The Election

The largest vote ever polled in the history of the Village of Waterdown was cast at the election held here on Monday last. Interest in the Referendum brought out a large number of women voters, who ably exercised their franchise for the first time.

The result of the Referendum vote in the village was as follows:

Polling Div. No. 1.
Yes	No.
1.	29
2.	35
3.	35
4.	37
Polling Div. No. 2.
Yes	No.
1.	61
2.	66
3.	62
4.	70

Total Majorities for No

1.	217
2.	195
3.	203
4.	183

Biggs' majority in the village was 96, Div. No. 1 giving him 35, and Div. No. 2, 61.

The sweeping victory for the United Farmers throughout the Province came as a surprise to the old time political forecasters, and is an evidence that the people are ready for a change. What the future of the new party will be is hard to say. A coalition with either the Reform or Tory party means certain death to the U. F. O., while the forming of a government of its own will cause a uniting of the older parties for its destruction. The course of the U. F. O. will be watched with interest by every Province in the Dominion.

The Visit of the Prince

The Prince of Wales' visit to Canada is about to end. The thousands who have seen him want to see him again. He has certainly won the hearts of all Canada. The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal with characteristic enterprise have secured a real life-like portrait of the Prince, 16 x 22 inches, that should be in every Canadian home. It is a very pleasing portrait and bears a copy of the Prince's autograph. The Family Herald sends a copy of this portrait free to all Family Herald subscribers for 1920. The subscription price of that great family paper is $1.25 a year, big value in itself, but with the Prince's portrait certainly is the greatest value ever offered. The Family Herald and Weekly Star will be kept busy booking orders, as the demand has set in with a rush. People who are not subscribers to the Family Herald and Weekly Star, have no idea of the treat they are missing.

Aims of the NAVY LEAGUE OF CANADA

To emphasize Canada's opportunities and responsibilities on the sea.

To raise funds for the relief of our merchant seamen, injured in the war, and for dependents of those who were killed.

To maintain sailors' homes in our ports.

To train boys and young men for our merchant ships by the organization of Boys' Naval Brigades.

Gentlemen,—In July, 1915, I was thrown from a road machine, injuring my hip and back badly and was obliged to use a crutch for 14 months. In Sept., 1905, Mr. Wm. Outridge, of Lachute, urged me to try MINARD'S LINIMENT, which I did with the most satisfactory results and to-day I am as well as ever in my life.

Yours sincerely,
 MATTHEW BAINES.

Preserving Chilkat.

The phonograph has been requisitioned to preserve the tribal language and the folk songs of the Chilkat Indians of Alaska. Louis Shotridge, a member of that tribe, has recently returned to the United States after an absence of four years in Alaska, in the interests of the University Museum at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. He has devoted this time to studying the language, traditions and customs of his people, as well as to collecting their folk songs. Shotridge is the first Indian sent on such an enterprise. He has brought back many phonograph records of the Chilkat folk songs and ceremonial chants. Some of these will be transcribed into musical scores. The Chilkat are rapidly taking on the ways of civilization, and, but for the work of Shotridge, their native folk songs might have completely disappeared in time. The Chilkats are a fortunate people. What would many give to hear a phonographic record of English as spoken in the days of Chaucer, or the French of Mollere's time.

THESE GOOD TIMES.

People Have Many Luxuries of Late Years.

"Have you ever thought of the fact," said the middle-aged man who always takes the same table in a little restaurant in Herald square, according to the New York Herald, "that as regards inventions and discoveries the last twenty-five years are the richest and most momentous in all the world's history? Of course

WOMAN'S NERVES MADE STRONG

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Winona, Minn.—"I suffered for more than a year from nervousness, and was so bad I could not rest at night—I would lie awake and get so nervous I would have to get up and walk around and in the morning would be all tired out. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and thought I would try it. My nervousness soon left me. I sleep well and feel fine in the morning and able to do my work. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to make weak nerves strong."—Mrs. ALBERT SULTZ, 608 Olmstead St., Winona, Minn.

How often do we hear the expression among women, "I am so nervous, I cannot sleep," or "it seems as though I should fly." Such women should profit by Mrs. Sultz's experience and give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial.

For forty years it has been overcoming such serious conditions as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, dizziness, and nervous prostration of women, and is now considered the standard remedy for such ailments.

you haven't. We take all such things so lightly. When I was a boy we had no motion pictures to entertain us, and the only amusement we had was to be taken occasionally to a dime museum or a Punch and Judy show. "Just think of what the children now have compared to that. We used to ride in dingy horse cars, with straw on the floor in winter and a little stove in the corner. And it was impossible to read in those cars by the flickering oil lamps. Now, just let me give you a list of a few things that make for our comfort, convenience and entertainment to-day—all of which have come to us within a quarter of a century. Here they are: "The electric light, the telephone, the automobile, the electric car, the motion picture, the phonograph, the airplane, the subway, the tubes under the rivers, the typewriter, duplex telegraph, wireless telegraphy, the air-brake, the typesetting machine, the color press, sanitary plumbing and a bathtub in almost every home, antiseptics and marvelous advances in photography. Now, my friends, think this over and you will be amazed how much farther advanced this generation is and what comforts and advantages we enjoy to which we give so little thought. Surely we have reason to be thankful."

Little Things That Count.

Life is made up, not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things, in which smiles and kindnesses and small obligations, given habitually, are what win and preserve the heart and secure comfort.

WELL SATISFIED WITH BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mrs. A. Bernard, La Presentation, Que., writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my baby and am well satisfied with them. I have recommended them to several of my friends who have also used them with beneficial results. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the stomach and bowels and thus prove of benefit in cases of indigestion, constipation, colic, colds, etc. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Seven Stages of Marriage.

"There are seven stages of married life, just as there are seven ages of man," is the united verdict of an octogenarian couple who have just celebrated their diamond wedding.

First, there is the period of sentimentality, which comes to all healthy-minded boys and girls; it is the first stirring of new desires for a new and splendid life.

"Second, there comes the romantic period, which is a more advanced stage than of purely sentimentality. "With the third comes disillusion. It is not necessarily tragic. The man realizes that his wife is just a woman, and this 'disillusion' often brings more solid happiness to the husband than he could ever have hoped for from the ethereal vision he once had.

"The fourth is the period of patience. Each has got to adapt himself and herself to the new view of each other.

"Fifthly, there is the period of reformation. The callow ideas of youth fade away and the real man and the real woman emerge.

"The sixth period is a period of contentment; each has become vital to the other.

"Lastly, there is the period of romance. We have been married sixty years, and we can often see more romance in looking back than in looking forward. The best rises to the mind, and we can dwell on many happy recollections."

Two Canine Heroes.

Two French war dogs, which well deserve the honor, have had their names and numbers posted up at all the French army kennels for a deed of valor. The story is that, at the time of the German offensive, the dogs' keeper stayed in the rear to the very last moment, waiting for his dogs to return with an important message. When they did come, the only way left to escape capture was by swimming the Marine, and the man could not swim, so he coupled the dogs together, and clinging to their iron chain, was dragged across the river by them, the three escaping unhurt in spite of a rain of bullets from German rifles.

Share and Share Alike.

The Russian revolution was not without its lighter side, as the following account of what happened in Petrograd will show:

A woman communist was holding forth, asserting that all were equal and all wealth should be divided equally. On this a man in her audience produced coins amounting to about a dollar and one-half from his pocket. "You have convinced me," Turning to a bystander he asked him to change one of the pieces for him. He obtained two notes.

Facing the lady orator, he said: "This is all the money I possess. I will halve it with you," and he held out the seventy-five cents. She had out to take it, and was about to commence her oration again when her questioner continued: "No, no. How much have you in your purse? We must now divide that, since we are to share equally in our wealth." Reluctantly she produced her purse. It was opened and found to contain twenty dollars. The man pocketed ten dollars of this, thanked her for her interesting lecture and withdrew.

Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis

If there is an ailment in the throat or chest, it is surely essential that the remedy be conveyed direct to the affected part. It is because the healing vapor of Catarrhazone is breathed into the sore, irritated throat and bronchial tubes that its balsamic fumes kill the germs and destroy the cause of the trouble. These are the reasons why Catarrhazone never yet failed to cure a genuine case of Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis or Throat Trouble.

The wonderfully soothing vapor of Catarrhazone instantly reaches the furthest recesses of the lungs, produces a healing curative effect that is impossible with a tablet or liquid, which goes merely to the stomach, and falls entirely to help the throat or lungs.

Catarrhazone Just Breathe It

To permanently cure your winter ills, your coughs, sneezing and Catarrh, by all means use a tried and proven remedy like Catarrhazone. But beware of the substitute. Large outfit lasts two months, costs $1.00, small size 50c, trial size 25c, at dealers everywhere.

Chemistry.

The interest in chemistry and chemical products has greatly increased in Canada owing to the fact that this country had been forced by the war to depend upon its own resources in this direction. The following uses are described to these chemical products: In making soap and paper pulp, mercerizing cotton and purifying mineral oils, caustic soda is used; soda ash is necessary in the manufacture of soap and glass; silicate of soda (better known as water glass) is utilized in the manufacture of soap and in dyeing and printing calico, finishing cotton goods preventing wood rot, bleaching jute and preserving eggs.

The Apocrypha.

All the Old Testament apocrypha, fourteen in number, have been translated into English and are included as apocryphal books in some editions of the Bible. They were formerly printed under a distinctive heading between the Old and the New Testaments, and in that form can still be found in many old family Bibles. They are always included in the so-called Septuagint, a version of the Bible used by the Greek church.

Explaining Falling of Leaves.

The shedding of leaves in autumn may be due to physiological drought. The soil contains sufficient moisture, but the temperature of the soil may be too low to enable the trees to absorb it. "June drop" of oranges and many similar losses may be due to similar causes.

FIUME

A busy, bustling place is New Fiume, with its fine plate glass windowed stores, its noisy, money-coining factories, its Naval College, its warehouses, timber yards, oil refineries, its shipyards, and swiftly moving electric trams, which makes the lumbering ox-wagons, meandering beyond their proper sphere in the ancient precincts of the Old Town, seen curiously out of place. Thirty years ago the city was merely a big village, to-day the muffled clamor of thousands of hammers beats ceaselessly from its great industries, and loudest of all around the hammers which ply in the most important of all these factories, the one which was founded, not so very many years ago by the man who as a poor Lancashire grammar school boy, dreamt dreams which here came true. Whitehead perfected his torpedo invention at Fiume in 1866, when probably even he did not realize what a potent influence the invention would have in the world.

The great charm of a stroll through Old Fiume, of losing oneself in its tortuous byways, is that it is impossible to fortell what surprise may be in store. Now it is some bazaar scene of market, again it is some stone monument of past days, a fountain, a coat-of-arms on a dilapidated entrance door, its lovely colors—azure, vert, gold, but slightly dimmed. Over very weathered and time-ravaged walls, nature has thrown an exquisite veiling, green swaying creepers, vines, roses—dusky crimson, pink and white, which cling and tangle lovingly about the neglected masonry. Aocia trees sweep their showery perfumed sprays over each rubbish heap. Red and scarlet geraniums laugh from out the crannies of the gray or yellow walls, and the whole scene is flooded with stinging sunlight, except where the indigo shadows fall darkly abrupt. In the streets of Old Rjeka (Old Fiume), most folks belong to the Latin race, the Slovenes preferring, as a rule, to set up their habitations at some distance from the city. But it is only in these obscure and back streets and lanes that the Latin race holds undisputed sway. Race meets race, tribe jostles tribe along the quays and canals of both New and Old Fiume. Many peoples meet on the immigration wharves, where yearly thousands upon thousands of poor peasants—Croats, Dalmatians, Slovenes, Czechs, Italians—wait—to embark on the big steamers which are transporting them far away to the new world, to freedom and fortune, to the enjoyments and responsibilities of life, which they have never experienced under the reactionary Hapsburg rule. It requires but little immigration to picture these Fiume harbors as they must have appeared in bygone times with the heavy galleons of Venice, fortress-like in proportion, impelled by immense red sails. . . . It is easy to behold in fancy these quays as they looked when such a vessel dropped anchor in Rjeka's watershed, and formed a rallying point for swarms of smaller galleys. Beautiful and wonderful is the road which winds like a ribbon up the side of the gorge of the Ricina through which the river froths fresh from its source in the Karst Mountains. . . . It is well named "The Gateway of Hungary." . . . Up-up twists the path, here and there zigzagging beneath and around almost perpendicular rocks, here and there branching off into by-ways leading to far-off hill villages. The lapis lazuli sea, studded with pearly islands, lies slumbering, heaving, slumbering, hundreds of feet below. And, likt so many wind-drifted, scarlet pimpernels, the tiny fishing boats rock aimlessly up and down awaiting the expected afternoon breeze. The sun heat is drooping down on the world with a glitter. The town with its red tiled roofs and white walled buildings is stilled. Behind the rose entwined walls of the gardens, bees are humming, grasshoppers are chirping, and the fields are starred with flowers. White villas cuddle close to the hillside, scarcely visible among billows of a thousand hued blossoms—their whiteness strongly contrasting with the flaming geranium creepers. Luxuriant vines interlace the trees and fall in wreaths from the tips of the branches. Like a white eagle on a mountain crag, the old fortress home of Fiume's ancient chieftains gazes down on the passing ships and passing years.—The Right Hon. W. F. Bailey, C. B.

How to Become a Nurse

Any woman with intelligence and "motherly" instinct can learn to be a practical nurse and earn from fifteen to twenty-five dollars per week. If you cannot spend three years in a hospital or are past hospital age, study a common-sense book, called "Nursing in the Home," by Lee B. Smith, M.D. This book is written in a way that is easy to comprehend. It will teach you how to recognize different diseases; how to take temperature; how to take care of fever patients; how to give baths; all about the sick room. It treats of burns and scalds, broken limbs, bleeding from wounds, (bandaging), drowning, fainting—almost every contingency covered. Many pages are devoted to Hygiene, Anatomy, Physiology and Medicine. It contains advice for mothers and tells how to care for infants. This 500-page book, bound in handsome red cloth, is worth $2.00, but for a limited time can be procured by sending fifty cents to the publishers, World's Medical Press, 652 Washington street, Buffalo, N.Y.

History of Shaving.

In tracing the history of shaving it should be sufficient to go back to the Greeks and Romans, upon whose civilization our own is based. Beards were highly esteemed among the former up to the time of Alexander the Great, who was smooth shaven. One reason for the abolition of the beard among soldiers was the fact that it afforded the enemy something to lay hold of. At an earlier period the wearing of certain types of helmet and gorget had affected the beard. The Romans wore beards down to the time of the Gallic wars, while the Gauls, albeit barbarians, were smooth shaven save for the moustache. The antiquity of barber shops and razors in Rome is variously given by historians. Some have claimed that the first barber shop, at least in that part of the world, was opened in Sicily in 200 B.C., while other authorities make this date far earlier or later. The Sclavian seems to have been the first barber.

Hot Breads Easily Made

Now that the cool days are here we can indulge in hot bread once more. There is no one who knows how to make more kinds of muffins, biscuits, waffles and hot cakes than the southerners, who serve one or two or three of them at every meal. Their spoon bread is very good to serve as a substitute for potatoes. Bring a pint of milk to a boil, and stir in a cup of cornmeal and a teaspoonful of salt. Cook for five minutes, then stir in two tablespoonfuls of butter, a half a cup of cold milk and two well-beaten eggs. Then add a second cup of cold milk, gradually beating all the time, and bake in a well-buttered baking dish. Serve in the same dish.

tablespoonfuls of sugar together. Rub in two rounding tablespoonfuls of shortening, add three-fourths of a cup of milk, and one egg, or two, if you can spare them, without beating it. Beat until you have a good smooth batter. Bake in muffin pans or in a sheet and cut in squares while hot. This is very nice with a cup of blueberries or blackberries well floured, stirred in just before putting into the pan.

CINNAMON BUNS.

Sift two cups of flour with two heaping tablespoonfuls of baking powder and half a teaspoonful of salt. Rub in two tablespoonfuls of shortening. Beat an egg until light, add half a cup of milk and pour into the flour. Mix to a soft dough. Roll out about one-third of an inch thick, spread with cinnamon and sugar and a few chopped raisins. Roll up like a jelly roll, cut into slices about an inch thick, lay in a well-buttered tin and bake in a quick oven. These are very good with apple sauce for a heavy dessert.

Delicious tea muffins can be made by using one's favorite recipe for muffins and adding chopped nuts, Canton ginger or chopped dates. Little hot biscuits to serve with salad are made of baking powder biscuit batter, rolling thinner than usual, cutting out in tiny circles, putting a thin slice of cheese on top, covering it with a second circle, and baking in a hot oven.

COUNTING HEADS.

First Census by Moses in the Wilderness.

There is a record of a census in China as far back as the year 2942 B. C. and of one in Japan in the last century before Christ. Under the constitution of Solon the citizens of Athens were divided and registered in four classes, according to the amount of their taxable property or income. The Roman census was burdened with more statistics than any of these, however. It had its origin under Servius Tullius, sixth king of Rome, and was an affair of much solemnity. Every citizen had to appear upon the Campus Martius and declare upon oath his name and dwelling and the value of his property under the penalty of having his goods confiscated.

The most ancient statistical record of a census is found in the Bible. The census was taken by Moses in the wilderness, and, as shown by the first chapter of Numbers, the enumeration must have been very simple. "Take ye," said this account, "the sum of all the congregations of the children of Israel, after their fathers, with the number of their names, every male by their polls; from twenty years old and upward, all that are able to go forth to war in Israel; thou and Aaron shall number them by their armies." This census was an affair that must have been soon over, lasting no longer than a day, being merely a counting of the heads of the fighting men. The women and children and cripples and the old men were not included; "neither were the Levites numbered among them." Those who did stand up to be numbered totaled 603,550.

High Priced Strad.

The war does not seem to have affected the high prices of representative Cremona violins, although many English owners have sold their instruments in order to give money realized to patriotic purposes. Messrs. George Hart & Son, of 28 Wardour street, London, Eng., report that they sold recently a well-preserved Stradivarius for two thousand guineas. It is a choice specimen of the maker, and is dated, 1702.

Fire Clay Substitute.

The great resistance to heat of ordinary coal ash has suggested the use of this material for fire bricks in place of fire clay. It is claimed that a suitable binder has been provided in a new process, and several thousand experimental bricks already made are being tested, both as a fire-proof building material and as a furnace lining.

Nations' Religious Beliefs.

The German prevailing religious belief is Lutheran. The Church of England prevails in Great Britain, known more familiarly in the States as the Episcopalian. However, all churches are accepted in England now, Belgium, France and Italy are Catholic in tendency.

A Baptist minister's son was playing cards in his father's study one afternoon when he heard his father, who was opposed to card playing, enter the house. The son sought the first thing at hand in which to hide the deck, and the only thing happened to be the minister's baptismal robe. The following Sunday his father was conducting a baptism in the river, and as he raised his arm the cards fell out and floated down the stream, first the ace, then the king, queen, jack and ten. The congregation began to chuckle, and the mother turned to her son and said, "Jack, speak up, say something to help your father". The son looked at his mother and then at the cards, then he replied, "Mother, Dad doesn't need any help from me with a hand like that".

The Influenza In Labrador.

The ravages of the Spanish influenza in Labrador during the past winter and the many deaths in that portion of North America have created a new problem to be met by the friends of the Labrador mission. In a letter from Dr. Willfred Grenfell an account is given of the effect of the influenza epidemic in the Sandwich Bay district of Labrador. Twenty per cent. of the population perished as a result of the illness. Dr. Grenfell gives a long list of the dead and adds: "As these Labrador settlements are very small each one generally consisting of a few houses, some idea can be gained of the catastrophe to that part of the country. The distances are great between places and families, and the difficulties of the doctor and nurse traveling over that area are almost insurmountable. The point that I should like to emphasize in this connection is the pressing need for care for the orphan children who are left as a result of this epidemic. A number of men left young families, and in several cases both parents were taken. Our present orphanage, besides being so poorly constructed and difficult to run, is full to capacity, and we are at our wits' end to meet the problem of caring for so many helpless children."

"I Hope Every City and District Will Win My Flag"

When Edward, Prince of Wales—eager, bright eyed, smiling and sincere—arrived in Canada in August, and when he voiced his great admiration of the wonderful achievements of Canadians, on the fields of battle and at home, once again we were thrilled with joyous pride.

He asked concerning Canada's reconstruction programme, and when he was told of the Victory Loan 1919, he graciously consented to the use of his Coat of Arms on a flag, which is to be the prize of honour for districts achieving their quota in the loan.

In dedicating "The Prince's Flag" at Ottawa on Labor Day, His Royal Highness said in part:—

"It is a great joy to me to be associated with the loan, which is the bridge between war and peace, and which is finishing off the job."

"I hope every city and district will win my flag."

Striking, and beautiful in design, this flag will form not only a unique memento of Victory Year, but a lasting and outstanding souvenir of the visit of His Royal Highness—a visit which will remain as one of the most memorable events in Canada's history.

The reproduction above shows the design of the flag. The body is white, the edge red; in the upper left hand corner is the Union Jack, and in the lower right hand corner the Prince of Wales' Coat of Arms.

The flag is made in two sizes, 4 feet 6 inches by 9 feet for small cities, towns and villages, and 7 feet by 13 feet 6 inches for cities of over 10,000 population.

Canada has been divided into canvassing districts by the Victory Loan Organization. Each city forms one district. Other districts have been determined according to population.

Each of these canvassing districts has been allotted a certain amount in Victory Bonds to sell. To win the Prince's Flag, therefore, a district has to sell its allotment. That is the one and simple condition.

Anticipating that many districts will buy far beyond their allotment, the organization decided that for each twenty-five per cent. excess of the quota one Prince of Wales' Crest be awarded. Thus the workers in a district doubling its quota will be the proud winners of four small crests for their Honour Flag. These crests will be sewn to the flag. The Prince's Crest—the three ostrich plumes—is shown at the top of the coat of arms.

To every organization with fifty or more employees, where seventy-five per cent. of the enrollment invests a total of ten per cent. of the annual payroll in Victory Bonds, a supplementary Prince of Wales Flag in smaller form—48 inches by 34 inches—will be awarded.

The allotment for each district has been carefully considered, and is based on a conservative estimate of the purchasing power of the district.

Your district can sell its allotment and thus win the Prince's Flag, provided each person does his or her share.

You will gladly do your part and encourage your neighbour to do his.

Remember YOUR purchase may be the one that decides whether or not your district is to be the proud possessor of the Prince's Flag.

Will You also Serve?*

Rheumatism Left Him As If By Magic!

"Inner Mysteries"
Facts Overlooked
By Doctors and Scientists for Centuries

"I am eighty-three years old and I doctored for rheumatism ever since I came out of the army over fifty years ago," writes J. B. Ashelman. "Like many others, I spent money freely for so-called 'cures,' and I have read about 'Uric Acid' until I could almost taste it. I could not sleep nights or walk without pain; my hands were so sore and stiff I could not hold a pen. But now, as if by magic, I am again in active business and can walk with ease or write all day with comfort. Friends are surprised at the change."

HOW IT HAPPENED.

Mr. Ashelman is only one of thousands who suffered for years, owing to the general belief in the old, false theory that "Uric Acid" causes rheumatism. This erroneous belief induced him and legions of unfortunate men and women to take wrong treatments. You might just as well attempt to put out a fire with oil as to try and get rid of your rheumatism, neuritis and like complaints, by taking treatments supposed to drive Uric Acid out of your blood and body. Many physicians and scientists now know that Uric Acid never did, never can and never will cause rheumatism; that it is a natural and necessary constituent of the blood; that it is found in every new-born babe; and that without it we could not live! These statements may seem strange to some folks, who have all along been led to believe in the old "Uric Acid" humbug. It took Mr. Ashelman fifty years to find out this truth. He learned how to get rid of the true cause of his rheumatism, other disorders and recover his strength from "The Inner Mysteries," a remarkable book now being distributed free by an authority who devoted over twenty years to the scientific study of this particular trouble.

NOTE: If any reader of this paper wishes the book that reveals these facts regarding the true cause and cure of rheumatism, facts that were overlooked by doctors and scientists for centuries past, simply send a post card or letter to the author below, and it will be sent by return mail without any charge whatever. Cut out this notice and send it to the author below, and it will be sent by return mail without any charge whatever. If not a sufferer yourself, send this notice to some afflicted friend. The author of this remarkable "Inner Mysteries" that has brought relief and happiness to so many is H. P. Clearwater, No. 55-D Street, Hallowell, Maine.

Metric Denominations.

The metric denominations and values for measures of capacity are as follows: Kiloliter or stere, 1,000 liters, equals one cubic meter; hectoliter, 100 liters, equals one-tenth of a cubic meter; dekaliter, ten liters, equals ten cubic decimeters, liter, equals one cubic decimeter; deciliter, one-tenth of a liter, equals one-tenth of a cubic decimeter; centiliter, one one-hundredth of a liter, equals ten cubic centimeters; milliliter, one one-thousandth of a liter, equals one cubic centimeter.

The Clocks We Wear.

The three marks on the back of a glove and the clocks on a stocking are due to similar circumstances. The glove mark corresponds to the fourchette pieces between the fingers, and in other days these pieces were continued along the back of the hand, brad being used to conceal the seams. A somewhat similar origin is assigned to the ornamental clock on the stocking. In the day when stockings were made of cloth the seams occurred where the clocks do now, the ornamentation then being used to conceal the seams.

The useless little bow in the leather band lining a man's hat is a survival of the time when a hat was made by taking a piece of leather, boring two holes through it and drawing it up with a piece of string.

Costiveness and Its Cure.—When the excretory organs refuse to perform their functions properly the intestines become clogged. This is known as costiveness and if neglected gives rise to dangerous complications. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will effect a speedy cure. At the first intimation of this ailment the sufferer should procure a packet of the pills and put himself under a course of treatment. The good effects of the pills will be almost immediately evident.

Sawdust Valuable.

It is not very long ago since sawdust at the mills was considered a nuisance and for the greater part was thrown into the water. If a small quantity of it could be sold now and again, it brought a price of from 1 to 1½ cents per bushel. The largest mills in Norway thought they did well when they could earn from sawdust $2,000 to $3,000 a year. Now this refuse has become valuable, the price having risen from 10 to 15 cents, and from the large quantities sold forms a considerable item in the incomes of the mills, some of them now earning from this source $30,000 to $40,000 a year. The reasons for this heavy rise in the value of sawdust are several. The high prices of fuel during the last few years have caused sawdust to be employed as fuel. However, sawdust attained its principal value after the cellulose mills commenced to use the material; and therefore it has secured a steady demand and, what is more important for the future, a comparatively high price, when the prices of fuel again become normal.

It Tempted Inspection.

I have a friend in East Africa who writes from a remote village that he was much puzzled recently by the marked interest in himself shown by the natives. First the "Mayor," in a much-worn dress-coat and a fancy red waistcoat (worn outside the coat-arrived and walked round and round the Englishman at a spot where he was superintending the erection of a "wireless."

Later the native gentleman requested that in the afternoon he might bring his friends, which he did, to the number of a dozen; and they, like he, proceeded to walk round the soldier, peering curiously into his face. In the evening they returned with food offerings. And the reason of this flattering attention turned out to be a gold tooth, which they imagined must have grown in my friend's mouth.—Pall Mall Gazette.

The Spider's Web.

One of the simplest of nature's barometers is a spider's web. When there is a prospect of wind or rain the spider shortens the filaments by which its web is sustained and leaves it in this state as long as the weather is variable. If it elongates its threads it is a sign of fine, calm weather, the duration of which may be judged by the length to which the threads are let out. If the spider remains inactive it is a sign of rain; if it keeps at work during rain the downpour will not last long, and will be followed by fine weather, says an exchange. Observation has taught that the spider makes changes in its web every 24 hours, and that if such changes are made in the evening just before sunset the night will be clear and beautiful.

New French Slang.

The language of the Poilu is as double Dutch, to the uninitiated. Any one familiar with the slang of the Quartier Latin would probably feel more at home than most. But there are many other ingredients—some patois, some picked up in Morocco, and some are survivals of the soldier slang of the First Empire. Such a word is "cleber," which apparently means to eat after one has been on the point of starving. An explanation given of the origin of the word is that it is a corruption of "kleba," the Russian for bread. It is said that the French soldiers on the great retreat from Moscow called out "Papa, kleba," to Napoleon.

For Asthma and Catarrh.—It is one of the chief recommendations of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil that it can be used internally with as much success as it can outwardly. Sufferers from asthma and catarrh will find that the Oil when used according to directions will give immediate relief. Many sufferers from these ailments have found relief in the Oil and have sent testimonials.

THE CACTUS

Is One of the Most Useful Plants to Man.

We are accustomed to think of the giant cactus of southwestern deserts (which few of us have seen, though often we have read about it) as a mere freak of vegetation.

It is all of that. But it is also one of the most useful of plants to man. There is no telling how the Indians of Sonora, in Mexico, would get along without it.

To begin with, its fruit in the bearing season (June and July) is the principal food of the natives. What they cannot eat fresh they boil to a syrup for winter use. Some of the syrup is fermented, yielding an intoxicating drink for occasions of festival.

The fruit harvest yields incidentally great quantities of seeds, which are collected in sacks for storage, like grain. These seeds are pounded to meal in a stone mortar and utilized for making bread; also for feeding chickens, which fatten rapidly on the diet.

The giant cactus has a skeleton composed of riblike elements that furnish a light, strong and elastic material for building purposes. They are used for the construction of chicken coops, chairs, traps and many other things. A single rib serves for a long stick by which to knock down the ripe fruits from their lofty elevation—the huge plant sometimes attaining a height of fifty feet.

Woodpeckers peck holes in the trunk and branches of the cactus, eating the pulp. As a means of self-protection the plant lines these cavities with woody fibre, and owls and other birds find them most convenient for nests. When the cactus dies the linings drop out, furnishing ready-made wooden cups and water bottles.

The thirsty traveler in the desert can obtain all the drink he needs by firing a rifle or pistol bullet into the trunk of a giant cactus. Thereupon a fluid exudes that is an acceptable equivalent for water, though it does not taste good.

Relieves Asthma at Little Expense. Thousands of dollars have been vainly spent upon remedies for asthma and seldom, if ever, with any relief. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy, despite its assurance of benefit, costs so little that it is within reach of all. It is the national remedy for asthma, far removed from the class of doubtful and experimental preparations. Your dealer can supply it.

JAP. RICE GARDENS

So Small They Are Almost Laughable.

Almost one-half of the land capable of cultivation in Japan is planted in rice. Handkerchief gardens would perhaps best describe the little rice fields, many of which are no larger than a tennis court are equally flat and are surrounded by rims of earth to hold the water when the fields are flooded.

The average rice field in Japan is about one acre and a half in size; but large or small, each field must be leveled and each must have its rim or dike. There must be a system of canals to bring water to the fields and another system of ditches to take it away when it is no longer needed.

It is said that there are 12,000 square miles of rice land in Japan, the greater part of which has been prepared with an almost infinite amount of labor. That area of land cultivated in rice usually feeds a nation of 50,000,000 people.

Fertilizers Close at Hand.

GETTING THE BEST OUT OF THE BERRY.

"Everything is so high," complains one housekeeper, "that it is all I can do to feed the family, let alone store away jellies and preserves for next winter. They will just have to do without those delicacies. However," she added, "I am going to 'do up' a few quarts of berries here and there to have when company comes."

"For instance, gooseberries," she continued. "I have such a good gooseberry jam recipe I can't bear not to use it."
"How do you make it?" I inquired.
"Why," she commenced, "I melt six pounds of sugar in a quart of red currant juice, then I let it boil for five minutes and next I add eight pounds of washed and steamed gooseberries. I cook it for 40 minutes, skim well and set aside until the next day. Early next morning I skim the berries out into jelly jars, boil down the syrup until very thick and pour over the fruit. Last I cover the jars with paraffin when cold."

RASPBERRY VINEGAR.

"That sounds interesting," I said. "Have you a recipe for raspberry vinegar? I have been wanting one for a long time."

"Yes, indeed," she answered. "For raspberry vinegar I put four quarts of raspberries into an earthenware bowl, pour over it four cupfuls of vinegar and leave this mixture covered in the icebox until the next day. Then I strain off every particle of liquid and vinegar from the berries and pour it over four additional quarts of berries that have been placed in a clean bowl. If you are economical, you will save the berries and make spiced raspberries from them. Again I let the berries and vinegar stand overnight and in the morning strain off the liquid and heat to the boiling point. Then I add 12 cupfuls of granulated sugar and boil for 20 minutes. Next I seal it hot in air-tight bottles."

SPICED RASPBERRIES.

"If you want to make spiced raspberries this recipe is a good one," said my experienced friend, showing me the following: "Place the eight quarts of berries (used in the vinegar) in a preserving kettle and add eight cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of boiling water, three broken sticks of cinnamon, two dozen whole cloves and two blades of mace (tied in a bit of cheesecloth). Simmer slowly for 45 minutes. After they begin to boil, take out the spices and store like marmalade."

"Here," she said, as I started homeward, "you ought to do up some currants if you chance upon any at a reasonable price, so take along these two recipes. They will come in handy." So I went forth, fully armed for the slaughter, one might say.

CURRENT CONSERVE

Mix together three quarts of stemmed currants, three quarts of sugar, one pound of seeded raisins, finely chopped, the rind and pulp of two oranges and the rind and pulp of one lemon. Let the ingredients stand covered for two hours, and then cook over a very moderate heat until as thick as marmalade. Be careful that it does not burn. Store like jelly.

Health cannot be looked for in the child that is subjected to worms, because worms destroy health by creating internal disturbances that retard development and cause serious weakness. Miller's Worm Powders expel worms and are so beneficial in their action that the systems of the little sufferers are restored to healthfulness, all the discomforts and dangers of worm infection are removed, and satisfactory growth is assured.

SIR WILLIAM'S WILL

CHAPTER XVI.

When he saw Clytie on the day after the girls' return to Bromley, Dr. Morton smiled and nodded with the self-approval which is the doctor's due when his prescription has proved satisfactory: for Clytie was looking in the pink of health and spirits.

"Nothing like a change," he said, cheerfully. "Now, don't you get run down again, or I'll send you packing to the Cannibal Islands, Miss Clytie. As for you, young lady—" he added, to Mollie.

"I'm too tough for the most enterprising of cannibals," she cut in. "Yes, she does look fit, doesn't she? That's thanks to my sisterly care, and the absence of medical men at Withcombe. Now, you'll stay to lunch, won't he, Clytie? Do; and give your other poor patients a chance!"

Clytie went about the house with light step, and often singing to herself; and it was Mollie who now looked somewhat grave and thoughtful, as she eyed her much-changed sister. What had happened to work that change? she asked herself. You see, she was ignorant of what had passed in the boat during that eventful storm.

Clytie no longer showed any desire for solitude, or disinclination to join Mollie in her rides, and the people of the estate noticed, and rejoiced in, the brightness which seemed to radiate from their young mistress.

Be sure that Lord Stanton was an early visitor: indeed, he came over the first day and stayed to the lunch which the doctor had refused; and presently the friendship between the young people was strengthened and, so to speak, put on a proper footing by the arrival of the aunt, who came to run the Towers for the young lord.

"Didn't I tell you she was a brack?" he said, in an undertone to Clytie, when she and Mollie went over to call. He lowered his voice because Lady Mervyn was in the room, at a little distance talking to Mollie.

"She is quite charming and more than kind," said Clytie; "and appears to have only one fault."

"Oh! what's that?" he asked.

"She is too fond of a certain nephew of hers," she replied, with a smile.

The lad grinned. "That's her chief virtue," he retorted. "But, I say, hasn't she taken to Miss Mollie? I knew she would. They cottoned to each other at once; did you notice?"

"Most persons take to Mollie," said Clytie, glancing at that personage with loving admiration.

"Yes, I suppose they do," he assented thoughtfully and rather wistfully. "I suppose she has no end of admirers."

"She is too young and sees too few persons to have as many as that means," said Clytie. "But when she goes out into the world—"

He stifled a sigh. "Rather! I think she's the jolliest girl I've ever seen; and the prettiest—bar one."

His gaze was so direct that Clytie, laughing and blushing, did not ask him to name the exception. Lady Mervyn came across to them. She was an aristocratic lady whom, in these days of perpetual youth, it would be absurd to call old, though her hair was

LIKE UNTO
Venom of Snakes

Professor H. Strauss, M. D., of the Royal Charity Hospital, says, "The cause for an attack of gout, rheumatism, lumbago, is supplied by the increase of uric acid in the blood serum, the result of various causes, the most frequent of which is renal. Before an attack, one suffers sometimes from headache, neuralgia, twinges of pain here and there."

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead, when the back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; when you suffer with sick headache, or dizziness, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatic pains or lumbago, gout, sciatica when the weather is bad, do not neglect the warning, but try simple means. Take six or eight glasses of water during the day, then obtain at your nearest drug store 'An-urio' (anti-uric acid).

This is the discovery of Dr. Pierce of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. "An-urio" is an antidote for this uric acid poisoning and dissolves uric acid in the body much as hot coffee dissolves sugar. "An-urio" will penetrate into the joints and muscles, and dissolve the poisonous accumulations. It will stamp out toxins. Send 10 cents to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial package.

snowy-white, and she wore upon it a round of Brussels lace which was too small to be described as a cap.

"Your sister has been telling me all about you Miss Bramley," she said, in a peculiarly sweet voice, which had a note of resemblance to Stanton's. "It seems that Percy has been having a very happy time by the seaside; and I think he is much improved."

"We've done our best," remarked Mollie demurely. Lady Mervyn laughed and patted her hand, and, as Mollie went on to the terrace to pick up a cat, of course followed by Stanton, the old lady said to Clytie:

"It is so good for him to know nice people, especially women; boys are so rough, and sometimes so wild. Not that there's anything of that sort to complain of in Percy," she added quickly, and with fond pride. "He has always been the dearest of boys; and has never given any one a moment's uneasiness, excepting when he spent too much money and got into little boyish scrapes. Yes; it is very fortunate for him that you should be such near neighbors. What a charming girl your sister is, so quick and girlish, and with such delightful spirits! Now, she is just my ideal of what a young girl should be."

Clytie laughed with a little amusement at this unreserved approval.

"I am so glad you like Mollie, Lady Mervyn," she said. "It isn't everybody who understands her."

"Oh, but I do," Lady Mervyn declared. "I understood her at once; and she found her way to my heart directly. I haven't any children; and I pet Percy, as, no doubt, you see; but I can imagine how delightful it would be to have a girl like Mollie for a daughter."

"And I can imagine how it would be for a girl like Mollie to have such a mother," said Clytie, with a sigh; and so won for herself a share in the heart of the old lady, who laid her hand in Clytie's affectionately, and kissed her.

"You must let me mother you both," she said, in a low voice, "and you must let me call you Clytie and Mollie."

Clytie's eyes were moist as she returned the kiss; she could not find words to express her gratitude, and none were necessary.

A little later they dined at the Towers; a small party of the nearest neighbors, and a party which was made a merry one by Mollie's inexhaustible spirits; and, soon afterward, Clytie gave a quiet and informal dinner at the Hall.

Among the guests was Hesketh Carton. He had called frequently since the girls' return to the Hall, and had several times proved himself to be of value in some matters relating to the estate; and, Clytie was grateful to him, and treated him with a cordiality which, alas, Mollie did not simulate; for, though he strove hard, without seeming to do so, to win her good-will, Mollie declined to abandon her old dislike and mistrust of him.

And yet he seemed so irreproachable. On the night of the dinner-party he bore himself with such modesty, such perfection of tone and manner as to gain the favorable opinion of his fellow guests—excepting always Mollie, who, in a whisper, remarked to Stanton:

"What does Mr. Hesketh Carton remind you of?"

"Eh?" he said. "Remind me?"

"Did you ever see one of the crocodiles at the Zoo?"

"Oh! I say, you know!" he protested, but laughingly. "He doesn't seem at all a bad chap!"

"Nor does the crocodile," retorted Mollie, "while it lies basking in the sun with a smile on its face; but you wait till it opens its jaws and makes a snap—ah!" She opened her mouth, and snapped her teeth expressively. "Yes; he looked like a beautiful sleek cat there, talking to Clytie; and she looks like a sweet innocent bird unconscious of danger, and not knowing that there are wicked claws under those silk paws."

"Catch a bird not knowing a cat when it sees it!" he said, with a grin. "And I say, you know, Miss Mollie, you're a bit hard on him—what?"

"All right," retorted Mollie, with a nod. "You wait and see. Anyhow, I wish he wouldn't talk to her so much; he's been hovering about her all the evening."

Other persons, whose eyes were not so sharp and who had not so much reason for watching Clytie, noticed that Mr. Hesketh Carton was particularly attentive to her; and Lady Winchfield remarked to her friend Lady Chillingford that it really would be a good thing if that wild Wilfred Carton proved to be dead, and Miss Bramley and Mr. Carton were to make a match of it. "It would dispose of that absurd will so nicely, wouldn't it, dear? And one must remember that, in the event of anything happening to Wilfred Carton, Hesketh would be the baronet."

And Lady Chillingford was, of course, of one mind with her friend. It was Hesketh Carton who turned over her music for her when Clytie sang; and he and Stanton were the

BILIOUSNESS

How to Prevent and Cure

Among the earliest symptoms are furred tongue and dull headache. Then come dizzy spells, bad taste, quick pulse, fever and cold sweats. Finally, sleeplessness and vomiting make the condition of the sufferer almost intolerable.

The root of biliousness is with the liver, which is clogged and can't keep bile from getting into the blood.

Nothing works with the certainty of Dr. Hamilton's Pills: they act directly on the liver, restore the bile to its proper course and prevent it from contaminating the vital fluid.

Of course, the bowels are ordered and relaxed by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and kidneys receive new tonic, the blood is renovated, and the result is a renewal of health.

No need for delay; the sooner you use Dr. Hamilton's Pills, the sooner you'll feel the brisk, well-regulated system. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c.

not surprised. They spend too much money on finery and cheap jewelry to have enough for warm, sensible clothes and boots."

"That's true, sir, true enough," admitted Merrill, shaking his head; "and it was thought Martha Brown was taken that way. Though I had my doubts from the first."

"Why should you have any doubts?" inquired Hesketh, with barely concealed contempt.

"Well, sir, I've noticed the girl for some time back, and it didn't seem to me as if she were going the same way as the other girls who are in a decline. She'd be ill by fits and starts; at times she would get quite thin and pale, and seem to have scarcely any life in her; at others—"

"There are always fluctuations in the course of the malady," said Hesketh, still more impatiently.

"But not like those of Martha's, sir," said Merrill. "She scarcely ever coughed, and the only thing she complained of was neuralgia; and it was after one of her bad bouts of neuralgia that she got worse. It occurred to me, sir, that she might be taking something for it that didn't agree with her."

"Very likely, I should say," rejoined Hesketh. "People like that are always fond of dosing themselves. I'm very sorry, but—"

Merrill drew a little nearer, and took something from his pocket.

"Well, sir, I went to her stand—you know she worked by herself; just beside the big window—I went there today to put her things together, and I found this."

He held out his hand and showed a small vial. Hesketh took it, and his face grew graver, and his eyelids drooped, as they always did when he was taken by surprise, or wanted to conceal any emotion. He carried the vial to the light; there was no label on it—it had probably been rubbed off—and he unceremoniously sniffed the contents. It had been necessary for him, when he entered at the works, to study chemistry; and he knew that the vial he held in his hand contained one of the recently discovered poisons which can be purchased without any difficulty at any chemist's, because the quantity sold at one time was not sufficient to cause death.

In an instant he saw what had happened. If the girl had taken the whole of the noxious stuff at once, it would not have killed her; but its constant use, a few drops at a time, had, by degrees, proved fatal.

"Have you spoken to any one of this kind of yours, Merrill?" he asked, with a casual air.

"No one, sir. I thought I'd better speak to you first," replied Merrill. "You see, if there wasn't any harm in the stuff, there was no need to make a fuss. They'd probably want an inquest, and her poor people would be put to no end of trouble, and perhaps expense."

"Quite right!" said Hesketh, approvingly. "You acted quite rightly. As a matter of fact, this drug is entirely harmless; it is just one of the remedies for toothache, neuralgia, which can be bought at any chemist's, and certainly—he emphasized the word impressively—"certainly had nothing whatever to do with the death of the girl."

Merrill heaved a sigh of relief.

"I'm glad to hear it, sir," he said. "I, myself, was inclined to be of that opinion; or else, of course, the doctor would have found out what she'd been taking."

Hesketh turned away to poke the fire. As the man spoke, he remembered reading an analysis of the thing, and the statement that it was one of the few poisons which leave no trace behind it.

"Just so," he said. "Of course, he would. I'm glad you kept this thing to yourself, Merrill; and that you came to me before mentioning it. Of course, you will say nothing about it. It would only cause useless trouble and pain to her folk. You showed your usual good sense."

"Thank you, sir," responded Merrill, much gratified by his master's approval. "Shall I take the bottle, sir, and throw it away?"

Hesketh held it out, then drew back his hand.

"Oh, don't trouble," he said. "I'll throw it away. Will you have a glass of wine, whiskey, Merrill?"

Merrill declined gratefully and respectfully, and, after a few more words, departed.

Hesketh stood before the fire, with the vial in his hand, pondering over the case.

"This universal drug-taking is the curse of the age," he muttered. "I wonder how many persons die of poison without their friends, or their themselves, for that matter, suspecting it."

He raised his hand to fling the vial on the fire; then he checked himself as he had checked himself in returning it to Merrill.

"I wonder in what strength they make it up?" he mused. "I'll see tomorrow."

He placed it on the mantelshelf and stood looking at it absently; then, reflecting that one of the servants might be tempted to taste it, he went to the safe and locked it up; it rested on Jack's paper of renunciation, which he had stolen at Mr. Granger's.

HIS VACANT HOME.

Boreleigh—Yes, the bullet struck my head, went careering into space and— Miss Keen—How terrible. Did they get it out?

"What is the trouble, sir?" asked the solicitous waiter. "What is the trouble?" repeated the sniffling guest.

St. John, N.B.

St. John is a city of 63,000 inhabitants, situated on the Bay of Fundy, at the mouth of the River St. John. The St. John River is 450 miles long, and passes through a fertile, productive and most beautiful region. The various products of the Province find their way to the sea at the Port of St. John, where also the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Lines of Railway join forces with ocean steamships from all parts of the world. Its harbor is always open for traffic, winter or summer. In the channel and at the ocean freight wharves there is a depth of water at low tide of 32 feet, which gives a high water depth of about 58 feet. It is the chief winter port of Canada, taking the place of Montreal and Quebec in the winter season, when the St. Lawrence is closed. Having the shortest land haul to the sea of any developed Eastern Canadian Port, it is rapidly progressing as a National Port.

Nathaniel's "Jinx" Active.

Nathaniel Ripple had a terrible experience one afternoon when he was about twelve years old. He opened the doors of the buggy house and was backing the buggy in when the wind blew both with small sticks, but just as he reached the buggy tongue one of the sticks fell and the doors came around far enough to stop the buggy. A moment later Grandpa Ripple, who had just come down to the barn, said: "What's that you are saying, Nathaniel?"

Cat Victims of the War.

During the four and a half years of the war 70,000 diseased, mangled, blind, starved and injured cats were taken off the streets of London by the shelters of Our Dumb Friends' League, mercifully destroyed in lethal boxes, and their bodies afterwards disposed of by cremation. It is claimed in the fourteenth annual report of the organization that the shelters have done their share of war work, for they have frequently taken in the maimed, feeble victims of air raids, explosions and other war disasters. During the year 1917 the seven shelters received over 14,000 stray, diseased and injured cats.

That Much Assured.

A somewhat impecunious young fellow rashly engaged himself to a charming young thing, who shortly after the excitement had subsided began to evince doubts. Said she: "How long, dearie, do you think we shall have to be engaged?" "Well, sweet heart," said the young man cheerily, "I have enough money to last for six months, I think."

PAINFUL NEURALGIA

Is Caused by Thin, Watery Blood and Cured by Enriching the Blood.

Most people think of neuralgia as a pain in the head or in the face, but neuralgia may affect any nerve in the body. Different names are given to it when it affects certain nerves. Thus neuralgia of the sciatic nerve is called sciatica, but the character of the pain and the nature of the disease are the same. The cause being the same, the cure to be effective must be the same. The pain in neuralgia is caused by starved nerves. The blood, which carries nourishment to the nerves, has become thin and impure and no longer does so, and the pain your feel is the cry of the nerves for their natural food. You may ease the pains of neuralgia with hot applications, but you can only cure the trouble by enriching and purifying the blood. For this purpose we know of no medicine that can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich blood and thus act as the most efficient of nerve tonics. If you are suffering from this most dreaded of troubles, or any form of nerve trouble, give these pills a fair trial, and see how speedily you will be rested to good health.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A mother was trying to impress upon her son that doing one's duty was rarely pleasant but that it should be done. And in order to prove her point she illustrated:

"Look at your father. He works and works; not that he likes it, but because it is his duty. Can you imagine your father doing anything just because it was pleasant?"

"Yes, mother, I can," answered the son.

"How and when?" asked the mother. And her gallant son answered: "When he married you, mother."
