TOWN WILL INSTALL A NEW SYSTEM OF LIGHTING

The Manager of the Bridgetown Electric Light, Heat and Power Co. interviewed by a Committee of Citizens, with Rev. Dr. Jost as Chairman

A citizen's meeting was held in the Council Room on Friday evening, June 4th, to discuss the question of electric lighting, a number of the principal consumers of electric light being present.

Rev. Dr. Jost was elected chairman of the meeting and Mr. Fred Bath, secretary.

The statement being made that Mr. Beckwith had expressed his intention of making some reduction in the schedule of electric lighting, it was suggested that a committee of three be appointed to interview him. A resolution was passed to this effect and the following proposal was drawn up to be submitted to Mr. Beckwith—

That he allow each consumer of light, commercial and residential, a discount of ten per cent, and to each consumer of residential lights the privilege of using an 8 c. p. lamp if desired at one-half the rate of a 16 c. p. lamp. Also that Mr. Beckwith allow the town the six extra street lights as requested by the council in their letter to him of June, 1908.

The following gentlemen were chosen as a committee to submit the proposal to Mr. Beckwith—viz, Rev. Dr. Jost, Capt. J. W. Salter, Messrs. R. A. Crowe and L. D. Shafner.

Subsequently the committee named interviewed Mr. Beckwith, who declined to make any concession in the rates or any addition to the street lights as requested.

This decision was communicated to the Town Council, who, at their regular monthly meeting on Monday evening, authorized their light committee to proceed to investigate the various systems of lighting with a view to selecting one most suitable to the town's requirements.

First to Encourage Nature Study and School Gardens.

Canada first realized the educative value of gardening twenty years ago, observes Maud Goetz, who contributes an article entitled "Village Improvement" to the June Canadian Magazine.

At first the enterprise owed its life in great measure to the zeal of Dr. Alexander H. Mackay, Superintendent of Education for Nova Scotia. He advocated nature study and garden work so ably and effectively that there were fifty-two school gardens in his own province before 1904. In that year the Sir William Macdonald school gardens were established in all the Eastern Provinces, so that Canada can now boast of hundreds of gardens.

The first school-gardens were mainly volunteer institutions due to the enthusiasm of the teacher more than to the initiative of the school trustees. But since 1904 there has been a grant coming from the Macdonald Rural Schools Fund, giving in addition of thirty dollars to the yearly salary of the teacher who will qualify for nature work and maintain a garden—and twenty dollars for labor, seeds, plants and tools. Prizes have been offered for the most successful gardens in the Province, and in 1904 the first prize was awarded to Knowlton school.

There are only two reasons for losing money in advertising, either the article itself is no good, or there is a lack of persistency. In following a settled plan. The colored gentleman who said, "I got ter git dis possum or dar won't be no breakins" had the right kind of philosophy. He knew where his breakfast was hidden and he persisted.

Boundless Possibilities of Wireless Electricity.

(Yarmouth Herald Editorial.)
A few issues ago, the Herald alluded to the wonderful achievements wrought by means of wireless electricity. These wonders seem to never cease; on the contrary they appear to crowd each other so that it is difficult to determine just where one leaves off and the other begins.

The lighting of hundreds of incandescent lamps in the Omaha auditorium by electricity transmitted without wires from a plant six miles away—an invention of Dr. Frederick Millner—had scarcely been noted, when the announcement is made that music is to be played upon a piano by the same process. If a piano can thus be played, why cannot a sewing machine be kept in motion, street cars be run, or in fact, any machinery set to work from one great central point on the continent?

It seems not unlikely that all the vast expenditures upon war ships will be rendered futile, and the ships declared useless, as it is now becoming feasible to explode powder magazines on the wireless system. Fortifications on the land will meet the same fate. Indeed it seems probable that wireless electricity will revolutionize the world.

Industrially, the capabilities of wireless electricity seem almost boundless, in view of what has actually been done at Omaha and elsewhere. Already wireless telegraphy, over distances of thousands of miles, has become a familiar thing, so that on Atlantic steamships in mid-ocean passengers read in their daily newspaper, printed on board, the very latest news from both Europe and America.

So much progress is being made in these days that no one has time enough to keep pace with the advance in science, arts and inventions. Life is becoming more interesting, more worth living, as well as more complex, from day to day. And, despite the wails of the pessimists, the world is growing better as it grows wiser. Moreover, all the wonders of invention and discovery point the way to still greater triumphs of the brain of man over the forces of Nature.

One may almost envy the twenty-first century fellows because of the big things they will see and do. Just as electricity seems to be putting steam out of date as a motive power, the next century may have something much better and cheaper than electricity. The discovery of radium and its marvelous powers suggests the existence of numerous unknown substances and forces yet to play an important part in the welfare of mankind and the advance of civilization throughout the world.

Kentville Man Killed by Insane Butcher.

(Kentville Orchardist.)

Mr. Thompson Crowe, son of Mrs. Richard Crowe, of Kentville, was killed in the North Packing and Provision Co.'s slaughterhouse of Somerville, Mass. The man was John Murphy, who suddenly uttered a mantic shriek and with his terrible knife he disembowelled Dr. Hayes, government inspector, who was standing near, and drove hundreds of his fellow workmen and women also before him. In his rush he killed Crowe and three others and several more are expected to die. The men were killed with wonderful precision. Murphy, by his long experience with the knife, striking direct to the heart. Mr. Crowe was a married man who left Kentville about fifteen years ago and had worked a long time in Somerville. His mother, brother, and sisters here are terribly grief stricken over the shocking tragedy. A telegram reached them Sunday of his death but it was only in reading the daily papers yesterday that they learned of the particulars.

Presque Isle, Me., June 7—At least thirty-five dwellings and other buildings in the best residential portion of this village were swept away by fire this evening. The Congregational church, Masonic hall, the Canadian Pacific railway station and several large potato storage houses were among the burned structures.

Town Council.

A meeting of the town council of the town of Bridgetown, held in the council chamber, June 8, 1909, at 8 o'clock p. m. with the following members in the chair and present as follows: J. W. Salter, Longmire, DeWitt, and Chute.

After some discussion it was resolved that this council authorize the Electric Light Co. to install a new system of lighting at once and to obtain all information necessary in order to enable them to purchase the best system now used in other cities and report at a meeting to be held one week from tonight.

Ordered, that the following bills be paid, viz., Wm. Hudson, $5.90; Mrs. M. K. Piper, $51.35; C. F. DeWitt, $6.65; W. B. A. Ritchie, $10.00; estate John L. Cox, $137.50; and that the Clerk enquire about the amount of the Herald bill and that the bills of Thomas Foster and Beeler & Peters be referred to the street committee for further investigation.

Capt. Jacob Salter reported from a committee consisting of Dr. Jost, J. W. Salter, R. A. Crowe and L. D. Shafner which had interviewed Mr. Beckwith about electric lighting and had proposed that the company give the town 6 more street lights, 10 per cent reduction in the rates to the citizens and the citizens be allowed to use 8 c. p. lights under certain restrictions, and that the company had refused each one of these propositions.

Resolved, that the new fire alarm be thoroughly tested on next Thursday at 10 a. m. and that the Curfew bell be rung daily from this date until Saturday, June 12th, at a pause between 9 p. m.

Minutes read and approved.
Council adjourned to June 14th, 1909, at 8 p. m.

Prominent Annapolis County Magistrate Passes Away.

Melvern Square, June 2—Timothy Phinney, a highly respected resident of Melvern Square, died at his home on Friday, May 28th, aged 65 years. The deceased, who was a son of the late Elijah and Mary Foster Phinney, was born in Clarence, Annapolis Co. In his youth he learned the harness business with the late George Murdoch, of Bridgetown, and did business in Lawrencetown, Wilmot, Kingston and Melvern Square. He has filled the office of Stipendiary Magistrate in the County of Kings and Annapolis, and his advice was sought by all. He was a firm believer in justice, and matters left to his decision were justly dealt with. His excellent judgment and keen business perceptions made him very popular among his fellow men, he was honest, upright, and charitable, gave liberally to every good cause, the poor found in him a good friend, and those who knew him best mourn for him most.

As a kind husband and indulgent father he will be sadly missed in his home.

In politics he was a liberal. He leaves a widow, daughter of the late Capt. son, of Granville Ferry, and two daughters. The place on Sunday, and was by the Rev. H. B. Smith, assisted by Rev. Mr. Methodist, and in spite of downpour of rain, a good number of friends and neighbors pay their last tribute to citizen. The beautiful funeral showed the esteem in which he was held in the community. quartette rendered beautiful selections. The interment was in the Presbyterian cemetery, the pall bearers were the Rev. H. B. Smith, C. J. River, Z., of Bridgetown, William, of Lawrencetown, pathy is felt for the bereaved.

Annapolis Town Councillor Dies Suddenly.

Annapolis, June 3—In the death of Rollins W. Hardwick, which occurred very suddenly tonight, Annapolis loses a good citizen and the town council an able and devoted member. Mr. Hardwick's death was as sudden as it was unexpected, he having been in his usual good health when last seen alive. After tea he went into his garden, but did not return. About two o'clock this morning his little niece and his young sister-in-law, who were alone in the house awoke, and not finding him in the house became uneasy, and commenced a search for him. They found him in the garden laying by a tree which he had been planting. Neighbors were called and medical aid summoned, but life was extinct, and Mr. Hardwick had probably been dead for several hours. Heart failure was the cause of death.

About two years ago Mr. Hardwick married Miss Cummings, of Shelburne, who at the time of his death was visiting in Granville, accompanied by her infant daughter. He is also survived by two sisters—Mrs. R. U. Parker, of Kentville, and Mrs. Charles Whitman, of Lawrencetown, and by one brother, Oscar, of this town.

Mr. Hardwick, who was about fifty years of age, was one of the best known and most popular citizens of Annapolis. A man of sterling quality, absolute integrity and of genial disposition, he was held in respect and esteem by all who knew him. Always a worker for the good of the town, he for several terms was a member of the town council, and a member of the board of trade, in which he took a prominent place. His death will be a great loss to the town. In religion he adhered to the Church of England, of which body he was ever an active worker. He belonged to the Independent Order of Oddfellows, by whom his funeral, which takes place on Saturday, will be conducted. For over thirty years the deceased was in the employ of the Charles McCormack and Son.

Banker Hotel Clerk.

New York, June 3—In an effort to retrieve the fortune he lost when three banks and the Outing Publishing Company, in all of which concerns he was heavily interested, went into bankruptcy last April, Charles P. Knapp has become a clerk in the Hotel Monmouth, Spring Lake, N. J. He will work there this summer as an employe of the manager of the hotel, who, when he was manager of a hotel in Lakewood, often leased his most expensive apartments to Mr. Knapp.

Since the failure of the Binghamton Trust Company and the banks of Knapp Brothers, private bankers in Deposit and Callicoon, on April 9th last, Mr. Knapp has been in seclusion in his home in Deposit, the finest in the town. In Deposit also is the plant of the Outing Company, of which Mr. Knapp was the head and which published Outing, the Bohemian, and other magazines.

BRIDGETOWN TENNIS AND QUOIT CLUB GROUNDS OPENED

of the Bridgetown Band Enlivened the Occasion

The opening of the new Tennis Courts took place on Saturday afternoon, which was a typical June day. Flags flying and the music of the Bridgetown Band and festive air to the east-end town. The Club has about one hundred members and most of them were present with additional guests.

The entertaining committee, consisting of Mrs. Daniels, Mrs. Shafner, Mrs. Lockett, Miss Fowler and Miss Morse, served ice-cream and cake and a general social time was enjoyed. The club house is not yet built as additional funds are required but it is expected it will be erected soon. The proceeds of the concert to be held tonight are to go towards this fund.

The grounds are excellently adapted for the Club's purposes. There is plenty of room for the two large tennis courts, the quoit beds, and pleasant shady spots for those who prefer to watch the games.

A long felt want for unifying the social element of the town is thus supplied, at the same time furnishing healthful and attractive recreation. The success of the opening augurs well for the future enjoyment of the Club.

ANOTHER SUSPECT ARRESTED.

Truro, May 31—The police of Antigonish reported to Truro last night at nine o'clock, that they had arrested a man who quite accurately answers the description of the man who is alleged to have held the gun at Burgess's head while a pal robbed the safe. The suspect had a small amount of money but no property of any other kind except the faded brown suit, hat and other gear described by Burgess. He has told several conflicting stories of his whereabouts, during the past two weeks, part of which leads the Antigonish officers to believe he was in Truro on the day of the robbery.

UNFOLDED HANDS

(John Barton Oxford.)

Old David Griscom awoke from his after-dinner nap on the front porch with an uneasy feeling, which amounted almost to guilt. He straightened himself in his rocking-chair—which his son had insisted on bringing out for him—and glared about definitely as if he were denying an imputation that he had been dozing at mid-day.

In his semi-dormant condition his first hazy idea was that it was Sunday; but the sound of his daughter-in-law's voice, raising in secular crescendos as she washed the dinner dishes in the back kitchen, and the shouts of the men loading the teams in the hay-field, brought to him the realization that despite his idleness here on the porch, it was a week-day.

Old David started. On the impulse of the moment he half rose from his chair; then he settled back in it with all the air of a man who bows to the inevitable.

Beside him on the floor of the porch, lay a crumpled paper, where it had fallen from his hands. Griscom picked it up, set his spectacles on the bridge of his nose, and read for a time. Then he hitched about in the chair; and the longer he read, the more frequent became these restless squirmings. At length he tossed the paper from him and pushed the spectacles up to his forehead. "Ain't nothing" in the papers these days," he told himself disgustedly. "Seems as if they gets worse every year!"

He sat for a while looking thoughtfully at the July sky. The smell of the new-made hay came fragrant from the meadow. "Great hayin' weather," he mused. "Most always we gets more or less showers in the hayin'-time, but there ain't been a drop of rain for more'n a week. I'll bet the lower lot's makin' well."

His keen old ears caught the sound of a creaking hay-rack, as it went rumbling into the barn. A wistful light came into the gray eyes; but he stolidly kept his solitary state in the rocking-chair. Momentarily the smell of the hay grew more compelling; the busy clatter in the barn beckoned him more forcefully; his own idleness bore upon him with more pressing heaviness. When at length he could stand it no longer, he started his chair and stroled leisurely toward the house in the direction of the barn.

His son, a sturdy, young farmer of thirty-five, was pitching great fork-fuls to the man on the mow. He paused to smile pleasantly at the old man, as the latter came up to the rack. "Hay enough this year, father!" he said, leaning on his fork and mopping his brow.

"You want to get it in before it rains," old David admonished. "The weather ain't goin' to hold on like this forever."

"We'll have the last of it in to-night," the son replied. "I guess I'll go down with you, next load," said David, "an' rake scatterings."

"No, you won't!" the younger man laughingly vetoed. "I told you when I came home and took the farm this summer that you was goin' to be a gentleman of leisure, an' that's just what you're goin' to be. I'm the one that's goin' to do the work now."

He began tossing up hay to the mow again, and old David sat down on a nearby grain-chest to watch the proceedings in stony silence. "I s'pose I might go over an' hill up a little of that corn across the road," he hazarded at length. "I noticed this mornin' it was plenty high enough to begin hillin'."

"There ain't no hurry about that," said the other, "from the top of the load."

"Well, pars-greenin' them suggested as a forlorn effort," he lengthened. "Well, pars-greenin' them suggested as a forlorn effort."

He said his son a bit wish you wouldn't do these things! All do is just to leave shuffled out of the at the front porch into the rocker, and ed monotonously to he brought one on the arm of the ounding whack. "kin' things easy!" astedly. "It's about I ever done, an' I stan' it."

Her Meal at the Waldorf-Astoria

A man who makes his home at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York relates the following incident, and vouches for its truth:

A nice-looking old lady, who bore unmistakable signs of having recently come from the country, and who was apparently intensely interested in conditions in New York City came into the corridor of this great hotel some mornings ago, and was looking about her with a most lively interest. An attendant stepped up to her and asked her what she wished; not with any intention of discourtesy, but with a very humane desire to assist her in any possible way.

"I know well enough what I want," she said, "but I don't know whether you are the man that I should go to. Are you the owner or the manager of this hotel?"

"No, madam, I am neither, but I can speak for the management and would be glad to serve you in any way." She was such a nice lady that the heart of even a New York hotel attache warmed toward her.

"It's just this way, mister," said. "I am visiting some friends up-town and broke away today to look about a little and see some of the sights of this town. I am sixty-eight years old and I live way up in York state and this is my first visit to New York. I have heard tell about this place for many years and I have always thought that I would die happy if I could only take one meal here. I would like to go back and tell the friends at home that I had eaten in the Waldorf—whatever the rest is—and what I wanted to ask you, mister, was if I could get a meal here for about fifty cents."

Just at that moment Oscar, the genial and general manager of the place, whom everybody knows, was passing. Overhearing this question, he stopped and looked at the old lady. Like everybody else he warmed toward her instantly.

"Good morning, madam," he said, with his most polite bow. "Did I understand you to ask whether you could get a good meal here for fifty cents?"

"Yes, sir," said the old lady, "that is about all that I can afford to spend just now as I wish to buy some little things for the children, and must look out for my ticket home. I don't suppose that would go very far in this hotel, would it?"

"You were never more mistaken in your life, madam," said Oscar with his most polite bow. "We can give you a very good meal here for less money than that. You come with me and I will see that you are taken care of immediately."

With that he led her into the main dining-room, personally seated her at the table next the Fifth Ave. windows, and asking to be excused for a moment, took the waiter aside and gave him some very definite instructions. Then Oscar returned to her and said: "You leave it to me as to what we serve you, and I will see that you are well taken care of."

"I know you will," the old lady said with a beaming smile. There have been few luncheons served at the Waldorf-Astoria in the last month or so more calculated to please a nice old lady from upstate than was placed upon her table that day. It was not elaborate, nor was it French, but a careful selection of things that would certainly satisfy her, ending with an elaborate cut of huckleberry pie.

The old lady did justice to her meal and when it was over she turned to the waiter and said: "Do I pay you, sir, and how much is the bill?"

"Twenty-five cents, madam," said the waiter without a smile. "That was less than I had expected," the old lady said. "Don't you think you have made a mistake? I thought it would be at least fifty cents."

"That is the price, madam," said the waiter gravely. She fumbled with her pocketbook for a moment, and then handed out three ten-cent pieces. Trembling at her temerity she said: "Never mind the change, sir; the balance is for you, as you have been very good to me."

Then an unprecedented thing happened. The waiter bowed gravely and said, "I am very much obliged to you but the waiters in this dining-room are not permitted to accept tips."

With that he gravely returned the nickel, and with many a pleasant "Thank you, sir, for your kindness," she moved slowly out of the dining-room, smiling upon everybody as she went.—Selected.

Mr. Peter McEachren, the inspector for the I. C. R., says, "I was troubled a lot with corns which at times were so bad I could hardly bear my boot. I bought a bottle of Empire Liniment from M. Bannan, on his recommendation, and the relief was wonderful. It made a complete cure. You are at liberty to make any use you wish of this statement as it is true in every respect."

BROTHER TOLD BROTHER

One Suffered for Fifteen Years, the Other for Thirteen.

The convincing powers of a testimonial were never more clearly shown than in the case of Mr. Hugh Brown. A brother, Lemuel Brown, of Avondale, N.B., read in the paper about Hon. John Costigan being cured by "Fruit-a-lives." Knowing the Senator would only endorse a medicine which had cured him, Mr. Lemuel Brown tried "Fruit-a-lives." They cured him of Chronic Indigestion and Constipation, so he urged his brother to try them.

Hartland, N.B., Oct. 28th, 1907. "Three doctors told me that I had Liver Disease and serious Stomach Trouble. My stomach was very weak. I took their medicines for thirteen years and grew worse. My brother (who was cured of terrible indigestion by "Fruit-a-lives" after suffering for 15 years), recommended me to try these wonderful tablets. I bought half a dozen boxes and have just finished the sixth. I eat all kinds of hearty foods without distress and am greatly improved in every way. "Fruit-a-lives" also cured the Chronic Constipation which was so distressing in my case." (Signed) HUGH BROWN.

DEPARTURE OF REV. E. B. MOORE FROM WOLFVILLE.

(Acadian.)

On Wednesday evening the congregation of the Methodist church gave a farewell reception to the Rev. E. B. Moore, who left the following morning for Halifax, en route to Dakota. An interesting program had been arranged for the evening, the main feature of which was the presentation to him of a suitable gift. Prof. Hartman, of Acadia College, had been called upon to make the presentation, and although an entire surprise, Mr. Moore proved equal to the occasion and responded in his well-known and most felicitous vein. With the termination of Mr. Moore's pastorate, Wolfville loses not only a vigorous thinker and broad scholar, but one who, through his ready wit and geniality, had endeared himself to all with whom he had come into contact. Mr. Moore contemplates taking at least one year's vacation before resuming active duties elsewhere.

"I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and find it to be the best on the market," says E. W. Tardy, editor of The Sentinel, Gainsboro, Tenn. ## MORALITY PLAY BY CONAN DOYLE.

Sir Conan Doyle has written what he calls a morality play, dealing, he says, with the philosophic theory of life. "The Point is," explains the dramatist, "that if there is design in the universe, then such common and powerful factors as pain are not chance phenomena, mere by-products of life, but are vital and necessary, serving a useful end. In this play, a man is tempted to take his own life. He does not take it, and the course of events shows how mistaken and foolish as well as wicked he would have been had he done so." The play is entitled "The Fires of Fate."

The Snake the Farmer's Friend

(Pharos, in Toronto Globe.)

Last summer I offered to young readers of the Circle a prize of a book for the best account of Canadian snakes and their habits.

There were few competitors, and those displayed a lamentable ignorance of the subject, offering merely hearsay, for the most part colored with silly superstition, instead of ascertained facts.

On several occasions I have endeavored to enlist the interest and sympathy of my readers in behalf of this much-maligned, persecuted and misunderstood class of vertebrates.

I return today to this charge. I will not be discouraged at the indifference, the stupidity and the cruelty of young people and of old people with regard to the preservation of snake life.

The attention of a few intelligent persons may be arrested by my efforts, and these, each in his or her sphere of influence, may teach the stupid and the cruel among the public the usefulness and the harmlessness of the following species.

My information is directly derived from literature issued by the Department of Education in Toronto. Anyone may obtain the pamphlet on the vertebrates of Ontario by application to the Department.

Under the class Reptilia, order Ophidia, it is written: "The majority of people believe that all snakes are poisonous, and should therefore be destroyed. Such belief is largely the result of ignorance, combined with prejudice. The only injurious animals of this class we have are rattlesnakes and they are now extremely scarce and local. All our other snakes are useful, feeding upon and thus destroying vast numbers of such pests as mice, voles and injurious insects, and consequently should be allowed to live unmolested."

Among these are (I give common names only):—

Colubrine Snake: Both jaws fully provided with teeth; head covered with shields; no poison fangs; belly covered with broad, band-like plates; tail conical, tapering; sub-caudal plates in pairs. All our species harmless and beneficial.

Red-bellied Snake: Perfectly inoffensive and useful.

Little Brown Snake: Common and generally distributed. Perfectly inoffensive and useful.

Riband Snake: Not very common. A very beautiful, harmless creature. Feeds upon insects, small toads and frogs.

Hoy's Garter Snake: In western Ontario, and not common anywhere. Quite harmless. Feeds on field mice and insects.

Common Garter Snake: Abundant and generally distributed. When attacked it will sometimes show fight, but is incapable of inflicting any injury more than a scratch. Harmless and useful. (A brave animal.—Ph.)

Stiff Snake: Rare. Found near Lake St. Clair.

Leather Snake: Rare; in same district.

Water Snake: Common about streams throughout Ontario. When molested it will fight and try to bite its tormentor. But it is perfectly harmless. It swims well and rapidly, and feeds on frogs and small fish.

Fox Snake: The largest and strongest of all our snakes but at the same time the most harmless and timid. Not common. Found in western Ontario from Niagara to Georgian Bay. Grows to length of seven or eight feet.

Green Snake, Grass Snake: A very gentle, beautiful little creature. Common and generally distributed. It feeds on soft-bodied insects, and is very useful to farmers.

Black Snake, Black Racer: Very rare in Ontario. A strong and active creature, but perfectly harmless. Feeds on voles and mice. Professor Cope says of it, "Of all our snakes, it is the most useful to the farmer from the great number of voles and mice which it consumes."

Ring Snake: Fairly common species. Very inoffensive.

Milk Snake, Spotted Adder: A variable species, the northern Ontario variety being common. A harmless and useful animal, feeding largely on field mice and voles. Also feeds on frogs and toads, but on the whole is decidedly beneficial to the farmer.

Blowing Adder, Spreading Adder: Not common, but generally distributed. When teased will depress and expand its head, hissing and presenting a threatening appearance, causing many people to believe it to be venomous. It is not. It is quite harmless. Feeds on mice, frogs, and toads. Some specimens are almost black.

Rattlesnakes: The only poisonous snakes occurring in Ontario. Very rare, except in a few localities near Lake Erie and Georgian Bay. Pigs can kill and eat rattlesnakes with impunity. These snakes can only strike a distance equal to about one-half the length of the body. They need not necessarily be coiled to strike. They can do this on either side.

Were I engaged in agriculture or horticulture I should introduce into my gardens and fields a large number of the species of snakes which feed on mice, voles and insects, providing them with suitable places of abode among stones and logs.

Our common snakes should receive the same protection as do insectivorous birds.

Will my friends be so kind as to cut out this article and get it read by teachers in the schools, and to farmers on the farm, and particularly to boys and girls who resort in a mob to the woods, plundering and destroying all the life so unlucky as to cross their path?

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists. Price 75c. Per bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Two Suspects Arrested

Dalhousie, N. B., May 27—Detective Hanrahan, of Halifax, arrived here this morning and located two parties who were in Truro when the station robbery took place. They offered no resistance when arrested and were taken to Truro on a freight train tonight.

Detective Hanrahan does not consider the men arrested in any way connected with the crime. The sole reason for their arrest is that they had been seen lounging around Truro previous to the burglary and that they left the town the day following. The men arrived in Dalhousie with but ten cents in their pockets. They found employment with the Dalhousie Lumber Company and have proved themselves industrious. The men in no way answer the description given out of the crooks wanted. They are both Englishmen. When arrested they denied all knowledge of the affair.

STOMACH TROUBLES.

Many remarkable cures of stomach troubles have been effected by Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. One man who had spent over two thousand dollars for medicine and treatment was cured by a few boxes of these tablets. Price, 25 cents. Samples free at

SERVANT ARRESTED FOR BREAKING DISHES.

Beverly, N. J., June 3—It is a crime punishable by a fine for servants to break dishes by negligence was the ruling given today by a local justice when Mrs. Edward Elliott had a negro servant maid, Jean Jones, arrested for breaking her best chinaware.

As there was no one to pay the girl's fine she was sent to a home for colored girls at Trenton.

Common Mistakes in Everyday Talk

(Read Before The Pupils In The Academic Department Of The Bridgewater High School, By Arthur Roberts.)

The great authority, Lindley Murray says: "There is scarcely anything which more distinguishes a person of poor education from a person of a good one, than the pronunciation of unaccented vowels." Such as scroopulous for scrupulous, and sud'n for sud-den, and infidde for infidel.

There is similar carelessness in the use of consonants, that is the vulgar practice of omitting to sound a final consonant after another consonant. Such as Febiuary instead of February. Secetary for Secretary. Government for Government, and especially so in words ending "ing." "Evenin'" for "Evening," and "singin'" for "singing." There are others again, who habitually sound letters which are silent in certain words. As the t in often, and th in garden. Do not say of-to-let-to-let-den. The same with the i in evil and devil. Do not say ev-il or de-vil. And say agen, not again, or agin.

Be careful in your pronunciation of the letter "u." Tuesday not Toosday, due not doo, duty not dooty, stupid not stoopid.

How common the salutation: "What's the noos?" Again, fortune not furtshin, and future not futsher. Remember also that wh is not w merely, all well educated people say whisper not wisper, whip not wip, and white not wite.

It is a regrettable fact that it is not only the uneducated who persist in mis-pronouncing words, but that college graduates, clergymen, doctors and other learned gentlemen likewise err in this direction.

There was once a D. D. in Halifax who invariably said "in-a-stick" for "fantastic."

I know a clergyman and a lawyer who say "baze" for "base." "I baze my remarks," and another lawyer who says "exzitable" for "excitable."

Another word commonly mispronounced is respite, which should be pronounced as res-pit; with the accent on the first syllable. When the leading soprano sings lustily in the choir:

"Could my zeal no res-pite know"—with the accent on the "spite"—it is no wonder that the tenor tremulously replies: "Could my tears forever flow."

The following words are often mispronounced:

In "obligatory" the accent is on the first syllable and not on the second.

In "exquisite" the accent is on the first syllable and not on the second.

In "inventory" the accent is on the first syllable and not on the second.

In "ragaries" the accent is on the second syllable and not on the first.

In "aspirant" the accent is on the second syllable and not on the first.

In "finance" the accent is on the second syllable and not on the first.

In "horizon" the accent is on the second syllable and not on the first.

In "mustache" the accent is on the second syllable and not on the first.

In "advertisement" the accent is on the second syllable and not on the third.

Do not pronounce "leisure" so as to rhyme with "measure."

Now is the time for you to form and fix habits of correct and easy pronunciation. The words which you now miscall will cost you great pains in after life to pronounce aright, and you will always be in danger of returning inadvertently to your old pronunciation. Listen carefully to the conversation of cultured people and consult the dictionaries.

Try to speak with a distinct enunciation. Do not mangle your words, nor smother them, nor swallow them. Try to avoid on the other hand self-consciousness that may lead to a stiff, pedantic manner. Accuracy of speech should seem a matter of course, and not attract attention by formalities or rigidity of utterance.

Today is the anniversary of the birth and death of that great master of the English language, William Shakespeare, who was born on the 23rd day of April, 1564, and died on the 23rd day of April, 1616. I can fittingly close in his well known words: "Speak the speech, I pray you, as I pronounced it to you."

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 9, 1909.

—A number of Nova Scotia towns are agitating the "Old Home Week" movement and among others Amherst and Truro are planning to arrange for such a celebration next year. The idea has been so repeatedly carried out by towns and states across the border, and with such eminent success that there is no excuse for our province lagging behind the times, in failing to inaugurate so beneficial an institution. Think of the host of wanderers abroad, some of them absent for many years, whose homeward steps would be hastened by the movement and whose home-longings would be strengthened by the knowledge that the friends of childhood and youth were wending their steps to gather again in the dear old home-place.

It is possibly too late to plan such a reunion for this season, although the early autumn, after the farmer's busy season is over and the early fruit is in its prime, would be the ideal time. Our finest weather is also about that season. Another consideration is that the railway and steamship excursion rates are on in September and October, which would contribute to a larger gathering.

However, if too late for this year think it over and talk it up and let not another year go by without a "gathering of the clans" in Bridgetown.

PITY THE SPITTERS.

Are our policemen to be called upon to arrest persons who enjoy the aesthetic pleasure of spitting on the sidewalks? Worse still, are our policemen themselves to be forbidden to spit on the sidewalks? Are we to ape our American neighbors to the extent that our women-folk are not to be permitted to carry home on their skirts as much sputum as they desire?

The subject derives fresh interest from the fact that the warm weather has returned, and the popular pastime of standing at street corners spitting on the sidewalk is once more in vogue. This agreeable and healthful exercise, though not mentioned in board of trade books or tourist guides, is one of the distinctive features of life in St. John. Mills may shut down, factories may go on short time, fog may obscure the natural beauties of the scenery, trout may refuse to rise to the fly,—but earnest and industrious spitters are always to be found on the street corners. Sputum culture is a recognized and honored industry. There is more of it in St. John than in any city of equal size in North America. The police authorities treat it with the utmost respect and consideration. If now it is to be threatened by the advent of Yankee notions and the Anti-Tuberculosis Association, the perturbation in police circles may easily be understood and appreciated. Why should not a public spirited citizen be permitted to present the city with a few germs if he wants to.—St. John Times.

Obituary.
HATTIE M. WALSH.

The death occurred at the home of her mother, Mrs. John E. Sancton, on Thursday morning last, of Miss Hattie M. Walsh. Though her death has been almost hourly expected for some weeks, her struggle with disease has been a long and brave one. Illness contracted while training for the profession of nursing undermined a naturally delicate constitution and she fell a victim to tuberculosis about two years ago. A winter was spent in the sanitarium at Kentville but no improvement was perceptible; during the following summer, however, some progress toward a return of health was made, but the recovery was not permanent and it was sadly realized by her friends some months ago, that the fatal termination was inevitable.

Miss Walsh possessed a buoyant, cheerful nature, an optimistic temperament and a warm generous heart which made her a genial companion and a sympathetic friend. It is indeed a question whether her generous impulses did not lead to her sense of duty toward the suffering and afflicted may not have contributed toward hastening her early death, as she never spared herself where the needs of others were concerned.

Miss Walsh was the only daughter of Mrs. John E. Sancton and the late Edmund Walsh, of Bear River, and for the mother, twice widowed and thus bereaved of her only child, the deepest sympathy of the community is felt. An especially sad feature is that Mrs. Sancton was having a wing with double verandahs added to her residence on Washington Street with especial regard to the needs of an invalid, for the purpose of giving her daughter the best sanitary surroundings, and intended to move her there this spring removing from the home of the late Mr. Sancton, which she had continued to occupy since his death. The work of building was only completed on the day when the beloved daughter departed to be the tenant of other mansions "not made with hands." The funeral was postponed until Monday and accompanied by Rev. Mr. Underwood, rector of the Church of England, and the undertaker the remains were conveyed to Bear River to be placed beside her father in the family burial lot.

At the Yarmouth Y. M. C. A. Boys' Camp, held at Tusket Falls in August, I found MINARD'S LINIMENT most beneficial for sun burn, an immediate relief for colic and tooth-ache.

THE HOME

TRAITS THAT POISON.

(By Winifred Black.)

A rich woman died the other day and left a will.

In the will the rich woman left to one of her daughters a grave in a forsaken lot outside the family plot in the old-fashioned family cemetery. Poor thing, poor, twisted, disordered, embittered mind—this world was not big enough for her to finish her quarrel in.

She wasn't satisfied with clouding her life with anger and bitterness, so she took her heartaches and her disappointments and her cruel anger down into the very grave with her.

Poor creature, how hard it must have been for her to realize that she couldn't see her daughter's distress and humiliation when that will was read.

What is she going to find in the next world, that poor, distorted soul, where can she go to find happiness?

Why, the very same of the angelic choir itself would make a discord for her if she couldn't twist the music into some kind of a taunt.

A great hate is the most terrible disease that can fasten itself upon a human being.

I'd rather be a victim to the white plague any day than to nourish in my heart a consuming enmity.

I have seen a man lie down and die when there was nothing the matter with him but bitter envy.

Once I knew a woman who hated her sister, and her sister's husband found a gold mine, and they were very rich, and the day that the woman I know heard the news she turned as yellow as saffron, and in one week she was dead—poisoned with her own evil hatred.

Beware of the man who turns green when you tell him of a friend's success.

He is poisoned—and he is very dangerous.

Beware of the woman who gives a twisted smile at the news of some other woman's happiness.

She is inoculated with the dreadful germ of envy.

If I had a child who was jealous, and envious, I would drop everything else in the world and devote my time and every energy of my being to the task of killing those dreadful traits—just as I would devote my life to curing him of some terrible physical disease.

Hate, envy, bitterness—there's no room for them in this world.

Shut them out of your heart. They are as dangerous as prussic acid, and as terrible as the dreadful drink of carbolic that has killed so many shuddering wretches.

CALLING CARDS AND NOTEPAPER.

Just as there are fashions in clothes and hats and shoes, so there are fashions in calling cards. To be in style in this respect is the mark of the well-bred person.

A water mark instead of the fabric or linen finish is the distinguishing quality of the latest notepaper. The sheets are square, of varying sizes, and the envelopes just half the size of the sheet, thus necessitating but a single fold.

All calling cards should be square. The name in script is popular, but the old English, so long in use, is still a favorite. The address should now be in the righthand corner, and, if one lives in a city, only the street and number are necessary. If one lives in the suburbs the name of the suburb is added. If a reception day is desired it should be placed in the left-hand corner. For a business card, where the thing most desired is legibility, the old Roman letter is the most serviceable. Cards for an "at home" or a dinner are usually in script. On all cards for luncheons or dinners "Please Reply" is considered much better taste than the almost obsolete "R. S. V. P." Of course neither of these should be absolutely necessary, as it is taken for granted that anyone receiving an invitation will have the courtesy to reply to it. As a matter of fact, however, there are many people nowadays so thoughtless that a hostess is often inconvenienced by their failure to send acknowledgments or regrets. Especially is a reply needed when a bridge whist follows a luncheon. The placing of the request, "Please Reply," on a card to luncheon or dinner insures the hostess an easy mind as to just who will come and who will not.

On a man's visiting card no address is ever given. This should be placed on his business card.

Cards for Mr. and Mrs. together are not used now. Where a card from each of them is desired, the husband's card and wife's card are left. During the first year after a daughter is introduced into society, she should have her name just below and on her mother's card, which she should use at all times. If her sister enters society at the same time the inscription below her mother's name should read "The Misses Smith or Brown."

If the young ladies have cards of their own it is incorrect to have simply "Miss," as "Miss Smith," but the full name or the first name and middle initial should be given, as "Miss Helen S. Smith" or "Miss Helen Sophia Smith."

SOME NEW RECIPES.

Ginger Junket—Slightly warm a pint of new milk, taking care that it does not get really hot—blood heat is sufficient—sweeten to taste (a teaspoonful of sugar being enough for most people), and sprinkle in a pinch of ground ginger. On removing from the fire add a teaspoonful of rennet; pour into custard cups or into one large glass dish. When firm garnish the top with a few slices of preserved ginger, and with it send to table a dish of the same.

Ginger Cream (with Eggs)—Ingredients: a pint of milk or thin cream, the yolks of four eggs and the whites of two, one-half ounce of gelatine, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, the same of ginger syrup from the jar, and one or two pieces of preserved ginger. Cook the eggs, milk, and sugar together until beginning to thicken, and add the gelatine melted in a little of the milk. Pour into a plain mold garnished with the ginger cut in strips or other fancy devices, and put aside in a cold place to set.

Peanut Cookies—Cream together 2 rounded tablespoonfuls of butter and 1 cup of fine granulated sugar. Add 1 well beaten egg, 2 tablespoonfuls of milk and 1 teaspoonful of lemon juice. Mix 1 teaspoonful of baking powder with 1 cup water and stir it in. Add 1 cup of finely chopped peanuts and then as much of flour as necessary to make a stiff drop batter. Drop by the teaspoon on buttered tins, an inch or two apart. Bake in a quick oven. This makes twenty-four cookies. For a change some of the cookies may be sprinkled with a coating of the chopped nuts before they are baked.

CULTIVATE GOOD MANNERS.

The cultivation of unselfishness, gracious manners and generous sympathies in early childhood is an all-important duty; is for the best future interests of every girl and cannot begin too early or continue too long. Make impressions while yet the wax is soft. Root out the weeds now and plant the flowers. Bad temper, envy, jealousy, and the whole brood of falsities in a child should be nipped in the bud, and her duty is to aid in the nipping. Let grow now, they will corrupt the heart and disfigure the face. Yes, the face. Wonder how these faces of ours respond to the inner workings of the soul, making them lovely or repellent. Many a homely face has grown beautiful from the hidden operations of a noble nature within, and many a plain face is a magnet in spite of its plainness. It is the pure soul behind that draws and captivates. And this fascinating power is within the reach of the humblest who will strive to cultivate beauty of mind and heart—the manifest interest and the bounden duty of every girl, be her features what they may. Indeed I know of no higher duty for every girl than to set diligently to work at once to live out all weeds and sow the seeds of goodness, that is, beauty. Easier now than when years have given them deep roots and a solid lodgment, and repulsiveness is stamped for life on form, feature and deportment.

I KILLED A ROBIN.

I killed a robin. The little thing, with scarlet breast on a glossy wing. That comes in the apple-tree to sing.

I flung a stone as he twittered there; I only meant to give him a scare. But off it went—and hit him square.

A little flutter—a little cry—Then on the ground I saw him lie: I didn't think he was going to die.

But as I watched him I soon could see He never would sing for you or me Any more on the apple tree.

Never more in the morning light, Never more in the sunshine bright. Thrilling his song in gay delight.

And I'm thinking every summer day How never, never, I can repay The little life that I took away.

—Sydney Dayre, Youth's Companion.

The woman who refrains from eating cautions because of annoying her neighbors can often indulge in her favorite dish, even when she is going out, by eating sprigs of fresh parsley that have been saturated in vinegar.

SUMMER FASHIONS.

White serge is a strong favorite among spring fabrics and colors, and there is nothing that is more serviceable. It is trimmed with silk-covered buttons, machine stitching, soutache and flat silk braids, and occasionally it has inserts, or reverse facings, collar, and cuffs, or a vest of plain silk in either white or color, or in dotted silk.

Skirts show more fullness at the foot, and jackets more elaboration, but so much depends on the material. The plain Directoire styles are suited to tweeds, faced cloths, and such-like firm fabrics, but flimsy stuffs, such as foulards, sole de Chine and summer muslins, naturally demand fullness, softer folds, tuckings and gaugings. In a few weeks we shall see the summer fashions firmly established, not only the summery muslins and chiffons, but practical, light-faced cloths, all the new forms of tussore, fancy colliennes and some beautiful crepe mastic and charmeuse.

The prettiest and most welcome change in fashion is that the waist is again more or less in its normal position. That it may long preserve the slightly higher tendency at the back is the wish of most couturiers, for there is nothing more becoming to the figure than the waistband slightly raised in the back, and pulled down in the front.

A large number of the straws this year are in the shade of corn ripe for the sickle, and the method of lining the hat with a different color seems to be as popular as it was at the beginning of last year. Black satin is chosen in preference to all else for the corn-colored hats, while aluminum Tagals lined with satin to match and trimmed with masses of mauve pansies are very charming and effective.

The importance of her millinery is too thoroughly well understood by the woman of today to suit her dressmaker, for she will economize on frocks, if economy be necessary, in order to stock her hat cupboard with all the headgear she fancies. And the costliness of the new hats is great. Even the untrimmed straw hat is not a mere trifle in expense. If made of glossy straw it can and does amount to three dollars or more, without any ornament. What wonder then, that with eight feathers and ribbon velvet lavishly swathed about it, it should total more than five times that sum?

FATHERS' DAY.

Let us wear a white carnation. For the dear old mother's sake; She's the best of God's creation, And as good as He can make; But the fathers, plain and prosy, Should be recognized some way. For their lives are not so rosy. Not like dogs, they need their day. Not the sly sads or the fly sads. Who sen rocky grows the road, Duties flouting, take an outing. And let mother bear the load; They deserve no compensation But a cowhide or a goad.

Let us give some recognition To the dads who, year by year, Keep their posts with grim decision. Loss of job their greatest fear. They are working uncomplaining In the mill and market place, Just a modest living gaining. As they keep their steady pace, Not the club dads or the dude dads, But the dads who, day by day, Keep on working, never shirking. And at night take home their pay. They deserve some recognition. Not one day, but every day.

A. F. DYER.

TRAINING THE CHILD.

A paper recently read at Chicago by Professor Badgley, before a number of people interested in the training of children, contained a large amount of interesting information for parents and teachers along the lines of morality and religion.

In referring to the period of infancy the Professor said: "Perhaps there is no prevalent idea that needs more seriously and strenuously to be combated, than the idea that the influences of an evil or unfortunate environment during infancy can be easily counteracted by later training.

"In early childhood, that is, between the ages of two and six, the child must be taught to be truthful, cleanly, modest, courteous, respectful, and self-sacrificing, and this must be done by being kind to him, initiating him gradually into the customs of religion, getting him to do the unselfish deed, of which he might not have thought himself, being consistent with rewards and penalties, securing regular obedience, directing the imagination to pleasurable objects only, exercising patience in meeting his wants, permitting only good things, forbidding only evil things, providing associations with other children and ministering to his life out of the fulness of a religious heart.

"The period between six and eight is called the 'transition stage,' or the beginning of formal instruction.

The pupil should now be made familiar with Bible stories, with the aim of developing a systematic understanding of the characters represented. The teacher is warned against formalism and is directed to make the fullest use of sense-perception and observation. The formative period is between eight and twelve, and the keynote of all education during this period should be the formation of good habits. During the period of adolescence, the main problem is the development of ideas."

SING LOW, WILD BIRD!

Sing low, wild bird!—thine is the only sound That stirs the holy hush that broods around The quiet place beneath whose grasses lie The beds of forms gone into dust and death.

Blend a low note with the faint west-wind's sigh, And breathe a dirge for life that perisheth!

Sing low, wild bird!—sing a requiem o'er For symphonies of life that are no more; Laughter of children, and the patient song Of crooning mother, and the rove-hushed tone Of red-tipped lovers whispering low and long.

Sing low!—their lips are dust, and they are gone.

Sing low, wild bird!—they are all sunk beneath These violets that languish into death.

Gone to Man's bourne are they, and secret Doom Hath shown his pathway to their anxious eyes, That haply leads to empty realms of gloom.

And haply to proud mansions in the skies. —E. M. Yeoman, in the Canadian Magazine.

Bunions, if of long standing, can hardly be cured by any means short of an operation. Painting with iodine will merely lessen the pain. The condition is due to pressure of a tight boot, or, perhaps rather, a short boot. The great joint of the toe is forced out and gradually the soft tissues and bone become thickened. You could, perhaps, help the condition by wearing slippers or moccasins for some months, but this is hardly practicable, or you might get boots made to order. The operation is not dangerous, nor particularly painful. The cost would be a matter of arrangement. It should not be great.

Some palates demand a diet of meat. They crave animal food at all times. Now meat is a good thing in its way, but it panders to nervousness more than any other food. It does not produce activity of the right kind. Chicken is healthy and soothing, and taken with plenty of eggs, good milk, cooked fruit and vegetables it gives enough force to the system. If the palate demands meat it may be eaten once a day without harm. It should be simply and well cooked; it should not be disguised in stimulating spices, sauces, etc.

SORE NIPPLES.

Any mother who has had experience with this distressing ailment will be pleased to know that a cure may be effected by applying Chamberlain's Salve as soon as the child is done nursing. Wipe it off with a soft cloth before allowing the babe to nurse. Many trained nurses use this salve with best results. For sale by W. A. WARREN, BRIDGETOWN, A. E. ATLEE, ANNAPOLIS ROYAL, and BEAR RIVER DRUG STORE.

KINRADE VERDICT NOT NEARLY STRONG ENOUGH.

The following is a letter sent to R. B. Spera, Chairman of the Kinrade jury, to Attorney-General Foy of Ontario:

"I see by the press that you are to take up the Kinrade case early this week with the members of the Cabinet. This matter should be given the most searching enquiry in the interests of society. It is no doubt a difficult task on account of the manner the evidence of the principal witness was given, but I feel as one of the jurors that our verdict was not clearly strong enough. I do not know what the medical report will be, but I feel that if sane, she is a dangerous girl and if otherwise, doubly so. Therefore, as I have said, the tragedy should be followed up. I hope I have not transgressed in taking the liberty of writing you, but this I feel is not a trifling matter."

"The Crown investigation of the Kinrade murder will continue. The case has not been dropped until it has been solved. The mills of justice may seem for a time to grind slowly but, in view of the department, the slow course is the sure course in this unusual and unfortunate case." This statement by the Attorney-General speaks the decision of the government. The Kinrade family are at present in Boston and are under police surveillance.

Eczema Cure A Miracle?—

No Just Sound Science

Physicians now admit the superior value of simple medicines for all diseases.

For eczema and other skin diseases certainly nothing in the world could be simpler than oil of wintergreen, carefully combined with such well-known healing and antiseptic substances as thymol, glycerine, etc., as in the D. D. Prescription. The use of this simple remedy, though, accomplishes results that look like miracles. Cures of eczema of ten, twenty or even thirty years' standing have been completely cured in a few weeks.

Read the experience of Mrs. John Sanders, of Griswold, Manitoba:

"When I sent for six bottles of D. D. I had one of the worst cases of Eczema in my legs. I only used two bottles when they were clear of Eczema. The four bottles I have left will keep for hives and insect bites. It is a useful remedy to have in the house at all times. Wishing you all success with D. D."

SUPPOSE THIS WERE YOUR LOT

Miss Helen Brady, of St. John, N. B., when a girl went into the employ of the Intercolonial as a car cleaner, and for the past thirty-eight years has been a faithful and hard working servant for the government. Her services have been so much appreciated that Miss Brady has now been retired on a pension of $13 a month. A St. John paper sums up her life work pathetically and mathematically thus: "For thirty-eight years Miss Brady has scrubbed out passenger cars. Hundreds of scrubbing brushes and tons of soap have been used in her work. She has scrubbed on an average of six cars a day for the past thirty-eight years. These cars are 75 feet long. If they were all compiled together on one train they would reach over 1,400 miles or nearly halfway across the North American Continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific." Thirty-eight years constant work scrubbing out passenger cars. At the rate of six a day! If you think your job is a hard one, compare it with Helen Brady's. Her pay was $20 a month, which would hardly keep her in knee-pads. We trust she has so conducted herself otherwise as to qualify for a crown and harp; she is certainly deserving of them.

IF YOU ARE WORTH $50,000 DON'T READ THIS.

This will not interest you if you are worth fifty thousand dollars, but if you are a man of moderate means and cannot afford to employ a physician when you have an attack of diarrhoea, you will be pleased to know that one or two doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy will cure it. This remedy has been in use for many years and is thoroughly reliable. Price 25 cents. For sale by J. D. PACRIEK, BRIDGETOWN, A. E. ATLEE, ANNAPOLIS ROYAL, and BEAR RIVER DRUG STORE.

Henry Auten says, "There is no failure, save in giving up." Success is persistence. Many a man has gone down to ruin for lack of it. All men who succeed possess the quality in a marked degree. Therefore persistence should be cultivated, nursed, made a hobby of and rode all the time. The big advertisers, men with big newspapers, big railroads, big factories or big stores, are not vacillating. They persist; they keep trying; each time a thing is done, it is better done.

Rev. H. How made touching reference on Sunday evening to the character and loyalty of Rollins Hardwicke, one of St. Luke's vestrymen. His cheery enthusiasm and generous hand will be missed greatly. The severest criticism ever heard was that "he was over enthusiastic in a good cause, viz., that of temperance."

Annapolis was shocked on Thursday morning when it became known that Rollins Hardwicke was dead. In apparent good health and at his work on Wednesday in the store of W. McCormick & Son, as has been his custom for the past thirty years, after tea he went into his garden to work. Later in evening his niece and sister-in-law, two young girls, who had come in the house, had retired. About two o'clock they awakened and found he had not come into the house. Looking from an upper window they discovered his prostrate form in the garden, lying by a tree which he had been planting. Neighbors were called and medical aid summoned, but life was extinct, he having probably been dead for several hours. Heart failure was the cause of death. An obituary notice is published elsewhere in this paper.

SALMON FRY FOR BEAR RIVER.

(Courier.)

Mr. Ogden, of the Bedford fish hatchery, was in Digby to spend the evening with his friend, Major Daley. He brought a lot of salmon fry to Messrs. Clarke Bros., Bear River, to be put out in the head waters of that stream. Salmon fry had been put out by Major Daley about twenty years ago in the west branch of Bear river, and were seen a year afterwards to have grown finely, but as they grew larger, the aim to get to salt water carried them over the different dams in that stream at that time, and without proper fish ways, could not get back. The grown fish so often found below the dams since were thought to have been the same ones trying to get back to their old haunts, which is their custom. Fish ways have since been put in according to law, which will let them through.
