FIVE-CENT FARE IS LEGAL FOR ENTIRE FRANCHISE PERIOD

Railway Board Holds That This Means Not Only Up Till March 8, 1925, But For Five-Year Period Thereafter.

JUDGMENT ENTIRELY ON LEGAL ASPECT

Fares in Bylaw 916 Repealed in 1922; Therefore, Law Which Revoked the Act of 1922 Could Not Restore Bylaw Rates, Board Finds.

Five-cent fares on city lines of the London Street Railway Company are legal. The company has the legal right to charge this existing rate of fare, not only now, but for another five years. Judgment handed down today by the Ontario railway and municipal board authorizes this rate. Action of the corporation of the city of London against the London Street Railway Company, charging breach of franchise agreement in failure to supply limited tickets at a rate of seven and nine for a quarter, is dismissed without costs, except that the city shall pay $15 costs for law stamps. No law exists to force the railway company back to the old rate of fares. Interpretation of the Beck act shows the railway board to be of the opinion that this act, followed by the short city of London act of 1924, wiped off the books for all time the old agreement for seven and nine fares for quarter. Strictly Legal Finding. A strictly legal interpretation of the law has been handed down. The city fought its case on legal grounds. city fought its case on legal grounds. The company argued legal precedent to justify charging five-cent fares. Moral rights of the city or company were scarcely touched on during the currency of the case. The whole light hinged upon legal interpretation of the Beck act. The railway board has made a strictly legal finding.

Precedents cited by street railway counsel at the hearing by the rail-way court are given credence by the board's judgment. The interpretation act of 1914 showed "where an act is repealed or wherever any regulation is revoked, such repeal or revocation shall not save as in this action otherwise provided (a) revive any act, enactment, regulation or thing not in force or existing at the time at which revocation takes ef-The board supports this opin

Lord Reading Cited.

Judgment of Chief Justice Lord Reading is also cited and supported. The board holds in conclusion that there is no obligation whatever on the company to sell or keep for sale tickets as originally provided in by-law No. 916, and that the company is not guilty of a breach of its agree-ment, and that the application musbe dismissed.

The board's judgment came quick-

The board's judgment came quick-ly, less than ten days after hearing of evidence at the county courthouse in London. Seven long pages of typewritten copy show the thor-oughness with which the commis-sioners have considered every phase of the case cited during the hearing.

Period Extended.

A new angle on the whole fares question is the board's finding that cash fares of five cents may be charged by the company until March 8, 1930, and for such five-year increments thereafter, contingent on the city's not giving notice to take over the road one year before the expiry of any one of these five-year periods.

According to the board, the city lost its opportunity to secure reversion to a lower rate of fares because of flaws in the Beck act and subsequent failure to notify the company of intention to take over the road appeal of the city of London before the Ontario Railway board to compel the London Street Railway Company to sell seven regular and nine limited tickets for a quarter is as follows:

This is an application by the city of London for an order re-quiring the London Street Railquiring the London Street Railway Company to comply with requirements of the regulations lettered (D) and (R) of paragraph 25 of bylaw No. 916. This bylaw, which is virtually the agreement defining the contractual relations of the above city and company is set out at length in schedule A to the Ontario statutes of 1896, chapter 105—which enactment confirms the bylaw enactment confirms the bylaw and declares it to be valid and effective in all respects.

subsection D of section 25 of the bylaw provides (so far as it is necessary to recite for the purposes of this application) that the company may charge and collect from every person on entering any of its cars for a continuous journey, etc., a sum not exceeding five cents. Sub-section D further binds the com-pany that it "shall sell tickets at the price of 25 cents for seven tickets, each ticket to entitle the holder to one continuous journey on the cars of the company as particularly set out in subsection D, between the hour when the cars commence running and 12 o'clock midnight, and shall Continued on Page 3 Column 4.

The Five-Cent Fare Act. At the session of the Ontario legislature, in the year 1922, the company procured to be enacted "an act respecting the London Street Railway," being chap. 141 of the statutes of that year. Whether or not the city was a party to this legislation, does not appear, but no question has been appear, but no question has been raised as to the competence of the legislature to pass it. Looking to the preamble of chapter 141, which it is permissible to do, (R.S. O.C. 1. S. 9), it first recites the facts which induced the company's application to the leg-islature, and the causes which induced the legislature to inter-vene at the instance and petition of the company; they are briefly

(1). That by reason of increased costs, the company could not continue to maintain and operate its railway at the rate of fare then in effect;
(2). That in order to enable the company to continue to maintain and operate its railway so as to give a reasonable, and reasonably safe, service, it should be authorized to so increase its fares as to enable it to obtain sufficient revenue:

That it was expedient to grant the prayer of the company's

Terms the Same.

Chapter 141 of the statutes of 1922, in the operative part of the first section, then proceeds to enact in terms practically identical word for word with the terms in which the company was authorized by sub-section D of section 25 to charge and collect the adult cash fare of five cents.

The analysis below of subsection 25 (D) of bylaw 916, and of section 1 of section 14 (1922) section 1 of chapter 141 (1922), sets out in parallel columns the content of the two enactments. It will be seen that in the act of 1922 there were two cash fares and two classes of free riders, just as in bylaw No. 916, and no reference whatever to tickets.

(B) Nine for 25c (limited as in

(C) Two for 5c (children between 5 and 12 years).

(B) Certain city officials. Revenue Assured.

If the matter rested there it might have been said with some warrant of truth that the com-pany had not by such legislation advanced appreciably towards its objective. namely, increased revenue from fares charged and collected. The legislature had simply re-enacted what was already in subsection (D) of secready in subsection (D) of section 25, conferring no new rights, but omitting all reference to tickets. But a different complexion is put on the matter by a consideration of the opening words of section 1, which reads, "notwithstanding anything contained in any experiment or bytained in any agreement or by-law or in any general or special act of this legislature the London street railway may for the un-expired term of its franchise charge and collect, etc." It seems to the board that these inreductory words of section 1 read in conjunction with the recitals in the preamble, can have only one effect so far as the subject matter of this application is concerned, namely, that the provision requiring the company to vision requiring the company to sell and provide facilities for sell-ing tickets was intended to be repeated and was repeated for the unexpired term of the company's franchise. This conclusion is supported by the provisions of section 3 of the act of 1922. This was the effect imputed to this section of the act of 1922 by the section of the act of 1922 by the parties chiefly interested in its application, the city and the company. From the 13th June, 1922, when the act of 1922 became law, when the act of 1922 became law, the company admittedly ceased to sell tickets to intending passengers on their cars, and treated the provisions of subsection (D) and (R) of section 25 of bylaw No. 916 as repeated, and the board so held

Privileges Extended.

It will be noted that section 20 of bylaw No. 916 provides by subsection (1) that the company's privileges granted by the bylaw, shall extend till the 8th day of March, 1925, and the corporation, by giving one year's notice prior to that date, of their intention to do so, may assume the ownership of the railway, etc. Sub-section 4 or section 20 provides that in the event of the corporation not exercising the right to take over the railway, etc., as aforesaid, from the 8th day of March, 1925, the corporation may, at the ex-piration of any fifth year thereafter, exercise such right, upon giving not less than one year's notice to the company of their intention to do so, and then follow these words: "And the privileges, duties, obligations and liabilities hereunder, of the company shall continue metal the pany shall continue until ownership is assumed by the corporation as aforesaid, or possession taken under the provisions of this section as above

One result of the foregoing transaction is, in the opinion of the board, that the company was the board, that the company was entitled to charge and collect from each passenger on their cars, with the exceptions men-tioned, a cash fare of five cents from each child between the of 5 and 12 years; and that the company might do this not merely up to the 8th March, 1925, when the term certain of their fifty-year franchise expired, but also during any of the five-year increments thereafter, contingent on the city's not taking over the railway on the 8th March, 1925, or on the expiry of any five-year period thereafter. Section 1 of the act of 1922 confers the right thereby granted to the company "for the unexpired term of its (the Company's) franchise." It seems to the Board that the franchise period of the Com-pany is made up of two factors, the period of fifty years certain. terminating on the 5th day of March, 1925, and the successive increments of five years thereafter, contingent on the failure of the corporation to give the requisite year's notice of its intention to take over the rail-way. Each of these factors constitutes an essential part of the company's franchise period, under each the company is to enjoy and be subject to precisely the same "privileges d obligations and liabilities." seems to the board, therefore, that enactment of 1922 applies as fully to the successive incre-ments of five years for the pur-pose of determining the rights of the parties as to the franchise term ending 8th March, 1925. In the event of the city not taking over the railway at the expiry of the Company's main franchise, terminating on 8th franchise, terminating on 8th March, 1925, the company would have continued automatically in possession of the railway, subject to its rights under by-law No. 916, as modified by the legislation of 1922. City Thought So. The city evidently thought that this view might be entertained, since at the session of the legislature in 1924, it procured to be passed "an act respecting the London street railway act, whose single section reads thus: To remove doubts it is hereby declared that the provisions of chapter 141 of the act passed in 1922 intituled an act respecting the London street railroad, shall only apply up to the 8th day of March, 1925, and from and after the said 8th day of March, 1925, the said act shall be and the same is here-

company contends that while this last-named act of 1924 was effective to repeal the above act of 1922, its repeal did not revive the repealed provisions of section 5, sub-sections (d) and (r) of bylaw No. 916 as to the sale and keeping for sale of tickets. For this contention the company cites section 14, paragraph (a) of "The Interpretation Act" (R. S. O., 1914, chapter 1), which reads

Act of 1922. (1) Cash fares.

(A) Adult, 5c.
(B) Children between 5 and 12 years, 3c.

(2) Free.(A) Children under five years accompanied.

(B) The same city officials as under bylaw No. 916.

"Where an act is repealed or wherever any regulation is revoked, such repeal or revocation shall not save as in this section otherwise provided:

"(a) Revive any act, enactment, regulation or thing not in force or existing at the time at which the revocation takes effect."

"The board is of opinion that it should give effect to the company contention. There can be no doubt as to the application of the above provision of "the interpretation act" in limiting the effect of the legislation of 1924. By reason of the legislation of 1922, the provisions of bylaw No. 916 as to tickets were undoubtedly repealed. The consequences flowing from such repeal are clearly stated by Lord Reading. then chief justice in the case, Watson V. Winch (1916), I. K. B. 688, adopting the language of the court in surfees V., Ellison 9 E. and O., 750-752, as follows:

"It has been long established that, when an act of parliament is repealed it must be considered (except as to transactions passed and closed) as if it had never existed. That is the general rule The board is not aware that any different canon of interpretation is to be applied where an instrument (other than an act of parliament) conferring rights or imposing obligations has been pealed by a competent act of the legislature. If therefore the provisions as to the sale of tickets contained in bylaw No. 916 were effectively repealed by the act of 1922—and the board holds to this view-it follows that these provisions were "as if they had never existed," and being nonexistent by force of the act of 1922 they were not revived when the repealing act of 1922 was in turn repealed by the act of 1924. If the board's conclusion is well founded, it follows that there is no obligation on the company to sell and keep for sale tickets as originally provided in bylaw No. 916, and the company is not guilty of a breach of its agreement, and that the application must be dis-

CANCER CURABLE

Local Doctors Agree With the Claim Made by British Scientist.

Canadian Press Despatch. Regina, Sask., June 26.-Cancer depending upon its anatomical loca tion, is absolutely curable, provided treatment is applied in the early stages of the disease, H. W. Surgery, he declared, was the only safe method to be used in incipient cases. While the actual causes of cancer, Mr. Carson stated, continued to baffle the scientific world, there was every hope that the malady would be ultimately completely wined out.

INTENTION NOT CRIME SO PAIR ARE FREED

Brantford Men in Court Not Convicted Because of Thoughts.

"Intentions are not crimes," was the bit of logic Reg. Brown, 22, of Brantford, offered Magistrate Graydon in police court this morning. Reg., with his pal, Arthur Evans, 19, also of the Cordage City, was on his way home after failing to find a job in the border cities.

Tarrying by the C. N. R. tracks here, the two prodigals were shown the highway by Railway Constable Emmett. They returned farther east along the line and lay down just outside the railway property. Queried again by Emmett, Reg. announced that they were waiting for a train, and the constable repeated the streement to the magistrate as proof of their unlawful thoughts. Reg. and Arthur were finally freed on condition they leave the city immediately.

AFFIDAVIT BOOSTED IN HOME BANK RELIEF DOMINION DAY

Plan Would Save Small Depositors From Loss, U. A. Buchner Points Out.

If those who wish to prove their claims before the judge of the exchequer may do so by affidavit, the Home Bank relief bill amended by the senate and passed by the commons early today will be more workable and will not cause depositors to suffer greatly, is the opinion of U. A. Buchner, representing the de-positors here. To bring depositors all the way from the west to the court of ex-chequer to prove their claims for $500 chequer to prove their claims for $500 would leave them without anything worth speaking of, is his opinion.

The bill is more workable now than it has been for some time, that is as far as the small depositor is concerned, he said. Of course the trades and labor bodies, corporations and other organizations will not get anything out of it.

It is not likely that any claims for more than $500 will be entertained unless there is positive proof that the applicant is in dire need. Such claims, says Mr. Buchner, will be hard to prove.

It depends altogether on the girl. If she is the kind of girl who is clothes mad, and cabaret crazy, whose god is a French costume designer, and who never happy unless she is rushing from place to place of an evening, then she would be miserable and dissatisfied as a poor man's wife, and would make him curse the day he married her.

Fortunately, the modern girl is pretty hard-boiled proposition. She knows just what things cost, and how far money will go, and so the luxuryloving young woman is pretty apt to save the impecunious young man from making the mistake of marryavenue, recently arranged a charming shower for Miss Alma Brown, a ing her. She gently and firmly deshower for Miss Alma Brown, a bride-elect of next month. But there are many girls the daughters of rich and indulgent fathers, accustomed to all that money can buy, who put love above fine clothes and jewels and limousines and who are perfectly willing to be a poor man's bride

It will not make such a girl unhappy not to have fine clothes nor fine cars, nor a fine house. Her happiness is not bound up in material things, and she would rather have love in a cottage than a palace with a man to whom she was indifferent.

And because such a girl has had her fill of society, of dressing, of gayety, of dancing, she is apt settle down and make the most mestic and economical of wives.

The idea that when a young man marries he should be able to support his wife in the style in which she has been accustomed to live is all wrong. It is demanding that he start where her father leaves off, and that is asking too much of him.

It took them 25 or 30 years of hard work and economizing to arrive on Easy street, where they could give their pretty daughter everything she craved.

No young man has the money to lavish the luxuries on the girl that her father has unless he has inherited it, and heirs to fortunes are few and far between. The ordinary young man, the worthwhile young man, who in twenty-five years will be where her father is, is as poor as father was, and can give his w no more than father gave his bride. So unless the girl is willing to begin as her mother did, they cannot marry. So there you are, and it is up to the girl. However, Roy, you can console yourself with this thought: If the girl doesn't love you well enough to give up luxuries for your sake, and take chance with you you miss little in not getting her.

It is generally the father whose nose the baby puts out of joint, but I'll tell the world that when a man does become a son worshiper that he is a more fanatical devotee than even the most abject mother.

It is a pity, however, that people cannot take their children more reasonably, and treat them rationally instead of making a cult of them. f they did there would be fewer divorces than there are now, because it is while many a woman is spending her time prostrate before her first baby that her husband wanders away. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do one thing-and do it well. They build up the blood, increasing the number of red corpuscles. As this is done the blood becomes a richer red and is able to carry more oxygen, the great supporter of human life. As the blood improves in quality the tissues of the body are better nourished and the functions of the body are better performed. This is the reason Dr. Williams Pink Pills have been so successful in the treatment of all diseases due to poor, thin blood, why the pills are so suc cessful in building up strength after fevers and acute diseases, and in all cases of anaemia and general weakness.

Mrs. S. J. Pitre, Queen street, St. John, N. B., says "Some years ago, following an attack of typhoid fever, I was left almost a physical wreck. I could not sleep, had no appetite and my nerves were so bad that my limbs shook as though I had palsy. As I was not improving under the use of the doctor's medicine, I decided upon the advice of a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Almost from the first box I could feel an improvement. I continued taking the pills until I had used twelve boxes, when I was again enjoying perfect health. As a precaution I always take one or two boxes every spring to tone up the system, and can truly say they are a wonderful tonic.

You can get the pills from your druggists, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co.

THE GREATEST GRACE.

There ne'er has come a greater from above Than that so prized by young and old alike That soul-enchanting bliss which we call love

We knew it first when on our mother's knee She looked so fondly on her infant child; The sorrows of our childhood days beguiled!

We felt it, too, whilst yet of tender years, When father kindly led us by the hand, Or when our youthful needs his thought engaged And held his ev'ry pow'r at their command.

As gently as the dewdrops fall at eve. Our happy, yielding lives to richly crown.

Who has not felt the impress of its touch! But ne'er is wondrous love so grandly great As when two hearts, by winding paths, have

Each with delight, its God-appointed mate Their love soars far above the eagle's flight! The depth thereof no measuring line can tell! f e'er a Bethel's found upon this earth 'Tis in that place where wedded lovers dwell.

Grand Bend Has Everything Needed at Popular Resort

Grand Bend, far-famed summer rest and recreation resort on Lake Huron, will be visited by great throngs on Dominion Day. With bright weather in prospect and plenty of added attractions, the Bend will be at its best.

The softball game between two championship girls' teams will attract much attention and furnish some real sport.

Everyone is talking about the Buescher Boys' Orchestra playing at the Casino this season. They are an extremely high-class band and play all the season's latest hits with a snap and zest that make your feet fairly tingle.

Early visitors have felt with appreciation the efforts of a small band of workers in putting parks in condition. The beach is a picnic park, and outing parties have plenty of space available without trespassing upon each other's goodwill in any way.

The beach looks its best. Facilities for bathing are unexcelled on the east shore of Lake Huron. A great wide stretch of sandy beach makes an ideal playground, while bathing and swimming are made jolly pastimes by the sloping sands as they recede out into the lake, making swimming in safety possible for quite a distance.

FACILITIES FOR SPORT.

There are increased facilities for sport and recreation all around. If seclusion is the wish of summer cottagers they may find rest and quietness, without disturbance.

Weather is bright and sunny. The sunsets are the talk of the contingents who came late in June. Family visitors have been many and from all parts of the province. There are many new cottages and they are being taken up well.

Grand Bend has everything that makes for a bright or restful holiday, and a little more. Summer visitors, pienickers or tourists will find a cordial welcome, and the very best treatment and accommodation awaiting them.

Toll of The Summer

HE gay season of summer is here. In a land designed by Heaven for mer, Ontario prepares to entertain

And, according to past experience, before the dance of summer is ended, some three hurdred of the merrymakers will be drowned, two hundred and fifty will have been struck down by motor cars, and sundry others will have dropped out of the fun by falls, by motor launches, fires, games, and all the sundry casualties that beset a season careless and carefree.

In the list of accidental deaths in Ontario,

Not deaths in factories, or in blasting, or in construction of any sort, all the year round; not deaths from railroad accidents or fires or poisoning, from elevators or asphyxiation or guns twelve months of the year-but drowning.

And from 60 to 70 per cent. of those drownings occur in the gala months of summer, July and August.

Canada has nearly one-half the fresh water summer that most motor cars are in active use, of the whole world. Ontario has, as the map shows, more than her share of that. It stands to reason that with so much water, drownings are certain to be a problem peculiar to Ontario. Last year there were 307 persons drowned in the province.

That is more than were killed by motor cars, trucks, cycles, elevators, electrocution and machinery all put together in the same year!

It is more than twice the number of those killed by railroads, street cars and horse-drawn Labrador Was Her Birthplace, vehicles all put together!

Drownings are the big feature leaders in Ontario's deaths from accidental causes.

And most of it is done in the merry months of July and August.

Here is how an English gardener, who es cucumbers in a high temperature, es cool in his hothouses.

Drownings are just one aspect of the menace of summer. So eagerly is summer looked 10" ward to, so gentle and lovely a season is it, that the menace of it, from the point of view of danger, is forgotten. Late winter is the season of greatest danger from disease. Midsummer is the season or greatest danger from causes almost entirely under our own control.

Accidents Rise With Temperature

F. H. WYSE, manager of the Ontario Safety J. League, has brought out a blue print showing that motor accidents and temperature run together. The higher the temperature, the higher the number of deaths from auto accidents. This extraordinary graph for the past five years indicates that hot weather is the time for motorists and pedestrians to be careful.

"The reasons for this fact are not hard to find," says Mr. Wyse. "It is in the height of the Fatal Automobile Accidents in Franto Follow the Temperature Faithfully — the Hotter the More.

There is No Complete Canoeist A ND as to canoes, the saying of an old timer in Ontario's north country is this:

"I have been in canoes all my life. And every day I have been in them I have been more careful than I was the day before."

There is no such thing as the complete canoeist. A skilful and safe canoeist is immediately discounted the moment a person unused to a canoe enters his craft. There has been many a skilled canoe handler ignominiously dumped into the water by a clumsy or careless fellowpassenger. The rule with regard to canoes should be this: no one should learn to paddle except with an experienced canoeist also in the craft. Always sit with knees on the bottom of the canoe. Many modern canoes are made with wicker seats to invite the paddler to sit with his centre of balance far above the gunwale of the canoe. Unless canoeing is hard on your knees, you are paddling in a dangerous manner.

Canoes can never be restricted. They are the most beautiful craft in the world. The fabled gondola of Venice is a scow compared with it. Vast areas of this beautiful province are inaccessible without it. In the hands of men who respect its limitations and fear its possibilities, it is as safe as lumberman's pointer. In the hands of two persons who have never been in one before, and who sit up with their waistlines high above the gunwales, a canoe is a trick thing made for the laughter of regattas, and the death of merrymakers.

The menace of summer—the unseen, ignored menace of summer-is not only in motor cars and canoes. There is menace in the heat of summer itself, in the flies that summer brings forth in billions to soil and desecrate. The menace of fire where there is no organized preparation to combat it is one of the deadliest and the least expected. The menace to the camper who travels by dangerous and untraveled roads, who drinks fouled water or who fails to drench his camp fire.

Summer is the season when most children are killed by accident. The routine and discipline of ten school months of the year are suddenly abandoned, and the streets are filled with little folks "not careless," as the Safety League has it, "but carefree."

And over all the effect of summer to make us all lazy and contented with half measures, energy at the ebb tide, and seeking above even the safety of our lives ease and comfort.

While the medical authorities show the darkest hour of the year to be those dreary weeks at the end of winter, when the resistance weakens against the unseen dangers of disease, it is unquestionable that the most dangerous season of the year from those enemies which are almost wholly controllable by care and foresight, is the lovely ineffable summer

IRRIGATING PLANT IN INDIA

A BOUT 100 miles from Bombay, India, one of the largest irrigation projects in the world is nearing completion as the last rocks in the dam, one mile long and 170 feet high, are being put in place, says Popular Mechanics. The lake which this barrier will form will be eighteen miles long and forty-six miles in circumference. Its waters would cover an area fifteen miles square to a depth of 143 feet, sufficient to irrigate approximately 1,000,000 acres. If the rocks in the dam were placed end to end, they would reach halfway around the world. Two canals, longer than the Panama, will distribute the waters to the farms. At the site of the dam, the rainfall averages only forty inches a year, but the lake will extend to a district where the fall is more than six times that amount.

Grenfell and David carry on rapid-fire conversations in Japanese, and the former has a merry repertoire of Japanese songs learned at kindergarten where she was a regular attend-It is the Japanese tongue that she speaks, ant until she set off for a long holiday to Canada and the United States with her family.

Grenfell's straight, thick, black hair grows down, it seems, from the exact centre of her head. Her face is dark and a bit sombre, but her smile, though toothless at the moment, is most engaging, and her sloe-black eyes point fascinatingly at the corners.

"Our house in Japan is as cold as a house can be," Grenfell's foster mother remarks with great cheerfulness. It is a sign of "poor stuff" in Japan to light a fire, save for the aged or the sick. But Grenfell takes to it, right enough, perhaps because Japanese weather, at its most rigorous, has nothing on the "wild, stern" land that was the place of her forebears.

Grenfell and her "folks" are going to visit a lot of places in Canada and the United States before they "go back home" to Japan, where their parish can be crossed by train in something like two hours, with seven separate stations from end to end of it in which to hold services.

Detroit is to rival New York's Woolworth Building with the above new 40storey office tower to be erected on Bagley avenue. This is part of a $35,000,000 development on this particular street which will take three years to be complete.

A Famous American-Canadian - Pie Made the Puritans Gloomy-Heroes of the Week

ACOB GOULD SCHURMAN, former president of Cornell University, is rated, as you may remember, as one of the United States' finest diplomats, and is, moreover, the new ambassador to Germany. He is also, as you may also remember, Canadian-born, coming originally from Freetown, Prince Edward Island.

When he first tried his wings, he flew, not to the United States, but to old London, his vehicle being a Gilchrist scholarship. During his years at University College and the University of London, two other Canadians were also enrolled there. One of them is now a well-known Canadian lawyer, D. C. Ross, and the second is an authority on English literature whose anthology of poetry is annually thumbed by hundreds of diligent students, Prof. W. J. Alexander.

After Schurman's time, Canadian winners of the Gilchrist award included one who is now being honored in all parts of the land where he once studier. Sir Robert Falconer, president of the University of Toronto.

THE outstanding example of all-round candor and frankness brought to the public notice during the past wek comes from the University of Oklahoma. President J. S. Buchanan, during the commencement exercises there, awarded a master of arts degree to his wife, prefacing the ceremony of conferring it with a short speech when he said in effect:

"I'll have to admit you are the master."

* * * AND among the other heroes who bobbed up during the past seven days is one who is still unknown and will, in all probability, always remain so. He is a Frenchman and a government employe. When M. Caillaux, on his return to power, made a dramatic plea for economy, he received a note from this minor official suggesting that the latter's position be abolished as he felt that it was completely useless. * * *

"IT was pie that made the Puritans gloomy." Dauntlessly and fearlessly, James Phinney Munroe, Lexington historian, speaks his mind. Dauntlessly and fearlessly, he exposes pie. On it he places the blame for the drooping jaws and sad eyes of the Pilgrim Fathers as exposed in rare old drawings. The Pilgrim Fathers, it seems, were dyspeptic.

"Those ancestors of the New Englanders," says Mr. Munroe, "had dyspepsia. Pretty near all of them, anyway. And it's to pie, quite as much as to any pessimistic religious doctrines. that the proverbial gloom of the early New Englanders" is due"

Mr. Munroe is preaching a dangerous doctrine. In these days of peculiar defenses, who knows what crimnal, charged with murder, housebreaking or walking on the grass, may step into the dock and plead: "I was not myself. I have been eating a lot of pie."

And the bakers—what have they to say to Mr. Munroe They have a perfectly satisfactory reply. All that Mr. Munroe says is no doubt true, they can say, for to tell you the honest truth, they couldn't make pie in the old days to touch the pies we make to-day."

* * * A VIRULENT outbreak of will-power among women who are fighting for the slim silhouet is confidently expected in many quarters and all because of Marshal Joffre. According to a remarkable story recently published, the famous Marne commander, who formerly weighed 220 pounds, has reduced to 180, simply by the exercise of will power.

It is asserted that the marshal became thin simply by repeating-and believing-"I'm growing thin. I'm getting thinner." There were his first words in the morning and his last at

Onions Like Baseballs J. L. Haycock's Find

Former Political Leader Is Now the Bay of Quinte's Burbank

OSEPH L. HAYCOCK, the former leader of Approaching Retirement of the old Patrons of Industry in the Ontario legislature, who lives on a farm near the village of Adolphustown, now makes a specialty of raising onions. Mr. Haycock said that some years ago when peeling an onion the thought came to him if he could only raise an onion the size and shape of a baseball there would certainly be a good market for it.

After some years of experimenting he has been able to grow an onion that looks like a baseball and is an excellent seller. The onion has proven such a success that two years ago Mr. Haycock sold $191 worth of seed and also sold a great quantity for commercial use. Mr. Haycock has named his new onion "Progres-

The Haycock farm is located on the Bay of Quinte, and Mr. Haycock says that a few years ago, when every person in the province was complaining of the dry weather, he bought a great length of pipe and was able to force water up from the bay to irrigate his garden. At present he is arranging to set up a new windmill.

Fame Came Overnight To Sir Rider Haggard

Wrote First Book on a Five-Shilling Bet -Worked While Traveling on Trains

That Mussolini has now taken over an- lar writer, whose death recently came as a great shock to his countless admirers, was a household word all over Britain.

Sir Rider wrote "King Solomon's Mines" as the result of a five shillings bet. His brother had just finished "Treasure Island," then a new book, and declared it was the finest thing he had ever read. Rider bet him five shillings he would write a book that would sell as well.

His brother laughed, but Rider was in earnest. He started work at once, and presently finished his book. He spent much time in these days traveling between London and Norwich, and the story was written in the train.

One of the big scenes in "King Solomon's Mines" was inspired by a memory of his schooldays. A private tutor, to whom he went when he was nine years old, always wore a ring which, he told Rider, had been taken from the finger of a Peruvian mummy. This mummy had been found in a mound sepulchre in the land of the Incas, and as the discoverer touched the ring the whole mummy crumbled into dust.

Some time after "King Solomon's Mines" had been written, the novelist was able to secure this wonderful old ring, and presented it to the

He wrote a letter to a firm who handled emigrants and got them settled in the dominion. He stated that he would like some information and in due time received a reply. It read something like

USED TO SELL HERRINGS BUT NOW HE'S AN ARTIST

T has now become the accepted thing for artists to spend the early years of their lives in comparatively menial occupations. Within the last few months there have been pit-boys, grocers' assistants, butchers' helpers and a baker all exhibiting canvases at one gallery or another.

The latest addition to the list of notables is Adrian Lubbers, a Hollander, whose work is on exhibition in Berlin. Lubbers formerly lived in New York, where he sold, successively though not so successfully, automobile accessories, violins and herrings. He was also a chauffeur and a mechanic, and finally wound up as a singer in a seaman's saloon in Hoboken. He married, returned to Europe and became an artist.

DURING the next few days a London, Eng., opera company will have an interesting addition to its ranks in the person of Mr. Ernest Hire, who until a year or two ago was a pit pony Recently he was given an audition by Mr. D'Oyly Carte, who was so impressed by his voice that he gave him an engagement.

Fielding Never Forgot a Face Never, in Fact, Forgot Anything

Federal Finance Minister Revives Interesting Anecdotes of His Remarkable Memory—Casual Acquaintances of Years Before Instantly Recalled

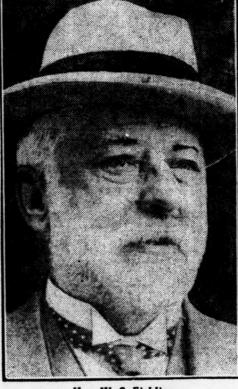

Hon. W. S. Fielding occupies a unique posi-tion in Canadian politics. Broken in health, his retirement is now imminent. When the question of granting him an annuity came before the of granting him an annuity came ise of Commons a few days ago, the attitude of those members who have long been his politi-cal opponents was unusual evidence of the esteem in which he is held by Canadians of all parties

A government official, for years intimately connected with Hon. Mr. Fielding in his work as a cabinet minister, here gives an anecdote or so

BOUT the beginning of the present session of parliament at Ottawa, an old friend of Right Hon. W. S. Fielding, minister of finance, called to see the stricken minister at his house. The friend was an M.P. from Nova Scotia, who had also sat in the legislature of that province when Mr. Fielding was premier. Just at the moment when the M.P. arrived at the house the door opened and the minister came out with one of his daughters to go for an automobile drive. The friend was asked to join them. As they drove along, Mr. Fielding lapsed into a reminiscent mood: "Colin." he said to his friend, "do you remember that rather questionable charter that some enterprising gentleman tried to put over on the legislature when you and I sat there forty years ago? It was to incorporate a scheme known as 'Terminal City,' and I remember that you were very much opposed to it. At that time you and I were taking a drive one afternoon-just as we are doing now -in a cab then, instead of an auto-and we passed the old abandoned St. Paul's Cemetery in Halifax. You looked at the cemetery and then pointed to it and said: 'Fielding, do you see that cemetery? Well, that's Terminal City,' and so it turned out."

The M.P. had forgotten all about the incident, But Mr. Fielding had not. He never forgot anydents occurred which showed Mr. Fielding's remarkable memory-not only for faces but also

Just after breakfast one morning the party were standing in the hotel rotunda waiting for their sleigh to take them to the city hall, where the sittings of the commission were held. A corpulent gentleman, of pleasant face and glasses, came up to the minister and said: "Mr. Fielding, you may not remember me, but I had the pleasure of meeting you once." Mr. Fielding looked at him for an instant, and then said: "Why, of course, you are Mr. Laurence, from England, representing a house handling spectacles. I met you once at Hector McDougall's hotel at the Grand Narrows in Cape Breton."

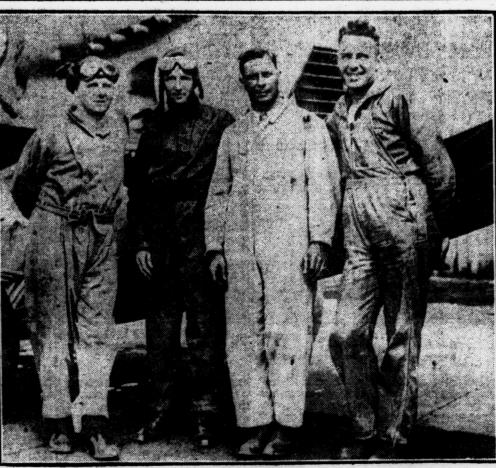

The same day, after luncn, when the party was again awaiting their conveyance, a young, consumptive looking gentleman approached and asked Mr. Fielding if he knew him. The minister looked at him and at first shook his head. but quickly recovering, answered: "You are Mr. McLeod; you are a sugar planter in South America. I met you in 1895 in Georgetown, British Guiana." In both cases the minister had "located' 'his man correctly.

This story received wide publicity as an illustration of the indifference to danger of Britons in general and of one of them, F. E. Smith, now Lord Birkenhead, in par-

Moulay, Wild Ex-Sultan, Now Becomes Parisian

His Brother Abdul Was as Crazy as a Loon-Collected Phonographs and Pianos

OULAY HAFID, say the news despatches, IVI is now living serenely in Paris. This when you come to look into the matter, means a great deal.

As well as being somewhat crazy Moulay Hafid is a dethroned majesty, ex-sultan of a thousand and one nights, once supreme ruler of Morocco and for a long time a very terrible nuisance to the French.

Yet he wanders about the great European capital in his immaculate turban, evidently completely forgiven by the French government. He was suspected at one time of being in German pay and under his rule one of the worst massacres of the epoch was perpetrated in 1912. It was the French who dethroned him and chased him off to Tangiers. From there he went to Spain and after a number of years in the homeland of the bull fight humbly craved permission to settle in France.

His method of gaining the Moroccan throne in the first place was as weird as his final exit from the palace was undignified. His brother, Abdul, was king at the time, a man who seems to have been as completely crazy as it is possible

Moulay Hafid, who was away doing some fighting, heard that the loyal subjects were getting completely tired of Abdul's mad escapades and decided to oust him from the throne. promptly and efficiently. So he marched on the capital while Abdul made a feverish attempt to get ready for a battle. Abdul's troops were largely brigands and thieves, released from prison for this special occasion.

Moulay had no desire to sacrifice any of his men's lives, so, halting a few miles from the city, he sent against it, at the first break of dawn, not an army of men but an army of donkeys, led by large black slaves blowing trumpets. On the donkeys' backs were large baskets of silver duoros, gleaming in the early sunlight. Abdul's ragamuffins went wild at the sight of such booty and rushed out after it. They were still fighting among themselves when Moulay and his men marched into the city and captured it without a shot.

Moulay himself is a man of the most peculiar contrasts. He seems highly cultivated in many ways and a careful student of modern thought and progress. He seems to have the soul of a warrior and the brain of a statesman. At other times he acts more like a dangerous nut.

Perhaps, however, many of the peculiar odds and ends of things attributed to him should really be charged up to his brother. Abdul, who was eccentric to the point of goofiness.

Abdul had the greatest collection of phonographs, mechanical pianos and scientific toys ever gathered together. He had a light railway built on the palace grounds, but soon tired of seeing the cars go round. Thereupon he put slaves who had displeased him aboard the train and organized accidents to amuse himself.

One day he purchased a motor car which he insisted on driving himself. The populace, however, when he appeared on the street with a vehicle which had no visible means of locomotion, thought their sultan had become a messenger from God and prostrated themselves in front of the approaching machine.

Thereafter he confined himself to the palace grounds, where he amused himself by chasing servants about, driving all the while at break-

He used it as a throne in his palace and took an infantile joy out of moving it around in every direction, including up and down, during high state receptions.

Secret Has Leaked Out Tobacco Is Discovered

Premier Baldwin Smokes Boer Blend Originated by Moderator of Church of Scotland

REMIER BALDWIN and Lord Haldane have been keeping a secret, but it has leaked out. Just around the corner from Lord Haldane's home in London is an unpretentious little tobacco shop run by three young men. For years, Lord Haldane has been in the habit of calling at this shop whenever he started out on one of his well-known walks through London, the reason being that he has become attached to a brand known as Dr. White's Mixture, a blend containing a considerable proportion of Boer tobacco, originated by the Rev. Dr. John White, a moderator of the Church of Scotland and blended by a small firm in Glasgow.

Lord Haldane communicated his find to the prime minister, and since that date Lord Haldane has been quietly acting as Mr. Baldwin's tobacco messenger, procuring at regular intervals a tin of the mixture and carefully conveying it or having it sent to No. 10 Downing street.

MACFARLANE, CHAMPION LOOKS LIKE PROFESSOR

Most Peculiar Individual Who Ever Held the Golf Title, But a Highly-Interesting One

T 0 the long list of Willies whose names are inscribed on various halls of fame. there must now be added one more, Willie Macfarlane. One could hardly help guessing that he is Scotch and that he plays golf.

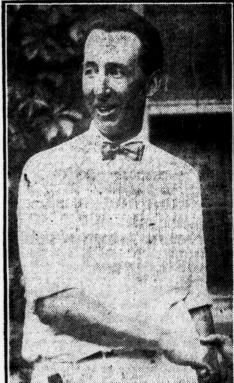

Willie Macfarlane, in fact, is the new open champion of America though he neither looks like it nor acts like it. Seeing him on the links. said one acute observer, you might take him for a zoological professor chasing butterflies for scientific reasons. He is long, lean and lank with a professorial appearance and a sort of

All in all, he is rather a peculiar man. For one thing, he is quite contented with his lot in life. He is devoted to his home and particularly his ten year old daughter, Elna. He is also devoted to the game of pinochle and would just as soon play pinochle as golf any day in the week and twice on holidays.

There are several reasons why the tense battles for the open golf championship this June were something more than a mere series of athletic events and Macfarlane is several of these reasons. First there is the way he got the title. Nobody ever expected him to get it. He didn't expect to get it himself. He went to Worcester, where the affair took place, without any reputation to uphold, that is, no reputation compared to the reputations of scores of the other competitors. Nothing very much was expected of him. He was a dark horse on a dark night. No one could see him as the coming

The fact that he did not have a burden of this variety to tote around the links must have been a great thing for the nerves. He went about the preliminaries in a complacent and happy-go-lucky manner. In the book of odds, he was 25 to 1 against the field while men like Hagen, Jones and Smith were only 5 to 1.

Furthermore he had not prepared for the championship tests in the generally accepted fashion. Between last October and the opening of the preliminaries, he had played only thir-

Played Too Much Pinochle H well," someone said to him, "you're just as well off. No danger of going stale like a lot of other players." "Not at all," was the Scotsman's reply. "Pinochle and golf are all right, each in its own place but I have been playing the former and too much pinochle combined with not enough golf is a bad system for a man who is after a championship. He becomes unfamiliar with the shots he has to make." Macfarlane had a reputation for being erratic. which, it is only fair to say, he had earned. This was another reason for brushing him aside when picking a possible champion before the matches commenced.

And on top of this again was the oft-repeated from the mouths of the wise birds, "This will be a young man's championship." It was to be a championship requiring great strength and great endurance, neither of which were popularly supposed to be outstanding characteristics of Willie Macfarlane.

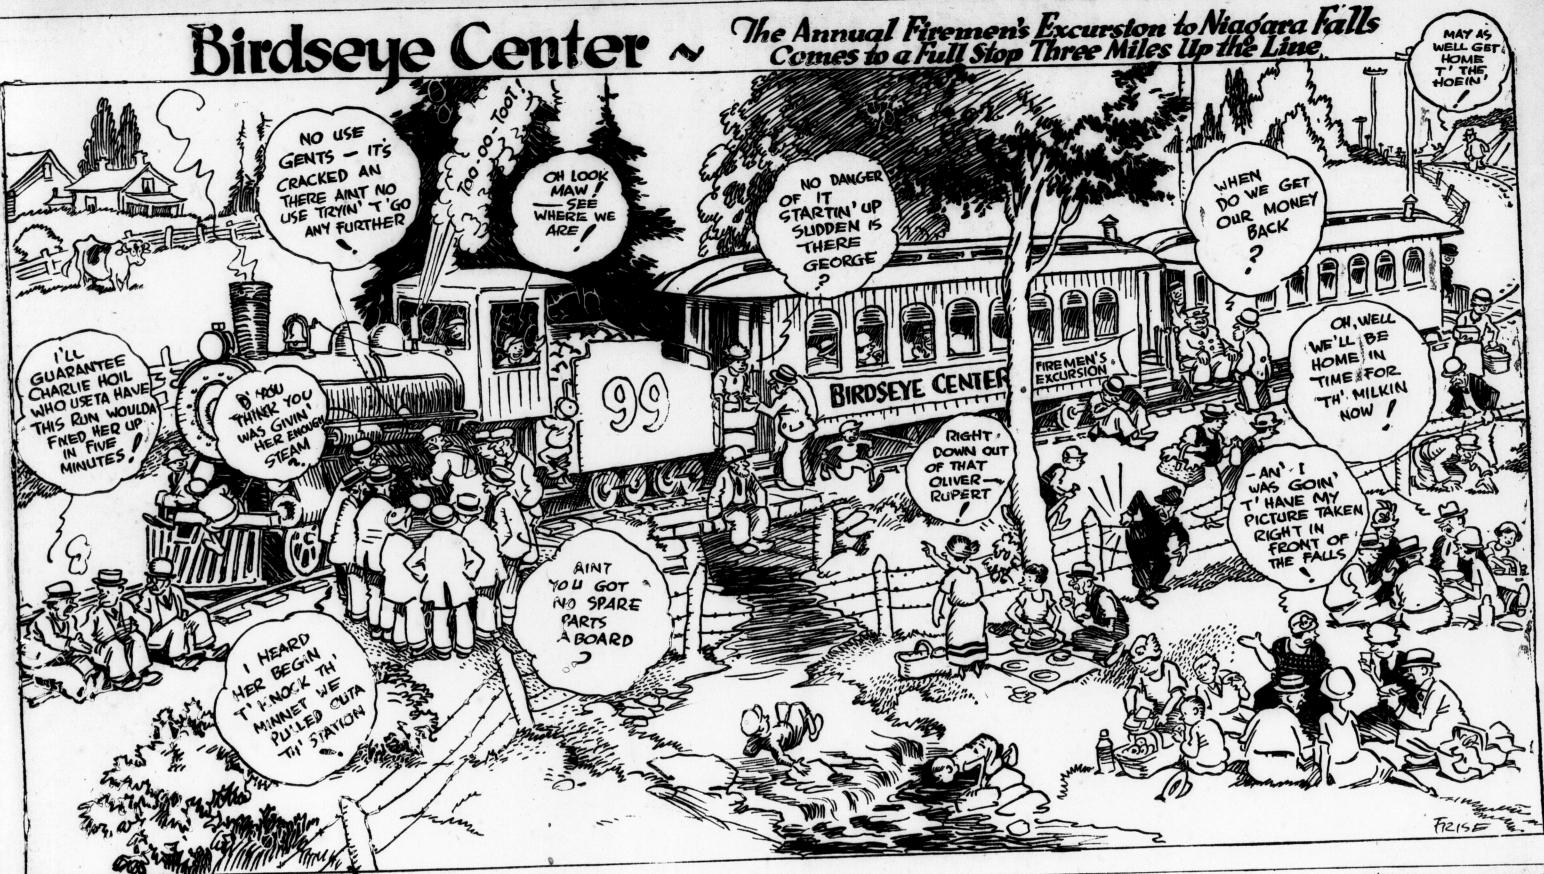

The actual story of the play for the title was thoroughly aired as news and is now being passed around as history. It is sufficient to say that the prophets were right. Both great strength and great endurance were required. It will stand out for years as the most grilling of contests. The soothsayers only erred on one point. That was their estimate of Macfarlane.

And after the title had been finally won Macfarlane once again showed up as an unusual specimen among champions. He was out in a broiling sun, the idol of three thousand fanatical golfers, overwhelmed by the plaudits and congratulations of the finest professionals on the continent. He had just won $25,000.

At that moment, it turns out, he was thinking of some golf lessons he was due to deliver at his home club, Oak Ridge, the following day.

Would he go away for a few days and rest to recover his strength? Would he make a triumphant and highly remunerative tour of the country? Would he commence to reap the tremendous harvest of dollars that was his for the asking? Would he sign an agreement to write a series of newspaper articles? Would he let his name be used by a well known firm manufacturing sporting equipment? Would he do any of a hundred and ten possible and profitable things?

No, he would not. This champion, whose money-making ability had increased about ten thousand per cent, in ten minutes, hurried back home. The following day he was teaching a twenty-five handicap man how to hit a golf ball, CHAPMAN—In loving memory of Edna L. Chapman, who departed this life one year ago today. June 27, 1924. Just when her life was brightest.

Just when her life was brightest.

She was called from her happy home To a home of aternal rest.

We think of her as one who sleeps Away from all grief and pain.

And know the happy days will come When we shall meet again.

Ever remembered by her Mother, Brother and Sister.

SMITH — In loving memory of Ethel Mary Harper the beloved wife of Hedley Smith, of Highland Road, who died one year ago today.

Our memory often wanders as shadows softly fall.

Back to days of happiness days beyond recall.

And a vision comes before sus so fond, so pure so sweet.

Of one whose lips are silent, whose heart has ceased to beat.

Canadian Press Despatch Windsor, Ont., June 26.-Before a crowd that packed the Windsor arnories tonight, Rev. Ben Spence prohibition leader, and Frank W. The debate lasted over two hours, and was hugely enjoyed by a good-natured audience, numbering over 3,000.

Mr. Wilson, who challenged the dry leader to speak as a result of the latter's remarks about Windsor on the eve of the sale of 4.4 beer here, the eve of the sale of 4.4 beer here, was given a tremendous ovation as he hammered home facts against prohibition by legislation. His opponent, who termed the sight of men drinking the government's non-intoxicating beverage as "bestial and degrading," was also well received,

No violence resulted, such as occurred here years ago when Pussyfoot Johnston had to flee from the wrath of an angry crowd on escape a hail of rotten eggs and comatoes, and a ducking in the river. Shake Hands.

When the debate was over, bo orators shook hands cordially. The debate was presided over by Hon. Dr. Reaume, of Windsor. Rev. Mr. Spence first spoke, for practically an hour. He was followed by the legislator, in a reply of an hour's duration, and finally the dry leader was given fifteen minutes more for a reply. Mr. Wilson declared that prohibition would be past within the course of a few years; and in referring specially to the subject of prohibition by legislation, he declared that the tate had limits on its rights. "I'll tell you why I am in favor of 4.4," explained the member of Windsor. "Already it has had a strong tendency to enlist popular support. We are getting a loosening up of tyrannical domination, which ave labored under so long, and there is much better law observance with

It has created spies, and informers; has developed spotters and sneaks, and it is a law that has insulted the judiciary of the Province. THE SOFTBALL MENACE.

Golf and softball are working from both ends to cut into the attendance at baseball, but the transplanted U. S. national pastime, according to its most ardent supporters, is being threatened by a worse menace than the lack of spectators, and that is the possibility of a lack of

They claim that softball has supplanted baseball entirely in the schools. Its inexpensiveness, the fact that it can be played on the minimum of ground space and the important fact that it is easier on windows than hard ball are the contributing factors.

However black the outlook may appear at present though cooler heads profess to believe that softball has reached its peak in popularity. Softball is here to stay, but the novelty of the pastime is getting a bit worn, and is sure to become somewhat more frayed as time goes on First of all, softball is essentially a recreation, and it has been slightly overdone, as enthusiasms usually are. It should send its present devotees back to baseball, more keenly appreciative of the finer points of the real game than they were before they took up softball.

Locally softball will continue to have the official sanction of the schools, but as long as there are vacant lots and money for gloves and bats to be earned in all manner of ways, youngsters will centinue to play baseball. Softball may start them off in the right direction.

The playgrounds were softball ridden, but Supervisor Gerald Goodman this season has baseball equipment at present to equip midget and bantam teams at all the various parks, and baseball will accordingly make a big gain here. The youngsters are to be sent into the O. B. A. A. series, another vast gain on other seasons.

Softball is a splendid recreation. It will always be a recreation and nothing more, because the nature of the game precludes it ever being taken seriously as a competitive sport. * * *

SHE TIRES OF GOLF.

Miss Joyce Wethered has announced her retirement from golfing competition. Miss Wethered has perhaps shown more amazing consistency in golf than any other woman player, and she has probably sistency in golf than any other woman player, and she has probably arrived at the same state of mind as Alex, the Great when he became somewhat bored at the prospect of no more worlds to conquer. Maybe Alex was a bit tired of the role of conqueror, anyway, and didn't know it. Miss Wethered is 23 years of age, and with her brother Roger, also a British open champion, has been playing golf since early youth.

Inspired for years to perfect their games and with a definite goal ahead of them, it is not surprising that one of the Wethereds should suddenly robel when the objective was exceeded and golf before their games.

It was not surprising when the stump of the Tigers had a definite reaction against Ty Cobb. Cobb was always admired by Detroit fans, but never liked. It is surprising to find that Cleveland fans have reacted in the same way against Speaker. Leaders are usually the goats, but sometimes they are popular enough to ride out the storm. However, the Clevelanders have been accused of loose habits not calculated to win ball games, and Speaker's lack of discipline may cost him his $35,000 job. Fans will stand for almost anything but athletes throwing them down for a good time. them down for a good time.

A New York writer has said of the Yanks that there is nothing strong about them except their breaths, and this is probably applicable outside the confines of Manhattan.

Will you kindly answer the following question on baseball rules in the sporting page of your paper?

A player at bat has one strike on him, and it is discovered that he is the wrong piayer at bat. The proper batsman then comes to bat. He takes his place in the batter's box. No ball is pltened to him. Then his manager decides to put in a pinch hitter to bat in his place. The opposing team objected to this move, claiming that as the proper batter did not come to bat in his right turn, it is against the rules to have a substitute batter for him.

The umpire in chief ruled that it was legal for the team at bat to put in any legal for the team at bat to put in a substitute batter, notwithstanding the above mistake. Was he right in his decision?

league in batting this season, and if he keeps up his terrific hitting he may even beat the league record of .437 made by Hugh Duffy of the old Bostons. Since the present week began Hornsby has climbed agove the .429 grade, almost to .430, and he shows no sign of slowing up. To surpass Duffy's mark would be a great achievement and Rogers weighted down by managerial cares, probably will not make it, but at least he is likely to get into the select .400 class. The mark made by Duffy is not the best ever made in baseball. The O'Neill once held a record of .492 in the association, but that was in the year when bases on balls were counted as base hits. So Duffy's record for actual base hits really is the best.

There is not a right-rand batter in either league who is so capable of beating Duffy's mark as Hornsby, and the chap who runs closest to him is Harry Heilmann of Detroit. If Hornsby can maintain his ratio of progress for the next six weeks, he should be hitting about .435 by then.

Hornsby is not a showy ball player and never will be. He does not swing like Babe Ruth, and he is never likely to make a Ruthian home run record Buth ewill play ball much longer than Ruth and he will prove to be more valuable to his team in the long run.

The movements and general action of Hornsby are similar to those of Lajole and Delahanty. He does things so easily it is hard to understand how he does them

Some fans used to think that Lajole was lazy. He moved over the ground so gracefully cutting off hits which ordinary fielders could not reach, and did it with such easy, careless motion that he gave the impression of laziness. Delahanty was much the same type Del would swing at a ball at times with such an indifferent sort of a slam that it appeared to the novice that he did not care whether school kept or not. But, likely as not, that indifferent gesture would result in his knocking the ball out of the park.

Hornsby makes no false motions in batting or in fielding. He played good ball for Rickey all the time in spite of rep

The Four aior Reasons

To those familiar with the chief reasons for Graham Brothers remarkable growth, these four points loom most conspicuously in explanation of their leadership and lower prices:

- 1. Price advantage.
- 2. Exceptional quality.
- 3. Power and dependability of Dodge Brothers Engine.
- 4. Character of Dodge Brothers Dealer organization.

Better than a written guarantee of continuous satisfaction, these reasons are too fundamentally important to escape the attention of judicious truck buyers.

Marconis Dump St. Martins Nine Into C.A.A. Cellar

Freddie Miles Fans Nine and Allows Only Three

Safe Hits. STANDING. Lost.

St. Martins 3 5 .375

By defeating St. Martins by a 7-3 score at Sunshine Park last night the Marconi club relegated the south enders to the cellar position of the Holy Name league and came up themselves to tie St. Marys for second place. Despite the fact that they connected for seven safe hits to the losers' three, Marconis played a poor game in the field, seven errors being "chalked up against them.

The best the St. Martins' hitters could do against Freddie Miles was to secure three safeties—two singles and a double. The youthful Marconi twirler pitched a real game and retired a total of nine batters—half the men who faced him in the game. Mike Sansone lived up to the tradition that says outfielders are hitters by securing two doubles out of three trips.

London Seniors Play Leafs Here This Afternoon

Admission Prices Reduced For

Remaining Games in London. London seniors meet Guelph Maple Leafs here this afternoon at Tecumseh Park. It will be the first appearance of the local seniors here since June , which is a long absence, measured in baseball time. ished most of the opposition the champion Terriers have had for the last three seasons, have not been hitting a consistent stride either. They've changed pilots several times, but are now settled down and with both teams striving to recover lost ground, today's combat should provide some thrills.

Freddie Quick, who has pitched some nice ball this season, will start the game against the Guelph sluggers, and Hank Down, who showed a real come-back at Stratford last Saturday, will be in reserve. The team otherwise will be the same as usual.

Since the team has concluded its program of long jumps, the prices of admission have been shaved down somewhat. The games now will be staged in the local group and the price-cutting is circus schedule has meant much travelthus made possible. The intercounty ling and that item comes expensive these days.

Port Dog Show Seen As Best Yet

All records are apt to go by the boards at the great dog show to be held at Port Stanley on July I and 2, when over $500 in money and specials will be awarded. The famous European Police Dogs, Alsatians and Doberman Pinschers have several noted winners competing, but the chief attraction should be seen in the various variety classes, when the most prominent winners will be brought together.

A special endeavor will be made to bring together the best dogs owned in Port Stanley, as two trophies have been donated for best male and best female. This will bring in many lady exhibitors, who are especially keen on personally handling their dogs in the ring.

Owing to the large number of inquiries for lists, entries will be taken up to 10 o'clock on Monday morning by Roy O'Nell, 202 Richmond street.

The show will be decidedly international as Captain Smith's latest importation, the noted British winning Springer Spaniel, Inveresk Cadet, a rare bodied blue roan that has beaten many of the best in Scotland and England, both on the bench and in the field, will meet all comers.

As a matter of fact the competition
