Cured His Rheumatism In Three Weeks.

James LeB. Johnstone, a prominent member of the Citizen's Band, of Chatham, writes:

"Contracted Rheumatism by exposure, five years ago, and was ailing for two months and in great pain all the time. I got Father Morrissey's No. 7 Tablets and took them for about three weeks, when the Rheumatism all left me and I have had no return of the pain since."

Father Morrissey's "No. 7" Tablets

Rheumatism is generally brought on by exposure, but is really caused by Uric Acid in the blood. This Uric Acid is an irritating poison, formed from the waste matter of the body. The kidneys should remove it, but when they fail it poisons the blood, and, settling in the joints, causes Rheumatism.

"No. 7" Tablets clear out the clogged-up Kidneys and stimulate them to perform their task of filtering the Uric Acid out of the blood. When this is done the Rheumatism simply and naturally vanishes.

"No. 7" Tablets cost 50c. At your dealer's. 28

Father Morrissey Medicine Co. Ltd. - Chatham, N.B.

Rev. Father Morrissey

what you said about—about Mr. Bassington; and I feel—I know that I was—selfish in saying "No." I forgot that I owe something to the name, to the old place—that they have a claim upon me; and—it shall be as Mr. Bassington wishes.

He drew a short, sharp breath of relief. Then, suddenly, his face flamed, his eyes flashed, and he caught her by the arm and almost swung her around so that he could see her face in the lamplight. She met his eyes bravely for a moment, then hers fell. Something like an oath broke from him, and his grip of her arm tightened.

"No!" he exclaimed, "you shall not! You think I don't understand! You might lie to me with your lips—they might try and persuade me that you are doing this willingly; but your face can't lie! Do you think I don't know that you hate and despise the man? I saw it in your face when I spoke to you down-stairs—I can see it now. You sha'n't marry him, not if it were to save twenty Rashleighs. Let 'o'd place go; let everything go—give the old name! No Rashleigh I'd ever sold myself, and we won't be gone now. I'd rather beg my bread from door to door—yes, with you on my arm—than that you should sell yourself to such a man as Sidney Bassington; and I'm half mad with shame when I think that I consented to carry his message; but—but it was the money I loved him. It was the thought of your future, the future of the old place. But it's all over now. Let them take the 'o'd place. We shall have little enough, God knows; but we shall still have our honour. I'll tell Oldham to-morrow that he can sell us up—There, there! I don't cry!"

She wiped her tears away with one hand, while she clung to him with the other. "No, no, dear!" she sobbed. "Yes, I am crying, Edward. But it is with pride and gratitude. We'll go away together, dear—together as we have always been; and if all else is taken from us, we shall still, as you say, have our honour left!"

Cottie got up early as usual, and helped to get the breakfast; but she was in a very restless state. To know that Geoffrey was so near her, just at the end of the lane, and not to be able to go to him, see his face, hear his voice, touch his hand. She tried to settle down to the gloves, as of old, and in her character of the boy Ronnie; but she could not, and presently she wandered out into the quietude

To Suffer from Headache Makes Life Miserable

It takes a person that has had or is subject to headaches to describe the suffering which attends them.

The majority of cases are caused by constipation and dyspepsia.

The dull throbbings, the intense pain, sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and then over the whole head, varying in its severity by the cause which brings it on, clearly indicates that there is something the matter with the stomach or bowels.

To the fact that Dr. Bovels' Herb Tablets reach every part of the system is due its success in relieving and permanently curing headaches.

For sale at 50c. per box by all druggists and dealers. If your dealer cannot supply you write us direct.

Anybody in there? Her heart leapt to her mouth, then seemed to stand still—for the voice was Geoffrey's. She went hot and cold in one moment, and looked for some means of escape, while her heart cried mutely: "Geoffrey! Geoffrey! My beloved!"

Geoffrey repeated his question, then, naturally enough, crossed the threshold and looked round the small but clean and neatly kept room. He saw the boy's figure on the window-seat, and pulled himself up with a slight ejaculation of surprise.

"I beg you pardon!" he said. "I didn't know anyone was here. I wanted to see Mrs. Farren, to ask her a question about a boy."

Oh, What a Surprise!

Neil Kenyon, the popular comedian, tells an amusing story of his early days. Together with a partner, he took a large hall at Paisley, capable of seating 3,000 people, with the idea of giving a grand concert. "Both of us," says Mr. Kenyon, "had an inflated idea of our own powers to draw." Please note that we were both young—very young, and at visions of at least a hundred pounds profit. At seven o'clock money-takers, check-takers, and attendants to keep the crowd back were assembled in the hall. Then ensued the following scene: "Secretary: "Observe, please, the Honorable Right Sir, Secretary of the Honorable stand at the door. Now, Mr. Kenyon, shall we open? Self (nervously): "Do please. Crash of rfan doors. Enter a terrific gust of snow and two small boys. A tiny voice: "Please sir can we get in w' one pass?"

Bishops Consecrated.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—Six bishops recently appointed by the Pope to fill vacant dioceses in the province of St. Paul, of which Archbishop Ireland is metropolitan, were consecrated to-day. The ceremony took place on the grounds and in the chapel of St. Paul's Seminary, on the high bluff at the western limits of St. Paul, overlooking the Mississippi River.

Archbishop Ireland was the consecrator and was assisted by Bishop McGoilrick, of Duluth, and the Right Rev. James Trobec, of St. Cloud, Minn. The Rev. Francis Schaefer was master of ceremonies.

The ceremony to-day is said by ecclesiastics to have been overshadowed once upon a modern times, when the Pope himself consecrated fourteen French bishops in the United States, the only ceremony which approached it in significance was when Archbishop Ireland consecrated Bishops Shanley, McGoilrick and Cotter at the same time. An immense gathering of the laity saw the procession, but as the chapel held seating room only for the priests the public was not admitted to the consecration.

SELF CURE NO FICTION! MARVEL UPON MARVEL! NO SUFFERER NEED NOW DESPAIR, Not without running a doctor's bill or falling into the deep ditch of quackery, who can safely, speedily and economically cure himself without the knowledge of a second party. By the introduction of THE NEW FRENCH REMEDY THERAPION complete revolution has been wrought in this department of medicine, which thousands have been restored to health and happiness who for years previously had been merely dragging out a miserable existence.

THERAPION No. 1—A Sovereign Remedy for discharges, suppurating ulcers, spots, the use of which does irreparable harm by laying the foundation of stricture and other serious diseases.

THERAPION No. 2—A Sovereign Remedy for rheumatism, and secondary eruptions, ulcers, pains and swellings of the joints, and all those conditions which accompany and aggravate are popularly but erroneously supposed to cure. This preparation purifies the whole system through the blood and thoroughly eliminates all noxious matter from the body.

THERAPION No. 3—A Sovereign Remedy for debility, prostrations, impaired vitality, sleeplessness, dizziness, and incapacity for business or pleasure, loss of appetite, blushing, indigestion, and all those conditions which result from disipation, early excesses, etc., which the faculty so persistently ignore, but which are most potent to cure or even relieve.

THERAPION used principally by chemists and druggists. In ordering, state which of the three numbers you desire, and observe that the word "THERAPION" appears on British Government Stamp in white letters on a red ground affixed to every package by order of His Majesty's Commissioners, and without which it is a forgery.

THERAPION may now also be obtained in Drugges (Tasteless) form.

Which Was The Heir?

CHAPTER XL (Concluded.)

"All right!" he said, curtly. "That will do! I can see your answer in your face.

Who's that just come into the hall?"

"It was Mr. Bell," she answered, in a low voice, her head drooping.

He nodded and looked at her, a look full of anxious questioning.

"Run up and dress," he said; "and look here, Eva, we won't mention this again."

She went up to him and put her hands upon his shoulders and laid her head upon his breast for a moment; then she stole from the room, and Sir Edward sank into a chair and shrugged his shoulders and stretched out his legs—for he saw ruin before him.

It was a very quiet dinner that night. Geoffrey seemed tired, and was absent-minded and preoccupied. He told them about his futile search, and, with a sigh, remarked that he should probably have to go to Australia. Then, suddenly, he told them about Constance Sefton; told them, with many pauses and hesitation, how he had met her at Mrs. Sefton's, where he had gone for news of Ronnie. Sir Edward listened, carefully avoiding Eva's eyes. But he need not have feared, for Eva Rashleigh was one of those women who can suffer in silence and make no sign.

As she listened to the deep, grave voice telling its story, she then and there yielded up her love, laid it, a precious sacrifice, on the altar of friendship. Her face was pale, but her voice, soft and low, was quite steady, as she said:

"My brother and I are very glad, Mr. Bell, that you are so happy. But you must not go, must not leave England, without letting Miss Sefton know. I think you ought to go back to her to-morrow and tell her that you cannot find Ronnie here—we shall be sorry to lose you, that you know."

"Yes, I know how good you have been and are still to me," said Geoffrey. "I'll do whatever you advise. I seem like a man walking in a maze."

She stayed with them at dinner rather longer than usual; she played and sang to them in the drawing-room afterwards, and her manner towards Geoffrey did not appear to change in the slightest. No one seeing and listening to her would have guessed how deep a stab Fate had dealt her.

The two men sat up smoking rather late, talking horse and sport; but both were rather preoccupied—for Geoffrey was thinking of Constance and Ronnie, and Sir Edward of the grim skeleton, the ruin which stalked and sat at his side.

When Sir Edward went to his room, he found Eva there standing by the fire.

"Eva!" he said.

She went up to him and put her hand upon his shoulder. Her face was very pale, but her voice was as steady as usual.

"Edward, I have been thinking of if the wood, that she might go over and over again in her mind that scene on the Brighton cliff where Geoffrey had told her of his love. Unintentionally her steps went in the direction of Mrs. Farren's cottage. She would have gone to the castle and seen the earl; but she did not want to explain—she doubted very much, indeed, whether he would have listened to her—why she had not gone to Australia with the sixty pounds he had given her. The cottage door was open, and she went up to it and called Mrs. Farren; but no one answered, and she saw that the room was empty. She went in and seated herself by the window. One leg bent under her, her small hands—brown no longer—lying loosely in her lap. And she was thinking of Geoffrey, when she heard a step amongst the dry bracken; but thinking it was Mrs. Farren she did not move. The steps came nearer, and she heard it stop at the threshold. She could not see who it was because the half open door hid the person from her; and she was just about to say, "is that you, Mrs. Farren?" when a voice asked:

The Lungs of the City.

It is a pleasant sight to pass through Bannerman Park any sunny afternoon and notice what a popular resort it is for women and children, and one is struck with the fact that it is none too large for this purpose. But though a resort for men, women and children, it is not a playground for the boys, youth and young men who should be encouraged to indulge in open air outdoor games such as football and cricket. The problem at the present time is to provide suitable playgrounds for these growing men, and induce them to leave streets and street-corners and seek the green fields.

The need of such is manifest, as may be seen by boys seeking such recreation on private fields and interfering with private rights, and facing dangers by trespassing on such dangerous grounds as golf links. It should be remembered that the expansion of the town renders it yearly increasingly difficult and more costly to find such play-grounds for our boys and youths.

We do not know whether this matter has been taken up by the Municipal Council, but it is a matter which should be pressed upon the attention of those seeking the suffrages of citizens.

CORONATION OATH.

Reply to Rev. W. T. D. Dunn by Rt. Rev. Mgr. Roche, V.G.

Editor Evening Telegram:

Dear Sir,—In Thursday's issue of the Daily News a letter appeared from Rev. W. T. D. Dunn on the "Coronation oath and some others," in which he seeks information on the oath required of the "Princess Ena and Bishops" of the Catholic Church. The purport of the letter is to show that there is "small room for charges of insult in the Coronation Oath" on the part of Catholics. I quite agree with the Rev. gentleman that anything in the nature of a religious controversy would be most regrettable. I have no desire, and I have no intention of entering upon any such. This is my first and will be my last contribution on this subject. But as the "Catholic Authorities" have been drawn into the matter or silence any longer might be open to misconception.

Rev. Mr. Dunn raises three distinct questions on which he seeks information: (1) the oath alleged to be taken by the Bishops of Quebec; (2) the oath taken by every Catholic Bishop at his consecration; (3) the oath taken by the Princess Ena, now Queen Victoria of Spain. I will deal with each in order, and first as to the oath alleged to be taken by the Bishops of Quebec.

That oath forms no part of the recognized and official ceremonial for the consecration of Catholic Bishops. The oath as it appears in Thursday's News is a pure fabrication, and I deny most emphatically that any such oath is taken by the Bishops of the Catholic Church.

Secondly, with regard to the oath taken by Bishops generally throughout the church at their consecration, Rev. Mr. Dunn says he is unable to find the oath in any of the authorized works of devotion used by Catholics, whereas all the other sacraments are fully explained. The reason for this is surely obvious. The other sacraments are all intended for the laity, and instructions on them would naturally find a place in their manuals of devotion. The Sacrament of Orders concerns the Bishops and Priests alone, and the ceremony of ordination and consecration would be altogether out of place in books intended exclusively for the laity. The full ceremonial of ordination and consecration will be found in the Pontificale Romanum. If Rev. Mr. Dunn should find it difficult to procure a copy of the book, I shall be most happy to furnish him with one. There will be found the full text of the oath taken, and the profession of faith made, mean nothing more than a declaration of fidelity to the Pope, a profession of faith in the principal doctrines held by the church, and a repudiation of opposite beliefs. To show that there can be nothing of an offensive nature in the oath taken by Catholic Bishops, it is only necessary to state that the following clause is added in the case of the Bishops of England: "Each and all of these provisions I will faithfully observe with more readiness, because I know that nothing is therein contained which can be contrary to the allegiance due from me to His Gracious Majesty King and to his successor in these realms."

Surely the oath to which that declaration is attached can contain nothing objectionable, and this is the oath made by every Catholic Bishop at his consecration.

Thirdly, with reference to the Princess Ena. (1) Her case is utterly irrelevant. The oath or declaration of faith demanded of her was made on the occasion of her reception into the church and not on the occasion of her coronation. It was a purely private church ceremony such as every one has to go through who seeks admission to the church. And no matter what declaration she was called upon to make her case is altogether extraneous until it is shown that she on the occasion of her coronation, or on some other such public occasion was obliged to brand as "idolatrous and superstitious," certain specific doctrines held by one particular section of her non-Catholic subjects. (2) There is nothing at all objectionable in the profession of faith which she was called upon to make. The Rev. gentleman gives three different forms of profession of faith. I am not in a position to say which of three, if any, was used on the occasion of her reception. But I am quite prepared to believe that it was one of the three or one couched in similar terms, and I repeat there is nothing objectionable in any of them. The repudiation of opposite belief, it is true, is couched in vigorous terms. Anyone e.g. using the first form would be obliged to "anathematize" certain doctrines, and to pronounce "worthy of anathema" those who oppose the doctrines professed. But for this there is a very high scriptural sanction. St. Paul in the first chapter of the Epistle to the Galatians says, "But though we or an angel from heaven preach a gospel to you besides that which he has preached to you let him be anathema." If St. Paul were amongst us now and gave expression to his faith in such uncompromising terms as these, he would, I have no doubt, be denounced as a most intolerant bigot. There can be surely no objection to professions of faith made in the word of the Apostle of the Gentiles. Strong exception seems to be taken to the phrase in another of the declarations, "the true Catholic faith out of which no one can be saved." Every well instructed Catholic knows the meaning of this. Briefly our belief may be stated thus: We believe that Christ committed a body of objective truths to the church, belief in which is necessary for salvation; we also believe, and logically as members of the church we are compelled to believe, that the church of which we are members is the depository and the custodian of these truths; and we further believe than any one who with full knowledge refuses to accept what he believes to be the teaching of Christ and His church, cannot be saved. Is there anything unreasonable, intolerant or objectionable in this? Every Catholic who knows the elementary principles of his religion is aware that the church does not teach that all who are not visibly and externally members of the Catholic Church will be lost. I have here before me as I write a Catechism for the youngest children in our schools—a Catechism bearing the imprimatur of two American Archbishops, in which the following questions and answers are to be found:—

Q. Are those who are out of the Church lost without their fault?

A. No one is lost except by his own fault.

Q. Are some then saved who are out of the Church?

A. Those are saved who are out of the body of the Church but belong to the soul of the Church.

Q. Who are out of the body of the Church, but belong to the soul of the Church?

A. Those are out of the body of the Church but belong to the soul of the Church, who without any fault of their own cannot know the true Church; but worship God by faith, hope and charity, keep the natural laws perfectly, and are prepared to obey God and enter the Church when they know it.

That is the simple explanation of the terrible phrases which have been so frequently misrepresented and misunderstood.

In conclusion, permit me to point out once again that the oath made by Catholic Bishops and the oath and declaration made by Princess Ena have absolutely no bearing on the King's Coronation oath. There is no parallel between the cases. Our specific and distinct grievance is this, that the Sovereign to whom lawfully we owe and to whom loyally we give allegiance, at the most solemn moment of his reign, standing on the steps of the Throne, is obliged as a necessary condition to his coronation to declare to be idolatrous and superstitious beliefs held as sacred by millions of us, his Catholic subjects, throughout the Empire. That is the declaration against which we protest, which the late Lord Salisbury characterized as a stain on the Statute Books of England, and which our present Gracious King declares he has an inviolable objection to take.

I remain, yours, etc.,

Little Clues to Crime.

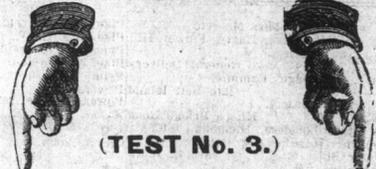

REAL SHERLOCK HOLMES INSTANCES AMONG DETECTIVES.

It is really wonderful from what slight clues the alert and vigilant sleuth hounds of the law are enabled to bring criminals to justice. Indeed, the exploits of these Sherlock Holmeses of stern fact are often more astonishing than the facts of their colleagues of romantic fiction. The after all it is the detectives' business to put two and two together, a gift they generally possess in rich abundance, or the tiniest thing frequently starts them on the trail—a trail that usually brings the culprit to the cell. Apparently insignificant signs have many times and oft led straight to the scoundrel. For instance, the first person on the scene of a murder in a suburban house was a smart policeman. On examining the room a single golden hair hanging on the window frame, which had but been recently been painted, attracted his attention. Saying nothing to his colleagues engaged in the case, he quietly searched the neighbourhood for people with golden hair.

their attention on this mark, they puzzled their heads to know what it might mean, and came to the conclusion that it had been made by the nail of a boot, worn by some one climbing through a trap door. But where was the trap door? Not a vestige of one could be seen, although the officers were certain that one existed. So they carefully examined the ceiling and were gratified by finding a trap door artfully and cleverly concealed—fitting so neatly, in fact, that nothing but the closest inspection could detect it. The minions of the law on opening this door found nothing but a water cistern, concealed within it, however, was the man they wanted. After a fugitive passed through the door it was at once closed and covered with a preparation that made the ceiling look as if it had been long whitewashed. It was proved later that exit by this same trap door had often assisted criminals to escape capture.

The innocence or guilt of a prisoner on a murder charge a few years ago was decided by the quality of some sawdust. In a nutshell the case stood thus: The victim had been found dead on the top of a heap of sawdust in an icehouse—the scene of the crime. All was clear as noonday as to this point, but a doubt cropped up as to the guilt of the man in the dock, on whose clothes tiny specks of sawdust were discovered when arrested, as he stated he had slept on sawdust in another icehouse—hence the soiled garment. But the searchlight of science became the hand maiden of justice, for by means of a microscope the sawdust on which the prisoner said he had slept was found to be that of hardwood, while that on his clothes was pinewood sawdust, as was that on which the dead man had been found. On this evidence conviction followed swiftly.

In another case a daring burglar whose depredation had alarmed a whole district, as a couple of murders were laid at his door was brought to the dock, as a preliminary to the drop, by a scratch on a banister rail. A couple of detectives been told that their man had been seen to enter a house, they went there, but although they failed to find the fugitive. As they were on the point of abandoning the hunt one of the 'tocs' espied a tiny scratch on the banister at the top of the house—a scratch apparently of quite recent origin. Concentrating

About Shingles--The Roof with 1,000 Edges

One advantage of a shingle roof is that a cross-section sawed through anywhere, will show three thicknesses of wood. Wherever you cut through a shingle roof, you must cut through three layers of shingles. But this waste of wood is costly. With the present price of shingles, it makes shingle roofing comparatively dear. Yet it is the only way in which shingles can be laid. Shingles are not so good as old time shingles. For economy's sake, present day shingles are made of inferior woods by hasty processes. And every cent that is saved by these new processes of shingle making is taken out of the value of the roof. Yet the price of shingles goes up—not down. It is not the cost of the shingles alone that stands against the shingle roof. It is the high cost of living. It is the high cost of repairing. It is their inflammability.

A shingle roof will vary in different localities. In some cases it has been proved that the first cost of Ruberoid roof is 29 per cent. cheaper than the first cost of a shingle roof. And in any case the upkeep cost of Ruberoid is cheaper, beyond comparison, than the upkeep of shingle roofs. Shingles at their best will cost more to keep in repair than Ruberoid under the most trying conditions.

Fire Danger

The shingle roof is a constant menace in time of fire. In the continued heat of summer it dries up into tinder awaiting a spark. And even soaking wet, it is not so safe a roof as Ruberoid. And the greatest menace of single roofs in time of fire is the danger to other roofs. It is the danger of flying shingles—burning shingles. In the great fire at Chelsea, Mass., shingle roofs, more than any other one thing, caused the flames to spread beyond control. In his report, the fire chief of Chelsea said that cases had come under his personal observation in which flying shingles had set fire to houses half a mile or more away from the path of the fire. In his recommendation, he went so far as to urge that shingles be barred from Chelsea as unsafe roofing.

Thousands of Edges

The shingle roof is a roof of thousands of edges. The same space that a shingle square of Ruberoid will cover requires 1,000 shingles. 1,000 shingles—three edges exposed—3,000 edges—3,000 chances for warping away—3,000 chances for leaks. Contrast the edges of a shingle roof with a roof of Ruberoid. For no matter how big the Ruberoid roof, being cemented together, it is practically one piece.

Repairs Costly

And on any roof shingles demand, after a year or two, almost constant repairs. Each time a repair is made, new shingles must be bought. Each time a repair is made, skilled labor must be called in. The first cost of Another very remarkable clew was reported in the newspapers not so many years ago. In this case a woman's smile was sufficiently alluring to seal a man's doom. It arose in this way: A miner and his wife took as a lodger another miner, and it became the custom for the two delvers for coal to descend to the bowels of the earth in company. One day, however, the lodger, in a most distraught state, returned to the light of day with the startling tale that his mate had fallen a victim to firebrand. As such a fate is the ever present fear of the miner's life, this report was believed, the body brought up the pit and arrangements made for the funeral. Prior to the departure of the procession from the house the undertaker was astonished to see the apparently heartbroken widow gaily laughing with the lodger. Such frivolity at so sad a season aroused suspicion, which led to the postponement of the burial. Inquiries were set on foot, the climax being that it was found that the husband's death had been intentionally brought about by the lodger, who eventually paid the extreme penalty of the law.

Tales of the Fleet

Remarkable Achievements That Illuminate the Annals of the Navy.

In the year of 1806 occurred the most amazing instance of naval strategy on a small scale ever placed on record. Britain was then at war with a very large part of the world, and privateering was an exceedingly profitable as well as an honourable profession.

The privateer Tamar, in the course of her meanderings, captured the little Bon Voyage, and placed a prize crew of 14 aboard her, under charge of the first lieutenant, with instructions to make for the first friendly port. Next day the faster sailing Tamar was out of sight, and, to the consternation of the little prize crew, there appeared on the scene the Le Brave, a renowned French privateer, which mounted 16 guns, and had a crew of 130 tried men.

All seemed lost, and, indeed, the Bon Voyage's little complement of men were already packing up their traps preparatory to a trip across to the other ship, when the brave lieutenant hit upon a stratagem of so extraordinary a nature as veritably to read like some extract from a sensational boy's tale.

He knew that the Le Brave's invariable mode of fighting whenever possible was by boarding, so he brought all his four guns to the side on which she was approaching, loaded them, and caused the rest of the ship's ammunition to be thrown overboard. He next caused the only boat aboard to be plentifully supplied with firearms and moored under the stern out of sight. As the Le Brave drew near they let her have a broadside, a compliment which was soon returned, and a few minutes later the aggressor's bow was fouling the Bon Voyage's rigging, and her sailors streaming on board.

The lieutenant at this very moment retreated with his men to the stern cabin, and the French, in their ignorance of the stratagem, followed, and actually placed sentries at the door, so that they could not sally forth. The prize crew, however, had meantime gained their boat by an open port, precisely as arranged, and were rowing stealthily round the ship to the Le Brave, which had now parted company with her quarry, and boarding her, they made short work of the four sailors left in charge.

The astonishment of the Frenchmen when they found the British flag floating proudly over the ship can better be imagined than described. They still had the men, four guns, and a good ship, but, to their chagrin, not a single barrel of powder. The gallant lieutenant assured them of the pleasure the exchange had afforded him, and at the muzzle of their own cannon he obliged them to promise to navigate the Bon Voyage to the port he himself was making for. A day or two later, however, the Tamar came in sight, and relieved the Frenchmen of their disagreeable task.

These were the days of blood-thirsting feasts on the water. Just a year or two previous to the episode just recorded Commander Munro, of the small 16-gun brig Transfer, won for himself imperishable renown by a most audacious performance. He inadvertently ran into a powerful Spanish squadron one day, but hoisted the American flag, and was allowed to pass warship after warship unchallenged, any one of which could have sunk his ship with ease. Bringing up the rear of the Spanish fleet was a merchantman prize, deeply laden with valuable cargo, and the temptation to seize her was irresistible, and seize her the British commander did, practically within gunshot of the protecting warships. The very audacity of the thing wrought its complete success, for the Spaniards felt sure that a British fleet was close at hand and not wishing just then to be drawn into a battle, they allowed the Transfer and her capture to escape.

A meritorious feat of arms against the same enemy was the recovery of the British ship Hermione. The crew of the Hermione had mutinied, killed their officers, and then surrendered the ship to the Spaniards, who, to their discredit, sheltered the men and fitted the vessel out as a man-of-war. The Hermione when thus completed, lay moored almost under the guns of two powerful batteries, and the fact coming to the ears of the captain of the H. M. Surprise, who was cruising in the neighborhood at the time, he determined to cut her out, undeterred by the obviously grave danger of such a mission. The Hermione had a large crew on board, and, though taken by surprise, they fought desperately, but the batteries upon which the Spanish relied so much were unable to afford any assistance; not knowing which side was in possession of the ship; and before they could satisfy themselves as to this the Hermione was sailing promptly away to join the service she had been foully torn from.

Rosalind Reaches Port Beast Goes Overboard.

The s.s. Rosalind, Capt. Smith, arrived here at 4.30 p.m. yesterday from Montreal and Gulf ports with a full cargo and 47 head of cattle and one horse. The ship left Montreal on the 21st inst. at 1 p.m. and on the run down had very fine weather on the St. Lawrence. She reached Charlottetown on the 23rd in the afternoon, and being detained there while being surveyed as the result of the collision with the s.s. Minto, did not leave until midnight of the 24th inst. She arrived at Sydney at 6.15 p.m. Wednesday. On the run here from Sydney the ship encountered much fog. Her passengers were: Geo. Kennedy, Her passengers were: Geo. Kennedy, Alex. Smallwood, E. McDougall, A. G. Selater, W. King, W. Sullivan, T. H. Hart, wife and 3 children and 6 steerage.

Yesterday evening while cattle were being discharged from the Rosalind at Harvey & Co's premises a bullock fell from the slings between the wharf and the ship. It would be a big job to get it up again, and the animal struck out at a lively pace and swam round to the King's Wharf where it was secured.

Gentlemen.—In January last, Francis Leclair, one of the men employed by me, working in the lumber woods, had a tree fall on him, crushing him fearfully. He was, when found, placed on a sled and taken home, where grave fears were entertained for his recovery, his hips being badly bruised and his body turned black from his ribs to his feet. We used MINARD'S LINIMENT on him freely to deaden the pain and with the use of three bottles he was completely cured and able to return to his work.

A Barbers' Union.

We learn that the barbers of the city are contemplating the establishment of a union on the lines of the existing city unions. The intention is, it is said, to raise the price of shaving from 7 to 10 cents and hair cutting from 15 to 20 cents for Saturday night. A number of the barbers are favourably disposed and steps will soon be taken to get the union into shape.

Night Palpitations, Stomach Pains.

People often wake at night with distressing pains. They are frightfully cramped, and often palpitation renders them very apprehensive of danger. Generally it is an accumulation of gas in the stomach or bowels. Stomach distention pressing against the heart urges it to rapid action. This causes nervousness, relieves the pain of spasm and gas accumulation. Pain ceases and comfort and repose follows at once. A thousand dollars could not purchase you greater immunity from cramps, pains and aches, than you will find in a bottle of Nerviline. Its great value can only be discovered by testing it. We refund its price if it does not prove as represented. Nerviline, as you see, is a guaranteed pain remedy for all stomach and bowel disorders. Where else can you find one? Sold and guaranteed by druggists, large size 50c. trial size 25c.

Shannahan on the Walking Match.

Let us all make an effort to have our Annual Walking Match a success this year. Let the young men who are taking part see that they have the proper kind of boots, the kind that won't gall their feet and make them cripples for months after. 'Tis so much nicer, you know, to hear people say that they were beaten fair and square, than to have them blaming their boots. Some care should also be taken by those intending to contest as to the kind of food they eat for weeks before the contest. Up to the present young men taking part have been known to eat a square feed of pork and cabbage or pea soup on the day of the race. Now this kind of food may be all right out to the tea, but Mr. Ticker doesn't believe in the proper stuff for pedestrians on a long march in July when the sun is good and hot. Enthusiasts should not be allowed to bar off the line of march with carriages of ancient brand, or the up-to-date automobile. Special care should be taken by the doctors to see that no one is allowed to enter who is not good and strong. It would be more interesting to the spectators if the race could be run on some place where the contestants could be seen all the time, for now there is the danger of something serious happening and no one near to give assistance. Useful prizes should be offered, for we have an awful dose of medals and cups lying around mantle-pieces in this town just now.

Schooner Run Down.

About ten o'clock Tuesday night last the schr. Galatea, W. J. Cole, master, was about 9 miles off Flower's Rock, a fleet of 40 schooners bound North bore down on them. Most of them had their side lights out, and some were boomed out, while others had their port tacks on board running free. The Galatea was held in readiness to tack to avoid possible trouble where so many craft were about when suddenly a large vessel with all her sails on the starboard side ran down on them with no lights up and no one on the look out. Everything possible was done on the Galatea to draw the attention of those on board the stranger to the danger of collision but without avail. As the other would not alter her course the Galatea was brought up in the wind when the topping lift of the other vessel "hitched" the end of the Galatea's jibboom and took all her head gear away, "smug into the stem" as one of the Galatea's crew observed. The damage done was about $50. It looked for a while as if the vessel would cut the Galatea to the waters edge but fortunately this was averted. The vessel which did the damage continued on her course and none on board attempted to render assistance if necessary or see what damage had been wrought the Galatea.

Harbour Grace Notes.

The proceeds of the sale of work held by the ladies of St. Andrew's Church on Tuesday evening last reached nearly $80. Nearly all the Labrador men are "settled" for the summer, and during next week the majority of them will start for the coast.

The body of Miss Jessie Hawkins arrived from St. John's by train on Wednesday evening and was met at the station by a number of sorrowing friends. The funeral service was conducted in Christ Church, after which the body was consigned to mother earth in the C. of E. Cemetery.

Mr. Graham Munn, son of Mr. J. G. Munn, and Mr. William Gordon left by Thursday's express for Sydney.

The Human Frame

Can be compared to a watch. Now, what makes the watch go? There is no steam, no electricity, the most powerful of motive forces, and yet there is a power which makes the watch move and show the correct time. Or what does that power consist of? It is purely mechanical, constructed according to the laws of mathematics; the watch wheels and springs are so arranged that they make it move; that power we call "mechanism." If one of the wheels is out of order, the mechanism stops working. The human frame is constructed on the plan of a mechanism, formed by the bones, veins, and muscles. If one part of the mechanism is out of order, then the whole system stops working. But our credit system will never stop. You can always get your clothing, Dry Goods and Furniture for Cash or Credit. Itching Piles For 27 Yrs.

Dispensed of ever getting relief until I used DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Mr. John Johnson, Cawley, Alta. writes: "Three years ago I was cured of blind, itching piles of twenty-seven years' standing by using Dr. Chase's Ointment. I used to think that death would be the only relief I could ever get from the terrible misery of piles. Dr. Chase's Ointment is worth six dollars a box instead of sixty cents. I am a different man since using it. I am farming all the time now and never miss a day. Words fail to express my gratitude for the cure this Ointment made for me. I cannot tell half as much about it as it deserves. Any one doubting this can write direct to me."

Do not accept an imitation or substitute in place of Dr. Chase's Ointment. There has yet to be discovered a treatment which so promptly gives relief from itching and so thoroughly cures every form of piles. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Write for a free copy of Dr. Chase's Recipes.

Prussian Franchise Bill Abandoned.

Special to Evening Telegram. BERLIN, May 27. The Government to-day abandoned its efforts to secure the enactment of the Prussian Franchise Bill, popular opposition to which has been expressed in frequent mass meetings, during some of which there have been clashes of the police. The debate had been a long drawn one owing to the objections raised in the Lower Houses to the amendments adopted by the Lords. The Chancellor in announcing its decision said that the Government placed no further value on the measure which had lost its effect by giving the wealthy and middle classes a greater influence in the elections. He added that a continuance of the bitter agitation against the election system was most likely to continue until the Government submitted new legislation representing an endeavour to carry out the Emperor's promise made in the Speech from the Throne.

Submarine Found Again--No Hope For Crew.

Special to Evening Telegram. CALAIS, France, May 27. The French submarine Pluviose, which was struck and sunk by the cross-channel steamer Pas de Calais yesterday, was again found to-night, after being driven from her moorings at the bottom of the English Channel and carried hither and thither by the swift lower currents. That the officers and men of the submarine have all perished is the belief of the naval officers who are assisting in the wrecking operations. There is an abundance of naphtha on the surface of the water and this leads to the belief that the inner shell of the submarine was shattered and all the crew drowned. The report that divers heard rattings last night from the inside of the submarine is now discredited.

Some startling statements regarding the mortality resulting from the construction of railways in Canada were made at the meeting in the Navy Mission Society held here to-day. According to one estimate she said the death-toll on the railways now under construction in the Dominion might be placed at two lives for every mile of road built.

Dr. Grenfell's Contribution

TO THE TRAP BERTH QUESTION

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Mr. Editor,—I wrote by the last mail telling you of the difficulty of living anywhere around these outports since the seal herds that once visited the shores are ceasing to do so. But even a more serious danger threatens us now, that is to say, we can't even fish for cod. The first schooner to arrive here arrived the 24th of April, and had its trap out on the 4th of May. Of course there are no fish here yet and won't be for some time. It is far better for a trap to be in the store this time of year than to be out in the water. But by coming down early with an old leader and plenty of spare twine the schooners from the south can take every berth that it is possible to fish a trap in. It is impossible for our people here to bark and spread their twine yet. Nature has so arranged matters that while the water is too cold for the codfish the land is too wet for the cod nets to be spread. By the time the cod comes in our men can be well ready, but by that time men supplied from the south with schooner gear have seized their berth, so that actually they keep their twine ashore and go without setting them at all the whole season.

While these same men with schooners are crying out for legislation to protect them against the capitalists who have steamers to go fishing in, and while they have succeeded in getting a law passed to prevent steamers coming down, they do exactly the same thing to our men. By having more backing or more capital of their own they are able and actually are starving some of our people. Our people argue that what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander; that they have just as much right to live as men with schooners, and that when they build their house near a trap berth and endure all the rigors of this northern part of Newfoundland they ought to have a prior claim over men who live in the bottoms of the big bays.

If you argue that this part of Newfoundland is not fit to live in and our people in the north ought to get out of it, you couldn't advance a better argument than by allowing this system to persist and refusing to allow a settler to have a prior claim to his own trap berth near his home. As our men point out very well, many of them have left these very bays in the south to live here because it is better here. A fisherman from Bonavista Bay, who has brought his family to live here, is sitting by the typewriter listening while I dictate this letter to you. He says, as many others have said to me, that by living down here he can have that which is the best asset of every good citizen, visible home life. He can live at home and can live independent also. The family life is everywhere acknowledged to be the true foster parent of all the higher virtues. This man, for instance, proves to me that while living in Bonavista Bay he had to spend nine months out of every twelve away from his family. A meal of codfish couldn't be caught within twenty miles of his home. Two years ago a petition was drafted here for the very purpose of remedying this evil, but still we are left to-day without any protection. Men with blank faces come to me every day and say, "Doctor, another schooner has come from the south and has stolen my trap berth. How am I going to feed my children?"

We have been trying to afford this shore modern up-to-date medical and surgical service. The fact that only yesterday the mail boat alone landed from southern ports a first batch of 32 people, to say nothing of petitions to send mission doctors to other stations, encourages us to believe that at least they need not leave this shore for lack of that kind of help. To foster a self-supporting, independent, home-loving and home-loving people should be the highest honor of the Newfoundland Government, and we know it is of our patriotic people and its able Government. We believe it is only because their attention has not been called definitely enough to the great harm that is being done to the people who are among the yeoman fishermen of the island, that a plan has not been worked out to enable them to earn a livelihood.

The fishermen from the south who have come to live here say that those who own their own nets might as well put them in our trout ponds as put them out before the first of June. While when they came from the south they didn't put out their own traps, but those that were the property of capitalists who backed them, and who really made the big profits when profits were made. I have taken the trouble to compare the condition and financial status of patients coming from the south and patients from this northern district, and I find that there is a far larger proportion of those who claim to be unable to pay their passages without Government pauper relief than there are among our people. Never a batch comes here without some that have had even to borrow clothes to come in, showing how near the margin they are obliged to live as far as the ability to save money goes. In spite of the much larger amount of outlay they are able to make for catching fish. It must cost them five cents to catch a fish for every one cent it costs our men. The total capacity for wage earnings as a steady regular dependant income that codfishing affords is, as I have pointed out many times in my letters to you, not so large that it can be economical for this country to permit any plan to exist which fosters a larger outlay for obtaining a voyage.

Those who criticize these letters, sir, may say that I am not in a position to know the facts, or that my views are those of a sentimentalist who deduces his conclusions from those of unfortunates who come under his notice as a doctor or as a head of a charity. This is by no means the case. After nearly twenty years of life on this coast I claim that no man has a better general knowledge of all the northern fishermen, and no one has a higher estimation of them and their splendid capacities of perseverance, endurance and sea genius, which is the best pride and of our race. But I say, sir, without any fear of contradiction that men living down here have a right to this rudimentary protection, which they are only able to voice humbly in a petition, because they are unable to come in large numbers to back it personally.

That there is a solution is clearly shown, directly one crosses the boundary line at Blanc Sablon and comes under the fishery laws of Canada. From Blanc Sablon west the sturdy French-Canadian families that grow up have always, by law, first right to the trap berths and fishing grounds in the immediate vicinity of their homes. They raise larger and healthier families approximately, probably, than any people in the world, while here consumption in its most pitiable forms finds victims in almost every family, not owing to the dilatoriness of the heads of the families, but directly to the poverty that ensues from the lack of protection they obtain. Without being a politician or partisan I can only say that our people are arguing from recent events when they tell me that they are most earnestly expecting their rights to be considered and preserved by the Newfoundland Government.

Believe me to remain,
Sincerely yours,
WILFRED T. GRENFELL, M.D.

Rosalind in Collision.

When the Rosalind was in the harbor of Charlottetown, P.E.I., on Tuesday she was into collision there with the Canadian Government steamer Minto. The Rosalind had all the cargo shipped at Charlottetown taken on board and was just about to move out from her pier to proceed to Sydney the Minto steamed into port, and in making for her pier, which is next to where the Rosalind was berthed, the collision occurred. A gale from the S.W. with a heavy swell was on at the time, bringing the Minto rapidly down on the Rosalind, and despite every exertion to obviate the accident she collided with the stern of the Rosalind, smashing the taffrail and breaking the davits and stanchions. The Minto's midship section was badly battered, her bulwarks being staved and boats' davits and stanchions being burst up on the port side. The Rosalind shortly after the accident was surveyed and a claim has been presented against the Minto for damages.

CURES YOUR COLD QUICKLY.

You have a cold, nearly everybody has. In fact it is becoming epidemic. You surely will not be silly enough to use tablets and powders. These often contain dangerous drugs that affect the heart. Sometimes they destroy life. What policy so poor to neglect a cold that may develop into Catarrh, bronchitis, and possibly into consumption. Just send to your lungs the soothing vapor of the pine wood, the balsamic and healing essences that are contained in fragrant healing Catarrhazone. Let the air you breathe through the Catarrhazone Inhaler carry little drops of healing and distribute them throughout the whole breathing apparatus. It is almost like a miracle the action of Catarrhazone in such troubles. It at once soothes inflammation, quickly destroys germs that excite Catarrh, removes irritability that causes cough, hawking and spitting. Catarrhazone breaks up congestion—it removes the cause of colds. Catarrhazone is pleasant to use, prompt in action, permanent in remedial effect. You ought to use it, and enjoy it, and prove by its healing and curative powers that it is the best remedy for throat, lungs and nasal passages. Complete outfit, $1.00, trial size 25c.

Another C.L.B. Lad to the Front.

The many friends of Herbert Goudie, son of W. H. Goudie, will be glad to hear that he has secured a good position as engineer on one of the Lawport and Holt Line boats plying between New York and South America, and he wishes to be remembered to all the lads in the Red, Yellow and Blue.

Do You Know Your Ailment

Or is it a complication which can be reached only by DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS. There is only one medicine that can prove thoroughly satisfactory in complicated ailments of the liver and kidneys, and that is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They begin by regulating the bowels and awakening the action of the liver, thereby effecting a thorough cleansing of the excretory system. By thus removing the poisons from the system they lighten the work of the kidneys and gradually restore them to health. Nobody who once learns of the definite and certain action of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in regulating and invigorating the kidneys, liver and bowels, is willing to take chances by experimenting with other medicines. Such ailments as biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion, liver complaint and kidney disease yield readily to this treatment. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cts. a box, at all dealers, or Edmansson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Write for a free copy of Dr. Chase's Recipes.

The Prospero Arrives.

The s.s. Prospero, Capt. A. Kean, arrived here at 3 p.m. yesterday from the northward, having got as far as Griquet. She had fine weather the entire trip with the exception of a little fog. She brought a small freight and these passengers: S. Dean, C. March, Clark, Pride, Blackmore, Taylor, LeMessurier, Elliott, Kneeb, Devine, Carew, O'Neill, McKnight, Moore, Ryan, Rev. Birchough and Rev. J. Nolan; Mesdames Squires, Hann, Kean, Delaney, North, Moore; Misses Hallett, Stirling, Delaney and 44 in steerage.

A Narrow Escape.

As Mrs. W. J. Shortall was crossing Duckworth Street at the foot of Cochran Street last evening, she had not noticed an automobile coming towards her until it was almost upon her. She had her two little boys with her and they became confused and stood in the centre of the street. Mr. J. S. Munn was in the car, and put down the emergency brakes so quickly that an accident was averted. But that Mr. Munn acted so promptly the woman or children would have been run down.

Anglican Church Items Pouch Cove.

Improvements continue to be put forward in "All Saints" Church. Through the efforts of the C. E. W. during the past winter the church has been supplied with new (iron and brass) standard lamps, imported from England. Two bracket lamps (all brass) have been placed at the entrance of the Church, and two handsome standard lamps (all brass) have been erected at east end of the choir stalls. These, in addition to the "corona" already in position, give abundant light in the chancel. Indeed the church is now well lit in every part.

Our men have also been busy taking down the old graveyard fence, and putting up a new one of stakes, rails and pallings. The church has received an (external) new coat of paint, so now both church and surroundings look fresh and bright.

A Memorial Service was held in "All Saints" Church last Sunday evening, 22nd inst., for our late beloved King. Every seat in the sacred edifice was occupied. The service opened with Hymn (A. & M.) 373, and one of our deceased Sovereign's favourite hymns, "Lead Kindly Light," was also sung. Preaching from I. Chron. xxii, v. 9, the Incumbent, Rev. T. G. Netten, alluded to the seasons of affliction, through which during his life-time our late King had been brought, having been twice, through the loving providence of God, given back to loving relations and a grateful Nation from the dark valley of the shadow of death. Having been caused to know much suffering it doubtless, as a gentle chastisement of a loving Father, helped to foster in him that beautiful Christ-like spirit which could tenderly sympathize with the distressed and the sorrowful, and which led him to promote to the utmost of his power peace, happiness and good-will among all men. A remark made by the Bishop of London in his sermon preached at St. Paul's Cathedral, after the King's recovery from a second dangerous illness, on October 26th, 1902, seems to have been prophetic:—

"The life of a King must have been saved twice for Kingly service; for 'the stability of the nation's life, and for the greater happiness and prosperity of his subjects.'"

Doubtless the Bishop of London's forecast at that time of our late King's future career was verified. God also gave "him rest from all his enemies round about," and He gave "peace and quietness" to the nation "in his days." Could we venture to look behind the curtain which hides the sacredness of the home life of our deceased and beloved King, we would still see the same amiability of character, the same sweetness of disposition which marked that life he lived before the world, the devotion of a fond husband, the affection of a tender father, the steadfastness of a true friend, and there was much sanctified affliction.

Our late revered King was a faithful son of our Anglican branch of the Catholic Church, and in her communion he found comfort in times of trial and suffering. He loved peace when he lived, and through the tender mercies of our Divine Lord, the King of Glory, he has, we humbly believe, entered into everlasting peace.

We take our leave of him with the prayer of the ancient church hinging on our lips:—"Rest eternal grant him, O Lord; and may light perpetual shine upon him!"

To our new King George V. our earnest wish goes forth: May he have a long and peaceful reign, led onwards safely by the strong Almighty Hand of the "King of Kings, and Lord of Lords"; and may he and our Queen dwell many years in the devoted hearts of a loyal people!

City Council Meeting.

A full Board was present at last night's meeting.

Mr. A. R. Thomson asked leave to use Dillon's Brook on the South Side for the purpose of driving machinery. He offered to build a dam at the outlet of the stream and place a hydrant and tank for the benefit of the residents there should the Council comply with the request. Referred to the Engineer for a report.

T. A. Hall requested that a trap or grating be constructed on south side of the old railway track, Rennie's Mill Road to prevent the water from overflowing the roads there and entering his basement. The Engineer will be asked to report.

Geo. Parsons asked to be allowed to place a pipe in the drain at the entrance to his garage on King's Road to make it easy to get auto cars in and out. He will be allowed to put a platform there.

The Gas Light Co. asked permission to lay pipes in Hamilton Street, King's Bridge Road and Circular Road. Permission will be given.

The request of M. A. Bastow to have Beck's Cove sidewalk repaired was referred to the Road Inspector. T. J. Vavasour offered gravel for roads. The Road Inspector will see it and if the gravel is no good he will get into trouble for offering it and will have to remove it himself at once. The moral is this: "Don't offer gravel to the Council or you will likely get into trouble."

Thomas Bros. were given leave to make addition to house No. 8 Hayward Avenue.

H. V. Simms was given permission to place a board fence around his garden with an iron railing and concrete setting on the street side.

Geo. Halley asked permission to erect a fence in front of his house, Barnes Road.

E. Langmead's request to build a stable at the rear of his property on the South Side was referred to the Health Officer.

W. J. Ellis will be given street line preparatory to erecting a fence on the South Side.

The Engineer was ordered to enquire into J. C. Ryan's application to erect a scaffolding for the purpose of repairing his house at Casey Street.

Plans of T. Brown and Boyd Crocker sent in, showing style of houses they wish to erect on Waterford Bridge Road, were passed. They will be given the street line.

J. A. Winter wrote requesting that John Dunn's house on Victoria Street be not connected with the sewer there till his father returns. The Council would like to grant his father the privilege of being present at such an important function, but the Council had to be firm, and said: "The sewer must be connected with."

Reports of the Health Officer and Waste Water Inspector were read and adopted. The Engineer reported on the application of Mr. Harvey, South Side, who wants to build a house. He will have to allow openings for the public works.

The Engineer reported on the work done in the various departments during the week.

After the pay rolls passed the meeting adjourned.

70 Years Old

GRATEFUL FOR MEDICAL AID.

"Though I had passed my seventieth birthday," writes R. A. Silveira from Duncan P.O., "I am painfully aware that one of the penalties of old age is the slowing down of the activities of the system. One of the most dangerous conditions of old age is constipation, an indirect cause of many sudden deaths. I have used many medicines, but none so united to old age as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They are wonderful regulators—keep the stomach and bowels in perfect condition, prevent indigestion, biliousness, liver complaint and constipation. I recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills because they never grip nor cause distress—just a mild tonic laxative."

By using Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly you have a guarantee of good health.
