that the Tonquin invasion was unprofitable and unworthy of the republic in view of the European situation and the pressing necessity of the more perfect mobilization of the French army.

Ferry went bluntly to the point. He announced that the government intended immediately to increase its energies in Tonquin, and would not stop until it occupied the entire country up to the frontier of the Chinese empire. This declaration produced a profound sensation, and was received with cheers and considerable disapproval. Ferry continuing, said the opeapproval. Ferry continuing, said the opethe French military strength at home or the French military strength at home or interfere with the necessary general mobilization. There were three millions of men in the republic, the best soldiers in the world, ready to march at a moment's notice in the cause of France. It was impossible to longer keep the army in Tonquin crouching idly like hunters with their eyes fixed upon a single point. That was unworthy of the French army. That army must be occupied. The task was not difficult. It would require but an insignificant mobilization. insignificant mobilization.

Now I will not use the expression invidiously, but it does not seem to me that it was an honest mode of presenting the result of the transaction, and that it would have been better to have presented the fact that there was a $40 advertisement obtained by the office and that the consideration for that advertisement had been the $20 in cash, which is the only entry that appears.

THURSDAY MORNING. JAN. 15, 1885.

It is pretty well understood among members of the legislature of the province that Mr. Meredith is the stumbling block in the way of new parliament buildings. But it is not Mr. Meredith, the leader of the opposition, that is in the way, but Mr. Mere dith as member for the city of London, Mr. Meredith seems to think that because the buildings are not to be erected in London they ought not to be erected in Toronto. Mr. Meredith in other words poses on this question as a purely flocal member not take the wider or provincial view in this matter the public will not care to trust him with the administration of their provincial affairs hereafter. They will let him sit and speak for London.

If Mr. Meredith thus takes the narrow local view, what course does Mr. Morri intend to pursue? He is second in command of the opposition forces, and he sits for one of the divisions of Toronto, His constituents expect him to do something for the city. Here, then, is his chance Let him lead that section of the opposition (the majority of it) which favors new buildings, and let him go frankly to Mr. Mowat and say you can count on me and so many others to support you in putting up the buildings, Mr. Morris is surely influential enough in his party to do this. If Mr. Meredith is able to take the purely local view, why cannot Mr. Morris do the same and come out holdly in the interest of his city ?

The Registrarship of Middlesex.

In the foregoing article the ground is taken that the mere local view that ob tains in London ought not to prevent Mr. Mowat from eregting suitable parliament buildings. But in the appointment of a registrar for Middlesex, which is now up, there is every reason why the local view should be respected. As a general thing, And yet we hear that Mr. Mowat and his colleagues are trying to carry out a prom ise to S. C. Wood, late treasurer of the province, to give him the first good registrarship that became vacant. But surely Mr. Mowat does not think the people of London and Middlesex are going to stultify themselves by accepting a man for a local appointment who hails from the township of Obs. county of Victoria, neighborhood of Son g at and Bobcaygeon. Leaving out of view this understanding with Mr Wood, it is said the members of the government are favorable to the appointment of Col. Walker, who has richly merited the consideration of his party.

The Scott Act.

Mr. Mowat is autocrat of the liquor bu iness and the hotel men ought at one begin to square themselves with his might iness. They were illy-advised the day they rushed to Sir John for relief. He gave them a license act stricter than the Crooks act, and then Mr. Hardy turned round and embodied all the strong clauses of the dominion law into the provincial one. The hotelmen thereupon found themselves between two millstones that they had "whipsawed" themselves in mos glorious fashion. But the McCarthy (dominion) act is now declared unconstitu tional, and one of the millstones is lifted from them. And the same reasons given against that act may yet be held sufficient to disqualify the Scott act! The London Free Press (not indeed a safe authority in this case) says that Mr. Mowat is already getting ready to urge that the Scott act is unconstitutional, and that being desirous of raising the wind that he intends issuing licenses in every county in the province that has adopted the dominion Scott act.

It is high time, then, that the liquor men began to make their supplications to Oliver, the all-powerful in the matter of licenses, and perhaps also in the matter of prohibition. And Oliver, if he is master of prohibition as well as of licenses, will be disposed to go slow in passing a provincial Scott act, for he will before long have to go to the country for re election, and in a close contest the liquor vote would be most desirable friend. Or, if the hotel men would be still wiser, they would keep away from both parties entirely.

With certain qualifications, it will be the same imperative. History loes repeat itself in spirit and purpose, but does repeat itself in spirit and purpose, but not in details. We have no British Nero to fiddle while London is in flames, but the spectacle of British ministers enjoying themselves at their country seats while the position of the spirit in two or three courtry seats while the position of the spirit in two or three courtry seats while the position of the spirit in two or three courtry seats while the position of the spirit and purpose, but departure home, without what would either pay his hotel bill or purchase a railway ticket. That is a fair example of history repeating itself in spirit, though not to the letter. Again, history sometimes even very literally rearrival home. A card with a name and address was then handed to the home secretary by the reputed waiter, which, together with the story told by Jerry seemed so satisfactory to Mr. Bruce that he expressed his gladness to be able to serve a constituent thus situated. On looking into his purse, Mr. Bruce exclaimed: "By Jove, I have not enough change about me. Would a check for £10 answer, think you?" "The gentleman only bid me ask for £8," replied the astute Jerry, "and I think he would prefer having it in change," Whereupon the home secretary called a clerk from a desk, borrowed the requisite amount, and "I have been teaching billiards five or ix years," said J. With all due respect to the fair sex, I am compelled to say that it is not likely the champion billiardist will ever be a female. They play gracefully enough, that is some of them; but they are not practical. Others, again, are far from graceful—and did you ever see a woman hrow a stone at a hen to drive it out of her garden? Well, some women look out as awkward handling the cue. Ther ey get chalk all over themselves, and it is n awful strain on some of them to remem-per which is their ball in a game. Like a reat many males, a woman can never igure on 'position,' and nowadays that's the whole game. THE YOUNG PHYSICIAN.

BY J. B. KENNEDY, M.D. "I might as well give up the struggle. It's quite a temptation when one understands just how much—no pain, only a dull stupor, and then—death! It's a strong temptation when living is a head strong temptation when living is a head of the strong temptation when living is a head of the strong temptation when living is a head of the strong temptation when living is a head of the strong temptation when living is a head of the strong temptation when living is a head of the strong temptation when living is a head of the strong temptation when living is a strong temptation when one understands in the strong temptation when the strong temptation

And here I am, six months after my graduation, without a dollar, without a patient, without a hope; my rent for this room due to-morrow, and not a dime with which to meet it, nor a prospect for earning one! Just such straits have made many an honest man a thief, a ruffian, a murderer—or a suicide! And I wonder what Miss Gordon would think now of the pitiable wretch who has had now of the pitiable wretch who has had thought and deed; and now I am going to the audacity in all his wretchedness to love her! Love! I to love! I, with starvation before me, or—this!" The young man lifted a small bottle of light powder and

"Even Cataline, in all his wretchedness, when his plans had failed and his hopes there was a thrilling happiness in the voice had left him, called it "the coward's that answered him. lift my own hand against it."

He paced back and forth in the small, bare room. On the door below a card in-formed the public that here could be found Carl Blau, physician and surgeon; and while Carl Blau waited for the public to while Cari Blau waited for the public to claim his skill, the public passed by and employed better known and older men. The hour was late; the fine form of our young physician showed graceful and athletic as he paced the narrow limits of his room; his blond head was bent, his arms crossed on his becom. He was thinking crossed on his bosom. He was thinking of his German home, his German friends, of his German home, his German Triends, the many fair hopes that had lured him across the ocean to seek fame and fortune in a strange land, among strangers; and he was also thinking of a woman's proud, beautiful face, which had charmed him strangely a month before; seen by him only as it passed him on the street; seen by him offers since and now; impressed a year. him often since, and now impressed upon his heart, unknown to the fair daughter of wealth and luxury, whose name he had discovered to be Miss Gordon. Are there many women who, like this fair aristocrat, win hearts to love them as they ride by, careless, in their carriages? Miss Gordon was an heiress and a belle; but no one of her admirers gave her the utter devotion the almost idolatry which was given her by this young German physician whose face she had never even looked on.

"The irony of it!" Carl thought bitterly; and then his musings were broken by a rapid tattoo on his door. Composing his features, he went and opened it.
"My friend," he said in his usual musi cal voice, to which clung a slight foreign accent, "is there need of so much waste of

with the man.
"Who is to be my patient?" he asked, as he locked his door and put the key in his pocket. His pulses bounded as he received the answer:

"George Gordon; he has had a fit, sir."
Then he found himself in a luxurious carriage and the man on the box was driving as for life. It scarcely seemed a moment later that he was following a servant along a wide hall on the marble floor of which his store ware softly the way. his steps rang softly; then up a stair-way, where the rich velvet beneath his feet where the rich verves beneath his feet hushed every sound of their fall and then he had entered a dimly-lighted spartment, where a woman, young, beautiful, grace-ful, bent over a white face, set and rigid, on the pillows of the couch that he approached. As he neared her, the woman turned and he found himself facing one whom he had learned to love-Miss Gordon, the heiress. Her beautiful face was white as death; her dark eyes were filled with a terrible fear; her delicate lips were tremulous with sorrow.

"You are a physician?"

He bent his head in silence, and gently put her aside while he made an examination of the patient. She watched him without seeming to breathe, so great was her anxiety; when he turned from the couch he again met those great, troubled because in the seeming to be a seeming to breather anxiety; when he turned from the couch he again met those great, troubled because in the seeming to be a seeming to breather and be a seeming to be a seem eyes, but the man was then merged in the physician, his pulses were calm and his

"He will live."

The papers sent forth an account of the severe illness of George Gordon; they told the public that only the skill of the young German physician, Carl Blau, had saved the life of the millionaire; and the press did more for the young man than the card on his door, for it toward the stream of on his door, for it turned the stream of public favor toward his dingy office and filled his time with the care of patients, and his book with aristocratic names: Mr. Gordon had made a friend of figure in the elegant mansion, and a pair of dark eyes began to light grandly at his coming, to become dreamy and soft in his absence; and George Gordon saw and did

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that as been achieved in modern science has bee attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh Out of 2000 patients treated during the pa six months, fully ninety per cent. have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is not cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the eas startling when it is remembered that not five per cent. of the patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissues, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination; this accomplished, the catarrh is practically cured, and the primanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure catarrh un this manner, and no other treatment has even sured catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favorable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on catarrh.—Montreal Star. 28

General Rooney Re-elected Chairman. All of the members of the Toronto separate school board were in their places at the inaugural meeting in their new quarters at the De La Salle institute last night except Trustee Harry Nolan. It was expected there would be some excitement over the election of a new chairman, but Rev. Vicar-General Rooney was re-chosen without lopp sition.
Archbishop Lynch was re-elected superintendent of schools, and Rev. Father Bergin secretary-treasurer, and John Hall assistant secretary. The following new members were introduced: Father Moyna, Dr. Cassidy, B. O'Byrne, Wm. Fraser, James Pape, J. W. Kennedy. Father Moyna, attached to St. Paul's parish and representing St. David's ward, is the youngest meming St. David's ward, is the youngest member of the board. He is a clever and rising young clergyman, and will prove an acquisition to the board. The only business transacted was the striking of the different standing committees as follows:

HUNTING IN MID-JANUARY

AN EVENT AT MONTREAL UNKNOWN FOR SIXTY YEARS.

Bull Terrier's Devotion to Her Young-Yearling Trotters-Particulars of the Greenfield-Sullivan Affair.

From the Montreal Times, Jan. 18. For the first time since the organization f the Montreal Hunt club in 1826, the members had an opportunity of riding out and making a kill on Jan, 12. The open and making a kill on Jan. 12. The open weather of the past two weeks induced Mr. Baumgarten, the master of the hunt, to try a ride across country, and yesterday the hounds met at the kennels. Henderson's cedars were first tried, but proved blank. The Nun's farm coverts were next drawn, where a find was immediately made; the scent was burning. The hounds ran breast high ever several miles of country to Kydd's earths, through the Serpentine valley, then back to Bennett's farm and on to Molson's, crossing the Beaver meadows back over the Serpentine, and killing in the open on Molson's farm. The country passed over was remarkably soft, little ice being met with.

The Sullivan-Greenfield Affair. When the champion came into the ring he looked dissipated, heavy-eyed and fat.

He was sober, however, and when he got upon his feet his agility was surprising. Greenfield was in prime condition and fully twenty pounds lighter than his antagonist. In the first round Sullivan led with his left and Greenfield soon tapped him on the chin with no return. Then there was an exchange of blows, ending in a clinch. Sullivan struck Greenfield on the jaw with his left, and the rest of the three minutes was spent in idleness. Sul-livan made the most points in the round, and sat down panting, while three men fanned him. Greenfield showed no signs In the second round the initiative wa f exertion.

In the second round the initiative was left to Sullivan throughout. The first sharp exchange of blows was in the champion's favor. The men clinched frequently, and the referee continually called upon them to break. Greenfield made a point on Sullivan's chest, and the champic rushed the Britisher to the ropes, whe they bugged each other. Greenfie reached Sullivan's nose lightly. Th clinched again, broke away, time was called, and the crowd hissed.

In the third round, after an exchange of blows, the champion struck Alf. on the neck, and the latter fell. It was not a clean knock down, for Greenfield slipped partially. Greenfield met another rush by Sullivan with a sharp neck blow. There was more hugging, and the men was more hugging, and the men laughed good naturedly at each other. The champion again ran Greenfield to the ropes, got in a heavy neck blow, and Greenfield clinched to save falling. Greenfield got a fair blow at the champion's right eve and time was balled. pion's right eye, and time was called.

The fourth round and wind up was much like the others. Most of the time the men imply faced each other and chattered he Englishman escaped most of the blows, When Sullivan made the most points. time was called the audience hissed.

In the whole engagement there was not three minutes of lively fighting. Greenfield waited the champion's pleasure, and simply endeavored to give a fair exchange for his blows. Sullivan made the most oints, and the referee awarded him the Greenfield at the close said to the crowd

"You have many good men in this country, but I never fought one who knowed to much or who hit so hard as Mr. Sul-

THE COMBAULT'S

Is undoubtedly the most valuable and reliable Veterinary Remedy ever discovered. It has superseded the Actual Cantery or hot iron; oduces more than four times the effect of a blister; takes the place of all liniments, and is the safest application ever used, as it is impossible to produce a scar or blemish with it. It is a powerful, active, reliable and safe remedy that can be manipulated at will for severe or mild effect. Thousands of the best Veterinarians and Horsemenhis country testify to its many wonderful cures and its great practical value. It is also the most economical remedy in use, as one tablespoonful of Caustic Balsam will produce more actual results than a whole bottle of any liniment or spavin cure mix ture ever made. Price $1.50. Sold by druggists, or sent, charges paid by LAWRENCE, WILLIAMS & CO., Sole orters and Proprietors, 21 Front Street West Toronto, Ont. None ger without it has our signature on the label
