MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES RHEUMATISM.

A Child of Sorrow.

CHAPTER XIX.

"I believe you," said Maida. "But it is because I am rich—that—that—Byrne—"

"No, no!" cried Lady Glassbury. "He loved you from the first—oh, Maida, don't look so cold—you frighten me. It was from the very first. If you had remained poor it would have been all the same."

"But he would not have been able to marry me," said Maida.

"No; but he would have loved you all the same. Maida, I am almost glad that you heard what I said. But believe me that it is all past. Maida, I love you—I want to see you both happy. Don't take your love from me!"

With her eyes full of tears, Maida bent over her and kissed her.

"I believe you," she said. "I am sorry for you."

"Don't be," said Ethelreda. "I am quite happy. Even if I loved him as I once did, the sight of his happiness would be enough for me. But I don't. Oh, Maida, don't you understand? Don't misjudge me."

"I will not," said Maida. "I think I understand quite well."

Suddenly a wave of pity swept over her and she knelt beside the beautiful woman and put her arms round her neck.

"Oh, dear, do you think that my heart is not full of pity for you; that I who love him do not understand how much you have lost?"

They sobbed in each other's arms for a moment; then Maida, rising, and wiping her eyes hastily, said:

"I think I will go now. Tell Byrne that I had to go home to lunch. And you will dine with us to-night. Ah, you must, you must! I want to show you how I—how I understand and trust you!"

CHAPTER XX.

Maida walked back to the Towers slowly. She was only a girl, but she had already seen enough of the great world to understand Heroncourt's position in regard to Lady Glassbury. She both understood and sympathized; for she believed every word that Ethelreda had spoken, and, woman-like, understood how a woman, though a faithful wife, could still cling to the romance of her youth. Not for a moment did Maida doubt Heroncourt's love for her; the only sting lay in the thought that but for her money Heroncourt could not marry her. She sighed as she wished that he were, say, a clerk like Ricky, and that she—Maida—were as poor as he; there would then have not been even the shadow of mistrust and humiliation; but as she went along she told herself that we cannot have everything in this world, and that she was the most

WIFE TOO ILL TO WORK

IN BED MOST OF TIME

Her Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Indianapolis, Indiana. — "My health was so poor and my constitution so run down that I could not work. I was thin, pale and weak, weighed but 109 pounds and was in bed most of the time. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and five months later I weighed 138 pounds. I do all the housework and washing for eleven and I can truthfully say Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been a godsend to me for I would have been in my grave today but for it. I would tell all women suffering as I was to try your valuable remedy."—Mrs. Wm. Green, 322 S. Addison Street, Indianapolis, Indiana.

There is hardly a neighborhood in this country, wherein some woman has not found health by using this good old-fashioned root and herb remedy.

If there is anything about which you would like special advice, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

fortunate girls in having got the man she loved, the best, the noblest of men. Lady Glassbury should always remain her friend, as close a friend as a sister; she would never allow herself to be suspicious or jealous for a single moment.

She felt very happy as she entered the house and met Mr. Spinner coming out of the library.

"Just arrived, Miss Carrington," he said, as he bowed over her hand with his all-embracing smile. "Miss Carrington's out, I hear?"

"Yes; but she will be back presently, Mr. Spinner," said Maida. "She is at the Court, busy."

"Ah, yes; everybody's busy," he said, with a significant wag of his head. "Mr. Carrington and I have been busy too. As I was coming down I offered to bring the deeds with me. By the way, Miss Carrington, you ought to look them over, you ought, indeed!"

Maida blushed slightly.

"Is it necessary?" she asked.

"Oh, quite, quite," he said. "It would be quite irregular if you did not read them over. I have got them in my dispatch case in the library, and I will go and fetch them if you will kindly wait a minute."

He went into the library and brought out a sheaf of papers and parchments.

"These they are," he said. "Quite a little packet, isn't it? If you'll look them over to-day and let me have them to-morrow. Thank you, thank you! Mr. Carrington and Ricky have gone off shooting, so I think I'll walk towards the Court on the chance of meeting Miss Carrie."

Maida took the papers up to her room, and resolving to look at them some time in the evening—for there was a great deal to be done, and she thought it would take her some time to read them.

Carrie and she delivered themselves over to the tyranny of the dressmaker that afternoon, and they had only just time to dress for dinner. When she came into the drawing-room she found Ricky alone there.

"Is father down yet, Ricky?" she asked.

"No," he said; "we didn't get back till late. The fact is—there is no need to be alarmed, Maida—but Mr. Carrington came over faint while we were shooting, and I persuaded him to go into the gamekeeper's lodge and rest. I think he ought to have a change, and you and Carrie might persuade him to go straight away after the wedding."

"I will go and see him," said Maida, in a low voice; but as she turned to go, Carrington entered.

He was rather pale, and there were dark shadows under his eyes, but he made light of the affair.

"It come over very warm, and I got tired," he said. "There is nothing else the matter; and I only took a rest to please Ricky."

"You must go away, father," said Maida. "You must take more care of yourself—"

The entrance of the Glassburys and Heroncourt prevented anything further being said.

Maida went straight up to Lady Glassbury and kissed her; and Lady Glassbury understood all that the kiss was meant to imply, for Maida was seldom demonstrative. It was a very quiet dinner, for they were all thinking of the day after to-morrow. Mr. Carrington was, perhaps, the most talkative of the party. The evening post had brought him some good news from the city, and the wine, of which he drank rather freely, had brought the colour to his face. He was in the very best of spirits.

They went into the drawing-room, in which a fire had been lit, for the night had turned chilly; and Heroncourt, under some thin pretext, got Maida to go with him into the conservatory; but they were not long undisturbed, for presently a footman entered and looked round apologetically.

"I was looking for the master, miss," he said. "A gentleman—a person wishes to see him. I have shown him into the library."

"Father must be in the billiard-room," said Maida to Heroncourt. "I will go and find him. Who can it be, I wonder?"

She and Heroncourt went to the billiard-room, which had been recently fitted up regardless of cost, and found Mr. Carrington and Lord Glassbury playing.

"Someone wants to see me?" said Mr. Carrington. "This is not the time—who is it?"

"He wouldn't give his name, sir," said the footman; "but he said he wanted to see you on important business."

"One of the tenants, I suppose," said Mr. Carrington, with a shrug of his shoulders. "Why doesn't he apply to the steward or Spinner? If you'll excuse me, Lord Glassbury, I'll go and get rid of him. You take my case, Heroncourt; though that isn't fair to Lord Glassbury," he added, with a chuckle, as the footman helped him on with his coat.

He paused a moment, with the door in his hand, to watch Heroncourt's shot, then he went down the passage humming light-heartedly. He was still singing as he opened the library door; then the song ceased abruptly, and he staggered against the door, leaning against it with his hands pressed against his chest and his eyes staring with terror at a short, commonplace figure standing by the mantel-shelf. For a moment he thought it was the ghost of Josiah Purley, a similar vision to that which he had seen in the bedroom. But it was Josiah Purley himself, not deprecating this time, but with his cap clenched tightly in his hands, his weak blue eyes fixed in a fierce challenge on Carrington's pallid face.

"Purley—Josiah!" gasped Carrington, almost inaudibly.

Then he made a great effort to collect himself and contorting his face into a forced smile, advanced unsteadily with outstretched hand; but Purley did not offer to take it, and still gripped his cap with both hands.

"Yes, it's me, Carrington," he said. "You didn't expect to see me. You didn't care what become of me: not you! But I've come back, you see; I've come back to meet you face to face, to tell you that I know how you have robbed me, that you are a scoundrel, Carrington. Yes, that's what you are, a thief and a scoundrel!"

Carrington uttered a cry and sank into a chair, struggling for breath; but Purley looked down at him pitilessly.

It so chanced that Maida was at that moment crossing the hall on her way to the drawing-room and she heard the cry, and, obeying the natural impulse, ran to the library and opened the door. She stood for an instant, an instant only, looking from one man to the other, then she sprang to her father, and bending over him, cried:

"What is it, father? What has happened? Who is this?"

Mr. Carrington tried to wave her away and fought for speech.

"Go—go away, Maida!" said Carrington. "This gentleman and I have business—important business—go away. I wish to be alone."

"I cannot leave you, father," she said, anxiously. "You are not well—strong." Then she turned almost fiercely upon Purley who was staring at the carpet with knitted brow.

"Who are you? What is the business that you have with my father? You cannot stay—he is ill!"

Purley looked from one to the other irresolutely, as if he were daunted by the beauty and the manner of the girl; then his mood changed suddenly, his commonplace face flushed, his eyes flashed.

"No, I won't go," he said. "He's well enough to hear what I've got to say—he's startled, no doubt—so are most men when they are found out. You are his daughter, I suppose, miss?"

"I am his daughter; yes," said Maida, striving for composure.

"Go away, Maida—I wish to be alone," said Carrington, feebly.

"No," said Purley. "Let her stay; she looks good and honest, this daughter of yours, Carrington—let her be the judge between us."

He turned to Maida, with suppressed passion in gesture and voice.

"You ask me why I have come here; you speak to me as if I were a dog, as if I had no right here. Listen and judge for yourself. This man—your father—and I were old friends. We had roughed it together; we've been in tight places together; I thought we could trust each other—he could have trusted me with a million, and he knows it—"

"Go—" interjected Carrington, in a low voice; but Maida seemed unable to move, seemed hypnotised by the fierce, accusing eyes of the little man whose usual commonplace appearance was transformed by his energy and passion. She stood with her hand gripping the back of her father's chair, her beautiful eyes, shining like stars in her pale face, fixed on Purley's.

"You ask me why I came here, what my business is. I have come to denounce him!"—he pointed an accusing finger at Carrington—"as a thief and a robber."

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Pattern Cuts. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

A SIMPLE APRON STYLE.

2127—This model has several good features. The big, roomy pocket and the smooth fitting front gore will appeal at once to the neat housekeeper. The style is good for gingham, chambray, sateen, alpaca, lawn, cambric and percale.

The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: Small, 20-22; Medium, 24-26; Large, 28-30; Extra Large, 32-34 inches waist measure. Medium size will require 3 1/2 yards of 36-inch material. Price, 10 cents. With the apron you may wear a house-dress made after Pattern 1435 which is cut in sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure. This dress may be readily developed in simple, inexpensive material, such as percale, gingham or chambray, and serve for porch or afternoon wear.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

MOTHER'S GIRL'S FAVORITE PLAY DRESS.

2099—How simple easy and comfortable; how quickly made in gingham, percale, drill, linen or chambray! There is the underarm seam, the back seam or closing (as you may prefer it), and the neck and shoulder finish—a simple hem, the belt stitched to position, and the dress is done.

The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. It requires 1 1/2 yard of 27-inch material for a 6-year size.

HALICZ CAPTURED.
LONDON, July 10.—Halicz, the strategic key to Lemberg, the capital of Galicia, has been captured by the Russian despatch from Reuter's Press correspondent.

RUSSIAN PROGRESS.
PETROGRAD, July 10.—Russian official—General Breroff's operations in Galicia at the front of 20 miles have broken the Austro-German front between the Carpathians and already Russian cavalry have pressed forward for a distance of 16 miles to the Dniester. As a result of Russian forward movement has been hemmed in from the east and southwest and the Russian is now menacing Halicz Bridge. From July 2 to 8 inclusive, General Korniloff took 14,000 prisoners and guns of which 12 were heavy field guns and many trench mortars etc.

RUSSIANS PRESSING.
NEW YORK, July 10.—The Russian army has broken through the Austro-German line in the Halicz-Stanislaw sector, and the most important on the eastern front, and the Russian advance continues. The Austro-German front have already withdrawn beyond Stanica river, about 10 miles west of Jesopol, which was occupied on Sunday by the Russians, under General Korniloff. The Russians have taken four villages and increased the number of prisoners by more than 90. Seven more field guns and other materials are in the Russians' hands. West of Stanislaw towards Kik and Dolna the Russians penetrate the Turotic lines to a depth of seven miles and between Stanislaw and Halicz they have widened the wedge. In their retirement the Austro-Germans made hastily, and during the last a large number of guns and other stores were captured by the Russian. The Austro-Germans failed to stand at Lukovitz and Luvka, it probable they may entrench on the west bank of the Lora river. The Russian, however, will prevent the forced evacuation of Halicz, the strategic key to Lemberg as the Russians are within less than eight miles of Halicz on three sides and only one avenue of retreat towards Lemberg is left open. The evacuation of Halicz would be a retreat from Broczow, Zloczow and Brody by the Austro-Germans unnecessary. Meanwhile Russian artillery is hammering enemy lines out of Brzezany and north of the Lip marshes and near Riga, Dvinsk and Snorgon.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.
LONDON, July 10.—The official from the British headquarters in France to-night said last night we entered enemy trenches at Neuport and inflicted casualties on the garrison. Southeast of Harincourt, east of Monchy le Preux, southeast of Arras, hostile redoubts parties were driven off. Enemy artillery was active all day against our positions and towards evening the fire of his artillery reached a point of great intensity. Our artillery replied vigorously. Bad weather prevented aerial operations by either side yesterday.

HALICZ CAPTURED.

LONDON, July 10. Halicz, the strategic key to Lemberg, the capital of Galicia, has been captured by the Russians says a despatch from Reuter's Petrograd correspondent.

RUSSIAN PROGRESS.

PETROGRAD, July 10. Russian official:—General Korniloff's operations in Galicia along a front of 20 miles have broken the Austro-German front between Halicz and the Carpathians and already Russian cavalry have pressed forward for a distance of 16 miles to the west of the Dniester. As a result of the Russian forward movement Halicz has been hemmed in from the south and southwest and the Russians are now menacing Halicz Bridgehead. From July 2 to 8 inclusive, General Korniloff took 14,000 prisoners and 55 guns of which 12 were heavy field pieces. We also have taken seven field guns and many trench mortars, etc.

RUSSIANS PRESSING ON.

NEW YORK, July 10. The Russian army has broken through the Austro-German line in the Halicz-Stanislaw sector, one of the most important on the eastern front, and the Russian advance continues. The Austro-German forces have already withdrawn beyond Lomnica river, about 10 miles west of Jesopol, which was occupied on Sunday by the Russians, under General Korniloff. The Russians have taken four villages and increased the capture of prisoners by more than 1,000. Seven more field guns, and other materials are in the Russians' hands. West of Stanislaw, towards Kalash and Dolina the Russians penetrated the Teutonic lines to a depth of nearly seven miles and between Stanislaw and Halicz they have widened the wedge. In their retirement, apparently made hastily, and during which a large number of guns and military stores were captured by the Russians, the Austro-Germans failed to make a stand at Lukovitz and Larva. It is probable they may entrench on the east bank of the Lomnica. The stand west of Lomnica, however, hardly will prevent the forced evacuation of Halicz, the strategic key to Lemberg, as the Russians are within less than eight miles of Halicz on three sides, and only one avenue of retreat towards Lemberg is left open, that between the Dniester and Lipa rivers. The evacuation of Halicz would make a retreat from Brzezany, Zlochhoff and Brody by the Austro-Germans almost necessary. Meanwhile Russian artillery is hammering enemy lines south of Brzezany and north of the Pripiet marshes and near Riga, Dvinsk and Smorgon.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, July 10. The official from the British headquarters in France to-night reads: Last night we entered enemy trenches at Neuport and inflicted casualties on the garrison. Southeast of Havrincourt, east of Monchy le Preux, and southeast of Arras, hostile raiding parties were driven off. Enemy artillery was active all day against our positions and towards evening the fire of his artillery reached a pitch of great intensity. Our artillery replied vigorously. Bad weather prevented aerial operations by either side yesterday.

HOLLWEG AND PEACE.

BERNE, July 10. According to a Berlin paper, Chancellor Von Bethmann Hollweg said to the members of the Reichstag: "I repeat that the formula of peace without annexation is unacceptable to us. We cannot declare our terms. We must fight and conquer." The Chancellor made a strong attack on Matthias Erzberger, leader of the Catholic Centre Party, who assailed the peace committee last week, and advocated peace without annexations or indemnities. Hollweg said Erzberger's attitude was unpatriotic. According to a summary of the Chancellor's speech before the main committee, published in the Lokal Anzeiger, he said: "We must continue the war with our whole energies. I do not deny that we have great difficulties to overcome, but so have our enemies. We shall see whether their difficulties are the greatest. I am sure we can win if we hold out. Nothing was further from my intention than to cling to my post, but now it is a question of protecting the Fatherland from injury, and for this reason I consider it necessary to retain my post."

HALIFAX SCHOONER SUNK.

NANTUCKET, Mass., July 10. The British schooner Unique, coal laden from New York for Halifax, struck the submerged wreckage of the schooner Alice M. Lawrence, off Tuckeruck Shoal, Nantucket Sound, to-day and went to bottom. The crew were taken off by coast guardsmen.

BRITISH RECRUITING WEEK.

NEW YORK, July 10. Through arrangements made by the Mayor's Committee on National Defence with the State and War Departments at Washington, the week of July 16 to 22 inclusive will be known as British recruiting week in New York City. The recruiting committee of the Mayor will co-operate with Major General White and others of the British recruiting mission in their programme.

CROWN COUNCIL MEETS.

LONDON, July 10. The Crown Council called by Emperor William was held at Berlin yesterday, according to an Exchange Telegraph Co. despatch from Amsterdam to-day, but no announcement as to what took place at the gathering has been made. The German public is very uneasy regarding the absence of news as to the decisions of the Council, says the despatch. Only in times of greatest stress are such meetings held. Other advices from the same source say that the meeting of the Crown Council lasted three hours, being one of the longest on record since July, 1914, when Emperor William signed the mobilization order that preceded the declaration of war. Ministers of both the Empire and Kingdom were in attendance, together with a number of the Emperor's Military and Naval Cabinet. It is believed, says the despatch, that one of the results of the Council will be the introduction of a franchise bill for Prussia granting universal direct suffrage and secret ballot.

BERLIN SAYS NOTHING TO REPORT.

BERLIN, July 10. There are no events of special importance to report, says the supplementary official from the German headquarters this evening.

Two Meatless Days.

WEEKLY FOR SYDNEY LADIES OF I. O. D. E. By an unanimous vote the Sydney Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire has decided to act upon the resolution passed at the recent national convention of the order in Victoria, B.C., and observe Wednesday and Friday of each week as "meatless days." The further section of the resolution calling for abstention from the use of veal and young lamb was also approved by the local ladies. The whole question of conservation of food was discussed by the Sydney Chapter. It was decided to assist in any way possible to conserve the country's food supply and to reduce the present excessive cost of living, and to do everything possible to save money that it may be turned to meeting war needs.

A CLOAK OF RAVEN BLUE SATIN IS LINED WITH BLACK-AND-WHITE CHECK.

Paris, June 25.—M. Malvy, Minister of the Interior, as the result of a Cabinet meeting, had addressed to the prefects of all the departments in France instructions to forbid the sale at retail of spirituous liquors testing over 18 degrees of alcohol in cafes and saloons, except during the hours when the principal meals are served. Adult males can procure liquors during these hours, but women and minors under 18 years will be unable to get them at any hour. Bottled goods may be sold only in two-litre quantities. M. Malvy seeking thus to exclude those desiring to purchase small bottles. Excluded from the scope of the proposed regulations are beer, wines, cider, imitation wines and liquors, and all other aromatic wines not possessing over 18 per cent. of alcohol, and liquors prepared from fresh fruits not possessing over 23 per cent. of alcohol.

Ants That Sew.

A writer in "The Visitor" tells of a party of German naturalists recently returned from Ceylon, who have reported the existence of a species of ant that has been observed in the act of sewing two leaves together for the purpose of forming a nest. This report confirms the observations of the English naturalist, Belliey, made in 1890. They saw a row of the insects pulling the edges of leaves together, then others trimming and fitting the edges, and finally the completion of the work by still other ants, which fastened the edges with a silky thread yielded by larvae of the same species, which the workers carried in their mandibles. It is said that the sewing ants pass the thread-giving larvae like shuttles through holes in the edges of the leaves.

GENERAL MAUDE MAKES A REPORT.

LONDON, To-day.

Via Reuters Ottawa Agency.—A despatch issued by Sir Stanley Maude, Commander-in-Chief of the Mesopotamian Expedition, for the seven months until the 31st of March last shows that that period was equally divided in preparation and in operations which led to the fall of Baghdad. He described how the advance was successfully carried out in face of the most difficult conditions through the tenacious spirit and gallantry of the British and Indian troops brilliantly seconded by the Navy. The Mesopotamian Commission's recent disclosures attract attention to and create special interest in General Maude's references to the present water transport and hospital arrangements. He stated that the newly formed inland water transport directorate is so well organized that an eight day end-to-end chain of river craft passed up and down the river thereby assuring maintenance of the troops at the front. Sir Stanley Maude further says: "Our well equipped hospitals were more than adequate to meet all calls and throughout the evacuation of the wounded was carried out on model lines. The arrangements for the comfort and rapid transfer of patients from the field to the hospitals reflect great credit on those concerned. General Maude thankfully acknowledges the prompt response made to his demands from England, India and Egypt."

THE IMPORTANCE OF HALICZ.

LONDON, To-day. Halicz, 63 miles southeast of Lemberg on the Dniester River, is an important railroad junction and the most important key to the Galician Capital. It is 18 miles north of Stanislaw and about 8 miles north of Jesopol.

Harry Lauder

To Bring Band of Pipers to America and Recruit for British Army in the Principal Cities of the United States.

New York, June 14.—The campaign of recruiting will be stimulated further late in the summer by the arrival of Harry Lauder and his thirty pipers. Lauder is coming primarily to make another tour, a farewell this time under the direction of William Morris, but he will devote all his leisure time to the recruiting movement.

It will be remembered that in England at the outbreak of the war the Scotch comedian was notably successful in his personal campaign. Accompanied by his pipers and rendering songs having patriotism for their theme, he was a big factor in filling the ranks of the army. He will pursue the same plan here.

PLAGIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

LAST NIGHT'S GAME.

The large number of fans who attended last night's ball game and who expected a good fast game, were not disappointed when they saw the Red Lions go down to defeat at the hands of the B.I.S. by 7 runs to 3. Two Irish errors in the first inning let in a pair of runs for the Lions, but after this they were held close for which the B.I.S. might thank their now famous battery—Carew and Brazie—who ably sustained their reputation. Only 3 safe hits were made off Carew. The ineptitude of McAskill rather upset the plans of the Lions who were counting on his work on the mound to stand them in good stead. Cooney, though suffering from injuries received in practice, went in the box and did marvellous work in the circumstances, though the Irish managed to get 17 hits off him. Quick's grab of Brazie's very high fly was heartily applauded. Ellis also got in good work when with the sacks sown in the fourth he safely netted two fly fouls. French's holding down first for the Macmen also evoked great admiration. Serjt Pat Brien "came back" in great shape after his three years on the battlefields of Gallipoli and the Somme. Duggan replaced

Gowans for the Lions in the 7th but did not reach his turn at bat. Carew had the misfortune to severely wrench his ankle, which will probably lay him off a week or more, so that possibly he may not be able to pitch against the Wanderers to-morrow night. Messrs. Chesman and Hartnett umpired the game to everybody's satisfaction, while the score sheets were looked after by Messrs. O'Leary, bridge and Simms. The box scores were:—

Ashore and Refloats

A schooner, owned by Giovannetti, of Channel, bound from Sydney to Topsail with a cargo of coal, ran upon a rock while trying to dock at the latter place a few days ago. A hole was punched in the bottom of the hull and the vessel began to leak freely, necessitating the pumps being kept going constantly. Meanwhile twenty tons of coal were taken out to lighten her and this morning she was towed off in deep water by the little steamer Mary. The schooner still has eighty tons of coal aboard and, we understand, an effort will be made to tow her to Harbour Grace to dock for repairs.

Wonderful Russia.

There must be great rejoicing in all the Allied capitals to-day. Halicz, an important railway junction on the Danube, the centre of the Austrian defensive system in Galicia and the key, it is said, to Lemberg, is in Russian hands. Military commentators predict the evacuation, as a natural consequence, of Brody, Zlochoff and Brzezany, leaving Lemberg practically uncovered. And if Lemberg goes there will be consternation indeed in Hungary. It is probably there already.

For what is the meaning of the fall of Halicz? Apart altogether from the immediate military prospect, a great deal. Halicz was one of the goals for which Brusiloff battled severely through last summer, and battled in vain. It has fallen this year almost before the first onset. Yet its importance is no less than then, and the Central Powers would defend it as tenaciously if they could. Evidently they could not, or else the Russians are greatly stronger than anyone has dared to imagine. Either hypothesis will be entirely acceptable to the Allies and both are more than likely. A glance at the map of Europe will make plain Austria's unhappy position. This new drive threatens, as we have seen, Lemberg, and through it Przemysl and the whole of Hungary. If she stems the tide, with what levies can it be and whence drawn? Cadorna has a bulldog grip upon her lines in the Carso, and lest she should shake it off he holds her in the Trentino also. Last year she held off Brusiloff with Germany's help; this year it is not to be had. Turkey remains, but she is herself saved from a similar predicament only by the summer truce, which cannot last much longer. And as for the Balkans, Austria can there see nothing but gathering clouds and hear the first mutterings of a storm as fierce as those that rage on both her sides. Altogether it is not unlikely that Vienna will give evidence of quite a little uneasiness within a few days.

The possibilities opened up by the Russian success are many and great. Stanislav, as well as Lemberg, is threatened; in fact, a wedge has already been driven well west of it. If it falls the way will be open once more over the Carpathians, and we are reminded that a large and efficient Rumanian army waits to strike along the Serech. To the north the loss of Lemberg ought to lead also to that of Kovel, a consummation devoutly to be wished. Along the whole Polish line the Russians have the disadvantage of the position and frontal attacks are most difficult. The turning of the German flank at Kovel would alter all that. It would compel a German retirement along a very long front—at least as far north as Vilna—and give the Russians an opportunity long sought. For it is the engagement of the enemy forces along the greatest possible front that is to be wished for at this critical time, bringing to a climax his man-power problem and possibly the whole war to a decision. It is early yet for sweeping prophecies, but certain it is that the Russian activities and successes have completely transformed the whole outlook, both by what they have achieved and through the potentialities that they reveal.

Body Found.

In many sad instances the uncertainty that remained concerning the fate of the missing in the drive of July 1st has been removed by the finding of the bodies. Mrs. Micheal Dunphy, of this city, has now been informed that the body of her son, L. Corp. John J. Dunphy, who fell in the immortal charge, was discovered in June last and buried by the Third Army Mobile Grave Registration Units.

Germany's Copper Famine.

Germany has been short of copper for some time. She needs vast quantities of the metal for munitions and war purposes, and the copper famine with which she is confronted is a serious thing for her.

For quite a long time the Germans have used iron coins instead of copper ones, and over a year ago copper money was converted into iron in the conquered districts of France and Belgium.

The need for copper is getting so desperate that the Germans are willing to exchange gold for it, and some neutral countries are almost cleared out.

Switzerland has done quite a good trade in supplying copper money to Germany. Swiss merchants and bankers have paid small premiums on copper coins, and the people of that country, who have been badly hit by the war, have been only too pleased to supply the coins in order to make a little profit. The merchants and bankers have then sent the copper to Germany and exchanged it for gold, so that Switzerland is almost drained of copper, too.—Pearson's Weekly.

Carpenters Meet.

At a meeting of the local Carpenters and Joiners' Union held last night, the formation of a local branch of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America was decided on. Thirty-four signed the roll together with twenty who had done so previously, bringing the number up to fifty-four. The charter will be left open for two months when members will be accepted at $1.50 entrance fee. All who join later will have to pay $5. The following officers constitute the first executive:

President—F. R. Goff.
Vice-Pres.—J. Monck.
Rec. Secy.—H. J. Taylor.
Fin. Secy.—W. Dutoit.
Treasurer—J. Jacobs.
Conductor—A. Johnson.
Warden—Jos. Bonnell.
Trustees—J. Clarke and W. Barnes.

The carpenters do not approve of the increase of wages granted by the Master Builders' Association and will consider the matter at a later date. The men employed by the Government have not yet received their increase and are badly in need of it.

On Saturday, the 14th inst., a Flower Day will be held in St. John's in aid of the French Red Cross Fund. Donations of flowers are earnestly solicited, and persons willing to give are requested to send their flowers on Friday, the 13th, to MRS. CHAS. MCK. HARVEY, 3 Musgrave Terrace, Gower Street.—jly9,4i

The Great Gray Ship.

The gray ships softly steal to sea—Mid wind and southing tide;
The gray gulls rest along the wave,
The weed-waifs soundless glide—
And solemn as the still night's flow,
The iron-breasted frigates go.

Their brave lads watch the home-shores fade
Within the gathering mist,
Their pulses tingling to the touch
Of lips their own have kissed—
Each wondering how, and dreaming
When His lips and hers shall meet again.

The bold moon woos the amorous surge,
The still dark flees the dawn,
The red sun climbs the old earth's knees,
The great gray ships are gone,
Where wounded Freedom calls her sons,
The young lads muster at their guns,
No more they dream of clinging lips,
No more of clasped hands,
Nor who shall back home again,
Who sleep in foreign lands,
But, stripped and cleared their souls they wait,
Like those gray ships, a soldier's fate.

O silent ships, with those we love
Sail on to lands afar;
There is no prouder thing afloat
And safety rests, abides, endures
In those brave sailors' hands, and yours.

We do not charge you bring them back
Whate'er the bitter price;
But only that the victory
Shall match the sacrifice;
That Freedom live and sing aloud,
Within the soldier's throat—or shout.
WILL ALLEN DROMGOOLE.

Flour reduced in price $2 a barrel to the consumer and from 35 to 25 cents a bag within the previous twenty-four hours, according to the Halifax Herald under date of Saturday last. That paper adds: wholesale prices are now quoted at $13.40 for Manitoba and $12.35 for Ontario. We wonder does this affect our local market.

McMurdo's Store News

WEDNESDAY, July 11, 17.
We have just obtained a very fine thing in the way of dentifrices in our new Antiseptic Tooth Powder. This powder will we think commend itself to many who prefer the use of Powder as tooth cleaner. This powder at any rate is a very choice one and likely to please the most fastidious. Price 25c.

Whatever dentifrice you use, a good tooth brush is essential. We suggest the Sanident Tooth Brush. This brush will stand the most severe tests, and the bristles absolutely will not come out. Price 35 and (unbleached) 40c. each.

Russia Has Only to Ask U. S. to Get Needs Filled.

Moscow, June 24, via London, June 25.—The headquarters of the war industrial committee was visited to-day by the American mission, headed by Elithu Root. The mission was warmly welcomed. Mr. Root, in answer to an address of welcome, said that America was summoning 10,000,000 men to the colors in defence of freedom. His remarks were enthusiastically applauded.

Continuing, Mr. Root told his hearers that half a million Americans soon would be fighting America's fleet already was aiding in the war on German submarines. Describing America's adaptation to war, Mr. Root praised American workmen for voluntarily working in the nation's interest longer hours than usual. They soon would be fulfilling Russia's orders for locomotives and cars.

"Say what Russia wants," continued the speaker, "and we will come in aid. Our high aims in the war justify the heaviest sacrifices, and any one who cannot understand these aims must be unable to understand anything."

Baseball Protest.

STATEMENT FROM VICE-PRESIDENT HAWVERMALE.
The B. I. S. protested that McAskill of the Red Lions was not eligible to play under the residential clauses, which states that those not Newfoundlanders must be bona fide residents of the Colony for at least three months previous to the opening game of the regular League series. The Red Lions contended that according to this player's own story, he arrived here by the s.s. Sable I. early in January and was employed at the Dock Hill about the first week in June when he enlisted with the Forestry Companies. The B. I. S. produced a statement signed by A. T. King, purser of the s.s. Sable I., to the effect that the same McAskill joined the steamer at Sydney on May 28th and left her here on June 4th. As no rejoinder to this is forthcoming from the Red Lions, the B. I. S. protest must therefore be upheld, and the said McAskill is ruled ineligible to play in any of the regular League fixtures for the championship.

Regarding the counter-protest of the Red Lions against the amateur standing of Brazie playing for the B. I. S., a declaration, duly witnessed, was furnished the League from this player stating that he had never received payment or remuneration at any time in his life for playing baseball. Copy of this was furnished the Red Lions, and the onus of proving otherwise rests with them. Therefore until such proofs are furnished, said player Brazie is eligible to play in all League fixtures.

Fishery News.

From C. Renouf, (Bank Head to Highlands).—The catch to date is 3,714 qtls. with 1,000 for last week. Forty-seven traps and 52 dories are fishing. Prospects are very good and trawls are doing well but hook and liners nothing. There is plenty of squid and caplin for bait. The lobster fishery is very poor.

From J. F. Williams, (Bay Bulls, Long Pt.).—Thirty traps, 27 motor boats and 20 dories are fishing. Cod has slackened off the last week but prospects are fair and there is plenty of caplin. The total catch is 4,795 qtls. and for last week 1,050.

From W. White, (Aguaforte to Caplin Bay).—Trawls are doing a little and a couple of traps remarkably well. Others take from 5 to 10 qtls. daily while more get practically nothing. The catch is 5,355 qtls. with 2745 for last week. Prospects are good. There is a good sign of cod about the grounds but it doesn't appear to trap or hook.

From T. McCarthy, (Renews to Seal Cove). Prospects are good and there is plenty caplin while squid have been seen in large quantities. The catch to date is 4,000 qtls. Nine traps, 11 dories and 9 skiffs are fishing.

From I. Parsons, (Riverhead Harbor Grace to Jugglers Cove).—The catch is 500 qtls. with 230 for last week. The outlook is not good up to the present and the greater part of the above catch was taken by 9 or 10 traps. The hook and liners are doing nothing.

From S. E. Chafe, (South Point Brigus to Bay Roberts Point).—Prospects are poor. The traps have done next to nothing this week and the hook and liners very little. Caplin is abundant and some squid is also obtainable. Fifty-four traps and 35 dories and skiffs are fishing. The catch is 330 qtls. and for last week 50.

Business-like Sitting of House of Assembly

The House of Assembly opened "on time" yesterday afternoon. Business was not "as usual," however, but on the contrary there was a striking hum of go-a-headedness about it while criticism was at a premium.

Mr. Hickman presented a petition from Daniel's Harbor, asking for a new road there, as did Mr. Higgins, requesting the replacement of the public wharf at Flatrock and for a tramway for conveying fish at the same place; also Mr. Currie asked for telegraphic communication at Lord's Cove, Burin, and from the Prime Minister on behalf of Lieut.-Col. Otway, S.A., asking for a small amendment in the Act incorporating the Salvation Army, providing them with certain powers regarding their property.

The Leader of the Opposition supported the prayer of the petition and the Prime Minister introduced a Bill in relation thereto and it was referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Prime Minister the Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Hickman, Mr. Ficcott and Mr. Devereaux.

The Report of the Select Committee on the new Municipal Bill was presented by the Prime Minister, who gave notice that he would at the next sitting move the House into Committee of the Whole on a Bill relating to Municipal Affairs in St. John's.

A Bill respecting the Prohibition of the Importation, Manufacture and Sale of Intoxicating Liquors was introduced by the Prime Minister and read a first time.

The House then went into Committee on Supply and the Finance Minister presented the Supplemental Supply Statement and gave an explanation of how the half million dollars was overdrawn on Executive responsibility and spent during the last Fiscal year, made up under the following heads:—

Civil Government	$ 99,316.39
Administration of Justice	19,201.58
Legislation	12,758.54
Public Charities	67,033.00
Light Houses	35,970.00

The Bills respecting Retiring Allowances for certain civil servants and an Act to authorize the raising of a sum of money by Loan for Naval and Military purposes went through Committee; also the Bill relating to Naval and Military Pensions received its second reading.

The Resolutions concerning the concessions to the Riverside Woollen Mills, Ltd., which excited such a flare up earlier in the session, were again deferred.

The House went into Committee on a Bill, introduced by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, giving certain concessions to the Public Service Electric Co., Ltd., of Conception Bay, in the way of water power and allowing them to bring their plant and material for original construction into the Colony free of duty. The Bill virtually passed, excepting that the introducer is to give more details as to the water power.

The much-postponed Budget was left standing over until the Coalition atmosphere is cleared beyond all doubt.

The House adjourned at 5 p.m. to meet again this afternoon.

Made Off With the Change.

A country woman who came to town this morning with eggs, butter, cream and other farm produce to sell, was not satisfied with about five hundred per cent profit on her sales, but made off with a ten dollar note that was handed her by a boarding-house mistress in the West End, who purchased $2.50 worth of goods. The cute woman from the country, not having sufficient change, volunteered to run around the corner and get it. When she had been gone for upwards of half an hour, the customer sent out a domestic to hurry along the change, but to her great surprise found the country woman had disappeared. The victim started out to inform the police when she ran across the country woman coming out of a grocery store, and there and then made her hand over the change. After giving the thief a lesson on the eight commandment she allowed her to go.

What Was Done In Russia.

A Washington despatch says that "three weeks ago" Minister Kerensky informed this Government that "a big Russian offensive would take place in the early part of July," (it began on July 1); and Secretary Lansing says that the initial success indicates that Kerensky has "succeeded in his big task of reorganizing the Russian army."

"Big" is the word; for the Russian offensive, though the infantry fighting has been on an eighteen-mile front, is altogether on a 200-mile front. For 200 miles the Russians are engaged in pounding the Germans with artillery, the immediate purpose of which, it may be suspected, is to force the Germans to use up their ammunition. Whether the objective of the infantry attack is Lemberg or not, its main purpose is to change the state of things by which the Germans were enabled to pile up heavy masses taken from the Russian front to stop the advance of the British and the Italians. In other words, within three weeks and a half after the army was seemingly paralyzed by the revolution, Russia has come again to the rescue of her allies in the west. The thing would be incredible if it had not been done. Despite the German announcements that a Russian offensive was feared, no offensive on such a large scale had been expected for months.

Something of what has been done, and some idea of its gigantic size, can be gleaned from this news of Kerensky's having notified us three weeks ago that a great offensive would be undertaken by July. That notification must have come to us somewhere about June 10. Kerensky had just returned from his tour of the battle front. It was on May 29, at the beginning of his tour, that his new orders restoring discipline—his "iron hand"—orders—went into effect. Between those dates he had addressed thousands of soldiers, awakening enthusiasm without parallel. On the same day that these orders went into effect the Peasants' Congress, representing the class from whom the bulk of the soldiers are drawn, issued a resolution calling on them to cease "fraternization."

General Alexieff resigned as Commander-in-Chief on June 4, and General Brusiloff was appointed to succeed him. On June 8 the Peasants' Congress, undoubtedly at Kerensky's instance, adopted this resolution, which came to the soldiers with the voice of parental authority:—

"The Congress considers that it is its duty energetically to defend its country, recalling before no sacrifices in order to sustain the fighting strength of the army and the patriotism of the Russian people. The Congress summons the army to submit itself to discipline and defend revolutionary Russia, of peasants and workers. It grants its benediction to this war, and will not forget the blood which has been shed."

Kerensky immediately ordered that the resolution be read to all ranks of the army and navy; and, returning from his revival trip along the front he said:

"After touring the whole of Russia and the battle front, I can affirm that what hitherto was regarded as the dying agony of our army was nothing else than the laborious travail of the new Russian State. I can affirm that, notwithstanding the destruction of the old discipline, the power of the Russian Army is increasing daily, based as it is on a new and intelligent discipline. I can affirm once for all that fraternization with the enemy has completely ceased."

The army had a chance to show whether these words were justified on June 11. Three pacifist regiments under an anarchistic leader refused to obey orders, whereupon their comrades marched upon them, opened fire, and took them prisoners.

It was at this time that Kerensky informed Washington that the great Russian offensive would begin "early in July." The whole chain of events took only about two weeks. The ground had been prepared for Kerensky by the urgent and incessant labors of the Generals, but it was his work which brought about this miracle in so short a time. It is evident that within a few days after Brusiloff took command he must have made his plans for the offensive and been assured of his ability to carry it out, for he took command on June 4, which was four weeks ago.

The reconstruction of the fighting force had been hoped for in months; it has been done in a month; the success of it was assured within ten days after Kerensky started along the front. As the climax of the whole record comes the amazing report that Kerensky led the attack in person. The story is among the most wonderful of all the wonderful stories of this wonderful war; and what Kerensky has done, in the time in which he did it, must go on record as one of the most amazing historic feats of all time. The crucial part of it was done in one week. If the army is saved, Russia is saved; and the army is not only saved but striking.—N. Y. Times.

Harden Sees the Allies Resolutely United.

Peace Only if Germany Yields to Democracy.

London, July 2.—A dispatch to the Chronicle from Amsterdam says that in the latest number of Die Zukunft Maximilian Harden expresses himself in an extremely pessimistic tone with regard to the general situation, especially concerning Russia. He writes:

"Only a miracle can bestow an early peace upon us. Either our enemies must be smashed up or Germany's aspirations must find unity with those of a majority of the world. Only the second miracle can be accomplished by human strength."

"The goal of our enemies is democracy and independence for every race ripe for freedom, a real and not sham reduction of armaments, and a court of justice before which all who are suspected of being responsible in greater or less degree for the outbreak of war must present themselves. They aim at a condition which will give weapons to right against the arrogance of force, a state of affairs which will threaten with peril any enterprise of attack, and which will remove from one mortal man the decision whether peace shall prevail or war shall come, and deprive him of the power to impose that decision on the people. They aim at preserving the prerogatives of all countries as jealously as socialism, already recognized by the State, protects the prerogatives of individuals."

"If Germany sees blazing over that goal the great celestial sign of the times, then peace is reachable to-morrow. Over all other questions agreement will be achieved easily, but if that condition of things for which millions of people sigh, appears to her to be ignominious, then she must fight on until one group conquers and the other falls in exhaustion. The people alone can be responsible for what is to come, but the spirit of statesmanship, before their make choice, must light the path for them."

Poor Man Loses Young Horse.

A few days ago a horse took fright at the Trepassay train while passing near Bay Bulls, and dashing along the road at high speed broke loose from its owner and collided with a fence, and striking its head against a post, dropped dead. The animal was only three years old and is a great loss to its owner, he being an afflicted poor fisherman. The matter has been reported to the Reid-Nfld. Co. who no doubt will deal justly with the poor fisherman.

HARVEY AND Co., Ltd.

Jess Willard

Is Now in Wealthy Citizens' Class.

New York, July 5.—Jess Willard, one time cowpuncher according to tradition and present world's champion and circus owner, may also be billed now as Willard the capitalist. At least Jess has climbed into the circle of plutocrats, if the statement of Tom Jones, late pugilistic chaporone to the Pottawatomie madston, is to be accepted. Of course severance of connections with Willard and contemplated legal action for financial redress may play its part in Jones's statement.

However, Tom blew into Chicago, and in passing the time of day deposited as follows: "Willard is worth between $500,000 and $600,000 to-day. Of that amount about $425,000 is stored away in cold cash on deposit in Chicago banks. One bank on the loop carries $90,000 in Willard's name and another has $60,000. There is still a third neighborhood bank near where Jess lives that carries a healthy check account. All of this has been salted away since Jess slapped the pugilistic crown from the ebony dome of Jack Johnson down in Havana on April 5, 1915.

"Things have been breaking pretty soft for Willard since he won the crown. When he took an inventory after the Havana battle his financial sheet showed a deficit of $10,175. But pickings were very fat and juicy with the circus. Some weeks Willard's percentage ran as high as $8,000. Sums slightly below that were ordinary. And always the amount tallied up handsomely. In addition to the actual money which Willard has on deposit, he owns a farm of 3,000 acres, another of 600 in Michigan, four bungalows in Los Angeles and his home in Rogers Park, Chicago."

British Navy Convinced

The Submarine Warfare Has Failed.

London, July 5.—Von Hindenburg's boasting pronouncement has been read with considerable interest in Admiralty circles. The general view is that it was issued chiefly with a view to bolstering up German sentiment. The phrase, "if we hold our ground until the submarine war has done its work," has a pleasant sound to the British naval ear, for the navy is now firmly convinced that the submarine war has failed, and that the anti-submarine measures are constantly growing in effectiveness.

A staff correspondent of the Associated Press was privileged to spend two days last week in observing the anti-U-boat campaign at close quarters at a big naval base on the south-east coast. There was plenty of evidence from such a vantage point of the effectiveness of the Admiralty work in nearby waters, as well as of the tremendous effort which is being put forth.

The navy still maintains secrecy regarding the submarines sunk, but the pursuit has become so lively that a U-boat shows its periscope in Channel waters only with the greatest risk. It is impossible to keep entirely secret such incidents as that of an oil-driven destroyer which a few days ago swept into port with a portion of a rammed submarine hanging triumphantly from her prow.

Airplane and dirigible patrols in the Channel are proving highly effective and a U-boat which is once sighted by a dirigible has small chance of getting away. In waters further afield one of the best evidences of the success of the Atlantic patrol was the safe arrival of the American transports at a French port.

Puttering at War.

Chicago Tribune: There is a new way to beat Germany now—by not going on pleasure trips! In an alleged interview, Food Controller Hoover is made to say that all unnecessary travel must cease. It wastes money. It bothers the railroads. Stay home, scripp, impoverish hotelkeepers, boycott the railroads, and thereby boost prosperity. At the same time you will relieve pressure upon railroads overburdened transporting troops not yet drafted and war material not yet ordered. The agitation against pleasure trips is a fair sample of the way we putter at war, doing infinitesimal things without number—or gassing about doing them—while big things go undone. We need men—not sometime next year, but speedily. We need munitions. We need ships. We are not getting them. Instead, we are getting a policy of backing and filling, delay everywhere.

When is a Bargain.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"Yes," said my next door neighbor when we expressed our admiration of a distinctive looking plaid skirt, she was wearing, "that skirt is one of the best bargains I ever bought."
"Why, I thought you told me you bought it the first of the season before there were any markdowns," said the lady from across the way in surprise.
"So I did."
"But you said it was a bargain."
"A Bargain Not a Mark Down."
"It was, my dear. I never had anything that so many people admired and thought becoming. It's dressy but not too dressy. And while it has a good style of its own it's not a style that will go out of style. I've worn it all winter and I plan to wear it off and on this summer and all next winter. It's a splendid material and I bought it at a reasonable price. If that's not a bargain, what is? I didn't say a markdown, you know."
"Yes, I suppose so," said the lady from across the way, "but you have gotten such wonderful things marked down that it seems strange for you to pay full price for anything."
"What A Bargain Really Is."
My next door neighbour laughed. "That's the way I used to feel myself," she said, "in fact I went quite crazy over hunting for markdowns. But gradually I came to my senses and realized that a bargain isn't just a thing marked down. It's exactly what you want and need bought at a reasonable price. Of course I often go to bargain sales and get lots of wonderful values that way, but I don't forget that when I pick up what I want at a reasonable price it's a bargain even if it isn't a markdown."

The Better Meaning.
That's pretty good philosophy, don't you think?
I looked up bargains in the dictionary when I got home just for the interest of the thing. It has two meanings, "an advantageous purchase" or "anything bought cheap."
Wise is the woman who shops by the first rather than the second meaning.

THE ELEPHANT.

The elephant is a massive, flat-footed beast with a puncture-proof hide and a coarse, yawning complexion. Many attempts have been made to refine the complexion of the elephant by applying cold cream and the patent pimple eradicator, but without any success whatever.

Many attempts have been made to refine the complexion of the Elephant by applying cold cream.

Elephants do not grow in this country to any extent, as the climate is too severe, but are found in great abundance in the heart of Africa by daring hunters who have left their wives with ill-concealed relief to brave the dangers of the tropical forest and the deadly rigors of the Congo fea. Elephant hunting is an exciting pastime and frequently causes several deaths to occur far from home. It must be sad to go so far away in search of rest and quiet and then die with a low gurgle as the result of being stepped upon by the hind leg of an infuriated elephant.

The elephant is a kind animal and seldom strikes the first blow. It does not go around with a chip on its shoulder, like the uneasy female lioness. Nobody ever saw an elephant reach out and sink its trunk into an innocent bystander who had brought his entire family to the circus on a bill-board pass. Yet some people

Magistrate Fitzgerald, with his wife and children is in town on a visit to old friends.

Mrs. J. Lockyer, of Bonavista, accompanied by two children, are in town. Mrs. Lockyer intends removing from the beautiful home in Bonavista and taking up her residence in Hr. Grace.

Miss Bertha McKay, of Mr. J. C. Steward's employ, Bell Island, who has been home as the result of a sprained foot for the past two weeks, intends leaving for the Island again on Thursday, via Kelligrews.

The flag of the Conception Bay British Society is at half mast today out of respect to the memory of one of its members—Pte. Albert Horwood, who is just reported to have died of wounds received on April 14th. The bereaved family have the sympathy of all our citizens.

Mr. Edward Power, son of Constable Power, formerly of Hr. Grace, but now of St. John's, is in town on a visit to friends.

It is expected that the pulpit of St. Andrew's Church here will be occupied on Sunday next by Rev. G. Dickie, of St. John's, the Rev. F. S. Coffin taking the Pastor's place at St. John's for that day.

Codfish is still scarce but our fishermen are hoping for good hauls soon.

The barque Gaspé was on dock here last week. She left for St. John's yesterday morning, in tow of the s.s. Diana.

Work at the shipyard is going ahead with a swing and bids fair to be a great boon to Harbor Grace.

The schr. Caribou Hill is now discharging a cargo of coal to her owners, Messrs. McRae & Sons.

A number of teachers left by this morning's train to take in the Summer School there.

Thousand Diners Hear New War Story

Marconi Describes How Italy's Neutralty Was Told to France in Time to Halt Germans—Viviani Called From Bed, Was Overcome by Surprise of News That Turned a Million Men Against Kaiser's Hordes.

New York, June 23.—The reception to the Italian commission culminated last night in a dinner given to the visitors at the Waldorf by Mayor Mitchell and attended by nearly a thousand citizens of New York. It was a dinner full of Italian and American patriotism made notable by the demonstrations for Guglielmo Marconi and for Mayor Mitchell, to whom each of the Italian speakers referred in terms of high praise and deep gratitude for his services to the cause of the Allies and his friendship for Italy.

It was notable, too, for the first statement of the circumstances under which Italy announced to France her decision to remain neutral at the outset of the war, thereby releasing for service against the German Army advancing through Belgium hundreds of thousands of French troops who would have been needed to guard the Alpine frontier if the Italian Government had decided to support the other members of the Triple Alliance in their aggression. The story was told by Senator Marconi in the course of a speech which began with praise of the accomplishments of the Italian Army and Navy and a description of the tremendous natural difficulties with which they are confronted. After describing the services which are now being rendered to the Allies by the army and navy of Italy, he said:

"And now, gentlemen, I come to what is perhaps one of the least known matters in connection with the war, the great, the absolutely decisive influence of Italy's conduct at the very outbreak of hostilities in 1914. Let me tell you a few facts concerning the inner political history of those fateful days of July, 1914, when the fate of Europe was trembling in the balance.

"Germany did not expect us to join her in her savage attack on the liberator in her savage attack on the liberator which we eventually agreed to remain neutral. Her game was a much deeper and more treacherous one. She wanted us to leave France, our great Latin sister, in doubt as to our intentions.

"On the morning of July 30, 1914, that is to say, one day before Germany declared war on Russia, and two days before she declared war on France, the Marquis de San Giuliano, who was then our Foreign Minister, unofficially informed the French Ambassador in Rome that Italy would never side with the Central Powers in a war of aggression. This information was immediately wired to Paris, but it was not sufficient to make France feel absolutely certain that Italy's attitude was favorable to her, because there was as yet no official declaration of neutrality on our part.

"And France was saved. "On the 2nd of August, 1914, three days before England declared war against Germany, at a Council of Ministers held in Rome, Italy decided formally to declare her neutrality. The news was immediately communicated to our Charge d' Affaires in Paris, the Ambassador being absent. For some reason the telegram did not reach him until 1 o'clock in the morning. Without a moment's hesitation, he went to see Mr. Viviani, the French Prime Minister, in the middle of the night.

"When he was introduced into Mr. Viviani's presence, the latter turned pale and drew back, for he was almost convinced that nothing but Italy's decision to join Germany would bring about the Italian Charge d' Affaires there at that hour. The revulsion of feeling when Mr. Viviani read the telegram was such that he could not hide his emotion. Within half an hour orders had gone forth for the mobilization for service in the north for nearly 1,000,000 men which France would have had to keep on her southern and eastern frontier to guard against a possible attack from Italy.

"That million men helped to stem the advancing tide of Germans, to win the battle of the Marne, and to save France from being crushed by the heel of German militarism. Had there been the slightest wavering, the smallest hesitation on the part of Italy, had any Italian politician been found to do one-tenth part of what Bismarck did when he altered the wording of the famous Ems telegram, and thus brought about the Franco-Prussian war, France would not have dared to withdraw a single man from the Italian frontier, and the history of the world might have been written differently.

"Gentlemen, is there any man who can think in view of what I have just told you, that Italy's conduct was not a decisive factor in the war?"

The dinner was held in the grand ball room, where that for the Anglo-French Commission took place six weeks ago, a hall decorated for the occasion by Lloyd Warren with American and Italian flags as the principal motif. This dinner like one given by the Mayor to Viviani, Joffre, and Balfour was arranged by a committee headed by Fire Commissioner Robert Adamson.

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A Gas Range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. Where Workers Get $80 A Week.

Tempted by the Enormous Wages Offered in the U. S. Munition Works, Clerks, travellers, and Parsons Have Donned the Blue Overalls and Have Been "Raking It In."

Up to the time of April, when the United States joined with the Allies, there was a period of industrial prosperity there unequalled in any part of the world in any age—prosperity due, of course, to munition orders. Great Britain and France and Italy and Russia—especially Russia—were avid for guns, rifles, shells, small ammunition, leather-work, steel rails, and every form of railway equipment. They were prepared to pay any price, so long as the goods could be delivered quickly. They paid for speed.

The munition factories of the U. S. had to speed up as never before. The way to effect it was to offer the inducement of very high piece-work wages, and exceptional bonuses for overtime. For instance, skilled rollers in Pittsburgh mills have been earning their five guineas a day. Pup-dlers have been making almost as much.

Dazzling Wages. But the money has certainly been earned. Clerks, even parsons, and other soft-handed men, lured by the glitter of £1,000 a year, have thrown off their black coats, donned the blue overalls, and tried to compete with the muscle-hardened artisan.

The big majority found the price they had to pay too high. They dropped out—exhausted. Nor is the lighter work of the shell-factory without its compensating drawback. Several dozen plants in the U. S. have blown up—or been blown up—by German plotters.

A dorky, employed in sweeping out a lawyer's office, was caught by the lure of "easy money," and announced to his employer that he had decided to throw up the broom and offer his services to a neighbouring shell-factory. The lawyer had reluctantly to let him go.

That same afternoon the dorky returned, and signified his willingness to resume the broom. "What happened?" asked the lawyer.

"Ah went ter de gate, sah, and tol' de man Ah wanted some of dat dere easy money. 'All right!' sez he. 'What's your name?' sez he. An' I tol' him. And then he sez, 'Where shall we send the remains, in case of accident?' And I tol' him quick 'Dere ain't goin' to be no remains for dis yere nigger!'"

A remarkable feature of the boom has been that really-skilled workers—doing overtime on piecework—have in most cases been earning higher wages than their foremen. In many instances higher even than their factory superintendents.

The Golden Flood. But this, of course, is a temporary condition of boom-time. When the day comes that munition orders dry up, and factories unclutch from the high-speed gear, hands will be laid off and wages relentlessly reduced. The superintendents and foremen will come into their own again.

In order that the extent of the war orders in the U. S. may be realised, here are a few round figures of supplies shipped out during the month of January, 1916, for the use of the Allies:

Explosives	£16,000,000
Firearms	2,000,000
Brass	7,000,000
Copper	6,400,000

Motor-cars	2,000,000
Metal-working machinery	1,700,000
Other manufacturers of iron and steel	5,400,000

Breadstuffs during that month were valued at £15,000,000; horses and mules at £1,800,000; boots and shoes at £300,000.

The total war exports for January, 1916, amounted to the enormous figure of over £69,000,000. Multiplying by ten, to get a conservative estimate of a year's trading, the U. S. looked complacently at a war income of six hundred million pounds sterling.

Little wonder that skilled workers could command their thousand a year! The ideal of the American is to spend. The more money he flings away, the more he is respected and admired.

"Easy Money." I am speaking, of course, of the period prior to the American declaration of war. At the time of writing it seems probable that the United States will be jolted out of its easy-money attitude, and that its nose will be held down to the grindstone of economy.

Munition towns, such as Bridgeport (Connecticut), Wilmington (Delaware), Pennsgrove or Eddystone; the motor-car focus of Detroit; or the steel city of Pittsburgh—all these have flung money about like mining-camps. The skilled worker has gone to his daily job in his own motor-car, as a matter of course. Lesser lights, such as truck-handlers, sit astride a motorcycle. £120 is the sum that a Pittsburgh man—in his shirt-sleeves, and a clay pipe—is known to have paid out cheerfully for phonographs and records for his family.

Furs, jewels, silks, and satins for wife or sweetheart; eight-guinea suits for himself for Sunday wear; etcetera of the most showy and expensive kinds—these have eaten up a very large slice of the boom-money.

Only a few men seem to have had the prudence to lay by money for the inevitable day of the bursting bubble. —Answers.

Your Boys and Girls.

Every mother likes to see her small daughter look dainty at all times. But girls, as well as boys, get their clothes soiled at play, and while boys can be put into overalls or rompers according to their age, few mothers will like to sell their little daughters dressed in these homely garments. But there will be no objection to miniature bungalow aprons on the order of those worn by the mothers, especially if a pretty color is chosen. These aprons are quite easy to make at home.

The best kind of materials to use are the soft cotton poplins, ratine cotton and silk fabric that does not demand too much in the way of laundering will answer, provided of course, it is fairly substantial. To make the apron measure off twice the length for a deep hem, fold this and cut the top in kimono fashion, taken out under the selvage edges. This fulness is platted or gathered and set on after cutting sits in the body of the apron to fit.

A strip of the material holds the fulness down. If preferred, the skirt part may be gored all the way down, but the child does not get the freedom the fulness allows. The neck is cut square and edged with a white band, a sare the kimono sleeves. The closing is in the back from neck to waist line or for convenience in laundering it may be closed all the way.

At the Crescent.

Madame Olive Timmons sings the beautiful Irish ballad "Macushla" at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day. An episode in two reels of the "Girl from Frisco" series entitled "The Fight for Paradise Valley," featuring Marlin Sals and True Broadman, heads the picture programme, besides there is a great Biograph drama: "The Work Habit," a stirring drama of the wilds. "In the Elemental World" and a Kalem Comedy: "The Artist's" with Bud Duncan and Ethel Tear, the celebrated Kalem Comedy team. Don't miss this mid-week show it's an extra good one. On Friday and Saturday Madame Timmons sings "There's a Long, Long Trail."

WILD FRUIT PLENTIFUL—Wild fruit blossoms are very plentiful on the outlying hills, and with a continuous spurt of fine weather an abundance of berries may be expected earlier than usual.
