THEY ARE TALKING IN ENGLAND OF AUTOMATIC CRICKET

Machine to Take the Place of the Bowler at Practice—Is it Wanted?

LONDON, June 21.—The Daily Mirror says: The latest bowling machine—we are told it is a perfect instrument—is a serious menace to real cricket. If there is any game in which individuality should be paramount it is cricket. And a bowling machine is just one of those things which will kill individuality and make the game stereotyped.

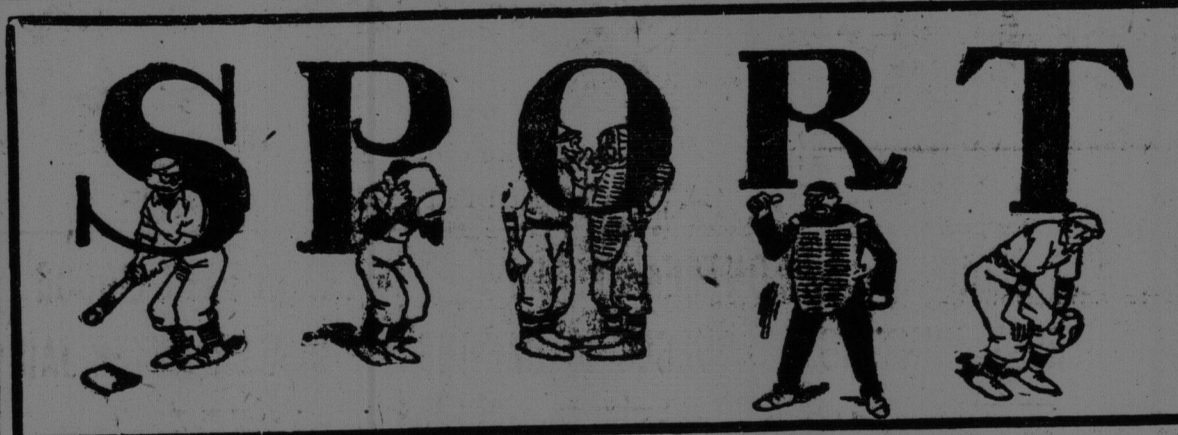

It is the personal skill of the bowler opposing the batsman, and vice-versa, which is the great charm of cricket. If our public and grammar school boys are to be taught to bat by a bowling machine, they will come out of the teaching as like as peas in a pod. Then half the interest of the game will have vanished.

The invention is the idea of Dr. Venn, F. R. S., and his son, Mr. J. H. Venn, of Cambridge, and they claim that, unlike the previous bowling machines, which have been shown on various cricket grounds, this can vary pace, pitch, and break.

But will it not have the effect of stopping the small boy from doing his due share of bowling at the nets? The average budding cricketer wants to bat, and it would tend to make him even more desirous of batting than bowling.

The less cricket becomes dominated by scientists the better, and Dr. Venn, however clever his invention, should have little encouragement from lovers of cricket, and especially from those who have to look after the future of young players at our training centres.

If bowling machines became common we might have nets for fieldsmen, and then only the bowling machine, the operator, and two batsmen would be necessary on the field of play. Even Timpres could be electric automatons, and under these circumstances there would be no cavilling after being given out blow.

MR. HUBBARD AGAIN.

Mr. William Waldorf Hubbard—and it is not his name, it should be—has landed another job. This time he has been chosen by the Hasen Government as secretary of the Department of Agriculture.

He has now been made secretary of agriculture. Aside from his less conspicuous qualifications for this position, Mr. Hubbard has gained what may or may not be valuable experience, as manager, for several seasons, of the St. John exhibition. He has delved into journalism, and for a time assisted in the conduct of a semi-occasional publication at Sussex. He has been organizer for the Hasen party, and it is no doubt in recognition of his work along this line that his present position has been given. Mr. Hubbard has been secretary of the Sussex board of trade, was for a time in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway, secretary of the Amherst winter fair, and in fact, during the past ten years has displayed an absolutely astonishing adaptability to those circumstances which he managed to create for himself.

ORIENTAL IMMIGRATION.

A few new ideas on the subject of Asiatic immigration were expressed by Mr. W. Almont Gates, secretary of the Californian State Board of Charities and Correction, during the recent conference in Buffalo.

Conditions of living in Oriental countries, Mr. Gates points out, are much harder than in North America. Centuries of toil and privation have taught the people to do the largest amount of work at the least cost of subsistence, and among these people representatives of emigration agencies find ready listeners to their glowing tales of living conditions on this side of the ocean.

NEW YORK, N. Y., June 21.—The desire of Roman Catholic parents to get their children into society by the associates whom they meet in the great non-sectarian universities of the country, was strongly condemned tonight by Bishop James A. McFaul, of Trenton, N. J., in his address to the graduating class of St. Francis Xavier College.

exclusion of white labor from that industry or that plant in which he is employed, and following the example of those who live about him, his next step is a demand for better wages. It is estimated that during the past thirty years over $200,000,000 has been sent from the United States and Canada to China and Japan by men who have come to this country to live.

Canada is somewhat ahead of the United States in this matter, for immigration from the east is now well under control, and is regulated in a manner satisfactory to all the governments concerned. So far no section of this country has passed under the influence of the Oriental, nor indeed is there any district in which foreign labor is sufficiently plentiful to control the market.

THE GUARDIAN GIRLS IN GAY NEW YORK

P. E. Island Maids Give Their Views of the Big City.

Will Arrive in St. John This Afternoon and Leave for Home at Noon Tomorrow

(New York Sun.) Miss Winnie Beer, the popular girl in Kelly's Grand Prince Edward Island, with 2,500,000 votes to back up that statement, was positive last night that the world's care should spend her young life in New York. The air of this town, said Miss Winnie Beer, is simply ruinous to a girl's complexion.

Most of the girls are from the interior of the island and had never been out of it before. Linda Smith used to get an illustrated paper at her home in Pius V. where she and her sister, Mrs. Florence Kinrade are in New York City. It is said that that was their objective point when they left Hamilton, but that they went in a round-about way so as to lose the track of the gossip and reporters.

TROUBLE ARISES IN WOMEN'S CONGRESS

Peace and Arbitration Cause Discussions.

Phrase "White Slave Traffic" Will be Dropped—Report of Peace Committee Was Not Wholly Adopted.

TORONTO, June 21.—At this morning's International Council of Women indignation protests were made with regard to an article appearing in the Toronto Evening Star, alleging that there had been considerable disagreement with regard to the election of officers. This was emphatically denied. The phrase "white slave traffic" disappears from the nomenclature of the Council and in its place the committee carrying on the work in connection with the question involved will in future be known as the committee on equal moral standing and traffic in women.

FOSTER MUST GO.
CHICAGO, June 21.—Professor Geo. Burman Foster, of the University of Chicago, whose denial of the divinity of Christ in a recent book has stirred Chicago Baptists to a high pitch of excitement, was dropped from the Baptist ministers' conference of Chicago today. Hisse, yells and general confusion made the meeting one of the stormiest ever held by churches in Chicago, and it was referred to by one preacher as resembling a political meeting in a rowdy ward.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Today's temperature hovered about ninety in the shade, which is a record for the month. The death of one man was reported, and many cases of heat prostration were treated at the hospital.

REORGANIZATION OF THE DEPT. OF AGRICULTURE

W. W. Hubbard Becomes Secretary of Department.

Office of Deputy Commissioner Abolished—Government Announces Large Program.

The office of deputy commissioner of agriculture will shortly be abolished and in its place will be appointed a secretary for the agricultural department. An order in council has been passed making this change, and appointing W. W. Hubbard to the new office. This is being done in accordance with a plan for reorganization of the department, recommended by Dr. Landry, commissioner of agriculture.

Mr. Hubbard's services will terminate on July 1, and on that date he will be paid two months' salary in lieu of notice.

The report of the commission on agriculture was presented to the cabinet and is now about ready for presentation, and this change has been made as a first step toward carrying out the recommendations contained therein.

Mr. Hubbard acted as secretary of the commission and his appointment marks the government's appreciation of his services in this and other matters.

An aggressive policy will be adopted by the department, which will include the encouragement of new and already existing agricultural societies, investigation of fertilizers, encouragement of fruit growing and the dissemination of pure bred stocks, both provincial and imported, for the benefit of the dairyman. Another important item of heavy draught horses is likely to be made and other efforts will be made to encourage the live stock industry.

It is hoped the department will soon be able to announce that experimental and illustration farms in different sections of the province will be selected and placed under the management of experts from the MacDonald College.

The department will seek to extend the market for New Brunswick products and endeavor to encourage immigration to the province.

Mr. Hubbard spent the earlier years of his life on a farm in Sunbury county. He afterwards graduated from the Georgia Agricultural College and returned to the province to take up farming. For fourteen years he held the position of correspondent, secretary of the Farmers' and Dairyman's Association. He has been engaged in the creamery business and was for some time editor of the "Maritime Farmer."

For several years he was with the C. P. R. as agricultural agent, since then he has managed general exhibitions, was provincial organizer for the conservative party, then secretary of the agricultural commission, and during the last session was official reporter for the local government.

THE FUTURE OF BRITAIN.

By ARNOLD WHITE.

Whether religion, as Kant said, is essentially a sanction for duty, or "morality touched by emotion" (the definition of Matthew Arnold), or due to fear (as Lucretius, Hobbes, and Strauss contended), Britain, at all events it is undergoing a process of transition. Were the founder of Christianity to visit contemporary Britain, and to note the inscription on the Royal Exchange—"The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof" (the text was chosen by the Prince Consort)—it would convey to his mind nothing but an impression of humor. Since churches ceased to be the schoolmasters, scholars, statesmen, diplomats, and general advisers of mankind, the materialization of international politics has everywhere impoverished the soil of Europe for the growth of pure religion. The nations of Britain are nominally governed by religious sanction, but if the doctrine of the Sermon on the Mount were applied in practice to the spheres of administration at home and of diplomacy abroad, national credit, law, politics, and Empire would collapse "instantly" like the Campanile at Venice. It is not our fault that we do not act on the principles of the religion that we profess. It is our destiny that we cannot but compromise.

THE NOTE OF COMPROMISE.
The attempt to defend the indefensible, to prescribe an impossible standard of conduct, to require from a commercial and competitive society the virtues of religious ascetics, are precepts found no longer to work out in practice. The energetic and more ardent among the clergy have thrown themselves eagerly into the Socialist struggle, and are hastening the day when the elemental and revolutionary conditions of life will assert themselves anew. In these days of economic and international struggle, the note of English Christianity is necessarily one of compromise, a fact that places us at a disadvantage with Asia. Yet the ideal of Christ is the only ideal that ever satisfied the soul of man.

In the days when religion was art and everything else, men inflicted martyrdom and suffered it, and the nation thrilled with passionate sympathy for the persecuted of their faith. Today, Macedonian Christians, Anatolian Kurds, or Chinese Buddhists in Szechwan, are butchered without producing so much ripple on public feeling as a football match. The always accompanied by a display of national feeling in the hazy past world, Britain in her inner soul is wearied nigh to death, not with effort, but with unbelief; and when Robertus told the House of Lords the other day that we had no Army, that the Army was a sham, the serious thing was not that Lord Robert's words were true, but that the majority of men do not care whether we have an Army or not; nor do they care in what condition the Army and Navy is; nor whether women are justly treated; nor whether children are healthily nurtured; nor whether the country is drifting over Niagara; nor whether it will be snatched at the last hour from its impending doom.

Still, the lamp of faith is kept burning by the few. Faith in the national destiny, survived after the death of a triumph of right over wrong, in the good government of the universe, still survives. I believe these things—on an average man. Protestants build no more great cathedrals because the exquisite church architecture of the Middle Ages was inspired by faith and the fear of purgatory; but for that fear, nothing could have induced our ancestors to erect Winchester Cathedral. Even the fear of hell is no longer strong enough to induce the public to repair that.

Ten or eleven millions of the population being in want, as potential revolutionaries they are beyond reach of the religion of the comfortable. A large additional number live under the influence of spiritual teachers who tell them that to improve their lot is to take and to snatch from others under legal formulae is a policy sanctioned by Christian doctrine. Another class of Britons, though not immersed in materialism, ignorance or superstition, lives under the influence of religious teaching which ignores the elemental and takes no heed of hard facts.

PURITANISM AND ANARCHY.
At the Peace Conference held in London in 1908, three subjects—(1) foreign missions and peace, and (2) the practical work of the churches—were discussed. The speaker under the presidency of the Bishop of Carlisle; and an eminent Nonconformist divine, Dr. Horton, said, among other things, that the church "should have the courage to say that, as a church, she disapproved of great armaments as much as she disapproved of fighting, and that she believed that it was the function of a Christian State, whenever it became really Christian, to act in the mighty principle of peace and love, which could conciliate the world, not by being prepared for war, but by making it plain that, as a country, it had decided to suffer rather than to fight, or even to contemplate fighting.

She should have the courage as a church in the name of her Lord to forbid what was going on in Europe today—the useless, stupid contest in the preparations of war, the piling up of material, and the preparation of the manhood of the world for fighting, as if that were the way of maintaining and reclaiming peace."

German preachers, unlike Dr. Horton, are Cromwells. They teach the righteousness of supporting the Government and fighting for one's country. The result is that in the name of religion the new Puritanism is in close alliance with the anarchists. By their efforts the spiritual force of Britain is being diverted from the training of souls by teaching the body under Nations learn religion by universal effort and sacrifice, not by whining for paradise while others dam their souls by fighting for heart and home. The teaching of clerical anti-militarists is not to be found in the New Testament. The new doctrine of anti-militarism has been imposed on Christianity by the clerics, who, having lost influence as theologians, would fain recover it as politicians. Just wars are righteous. Not to wage a defensive war is poltroonery. To preach cowardice is fatuous because war is still the only way of rectifying the worst forms of evil. We must admit that, after nineteen centuries of Christianity, in Christendom, with its commerce, competition, and coercion, Christ's followers are few. His teachings are impossible except as ideals. If he were to appear in the flesh, He could not call himself a Christian. But the seeds which He planted—the brotherhood of man and the vitality of sacrifice—are the only principles by which woman finds her true position, the poor find justice, and a great company of men and women arise into the higher level of purity and mutual co-operation. In the recovery of the spirit of Christ is the hope of Britain.

AN OLD IDEA.
Macaulay was not the first man to frame the famous image of the man of a new civilization standing amid the ruins of that which we know today. Long before he wrote of his traveler from New Zealand meditating upon London bridges, Mrs. Barbauld had used the same image, with the difference that she applied it to Blackfriars bridge. An earlier reviewer had used it in an article published in 1767, we are told by an English commentator, and Horace Walpole says in one of his letters: "At last some curious traveler from Lima will visit England and give a description of the ruins of St. Paul's."

DON'T HARMONIZE.

"Yes, it does. But then it's much better to keep 'em apart as long as our factory doesn't harmonize in appearance with the picture on our latest heads."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FAMOUS TROTTERING FAMILIES

Foundation of the Most Popular Type of Horse Known to Man.

The American trotter owes much of his present development and perfection to the founders of the breed, who were the famous families to which he belongs, and whose great-grandson Thomas Floyd-Jones is a well known horseman of today.

THE FOUNTAIN HEAD. The first great sire, and in fact the real founder of the breed, was Hamiltonian 10, and the fact that his name appears in a majority of the pedigrees of today has given him a reputation equalled by no other trotting sire.

PROLIFIC BUT UNEQUAL. Hamiltonian was a prolific stallion, but during his stud career he sired hundreds of horses who were never conspicuous either on the track or in the stud, and the statistics which have been published show that extra crops of foals lived and died in obscurity.

THE AMERICAN STAR FAMILY. It is not out of intention to give a detailed account of Hamiltonian himself, but merely to outline different families of horses which have been produced on each other, produced the light harness horse of today.

THE EARLY DAYS OF TROTTING. The beginning of the great popularity of driving trotters on the road can be traced to the days when the wagons with elliptic steel springs, before these vehicles appeared the speed of a fast horse in harness had few attractions for the horseman, who escaped a roughness of road as he sat perched upon a seat in a box which rested directly on the axle.
