DUBLIN, July 29.—The Irish Bar Council was invited a few days ago to declare whether it was "professional misconduct" for a member of the Irish Bar to take part in or practice before a court set up by the Dail Eireann (Irish Republican parliament), and the council decided in the affirmative. This decision, so promptly arrived at, has split up opinion amongst Irish barristers in a way that may possibly lead to very serious trouble.

YOUTH SAVAGELY GORED BY INFURIATED COW

Ten Year Old Lad Summering at Milltown Has Both Jaws Fractured by the Attack.

Special to The Standard.
St. Stephen, N. B., July 30.—A common old cow, always regarded as docile, developed sudden madness Friday evening and, in a few brief moments, wrought fearful havoc on a young boy. P. P. Rossiter, an electrician in the United States navy employed in the navy yard at Kittery, Maine, with his wife and son, ten years of age, have been visiting Mrs. Rossiter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Baxter, in Milltown, N. B. They were camping for a few days at Milltown, and this evening the boy went with his father to the pasture for the cows. The father's back was turned to the boy for just a few moments, when he heard a cry of alarm and pain, and, turning, saw one of the cows standing over the prostrate boy and savagely goring him with her horns. Seizing a club, the father drove the infuriated cow off her victim, picked the boy up, and carried him to the farmhouse, the cow following him to the door and constantly menacing him.

The boy was taken to the hospital in Calais where Dr. W. H. McLaughlin was summoned and dressed the wounds, which are of fearful extent, and will disfigure the boy for life. The left lower jaw was fractured, and there is severe compound fracture of the upper jaw on the left side and all the teeth on that side torn out. It was necessary to wire both the upper and the lower jaw. Had no, the father's head is probably broken, and that the boy would have been killed in the furious and unexpected onslaught of the cow that had never shown sign of temper.

Editor's note: This is the second of a series of interviews by "Piemarini," Italian nobleman-correspondent, who gained world-wide fame during the war when he accompanied the feast of dining with the Kaiser. His interviews with European notables will appear exclusively in The Standard in St. John.
London, July 30.—The first time it occurred to me that Princess Marie Murat, wife of Prince Lartion Murat, daughter of the Duke de Rohan, and sister of Captain de Rohan, who gallantly lost his life in action, shall we say, rather advanced opinions, was at a semi-official dinner, it was held at the Hotel Ritz, and amongst the guests was the Grand Duchess Anastasia of Russia.

Paris, July 29.—The occupation of opening and closing doors of motor cars brings in an income greater than the annual salary of the Premier.
At least, such was the case with an 18-year-old boy who was recently run over by a motor-car, suffering a broken leg. He claimed 50,000 francs (nominally $10,000) damages from the owner of the car. It was proved that the claimant was making over 250 francs a day in tips at his position with a large Paris restaurant, and had deposited in a bank more than 20,000 francs ($4,000) during the last three months.

Washington, July 30.—President Wilson, through United Mine Workers of America tonight, appealed to striking mine laborers in Illinois and Indiana to return to work. Inequalities in the existing wage scale—held by the strike leaders to be the cause of the walk out which has closed most of the bituminous mines in the two states—may exist, Mr. Wilson said.

PRESS DELEGATES ARE MADE VERY WELCOME. Shown Around the City and Then Entertained at Luncheon by Civic Authorities. DELIGHTED WITH WHAT THEY SAW. Many Enquiries Made Regarding the Extent and Varieties of the Natural Resources of the Province.

(Continued from Page 1) out of the ashes of the ancient city a bigger, more beautiful and modern city. For a considerable number of years the square piers of St. John were known and admired in all the ports of the globe and the city enjoyed the reputation of being the largest wooden ship-canning port in the world.

On completion of the C. P. R. Rail way from ocean to ocean in 1918, St. John sprang into increased prominence and has rapidly acquired and developed a trade which determines her as the chief winter port of Canada, being second to Montreal in volume of ocean freight traffic, etc. etc.

The Acting Mayor voiced a hope that on their next visit the press delegates would be better acquainted with the happy and prosperous people of St. John. He concluded with the hope that the delegates' reports in their respective papers of what they saw and heard in Canada may be of such an inspiring nature that many of the readers in the British Isles may be attracted to our prosperous shores and partake of our wonderful heritage.

Sir Robert Bruce Replies. Replied to the city's welcome, Sir Robert Bruce of the Glasgow Herald, referred to the sad accident which had delayed the party's arrival in the city, and said that he knew he was expressing the sentiments of all his colleagues when he extended the warmest sympathies to those who had been so suddenly bereaved, and those who had been injured. To the people of St. John he could assure them that the members of the kindness with which the delegates had been received both in the city and at the other places at which they had stayed would never be forgotten.

As his leaves will know the people of the United States many persons were very anxious to see the differences with the Mother Country, over which they fought, and in the end they got the freedom they wanted. The people of the Empire, however, had not been content to wait, and they had acquired the liberties they desired and more recently they had secured the fullest possible measure and to the government, which has been so successful in its constitution of Canada, that the Empire as a whole, and the British people, had enjoyed the fullest degree of liberty. The British Empire was a democracy in its form of government, and it was a far greater extent than was the United States, and every citizen of that Empire would be proud of the fact.

Coming to their presence in the city of St. John, His Honor expressed the regret that the time at the disposal of the visitors was so short to give them very much opportunity of seeing the city. His Honor the Acting Mayor had told them briefly something of what the city had done to increase its usefulness. He stated that it was at the gateway of Canada, it must necessarily be an important part in the transportation services of the country, and he looked forward with confidence to the time when his harbor would be properly equipped to deal with a much greater traffic. Portland, Boston, New York and some other American ports were two or three hundred miles nearer the centre of the continent.

business life of Canada than St. John. After partaking of his dinner's hospitality, those members of the party were driven around the neighborhood to observe some of the beautiful scenery and charming residences to be found there, after which they were taken to the Golf Club for supper.

The Dry Dock. Another object of which it would be proud was the dry-dock now in course of construction, a dry-dock which would be large enough to accommodate the longest ship in the British Navy. The visit to the harbor had shown the visitors something of what the people of St. John had done. It had cost a lot of money, but the port itself had not been provided by the government.

On leaving St. John the visitors traveled over the St. John Valley Railway. The St. John Valley extended to a distance of nearly 300 miles and on its shores would be found valuable intervals of land from 100 to 200 miles in length, richly interspersed with abundant forest wealth. In the course of their travels, the visitors would hear a good deal about the pulp and paper industry, which was becoming a leading feature of the manufacturing life of the province.

Meat Governor Pugsley in extending a welcome to the visitors on behalf of the province, expressed the hope that the British Monarchy was a great blessing to the various peoples of the Empire in the commonwealth. This fact suggested the thought that the reason it was that the King represents the force of democracy. It gives him strength and binds him firmly to the hearts of the people, and it is the duty of the Emperor to the people. In this province he (the Governor) had the honor to represent the King, he could do so with confidence, and he would do so with the written law that there was also an unwritten law which caused him to have confidence in the people, and he would do so with the written law that there was also an unwritten law which caused him to have confidence in the people.

Labour Leader. Mr. T. E. Naylor, President of the Printing Trades Federation, was next called upon in responding. Mr. Naylor said he was pleased to be associated with Sir Robert Bruce in responding to the visitors. Sir Robert was one of those delightful Scotchmen who having completed their education in England, returned to Scotland to vegetate in his native land. Sir Robert had referred to the fact that he was a family man, and he (Naylor) wondered whether he had made a mental reservation of himself (Taylor) on the behalf of the family, speaking as a representative of the Printing Trades Union in its own right. It was only to be expected that he would look at the Imperial picture from a somewhat different angle from the remainder of the speakers in the delegation. With reference to the two great political parties referred to by the Lieutenant Governor, in England they were getting accustomed to refer to the three great political parties, the Labour party, the Liberal party, and the Conservative party. The Labour party would come into power when the Liberal party could assure them there would be no weakening in the bonds of Empire, but they would fight against any attempts at disintegration or secession. The Labour party was interested in all matters which would make for greater freedom. They desired to foster trade and commerce within the Empire to the fullest extent. They are anxious to place the English speaking races in the forefront of social and political progress. They were looking to the new dominions of the West for the finest developments in the world. Among other things they were looking closely into conditions affecting the social and industrial life of the common people, to find out how they live and labor.

It was pleased to hear of the progress that the harbor of St. John had made under the management of the local authorities, and the consequent lay-off of about twenty-three men was given some consideration. It was decided that in the future men would work sixteen days a week instead of seven, and that the men would be employed for about sixteen of the number that would be otherwise laid off. The condition of the track from the Douglas Avenue Main Street Junction to the ferry floats on the West Side was also discussed. The men contended that this section of track is unsafe for operation, and the lives of the citizens as well as the operators are in grave danger daily. No definite action was taken about the matter. The track that is being laid on City Road also came up for discussion. It was claimed that the railway management is laying sleepers for this track from four to five feet apart, when there should be only about 18 inches from centre to centre. The street car men say that in a very short time the track will be in as rough a condition as it was before.

The members of the street car men's union held meetings yesterday afternoon and evening. Both sessions were held in order that all the men might have a chance to discuss several matters of importance. The reduction of the service recently announced, and the consequent lay-off of about twenty-three men was given some consideration. Shediac. Shediac, July 30.—It was with deep regret that the citizens of our town, learned of the death in the Moncton Hospital, on Tuesday morning of the late Rev. Father Poirier, Parish Priest of St. Mary's, Kent County. After a very brief illness the late Rev. gentleman passed away from advanced appendicitis. He was the son of the late Fidele Poirier and Mrs. Poirier of Shediac, and was the last member of a large family to die at a comparatively early age. Father Poirier was deeply beloved by his parishioners and others who knew him. RAILWAYS, like men, have throats.

Like men, they may be choked.

Here for example is Blankville Junction.

The streams of traffic rumbling through this throat are daily growing heavier.

The local official, anxious to keep up the service in his district, asks for, say, $100,000 to blast out additional yard-room and lay new classification tracks.

"Yes," admits the Head Office visitor, "You ought to have that appropriation . . . I'll consider it."

Back in Head Office he considers five hundred recommended improvements just as necessary as the extension at Blankville. They would cost ten million dollars.

The cost of living for railways has increased their income accounts.

The disappearing margin between total costs and total revenue makes the problem of far-sighted management increasingly difficult and almost impossible of solution.

The fear of choking at throat points is in danger of becoming a real nightmare to officials and a genuine menace to the prosperity of the Dominion.

This is another reason why increased freight rates are necessary.

Essex Takes Hundreds of Famous Records in Nation-Wide Tests

In Every Locality it Now Holds the Coveted Records for Every Type of Car Performance--Economy, Speed, Endurance, Acceleration, Hill-Climb and Reliability

IN A SERIES of the most dramatic tests ever made to prove motor car efficiency, Essex cars in all parts of America during the week of June 27th challenged and took practically every important record.

Six new cars, taken just as they came out of production, were driven at top speed from Detroit to Chicago, 303 miles. The fastest time was 8 hours 8 minutes. Time for the last car to arrive, 11 hours and 3 minutes. An average for it of 27 miles per hour.

One owner who had driven his car 38,000 miles put his Essex over Wisconsin dirt roads during a heavy rain, a distance of 90 miles in 2 hours, 4 minutes, which was better than 44 miles per hour.

A Denver owned Essex with 22,000 miles to its credit proved its easy riding qualities by carrying 288 crated eggs strapped to the rear seat. The car traveled 3,828 miles over mountain roads in a 6-day non-stop motor performance. Only 40 eggs were broken.

Owners' Cars Showed Economy and Speed

Still another Essex that had covered 19,000 miles in automobile rental service and on the original fabric tires from a standing start, topped El Paso's most difficult hill at 49 miles per hour. The best previous record was 36 miles per hour.

In Des Moines two cars, one a privately owned Essex that had previously gone 7000 miles, the other one which had set a 24 hour record over country roads. Combined they travelled 4816 miles in 144 hours of non-stop motor running. During the six days the cars were stopped 2137 times and carried 1602 passengers.

At Dallas, Texas, an Essex which had seen 12,000 miles of service, established the world's dirt track record by covering 1,261 miles in 24 hours—average 52½ miles an hour.

An Essex Sedan, fully loaded and on original tires that had carried the car 15,000 miles, traveled 221 miles over Maryland hills, averaging 23 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

A Columbus, Ohio, owner drove his 10-months' old Essex which had gone 16,000 miles to Washington, D. C., 403 miles in 11 hours, 4 minutes. The crack Pennsylvania Railroad train requires 15 hours, 34 minutes for the trip. An Essex traveled 80 miles in 88 minutes from Buffalo to Rochester, N. Y. The roadway is 12 miles longer than by rail—Essex time 4 minutes longer than that of the fastest train.

24 Cars in One Economy Run

Economy was shown in Connecticut by 24 owner-drivers, 12 going over the Mohawk Trail and the Hoosac mountains. The other 12 traveled a coast route. The winning car averaged 24 miles to the gallon of gasoline. Average for all 24 over 216 miles of route, for each was 18.7 miles to the gallon. One car had seen 35,000 miles of service and averaged 21.2 miles to the gallon.

The wife of U. S. Senator Deitrich drove an Essex from Hastings to Lincoln, Nebraska, 109 miles, averaging 29 miles to the gallon.

Four women drove from Los Angeles over the coast route to San Francisco and return via the Inland route with an average of 22.3 miles to the gallon of gasoline—no stop for any mechanical reason. A car starting from San Francisco made the round trip of 843 miles in 33 hours, and averaged 24.5 miles per gallon of gasoline.

Also Takes Famous Hill Climb Records

The Rim O' the World Record, in San Bernardino Mountains, was taken by Essex, climbing nearly 5,000 feet elevation over 8.8 miles of difficult mountain road in 17 minutes. An Essex defeated 19 other entries in the Sacramento, California, dealers' reliability run over the Sierra Nevada Mountains—distance 261 miles—24.25 miles per gallon of gasoline.

And in Utah 28¼ miles of mountain roads with heavy grades, climbing 4,528 feet, an Essex carrying 3 passengers made the run in 52 minutes. The best previous record was 66 minutes. Another Salt Lake owned car with 10,000 miles to its credit in 1 hour 20 minutes traveled 50.7 miles. The best previous record for this route was 1 hour 37 minutes. Through a blinding snow storm over Tioga Pass with an altitude of 9,941 feet and over grades of from 6% to 37%, Essex traveled 432 miles, averaging 15 miles to the gallon, and using 3 pints of oil. It ran several miles hub-deep in mud and towed another car containing 5 people, itself carrying 950 lbs. of weight and one passenger.

Essex is the first and only car to climb 35th Street Hill, Washington, in high gear and the Tilden Street Hill from a standing start. It crossed the top at 51 miles per hour. The same car towed a loaded 6-ton truck 16 blocks up this hill.

49 Cars Average 18.9 Miles per Gallon

Gasoline records were kept on 49 cars used in every kind of test from the distance covered on a measured gallon to the six-day non-stop performances. It included hill climbs of the most sensational character and inter-city runs in all parts of the country over all kinds of roads in all kinds of weather and at speeds from 5 to 72 miles an hour. Some were brand new cars. One had already traveled 34,000 miles. The average was 18.9 miles to the gallon.

The above are but a few of the records made. Every locality now knows Essex for the accomplishment of some great feat. They know it for its speed, its hill-climbing ability and its flexibility and endurance.

In a thousand ways it has proved its supremacy in every imaginable test.

To list all records would require pages of newspaper space. It would apply to hundreds of cars. Some belong to owners who made the trials in a spirit of sportsmanship.

Now, Is There Anything Left For Essex to Prove?

Was greater proof ever submitted? Here in one week every kind of performance ability has been established by Essex. They cover not only the cars used in the hundreds of tests of all descriptions but their performance was so consistent that they bespeak similar abilities for more than 40,000 Essex cars as their owners know them.

Every question has been answered by Essex.

Men were long ago forced to recognize Essex performance. It is common remark that it is the speediest, quickest car on the road; and now, in face of these performances, who can doubt its stability?

Can Essex be second choice to any who want the economy which comes with light weight and the beauty, performance and luxury which comes with costlier cars? The Essex can be obtained at a moderate price.

No wonder its sales have also set a new record!

Athletics Are Booming In St. John

Baseball, Tennis, Rowing and Trapshooting Are Chief Lines of Attraction—Tournament at Traps August 9th and 10th.

St. John is certainly waking up as a sporting town, there was a day when you could not beat this town for sport. Young men remember the old Rosos and Alerts and the Maine and New Brunswick leagues. Older men remember the Shamrocks and St. Johns.

The interest taken was not exceeded in any town of its size in North America. The teams in the City League, Industrial and South End Leagues, as well as the games in West St. John, delight thousands of people and then there is a great revival in rowing races.

Golf this year has shown a wonderful increase, the Riverside Club is having a very successful season. A new club house has been started at Westfield which promises to give great competition.

Tennis is booming, the young ladies of the city are getting very much interested in the game, and will develop into wonderful players. Trap shooting is very much in evidence at Glen Falls, showing that the sport almost exceeds all others, as both ladies and gents, young and old, can enjoy this beautiful outdoor recreation. The scores made by members of the club, as frequently shown, are rarely duplicated by any club.

The trap shooting game should be supported by every citizen. An interesting programme will be run on August 9th and 10th, immediately after the Nova Scotia Guides' Sports, which are to be held at Yarmouth, August 5 and 6.

The St. John Trap Shooting Association will bring here some of the best shots in North America, including W. G. Hill, who will give a marvelous demonstration of what science and practice will do with the shot gun, rifle, and revolver. This alone is worth while any citizen visiting Grand Falls on the 9th and 10th, to say nothing of the regular shooting matches which will be run off.

Citizens regret very much that O. J. Killam was unable to go to Antwerp to attend the Olympic games, as they are confident he would have strengthened the Canadian team; but this local shot who led all others in the Canadian Olympic trials and easily made the team, can be seen in action at every regular meet. The public is invited to the traps.

CANADIAN OPEN CHAMPION THIRD

Kansas City, Mo., July 30—A Canadian war veteran was one of the principals in a triangle problem that was solved in the Circuit Court here yesterday, when Mrs. Esther Warren Curtis Peel was granted a divorce from Eugene Peel.

The woman was married to Henry Curtis in 1914. In 1915 Curtis joined the Canadian Army, and after the second of Mons, his wife was officially informed by the Canadian authorities that he had died as a result of being gassed. The following year she married Peel, but in June, 1919, Curtis re-appeared. He said he had been gassed and spent months in hospital delirious. His identity being unknown for a great part of the time.

Finding his wife married to another man, Curtis asked her to choose between himself and his successor. She chose the returned soldier and the divorce followed.

Becomes $10,000 Star In Two Months

Harold Traynor, Nephew of Steve Matthews, This City, Has Been Purchased from Portsmouth by Pittsburgh Pirates.

Steve Matthews, cashier for the Western Union Telegraph Company is wearing a smile that is real because he has received a letter and newspaper clippings informing him that his sister's son, Harold Traynor, of Somerville, Mass., has made good in the baseball world and has been purchased from the bush league and purchased by the Pirates, who paid ten thousand dollars for him.

The Boston Evening Record, of last Saturday makes a feature story on this important purchase and publishes a picture of Traynor. The record in part says: "From a sandlot performer to a $10,000 big league prospect in less than two months is the wonderful achievement of Harold Traynor of Somerville. Fans read with interest recently concerning the purchase of a young infielder by the Pittsburgh Pirates from the Portsmouth Club of the Virginia League for the amount of $10,000 and then it was learned that this beauty is a Greater Boston Boy. Not for some years has such interest been manifested in an event by Somerville fans as the rapid rise of young Traynor, and already they are arranging a testimonial to the youngster on his first trip to the Hub with the Pittsburgh Club."

Traynor is 21 years old, has played a number of amateur teams before he took a fling at league ball and he has made good because of his ability and refused to be discouraged. He was sent to the Portsmouth team in the spring by Manager Barrows of the Boston team, made such a sensation that a Pirate scout looked him over and the deal was made. He will report to Pittsburgh immediately.

Traynor's father and mother removed from Halifax, N. S., twenty-one years ago and Harold was born in Framingham, Mass., shortly after the arrival of his parents from the Nova Scotia City.

Make Jail Hard For Jack Johnson

Ice Cream Soda Sweets and Motor Trips Are Taboo.

Chicago, July 30—Much to his disgust, Jack Johnson, the pugilist, was removed from the county jail at Joliet, Ill., to less comfortable quarters in the jail at Geneva. Johnson's removal is one result of his reported ice cream soda sweets and automobile trips yesterday through Joliet and its environs in company with Sheriff Newkirk. United States District Attorney Cline said that he wanted Johnson "treated like a prisoner and not like a hotel guest."

The jail at Geneva is under the rule of Sheriff Claude Poole, and he is a very determined sheriff, who has no interest in prize fighting whatsoever. If Poole cannot keep Johnson inside the jail and "treat him like other prisoners," no man can do it, was agreed at the office of the United States Marshal here today.

TOBACCO HABIT DANGEROUS

says Doctor Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins hospital, "Thousands of men suffering from fatal diseases would be in perfect health today were it not for the deadly drug Nicotine. Stop the habit now before it's too late. It's a simple process to rid yourself of the tobacco habit in any form. Just go to any up-to-date drug store and get some Nicotol tablets; take them as directed and let the pernicious habit quickly vanish. Druggists refund the money if they fail. Be sure to read large and interesting announcement by Doctor Connor soon to appear in this paper. It tells of the danger of nicotine poisoning and how to avoid it. In the meantime try Nicotol tablets; you will be surprised at the result."

REGAL

The Big Value in FLOUR for Bread, Cakes & Pastry

TO PLAY IN 1940.

An important lawn tennis match has grown out of the big tournament for the world's championship in Great Britain two or three weeks ago. It will be played between Gobert, of France, and Parks, of England, in 1940. Yes, 1940.

Andre Gobert and James C. Parks hardly hope to be in the lawn tennis limelight 20 years hence, even though they still expect to give a creditable account of themselves on the court in that distant year.

The important match just arranged will be played not by themselves, but by their sons, now three months old each.

ARMED SOLDIERS ESCORTED GEN. LUCAS

His Get-Away from Sinn Feiners Marked by Exciting Encounter With Armed Raiders.

Belfast, July 30.—Reports received here regarding the escape from Sinn Feiners of Brigadier-General C. H. T. Lucas indicate that he was accompanied by twelve or fifteen armed soldiers at the time of the clash which resulted in his return to Tipperary. Escorted by the soldiers, he was being conveyed from Limerick in a lorry. As the lorry approached the village of Cole a party of armed raiders appeared, demanding that it halt and surrender. The driver responded by putting on speed, and the lorry was disabled by a volley of shots from the raiders. General Lucas and some of the soldiers set their rifles, but before they could use them another volley from the raiders rang out. Two soldiers fell, several were wounded, and the remainder surrendered their arms. The raiders carried off the soldiers' equipment and were about to set the lorry alight when another lorry appeared full of soldiers. The raiders thereupon fled, and General Lucas, with the survivors of his escort, was rescued.

The general is reported at present to be in the military barracks at Tipperary with a half battalion of armed soldiers.

HELD FOR MURDER OF NEIGHBOR

Veteran of Great War Taken Into Custody on Most Serious Charge.

Simcoe, Ont., July 30.—(By Canadian Press)—Lorne Heimer, a young married man and veteran of the Great War in which he served in the Norfolk County Battalion, has been placed under arrest and is now in jail here following the finding of the body of James Learn under a pile of leaves near his farm in North Walsingham. Learn had been missing for two weeks. The two men had a dispute regarding the occupancy of a farm, which, strangely enough, is next to the property of Christian Shoop, who was murdered in 1915 by Emerson Shelley, who paid the extreme penalty for the crime. Heimer's younger brother is under surveillance of the police as a witness in the present case.

The meeting of the hospital committee of the Provincial Red Cross Society was held in the Red Cross rooms in Chipman Hill yesterday morning at 10 o'clock with the president, Mrs. J. V. Anglin, in the chair. Reports were received as to the work carried on during the last month. The East St. John and the Lancaster hospitals received four packages of cigarettes or four packages of tobacco per man per week besides fruit and candy as the comforts regularly supplied by the Red Cross. The recreation room at River Glade was furnished and automobiles supplied for drives each week at the three hospitals in the city.

Five hundred cigarettes were placed on board the Pullman taking the military patients from the provincial hospital to the Montreal special hospital. Arrangements have been made whereby the committee will take its share in making the Red Cross booth an attraction at the coming exhibition. The Ashburnham branch at Fredericton has been asked to cooperate.

The monthly orders for hospital supplies were passed and ordered to be filled by the committee. The forming of a "follow up" committee was held over till next meeting, so many ladies being out of town at the present time. The session was adjourned to meet on the last Friday in August.

TUXIS BOYS AND TRAIL RANGERS

BY Firelighter T

C. S. E. T. Heading.

Fourteen places were represented at the New Brunswick Tuxis Boys' Camp at Chipman this year, and the boys set a record for the amount of work and play accomplished in the thirteen days they were under canvas. Camp was broken the first of the week and the general opinion is that the enthusiasm shown by the boys speaks well for the success of the four-fold development program during the coming season.

The mornings were devoted to study lectures on the C. S. E. T. subjects, group games and swimming, the afternoons to sports, hikes, treasure hunts, aquatic events, paper-chases, and so forth, and the evenings to double-headed baseball games, and concluding with a varied entertainment round the camp fire. These included the formal reception of the new members into the tribe of Wege-segum, a mock trial, a mock parliament session, telling of stunts and a night of talks on the stars.

A unique incident was the presentation of the Tuxis programme at the Presbyterian Church in Chipman on Sunday evening by Jack Angewine of Hampton, and Francis Wetmore of St. John.

The camp is now a happy memory but its results should be far-reaching.

The Boy in His World.

There are three institutions that can justly claim first place in the life of the boy. They are: The home, the school and the church.

It is in the home that the boy receives his first impressions of life. These may be good or bad, just as his home is good or bad, just as it is a well regulated and governed home, or a poorly regulated and badly governed home.

Unfortunately too many homes today are but places where the boy eats and sleeps. The work of the parents in so far as the physical, mental, social, and moral welfare of the boy is concerned is farmed out to other organizations.

The boy should have a definite place in the home. He should be recognized as a "member" of the "family firm" and not looked upon merely as a dependent member of the family to be fed, clothed and cared for until he is old and big enough to strike out for himself.

The boy has a distinctive claim to comradeship in the home and he has a decidedly distinctive claim to be a comradship that is not found comradeship of his father. It should be in the formal relation of parent to offspring, but a comradeship that is found only in the closest relation of the father and son. After all has been said on this great subject, candor compels us to admit that possibly the whole thing is not so much a problem of the boy as it is a problem of "dad."

The public school is one of the most efficient and perhaps the most serviceable institutions in the education of the boy. The schools offer, and require the boy to follow, certain courses of related study which will make him a better citizen and, in a measure, fit him for an intelligent and adequate livelihood. The school is by no means a definite policy in the education of the boy and the leaders of the public school know whether they are going and well they know the road over which they are travelling.

The place of the church in the education of the boy is often minimized and discounted.

For some reason we are just a little fearful of placing too much emphasis upon the normal spiritual education of the boy. However, today, we are beginning to understand that all boyhood life is spiritual, that all the activities of his life—be they what they may—have a tremendous spiritual value either for good or bad.

There is no reason why we should say it hesitatingly or as though we were ashamed to speak, but the ideal for a perfect work with boys is to be found in a study of the boyhood of Christ for the boy Jesus—as we read—"increased in wisdom" (mentally) "and in stature" (physically), and "in favor with God" (spiritually), and "with man" (socially).

This is the fourfold development that brings out symmetrically and well balanced growth. In this we find the rising challenge that calls us to give the most in time and money and the best in effort to help develop and adapt the life of the boy in the community.

GRANT SIX

Built To Stay New

It would be easy to cut $200 off the price of the Grant Six and still produce a car that looked as good when new as the car we build.

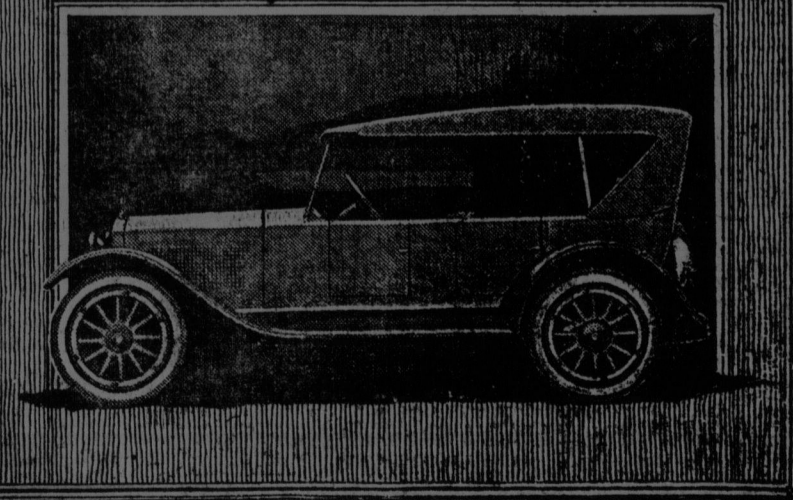

But we would have to use imitation leather instead of real leather, a cheaper top material, ordinary springs in the cushions, tape instead of felt anti-squeak pads between body and frame. We could not use a forced feed oiling system, self lubricating bushings, or the Columbia axle.

So we have built the Grant Six so well that money will not make it any better and when you've owned the car a year you'll be glad you paid the slightly higher price for quality.

"What about the Navy, governor?"

The orator swept upon the intruder in his famous platform manner. The Navy, he declared, would be interested at all times to do its duty, but it could not fight on sea and land. Would the young man who had just interrupted do his duty, and enroll his name for drill and national service that evening?—and so on. The distinguished soldier, who was suffering from a cold, fired off a few husky sentences only, to the tune of a faint applause. The proceedings were wound up by the Duke, who was obviously, with the exception of the distinguished soldier, much more in earnest than any of them, and secured upon the whole a respectful attention. He brought in a few historical allusions, pleaded for a greater spirit of earnestness and citizenship amongst the men of the country, appealed to the women to develop their sense of responsibility, and sat down amidst a little burst of quite enthusiastic applause.—The vote of thanks to the chairman was the point of departure proposed when Mr. Seaman, standing up in his place, appealed to the chairman for permission to say a few words. The Duke, who had had some experience with Mr. Seaman before, looked at him severely, but the smile with which Mr. Seaman looked around upon the audience was so good-natured and attractive, that he had no alternative but to assent. Seaman perambled up to the platform, coughed apologetically, bowed to the Duke, and took possession of the meeting. After a word or two of compliment to the chairman, he made his confession. He was a German citizen—he was indeed one of that blood-thirsty race. (Some laughter.) He was also, and it was his excuse for standing there, the founder and secretary of a league, doubtless well known to them, a league for promoting more friendly relations between the business men of Germany and England. Some of the remarks which he had heard that evening had pained him deeply. Business often took him to Germany, and as a German he would be doing less than his duty if he did not stand up there and tell them that the average German loved the Englishman like a brother, that the object of his life was to come into greater kinship with him, that Germany, even at that moment, was standing with hand outstretched to the dearly beloved country of his birth and the equally beloved country of his adoption. Such meetings as these, instituted, as it seemed to him, for the propagation of unfair and unjust suspicions, were one of the greatest difficulties in his way. He could not for a moment doubt that these gentlemen upon the platform were patriots. They would prove it more patriotically, both to themselves and their country, if they abandoned their present prejudiced and harmful campaign and became patrons of his Society. Seaman's line of argument was good-humored, tolerant, a little whimsical. The Duke's few words, prefaced by an indignant protest against the intrusion of a German propagandist into an English patriotic meeting, did nothing to undo the effect produced by this undesired stranger. When the meeting broke up, it was doubtful whether a single adherent had been gained to the cause of National Service. It seemed to be his wish to hear first all that his companion had to say. After a moment's pause he continued:

"I spoke to him, and he denied himself. To me! I think that those were the most terrible seconds of my life. I have never suffered more. I shall never suffer so much again."

Dominey smiled enigmatically. "You certainly succeeded in making fool of a number of respectable and well-meaning men."

"The miracle of it extends further,"

Seaman agreed. "Tonight, in its small way, is a supreme example of the transcendental follies of democracy. England is being slowly choked and strangled with too much liberty. She is like a child being overfed with jam. Imagine, in our dear country, an Englishman being allowed to mount the platform and spout, undisturbed, English propaganda in deadly opposition to German interests. The so-called liberty of the Englishman is like the cuckoo in his political nest. Countries must be governed. They cannot govern themselves. The time of war will prove all that."

"Yet in any great crisis of a nation's history," Dominey queried, "surely there is safety in a multitude of counselors?"

"There would be always a multitude of counselors," Seaman replied, "in Germany as in England. The trouble for this country is that they would be all expressed publicly and in the press, each view would have its adherents, and the Government be split up into factions. In Germany, the real destinies of the country are decided in secret. There are counselors there, too, earnest and wise counselors, but no one knows their varying views. All that one learns is the result, spoken through the lips of the Kaiser, spoken once and for all."

Dominey was showing signs of a rare interest in his companion's conversation. His eyes were bright, his usually impassive features seemed to have become more mobile and strained. He laid his hand on Seaman's arm.

"Listen," he said, "we are in London, alone in a taxi cab, secure against any possible eavesdropping. You preach the advantage of our Kaiser-land country. Do you really believe that the Kaiser is the man for the task which is coming?"

Seaman's narrow eyes glittered. He looked at his companion in satisfaction. His forehead was puckered, his eternal smile gone. He was the man of the intellect.

"So you are waking up from the lethargy of Africa, my friend!" he exclaimed. "You are beginning to think. As you ask me, so shall I answer. The Kaiser is a vain, bombastic dreamer, the greatest egotist who ever lived, with a diseased personality, a ceaseless craving for the limelight. But he has also the genius for government. I mean this: he is a splendid medium for the expression of the brain power of his counselors. Their words will pass through his personality, and he will believe them his. What is more, they will sound like his. He will see himself the knight in shining armour. All Europe will bow down before this diseased Caesar, and no one except you who are behind will realize the ass's head. There is no one else in this world whom I have ever met so well fitted to lead our great nation to the destiny she deserves. And now, my friend, tomorrow, if you like, we will speak of these matters again. Tonight, you have other things to think about. You are going into the great places where I never penetrate. You have an hour to change and prepare. At eleven o'clock the Prince von Terloff will expect you."

CHAPTER VII.

There had been a dinner party and a very small reception afterwards at the great Embassy in Carlton House Terrace. The Ambassador, Prince Terloff, was bidding farewell to his wife's cousin, the Princess Edlerstrom, the last of his guests. She drew him on one side for a moment.

"Your Excellency," she said, "I have been hoping for a word with you all the evening."

"And I with you, dear Stephanie," he answered. "It is very early. Let us sit down for a moment."

He led her towards a settee but she shook her head.

"You have an appointment at half-past eleven," she said, "I wish you to keep it."

"You know, then?"

"I luncheon today at the Carlton grill room. In the reception-room I came face to face with Leopold von Ragastein."

The Ambassador made no remark. It seemed to be his wish to hear first all that his companion had to say. After a moment's pause she continued:

"I spoke to him, and he denied himself. To me! I think that those were the most terrible seconds of my life. I have never suffered more. I shall never suffer so much again."

"It was most unfortunate," the Prince murmured sympathetically. "This evening," she went on, "I received a visit from a man whom I took at first to be an insignificant member

R.A.F. AERIAL PAGEANT WAS WONDERFUL AVIATION SHOW

Those Participating Had the Crowd on Edge All the Time—The Mock Fights Were Most Realistic—Stunts Kept Spectators Guessing—Events Long to be Remembered

London, Eng., July 31.—The R. A. F. Aerial Pageant held at Hendon in aid of the R. A. F. Memorial Fund, was without doubt the most wonderful show ever witnessed in the world.

The descent of Miss Boyden was followed by another duel, this time between a white-nosed Bristol fighter and a Sopwith "Snipe" and Nieuport "Night Hawk," the latter with red and blue nose.

The R. 34 and N. 57 were due to appear after this event, but unfortunately did not put in an appearance. There was no waiting, however, and the next event was immediately proceeded with—a relay race between teams of Avros B. 3's and "Snipes."

Mr. H. G. Hawker, A. F. C., then surpassed himself in his exhibition of looping, spinning and rolling and swooping in his Sopwith "Swallow."

After this a Handley-Page formed an artificial smoke-screen of about a 100-ft. and disappeared behind it. It was a beautiful sight, with some really fine cloud formation in the background.

One of the Handley-Page's, she dropped her head first from about 300 feet right over the crowd and made a good landing in the middle of the "drome."

After this a Handley-Page formed an artificial smoke-screen of about a 100-ft. and disappeared behind it. It was a beautiful sight, with some really fine cloud formation in the background.

The meeting practically broke up after this event, the crowd surging everywhere. The rest of the evening was spent in machines taking mechanical well-deserved flaps.

unique collection of the poet's writings known as the Glenelg manuscripts. These precious relics seemed irretrievably lost to Scotland till they came into your hands, when you hesitatingly showed your appreciation of the most fitting place for their permanent preservation and your conspicuous wisdom in arrangements for making them available for inspection and study.

Your generous action has evoked throughout Scotland a feeling of the warmest gratitude. We here seek to express the warmest gratitude in this volume, containing besides this address, drawings of scenes associated with the life and writings of the poet, the work of eminent Scottish artists.

The Ballie, Scotland's Parish, reviewing in a leading article Mr. Gribbel's gift, states "this visit to Britain is not without considerable interest and significance, and those who have the best means of knowing his sympathies and appreciating his influence will not fail to take the opportunity of emphasizing the value to mankind of that noble, broad outlook on international relations which Mr. Gribbel has taken, inspired in no small measure, by the Ballie believes, by the writings of the poet whom he holds in the highest reverence."

By CARL W. AKERMAN. (Special Cable Dispatch. Copyright, 1920, by Public Ledger Co.) London, July 28.—Scotland and England are today paying high honors to two Philadelphians, John Gribbel and Professor R. Tait McKenzie, of the University of Pennsylvania; to the former for his generosity in returning the famous Glenelg manuscripts of Robert Burns to Scotland and to the latter for his exhibition of sculpture interpreting American sports.

No American, in at least a decade, certainly no Philadelphian, has been honored by Scotland as has Mr. Gribbel. But in addition to the honors which have come to both these Philadelphians there is significance to the presence of these men in the British Isles today. While innumerable persons are expressing sentiments of Anglo-American friendship and urging closer relations between the two countries, Mr. Gribbel and Professor McKenzie are by their acts bringing the two peoples into a more intimate understanding of each other. Mr. Gribbel, by his generosity in returning to Scotland Burns' most famous manuscripts after they had been lost to Scotland, has shown the British people again, and the Scots in particular, American qualities which are so often overlooked; and Professor McKenzie by showing the British something of America's love of sport has touched a sympathetic chord in the British nature. In fact, two links in the chain of friendship have been forged by these two Philadelphians.

Mr. Gribbel and his family left yesterday for Scotland, where for the next three weeks he is to be the guest of honor of the Robert Burns Federation. In addition to numerous public and private functions in his honor, the corporations of Glasgow and Edinburgh respectively will honor him by public banquets on August 6 and August 13. He will be presented by the federation with an album containing forty original paintings and etchings illustrating the life of Burns, done by forty leading Scotch artists. This is the largest album ever produced in Scotland and contains an illuminated address reading in part:

"The Robert Burns Federation, representing many admirers of Robert Burns throughout the world, take this occasion of your visit to Scotland to offer you its heartfelt thanks for your generosity in restoring to Scotland the

PRE-HISTORIC SKELETON FOUND

Remains of Person Who Lived 5,000 Years Ago Discovered in England.

London, July 29.—A skeleton, buried at least 2,000 B. C., probably near 3,000 B. C., has been unearthed near Peterborough by a local antiquary.

The body, which may be of the Bronze age, was buried in a crouching position, with the head to the north and feet to the east, while the hands were pressed against the chin, the right hand being underneath the right cheek.

A peculiar circumstance is that the burial was some five feet deep, and had been made at the bottom of a ditch, forming a circular entrenchment. No relics were found with the skeleton, which is that of a female, 15 or 20 years of age.

"BLOOD BROTHER" AWAITS VENGEANCE

If French Courts Do Not He Will Punish Slayer of Essad Pasha.

Paris, July 29.—(Associated Press.)—Vengeance for the assassination of Essad Pasha, head of the Albanian delegation here, is being quietly awaited by a "blood brother" of the Balkan leader, according to a circumstantial story by a French writer, published by the Excelsior.

This man, now rich and influential in France, the story goes, was one of several poor men who thirty years ago met Essad Pasha, then known as the "Black Dagger of Abdul Hamid" in Constantinople, when he crowded into a card game and insisted upon playing with them. Fearing Essad Pasha, they protested they were too poor to play with him, but he insisted, emphasizing it by pinning his revolver on the table as a threat.

To meet this, the "blood brother" put down his dagger, poisoned, he said, Essad Pasha showed his surprise, then his pleasure. "Young man," he explained, "this is the first time anyone has dared defy me. Men like you are rare."

Essad Pasha took his own dagger, opened a vein in his wrist and also in that of the young man, each sucked a few drops of blood from the other and they became "blood brothers," according to Albanian customs, sworn to avenge each other's death.

"I am ready," this "brother," now is quoted as saying, "to keep my oath, but I have confidence that French courts will make it unnecessary for me to interfere."

Justem Aven, arrested on the spot for shooting down Essad Pasha as the latter was entering his automobile in the downtown district recently, is awaiting trial. He was a student who posed as the avenger of Albanian wrongs.

He Can Do Twice As Much Work Now

"I'm Delighted With What Tanlac Has Done for Me," Says Carpenter.

"I was just about down and out when I started on Tanlac, but that medicine has built me up to where I never felt better in my life" recently declared Henry Coffin, well-known carpenter living at 163 Hillborough St., Charlottetown, P. E. I.

"For the past twelve months I've been in such an awful shape that I never expected to be a well man again. Everything I ate disagreed with me and scoured in my stomach and I would heat up with gas until I was fit to burst. I used to have such pains after every meal that I was afraid to eat and fell off in weight until I was as thin as a rail, and too weak to handle heavy timber. I also had a lot of trouble with my kidneys and had a continual pain across the small of my back. I was agony to use a saw or plane and I often had to lay off from work for as much as ten days at a time. The pain from my back was so bad at night that I rarely got very much sleep and was getting worse all the time.

"It was a lucky day for me when I took a friend's advice and tried Tanlac for the way that medicine acted on me was little short of marvellous, and just fixed me up in no time. I soon had such an appetite that I was hungry all the time and could eat anything I wanted and never suffer a particle from indigestion. The pains disappeared from my back and I haven't been bothered with my kidneys since. I have gained over ten pounds in weight and am so much stronger that I can do as much work in one day as I used to do in two. I'm on the job every day now and can work all day without getting tired. I sleep like a log every night and get up in the morning feeling just fine. I'm so delighted with what Tanlac did for me that I recommend it to others every chance I get."

Tanlac is sold in St. John by Ross Drug Co. and F. W. Munro under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative.—Adv.

Recognition of Soviet Government Will be Insisted on But Territorial Claims Slight.

Copyright, 1920, by Public Ledger Co. Geneva, July 28.—It is stated in well-informed Russian circles that the Soviet Government's terms for peace with Poland are—so far as territorial questions are concerned—comparatively moderate and conciliatory. No humiliating territorial conditions are to be imposed on the Poles.

But, on the other hand, the Bolsheviks demand unqualified recognition of the Russian Soviet republic by Poland and the establishment of a Soviet embassy, enjoying all the usual diplomatic prerogatives, in Warsaw.

The peace terms are based on the conviction prevailing in Moscow that defeated Poland is "ripe for Bolshevism" and can now be conquered more rapidly and easily by Red propaganda than by a further advance of the Red armies. The Soviet Government's decision to break off the Polish campaign was taken in spite of the opposition of the commanders of the drive on Warsaw. It proves that the power of the Red fanatics in Kremlin still predominates in Russia over the influence of the elements of the old regime now in their service, for it is a peace manoeuvre conceived in the true Bolshevik spirit, while the Red army commanders' desire to continue operations and win more victories is undoubtedly rooted in secret counter-revolutionary aims.

DOORKEEPER GETS BIG PAY Copyright, 1920, by Cross-Atlantic News Service. Paris, July 29.—A major-general, three majors and twelve captains have applied, states the Journal des Debates this evening, for the vacant post of doorkeeper at a big hotel in Vienna.

The advertised pay is about $21,000 a year. In the topsy-turvy condition of Austrian finances, this is not much. Bootmakers in Vienna receive $19,000 a year, while magistrates, whose scales of pay has not been altered since the war, only have just over $5,000.

Fairy Frocks Are Fashion's Favorites

Dresses Only Weigh Five Ounces So Delicate and Fragile Are They—Recall Titania and Her Fairies.

Copyright 1920 by Cross-Atlantic News Service. By Lydia K. Commander.

London, July 30.—More dressing and less clothing seems to be Fashion's note for this season. Drapery is of chiffon, nylon lace, and silk as fragile and diaphanous as those of Titania or her attendant fairies. One is reminded of India's floating gossamer fabric, so tenuous that a single comb is hardly visible. So delicate are the season's gowns that a recent writer described the ladies at a fashionable garden party as "drifting about like the lawn in a few ounces of lace."

This expression appealed to the imagination of an enterprising weekly, which proceeded to put some of the season's most fashionable toilettes to the test of the scales—with startling results.

The first toilette to be weighed consisted of a white charmeuse dress covered with a drapery of blonde lace over which could be worn a cloak of white tulle fringed with ostrich flocks and fastened by a handsome clasp of smethyst and silver. The whole weighed but was of white tulle with a large gauze rose as its sole ornament.

Actual experiment showed that the dress weighed eight ounces. As its cost was $200, its owner paid for it at the rate of $25 per ounce.

The tulle cloak weighed three ounces, the albes undergarments four and a half ounces, and the white brocade shoes with their pastel and silk ornaments and white silk stockings ten and three-quarter ounces.

A black charmeuse gown with a panned over-dress of fine black lace, a copy of a French model, weighed six ounces, the white undergarments and accompanying hat of black tulle with its hanging veil weighing two and a half ounces. Black brocade shoes weighed one ounce, the white stockings including undergarments, of twenty-eight ounces. Both dresses, according to the general rule of 1920, were sleeveless and short.

A dress of pale blue embroidered voile, worn by a young girl, which had sleeves to cover the elbow, weighed only five ounces. However, and its silken undergarments, with ribbon and tiny flower garlands, two and a quarter ounces. With it was worn a large hat of blue Bangkok straw trimmed with a circle ribbon, the whole weighing one and three-quarter ounces.

Stockings and shoes—in this case of white suede with beaded straps above the ankle—added thirteen ounces to its entirety.

The next gown, though the heaviest of those weighed, was certainly, as its owner tactfully described it, "the most striking" of the collection. It was of yellow net stitched with crystal beads and worn over a foundation of yellow crepe de chine, indistinguishable to the lay mind from a dance frock owing to its short low neck, and the entire absence of sleeves. This creation, thanks to its beads, weighed only twelve ounces, the hat of black straw which accompanied it being two and a quarter ounces, while the necessary cloak of yellow tulle lined with white and ounces, the heaviest of all the garments weighed.

In this case, too, corsets weighing eight ounces were worn, satin shoes were nine ounces, and the total weight of clothing worn was fifty-nine ounces.

Gloves, sunshade, bead chains and handbag are usually heavier than the actual clothing.

COSSACK UPRISING CAUSED PEACE MOVE

London Learns That Revolt of Cossacks in South Russia Forced Lenin's Hand.

By CARL W. AKERMAN. Special Cable Dispatch. (Copyright 1920, by Public Ledger Co.) London, July 30.—The British Government has learned that an uprising of Kuban and Don Cossacks against the Reds in South Russia caused the Reds' latest peace move. Lenin fears that unless the Soviet can make peace there may be serious revolts in the army, now that it is commanded by so many former generals of the Czar. "There is always danger of the army turning against Moscow if it becomes intoxicated with victory."

On the other hand, from a high authority, who was one of the last officials to confer with Mr. Lloyd George before the premier's departure for Boulogne, I learn that the premier went to France convinced that peace with the Bolsheviks was the alternative to a new European war. While Mr. Lloyd George feels the danger ahead even in discussion with the Bolsheviks, Lenin's moves are the lesser evil, for if the Allies do not negotiate it is doubtful whether a proletarian revolution in Poland can be averted.

Mr. Fernald also says that English actors are as a rule, actors than Americans, in that the smaller parts are better cast. English actresses, he thinks, are more English in temperament and emotional power.

"The young American playwrights have secured an unusual success of their trade, and the result box office has repaid them," said Fernald. "The younger British playwrights on the other hand have perhaps proved so successful with the general public, but they have not yet secured a higher standard of work."

"In England men like Galsworthy and Shaw are not so much interested in the dramatic as the young American playwrights are. The latter are more interested in the dramatic, and their work is more dramatic in its effect."

"The young American playwrights have secured an unusual success of their trade, and the result box office has repaid them," said Fernald. "The younger British playwrights on the other hand have perhaps proved so successful with the general public, but they have not yet secured a higher standard of work."

Long Distance Telephone Rates

The new schedule of Long Distance Rates as ordered by the Board of Commissioners of Public Utilities of New Brunswick, will go into effect on August 1st, and in order that the public may understand and take advantage of the different classes of service available, the following is given:

Station-to-Station Calls. Make your call for the number wanted; or if you do not know the number, give the name and address of the subscriber to the Toll Operator and tell her you will talk with ANY ONE there.

This is the simplest form of toll call and carries the lowest rate. There will be no charge for it unless connection is established with the TELEPHONE of the subscriber wanted. In most cases, this form of toll call will be found satisfactory and will save about 25 per cent., as compared with the person-to-person rate.

The station-to-station rate is computed on the basis of 5 cents for each six miles, up to 24 miles, and 5 cents for each eight miles beyond that distance, with a minimum charge of 10c. from 0 to 12 miles.

Person-to-Person Calls.—Where it is absolutely necessary that you speak to some particular person, tell the Toll Operator so.

The operator will endeavor to establish direct communication with the person wanted. If the call is completed, it will be charged at the person-to-person rate. If the particular person called for cannot be reached, the Operator will so report to the person calling; and if no further particulars can be supplied which will enable the Operator to locate the called person, and the order is then cancelled, there will be a report charge for the service rendered, approximately, one-fourth the station-to-station rate. If the caller desires, the Operator will continue her efforts to locate the particular person at any one toll center during the same day with but one report charge. If communication is finally established the same day on which the call was filed, the charge will be the regular person-to-person rate and there will be no report charge.

Person-to-Person calls require greater effort and, therefore, are charged for at a rate about 25 per cent. higher than the station-to-station rate. The minimum charge for such a call is 15 cents.

Collect Calls, that is calls on which the charges are to be reversed or paid for by the called party, are charged for at the person-to-person rate. The charges on a station-to-station toll call cannot be reversed.

There are also two special classes of person-to-person calls, Appointment Calls and Messenger Calls.

(1) Appointment Calls are person-to-person calls which provide that communication is to be arranged for establishment at a specified future time. The rates for appointment calls are approximately 50 per cent. higher than the rate for station-to-station messages between the same points or approximately 25 per cent. higher than the corresponding person-to-person rate to provide for the greater operating effort required to complete them. The report charge is applicable on this class of call.

(2) Messenger Calls are person-to-person calls on which the called person is not available at a telephone and on which the telephone company undertakes to notify him, by messenger or other means, that communication is desired with him by long distance telephone. Messenger service is furnished at cost on guarantee of payment by the calling person and the charges for such service are, in every case, in addition to the regular rates for messenger long distance calls which are the same as those for appointment calls, as explained in paragraph (1) above. The report charge applies to this class of call.

Reduced Rates for Night Long Distance Calls. Reduced rates for night service apply when the calls are on a station-to-station, person-to-person, appointment or messenger basis and are effective between 8:30 p.m. and 7 a.m. (Atlantic Standard Time). The night rates are approximately one-half of the day rates. The minimum night rate is 25 cents. Day rates apply on calls made at night when the charge is less than the minimum night rate.

McNelis and Rev. W. R. Robinson were the speakers of the evening, while Messrs. Johnston and Carson provided an excellent line of entertainment. After those present had enjoyed themselves to the full, they proceeded to demonstrate their faith in the G. B. O. A. by subscribing one thousand dollars toward building the club house. In view of the fact that a large number were unable to be present, the officers feel that the above sum is very encouraging, and that with co-operation the club house is an assured fact. While the gentlemen were enjoying themselves in the hall, the ladies were spending a pleasant evening at the home of Mrs. Joseph Irvine, where they met for the purpose of discussing the finishing of the new club house. During the evening, Miss Mildred Barnes sang several solos which were very much enjoyed.

THE WESTMONT BOYS' CLUB STORIES Uncle Wiggly And Jimmie's Jitney

Together some bones and a little meat left over from lunch. He placed these in the vestibule and the dog was soon appeased...

Albert's father on coming down, also proceeded to make friends with the dog. Even Mrs. Rankine, who in preparing the morning meal had caught sight of them out of the kitchen window...

Albert asked, "What's his name?" "Why, sure!" quacked Jimmie. "The rabbit uncle was slowly and painfully getting up to take a seat in the dog's car..."

"Stop! stop!" howled the fox, holding fast with his paws. But Jimmie did not stop. He went faster. The bottom came out of the jitney, and let the fox down on the ground with a bump that sent his teeth bit his tongue.

"Oh, do you call this a nice jitney ride?" mumbled the fox to Jimmie. "Well, I couldn't help it," said the duck boy trying not to laugh.

Rough and Ready Taxicabing

The writer has been around to many different cities lately owing to the Republican and Democratic and have made a study of the taxicab service in each and every city and figured out that perhaps the boys that have been in all these cities would like to know some information in regard to the taxicab service in those different cities. HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

By C. N. Lurie

Common Errors in English and How to Avoid Them

"AN INDIVIDUAL." Like the word "party" used frequently and incorrectly to mean "person," the word "individual" does not mean a person, a man, a woman, a child. It means simply a single person, or animal, or thing, as in the following sentences: "The orator addressed the convention, and spoke to the delegates in general; his remarks were not directed toward any individual in the vast assemblage." "I can distinguish the individual stars in the constellation."

The foregoing illustrate the correct use of the word. The following give an example of incorrect usage: "The man who was speaking was a short, stout individual." In this case say "fellow" or "person" or "man." The use of the word "individual" instead of "person," etc., as in so many other cases, has arisen in part, no doubt, from the desire of some persons to employ long words, thinking to display thereby their superior knowledge. Before you use a long word, be sure that it is correct.

Nuisances All. "What we want to do," shouted the man who settles every question with ease, "is to get rid of scoundrels, bohemians, anarchists, radicals and soviets." "True," commented Farmer Cornusel. "And while you're about it, you might as well throw in rheumatism."

Tough If She Did. "She broke the engagement. He says it will be a long time before he gets engaged again." "Why? Did she keep the ring?" "Doubtless. The reason some men don't touch their wives to drive the car is because they want to have a car to drive themselves occasionally."

San Francisco Takes the Prize. "That was before I seen San Francisco. In that old burg, they don't drive on no side of the street in particular, but they usually begin in the middle and then zigzag like as if they was trying to avoid a submarine or a earthquake, which in our language is called a fire. The ideal driver of a taxicab in San Francisco would be Amutee Ketterman, because all you do is drive. One of the taxicab burglars out there told me that they was a shortage of gasoline in the city and you couldn't only get it at a time and I says what of it, as you are always coasting, which is the truth. All you need in San Francisco is a good set of brakes, though I must say that we didn't get very good breaks out there politically speaking. However, I want to say one thing for San Francisco. While they might charge more money for a ride than anywhere else in the grand old country which has nicknamed the United States, why still and all they give you more thrills and hills than any other there and the boy said that was the way he had learned to drive and couldn't drive no other way so the traffic policemen said go ahead and go to our destination unburt and unangry and I says to the lady with me, whatever this bird charges, we won't kick because he has give us a lot of thrills."

"San Francisco is the Best Place to Get a Thrill in a Taxi."

SAWING WOOD. Sawing Wood is a healthful and pleasing occupation which has gone out of vogue owing to the shortage of wood and muscle. When this country was young it produced immense quantities of wood, which people wished had grown somewhere else. The principal product of every farm was the tenacious scrub oak, which had to be stumped and removed by force. A cord of wood which had shrunk a foot on each end could be bought for $2, and it became a favorite pastime to exchange six feet of second-growth hickory for a weekly newspaper carrying nine able-bodied rowers on the editorial page the issue after election. Wood grew so fast in those days that there was a sawmill in every home. Every right-minded husband sawed the wood for the family or saw it to that somebody else did, which amounts to the same thing. This is where our ancestors got their profuse appetites. After one of the Pilgrim Fathers had sawed a cord of hard maple wood before breakfast, with a saw whose teeth were as dull as a lecture on the origin of man, he would develop an appetite which would not back away from a section of composition roofing. Nowadays people saw just as much wood as they used to, but they use a different kind of saw. Huge piles of wood are being sawed every day by men who manage to support a family on small wages, most all of their bills and contribute to the church. If a lot of young men who find it hard work

Every man should be in possession of this book. One part describes a little drugless mechanical vibrator which I make and distribute, but whether or not you wish to see one of these vitalizers is for yourself to determine. However, aside from anything it contains in reference to a vitalizer, the book should be read by all. It is a real worth. Therefore, please use free coupon below.

Reader, the whole world is today alive to the importance of a better general understanding of sex hygiene. The much-discussed science of eugenics is teaching the great masses of people that strong, healthy, rugged parents beget equally sturdy children. Manhood, no matter where or in what condition of life we find it, is the single power that most fascinates both men and women. The one who radiates this manly influence, this result of a vigorous, sturdy nerve force, is the one who forces to the front, while weaker people stand aside. If it is my opinion that any man may hope for a complete restoration of his manhood and vigor if he but

THE MYSTERY OF THE ARK

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS. The International Sunday School Lesson for August 1st is "David Brings The Ark To Jerusalem—1 Samuel 6: 1-19; Ps. 24:7-10."

Jerusalem has moved on to the front pages of the newspapers. Almost daily we have dispatches concerning Zionism and Palestine and the political and military ferment in and about the "city of peace." The most popular illustrated lecture that either Great Britain or America has known for years has been Lowell Thomas' presentation of the Allosy campaign for the capture of Jerusalem. Public interest in the topic seems to grow rather than diminish. As I myself travel about the land this year, lecturing, I am asked often about Jerusalem and the war that has been going on there. The holy city is anew the shrine of human hearts the world around.

And today's Sunday School Lesson tells the story of how Jerusalem became a religious capital. When King David took the Ark of the Covenant to Jerusalem, with festal rejoicings such as the East can display, he then fixed the status of his stronghold as the spiritual shrine of his people, the haven of human hearts throughout the ages. All the religious devotion that centers in Jerusalem today is direct heir of this celebration of the entrance of the Ark of the Lord into the city. Last year, at the Jews' Walling Place in Jerusalem, I was moved by the spectacle of a modern and prosperous-looking young New York Jew, with his wife and sisters and two little children, resting and kissing the stones that remain from the walling of the venerable European Jews who are there professionally. No change in material conditions, and no modern sophistication, can wane the human spirit from its innate reverence for and quest after spiritual things.

Processions of the Centuries. American scholars and ignorant Russian peasants alike journey to Jerusalem at the impulse of religion. Political Zionism may be impractical, but the Jerusalem of David and Jesus will ever be the homeland of faith to countless millions of reverent souls. One's imagination is stirred by contemplation of the long succession of pilgrimages throughout the ages, from the return of the Babylonian exiles, the visit of the Holy Family, the search of Queen Helena, and the Crusades, down to the entrance of Allenby's Crusaders, who have followed in the train of this triumphal entry of the Ark of the Lord into the eternal city.

Deeper than any political allegiance, deeper than any personal ambition, deeper than any considerations of expediency, runs the religious strain in the spirit of man. In hours of greatest crisis, when the human soul stands bare, its instinctive cry is for God. Faith is among the first of human qualities, and one of the last. From the babyhood prayer at a mother's knee to the last expression of trust as the fog of death sweeps in incalculably religious animal. No life, no estate, no nation is well established unless its foundations are laid in religion.

Better Than Political Platforms. Like the great king that he was, David made worship of Jehovah central to his kingdom. He united his people in the worship of God. There is no common tie of patriotism greater than the faith of the fathers. Even Russia could not be disintegrated by the Bolsheviks until they had outlawed the Church; and now, report has it, they have suspended all anti-Church measures. Even irreligious men understand the fundamental place that religion has in national life. We are serving our country when we are making the Church strong and vital. It was Kipling who wrote:

"Hold ye the Faith, the Faith our fathers sealed us, Whom not with idle visions, over-wise and over-stale; Except ye pay the Lord, single heart and single awe, in their bondage, Of your children in their trouble-tale! Nobody will study this old Lesson aright who does not get from it a living message concerning the vital place of religion in the life of the nation today. All that is wrong with us will be made right if we return to the Lord in humble obedience. Things are wrong between the nations and between the classes simply because things are wrong between men and God. Although they seem depressingly unaware of it, the final word for the Christian people to whom has been committed the Ark of the Lord. Let it be said most explicitly that every man or woman who is helping to build up a local church in vital applied religion is doing the most definite and direct form of patriotic service. Teaching a Sunday school class efficiently is as true an evidence of patriotism as carrying a gun in the national army. When we

College Inn Has Moir's Bread

It's true enough that there was a little row between the College Inn and the Bakers' Union.

However, an error is an error. And when one is made, it should be corrected.

The College Inn, through the columns of The Times, in which paper the mistake was made, did call the public's attention to the typographical omission.

And so 105 Charlotte Street still handles Moir's, at 16 cents, without causing strife locally.

An error is an error. And it should, at least, be remedied.

Returned From The Conference

Hon. Dr. W. F. Roberts Attended Conference of Canadian Union of Municipalities at Quebec, Also Trip to Ottawa.

Hon. Dr. W. F. Roberts, Provincial Minister of Health, returned to the city last evening. He had been attending the conference of the Canadian Union of Municipalities at Quebec and a trip to Ottawa to interview the Postmaster General on behalf of the Provincial Government in regard to the franking regulations put through the Federal House at its last session.

To a Standard reporter last evening the Provincial Minister of Health said that the Postmaster General had put through these franking regulations in order to stamp out the abuse that had been made of the franking privileges. The regulations were extremely drastic and, unfortunately, interfered with several important federal services, among which was that of vital statistics.

The Deputy Minister, Hon. Dr. Roberts said, had no idea of the far-reaching effects of this legislation and was quite willing after a conference to bring the matter to the attention of the Minister of the department. He felt satisfied that some form of remedial measure would be brought about to provide until amended legislation could be brought down.

While at Quebec, Dr. Roberts had addressed the Canadian Union of Municipalities, in response to a special invitation, on "Latest Ideas on Public Health." He divided his subject under three heads. The first was that of education, as it was most essential that the public should become receptive of the importance of public health.

He then dwelt on the subject from the housing standpoint. There was no subject, he said, of more importance in settling the present chaotic conditions than the question of the proper provision of housing. Its place should be under the Ministry of Health. To back up this statement, he cited the authority of the British Government, which has placed housing under the Ministry of Health and 23,000 houses are being built in the British Isles under the stipulations of the health department. The reason that housing should be included is because the people spend three-quarters of their time in houses, and it was his ideal to build houses in such a way that the occupants would be surrounded with an atmosphere that would make for their moral and physical well-being.

The third and last idea that Dr. Roberts presented to the Conference was the necessary control of Public Health by the Government through the Ministry of Health. He argued that this service should be given a status and be put on the same footing as the other services of government. It was at least of equal importance with the various other services of government, because it pertains to the health and the very existence in fact of the people for whom these other services are being carried on.

Speaking further about the question of housing in the city and province generally and its prevailing evils, the Minister of Health said that it was his intention of putting through legislation which would not allow a house to be built unless it had first been provided with water and sewerage.

Returned From The Conference

Hon. Dr. W. F. Roberts Attended Conference of Canadian Union of Municipalities at Quebec, Also Trip to Ottawa.

Hon. Dr. W. F. Roberts, Provincial Minister of Health, returned to the city last evening. He had been attending the conference of the Canadian Union of Municipalities at Quebec and a trip to Ottawa to interview the Postmaster General on behalf of the Provincial Government in regard to the franking regulations put through the Federal House at its last session.

To a Standard reporter last evening the Provincial Minister of Health said that the Postmaster General had put through these franking regulations in order to stamp out the abuse that had been made of the franking privileges. The regulations were extremely drastic and, unfortunately, interfered with several important federal services, among which was that of vital statistics.
