Weimar, Sunday, July 6.—The German National Assembly is still debating the new constitution and has endorsed the article qualifying any male citizen, native or naturalized, who has attained the age of 32 for the office of president. ## The New Peril

London, July 7.—Robert Cecil, reporting on the 5th July, states that the economic situation in Europe was as serious as it could possibly be. The people were unable to get sufficient food and there was a general breakdown of all transportation. The whole system of credit was seriously injured or absolutely destroyed. The most urgent problem of foreign states, was to try to get right the economic position, "and for that purpose must be prepared if necessary to come to the assistance of the weaker nations." He said that the world was in a perilous position, and that the only way to save it was to try to get right the economic position, "and for that purpose must be prepared if necessary to come to the assistance of the weaker nations." ## THERE IS DANGER IN TENDER GUMS

To preserve healthy teeth the ordinary tooth-paste is futile. You must first care for the gums, on which tooth health depends.

How many people think of this? Yet four out of five people over forty suffer from gum-decay, or Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease).

At first the gums become tender, though actual gum-shrinkage is imperceptible. But in time receding gums will surely loosen your teeth, and then only a dentist can save them. The tender, bleeding gums of Pyorrhea also act as so many doorways for disease germs to enter the system—infecting joints or tonsils—or causing other ailments.

Forhan's (For the Gums) prevents Pyorrhea, if used in time and used consistently. This means that it prevents gum-shrinkage, gum-tenderness, gum-bleeding, etc., automatically. Forhan's prevents tooth loosening.

Brush your teeth with it. It scientifically cleans the teeth—keeps them white and clean.

If gum shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for treatment.

LADY PINK TOES HAS HER INNINGS

There is no excuse today for women to have ugly, painful corns

For a few cents you can yet a quarter ounce of the magic drug freeze recently discovered by a Cincinnati chemist.

Apply a few drops of this freeze upon a tender, aching corn or callous and instantly, yes, immediately, the soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callous so loose that you lift it out, root and all, with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain during the applying of freeze or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns, or corns between the toes, also harden callouses on bottom of feet, just seem to shrivel up and fall off without hurting a particle. It is almost magical.

THINK A MINUTE

WHAT is your doctor's first question? Why does he suspect constipation?

Because 90% of his patients are suffering from ailments caused directly or indirectly by the action of poisons formed in a sluggish intestinal tract.

These body poisons are absorbed by the blood and carried all over the body until the weakest organ, unable to withstand the poisonous contact, becomes infected and refuses to act properly. Unfortunately it is usually not until then that the doctor is consulted and asked to treat the diseased organ.

The surest way of purifying the blood and preventing the formation of these destructive body poisons is to prevent stagnation of food waste in the intestinal tract—to prevent constipation.

Constipation is not a matter to be taken lightly or neglected. Nor is it either sufficient or safe to take castor oil, pills, salts, mineral waters, etc., in order to "force" bowel action. Such action does not cure constipation, it makes constipation a habit.

Nujol is entirely different from drugs as it does not force or irritate the bowels. Nujol prevents stagnation by softening the food waste and encouraging the intestinal muscles to act naturally, thus removing the cause of constipation and self-poisoning. It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Nujol helps Nature establish easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world. Get a bottle from your druggist today.

Warning: Nujol is sold in sealed bottles bearing the Nujol Trade Mark. All druggists list on Nujol. You may suffer from substitutes.

MANAGERS OF SENATE AND HOUSE OF COMMONS FAIL TO AGREE ON PROHIBITION

IS THE HAPPIEST
WOMAN IN STATE

That Is What Mrs. Poe Says
After Tanlac Restores Health —Gains Thirty Pounds.

"The results I have gotten from Tanlac are so wonderful that I feel compelled to tell everybody about it," said Mrs. John Poe of 601 South Third street, Pekin, Illinois, while in the St. Louis and Canada store at Peoria, recently.

"I don't believe," she continued, "anyone could suffer much more than I did before I got Tanlac and my recovery has made me the happiest woman in Illinois."

"I tell you I have gained more than thirty pounds, but I have and my daughters here with me will tell you the same thing. Why, my stomach was in such a bad fix that everything I ate caused me to suffer agony. Time never ticked during the past fifteen years the gas would press on my heart, so that I would faint. Great drops of perspiration would stand out on my face and when I regained consciousness I would be as limp as a rag. Lots of times my neighbors would come in, thinking I was going to die. I didn't dare go any place, for fear one of these spells would come on me, and I wouldn't get home. I also suffered beyond words to tell with rheumatism in my feet and legs and elbows."

"I had taken medicine until I was so discouraged and despondent that I didn't care how soon the end came. For I felt that it wasn't far off. My husband urged me to get Tanlac, and, oh, how glad I am that I did, for I began to eat and sleep better in two or three days after I began taking it. My troubles have all disappeared now, and my recovery is the greatest surprise that ever came to me. I can eat just anything I want and lots of it, and never suffer a particle from it. In fact, my stomach seems to be in perfect condition, as good as when I was a girl, and I haven't had one of those awful smothering, fainting spells since I began taking Tanlac, and as to the rheumatism, I never feel a sign of it any more. My head used to feel dull and hurt me in the mornings, but that is all gone, too, and I don't reckon anyone ever had more cause to feel thankful than I have. It just feels like I owe my life to Tanlac and I only wish I had known about it long ago."

My husband urged me to get Tanlac, and, oh, how glad I am that I did, for I began to eat and sleep better in two or three days after I began taking it. My troubles have all disappeared now, and my recovery is the greatest surprise that ever came to me. I can eat just anything I want and lots of it, and never suffer a particle from it. In fact, my stomach seems to be in perfect condition, as good as when I was a girl, and I haven't had one of those awful smothering, fainting spells since I began taking Tanlac, and as to the rheumatism, I never feel a sign of it any more. My head used to feel dull and hurt me in the mornings, but that is all gone, too, and I don't reckon anyone ever had more cause to feel thankful than I have. It just feels like I owe my life to Tanlac and I only wish I had known about it long ago."

VETERANS WANT VICTORY BONDS MADE TAXABLE

Would Make Individual Holdings in Excess of $10,000 Assessable.

VANCOUVER, July 5.—The report of the industrial committee was dealt with when the first section of a convention, and veterans to the support of law and order, and denouncing the attempted control of organized labor by extremists had been considered, Comrade Eastwood of Winnipeg asked that an amendment be made, adding to the clause II, the following:

"That this association is unalterably opposed to all exploitative combines which seek to control the governing body of this country."

"That the Dominion Government be urged to introduce a steeply graduated income tax to have the effect of restoring to the people all excess profits made during the war, and that the British system of inheritance and succession duties be adopted in Canada."

"That the Government be asked to introduce as soon as possible legislation which would make all war bonds in excess of $10,000 held by any one individual a part of the taxable income."

"That if the Government considers the foregoing provisions inadequate to meet the needs of the case, the G.W.V.A. should pledge itself to support even more drastic measures, even to the confiscation of wealth if necessary."

After prolonged discussion of the proposed amendment, most of which was favorable, Comrades Eastwood, Calder and McPherson were appointed in committee to draw up the amendment in final form, the rough draft having been indorsed in principle.

Abundant Knowledge Within Reach of Everyone Today

The soap-boxer at one time was wont to de-claim that his children had no chance to secure an education. He made much of the unfairness of a system that sent a boy or girl into the world un-lettered and handicapped hopelessly in the race for success and position. There may have been some justice in his complaint, although it is some-times difficult to reconcile ignorance with the op-portunities for learning that have existed for many generations. And today the man who com-plaints that he cannot give his children an educa-tion that will equip them adequately is simply a sluggard who will not think and is not fit to be the custodian of future citizens.

At every hand are the facilities for becoming adept at almost every trade and profession with-out vast expenditure and without loss of time. First, the elementary schools are making every boy and girl more efficient than ever. The methods of teaching the most important of all subjects, reading, by means of which the door to almost all knowledge is opened, are improved by many degrees. Children learn the elementary things well today. They get language quickly, and are told how deep a mine is the dictionary, and what worlds of knowledge lie within the doors of modern public libraries. A library is a school in itself. There is no trade or profession that may not be developed from the shelves of a library. There is no course of learning that may not be accelerated by a simple glance through a library catalogue, plus the resolution to make use of the tools on the library shelves.

Take the trade of writing for instance. In a public library a man may secure all the techni-cal works on writing that have been published. If his tools are words, he is taught the use of words, and if he realize that words are the things with which he must work he is something of a dunce if he does not take some of the in-struction of his calling that lies so conveniently around him. If he wishes to become an adver-tising specialist, the library has the rudiments of that trade for the aspiring. The trouble is that most men and women make no effort to get beyond the fundamental things. They look for business to develop them, and wonder why they do not advance. They should realize that self-development is a clear way to success, and that it is the simplest thing, rather than the most abstruse thing, with which a life may be confronted. Too much hope is based on "inspira-tion" and not a sufficient amount on application.

It is hardly necessary to point to the abun-dant stores of knowledge offered by collegiate institutes and technical schools. Here, for every student that comes, is provided the best skill that may be secured. Not only are the staffs willing to help, they are eager to help every student to acquire knowledge that means advancement. There is general education for many and specialized education for others. There is scarcely a lesson that need be wasted if parents and children are keenly alive to what education means in each particular life. Bookkeeping and stenography may be of little service to a pros-pective mechanical engineer, but physics and a technical course are of the greatest value. How many parents realize what a close survey of our educational facilities means to their children? Let it be hoped that a great many are thinking of it, because here lies co-operation with the system of education, costing millions of dollars, that makes the whole range of school attendance vital to the community.

Night courses, special summer courses, lec-tures on special subjects—anyone who wants education in these days is a dullard if he does not get it. And it requires only a few years in the world to realize how much education means.

A Patched-Up "Peace"

In this street railway business it looks as though someone were trying to be very subtle. We don't quite know whether it's the street rail-way or the employees or the city council. But there has been a lot of shadow-fighting and pussy-footing, quite a bit of bluffing and a good deal of gallery-playing.

The street railway was after higher fares. It couldn't get the city council to grant these fares by means of an airtight agreement. The com-pany kept fencing with the council. Negotiations were wound up with a refusal to grant the in-crease.

Then (and of course we are expected to be-lieve it was a coincidence) came the strike. It is not suggested the strikers consciously or willingly permitted themselves to be used as tools. They did go out at the well-known psychological mo-ment, however.

It is an open fact that the strike brought about a poor kind of compromise which will probably be knocked into a cocked hat the first time it is attacked for legality.

The strike was a convenient thing for the company and it came at a moment when the company threw up its hands and quite willingly locked up the cars.

Poor, dear, helpless street railway! Why does anyone suggest that the company did not feel so terribly bad when its motormen and conductors walked out?

Simply because it looks like a case of playing the game with a touch of the grand old bluff which makes poker so fascinating.

London is quite willing, in fact, glad, to see the cars running and the men getting as much as 44 cents an hour, which is only a fair wage. But the problem by no means is solved. One aldermanic report declares the railway made a clear profit of $44,000 last year. The prospects, with Sunday cars to Springbank, and a general traffic increase, must be quite as favorable in 1919.

The problem will be solved when all this subtle work is ended and everyone puts cards on the table.

Price-Fixing in Canada

Price-fixing organizations which operate by gentlemen's agreements and unwritten laws, and combines which make no effort to disguise their purpose are known to exist in connection with many articles that are absolutely necessary in the upkeep of the home. And for many years we have been told that quantity production and working agreements build up trade and eliminate cutthroat competition. Prices have been "stabilized," and one big packing house knows another will not cut prices, but will compete only by means of speeded-up salesmanship of one kind or another. Therefore it doesn't care much about prices—so long as they are high enough.

If the old-time corporation was regarded as having no soul, the corporation that was subject to price competition and that had no market control, what kind of a soul can the present vast combinations be expected to have? If the ten-dency of business is selfish, if the temptation to regard the public as blind is uppermost, it is natural that these combinations will send prices upward rather than downward. They will hold foodstuffs against a rise in price and will keep foodstuffs and other necessities from flooding the market. The old-time law of supply and demand doesn't mean a thing to the combines. They know the fixed demand, but they take care that supply shall never go beyond demand, and that demand shall be pulling rather than supply rushing eagerly forward to clutter up the market places and force down prices.

The old way or the new? With the old method of competition on price as well as on selling the public was aware that it had a chance. Now it believes itself to be ground between the upper and the nether millstone, and that the pressure is necessarily kept up if enormous dividends are to be paid.

It's all wrong that artificial conditions and restraining combinations should have control of necessities. If the excess food supplies are to be played with by speculators—and that is really the crux of the game—the country should take the gambling device out of private hands and go into the business for itself. If the whole thing is something of a gamble, at least let us create the odds by the pari-mutuel system rather than give the bookmakers all the velvet.

As to Tax-Exempt Bonds

The present Parliament is passing to a close without consideration of the victory bond situa-tion as it affects the income tax. British Columbia has sent word that a provincial tax will be im-posed on these bonds, and since the last loan was floated a steady traffic has served to draw many hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of the war securities into the hands of the men with large incomes. At present non-taxable loans to the extent of $1,300,000,000 are held in the country.

Take the case of the 100 or 300 per cent profiteer. His company pays a tremendous re-turn after having contributed a certain amount to the country by means of the excess profits tax. The man whose stock holding returned in the neighborhood of $100,000 finds that he will be taxed more than 30 per cent of his income unless he finds means of protecting it. What is his most natural course, unless he happens to be willing to give up the 30 per cent? He will make an effort to turn this income into victory bonds, with the result that the country loses the percentage of his income which should have come to the treasury to pay a mite of the war burden, and he is saved a sum of money equivalent to at least 30 per cent of his income by reason of his heavy purchase of bonds.

The United States found that there was an evil attaching to tax-exempt bonds. So it cut down the exemption. It faced serious objections, but the answer given was that a war bond investment entailed some degree of patriotism, and that if a man would not accept a fair rate of interest to invest for the good of his country he could not be regarded as possessing the patriotism that was asked of him. Sir Thomas White has stated, in answer to the Liberal criticisms of exempt war bonds, that he believed this exemption to be neces-sary to float the loans.

This is not a pleasant thought for those of "the little fellows" who strained to buy a small bond because a thousand ringing slogans told them that their country needed the money. These people did not invest because of the hope of en-richment or protection. They wished to assist the country. They would do so again. It is the great incomes that were sensitive, and Sir Thomas White's opinion comes from those who saw a chance to circumvent the income tax collector.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Senate is torn by conflicting emotions—its own long thirst and party allegiance.

The late end of the street railway franchise is not so profitable. How about the early end of it?

Joffre has been called on for his alibis and his convincing explanations only reflect greater credit on him and his troops in the early days of 1914 campaign.

Another air victory for the British! And the steady voyage of the R34 over the Atlantic makes certain that navigation by dirigible is practicable and capable of development in the near future.

"Investigator" Nesbitt maintains that the premier has a perfect right to be making money in the cold storage business, and that his com-pany did no profiteering. Only 50 per cent or so! As mild-mannered a profiteer as ever cut a throat or pickled a ham. If M. P.'s go on ap-proving of these things, the letters themselves will stand for "mild-mannered profiteer" or "packer."

LOOSE MILK.
By Dora Molan.

Mrs. Browning placed a severe straw sash on her head and snapped the elas-tic under the heavy coils of her brown hair. Then she buttoned her trig tail-ored suit, carrying on at the same time a conversation with her daughter, who was dressing in the next room.

"A morning like this makes me wish some kind fairy would change this stuff chapeau into a sunbonnet and this skirt into an old dress and sweater; then it she would transform my bag into a rake and whisk me away to Stonchill, oh! what's the use of wishing? But I can just smell that brown earth! Cheerio, Rena! Just two months more of grinding the elements of Latin into those flibberty-gibbert girls' heads! Well—with a sigh—"we'll have oyster stew for dinner; don't forget, Rena, to run over to the store and get a quart of loose milk. I have examination papers to correct and won't be home early."

Rena, left alone, completed her toilet and hurried out. She didn't have far to go, as her school was only three blocks away. On opening the street door a warm puff of air struck her in the face. "Mother isn't at all strict," she soliloquized, "and grimy-faced kids get on just as well as high school girls. Poor kiddies! They ought to be out playing in the green fields themselves instead of in the shadow of this eternally gloomy elevator."

As often happens in the variable month of April, there was a decided change in the temperature that afternoon. Rena walked home against a chilly wind and decided that it would be a good time to stay in and start those gingham dresses for the country. Working on them would make the approaching vacation seem more restful.

Rena was intense by nature. What she did she did with all her might. Glancing up at the clock after close absorption in her work, she dumped the fabric from her lap and hastened into the kitchen. Her mother, who had been in half an hour anyway, perhaps before. Dinner was not started.

"Let's see," Rena stared. And I have to go out after the milk." Taking a small pail from its hook, she inquired of nobody at all. Now where's the cover? But that article eluded her search. "Well, I'll have to go without it and mind my step, that's all!"

Ten minutes later the hoots of Rena emerged from the grocery carefully carrying the pail and head down, against the wind, hurried across the street, turned the corner and collided with a young man who was approach-ing from the opposite direction. There were direful results. The "loose" milk no longer occupied the pail. Most of it spread out over the dark overcoat of the stranger, trickling thence to the sidewalk.

"Oh!" exclaimed Rena. "What in blazes—" began the young man. But at this point he raised his head from rueful contemplation of the coat, looked at the embarrassed girl and shifted to this remark: "It's rather of a mess, isn't it?"

Rena was forced to agree. "If you'll come up to my mother's apartment, I'll wipe it off with cold water, and I don't think it will show."

It has been said that the young man looked at Rena, but it has not been re-lated what he saw; and it was what he saw, quite as much as the desire to have his coat made respectable again, that caused the stranger to accept the invitation with alacrity. Rena, with her laughing brown eyes and abundant, glossy brown hair, was easy to look upon.

Mrs. Browning, opening the door of the apartment soon afterward, heard laughing voices and followed them to their source in the kitchen. She beheld her daughter busily scrubbing at a coat while a young man with the sort of light hair that never stays put, and good-natured grey eyes, looked on.

"Oh, mother!" Rena exclaimed, laughing. "This is Mr. Morse. I was just returning from the store with the milk and I ran straight into him turn-ing the corner. Most of the milk landed on his coat, so the least I could do was to offer to clean it off."

Mrs. Browning shook hands with the young man. He told her he was spending a short vacation in the city. "You don't need to tell me you're from the country," she said; "your color gives you away. Sit down and tell us what the country looks like this time of the year. We were long-ing only this morning to be there. We own a little house at Stonchill, upstate, and we hope some day to be able to buy a few more acres and start a market garden. It's our pipe dream."

Morse hardly waited for Mrs. Brown-ing to finish speaking. "That's my work, market gardening! Just at present I'm managing a millionaire's farm out in Westchester County, but I've saved money enough to buy a place of my own, and I'm on the look-out for one."

"Stay to dinner with us, won't you, Mr. Morse," said Mrs. Browning, "and we can have the time of our lives, talking farm."

The young man looked his accept-ance, as the mother continued: "We'll try the oysters; they'll be just as good that way."

All through the dinner young Morse talked mostly to his mother, but his eyes, sooner or later, turned often to the daughter. He was much interested in the acres adjoining the Brownings' little country place, and inquired who owned them. Then, waxing brave, he told how lonesome he had been during his stay in the city, and wondered whether, if he should get the tickets, they would go to a play with him. And before the visitor left it was arranged.

It was the evening before his vaca-tion ended that Anthony Morse walked thoughtfully from the subway to the Brownings' apartment. He had a piece of news to tell and a proposition to make.

The mother had been so wonderfully good to him, a total stranger! And that she longed to get away from school life, he was sure. But the daughter? How did she regard him? That was the question. She had been pleasant and friendly to be sure, but—

The door of the apartment opened when Anthony had come thus far in his thoughts and he entered. "Good evening, Mr. Morse. I have to apolo-gize for mother's absence, but she will be in shortly. There is a lecture at her school tonight."

Though Rena did her best to enter-tain him, Anthony was preoccupied. At last he said: "What's the matter? Your mind seems miles away."

"It is! It's at Stonchill. I bought the land next to your place today. I have a proposal to make to you." Anthony was visibly nervous.

"You mean to mother, don't you?" asked Rena demurely, but with a laugh-ing glint in her eyes. Morse flushed, but somehow gathered courage. "No," he said boldly, "the proposal is to you, but I have a proposition to offer your mother. I want you both to help me run a market garden at Stonchill on shares."

"Mother is fine at that sort of thing. I'm sure she'll be delighted. But where does my share of running it come in?" asked the girl naively.

"You can run me if you did of run-ning into you—well—I'll try."

Comment, Cleverness and Mere Verbiage From "Educators or the Common People" in Canada and Other Lands.

HOW TO LEARN ENGLISH.

A schoolboy friend has shown me a note which he has received from Mr. G. K. Chesterton in reply to one ask-ing him for his autograph, and, at the same time complimenting him on his effective use of the English language. Mr. Chesterton replied: "Thank you so much for your letter. I only write this one in order to show you, finally, and upon documentary evidence, that I cannot write English any more than you. I also am trying to learn to do so. A most usual and fruitful way of learning is to write books. They some-times pay you for doing it, and the reviewers look after the mistakes." My young friend treasures this letter.

LORDS AND LIBERTY.

Not for the first time in the history of these realms must the people look to the House of Lords for protection against bureaucratic encroachment on its liberties. Our hereditary legislators may be the guardians of vested inter-ests, but they are also singularly free from the handicap of having new and pet axes to grind. As they are natu-rally jealous of any encroachments on their own prerogatives, they are equally jealous of every attempt at the con-fiscation of liberties which they share in common with every plain citizen. Con-sequently the Lords, and the Lords alone, can now protect us from the bureaucratic tyranny—the annexation of every public means of transport, save walking or flying—at which the bill to establish a ministry of ways and com-munications aims.

THE PETROLEUM PIONEER.

[London Chronicle.]

It is pleasant to recall, in reading the oil news from Derbyshire, that it was in that county that the great pe-troleum industry was born. Not to any Rockefeller do we owe the parentage of the giant of today, but to a Scottish peasant who explored seventy years ago in a coal mine at Alfreton.

James Young of Glasgow, then study-ing at Manchester, heard that this illi-cit matter was oozing into a Derby-shire mine. He tracked the strange thing down until he had traced it to the work of the mine by distilling paraffin out of it for lighting purposes. The crude petroleum, however, ran out in a finger. She washed the cut with tur-pentine and then did up the finger in sterile gauze. The next morning when she appeared at school the finger showed home treatment. Her careful work had all gone for nothing. The bandage had been removed and ashes carefully put on the cut, thus infecting the cut and delaying the healing.

Perhaps one bit of useful information that will be diffused through the coun-try by returned soldiers will be the sim-ple story of how to treat a cut so that it will heal without becoming infected. They have seen wounds treated in hos-pitals without salve, without ointment, without court plaster, but with gauze which can be bought at any drug store.

The hospital principle may be applied at home in the case of any superficial wound by painting it with iodine or washing it with turpentine—not with water—and then bandaging with gauze. The truth is, that a package of sterile gauze is about the only essential to a family medicine chest.

A NOVELIST AND HER REWARD.

[New York World.]

That the late Amelia E. Barr, authoress of 60 successful novels, left an estate of only $555 indicates something of the vicissitudes of the literary profession. A novel may amply repay the publisher and then fall flat as to its demand, leav-ing the writer of it but slight returns for the time and labor spent on it.

Many prolific authors have had simi-lar experiences, and they wrote so many books, perhaps, not through sheer love of writing, which always pro-duces the best results, but simply as a matter of routine and necessity. In a sense they might have been called the slaves of the pen, which sometimes re-wards its users beyond their deserts and at others, with the capriciousness of which literature furnishes so many ex-amples, gives them but scant daily bread.

A mere beginner in literature or jour-nalism today can frequently earn much more than Edgar Allan Poe, for in-stance, earned at a time when he was turning out masterpieces of literature in prose and verse. But while Fortune is fickle and capricious and bestows her rewards frequently without much refer-ence to merit, Fame is more just. The world knows little or nothing and cares less for the publishers and editorial magnates who grudgingly gave Poe a mere pittance for work which time has stamped as immortal. They looked down upon him as an erratic scribbler and probably thought they were treating him liberally, and now the kindest thing that fails to them is silence and oblivion.

Even Griswold a man important in the literary history of his time, is now known chiefly from his collections of the verse and poetry of his day and for his antagonism and injustice to Poe.

PAGE OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

WILL THE HORRID HIGH HEEL ACTUALLY GO "AT LAST"?

"Women Can't Compete With Man in High Heels"—This Means in Health as Well as in Business—Warning of the Doctors and the New Crusade.

You will say at once that they have thousands of times threatened to go, and that the chances of their going at last (no pun intended) really is rather meagre. But the world is changing so many of its ideas, and women are doing so many extraordinary things that they really may decide to have honest feet!

Remember that women have ambitions that were never before associated with so many ambitious activities. Remember that women took the places of men in the industry, and women are doing so many extraordinary things that they really may decide to have honest feet!

All this has made a difference in woman's way of looking at things—even in her way of looking at wealth and success.

"She can't compete with man so long as she wears high heels."

That is the declaration of the expert observers. Women have heard that. They know that "compete" means more than an allusion to working in an iron foundry. It means more than merely physical competition. It means mental competition too.

It means that she can't hope to be mentally equal with man until she has feet as free as his.

Some time ago Dr. Edward H. Bradford, dean of the Harvard medical school, and a noted orthopedic, was quoted as saying:

Shoes the Cause.
"Shoes are the cause of more of women's supposed physical inferiority to men than is generally realized. If women were properly dressed they would be able to perform almost any kind of work. Look at women in savage countries; they do practically all the hard labor, except the hunting and fighting. They are smaller than the men, but they have practically the same amount of muscular force as the men."

"One objection to women in stores and offices is that they are not able to stand as much hard work or keep on their feet as long as men. But if they wore proper shoes a great deal of this inferiority would be eliminated. The sewing woman or scrub woman who went to work in an evening gown would be sent to an insane asylum. Why should a shop girl or a woman going out on an all-morning shopping trip crowd her foot into a shoe designed for a show girl?"

"Some day we will look at a girl who goes to work wearing French heels as having as bad taste as a girl who wears a diamond necklace to breakfast."

Disinclination to Walk.
Then after a paragraph on the disinclination to walk, the author says:

inclination of modern people to walk, and especially the women, with the inclination that they would probably walk more and receive the benefits of that healthful exercise if they wore more common sense shoes. Dr. Bradford continues:

"Few people realize the extent of the weakening effect of modern high-heel shoes. It is almost universal among women that they are not able to walk more and receive the benefits of that healthful exercise if they wore more common sense shoes. Dr. Bradford continues:

"Of course manufacturers will make the kind of shoes women want—they are not going to put a lot of money into the making of shoes that women won't have. Shoes which won't sell—no women who have interested themselves in the problem are planning to launch a nation-wide campaign advocating that women in general adopt some style of shoe which is plastic, has a straight inner board and a flat, straight-line heel. And they believe that the country is on the verge of a revolution in shoes."

Get Away From Fads.
Can't people get away from following fads and be directed by common sense and comfort? The Chinese are the only people we can think of who believe that people should be beautiful should be small, plucked up and deformed. We have seen many women in this country whose feet resembled those of the Chinese. Many women in this country whose feet resembled those of the Chinese. Many women in this country whose feet resembled those of the Chinese.

Many women are perfectly willing to wear common sense walking shoes with street clothes, but not with evening gowns. Why not a common sense evening shoe? It is prophesied there will Degenerate to Penguin Waddle.

Mr. P. A. Valle, who has made an exhaustive study of the feet, says that the stride of women will degenerate to penguin waddle if the present monstrosities in footwear are not discarded. And Jacques Beyer, another authority on the question, is quoted as saying: "Unfortunately the fashion which calls for these high heels is as unhygienic as it is unesthetic. Several years ago Dr. Daxson enumerated the troubles which these wooden stilts inflict upon their wearers. Initial pain develops into slight lameness, which increases until the shortest walk is quite impossible. As a very brief examination will show, this is due to the bad position imposed upon the foot by the unnatural shape of the shoe."

chance, and even one capable only of short periods of duration, is likely to have in the rush and hurry of business, industrial and social life as we see it today, and will continue to see it for tomorrow without number!

Y. W. C. A. on the Job.
And now the Y. W. C. A. is taking up the question of high heels, and seriously. The regulation for the uniforms worn by the war workers of the organization stipulated, among other things, that the woman should wear tan or black walking shoes with flat heels. Why? Because it was, after a careful study of the question, decided that a woman couldn't work, or walk, or have perfect health or a happy, cheerful disposition and wear high heels. And it was not only stipulated that the workers of the organization should wear comfortable, flat-heel shoes, but Y. W. C. A. women went about getting shoe manufacturers interested in the making of common sense shoes for women, and it looks as if something was going to be done about it.

These former war workers, who were forced to see the light by finding that the high-heel shoe was "no go" in the line of common sense, are now trying to have a part in the affairs of today, came from everywhere and from all walks of life, and they are going back to where they came from, carrying the gospel of the common sense shoe.

be such a thing before long—pumps and low shoes in any color, made of satin, velvet, and suede, with or without buckles, and more beautiful than any evening shoe yet designed.

About the middle of April a report came from Vassar that that institution had taken a stand against the high heel; the students themselves so warmly endorsed the change to the common sense idea in footwear that, it is said, any girl appearing in high-heel shoes is to be arrested by a campus policeman and the shoes taken off her feet.

Appeared Bowlegged.
Miss Leona Hope of the University of Chicago, in an address before the Chicago Women's Club some time ago, after a strong plea for lower heels on women's shoes, said that many girls who appeared to be bowlegged since the short skirts have brought out the lines, were not in reality bowlegged at all, but appeared to be so because of the high heels they were wearing.

From all points are coming protests against the high heel and recommendation for the modified or flat heel. All authorities agree that once a woman has known the comfort of sensible shoes she will continue to wear them, and more women who would ordinarily wear the high-heel shoe are forced to put on the flat heels in going about the duties that war work imposed in the last three or four years that never tried the change before, and it isn't likely that many of the pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

Dempsey Is Eager To Meet Contenders

New Champion Ready to Defend Crown at Any Time, Though He Would Like Rest of Six Months to Accept Theatrical Offers.

TOLEDO, July 5.—There was a difference of 56 pounds in the weights of Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey when they entered the ring for their heavyweight championship contest yesterday. This was revealed today when all commotion was stripped from the "Dempsey" weight question. The new champion weighed 187 pounds, while Willard scaled 243 at ring time. Winning the world's championship had no effect on Dempsey today. He acted as if he knew it was coming to him, and he exhibited not the slightest surprise. He was out of bed at 6 o'clock, motored to his training camp for a visit with friends of the Mainway Bay Shore district, and then returned to his hotel headquarters in Toledo. He expects to remain here until he leaves to accept some theatrical work, which probably will occupy his attention for the next six months. The new champion has received a score of offers and expects to accept one offering the best inducements. One offer of $10,000 a week for twelve weeks was made him.

The only difference between prize fighters and lacrosse players is that lacrosse players take their fighting seriously.

Looks like Captain Kidd and Jesse James overlooked a few bets. They should have gone in for prize fighting. Money comes easy in that game. You don't have to risk anything except your reputation.

The high cost of lumber ought to be investigated. At Toledo last week it was selling for $60 a seat.

If nothing else, the recent Dempsey-Willard fuss will provide a fine little riot in the boxing game in the States. Already several investigations are promised by the different boxing boards. Some boxing critics are calling Willard a quitter, and even accusing Jess of lining up with Rickard to trim the poor old sucker public. Fine stuff for the dear old Flitman. Pugilism has had some powerful hard knocks in the States, but the Toledo affair has hit it a wallop that may send it down for the final count.

As a boxing exhibition it was little short of manslaughter. Dempsey had Willard outclassed in every department, despite the difference in weight, size and reach. There is no doubt, also, that Jess was not in as good condition as his younger opponent. And all this only goes to prove that it was the money and not the sport that attracted Willard back into the ring to defend a title he cared nothing about and indulge in a game that had only a financial interest for him. Willard drew down the biggest purse that ever went to a loser in a heavyweight championship bout. He was in the ring only nine minutes, and during that time he probably took more punishment than was ever meted out to any one man under the same circumstances in so short a period. But he got $100,000 for it, besides the money he made during his training and all the picture rights and other privileges that netted him a large sum.

But Willard will probably be the last fighter to ever draw down such a purse. Abraham Lincoln struck a true note when he said, "You can fool all of the people some of the time, and some of the people all of the time, but you cannot fool all of the people all of the time." No other sport in the world has been such a money-maker as boxing, and no other sport has been so badly abused before the public eye and has trimmed the public so much. Now the reaction will set in, and the boxing commissions will be forced to take some action to put a curb on the abuses the game has developed. In fact, it begins to look as though the different commissions will have their own time trying to keep the game from falling into such disfavor as will prohibit it entirely from the list of legalized sports. Boxing, if properly conducted and regulated, is a fine sport, and none finer for the development of real men. But in the hands of profiteers, money-grubbers and crooked fighters, it is a disgrace to the civilized world, and as such should get the kind of treatment it properly deserves.

KAYLOR IS LEADING HITTER IN MINT LEAGUE FIGURES

Battle Creek Outfielder Tops All With .420 Mark—Few of Present London Players Are Shown—Hagel Leads the Locals.

The Michigan-Ontario League averages, which are released today for games up to and including June 13, show very few of the present London players in the figures. The Tecumseh have undergone so many changes that few of the players who were on the club a month ago are in the league now. Ken Hagel was leading the London club in hitting up to date with a .333 average. He and Foster were the only members of the club in the 300 class, although unofficially they are three or four of them hitting around or over that mark at the present time.

Leading Distance Hitters.
Whaley of Bay City is the leading two-base hitter in the league, with 11 to his credit, while Murphy of Flint, and Command, now with London, lead in triples with four each. "Windy" Lotshaw of Brantford is the leading home run hitter; he had three up to June 13. Morris, the Saginaw second baseman, who broke his leg a week or so ago, was the leading base stealer with 16 pilfers. He also looks the pitching over better than most batters, with 34 bases on balls credited to him. Schriver, the Saginaw pitcher, with 8 wins as many starts, is the leading pitcher of the league.

FEATURE FILM AND VAUDEVILLE ACT AT THE GRAND THEATRE

Bert Lytell Starring in "The Lion's Den."

At the Patricia today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

IRON FOR STRENGTH

You need iron in the blood! Every healthy man or woman should have about 33 much iron in his or her body as there is in an ordinary railroad spike. To gain this iron, the best way is to take Tonal-iron Capsules, a combination of iron in its most soluble form, recently discovered, and now having a marvelous sale. Tonal-iron Capsules are a form of iron readily taken up by the blood. The blood cells get round, rich red in color, the cheeks are pink, the appetite improves, and one feels full of "snap" — "zip" — "vigor" — instead of tired before the day is half done. The eyes take on a lustre and the body feels that tingle which one gets from a cold bath. For sale and guaranteed by all good druggists, or by mail on receipt of $1. Tonal-iron Laboratories, Box 184, London, Ont.

FATHER AND SON IN PARTNERSHIP

Capt. H. W. Ashley has resigned from the Bell Telephone Company, after being special contract agent for this district for the last twelve years. Capt.
Ashley went overseas with the 15th Battalion, and on returning was attached to the W. O. R. depot until last

March, when he returned to the Bell Telephone Company. Capt. Ashley's son, Lieut. "Hank" Ashley of the Royal Air Force, returned from overseas in April of this year, and is well-known in the city, having been attached to the headquarters staff at the beginning of the war. Capt. Ashley and Lieut.
"Hank" Ashley have taken over the interest of the Eureka Klenz-Specialty Company, and have also opened an office under the name of H. W. Ashley & Son, real estate and auctioneers.

Their many friends and acquaintances wish them the very best of success in this new departure.

FIRST HUSSARS BAND.

Victoria Park was thronged last night in spite of a threatened rainstorm at the band concert given by the band of the First Hussars. The crowd equalled in size any which has attended the Sunday evening concerts this season.

and was liberal in applauding the variety of well-played selections.
Collections taken at the gates of the park under the auspices of the L. O. D.
E. will be used in charitable and patriotic work, chiefly in the purchase of comforts for wounded soldiers in local hospitals.

HONOR DORCHESTER TEACHER.

DORCHESTER, July 6.—Farmers are very busy at their hay which will soon be finished, but the oat crop will be short, owing to dry weather.

Miss Rosstter, principal of the Dorchester school, who is much respected by her pupils, is leaving the school.
Last evening a few of the pupils met and presented her with a table reflector and address. Miss Snell has been hired as teacher for the next year.
