As I looked at him a fresh idea occurred to me, which I at once carried out. I unbuttoned his tunic and pulled it off, took off my coat and put it on him; lifted the body and laid it on the bed, partly turned over on the face, and with the coverlid thrown carelessly over the legs. The decep ion would not have stood an instant's examination by daylight, but I trusted to a dim light and the haste of the murderers. I put on his tunic and cap, and took out my watch and laid it, with all my loose silver and a few gold coins, on the table, and put my pocket-book beside them, having first taken out all the notes and valuable papers. It seemed an age before I heard a creaking on the stairs—I believe that it was about an hour and a half. I was more fidgety and nervous for the crisis than actually afraid of it; for even if the worst came to the worst, and the trick was discovered, I felt that the chances were all now in my favor. I was cert in that if I were to sally suddenly out when an exclamation told that they perceived something unusual in their victim, or when they attempted to move the body, their surprise and horror at the appearance of what they would take for the spectre of their victim of the previous night would so paralyse them that I should be able to dispose of a couple of them at least before they could recover from their first fright, and that the others would probably make a headlong bolt down stairs. Indeed, I almost questioned whether in any case this would not be the best course to adopt, and was only deterred from it by the idea that there might be more of At Hat and Fur Warehouse, I had arrived on horseback late in the 23 Send for Catalogue, which we mai gratis to all who wish. evening, at the hotel of a little village, D. Railways are good things, but we must not have too much of public evenue and private capital buried in them. The gigantic scheme that has been propounded should not be adopted without the fullest discussion and the most careful consideration. The educational concessions demand ed by the Catholics will again be under discussion. We are sorry to see the Freeman, the organ of that branch of the Christian Church, demanding these concessions, or rather the overthrow of the system, in a most unchristian tone. The Freeman's attack on the School Law as Godless, and on its upholders as atherists, while appealing for the manifestation of a Godlike spirit of concession, is about as consistent as the profanity of a father while beating his son for swearing. Nothing was ever got by abusing those of whom anything was asked. The changes to be proposed in the Common Schools Act by the Government are few Schools Act by the discussion. We are sorry to see the Schools Act by the Government are few or none—certainly not such changes a will give satisfaction to the Catholice. Some look to the House for the required changes. We believe the House will be guided by the Government in this matter. The first consideration is to save the assessment system, and thus prevent our retrograding into the old degradation. To save the system we would grant separate schools, or almost any other demand. But here is where the shoe pinches. The question for the shoe pinches. The question for the shoe pinches. BR. LEARY—Dear Sir.—I have been afflicted with Rheumatism for thirteen years. I have tried every med cine recommended, but very little relief obtained, until I heard of your ALBION LINIWENT, which, after using three building was enveloped in flames. The impacts of the house were Mehr, his wife, six children, his futher, in law, and a har. at the corner of Heidelfact avenue and John street. In a few moments the building was enveloped in flames. The inmates of the house were Mehr, his wife, six children, his father-in-law, and a bar six children, his father-in-law, and a bar keeper named George. Of these only the father-in-law and two children escaped from the flames. When the reporter reached the ground Mehr's father in-law stood on the walk weeping and relating that he was awakened by snoke and heard Chris. calling the bar keeper who could not be awakened. Mrs. Mehr, he said, had rushed out of the house with two children, whom she dropped and returned to the house, but never came forth again. As possible search was made for the bodles and all the missing ones were found. Mehr when found, had the youngest child clasped in his arms. The remains of both were charred as were the others.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

A MONG the great discoveries of modern science, few are of more real value to mankind than this effectual remedy for all diseases of the Throat and Lungs. A vast trial of its virtues, throughout this and other countries, has shown that it does surely and effectually control them. The testimony of our best citizens, of all classes, establishes the fact that Cherry Pectoral will and does relieve and oure the afflicting disorders of the Throat and Lungs beyond any other medicine. The most dungerous affections of the Pulmonary Organs yield to its power; and cases of Consumption, cured by this preparation, are publicly known, so remarkable as hardly to be believed, were they not proven beyond dispute. As a remedy it is adequate, on which the public may rely for full protection. By enging Coughs, the forerunners of more serious disease, it sayes unnumbered lives, and an mount of suffering not to be computed. It challenges trial, and convinces the most sceptical. Every family should keep it on hand as a protection against the early and unperceived attack of Pulmonary Affections, which are easily met at first, but which become ineurable, and too often fatal, if neglected. Tentungs need this decence; and it is unwise to without it. As a safeguard to children, amid the distressing diseases which beset the Throat and Chest of childhood, Cherry Pectoral is invaluable; for, by its timely use, multitudes are rescued from premature graves, and sayed to the love and affection centered on them. It acts speedi v and surely against ordinary colds, securing sound and health-restoring sleep. No one will suffer troublesome Influenza and painful Bronehitis, when they know how easily they can be cured. Prepared by Br. J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass., Practical and Analytical Chemists. Sold by all Druggists Everywhere.
