WORK OF DR. REGINALD MORSE IN CHINA

Extracts from Letters Received from the Doctor, Telling of His Work in that Country.

Certainly time flies in West China, a week seems about a day. No doubt it is due to being very busy. At present my time is taken up thusly: Get up about 6 a.m., go to the hospital and see patients from 8 to 10; change dressings or operate. From 10 to 12.30 I am at the dispensary, where I see on the average about thirty a day. In afternoon I am again at Hospital for dressings or operations. There are many other things that have to be done, viz., making visits, attending confinements, overseeing workmen, and all the multitudinous duties connected with running a ranch in China, which have to be met and dealt with. But my mind is so full of Hospital work it is not easy to think of much else. In the two weeks since I have got the Hospital ready to be opened, I have had twenty-two patients. There are now twenty in the building. These are all surgical cases, many of them are pus cases, practically all, and many of them are too terrible to relate. I will tell you of one, which will give you an insight into many things Chinese. The other day a young chap of twenty was brought to the Hospital with a very bad leg. The smell was so offensive I could hardly stand it. I operated on him, and took from his leg (the lower half of the thigh) fully three or four cups of dead and decayed, splintered, and corded bone, leaving only in his leg a thin shaft of the femur and a small part of the head of that bone. He was so dreadfully poor and weak and infected that I fear for his life. What was the cause? Well, he and his friend, who were together, are traders and were returning on a boat with their purchases. On a certain place on the river, where the river guard (soldiers) are stationed, they were ordered to stop and land. The boatmen, either through lack of skill or more probably on account of the eddies and currents (for the Chinese river men are very skillful) could not or did not bring the boat to a stop just when they were ordered. Then the soldiers fired on them with the result that one man was shot through the thigh and the other badly wounded. The latter I attended and he is about his work again. The other chap is the one I spoke of operating on.

One can draw lessons from this instance and one other. A Chinese gentleman in conversation with me the other day, was speaking of opium and the efforts the Chinese are making to stop the traffic. He said in a number of Provinces they frequently shot those who were smokers. No doubt those who were killed were of the lower classes, but nevertheless that is a sample of their efforts to stamp out opium. Rather pointed, energetic and forcible and Chinese, don't you think?

We have, during the last year or more, passed through exceedingly trying times. I hope and pray we will not have such a combination again. The Revolution, our flight, sickness, anxiety, dangerous travelling, moving about twenty-three times to different places and a certain amount of danger as to our personal outcome,—all these are rather wearing to one's constitution to say the least. However, we didn't worry much, I assure you, except at the time Anna was ill at Kuling,—other matters were relatively small.

Well, we are back here now at Suifu, and we are happy too. So we will keep plugging away at what is very clearly our duty, and trust God will utilize our efforts to the advancement of His Kingdom. We have plans for much work, and if we are only spared our health and bodily and mental vigor, it will not be for lack of effort that we fail. We are very anxious to be overwhelmed with work. It is not easy to be patient, to be forced by this or that to wait,—delays are not pleasant to yours truly.

But one thing is sure, if my heart is as right as I pray for, my efforts will be accepted, even if futile from my own view point. It is a tremendous comfort to know that the home friends are with us in prayer and thought. That is a real help.

Just lately there has been an awful exhibition of Chinese Republican rulers. There were a number of lepers, for whose help some missionary was preparing a place. The Governor resented this, and had a pit dug and made all the lepers go in the hole, then ordered them shot, and oil poured on them and burned them. This is a true story all right, and was reported in the North China Daily News. One thing is sure, that Governor disinfects the lepers, very effectively, but his method was certainly drastic in the extreme.

It is now April 6, and very hot. The leaves are all out, and Easter lilies blooming in our little garden. This seems every prospect of a very hot summer.

Word comes from our mission station at Yachow, of a circumstance you may care to hear about. You know there are very stringent laws against the growing of opium and the sale of it. As a consequence the price of opium is very high. This is a temptation to deal secretly in the stuff. Well, Mrs. Salquist (one of our missionaries at Yachow) received several barrels on which was Mr. Wellwood's name. She of course, stored it on the mission property until she heard from him about it. In the meantime some of the natives informed her that they believed the barrels contained opium. They were opened and found to be filled top and bottom, with oranges, in the middle were stored packages of opium. (These chaps would make good apple packers as they used to be said to pack sometimes in Annapolis Valley) Mrs. Salquist informed the officials and the result was it was all publicly burned.

It is time now for the sweet May-flowers at home. Wish we could smell them, and the good old Nova Scotia air. (The "spicy breezes" of China are very pungent).

THE WEIGHT OF EGGS.

The largest eggs that reach the London market come from Denmark, and they have a better sale than the eggs of any other country. The French Chamber of Commerce in London, which has made a report concerning them, found that of the 2,700 cases of Danish eggs that arrived during the first week in April, 1912, 132 cases contained eggs that weighed nearly three ounces each, 272 contained eggs that weighed more than two and a half ounces each and 171 eggs that weighed more than two and a quarter ounces. The lightest Danish eggs weighed as much as the heaviest French eggs. Unfortunately, the report does not tell what breeds of hens laid the eggs. Some years ago the North Carolina Experiment Station recorded the weight of the eggs that several hens of well-known breeds laid during a period of six months. Light Brahams produced the largest eggs; they weighed on the average, two and a third ounces each. Eggs from Black Langshans and Barred Plymouth Rocks weighed two and one-sixth ounces each and eggs of the single-comb brown Leghorn, late-hatched Plymouth Rock, White Wyandotte and Buff Cochins, hens all weighed less than two ounces each.

Rev. Joel B. Slocum

Pastor of the Greenwood Baptist Church for six years, the Rev. Joel Byron Slocum recently accepted a call to become affiliated with the Central Baptist Church of Norwich, Conn. The latter institution is the strongest church in eastern Connecticut. It has an especially large number of men on its membership rolls and is heavily endowed. Mr. Slocum has accepted the invitation to preach the baccalaureate sermon at the commencement of one of the leading Eastern colleges next month.

Joel Byron Slocum was born at Mount Hanley, Nova Scotia, the son of Joel and Irene Huntington Slocum. He was educated in Colby College, graduating in 1893 with the degree of B. A. In 1897 he received the degree of A. M. He graduated from Newton Theological Institution in 1896. The following year he was married to Miss Jean Irene Bergland, a graduate of Knox College at Galesburg, Ill. Mrs. Slocum is a professional reader and was on the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences course last year.

Mr. Slocum has travelled extensively. He and Mrs. Slocum have visited Canada, Hawaii and Japan. Mr. Slocum was in Japan in 1899 as special correspondent of a Boston newspaper. He is a member of various organizations connected with the Baptist denomination and acted as president of the New York Baptist Ministers' Conference a few years ago. He was chaplain of the New Hampshire Legislature in 1901-02. He is a member of Delta Upsilon, I. O. O. F. and Scandinavian Lodge, No. 836 F. and A. M. He says he is a Republican with progressive ideas.

The divisions of Mr. Slocum are tennis, swimming, boating and walking. He has two children, Lorimer Bergland and Jameson Sadler Slocum.

An Act for the Protection of Trees

The following Act was passed on the 13th day of May, 1913, and is now in force:

1. Any person, firm, company or corporation who or that shall deface, mutilate or cut any tree or trees upon any highway, road, lane or street in any Municipality or Town, without first having obtained the consent in writing of the Warden of said Municipality or Mayor of said Town, shall upon summary conviction be liable to a penalty of not more than ten dollars for each and every tree so cut, mutilated or defaced, and in default of payment to imprisonment for ten days, and in either case the Act of any Company or Corporation, and no provision of any general Act empowering any city, town or municipality shall be construed to contravene the provisions of this Act.

The reasons why Maritime Nail 7 p.c. Pref. Stock is a good "buy"

FIRST: Unusually large assets. For every $100 of Preferred Stock there is $160 of tangible assets, not including amount covering outstanding bonds.

SECOND: Exceptional earning power. For the past seven years net earnings have averaged 39 p.c. upon capital.

THIRD: Common Stock Bonus. For every share of Preferred Stock at par you obtain a half share of Common Stock as a bonus. Independent appraisal of assets gives this a book value of nearly $60 a share.

Our circular contains further reasons and an illustration of the Maritime Nail Company's big plant at St. John. A postcard request will bring it.

Church Union Was Finally Disposed of

Toronto, June 11.—Church Union was finally disposed of by the General Assembly this afternoon, after a discussion characterized by a general air of impatience and irritability that at one time seemed to threaten destruction to the brotherly charity, with which in the main, the question had been discussed.

As the matter now stands, the report of the Committee on Union, with the addition of Dr. Christie's amendment as explained yesterday, is before the Presbyterian Church, with the addition that November 30, of this year, be fixed as the last date by which suggested amendments or alterations to the present proposed basis of Union can be received by the committee. This makes possible, though from the bitterness of some of the opponents to the Union, it does not seem probable, the submission of a final basis of Union agreed upon by the joint committee to the General Assembly of 1914, and which if approved by them will be adopted, or submitted to the people as the Assembly sees fit.

ORGANIC UNION.

At the opening of the afternoon session, the motion of Dr. Gordon, designed to make a straight issue of organic Union was spoken to by its mover. While not suggesting that the present schemes of co-operation with other bodies be given up, Dr. Gordon declared that the time for further proposals in the way of amendments or alterations to the present suggested basis of Union is past and that the matter should be placed before the people as a straight issue as to whether organic Union on these terms is now desired, or not. The advantage of this proposal, Dr. Gordon declared, lies in the fact that it gives a definite programme with the points of time clearly defined.

PARTING OF THE WAYS.

The motion was seconded by Rev. Dr. Ross of London, who with more real tact, put an end to all possibility of the motion by emphasizing the point that the church has come to the parting of the ways and that those who were unwilling to adopt the proposals of the majority had only one course open to them, namely, to step out.

A statement made by Dr. Gordon, that opponents of union had opposed the resolutions in the report, was corrected by Rev. Dr. Ramsay, who, while declaring his sympathy with the spirit of Dr. Gordon's amendment, did not feel that it would be treating fairly the many who had compromised on the present proposal to this railroad through such a radical proposal as that of Dr. Gordon's on the strength of the opinion of the Assembly expressed the day before.

The speaker also asked that Rev. Prof. Welsh, who was one of the number that met the union majority half-way, might be heard. He further declared the hope in his mind that the Union Committee, by setting a date for the reception of amendments and alteration to the basis of union, might be able to pass upon these and present a final basis agreement to the next Assembly, declaring that as soon as the amendments then before the Assembly had been disposed of he would move to fix the date November 30, of this year, and concluded by assuring the Assembly that it could trust its Union Committee.

Letter from Mr. E. H. Porter, Now of Bloomfield, N. J.

"We are having beautiful weather and indeed that has been the rule since I came here. This is a very pretty little city situated in the higher lands of New Jersey, eleven miles from New York and has two railroads passing through connecting with that city, (the Erie and Delaware & Lackawanna). So we have very frequent trains. Every few minutes a trolley connects with Newark, a large and growing city near us. I spend about two days in New York and one in Newark each week, taking in various points of interest. Visited New York Herald building and saw them printing the small magazine that is circulated with the Sunday Herald. It is printed, folded and cut as fast as the men can clear it away, as it falls from the press completed. If you had that kind of plant for the Monitor Office I have no doubt all Bridgetown would gather about the premises to see the issue struck off.

With my best wishes, Yours sincerely, E. H. PORTER.

JUNE TERM OF THE SUPREME COURT

Presentation of Address to His Honor Mr. Justice Ritchie—Large Docket—Trial of the Graves Brothers.

The June term of the Supreme Court opened in the Court House here yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. His Honor, Mr. Justice Ritchie, presiding.

The following members of the bar were present:

J. Irvin, K. C., E. Ruggles, K. C., W. E. Roscoe, K. C., H. H. Wickwire, K. C., J. M. Owen, W. G. Parsons, F. Jones, F. W. Harris, A. L. Davidson, Mr. McLean, Daniel Owen, Albert Morse, O. S. Miller, H. Ruggles, B. W. Roscoe, Chas. R. Chipman.

This being Judge Ritchie's first appearance here since his promotion to the Bench, and in accordance with the usual custom, an address was presented on behalf of the members of the Bar, by Mr. Edwin Ruggles, K. C. A very beautiful bouquet of flowers adorned the Judge's desk, a presentation from the ladies of the town. The following is the address:

To the Honorable Mr. Justice Ritchie of the Supreme Court of N. S.

We, the High Sheriff of the County of Annapolis, the Grand Jurors now assembled, and the members of the Bar, at the opening of this court at which you judicially preside, desire to express to you our hearty and sincere congratulations upon your well merited elevation to the Bench. You have been raised to a position which has been filled by a long line of distinguished and eminent jurists, and we are sure that the traditions of the Bench will be preserved, the rights of the public enforced, and the legitimate interests of the profession conserved, by your Lordship.

We, your fellow citizens and fellow practitioners of this county, felt and feel especially that you should have been the recipient of this gift of the Crown, and we feel that we may be permitted not merely to offer you our felicitations and good wishes for a successful career as one of His Majesty's judges, but also that we may be privileged on this occasion to recall the many associations of the past, and to wish you many years enjoyment of the rude vigor of health for the discharge of your judicial duties, so auspiciously begun.

REPLY OF JUDGE RITCHIE.

Members of the Bar and Gentlemen of the Jury appointed for this Supreme Court:

It is customary when a man is called from the Bar to the Bench that he should receive congratulations upon his first judicial visit to the County. I have received a number of such congratulations and heretofore I have regarded them as purely formal, but here in the Town of Bridgetown and in the County of Annapolis, it is altogether different, because this is my native county. It is, as Mr. Ruggles has stated, the county where my boyhood days were spent, and where I have enjoyed some of my most successful practice. It is, therefore, different from the ordinary formal address which one receives. I must thank you sincerely for the address which has been read to me, and the remarks made by Mr. Ruggles on your behalf. I accept these congratulations from you as sincere and without formality. I am deeply impressed with the judicial office imposed upon me and it is my desire that I should ever hold to the scales of justice. I think I am safe in saying that I have had the good fortune in the past to be on friendly terms with the members of the Bar in this province, and more particularly with the members of the Bar in this circuit with whom I have been so long associated and I trust my promotion to the Bench will in no wise lessen the kindly regard which I have always received in the past. You have remarked, Mr. Ruggles, on the gracious presence of the ladies here this morning, and I may say that their presence only enhances to me the pleasure with which I receive your address.

The only case brought before the Grand Jury was that of The King vs. Durling. This was a charge against Durling for harboring a prisoner escaping from justice, and also for perjury. The Jury failed to find sufficient evidence to bring the case to trial and "no bill" was found. J. Irvin, K. C., prosecuted, and O. S. Miller defended.

The case of The King vs. the Graves brothers was the first case to be brought before the petit jury, and this case is now in progress. The Court room was packed all day yesterday with those eager to hear this case tried.

The docket of civil causes is very large. Judge Ritchie gave notice that at the close of the Friday afternoon session the Court would adjourn until Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. The following is the Docket:

Miss Elsie McPherson left for her home in Lawrencetown, N. S., on Thursday. Twenty of her friends gave her a linen shower on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. George Perron. Refreshments of cake and ice cream were served and the evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. We shall all miss Miss McPherson very much as she has been a very willing and active worker in the church during the year and a half that she has made her home with Mrs. Florence Stone. The best wishes of her many friends go with her.—Athol Church Record.

The bright, beautiful days of the past week have been much appreciated by all, but practically by those interested in the Western Association of the United Baptist church, convening here.

The town is looking its loveliest just now, the graceful elms adding not a little to the attractiveness of one of the most beautiful spots in the fair Annapolis Valley. Delegates from the forty-nine churches in the Association commenced to come in Wednesday, and by Friday more than two hundred had registered. There were many visitors from these churches as well. There were from thirty to thirty-five clergymen in attendance during the entire session, and the general opinion is expressed that it is the best Association in many years. The program as printed was carried out, each speaker being present.

It would be a difficult matter to say what service was the best, as each one was replete with interest, but several subjects were treated which heretofore had not received much attention, viz. "The White Slave Traffic" by Rev. Mr. Knott, of Mahone Bay. Startling statistics and an earnest address were listened to with the closest attention.

"The Western Mission" by Rev. Neil Herman was a trumpet call to arms in the defence and safeguarding of our men and women on the frontier and the Plains.

"Home Missions" by Rev. I. Porter, brought to us the many about our own localities whom we might help, if we would. One sentence, "If you don't care for them, Dorchester will," remains distinctly in one's mind.

"Foreign Missions" by Dr. Brown, of Toronto, the general secretary of the United Canadian Baptist Mission was a stirring, optimistic address, filled to overflowing with facts and statements of the responsibilities we have undertaken.

"Acadia University" by Rev. Mr. Spidel, aroused a great enthusiasm for this well equipped institution.

"Our Young People," by Rev. S. S. Poole, made a profound impression, and we can but wonder why more interest is not taken in our growing sons and daughters.

The Women's Meeting, representing U. B. W. M. A. Societies, was an undoubted success, the church being filled to overflowing. Reports from the various societies showed progress all along the way. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. G. Pearson of Paradise, Provincial Secretary, and she introduced the various speakers in a charming manner. Mrs. Manning, editor of the "Things," and for many years Provincial President, was warmly welcomed and her short address on medical missions closely followed.

The Association Sermon was preached by Rev. A. J. McLeod of Chester. The subject matter was presented clearly and eloquently and listened to by a magnificent audience.

Overflow meetings in the morning and evening of Sunday were held in the Methodist church and addressed by one of the ministers in attendance.

The services were greatly enhanced by the music rendered by the choir, under the direction of Prof. Morse.

The solos, duets and quartettes were much appreciated as was the choir singing, also the congregational singing of Sunday afternoon under the leadership of N. H. Phinney, Esq.

Now every part of the program cannot be mentioned in this short space, but each part was helpful and fitted exactly the time and subject.

The next Association meets at Springfield.

The generous and courteous hospitality received was very generally commented on by delegates.

EDISON AND THE PHONOGRAPH.

Long before Thomas A. Edison had become widely famous, in other words when in 1877 he was engaged in developing and improving the telephone which has since borne his name, when he noticed that in the transmitter the voice was directed against the face of the disk the vibrations would cause the pin attached to prick his fingers or indent any soft substance held near it. He stored this fact away in his mind, but it suggested nothing of special interest to him. Even before that time he had perfected an invention for the automatic repetition of telegraph messages, consisting of an apparatus by means of which the dots and dashes of the original message were recorded in a series of indentations on the strip of paper which afterwards could be fed into a sending machine, and thus the famous inventor recorded another link unconnected, but important. An assistant of Edison, in speaking about the talking machine, once said: "I remember that Edison had been working at his bench in the laboratory nearly all day, silent for the most part. Quite suddenly he jumped up and said with some excitement, 'I can make a talking machine!' Then he sat down again and drew the designs of his proposed machine on a slip of yellow paper. I don't think it took above ten minutes altogether." A model of this machine was made within thirty-six hours at a cost of eight dollars.

It was fitted with tin foil, and Mr. Edison, turning the handle, spoke into the mouthpiece the nursery rhyme beginning "Mary had a little lamb." Then he set the recorder back to the starting place and again turned the cylinder. To the astonishment and even awe of everybody, the machine began to repeat in a curious, metallic, but distinct voice, "Mary had a little lamb."—The American Exporter.

THE CALL OF DUTY.

When the last whiskey bottle comes off the medicine chest, when the last blind pig has died a natural death, when the last saloons closed, when the last church member has signed a dramshop petition, when the last boy has quit drinking beer, when the last doctor has quit writing whiskey prescriptions, then the temperance people can afford to fold their arms and sit down to rest. Until then they had better be up and doing.—Riverband News.

The Gipsy and His Way of Living

Interesting Story Written by Gipsy Simon Smith, the Celebrated Evangelist.

Real Romances or Gipsies, are very scarce in this country and most of the people who travel and post as Gipsies here are either tramps or hybrids the result of intermarriage of the real Gipsy with other races. Gipsies are very numerous in England, but it is necessary to have a guide if the visitor would like to see them in their favorite haunts. Of late years, law, order and sanitary conditions have driven the Romany into secluded nooks and forest dingles. In such places can be seen the oval roofed caravan, quite unlike the palatial conveyances of would-be imitators or show people. Here also can be found the tents, which reminds one of that vast throng of people, the Israelites, who lived the gipsy life and were tent dwellers. In the camp the elder gipsies can be heard speaking in a strange tongue, for the real gipsy speaks the Romany language, and the parents hearts are sad today because their off-spring prefer speaking in English. Round "Zog" or fire, which generally contains a stew of rabbits and vegetables, culled from the neighboring fields, the "shavvies" or children anxiously wait, while a dog of the greyhound specie also waits expectantly to be rewarded for bringing his contribution to the family larder. On the bushes hangs the family washing, while browsing on the coarse grass so familiar to English common land, a few horses and donkeys may be seen. All these things make an interesting picture of primitive life. Some people have rather peculiar ideas concerning gipsies. First of all let me say that all gipsies are not dark. As I visit the various camps during mission work I find hundreds of fair gipsies. Originally the gipsies were an Eastern people but like other people they have turned their feet westward, and climate with other causes may have altered them considerably. My father was a thoroughbred gipsy, but quite fair. So we find with the Jews the two extremes, very dark or very fair. In the old days intermarriage with "Gorgois house-dwellers, meant expulsion for the offender from the tribe.

The Romany girl is betrothed at the age of fourteen, but at least two years must elapse ere marriage shall take place. This is not a time of courtship, the betrothed pair must treat each other as ordinary acquaintances or the match is broken off. The marriage would usually take place in a secluded forest glen. A long hazel branch is brought, and the pair step over the branch, and are then acclaimed "rawgy" and "rye," which means man and wife. Superstition lies deep in the heart of the gipsies, and by the stars they forecast many happenings. When the head of the tribe dies, the caravan, clothes, etc. are burned and the ashes scattered over the grave. Very few of them can read or write, and during this summer I shall procure a caravan so that I can visit and instruct them.

WHAT GOOD IS IT?

This question is pronounced in Popular Mechanics by a licensed air pilot who doubts the utility of the aeroplane. He says: "It is my good fortune to have piloted machines that are the very last word in French construction, yet aside from the finish, they are absolutely no improvement over the old birds that made records and whizzed at the first Rheims meets. That the French machines are superior to their contemporaries is shown, by their recent performances at Chicago, yet on them the vital problem of stability is as far from solution as ever."

Kidneys Wrong?

If they are you are in danger. When through weakness or disease the kidneys fail to filter the impurities from the blood, trouble comes at once. Backache, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gravel, Diabetes, Gall Stones and the deadly Bright's Disease are some of the results of neglected kidneys. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills contain a most effective diuretic which strengthens and stimulates the kidneys so that they do their work thoroughly and well. Try Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

Assembly Declares War on the Liquor Traffic

Toronto, June 5.—At the close of the Presbyterian Pre-assembly conference yesterday afternoon, a resolution calling for a demonstration act to prohibit the manufacture, importation and sale of intoxicating liquors was carried with great enthusiasm. It was presented by Dr. A. S. Grant.

Dr. Grant is not given to emotion, but there was a glint of moisture in his eye as he spoke to the audience. "God will not save Canada," he said, "until Christian men look to liquor traffic and say: 'Get off the mat. My soul is pained within me because the young men are going down. I want the congress of this church to give an expression on the drink question. I am looking for vengeance, and I want it.'" said he, amid a torrent of applause. He appreciated all the talk about the budget when it came before the assembly committee. The Presbyterian church has committed itself in theory, but you are afraid to take your stand, you are afraid of the vested interests. What right has a British man to deal out poison to people in this country? He asked, amid a frantic outburst of cheering. Cut out this business and you cut out the nerve of the evil that is demoralizing the land. If you are going to build up the kingdom of God in Canada, we must root it out."

The enthusiasm broke loose right here. Men got upon their seats and yelled, women and men waved their handkerchiefs, and the place was pandemonium for some minutes. "Hurrah," came from a score of voices, and then Dr. Grant read the resolution. Quietly and with a dignity of his own this strange man who has consecrated his life to doing good for others, read the following resolution.

1.—Whereas, recently scientific investigation has revealed that alcohol is a poison, and injurious to life, even when taken in small quantities; and, 2.—Whereas, the liquor traffic has become a great economic burden; and, 3.—Whereas, the enemy of all social progress, and the cause of much social crime, and death; and, 4.—Whereas, the highest development of individual and national life demands the suppression of the liquor traffic, and, 5.—Whereas, the progress of the kingdom of God is greatly hindered through the traffic in intoxicating liquors:

"Be it therefore resolved,— 1.—That in the opinion of this congress, consisting of all the ministers and representative laymen from all the congregations of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, the time has come when legislation should be secured in Canada, prohibiting the manufacture, importation and sale of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes. 2.—That this resolution be forwarded to the general assembly for action. 3.—That it be a suggestion to the assembly to invite all other religious bodies and temperance organizations to co-operate in a work having for its object the total suppression of the liquor traffic in Canada."

College Unity Means a New Race of Ministers

Speaking to the "Witness" a leading Anglican clergyman prominently identified with the co-operative work of the theological colleges, said recently that no greater step could be taken in practical church unity than this getting together in education. In less than one generation a new race of ministers would be put into the pulpits of all the denominations, minor differences all forgotten and everyone alike, no matter what his confession of faith, aflame with zeal to win the world for Christianity. The vision was so magnificent, that we could not at present realize, all it meant for the future of the Dominion.

"Canada as one of the great countries of the Christian faith is the ideal to be set before our men as they go from our colleges, he said. Christianity has a message to work in every land, and tends to respond as they rise in the scale of civilization; it has proved its power to enter into lives of various nations, and to adapt itself to their circumstances and guide their aspirations. A religion which identifies itself, as Christianity goes, with the cause of freedom in every land, and tends to write men in one great brotherhood under the loving God who is the Father of all alike, is surely the desire of all nations, and is destined to be the faith of all mankind. Canada should be a great power in this Christian brotherhood of the nations."

Dr. T. G. Soares, senior professor in practical theology in the university of Chicago, writes— "I consider the co-operative plan adopted by the Theological Colleges in affiliation with McGill University as one of the most significant movements towards practical church unity. It accepts the religious situation as it is, finds the essential elements of unity that exist in it, brings these to the fore and makes them operative, and yet leaves to each communion its unrestricted independence. It is the best example of the elimination of wasteful effort in theological education that has been made anywhere in the Christian world."

"The training of the ministry for the modern church cannot be effected in small monastic institutions. It requires the breadth of scientific learning of the University, actual contact with the complex social conditions of modern life, and a corps of scientific experts of the first rank in the various subjects of theology, in the psychology of religion and in practical methods of church and social work."

"No single Theological College, unless extraordinarily endowed and most widely attended, could hope to undertake this task. The two or three Theological Seminaries in the United States which are measuring up to these modern needs are practically un denominational and are all connected with universities. An even better plan than the un denominational seminary is the Montreal plan of co-operation because it conserves the vital connection with the various communions and prepares men for the specific duties of their respective churches.— Montreal Daily Witness.

THRONE FOR TEDDY.

Vienna, May 30.—Great difficulty is being experienced in finding an occupant for the Throne of the new Kingdom of Albania, which is being created out of territory won by the Balkan league from Turkey. The Italian Government today dodged formal objections against the Duke of Urach, extinguishing his kingly hopes, just as it had put the quietus on the Royal Ambitions of the Duke of Montpensir several weeks ago.

Although the proposition that the throne be offered to Theodore Roosevelt was made in jest recently, some of the European newspapers have begun to consider it seriously.

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians

Get Your Work Done One-Third

A decrease of labor with no diminution of income, but with general improvement of results, is a combination which appeals to any one. Labor-saving machinery and thoroughly efficient machines might just as well be used by dairy farmers as by any manufacturer. So the questions come: Have we efficient cows? Do they save or make work? Are they so good that they decrease both comparatively and actually the necessary amount of labour in keeping cows, and at the same time increase the income? Every dairy farmer needs to answer such questions as applied to his herd, and he can answer them satisfactorily when he keeps dairy records.

A statement made by the Dairy Division, Ottawa, regarding Ontario cows last year, was that dairymen are keeping sixteen cows to do the work of ten. So it is quite possible to cut down work one-third, and rejoice because possessing more efficient cows. To the scrap-heap with the old junk!

A Quebec dairyman after one year of cow testing writes the Dairy Division that he now gets as much milk from his thirty-two selected cows as he used to get from his larger herd of forty-two cows. Ten inefficient were heeded. Dairy farmers have not time to waste working for poor cows so make sure that each one pays.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 18, 1913.

—The Annual Report for 1913 of the Fruit Growers' Association of Nova Scotia is a neat pamphlet of one hundred and forty-four pages, containing information respecting the personnel of the Association, its aims and objects, the enemies with which the fruit growers have to contend and the best methods of conquering them,
the fertilization of the orchards, the packing, the marketing of the fruit,
the prices obtained, the benefits of co-operation, and much else which must prove to be of the greatest value to those who are engaged in the business of fruit growing.

The growth of the business will be first seen by the remarks made by the President in his address at the meeting in Middleton in January last.
"Twenty years ago the apple industry was in its infancy. We were exporting 50,000 to 100,000 barrels annually. The orchard was a side line of the general farmer. Clean cultivation and cover crops were a myth,
spraying was practically unknown.
Opportunities for education in fruit-farming were entirely lacking. Today we are facing a crop of two millions of barrels annually and five millions in the near future. Indeed,
Mr. W. H. Chase, perhaps the best commercial authority in the Province
predicts a crop of five million barrels in five years. Our growers, educated in best methods, equipped with up-to-date machinery, united and determined, realizing that with us it applies or nothing, are pushing Annapolis Valley apples into all the markets of the world."

Membership in the Association can be secured by an annual payment of one dollar, and this, if we are not misinformed, includes also "The Maritime Farmer" for one year.
The fruit grower, especially the apple-grower, who fails to secure the information on all the features of his business, contained in the report does himself an injustice. He proves thereby that he is not fully awake to his best opportunities. No where else will he find in so small a compass so much that he really needs to know in order to his greatest success.

—President Wilson has given a deservedly hard blow to Lobbyism. We send men to our legislative halls to plan and provide laws and enactments for the general welfare. And, then we allow persons, who have axes
of their own to grind, to buttonhole and tease them and endeavor to influence them to do what may be for the material profit of the individual,
but, what they know will be a burden and injury to the many. The influence is sometimes of a very tangible kind.
It is no wonder, for legislators are but men,—that such influence occasionally produces results at variance with law and conscience. Nor is it any wonder that legislators should sometimes say, "Every man has his price." For a Society or a body of men properly organized, or for individuals to present their views to legislators on public matters by document or reputation and personal interview may be altogether right and even desirable for the public good.
But, the pressing of private ambitions, accompanied as it frequently is by an open or covert bribe is demor-alizing and subversive of the aims and ends of right legislation.

Some years since, a friend of ours who had had a creditable career as a legislator, was raised to a Judgeship
in the Supreme Court of his native Province. We wrote congratulating him on his merited appointment. In his reply he said, "It is a great comfort for a man to be in a position where there is absolutely no temptation to do anything but what his conscience tells him is all right. It may not be as good a discipline as the political arena, but it is certainly much easier." We can easily read between these lines the experiences and feelings of many a worried legislator.

THE BRIDGE BUILDER.

An old man going a lone highway,
Came at the evening cold and gray
To a chasm vast and deep and wide.
The old man crossed in the twilight
dim,
The sullen stream had no fear for him
But he turned when safe on the other side,
And built a bridge to span the tide.
"Old man," said a fellow pilgrim near,
"You are wasting your strength with
building here;
Your journey will end with the ending
day,
You never again will pass this way;
You have crossed the chasm deep and wide,
Why build you this bridge at evening
tide?"

The builder lifted his old gray head,
"Good friend, in the path I have come," he said,
"There followeth after me today
A youth whose feet must pass this way.
This chasm that has been as naught
to me
To that fair-haired youth may a pitfall be;
He, too, must cross in the twilight
dim—
Good friend, I am building this bridge for him." —Selected.

—The "turkey trot," "tango," "the bunny hug" and other similar absurdities which have been furnishing such choice bits of society gossip are deservedly meeting with difficulties.
The New York Grand Jury recently presented to the presiding Judge a strong indictment of them, charging them with ministering directly to gross immorality.

Perhaps this would not of itself prove a sufficient deterrent to those who lend their presence and influence to these fashionable practices. But, the doctors are adding their testimony by attributing to them a list of physical troubles arising from the unnatural postures they necessitate.

And Queen Mary, learning that some London hostesses were introducing these so-called amusements into their drawing rooms, has pronounced against them, and created a fear lest those who participate in them will be excluded from the much coveted invitations to the functions of the Court. No doubt this last will be felt to be "the most unkindest cut of all."

—The merchants of the neighboring towns, Annapolis and Digby, have agreed to fall into line with other Provincial towns, in closing their places of business on Friday of each week at 1 p.m. during the months of June, July and August, beginning on the 13th inst. What do the Bridgetown merchants think about joining the procession? Would it not be good for them as well as the clerks to enjoy this half-holiday once a week? Once made the announcement, it will be speedily circulated, and the interference with the volume of the week's business would be practically nil. Try it, anyway, for a month and see how it works.

RAPID INCREASE IN VALUE
THROUGH TIMBER SCARCITY.

With the increasing inaccessibility of the forests and the consequent high price of wood, the small wooded areas common on the farms of eastern Canada are also increasing in economic value. They frequently occupy soils unfitted for agriculture and with a little care can be made to furnish the farmer with a continuous revenue in fuel, fence-posts, rails, poles and structural timber.

Unfortunately these wood-lots are frequently allowed to deteriorate through carelessness or lack of knowledge on the part of the farmer.
He takes great care to farm his agricultural lands to the best advantage, but often fails to realize that by farming his wood-lot with the same care, he could get the same increase in productiveness. Cattle and weeds are not permitted in a wood-lot, yet in the wood lot the cattle range at will, and instead of removing the weed-trees the farmer allows these to increase in number, removing only the trees best suited to his purpose.

To save the farmer from himself,
the Dominion Government has appointed a technical forester with head-quarters at the Forestry Branch Ottawa, whose principal duty is to answer all inquiries, and give free advice on these matters. If necessary arrangements can be made for a personal inspection of woodland, it being assumed that he who is anxious for advice will accept it when given.
The expert looks over the stand, determines what species of trees are best suited to the soil and to the local market, shows how to improve the character of the crop and its rate of growth by proper thinning, and, if desired, gives advice regarding tree planting, hardwood-coppicing, felling methods and the most profitable sizes to be grown.
Further information on this subject can be obtained by writing to the Forestry Branch, Ottawa.

A. M. KING & SON
Annapolis Royal, N. S.

That the most skillful mechanic could construct a pair of artificial limbs for a person who has had both limbs amputated above the knee, put them on that person and have them walk in a natural manner for a distance of several hundred feet, seems almost beyond belief and quite incredible. This, however, is an actual and accomplished fact.

No doubt our readers will remember
the sad case of Miss Kate DeYoung, a deaf mute, who, while walking to her work at Clayton and Sons, one morning about seven years ago, was accidentally struck by a tram car, crushing both legs so badly that they had to be amputated several inches above the knees. Some will also recollect the kindly financial assistance that was given her and the part The Herald and The Mail took in collecting a goodly amount of cash for her maintenance. Miss DeYoung has now been successfully fitted with artificial limbs.

Some months ago the attention of those interested in Miss DeYoung, was called to the fact of a small artificial limb factory being operated by C. S. Chesley at Mount Denison, Hants County, whose work was very highly spoken of. Upon thorough enquiry, those in charge of the case felt warranted in making a contract with Mr. Chesley to supply a pair of suitable limbs for Miss DeYoung, the result being as above stated.

As a business man of high integrity, as a thorough mechanic in his most difficult and technical calling,
and as a home industry that is outclassing the famous American manufacturers, we would bespeak for Mr.
Chesley a goodly share of patronage.
Mr. Chesley is certainly to be congratulated on the success he has achieved with this most difficult and apparently impossible case.

(Mr. Chesley is a former Annapolis
County boy, a son of the late Phineas
L. Chesley, of Granville.—Ed. Mon.)

PRACTICALLY GIVEN UP TO DIE

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Kidneys and Bladder

WILLIAMSTOWN, ONT., JULY 27th, 1910

"I have much pleasure in testifying to the almost marvellous benefit I have derived from taking 'Fruit-a-tives'. I was a lifelong sufferer from Chronic Constipation, and the only medicine I ever secured to do me any real good was 'Fruit-a-tives'. This medicine cured me when everything else failed. Also, last spring, I had a severe attack of Bladder Trouble coupled with Kidney Trouble, and 'Fruit-a-tives' cured these complaints for me, when the physicians attending me had practically given me up.

I am now over eighty years of age and I can strongly recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' for Chronic Constipation and Bladder and Kidney Troubles."

JAMES DINGWALL.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices—and is the greatest kidney, bladder and liver medicine ever put on the market.

See a box, 6 for $2.50 trial size, 25c. At dealers or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

TEN COMMANDMENTS

First: Thou shalt not wait for something to turn up, but thou shalt pull off thy coat and go to work that thou mayest prosper in thy affairs and make the word "failure" spell "success."

Second: Thou shalt not be content to go about thy business looking like a bum for thou shouldst know that thy personal appearance is better than a letter of recommendation.

Third: Thou shalt not try to make excuses, nor shalt thou say to those who chide thee, "I didn't think."

Fourth: Thou shalt not wait to be told what thou shalt do, nor in what manner thou shalt do it, for thus may thy days be long on the job which fortune has given thee.

Fifth: Thou shalt not fail to maintain thine own integrity, nor shalt thou be guilty of anything that will lessen thy good respect for thyself.

Sixth: Thou shalt not covet the other fellow's job, nor his salary, nor the position that he has gained by his own labor.

Seventh: Thou shalt not fail to live within thine income, nor shalt thou contract any debts when thou canst see thy way clear to pay them.

Eighth: Thou shalt not be afraid to blow thine own horn, for he who fail-eth to blow his own horn at the proper occasion findeth nobody standing by to blow it for him.

Ninth: Thou shalt not hesitate to say "No" when thou meanest "No," nor shalt thou falter to remember that there are times when it is unsafe to bind thyself to hasty judgment.

Tenth: Thou shalt give every man a square deal. This is the last and greatest commandment, and there is no other like unto it. Upon this commandment hangs all the law and the profits of the business world.

PITFALLS OF THE AIR.

The apparently calm atmosphere above abounds with air pockets, wind eddies and treacherous gusts ever ready to toss the unwary airman and his machine to earth.

At the cost of many valuable lives a number of these death traps set by Nature have been discovered, but although the experienced airman knows they are there he is never really certain of emerging unscathed from such encounters.

One of the best known and most dreaded air traps is the air pocket, "remous," as it is called in flying parlance. This is a kind of hole in the air of irregular shape, which renders no support to the wings of an aeroplane, neither can propeller blades "grip" in those portions of the atmosphere.

These pockets are often found over wooded country or in valleys surrounded by irregular ranges of hills. But they are mainly formed by the sun shining on damp ground. The head of the solar rays draws the moisture from the ground and dots the atmosphere around with patches of vacuum. This is why airman always flight shy of flying in bright sunlight.

Airmen are always nervous of flying low over wooded country, although a low altitude is often necessary if landmarks are to be picked out and the proper flying route taken. For trees have a dangerous knack of throwing off treacherous currents which may easily spell disaster to the airman.

A breeze near the ground, as it strikes the tree branches is directed straight up through the air. The airman flying low over the tree catches this upward current under one of his wings, which pushes the machine over at a dangerous angle, and the inevitable side slip intervenes. The one great precaution against air currents of this description is high speed, which gives the aeroplane sufficient stability to withstand diverse currents of this kind.

For similar reason, no aviator, unless forced to do so, will fly low over a congested city. The uprising smoke from the chimneys, especially tall factory shafts, send up powerful currents of air, which are certain to wreck his machine should they strike it unawares.

The skillful airman can now fly his machine in high winds thirty to forty miles an hour with amazing ease, but the danger of such flying is that once let a strong wind get behind the aeroplane, then trouble is pretty certain to come. It requires airmanship of the highest merit to turn an aeroplane when the wind is blowing hard in its wake, for as the machine swings round the wind catches it broadside on and robs it of the speed necessary for stability.

The aviator who is caught by a strong wind in this way is in a sorry plight. Without big risk he cannot land with the wind behind him, as the speed at which he would hit the ground would probably cause the machine to stand on its head.

The only thing to do in such circumstances is to turn in a circle several miles in circumference, by slowly edging the machine round till it can land in the teeth of the gale.

Even the most expert aviator has an attack of "cold feet"—the name given to nervousness in flying circles—when making a sharp right-hand turn in the air. A machine when turning to the left travels with the whirling blades of the propeller, but when swinging round in the opposite direction the whole force of the propeller blades are up against it. The result is that the tail of the machine drops in alarming fashion, and, unless the aeroplane is a fast one, it is likely to slide downward to the earth tail first.—Philadelphia Public Ledger

A RASPBERRY-STRAWBERRY.

The Canadian Horticulturist says:—Eight years ago Mr. J. E. Hopkins, of 35 Kippendavie Avenue, Toronto, started an attempt to produce a fruit that would combine the desirable qualities of the raspberry and strawberry. For two years he worked and there was very little to show for it, but at the end of four years there was a little bloom and the plant began to assume the shape of a bush. At six years the bloom again appeared, and a small, half-matured fruit appeared, but never developed or ripened.

Last year, about August 1st, the fruit began to appear plentifully and hung in great clusters on the bushes, and later matured and ripened.

The bushes are about eighteen inches in height. The branches have thorns similar to the common garden raspberry, but the bushes are unlike the raspberry, as they have branches more like a tree. The leaf resembles the strawberry leaf, except for a deeper marking where the veins are and probably a little greater length than the strawberry leaf.

At first sight the fruit looks like overgrown raspberries, but it has not the number of seeds that there is in the raspberry. The outside of the berry is smoother than the raspberry and the color is more of a brilliant red. The flavor is a mixture of both the raspberry and the strawberry, and the shape of the fruit is something like that of the raspberry. Mr. Hopkins has several hundred plants, and already has been offered a considerable sum for them.

WIT AND THEOLOGY

Rev. Daniel Strachan, of Toronto, an eminent Presbyterian divine, was given an honorary degree at Queen's University recently. Though Dr. Strachan is not noted for his sprightliness in the pulpit, he "brought down the house" at convocation by one remark.

"I am deeply grateful for this honor," he said. "I am personally grateful because it is one of the few things which a man gets in life which he is not compelled to take home and turn over to his wife."

Dr. Strachan also told a good story of examinations, referring to "those subjects which we could write most about because we knew least." He said he was one day talking to a distinguished professor and examiner at Queen's about a certain student. The professor said that this student had written a very voluminous paper on a certain subject. "But," he added "if he had had another half hour to write he would certainly have plucked himself."—Canadian Courier.

PRACTICAL IDEALS.

I wonder how many of us live up to our ideals. For surely it is the exception when one of us has none!

Of course we all know that we must go either up or down, we cannot stay at a stand-still. But how many of us ever think of whether we are going up or down? And how many of us care?

Let's stop a moment and think—ideals are lovely things, wonderful things—I don't mean illusions, that could never be realized, but everyday practical work-a-day ideals, such as are well within the reach of any of us.

Which ever way we look we come across them—ideals of orderliness, ideals of honesty, ideals of truthfulness, ideals of dress; of habit, of speech, of thought, of conduct, of spirit, of work, of recreation, of example to others—all the little and big things we pause to think about in our better moments, when we have time to think at all. Do we live up to them?

We haven't time? Oh, but we have! Does it take more time to hang up a garment than to throw it down and to pick it up afterwards? It surely takes twice the time to do the latter. Does it take less time to throw a newspaper on the floor than into the waste-basket? Does it take more time to be truthful than to tell a lie? We know that truth is short and to the point and lying ever evasive. Does it take more time to keep one's clothes neat and well mended? "A stitch in time saves nine," and is less expensive. Do not bad habits waste time, and youth and money? Is not simplicity of speech more lucid, and can one not explain using good English than when using slang? Does it not take a longer time to perpetrate a black thought than to plan a good deed? And does it not take longer to carry out a plan for evil than an action for good? Does it take any more time to go to the bank than to go to a candy store? Does poor work take a shorter time than good work? Does a short recreation take longer than carrying out the doctor's orders? Isn't it quicker, in the long run, to set a good example than to set a bad one?

On the whole aren't practical ideals worth while?

I think I know why so few of us live up to our ideals. It seems so much easier not to. We go on living in a haphazard fashion, drifting with the tide, up on a wave of splendid purpose one day and down near the undertow the next—what an aimless, aimless existence.

What, oh, You of the unlied ideals what are you going to do with your life? Do you think it was given to you to waste—to throw away? Do you think the Supreme Being placed you here in the same haphazard fashion, to be tossed about by every breeze—to rise and fall with the swirl of the tide of life? Surely, surely you are not so small as to think that! Every big thought, every high ideal, every wish for better things, was placed in your heart with a purpose—for no useless thing was ever put into this universe. Let's think about it.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

To thread a needle with woolen thread of zephyr, thread it first with a white strand of white cotton doubled, then catch the woolen thread through the loop in the doubled end of the cotton, and pull it through the eye of the needle in this way.

A neat way to mark clothing where it is not advisable or convenient to use ink is to mark the name in initials with a pencil; then stitch over the markings with white or the desired color of thread using a coarse thread with a long stitch.

A very desirable seam for wash goods, skirts, sleeves or waists is made by laying the edges you wish to sew together with the edge of the under piece projecting about an eighth of an inch beyond the upper edge; give it a turn over the top edge, then another turn and the seam will resemble a hem, row of stitching with the machine along the edge of the hem, and the seam will be perfectly made without any rough edges. This is better and quicker than a French seam.

It is now well known that not more than one case of rheumatism in ten requires any internal treatment whatever. All that is needed is a free application of Chamberlain's Liniment and massaging the parts at each application. Try it and see how quickly it will relieve the pain and soreness. Sold by all dealers.

Joker's Corner

"Young man, we need brains in our business."

"I know you do. That is why I'm looking for a job here."

Customer—"Confound you, that's a piece of my ear."

Barber—"Only a small bit, sir, not enough to affect the hearing."

"Never count your chickens before they are hatched."

"Of course!" sneered Mr. Crosslots "You're another of those people who want to take the chief pleasure out of the poultry business."

"Come in and have it charged," was the inviting sign in front of a place of business in a Jersey town. A stranger, being somewhat low in funds walked in briskly.

"I understand that I can get things charged here," he said, addressing one of the employes.

"Only storage batteries," replied the other man.

A lion tamer of the fair sex brought a lion into the cage and allowed the beast gracefully to take a lump of sugar from her mouth. (Great applause.) "I can do that, too!" cried a young man from the front row of the audience. "You?" said the lion's bride, with some show of contempt. "Certainly," replied the youth, "just as well as the lion!"

Little Dote—"I know something my teacher doesn't know."

Mamma—"indeed! What is it?"

"I know when the world is coming to an end, and she doesn't I asked her and she said she didn't know."

"Well, who told you?"

"Uncle John. He said that the world would come to an end when children stopped asking questions that nobody could answer."

A school teacher recently received the following note from the mother of one of her pupils:

"Dear Miss. You write me about whippin' Sammy. I give you permission to beat him up any time he won't learn his lesson. He is just like his father and you he to beat him with a club to learn him anything. Pound nolegg into him. Don't pay no attention to what his father says. I will handel him."

A country youth travelling in a railway carriage proudly exhibited upon his breast a large silver medal. A military gentleman sitting opposite noticing the medal, and curious to learn the nature of the gallant deed for which the brave had been rewarded, ventured to remark—"Pardon me, my friend, but may I ask what decoration it is you are wearing?" "Oh, ay," was the proud reply, "that's the prize our cow won at the cattle show."

When Lord Thurlow first opened a lawyer's office in London, he took a basement room which had previously been occupied by a cobbler. He was somewhat annoyed by the previous occupant's callers, and irritated by the fact that he had few of his own. One day an Irishman entered. "The cobbler's gone, I see," he said, "I should think he had," tartly responded the lawyer. "And what do ye sell?" inquired the Irishman, looking at the solitary table and a few law books. "Begorra," said Pat, "ye must be doing a mighty fine business; ye ain't got but one left."

OBITUARY

CHARLOTTE H. WHITMAN.

Death visited again the quiet community of Inglisville in the early morning of May 26, calling from the happy and hitherto unbroken home circle, Charlotte Henrietta, the beloved wife of Henry O. Whitman, and the revered mother of a family of three surviving daughters, Mrs. Leonard Banks, Mrs. Thomas Armstrong and Mrs. Avar Leonard.

To the companions of her months of suffering the demise was not unexpected, each having foreseen that the malady which the most faithful efforts, professional or unprofessional, could not subdue must sooner or later wear to a "frank" life's slender thread.

The deceased was sixty-six years of age and had a few months less than forty years ago come to this community as a bride from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eben Balcom of Lawrencetown West, by whom and other members of her early home, excepting one brother, G. Osmond Balcom, she is predeceased.

In the death of Mrs. Whitman the Methodist church in this place loses a valued member, faithful in each department, especially the choir. But fervent hospitality and the dearest one's charm of even temperament, hearty laugh and of her influence toward all that is moral and upright, the loss seems most irreplaceable.

The funeral service at the home on the afternoon of May 28th, was largely attended, the reading of the Scriptures, II, 5, and a touching prayer by Rev. H. G. Mellick, Pastor Armitage sang, at the request of the family, "The Homeland" and immediately followed his message of comforting tenderness, void of eulogy, based upon a text chosen by the departed one "I know in whom I have believed." As the choir were rendering "Sister thou wast mild and lovely" four nephews, Messrs. Minor Daniels, Ernest Phinney, Rupert Balcom, Theophilus Roach, bore the remains from the home and later to a sunny western slope of the Whitman cemetery, its resting place till the morning break and the shadows flee away.

Sympathies which found expression, verbally in letters of condolence, floral offerings and the efforts of the choir, call forth from the bereaved ones feelings of the deepest heartfelt gratitude, and with these prayers that each donor may, under like trying circumstances, find equal solace in the promise, "Like as a mother comforteth, so will I comfort you." FOXES VALUED AT SEVEN THOUSAND STOLEN.

Edmonton, Alta., June 13.—Four foxes, valued at $7,000, which disappeared from the place where they were being temporarily kept at South Edmonton about a week ago, have been located about thirty miles west of here by Detective Mehan of the city police force, on the homestead of John Merrigan of Graminia, who is a farmer, and employed as timber inspector under the Government. He was away from home when the detective visited his homestead, but will likely be placed under arrest on his return.

Three men, however, have already been arrested in connection with the robbery. These are J. D. Kennedy, Tofield; George W. Campbell, janitor at the Edmonton post office, and John A. Buchanan, who is said to be a carpenter by trade, but who has lately had no occupation. Ball has been asked for Kennedy, and fixed at $5000. All of the accused are former residents of Prince Edward Island, where the fox industry is a flourishing one.

It is believed the foxes were being kept in seclusion until they would have grown sufficiently to lose their identification marks, so that they could be shipped out with safety. The four foxes which disappeared were the most valuable of more than a score which Mr. Lee was getting ready for shipment to the east. The most valuable, a pure black, worth about $4000, was dead when the animal was located on the Merrigan homestead. Another was of the black cross variety. One thousand dollars was offered for the return of the foxes.

The Kaiser's Workroom

Kaiser William of Germany has a scroll hanging in his workroom with some wise mottoes on it. One of them is not meant for emperors alone, and so is worth quoting: "The world is so large and we are so small that everything cannot possibly revolve around ourselves."

It might be added that even the earth revolves around a larger star, thus setting a good example. In old times the astronomers mistakenly believed that the whole universe revolved round the earth, and this "geocentric" theory threw all their calculations wrong. It was not until this idea was discarded that modern astronomy, with all its vast discoveries, began.

Nothing worth anything revolves round self. No real discoveries about life are ever made by selfish people. The condition of all wide, beautiful, joyful living is to break away from self as a centre. It is a well-known fact that insanity develops out of undue concentration in self. "Excessive ego" is the root of many a case in a cell, but nobody ever went insane from unselfish devotion to others. Each individual life is small. The more a man learns about the world the more he knows and influences—the bigger he grows, in other words—the smaller he sees himself to be in the great whole. The wise are the humble. Also, they are the happy; for the part that tries to be the whole is always miserable. Selfishness demands more than it can get, claims more than ever will come to it, and so sits ever in discontent and rebellion of spirit. Unselfishness rejoices in the good that others receive and the progress of larger hopes and plans that self can compass.

This wise imperial motto—is it not worth taking by the average person? "Great Thoughts."

A DEAD REGION OF THE EARTH.

Further exploration within 1,000 miles of the South Pole will be of no scientific value according to Sir Ray Lankester.

"There is no living thing on the Antarctic Continent," he says, "excepting the seals and the penguins and a few other birds found on and near the coast line and a minute insect-like the so-called glacier flea, together with a few animalcules living in pools formed by the melting of ice in the brief summer, and species of algae, mosses, lichens and fungi."

Sir Ray, as director of the National History Museum, had charge of the antarctic birds, etc., brought back from the South Polar continent by Capt. Scott's expedition on the discovery; had he had official first-hand information as to the results of all the explorations in that part of the globe. Flowers would grow at the South Pole in summer if it were not for the mountains there according to Prof. Lankester. It is these mountains that make the South Pole so cold. The South Polar area is an elevated mountainous land reaching 12,000 feet in parts covered with perpetual ice in consequence of the elevation. Moreover the Antarctic Continent is surrounded by the sea and is lifeless.

"There is a vast area of land around the north polar sea," said Dr. Ray, "which is green with vegetation and dotted with brilliantly colored flowers in summer, and yet is only 500 miles distant from the North Pole. In the arctic region there are seals, white bear, walrus, fox, wolves, musk ox and many small mammals and birds which stray from the neighboring continental lands. There is abundant vegetation, including flowering plants, which find a growing place wherever land is exposed. So far as temperature is concerned, these flowers and plants would grow at the North Pole itself were there any islands in that part of the frozen polar sea. In contrast to the low-lying land around the North Pole, the mountains interior of Greenland is of high elevation and covered with perpetual ice and devoid of life.

At last a Chinaman came forward, who said that he had found some bills and a ticket on the floor. In the course of these inquiries it was found that the man who complained of missing his money had over five thousand dollars in gold coins on his person. They were not in a bag, however, but were sewn into an under-vest arrangement. It must have taken the Chinaman weeks of labor to do the sewing alone, so perfectly was each coin fitted into a specially made pocket of its own, and the whole represented nothing so much as a coat of mail.

MONTH AFTER MONTH OF HOARDING.

"Month by month he had been sewing his earnings into that vest, and he was at last satisfied that he had enough of this world's goods to ensure a life of ease under the flag of the new Republic. He had never been inside a bank, he said, and did not intend to start now. Altogether, he had been working for ten years outside of China, and he could not trust his earnings to any mysterious banking system for its transportation to China.

CHINAMAN'S WONDROUS SUIT OF GOLDEN MAIL.

Mexico and the West Indian Islands are becoming year by year a greater source of attraction to the overflowing population of China, and every month some thousands of Chinese pass through the United States and Canada on their way down to these fields of labor.

"The Chinaman is willing to work where the Mexican 'Greaser' and West Indian Islander cry out 'Too hard!' Too hard," said one of the railway officials today. "Frugal in living, if he does not lose his earnings in 'tan-tan' or some similar game, the Chinaman soon wipes out the indebtedness he has incurred by steamship fares and other expenses of the long journey, and begins to accumulate a little fortune of his own. The process, if a slow one, is made a little easier by the contemplation of the pleasure each dollar will buy when its owner is back in the Chinese province of his birth."

STORY OF STOLEN TICKET AND MONEY.

"That their efforts to acquire a competence are not in vain was demonstrated here the other day. We had some trouble with a Chinaman on his way back to the East, who complained that while sleeping in the quarters provided for him, his ticket for passage to Hong Kong and $150 in cash was stolen from under his pillow—that being the block of wood that the Chinaman uses for resting his head on. Search was made in every nook and corner of the rooms for the whole of a day, but no trace could be found of the ticket or money.

A Paris Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair

In Paris the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing hats, which is entirely to the new discovery.

It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair; that they contain this long-sought-for article is proven every day.

The French are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale.

This preparation is called SALVIA and is being sold with a guarantee of curing dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed, SALVIA makes a most pleasant dressing, and is sold by your druggist. A large, generous bottle can be purchased for 50 cents.

A maid in the home of Mr. Ernest Crosby, of Lake Annis, Yarmouth County, after having used kerosene oil in starting a fire, placed the can of oil on the back of the stove. A three-year-old boy in the family moved the can forward and it upset, the can exploded, and the burning oil fell all over the boy, burning him so severely that he died a few hours later in great agony.
