The Crown Princess Sophie of Greece—Loss of Hearing Drives Statesman From Public Life—Pope's Envoy to Tokio

Crownprincess Sophie, of Greece, is re-arriving this week to Athens, after having seen abroad since the spring, and this in itself will serve to set at rest the stories so widely printed in America to the effect that she had determined upon a divorce from her husband.

It is true that while she has been staying with her brother-in-law, the Kaiser, and in England, the crownprincess has led a gay life in Paris, where he aroused much criticism not only by his readiness to accept invitations to dinner and to luncheon from all sorts of queer people, especially from members of the foreign colony on the banks of the Seine, but, while the crownprincess thus had his fling in Paris, he nevertheless avoided an open break, and on the occasion of the crownprincess' birthday last June, travelled half way across Europe to be with her on that day, at Friedrichs-ruh, near Homburg, where she was staying with her sister, Princess Frederick Charles of Hesse.

It is true that the crownprincess does not like Athens. Nor is she popular there, in spite of all sorts of philanthropic institutions which she has either founded or helped to develop and maintain. The fact of the matter is that she is too German to suit the Greeks, who can never forget the fact that in their last war with Turkey all the sympathies of her German relatives, from the Kaiser downward, as well as those of the German government, and of the German people were with Turkey, and that the Ottoman troops were not only trained but even officered by Germans.

The fact that the Greek army is being very successfully reorganized by the French General Elyard, and by a large delegation of French army officers, contributes to still further develop the anti-German sentiment at Athens, where the French officers have succeeded in making themselves very popular. The Greek navy is being reorganized by English navy officers, under the direction of Rear Admiral Turbill, R. N., and with the existing relations between Great Britain and Germany, their presence at Athens must be regarded as another anti-German factor there.

From this it will be seen that the position of the crownprincess in the land of her adoption is not altogether an agreeable one, and the fact that she is very pronounced in her German views and does not hesitate to show her preference for things German over those of Greece, does not help matters to any extent so that she does not get on particularly well with her husband's family, and that she is not in touch with King George of Greece, nor yet with her husband's brothers and their wives, and it will be seen that she has little to attract her at Athens.

Owing to his having become stone deaf, Rev. Dr. Abraham Kayper, the former prime minister of the Netherlands, who has sometimes been described as the Dutch Gladstone, has been compelled to retire from political life.

Undoubtedly he has for many years a very commanding figure in the public life of Holland, and a man of importance in its politics, his retirement will excite little or no regret, owing to his impetuous and arbitrary character.

The doctor visited the United States during the presidency of McKinley, on which occasion he received the degree of LL.D. at the University of Princeton, and delivered the series of Stone lectures there. He likewise called at the White House and spent an hour in conversation with President McKinley. He was not unimpressive-looking and the American newspapers, in describing him, alluded to the negligent character of his attire.

In addition to being a Calvinist divine and a pulpit orator of note at Amsterdam, he has also been professor of theology of the university of that city; is the author of a monumental "Encyclopedia of Theology," and was for many years editor of the important Amsterdam newspaper "Der Standaard." It was in the latter capacity that he acted as president of the Dutch Press Association in 1897.

He was premier because he had usurped the office, and no one, at any rate among his own party, ventured to protest against his assumption of superiority. Strictly speaking, Holland has no prime minister. No one member of the cabinet outranks the others, the council of ministers being presided over by each of its members in turn for the space of three months. During these three months the temporary president is the spokesman of the cabinet, whenever it is necessary to speak for it as a body in the states general. The premiership is an institution that is not in keeping with Dutch notions, and as soon as Dr. Kayper's administration was overthrown, and the Liberal came into office, they did away with the premiership and reverted to the former practice, which had been in vogue ever since older times, when Holland was a republic.

In Switzerland the same ideas prevail. Not only is there no prime minister, but strictly speaking there is not even a president of the republic in the American or French sense of the word. The presidency is vested in the seven members of the federal council, and its members take it in turns to act as president for twelve months, neither the presiding officer for

ALICE LLOYD AND A MERRY GROUP IN LITTLE MISS FIX-IT.

Alice Lloyd, who scored a coast to coast triumph last season in Little Miss Fix-It, will be seen at the Opera House tomorrow and Saturday. This charming star has simply duplicated in the western hemisphere her success abroad where her famous songs have been heard from London to Cape Town.

English theatre-goers enthusiastically chose her as the most popular of all its world is singing. The company to be seen here will be to this city gives promise of one of the most delightful treats of the year.

In the sparkling comedy with music, Little Miss Fix-It, Werba and Lonscher have sent forth a piece that ranks with their other famous successes, The Spring Maid and The Rose Maid, which hit the

If Men Did Women's Work

By RUTH CAMERON

DON'T you think it would be a grand thing, if for a short space of time a month perhaps—every housewife in the land would leave her kitchen and let the men folk do her work? If such a thing were possible, I think a great many good deals would be brought to pass.

Another would be that some men would realize that the money they have thought themselves generous in giving their wives was entirely inadequate pay for the work they have been doing.

And another reason—and this is the point which I want to bring out today especially—would be that much better equipments for housework would be immediately installed in the homes. For no man would put up for a month with the makeshifts and make-works which the average woman endures.

One morning I chanced to be in the kitchen of a woman who does all the work for her family of eight. She was making the toast which is invariably part of their breakfast. In turning the toaster she dropped two pieces of bread and burned her hand getting them back. "I'm always doing that," she explained; "it's that horrid old toaster. It's been broken for months and I ought to get a new one." And a new toaster would probably have cost about a quarter.

I remember in our own kitchen an obstinate egg beater which I remember to have bought for a summer cottage. There was no scourer. It had not been any all summer. That meant that it had to be used to wash the dishes every day. Again, a piece of bread and burned her hand getting them back. "I'm always doing that," she explained; "it's that horrid old toaster. It's been broken for months and I ought to get a new one." And a new toaster would probably have cost about a quarter.

Every woman owes it to herself and her family to have as much time for rest and recreation as possible. The intelligent, modern woman is coming to realize this and to know that perfect equipments will help her. A professor's wife who decided to enlarge her husband's income by doing her own work, at once perfected her regulation equipment and added to it a fireless cooker, a dish washer and a vacuum cleaner.

Men insist that they cannot do their work satisfactorily unless they have the best possible equipment. Why shouldn't women make the same demands?

CITY AGHAST OVER A BRUTAL MURDER

Berlin Shop Keeper Killed in Flat and Youth He Befriended is Arrested

Berlin, Oct. 3.—Berlin is aghast over a murder committed with a deliberation and coldness indicating complete indifference to the sanctity of human life.

Reinforcements were brought from the police station, and with the assistance of the landlady the door was forced open.

Her Foe, it appears, formerly had a grocer's shop in Schrimm, near Posen, and there came to know the prisoner, who was employed in a similar business.

JUDGE IN DOCK INSTEAD OF SEATED ON BENCH

German Jurist on Small Salary Cultivated Expensive Acquaintance of Stage Women

Berlin, Oct. 3.—The unusual spectacle of a judge standing in the dock instead of being seated on the bench is reported from Dresden. Dr. Walker Stoll, the prisoner, bears the high-sounding title of Landgerichtsrat, but so poorly paid is the judicial profession in Germany that his salary in that capacity amounted to only $1,200 a year.

Further evidence for the familiar one that his "social standing" was itself a capital which judiciously invested in matrimony, would have placed him in a position to clear off all his obligations.

FATHER HOGAN PREACHES ON DAY OF JUDGMENT

St. Peter's Church Crowded as Impressive Sermon is Delivered by Missioner

The attendance at the mission for men in St. Peter's church continues large as at the first of the week. Despite disagreeable weather of late the services in the early morning at five o'clock have seen a wonderful demonstration of faith and interest when men of all classes and ages desert their comfortable beds before that hour to be present at the first mass and hear the instructions upon their religious imparted by the missioner.

Each evening at 7.30 the church is filled to overflowing, and last night was no exception to the rule. Rev. Francis Hogan, C. S. R., was the preacher, and his subject was "The Day of General Judgment." He delivered an inspiring and powerful sermon upon the last day, the time when all peoples of the earth shall be gathered together, when the soul will be reunited with the body, to come before the God of Heaven and of earth to be judged, when the good will be separated from the bad and when those who have conducted themselves in a truly Christianlike manner on earth will be rewarded in the blissful regions of the Almighty forever, whilst those who have died in sin, been ungrateful to their Redeemer, will be cast into Hell with its everlasting torments for all eternity.

"My dear men," asked the speaker, "where are you going to stand on the last day? Are you now leading lives which are pleasing in the sight of God, or are you so conducting yourselves that when judgment has been rendered you returned from will behold the angels and the saints, your relatives or your friends accompanying the God of justice to his heavenly abode, whilst you are gradually sinking downward to the shades of Hell, your longing eyes rolled upward in agony, beholding for the last time what might have been your future happiness had you listened to the words of God?"

Extending his hand towards the congregation Father Hogan asked in stern voice, "And where are you to stand, you drunkard and Can't you realize? You drunkard, who are a continual source of scandal and disgrace to your family, who are an insult to God, who have lowered yourself beneath the dignity of the dumb animals, don't you know where you will be when the devil, your companion through life, comes forth to claim you? What defense can you possibly give? Throughout your life you have banished God from your heart to satisfy your thirst for liquor, and when under the influence of intoxicating drink have committed the most despicable crime. "When did you miss mass? When you were in drink. "When did you commit sins against the holy virtue of purity? When you were in drink. "When did you beat your wife, the mother of your children? When you were in drink. "When did you blaspheme the holy name of your Maker? When you were in drink. In short when did you commit all manner of wrongs, stained your soul with the curse of mortal sin, but when you have satisfied your filthy cravings for the taste of liquor, when you have lowered yourself lower than the beasts of the field, robbed yourself of your intellect and your will, and by your drunken insensibility made yourself an instrument of the devil rather than being the image of God's likeness which you were created?"

Father Hogan concluded with an appeal to his listeners to lead good pure lives; to keep away from the bar-rooms, to refrain from indulgence in the passions, to attend to the requirements of the church in the fulfillment of their sacramental visits, and by so conducting themselves as Catholics they would be privileged on the day of general judgment to be called by their God to enjoy the glories of heaven, being separated from those who had followed their evil inclination and who were on the last day would see the folly of their ways when they were sent to suffer the everlasting pains of Hell with the others whom they had so faithfully served on earth.

MR. HAZEN GUEST AT BANQUET Hon. J. D. Hazen, minister of marine and fisheries, was the guest of honor at a banquet given in Sorel, P.Q., last evening. The president of the banquet, Conservative Club president, and the speaker, in addition to Mr. Hazen, included Hon. P. D. Cook, Sir Rodolph Forget, Rene Laviee, M. Trudel, Mr. Rainville, and E. L. Morgan. In the course of his speech Mr. Hazen said that in a few years time there would be a 35 foot channel in the St. Lawrence. He predicted a great increase in trade and in the population of the province saying that he expected to see Montreal a city of 2,000,000 people.

They were engaged in the grocery business, contracting, trucking and unloading coal vessels. He was also Calais agent for the Standard Oil Company.

Mr. Waite was seventy-three years of age, and was an upright citizen, and one who will be much missed in the community. He is survived by his wife, one son, L. P. McCASKEY ACCOUNT REGISTER A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY An eminent scientist, the other day, gave an opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or sore, such injury is insured against blood poisoning! Not one speck of microbes has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill! Then again, as soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to a skin disease, it stops the smarting. This is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of it. They stop their pain. Mothers should never forget this. Again, as soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so quickly renewed. This forming of fresh secret of healing. This tissue is formed worked up to the surface and literally casts off the extraneous matter. The only other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 DeLaurier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Company and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was applied to him, and in a few months it cured him. Today—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema. All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c stamp to pay return postage. Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

PARENTS AWAY; TEN CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH

St. Bernard, Dorchester county, Que., Oct. 2—Left alone in their home by their parents, who went out to a neighbor's play cards, the ten children of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Gravel, of the place, were burned to death at a late hour last night. The Gravel home was completely destroyed. The fire is believed to have been due to the explosion of their kerosene lamp. The dead children, the oldest sixteen years and the youngest sixteen months, had no chance to escape. The Gravel were started from their game of cards by seeing a bright reflection in the sky. Rushing out of the house in which they were visiting, they discovered that their home was in flames. They had no opportunity to attempt to rescue any of their children, for the roof fell in while they were dashing towards the burning building. The bodies of all ten of the children were burned to a crisp. The dead children are: Eva, 16 years. Denoige, 15 years. Adella, 13 years. Romeo, 12 years. Regis, 11 years. Marie Anne, 8 years. Francoise, 7 years. Lionel, 6 years. Mary Louise, 3 years. Simon, 18 months. There is a rumor that the younger Gravel children were given a dose of soothing syrup to make them sleep during the night. The parents, and it is said that this dosing of children has become quite prevalent among country people, and that it is now spreading to social evenings among their neighbors without having to worry about the little ones. Medicinal preparations of that sort can, it is said, be procured at any of the local mail stores. But the fire at the Gravel home broke out so suddenly that there would have been no opportunity for any of the children to escape before the house was enveloped in flames. St. Bernard is four miles from Scott's Junction, Beauce county, on the line of the Quebec Central railway. The village is not connected by telephone to surrounding country. C. P. R. APPOINTMENT George A. C. Phillips, assistant local manager of C.P.R. telegraphers at Toronto has been appointed manager of the office, one of the most important offices of the C. P. BROTHERS IN MURDER TRIAL

Annapolis, N. S., Oct. 2—The court resumed this morning in the trial of the two Graves brothers charged with the murder of James K. Macdonald. The evidence was finished and counsel addressed the jury. Various witnesses for the prosecution testified that the Graves had threatened to kill Macdonald. One witness swore that Fred Graves had said: "If Macdonald had not died I would kill him." The only witness for the defense was that of the Graves themselves, who went on the stand in their own behalf. They said Macdonald had a gun at them and told them to move on. They declined to do this and said: "Shoot away." Macdonald then shot at them with the gun which went off and he shot himself.

CONVICTS LYNCH NEGRO

Rawlins, Wyo., Oct. 2—Convicts at the Wyoming state prison today lynched Frank Wigfall, a negro and convict, who late last night was put in the state institution for safe keeping. He was arrested on a charge of attacking Mrs. Esther Higgins, aged 78 last Sunday. Wigfall was arrested at Fort Steele, fifteen miles from here. Mrs. Higgins, the aged victim of the negro's attack, lived near the state penitentiary and was a favorite with the prisoners. Last night a mob gathered and made an unsuccessful attempt to take Wigfall from the county jail. Fearing that the mob might return later the officers reported to Governor Carey at Cheyenne and received orders to transfer the negro to the state prison.

GOOD HEALTH REPORT FOR SEPTEMBER

In its materials or ingredients it is quite a complex substance.

It is composed, very largely, of water, 87 or 88 parts out of every hundred consisting of this liquid. Of the so-called "solid" substances existing in milk, 3 to 4 1/2 parts per 100 consist of fat, that is, butter; about 4 1/2 of sugar, 3 to 4 of proteins or nitrogenous matter such as is so largely found in the muscular part of meat, and about one-half part in every hundred consists of mineral matter or "salts."

It will be noted, therefore, that with the exception of starch, of which there is a fair proportion of all the necessary elements of human food. Indeed, its lack of starch is more apparent than real, for this substance in other foods must be changed to sugar by the system before it becomes of actual value as a food. In good milk these various substances are not always exactly in constant proportion.

Again, in the early summer when the young grass is plentiful and juicy, the amount of water will be somewhat increased, the proportion of the proportion of the "solid" contents, butter and cream, is correspondingly heavier than water, with which latter all liquids are compared as regards weight. This is known as "specific gravity." Milk, as contrasted with water, has an average weight of 1.032, water being taken as 1.000. This, of course, is for cream milk.

It is quite important to know this, as milk very rich in cream will be lighter, that is its specific gravity will be less than one not so well supplied. On the other hand, milk poor in cream will have a weight greater than normal, provided its water content is not increased. Should the latter happen, the specific gravity may not be other than normal. A good and ready means to ascertain the "richness" of milk is to measure the cream which it will produce. This may be done by nearly filling any narrow glass vessel having the same inside size throughout, with milk and sitting it aside in a cool place for 24 hours.

The cream which rises to the top should occupy about eight parts out of every hundred of the total depth of the milk. This is rather a low average, many samples of milk giving more.

It is not, however, with the quality of the milk as regards its normal contents that the housekeeper is most vitally interested. This, in general, in this country, is usually good, and is, indeed, much easier to attain than it is to protect the milk from contamination, during its progress from its place of origin to its final destination as a consumed food. No other article of food requires, and, really, requires, such care in its handling, for upon this more than upon anything else, depends its value in a practical way. As the space usually taken up by these notes is exhausted, the subject of the various bacteria liable to attack milk may be noticed upon a future occasion. G. G. M.

Don't Put Off Till Tomorrow What You Can Do Today
Any man who has hit the pace that kills, has some time or another been warned by his family physician that unless he stops drinking he might die on one of his sprees. Most men say "they can stop of their own accord." But can they? That's the question. Do they stop? If so, for how long? When that gnawing and harrowing craving starts in its work, no one but the booze fighter knows what that means. Some folks ridicule the idea of having to take a treatment, look upon it as a disgrace, etc. This is living in a fool's paradise. Simply forget this part and run up and get on your feet again. We never cut you straight off from booze, but gently taper you off before treatment. Call and investigate our claims.

CONSIDERING men in relation to money there are three kinds whom I dislike: men who have more money than they can spend; men who have more money than they do spend, and men who spend more money than they have.

Of the three varieties, I believe I have the least liking for the first. But, as a man, I liked Spencer Greaville North pretty well, although he had something like two or ten, or thirty millions—I've forgotten exactly how many.

I did not leave town that summer. I usually went down to a village on the south shore of Long Island. The place was surrounded by duck farms, and the ducks and dogs and whippoorwills and rusty windmills made so much noise that I could sleep as peacefully as if I were in my own flat six doors from the elevated railroad in New York. But that summer I did not go. Remember that. One of my friends asked me why I did not. I replied: "Because, old man, New York is the finest summer resort in the world." You have heard that phrase before. But that is what I told him.

I was press agent that year for Binky & Bing, the theatrical managers and producers. Of course you know what a press agent is. Well, he is not. That is the secret of being one.

Binky was touring France in his new C. & N. Williamson car, and Bing had gone to Scotland to have curling, which he seemed to associate in his mind with hot tongs rather than with ice. Before they left they gave me June and July, on salary, for my vacation, which act was in accord with their large spirit of liberality. But I remained in New York, which I had decided was the finest summer resort in—

But I said that before. On July the tenth, North came to town from his camp in the Adirondacks. Try to imagine a camp with sixteen rooms, plumbing, silver-ware, a butler, a garage, solid silver plate, and a long distance telephone. Of course it was in the woods—Mr. Pincushot wants to preserve the forests let him give every citizen two or ten or thirty million dollars, and the trees will all gather around the summer camps, as the Miriam woods came to Dunstons, and be preserved.

North came to see me in my three rooms and bath, extra charge for light when used extravagantly or all night. He slipped me on the back (I would rather have my slings hooked any day) and greeted me with outdoor obsteporiveness and revolting good spirits. He was inebriatedly brown and healthy-looking, and effectively well dressed.

"Fast ran down for a few days," said he, "to sign some papers and stuff like that. My lawyer wired me to come. Well, you infernal cookery, what are you doing—a towel? I took a chance and telephoned, and they said you were here. What's the matter with that? I thought on Long Island and where you used to take your typewriter and your villainous temper every summer? Anything wrong with the—er—swims, weren't they, that used to sing on the farms so slight?"

"Ducks," said I. "The songs of swans are for heather ears. They swim and curve their necks in artificial lakes on the estates of the wealthy to delight the eyes of the favorites of Fortune."

"Also in Central Park," said North, "to delight the eyes of immigrants and bummers. I've seen 'em there lots of times. But why are you in the city so late in the summer?"

"New York city," I began to recite, "is the finest summer resort in—"

"No, you don't," said North, emphatically. "You don't spring that old one on me. I know you know better. Man, you ought to have gone up with us this summer. The Freshons are there, and Tom Volney and the Memores and Lash Stansford and the Miss Kennedy and her aunt that you liked so well."

"I never liked Miss Kennedy's aunt," I said. "I didn't say you did," said North. "We are having the greatest time we've ever had. The pickers and trout are so numerous that I believe they would swallow your hook with a Montana copper mine prospectus fastened on it. And we've a couple of electric launches; and I'll tell you what we do every night or two—we tow a rowboat behind each one with a big phonograph and a boy to change the discs in 'em. On the water, and twenty yards behind you, they are not so bad. And there are passably good roads through the woods where we go motoring. I skipped two cars

THE LORD MAYOR'S MOTTO

Sir Wm. Thelcar when Lord Mayor of London, said: "My motto for womankind is, 'The better the cook, the happier the husband.'"

There is no earthly reason why wives should not, nowadays, perfect themselves in the gentle art of cooking. Instruction of the very best is open to them; the accumulated experience of centuries is theirs to command and culinary helps such as have never been available before, are brought within the reach of the narrowest purse.

Take, for instance, the delicious H. P. Sauce, introduced only a short time ago from England. The different choice flavors of Oriental fruits and spices are perfectly blended in this new and delightful salad, and the young housewife, with a bottle of H. P. Sauce at her elbow, will make a certain success of the little steaks, ragouts, and hashes, which are so much of a puzzle and trial to the inexperienced cook.

GRAND FALLS INDUSTRIES

Authority was given to Premier Manning at a meeting of the local government yesterday to convey to the Grand Falls Co., Ltd., the water power at Grand Falls and five acres of land on the banks of the river. This company is the new organization, headed by Sir Wm. Van Horne, which has taken over the rights of the old companies and which promises to spend $8,000,000 in the construction and operation of pulp and paper mills, etc.

AMUSEMENTS IN ST. JOHN; WHAT THE PLAYHOUSES OFFER

It would almost seem that the last word in motion photography was reached after witnessing a decided novelty in films presented at the Unique Theatre yesterday entitled "The Aerial Anarchists." The production is from the hands of an English firm, and is altogether away from the much trodden path of western dramas or the always reliable love story. A wonderful look could be seen on every face watching this novelty, which is something that to be appreciated must be seen. The story in itself is weak, but the

THE BALANCE OF THE PROGRAMME

The balance of the programme is also commendable. It includes a pretty transformation picture, "Flowers of France; Caught in a Flash, an I. M. P. comedy, and The Circular Flash, an American sensation and very much out of the ordinary situations its unfolding calls for cover the evident inability of the scenario writer to furnish a better vehicle. The scenes of the destruction of a massive stone building by a bomb thrown from an airplane, the wreck of the train and its mad dash over a bridge into the chasm below, and the blowing up of an automobile are something that will linger in the memory of the spectator, and makes one shudder at the thought of what have could be wrought through the medium of this wonderful production of modern science.

A FIRE AT SEA

The presentation of the melodramatic picture production of "A Fire at Sea," a sensational, thrilling and adventurous story of life on the ocean, at the Gem Theatre yesterday gave pleasure and delight to all who saw it. It was one of the most spectacular productions made for some time, and was a rare pictorial treat. The light opera on the roof and in the outdoor garden. And if you hunt up the right places and

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Cancer. Bait's Cancer Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving relief and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have secured letters in its curative power that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A little whirl between Binky and Bing in Central Park and then a mug of sticky ale in some stuffy restaurant under a fan that can't stir up as many revolutions in a week as Niagara can in a day. I was chinking with the hot, stale air of my little apartment, and I wanted that breath of the cool to brace me for the task of proving to my friend that New York was the greatest—and so forth.

up there. And the Pincushot Inn is only three miles away. You know the Pincushot. Some good people are there this season and we run over to the dances twice a week. Can't you go back with me for a week, old man?"

I laughed. "North," said I. "If I may be so familiar with a millionaire, because I hate both the names Spencer and Greaville—your invitation is meant kindly, but—the city in the summertime for me. Here, while the bourgeoisie is away, I can live as Nero lived—barring, thank heaven, the fiddling—while the city burns at ninety in the shade. The tropics and the zones wait upon me like handmaids. I sit under Florida palms and eat pomegranates while Borea himself, electrically conjured up, blows upon my hair Arctic breath. As for trout, you know, yourself, that Jean, at Murdock's, cooks them better than anyone else in the world."

"Be advised," said North. "My chef has pinched the blue ribbon from the lot. He lays some slices of bacon inside the trout, wraps it all in corn husks—the husks of green corn, you know—buries them in hot ashes and covers them with live coals. We build fires on the bank of the lake and have fish supper."

"I know," said I. "And the servants bring down tables and chairs and damask cloths, and you eat with silver forks. I know the kind of camps that you millionaires have. And there are champagne palisades about, disgracing the willow flowers, and, no doubt, Madame Tetrakind to sing in the boat pavilion after the trout."

"Oh, no," said North, "concernedly, 'we were never as bad as that. We did have a variety troupe up from the city three or four nights, but they weren't stars by as far as light can travel in the same length of time. I always like a few home comforts even when I'm roughing it. But don't tell me you prefer to stay in the city during summer. I don't believe it. If you do, why did you spend your summers there for the last four years, even sneaking away from town in a night train, and refusing to tell your friends where this Arcadian village was?"

"Because," said I, "they might have followed me and discovered it. But since then I have learned that Anarchy has come to town. The coolest things, the freshest, the brightest, the choicest, are to be found in the city. If you've nothing on hand this evening I will show you."

"I'm free," said North, "and I have my light car outside. I suppose, since you've been converted to the town that your idea of rural sport is to have other tables gave animation and color to the scene. And an excellent dinner, mainly from the refrigerator, seemed to successfully back my judgment as to summer resorts. But North grumbled all during the meal, and cursed his lawyers, and prated so of his confounded camp in the woods that I began to wish he would go back there and leave me in my peaceful city retreat.

"After dining we went to a roof-garden vaudeville that was being much praised. There was found a good bill, an artificially cooled atmosphere, cold drinks, prompt service, and a gay, well-dressed audience. North was bored.

"If this isn't comfortable enough for you on the hottest August night for five years," I said, a little sarcastically, "you might think about the kids down in Delancey and Hester streets lying out on the fire escapes with their tongues hanging out, trying to get a breath of air that hasn't been fried on both sides. The contrast might increase your enjoyment."

"Don't talk Socialism," said North. "I gave five hundred dollars to the free ice fund on the first of May. My contrasting these stale, artificial, hollow, wearisome 'amusements' with the enjoyment a fire and glass do at dances during a storm; and lie down flat and drink out of a mountain branch at the end of a day's tramp after the deer. That's the only way to spend a summer. Get out and live with nature."

"I agree with you absolutely," said I, with emphasis. "For one moment I had relaxed my vigilance, and had spoken my true sentiments. North looked at me long and curiously.

"Then why, in the name of Pan and Apollo," he asked, "have you been singing this deceitful psalm to summer in town?"

"I suppose I looked my guilt."

"Ha," said North, "I see. May I ask her name?"

"Annie Ashton," said I, simply. "She played Nannette in Binky & Bing's production of 'The Silver Cord.' She is to have a better part next season."

"Take me to see her," said North.

Miss Ashton lived with her mother in a small hotel. They were out of the West, and had a little money that bridged the seasons. As press agent of Binky & Bing I had tried to keep her before the public. As Robert James Vandiver I had hoped to withdraw her; for if ever one was made to keep company with said Vandiver and smell the salt breeze on the south shore of Long Island and listen to the ducks quack in the washbasin of the night, it was the Ashton set forth above.

But she had a soul above ducks—above nightingales; aye, even above birds of paradise. She was very beautiful, with quiet ways, and seemed genuine. She had both taste and talent for the stage, and she liked to stay at home and read and make caps for her mother. She was unvaryingly kind and friendly with Binky & Bing's press agent. Since the theatre had closed she had allowed Mr. Vandiver to call in an unofficial role. I had often spoken to her of my friend, Spencer Greaville North; and so, as it was early, the first turn of the vaudeville being not yet over, we left to find a telephone.

Miss Ashton would be very glad to see Mr. Vandiver and Mr. North.

We found her fitting a new cap on her mother. I never saw her look more charming.

North made himself disagreeably entertaining. He was a good talker, and had a way with him. Besides, he had two, ten, or thirty millions, I've forgotten which. I incautiously admired the mother's cap, whereupon she brought out her store of a dozen or two and I took a course in edgings and frills. Even though Annie's fingers had pinked, or nipped, or hemmed, or whatever you do to 'em, they palled upon me. And I could hear North driving to Annie about his odious Adirondack camp.

Two days after that I saw North in his motor car with Miss Ashton and her mother. On the next afternoon he dropped in on me.

"Bobby," said he, "this old burg isn't all such bad proposition in the summertime, after all. Since I've been knocking around it looks better to me. There are some first-rate musical comedies and light operas on the roof and in the outdoor garden. And if you hunt up the right places and stick to soft drinks you can keep about as cool here as you can in the country. Hang it! when you come to think of it, there's nothing much to the country, anyhow. You get tired and sunburned and lonesome; and you have to eat sky-old things that the cook dishes up to you."

"It makes a difference, doesn't it?" said I. "It certainly does. Now, I found some white-bait yesterday, at Maurice's, with a new sauce that beats anything in the trout line I ever tasted."

"It makes a difference, doesn't it?" said I. "Immense. The sauce is the main thing with white-bait."

"It makes a difference, doesn't it?" I asked, looking him straight in the eye. He understood. "Look here, Bob," he said, "I was going to tell you. I couldn't help it. I'll play fair with you, but I'm going in to win. She is the 'one particular' for me."

"All right," said I. "It's a fair field. There are no rights for you to encroach upon."

On Thursday afternoon Miss Ashton invited North and myself to have tea in her apartment. He was devoted, and she was more charming than usual. By avoiding the subject of caps I managed to get a word or two into and out of the talk. Miss Ashton asked me in a make-conversational tone something about the next season's tour.

"Oh," said I, "I don't know about that. I'm not going to be with Binky & Bing next season."

"Why, I thought," said she, "that they were going to put the Number One road company under your charge. I thought you told me so."

"They were," said I, "but they won't. I'll tell you what I'm going to do. I'm going to the south shore of Long Island and buy a small cottage I know there on the edge of the bay. And I'll buy a catboat and a rowboat and a shogun and a yellow dog. I've got money enough to do it. And I'll smell the salt wind all day when it blows from the sea, and the pine odor when it blows from the land. And, of course, I'll write plays until I have a trunk full of 'em on hand."

"The next thing and the biggest thing I'll do will be to buy that duck farm next door. Few people understand ducks. I can watch 'em for hours. They can march better than any company in the National Guard, and they can play 'Yolow my leader' better than the entire Democratic party. Their voices don't amount to much, but I like to hear 'em. They wake you up a dozen times a night, but there's a homely sound about their quacking that is more musical to me than the cry of 'fresh strawberries' under your window in the morning when you want to sleep."

"And," I went on, enthusiastically, "do you know the value of ducks besides their beauty and intelligence and order and sweetness of voice? Picking their feathers gives you an unfailing and never ceasing income. On a farm that I know the feathers were sold for $400 in one year. Think of that! And the ones shipped to the market will bring in more money than that. Yes, I am for the ducks and the salt breeze coming over the bay. I think I shall get a Chinaman cook, and with him the dog and the sunsets for company I shall do well. No more of this dull, baking, senseless, roaring city for me."

Miss Ashton looked surprised. North laughed. "I am going to begin one of my plays tonight," I said, "so I must be going." And with that I took my departure.

A few days later Miss Ashton telephoned to me, asking me to call at four in the afternoon. I did. "You have been very good to me," she said, hesitatingly, "and I thought I would tell you. I am going to leave the stage."

"Yes," said I, "I suppose you will. They usually do when there's so much money."

"There is no money," she said, "or very little. Our money is almost gone."

"But I am told," said I, "that he has something like two or ten or thirty millions—I have forgotten which."

"I know what you mean," she said. "I will not pretend that I do not. I am not going to marry Mr. North."

"Then why are you leaving the stage?" I asked, severely. "What else can you do to earn a living? She came closer to me, and I can see the look in her eye yet as she spoke."

"I can pick ducks," she said. "We sold the first year's feathers for $350."

"North made himself disagreeably entertaining. He was a good talker."

THE LORD MAYOR'S MOTTO

Sir Wm. Thelcar when Lord Mayor of London, said: "My motto for womankind is, 'The better the cook, the happier the husband.'"

There is no earthly reason why wives should not, nowadays, perfect themselves in the gentle art of cooking. Instruction of the very best is open to them; the accumulated experience of centuries is theirs to command and culinary helps such as have never been available before, are brought within the reach of the narrowest purse.

Take, for instance, the delicious H. P. Sauce, introduced only a short time ago from England. The different choice flavors of Oriental fruits and spices are perfectly blended in this new and delightful salad, and the young housewife, with a bottle of H. P. Sauce at her elbow, will make a certain success of the little steaks, ragouts, and hashes, which are so much of a puzzle and trial to the inexperienced cook.

GRAND FALLS INDUSTRIES

Authority was given to Premier Manning at a meeting of the local government yesterday to convey to the Grand Falls Co., Ltd., the water power at Grand Falls and five acres of land on the banks of the river. This company is the new organization, headed by Sir Wm. Van Horne, which has taken over the rights of the old companies and which promises to spend $8,000,000 in the construction and operation of pulp and paper mills, etc.

AMUSEMENTS IN ST. JOHN; WHAT THE PLAYHOUSES OFFER

It would almost seem that the last word in motion photography was reached after witnessing a decided novelty in films presented at the Unique Theatre yesterday entitled "The Aerial Anarchists." The production is from the hands of an English firm, and is altogether away from the much trodden path of western dramas or the always reliable love story. A wonderful look could be seen on every face watching this novelty, which is something that to be appreciated must be seen. The story in itself is weak, but the

THE BALANCE OF THE PROGRAMME

The balance of the programme is also commendable. It includes a pretty transformation picture, "Flowers of France; Caught in a Flash, an I. M. P. comedy, and The Circular Flash, an American sensation and very much out of the ordinary situations its unfolding calls for cover the evident inability of the scenario writer to furnish a better vehicle. The scenes of the destruction of a massive stone building by a bomb thrown from an airplane, the wreck of the train and its mad dash over a bridge into the chasm below, and the blowing up of an automobile are something that will linger in the memory of the spectator, and makes one shudder at the thought of what have could be wrought through the medium of this wonderful production of modern science.

A FIRE AT SEA

The presentation of the melodramatic picture production of "A Fire at Sea," a sensational, thrilling and adventurous story of life on the ocean, at the Gem Theatre yesterday gave pleasure and delight to all who saw it. It was one of the most spectacular productions made for some time, and was a rare pictorial treat. The light opera on the roof and in the outdoor garden. And if you hunt up the right places and

P. R. A. ANNUAL MEETING

Colonel McLean is Re-elected President—A Good Season
The annual meeting of the Provincial Rifle Association took place last evening in the new quarters of the 62nd Regiment in German street.

The attendance at the Dominion Rifle Association match in Ottawa had been good and more members than usual went from New Brunswick.

The financial statement was very encouraging as it showed that more had been donated for prizes than before and there was still a good amount on hand.

The representatives to the Dominion Rifle Association meeting are to be the same as last year: Colonel McLean, Lieutenant Colonel McAvilly and Colonel J. W. Daniel.

The quarters of the officers of the 62nd Regiment in the building belonging to C. M. Rowley at the corner of Duke and Prince streets are rapidly taking on a neat appearance.

Up to the first of May the officers had rooms in St. Andrews Hotel but these were needed by the owners of the rink, and the officers have been without rooms since that time.

RUMOR SAYS FATHER MCCORMICK NEW RECTOR. Unconfirmed Report That Father Duke is to be Transferred From St. Peter's

It was announced some weeks ago that there would probably be a further change amongst the members of the Redemptorist Order stationed at St. Peter's church, but it is rumored today that Rev. A. J. Duke, C.S.S.R., who has been one of the most efficient rectors of the parish, and who has done a vast amount of good during his period in office there, is to be transferred, following the custom of the order, and that his successor as rector here will be Rev. Charles McCormick, C.S.S.R.

PARK IS GIVEN FOUR YEAR TERM IN DORCHESTER

Sentenced on Salvation Army Break and Dock Street Matter Hangs Over Him

"It is a shame," said Magistrate Ritchie, in sentencing Albert Park, in the police court this morning, "that a young fellow like you, only twenty-four years of age, should get into so much trouble and be placed in a position where you could be given a long term in Dorchester penitentiary. Under the dominion act the charge of breaking and entering is a very serious one, and punishable by fourteen years in Dorchester. I am going to be considerate to you, more so than you were to yourself, and I will allow the fourteen year sentence to hang over you. However, on the second charge, on your plea of guilty, you will be sentenced to serve four years in Dorchester penitentiary with hard labor, and I hope that you will be a better man when you come out."

Park was arrested on the charge of breaking and entering the office of the Canadian Sereal & Milling Company in Dock street, having been caught in the office by J. H. Pritchard, the manager of the company. While in custody the police succeeded in securing evidence sufficient to lay a charge of breaking and entering the Salvation Army headquarters in Prince William street, and stealing $22 and several articles. Park pleaded guilty to both charges. It was on the latter charge that he was sentenced this morning, the other matter being allowed to stand against him, pending his good conduct on being released from Dorchester. The prisoner is from Liverpool and has been in Canada for several years.

DANCING TO BE VERY POPULAR IN ST. JOHN DURING THIS WINTER

Dancing is expected to boom in St. John this year as never before. Already the leaders in social activities, particularly among the younger sets are now on the move and an interesting programme of gatherings of this nature has been planned. Applications received by the management of local assembly rooms are indicative of a season of keen activity, and the organization of dancing classes of a more or less private nature is one of the features.
