishes and for their liberal donation of 50,000 cigarettes. After the singing of "Anuld Lang Syne", and while the Scottish bands played "Britannia Rules the Waves", the S. S. Cassandra moved out of dock into the Clyde on her way to sea with the last draft of the Royal Nfld. Regiment.

R. Q. M. S. Barrett, of the Nfld. Forestry company, who had been in Scotland for over two years, returned yesterday by the S.S. Cassandra. He is as hale and hearty as ever, and speaks in glowing terms of the land of Old Scotia.

DIED.

Last evening, after a long illness, Dora Stevenson, beloved wife of James Thompson, leaving 4 sons, 2 daughters and 1 sister to mourn her funeral Thursday, at 2.30 p.m. from her late residence, 16 Pennywell Rd.—R.I.P.

Passed peacefully away on July 1st, after a short illness, Mrs. Sarah Targett, widow of the late Peter Targett, of Holyrood, and mother of Lance Corporal Frederick J. Targett, who died of wounds, October 15, 1916, in France, leaving to mourn her one daughter and a large circle of friends. Funeral on Thursday at 2.30 p.m. from her son-in-law's residence, Mr. Thomas Scott, 24 Clifford Street.—R.I.P.

IN LOVING MEMORY of Sergt. Wm. B. Knight, who was killed in Action on July 1st, 1916, aged 23 years.
 "Now he peacefully sleeps in a Soldier's grave Somewhere in France."

IN LOVING MEMORY of Pte. John Barton, who was killed at Beaumont Hamel, July 1st, 1916.
 "He died that we might live."

IN LOVING MEMORY of our dear nephew, Pte. Wm. Chaytor, who passed away a few months ago. Somewhere in France. Laid in a Soldier's grave. In a far-off distant land, Missed by those he left behind, Gone to a better land.

IN LOVING MEMORY of our dear nephew, Pte. Wm. Butler, killed in Action in France, July 1st, 1916.
 He answered the call of his country For the sake of those he loved; We miss him now amongst us, For God called him above.

IN LOVING MEMORY of John J. French, of A. Co., Royal Nfld. Regiment, killed in action at the battle of Beaumont Hamel, July 1st, 1916. May his soul rest in peace. In sunny France there's softly sleeping.

Where the flowers gently wave, Lies the one we loved so dearly; In his lonely, silent grave.

IN SAD, BUT LOVING MEMORY of Pte. George Lukins, No. 544, who was killed in Action at Beaumont Hamel, July 1st, 1916. We often sit and talk of him, And think of how he died; To think he could say good-bye Before he closed his eyes; When days are dark, and friends are few.

"Thy dear son, we long for you; Could we but kneel beside his grave And shed a silent tear, But, oh! he sleeps in far-off France The boy we loved so dear; His cheerful smile, his loving face No one on earth can fill his place."
 —Mother.

IN LOVING MEMORY of 2nd Lieut. John Roy Ferguson, and Sig. Sergt. Stewart Small Ferguson, killed at Beaumont Hamel, France, July 1st, 1916.

IN LOVING MEMORY of Pte. H. T. Morrissey, No. 1074, son of the late Lawrence Morrissey, painter, who was missing on the 1st of July, 1916 in the battle of Beaumont Hamel, now believed to be killed and buried in some unknown grave. "This noble, brave young hero just in the prime of life when his King and Country called him responded for to go to fight for King and Country and for the German foe. Oh! yes, we sorely miss him, his comrades one and all, and God he choose his own wise end. He took him from us all."
 Rest in peace—J.E.M.

The Historic Cod.

A correspondent, with a philosophic bent of mind, writes:

In my collection of oddities and rarities of literature there is a tall, thin volume which at first I admitted only by complaisance, but for which I have an ever-increasing respect. It is "A History of the Emblem of the Codfish in the Hall of the House of Representatives"—a Boston publication, containing a report of a committee appointed to compile the history of Boston's sacred cod. It begins as follows:

"Poised high aloft in the old hall of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, riding serenely the sound waves of debate, unperturbed by the ebb and flow of enactment and repeal of the desultory storms that vexed the nether depths of oratory, there has hung through immemorial years an ancient codfish, quaintly wrought in wood and painted to life.

"Humble the subject and homely the design; yet this painted image bears on its finny front a majesty greater than the dignity that age can lend to graven gold or chiselled marble.

"The sphere it fills is vaster than that through which its prototype careered with all the myriad tribes of the great deep. The lessons that may be learned of it are nobler than any to be drawn from what is only beautiful; for this sedate and solitary fish is instinct with memories and prophecy, like an oracle. It swims symbolic in that wider sea whose confines are the limits set to the activities of human thought. It typifies to the citizens of the Commonwealth and of the world the founding of a State. It commemorates democracy. It celebrates the rise of free institutions. It emphasizes progress. It epitomizes Massachusetts."

And there you have Boston's reverence for the sacred cod! Surely, if Talleyrand could have lived long enough he never would have said, "Excepting the whalers, fishing is idle employment, requiring neither courage nor skill; the fishermen do not venture more than two leagues from the coast, the fisheries do not furnish a nursery for seamen, they have no attachment to their homes, they are cosmopolites, and a few codfish, more or less, determine their country."

Little did Talleyrand dream that codfishing would become a sport and that those who pursue the cod would be divided into two classes—fishermen and anglers. The former being men who fish to live, and the latter those who simply live to fish.

There is so much that is good and quotable in the report of the committee that it is hard to leave off, but I shall continue long enough to give an idea of what "codfish aristocracy" should mean. This is the true Bostonian conception: "To the historian it seems quite natural that the codfish, an article of pure, plain natural food, should be the emblem of the practical, frugal spirit which laid the foundation of Massachusetts. And, while the term 'codfish aristocracy' is sometimes used as one of reproach, the reproach lies in the departure by their descendants from the simple ways of the early fishermen; and if by codfish aristocracy we should be understood to mean the living fisherfolk of Cape Ann and Cape Cod, then we have excellent reason for aiming to preserve such an aristocracy in honor."

This glorification of the codfish should not be without a reference to the fact that history has it that George Washington angled for cod. But, notwithstanding my reverence for the Father of His Country, he shall always appear to me as rather a sad figure as an angler when I think of the limitations under which he would have labored had he been elected to an honorary membership in that organization whose presiding genius has given it the motto: "Exaggerate, exaggerate, and some day it will come true!"—N. Y. Fishing Gazette.

Dried fish occupied a strong position in tropical markets to-day, despite contrary reports from commission houses, now ready to buy. Gloucester is practically cleaned up; Halifax is well sold out of old stocks, and Newfoundland, with supplies rapidly going forward to Europe, begins to see daylight after weeks of none too bright prospects. ### Wonderful Newfoundland.

BY MRS. W. M. DOOLEY.
(From the Charleston American.)

A country which has not felt to any appreciable extent the discomforts which have followed the close of the war is the Dominion of Newfoundland, the great island off the eastern coast of Canada.

According to statements made by its finance minister, Newfoundland has a revenue of nearly nine millions and a surplus of about two millions. When we consider that the population is only 250,000, this is a tremendous budget and that wonderful prosperity exists throughout the island cannot be doubted.

Certain interests would like to see Newfoundland a part of the Dominion of Canada, but the premier British colony chooses to go it alone. That she is wise in her determination is demonstrated by her marvelous prosperity and industrial development, which bids fair to place her among the leading countries of the world.

To most Americans Newfoundland is a terra incognita and is usually associated with icebergs and arctic cold. This impression is far from being correct. I have spent some of the most delightful years of my life in that wonderfully picturesque country and have never known the frigid cold which one experiences in such cities as Boston or New York. The gulf stream flows along the shores of the island and exercises a beneficent influence upon the climate. It seldom goes below zero in winter, and when it does it is not felt because of the dry atmosphere. The scenery of Newfoundland beggars all description for beauty. It is doubtful if its counterpart can be seen in any other part of North America. The wonderful lakes, rivers and mountains hold the tourist spellbound with their sublime grandeur and the invigorating atmosphere of the country makes it one of nature's sanitoriums.

The people are the most hospitable one could possibly live among, as they are certainly the most God-fearing, the many isms which are continually being propagated by every little half-baked professor in this country who wants to air his views on the proper regulation of the human race are unknown in this favored land. The Newfoundlanders put his trust in the Ruler of all and has little time for erotic and decadent discussions. A trip to this wonderland is an epoch in one's life, for nowhere on earth can the tourist find so much of scenery and climate and so much hospitality.

It is only of late years that Americans have discovered Newfoundland, and every summer thousands of tourists spend their vacations in the beautiful island.

The Phantom Millionaire

The journalist in question graced at the time the editorial staff of a daily paper published in a port from which liners sailed to far New York. Being of a fertile mind, it struck him that, in the absence of legitimate news, it was up to him to provide some of the other kind. He sat down there and wrote a lengthy story, which he subsequently dispatched to London by the Post Office wire.

Its tenor was this. An American millionaire, unable to find his soulmate among the beauties of Philadelphia, or among those of Chicago or distant Jacksonville, had come privately to England in search of a wife. Posing as a poor and humble person, he roamed our own fair land until, passing through a typical English village, roses, thatch, and church-tower all complete, he found the Girl of his Heart, with soft, brown hair and eyes of the deepest blue. He married her so the story ended, and the happy pair had sailed in the liner which had just left the port, for the happy clime of dollars and sunshine, there to repose on the millions before mentioned.

The story struck the News Editor in London as "the goods." He "splashed" accordingly, and wired instructions to our friend in — to find out anything more he could about the doings of the couple, adding that he had also cabled to New York for the boat to be met there by the paper's correspondent.

Imagine, if you can, the feelings of our young friend when he got to this wire. For six days he was on the verge of nervous prostration. On the ninth, in the evening of an exhausting day of soul-killing anxiety, he got a copy of the London paper. He staggered and nearly fell. There, with triumphant headlines, was an interview with the phantom millionaire and his fair young bride. Bully for New York.—In Jack O'Condon's Weekly.

Peace Proclaimed.

Peal forth ye bells from the famed dome of Peter,
And thank the Great Deity the war blast is stilled:
Let Shannon bells sound on Lee's rolling current,
And join in Te Deums to Him that so willed.

Peace is proclaimed, and all hearts are rejoicing;
Peasant and prince are released from the dread
Of the roll call that some of their heart's cherished idols
Is flashed through the cable; they are now with the dead.

Let Foch's tactics be known to the world;
Let Wilson's name in white marble be chiselled,

There's a dear little Isle in the great Western Ocean,
Who gave thousands of sons to fight England's cause,
New Britain in this, your great hour of triumph,
Give Ireland her home rule, let her make her own laws.

We are all deeply proud of our Newfoundland heroes,
Who nobly gave their best blood for the land,
Some calmly sleep by the Somme and in Flanders,
Peace to their slumbers—this gallant young band.

The land of the Maple Leaf gave her boys freely
To fight the great fight, and victory won,
Their names shall adorn history's pages for valor,
Canada's brave heroes that conquered the "Hun."

When snow flakes are mantling the hilltops and valleys,
A calm seems to reign. What a change now from them,
When cannons roared, fiercely and shell fire thundered,
But the word came from Heaven—"peace, peace to all men."

England's sons nobly fought in the struggle for freedom,
To silence forever the treacherous Hun;

Conference Sunday, June 29th.

ORDINATION SERVICE.

The Ordination Service of the Methodist Conference took place in Carbonar Church on Sunday at 7 p.m. when eight young men were set apart for the work of the Christian Ministry. The meeting was presided over by Dr. Chown, General Superintendent of the Methodist Church of Canada and Newfoundland, assisted by Dr. Bond, President of the Conference; Dr. Curtis, ex-President; Dr. J. R. Saint, Revs. W. T. D. Dunn, Chas. Howe and J. T. Newman. After the singing of the Doxology and the National Anthem, the Invocation was offered by Dr. Bond. Hymn 266 was then sung. Prayer by the Rev. Edwin Moore. Anthem by the Choir (Te Deum).

Then followed the Ordination of Candidates, when N. Sceviour, N. Cole, B. Warr, Eli R. Anthony, B.A., S. J. Hillier, W. Boyce, C. L. Curtis and A. Johnson received the imposition of hands and the Apostolic Command.

Dr. Chown then gave the Ordination Charge which simply thrilled the vast number of people that filled the church to its capacity. Among many things he said when the young men spoke of their call to the sacred work of the ministry he was reminded of the time when he stood before the public as a candidate for ordination, and again 19 years ago when as President of the Toronto Conference to ordain young men. If he were to take a text he would take thus: "The words I speak unto you are spirit and life," which he believed were the key-words to Christ's teaching. He was in sympathy with all young men. He had passed through the years of doubt. There was a time when he thought John Wesley was all wrong, but the years had taught him differently. He would give the class a working definition of truth as "a spiritual essence in knowledge that has power to transform character." Browning spoke of being "stung by the splendour of a sudden thought." Truth bears its own witness to the heart. The soul is possessed by an instinct which gathers truth unto itself. Dr. Chown said this because he was speaking to Ministers who had the responsibility of bringing this truth to the institutions he ministers. When Methodist teaches Theology it does not do so to put men in a groove, but with one object, to inspire them to go out and work. Our Theology must be a working one. When Wesley said he was "sick of opinions," he did not mean Theology but the silly differences which engaged the attention of our fathers for years; but we need a Theological foundation, we need that kind of truth just defined. This truth is life, and life is the secret of all efficiency, the influence of the Divine life that makes us men. As you go out you will find our Church exalts its members as perhaps no other ecclesiastical institution does, because our Church exalts its preachers as prophets. If you really are ministers your summons must be filled with this life-giving truth. If the Methodist Church were consistent with itself it would put man on trial not because he thinks independently, but rather because his sermons do not contain that spiritual content. Remember the world is in the re-making and for the next ten years we are going to go through stirring times. Dr. Chown said he would not give much for the man who lays his head on the pillow at night without feeling travail for this burdened world. God would never save the world with that kind of religion before the war and he was sure He cannot save it with that kind now. You are called to a new knighthood, to love all men, to be chivalrous to all men, and to bring the whole world to the feet of the Christ. We wish these young men all the success that they themselves are prepared to work and pray for. It will not be long before I shall leave the Methodist Church, but I am always looking for men who will lead her to victory. Go forth, my dear young brethren, with the battle of life and bear one another's burdens.

NERVE SUPPORT!

Overwork, worry and concentrated mental effort cause excessive wear and wastage of the nerve cells, which frequently result in nervous breakdown. To guard against this, extra food must be supplied to rebuild the worn-out cells. Nothing is quite so good as "OVALTINE" for this purpose, as it contains just the food elements necessary, in a light, concentrated and easily digestible form, to build up the nerves and meet the extra demand on the system. ### Grand Falls Reception to R. S. M. Mackay.

R.S.M. MacKay, on his way across country, spent a couple of days at Grand Falls to view the paper making plant and to meet some of his old friends and pupils. Two days were all too short in which to take in the immense plant and surroundings. However, all that could be done was done to make his stay as pleasant as possible. When the express pulled into the station the pleasant strains of the Salvation Army band were the first sounds to greet his ear to be succeeded by the wholesouled welcome of the large gathering present.

Monday was occupied in going round the plant and surroundings, which were a great surprise to him as he had no idea of such a large and self-contained manufacturing centre in this thinly populated country.

On Tuesday a visit was paid to the farm at Rushy Pond and some little time was spent in an effort to lure the finny denizens of the neighboring waters.

In the evening the Officers, Warrant Officers and Sergeants of the Regt.

and Forestry Coy's were invited to meet him at the Log Cabin where all were right royally entertained by Mr. Scott and the Reception Committee. During the evening several eloquent and pertinent speeches were made. Manager Scott, in proposing the health of the guest referred to the splendid service rendered to the Regt. by the Sergeant Major. Grand Falls bore eloquent testimony to his labours as witnessed by the large proportion of Commissioned and Non Commissioned Officers it had produced from the number sent forward.

The Sergeant Major in reply very feelingly spoke of the great welcome and kindness he had received since coming to the country. His labours for the Regt. had been those of love, for he had always found the men very keen regarding their work and had always received whole-hearted support from his N.C.O's. He trusted that the lessons learnt abroad would not be lost to the country, but that training of some sort would still continue. He particularly referred to the necessity of some sort of physical training for the youth of the country which would instill into them, habits of discipline and cleanliness, a respect for authority and a recognition of that fellowship without which no community could be at its best. Amongst the young officers and N.C.O's who had returned, there was plenty of material for instructors and he felt sure Grand Falls could furnish a Boys' Brigade which would be a credit to any country.

These sentiments were endorsed by several of those present, and it seems as if a movement in this direction will take place immediately. Reference was also made to the work of the Patriotic Association, and particularly to that of the Women's Branch.

In the morning some of the officers accompanied the Sgt. Major along the road and pointed out to him the various places of interest and the method of conveying the logs down the river as far as could be observed from the train. During the afternoon the following message was received from Humbermouth.

Mr. Scott, Grand Falls.
Before leaving Newfoundland I would like to thank you and your staff and all friends at Grand Falls for their splendid reception—and the kind hospitality given to me, which I assure you will never be forgotten. With best wishes to you all.

MACKAY.

It is unnecessary to emphasize the fact that he was well looked after by Mrs. MacPherson of the Staff House.

Good luck MacKay. Of all with whom the Regiment were associated on the other side, none deserves greater credit than yourself. In spite of many adverse circumstances, you turned out a body of men, who if not regulars, were at the least not to be despised. And we trust that if ever it be the lot of any of Ours to undergo the same fortune that they will have the same confidence in the result when they hear the order, "Carry on Sergeant Major."

Celebration Suggestions.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—With your kind permission, I beg to make a few remarks in your esteemed journal in connection with the Peace Celebrations. It having been officially announced that there are to be national celebrations and rejoicings, I am of opinion that the proper way to enter upon such, would be to have them the first week in August. (The official instructions have already arranged for this date. Ed. By having two holidays the Regatta could be one and any other form of appropriate ceremonial, either religious or national, or both, on the other. The authorities could also arrange to have a couple of warships in port, whose crews might take part in the Regatta by rowing a service race, in which they could enter against the men of our Regiment or Naval Reserve. Military parades are all right in war time, but now we want to forget wars pomp as well as war's honors. Therefore the best way to my mind is that which I have suggested.

The working men desire some celebration in which they all can participate, and as Regatta Day is the workingman's day, the only day in the year when he is on an equal footing with his employer, the proper time for the holding of our sports day is in conjunction with the Peace Celebrations. Employers could not object to letting their employees enjoy themselves on such a momentous occasion, but the spirit of concord would be greatly fostered if no deduction of pay were made on these days.

Hoping that these humble suggestions of mine may receive due consideration, and with apologies for trespassing so much on your valuable space, I remain, Sir,

Yours truly,
"A WAR SUFFERER."

MOORES-BURTON.

On June 25th, at 7.45 a.m., at the Gower St. Methodist Church, a quiet but very pretty wedding took place when Miss Lillian Gertrude, third daughter of the well known business man, Mr. Daniel and Mrs. Burton, of Glovertown, was united in the bonds of Holy Matrimony to Mr. Frank Moores, an ex-teacher, but now a promising young business man of the firm of B. & F. Moores of Freshwater, Carbonar. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. T. B. Darby, M.A. The bride was handsomely gowned in oriental silk lace over cream dirotre satin, trimmed with pale pink maribou, wearing a bridal veil and wreath of orange blossoms, and was attended by Miss Annie Moores, sister of the groom, and postal telegraph operator of Freshwater, who looked very pretty in a dress of pale pink silk with large picture hat to match. Mr. W. M. Samways of Ayre & Sons acted as father giver. The groom was attended by Mr. John Davis, also of Ayre & Sons, Ltd. The bride previous to her marriage was postal telegraph operator of Glovertown for a number of years, where she gave the best satisfaction, and both the postal staff and people are to lose an obliging and competent worker. After the ceremony the wedding party left by the 8.45 train for their future home at Freshwater.

The Newest 1919 Trench Coats!

The Trench Coats for men we are now showing arrived on the last English boat and are quite the finest Coats we have ever handled. They are the product of a first class English firm, famed for its Military Tailoring, are built of fine quality Gabardine in all shades of Khaki, well-lined with smart-patterned Twill Plaid. Pockets velvet lined. Three very special features in these Coats are: (1) Extra high and well-fitting storm collar; (2) extra wide revers, forming when fastened ample throat and chest protection; (3) an entire interlining of Oilskin, rendering them not only doubly waterproof but absolutely wind and cold proof as well; forming an ideal Coat for all weathers. All Coats are belted and strapped at wrists. All sizes.

The affair was a very quiet one owing to the recent very sad bereavement in the bride's family. The presents received were numerous and very costly, testifying to the esteem in which the bride and groom were held. The Telegram wishes the newly wedded couple a happy journey through life.

GILLINGHAM-NURSE.

A quiet wedding took place on Thursday night last, at the Presbytery, St. Antoine Street, Monseigneur Donnelly officiating, when Miss Olive Nurse, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Nurse, Essex Apartments, was married to Mr. N. W. Gillingham, of Grand Falls, Newfoundland. The bride who wore a suit of cream and gold, with jockey hat to match, was given away by her father and was unattended. Mrs. Nurse wore grey satin. Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the Windsor Hotel, where only immediate relatives were present. Mr. and Mrs. Gillingham have gone to Grand Falls, Newfoundland, to reside. Going away the bride wore a tan and blue suit with hat to match. Among the wedding gifts received was a beautiful worked table cloth from the bride's associates at the Montreal Art Association, — Montreal Star.

BRUSHELL-INGRAM.

A very pretty but quiet wedding took place in the C. of E. Church, Mill Town, Bay D'Espoir, on June 15th, when Mr. Thomas Ingram was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mrs. Hannah Brushett, by the Rev. W. R. Courage. The bride looked very pretty in a dress of navy blue with hat to match. The bride was given away by Mr. Martin Piercey, Mr. William Kendall acted as best man, and the maid of honor was Mrs. Annie Piercey.

The Organist, Miss B. G. Roberts, rendered the beautiful hymn 281, "Lead us, Heavenly Father, lead us." After the ceremony the happy couple proceeded to the bride's home, where a beautiful repast was partaken of by the immediate friends of the bride and groom. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Ingram many years of happiness.—Com.
