JAMES BARNES SWORN IN.

Kent County at last Given Representation in The Local Government.

SUCCESSFUL CONTRACTOR.

Enters the Cabinet After a Legislative Experience of Twelve Years.

Mr. James Barnes, M. P. P. for Kent, was on Friday sworn in as a member of the provincial government without portfolio, and a member of the Board of Education, and one of the commissioners of the Provincial Hospital.

Mr. Barnes was born in Ontario in 1842, his father being William Barnes, a farmer. When a young man, Mr. Barnes came to Shediac, and re-started a leather business, later moving to Buctouche where he engaged in lumbering, farming and railroading.

In 1892 he entered politics for the first time, but in this election he was unsuccessful.

Re-nominated again in 1895, he was elected, and since that date has received the representation of Kent. In politics he is a Liberal, and in religion he is a Episcopalian. His wife was formerly Miss Julie Smith of Buctouche.

Mr. Barnes has had a successful career and is at present engaged in large business interests. He is president of the James Barnes Construction Company and is interested in oyster beds. For a number of years he was a member of the public accounts committee in the legislature.

Among the business enterprises which Mr. Barnes carried out successfully was the building of the Central Railway from Chipman to Norton.

TRIAL RESUMED

Boise, Idaho, July 8.—The Haywood trial was resumed at 10 o'clock today. The depositions made by Fred Bradley, of San Francisco, were called up as evidence and read. ELOPED WITH GIRL OF FOURTEEN.

Claiming that her daughter had run away with a man old enough to be the child's father, Mrs. J. T. Ramsey, who lives on High street, appealed to the police Saturday to assist her in getting the little one back. The girl, she says, is fourteen years of age and had always been very tractable. The mother was much distressed about the elopement and the police are working on the case. The couple have been located in Sackville. The man in the case is about fifty years of age.—Moncton Times.

THE LOCAL OPPOSITION OPEN THEIR CAMPAIGN.

Organizer Hubbard Present at Monday Nights Meeting.—Also H. A. Powell. Vigorous Speeches.—Officers Elected.

The political meeting in the Town Hall, on Monday night, called by Messrs. John Morrissey and D. Morrison, M. P. P.'s, was attended by some fifty voters, mostly business men.

Ald. John Clark was elected chairman and Mr. J. S. MacDonald secretary.

Mr. Morrison explained the object of the meeting, stating that it was called to effect an opposition organization for the coming local election that could not long be delayed.

Mr. John F. McKane followed urging the need and value of proper organization. Victory was certain if the campaign was properly handled.

Mr. W. W. Hubbard, provincial Organizer, said that there was a great lack of knowledge even among opposition men as to the state of provincial finances. The present government had greatly increased the debt. The millions of assets which the government figures out he declared unrealizable.

He then took up the School book question, showing that in Ontario the new government had compelled a reduction in the cost of text books of some seventy-five per cent. He declared that New Brunswickers were paying too much for their children's books. All this would be changed when Mr. Hazen should come to power. The opposition had candidates in sight in most constituencies.

Mr. H. A. Powell, K. C., ex-M. P., who is a guest of Mr. McKane, was present at the meeting and was called on for a speech. He explained that he had merely happened to be there and had nothing prepared. He was out of harness politically. But he knew of no province in the civilized world with as bad a record financially as New Brunswick. The late readjustment of subsidies was only taking out of one pocket to put into another. And the new subsidies were not as fair to the Maritime provinces as was the schedule of 1867. The road service in 1883 was better than now, with little more than half the revenue. He blamed the government for introducing direct taxation. Said that the Moncton Times, of which he was one of the owners, had offered to do the public printing at half the present cost. He declared that graft ruled every branch of the public service. The country needed a fair, square, honest administration.

Messrs. John Ferguson, J. D. Creaghan, James Falconer, the chairman, D. Morrison, and W. A. Hickson followed, speaking briefly. The province needed a change. Mr. Morrison said that the Opposition would stand behind the lumber industry, and were prepared to reduce the stumpage if necessary. Mr. Falconer was a staunch Liberal in federal politics and Opposition in local.

Mr. McKane said that there was a feeling abroad that the Opposition had not been favorable to the lumber interests. But that was not the case. In thirty years no lumberman had made any money in the business.

Mr. Morrissey said that probably he was the man who was most talked against as the enemy of the lumber interests, but if the people put the Opposition into power they would do well by the lumbermen. When a lumberman leases land he should then be independent of the government.

Messrs. Thos. Russell and H. Wyse declared themselves on the Opposition side.

The meeting then resolved itself into a committee of organization. The following officers were then chosen:

Pres., Ald. John Clark.
Sec., Ald. W. H. Belyea.
Assist. Sec., J. S. MacDonald.
Treas., Michael Bannon.

Additional members of Executive (with power to add to their number)—John Ferguson, W. A. Hickson, J. D. Creaghan, James Falconer and Thos. Russell.

Confidence was voted in Mr. J. D. Hazen and his platform.

Mr. H. A. Powell was tendered a vote of thanks.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.

Thos. David, a Syrian who had his wife at McAdam Junction, Monday. Mrs. David had run away from Lowell with another man. Her husband followed her to Woodstock and persuaded her to return with him. But at McAdam she showed such a strong desire to go back to her lover at Woodstock that the husband lost his head and shot her, wounding her in the abdomen. He was overpowered and sent to Fredericton. The woman was taken to Woodstock hospital and is expected to recover.

ANOTHER STRIKE AT THE CAPITAL.

On Thursday morning, the nineteen cutters in the shoe factory at Fredericton quit work on the management refusing to consent to a nine-hour day. The cutters had been working fifty-nine hours a week. It is not long since some seventy-five employees of the John Palmer Company of Fredericton struck for higher wages and won.

We are informed that the Sun's Chatham correspondent did not correctly report Mr. M. R. Benn's evidence in Tuesday's issue of that paper. He had full legal rights for fishing where he did. He did not fish Connell's preserve but crossed it during heavy rain to reach his horse in returning home.

GRADING EXAMINATIONS.

HARKINS' ACADEMY.
From Grade III. to IV.—Lizzie Adair (98 per cent.), Jean Russell, Lillian Russell, Maud Hill, J. Doucet, Bessie Jeffrey, Walter Murphy, Bessie Howe, Harold Dalton, Douglas Gough, Annie Connell.

From Grade IV to V.—Marion Rundle (91.23 per cent.), Inez Copp, Gerald Foley, Mabel Miller, Travis Davidson, Hazel O'Donnell, Perley Williamson, Beulah Miller, Ida McMurray, Johnson Curran, Margaret Musson, Lester Jeffrey, and Frank Williamson, Gordon Brander, Vincent Hachey, Donald McKenzie, Joseph Wright, Emma Delano.

Grade X.—In our last week's report of the graduating list of this grade, the names of J. Harvey Ramsay and Evelyn Williamson were placed at the end of the list not because their marks for the papers they worked were lowest but because each missed one paper and, therefore, their true averages could not be ascertained. Each made such good marks on the papers they handed in, however, that both graduated with credit.

BAYLE SCHOOL.
We have not been able to get the pass lists for the Bayle School, but understand that all the pupils graded.

Mr. Jalbert, owner of the house in which the arrest was made, will sue Officer Gallop for assault. R. A. Lawlor, A. C., of Chatham will appear for the prosecution, and W. A. Mott, of Campbellton, for the defense.

BACK FROM ROME.

At the Conference thirty-seven nations and forty religious denominations were represented. A hundred missionaries were there from all over the world. The U. S. A. and Canada sent 700 delegates, every province in Canada being represented. At the gathering the World's S. S. Association was organized, $100,000 been pledged there and then for the purpose of extending Sunday school work. Adult Bible classes were organized in the Azores, Gibraltar, Algiers, Naples and Rome.

NEW BRUNSWICKERS DROWNED IN MAINE.

By the capsizing of a canoe in St. Croix Lake, near Howe Brook, Aroostook Co., Thursday, three employees of the Fish River Lumber Company were drowned. The victims were Fred Logan and Thos. Hilliard, of St. John, and Charles Gough, of Fredericton. The bodies have been recovered.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT MEETING.

At the meeting of the local government in Fredericton on Friday, incorporation was granted the Big Hole Salmon Fishing Company, the Little Cocagne Fishing Association, the Cobble Sexton Mining Company, the Prescott Lumber Company and the Miramichi Agricultural Association.

The well boring for Sunbury and Queens was granted to C. P. Kent, the work to begin at once. A grant of $300 was made to the Provincial Rifle Association. The Clifton Steamship Co. subsidy contract for ferry was agreed to.

MORE EFFICIENT PROTECTION FROM FIRE.

The following fire wardens of Counties have been appointed:—W. J. Hunter for St. John and Kings; W. H. Berry for Charlotte and western parts of Sunbury and Queens; Percy Wilbur, Gloucester; Clifford Atkinson, Kent; Chief Forest Ranger John Robinson, Jr., Northumberland. The fire wardens will be under the chief Ranger and appoint their own subordinates. The expenses in connection with protecting the forests will be equally divided between the government and the owners of timber limits. The whole cost is not expected to exceed $20,000. While the government will retain the right to appoint any additional fire wardens, they will select from the lumbermen.

THE IMPORTED HORSES.

Hon. L. P. Farris, Commissioner of Agriculture, went to Quebec on Saturday to meet the consignment of horses recently purchased in Scotland and France, and which were expected to arrive on Monday.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidneys. The kidneys, like the heart and the stomach, find their weakness not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach those controlling nerves. To doctor the kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine is cloudy, or if you find it difficult to urinate, or if you have any of the symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquidated, see what it can and will do for you. Druggists recommend and sell.

Don't make a common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment, and not the cause, weak stomach nerves the inside nerves—mean stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and as the Kidneys are well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves". Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me to-day for sample and free Book, Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by THOS. J. DURICK.

SOCIAL BETWEEN SHOWERS.

The Social and supper, in aid of the United Baptist parsonage fund, which was advertised for Monday evening last week was held on the parsonage lawn in Whitteville on that date, also on two succeeding evenings, the entertainment on both Monday and Tuesday being interrupted by rain. In spite of the showers the affair was a grand success, netting about $45.00. The people of the Lytleton and Halcumb end of the circuit have recently raised $50.00 for the same purpose. Last July the three villages raised $100.00 for the same fund. Rev. Mr. Thorne's congregation are very energetic and deserve great credit for their devotion and perseverance.

OPERATION AVOIDED

EXPERIENCE OF MISS MERKLEY
She Was Told That an Operation Was Inevitable. Now She Denies It.

When a physician tells a woman suffering with serious feminine trouble that an operation is necessary, the very thought of the knife and the operating table strikes terror to her heart, and our hospitals are full of women coming for just such operations.

There are cases where an operation is the only resource, but when one considers the great number of cases of menacing female troubles cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after physicians have advised operations, no woman should submit to one without first trying the Vegetable Compound and writing Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice, which is free.

Miss Margaret Merkley, of 275 Third Street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes: "I was of strong, extreme nervousness, showing pains through the pelvic organs, bearing-down pains and cramps compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor after making an examination said I had a female trouble and ulceration and advised an operation. To this I strongly objected and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The ulceration quickly healed, all the bad symptoms disappeared and I am once more strong, vigorous and well."

Female troubles are steadily on the increase among women. If the monthly periods are very painful, or too frequent and excessive—if you have pain or swelling low down in the left side, bearing-down pains, don't neglect yourself: try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

I'll stop your pain free. To show you first—before you spend a penny—what my Pink Pain Tablets can do, I will mail you free.

Package of them—Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets. Neuralgia, Headache, Toothache, Period pains etc., are due alone to blood congestion. Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets simply kill pain by coaxing away the unnatural blood pressure. That is all. Address Dr. Racine, Wis. Sold by THOS. J. DURICK.

THROUGH OTHER EYES.

"Are you doing your share to help solve the child labor problem?" asked the National Child Labor Committee in its department officially published in the July Woman's Home Companion. "If you could look for a moment into the great industries where children are employed at the sacrifice of education and virtue, and by their work doomed to destroy their future hope of health, manhood and womanhood, your heart would go out to them and you would hasten to the aid of those who are trying to rescue these little ones from disease and premature age."

"But you do not see these conditions. The beautiful and happy surroundings of your children render it almost impossible for you to realize the conditions of that multitude of little boys and girls who labor at the cost of proper growth and development. We can only ask you to look through our eyes and understand that this organization, the National Child Labor Committee, is fighting to put an end to the labor of little children, and to throw adequate protection, around those other ones who may wisely be employed."

"If you could see the actual conditions our investigators daily witness, not a state in the Union would be without proper legislation and the work of this committee would be necessary. But because the people do not know, our work must continue. We are determined to win for every American child the opportunity for developing, as a child should, into mentally clean and physically healthy American citizenship. But we need help—your help. You cannot fight the battle alone, nor can we, but you can give us the means to fight it on your behalf."

Rev. R. H. Staver and Misses Lela E. Ingram, Marion Wathen and Alethea Wathen, are in Campbellton attending the summer Sunday School.

The following resolution of condolence was recently read: Miss Spencer by the members of Harcourt Division.

It was with feelings of deep regret and sorrow that we the members of Harcourt Division No. 438, S. of T., learned of the great affliction, which has of late come upon you, in the loss of your brother. To the most of us he was quite well known, and it seems only a few years ago when he went in and out amongst us, but he is gone from us—he has reached that home from which no traveller returns. These trials when sent to us, if accepted in the right way are full of blessings to us and we have only to submit to God, and say, "Thy will be done." It must have been a great blow to you and your mother to have had your brother taken away so suddenly, and in your hour of bereavement we extend to you our heartfelt sympathy. We only wish we could do more than offer our sympathy but that is beyond human power. To Him alone we commend you as a higher source of consolation.

THE AUGUST DESIGNER. One could take the August De- signer out under the trees on a hot summer's day and find therein a variety of bonny things to make the time go flying.

For instruction, we find such articles as "The Wand as a Means of Home Exercise," by Lora Pcl- land, which puts within reach of the reader the possibility of health giving physical development. "The Home Maker's Problem of Window Curtains," by Mary Kilsyth, gives advice on a subject that every one knows the importance of "Home-Made Furniture" shows some clever means of home car- pentering and furniture construction. "Wallachian Embroidery" gives instructions for making an embroidery now much in demand. Among the articles found in the back of the book are those concern- ing the healthful care of the body, how to dress, what to eat, and some suggestions as to how to play.

There are 265,000 people in Canada today, who really KNOW "Fruit-a-tives" to be a splendid remedy.

Four years ago, "Fruit-a-tives" were an unsolved problem in the brain of one of Canada's leading physicians.

Today, over a quarter of a million of Canadians know them for what they are—a positive cure for Stomach, Liver, Kidney, Bowel and Skin Troubles.

"Fruit-a-tives" have cured stubborn cases of Constipation—Chronic Rheumatism—Skin Eruption—that defied ordinary remedies. The cures of Biliousness, Indi- gestion, Headaches, Pain in the Back, Nervousness and Irregularity of the Bowels—are numbered by the thousands. "Fruit-a-tives" move the bowels just as fruit moves them and leaves them healthy.

"Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices and tonics in tablet form—with the increased medicinal action made possible by the chemical change which takes place when the juices are combined.

SWINERTON-WELDON.

Mrs. J. A. Follansbee has received a telegram announcing the marriage at Victoria, B. C., on June 29, of her sister, Mrs. Annie Weldon, to Mr. William Swinerton, of Victoria.

The news of her marriage is a surprise to most of Mrs. Swinerton's friends, as very few were let into the secret before she left here two weeks ago. Congratulations and good wishes are extended to the happy couple.

RAWLINGS-SNOWBALL. The marriage of Miss Laura Snowball, second daughter of the late Hon. J. B. Snowball and Harry Ed. Rawlings, of New York, took place Wednesday evening in St. Luke's church at Chatham at 9 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by the pastor of the church, Rev. G. W. Sellar, and was attended by the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, and plants and presented a very artistic appearance. The bride was attended by her sister Lillian, and Alexander Thompson of Frederic- ton, cousin of the bride, supported the groom.

The bride and groom left on the Maritime express for Upper Canada and will spend a few weeks at Lake Champlain, taking up their future residence in East Orange, N. J.

Mrs. Rawlings and Miss Rawlings, a mother and sister of the groom, came from Montreal to attend the wedding.

Miss Snowball was one of the most popular young ladies on the North Shore, a leader in society and one whose large circle of friends will regret very much her departure from their midst. The happy couple have the cordial good wishes of a large circle of friends for much happiness in their married life.

McCULLAM-ROBERTSON.

A pretty wedding took place at the Methodist church, Tabusintac, Friday, June 28th, at 6 p. m. when Miss Janie W., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Robertson, of Tabusintac, was united in marriage to Mr. Philip McCullam of Gaythorne, N. B. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. A. Sellar, assisted by the Rev. J. T. Costain.

The bride, who was daintily dress- ed in white cashmere with the con- ventional veil and orange blossoms, was attended by Miss Maude A. Fraser, who wore pale blue cash- mere with white trimmings. Mr. Henry Palmer of Gaythorne, sup- ported the groom. A reception followed at the home of the bride when over seventy guests partook

DELIGHTED WITH I. C. R. TRAIN SERVICE.

Prince Fushimi Expresses his Grati- tude to the Management for the Splendid Arrangements for his Journey.

Before leaving Canada for Jap- an, His Imperial Highness Prince Fushimi of Japan, instructed his Secretary to send the following telegram to the officials of the Intercolonial Railway:—

To D. Pottinger,
Moncton, N. B.,

His Imperial Highness, Prince Fushimi, desires me to express to you his warm thanks for the ser- vices of all the officials of the Intercolonial Railway on the train from Quebec to Toronto. Every- thing worked with the greatest smoothness, and His Imperial Highness much appreciated all the arrangements made to insure him comfort.

He is grateful to you for all your services on this occasion.

NAGASKI.

In discussing the Royal Train which the Intercolonial Railway placed at the disposal of His High- ness on his arrival at Quebec, the Toronto World says:—

The Royal train which created so much attention was composed of seven cars, occupied by a party of about forty. It was the first real government owned train which ever arrived at Toronto, a fact which was remarked by rail- way officials. Five of the cars, on the Intercolonial Railway which never saw Toronto before, returned this morning to the blue nose regions to resume their usual grind as a portion of the regular equipment and service on the In- tercolonial Railway, to which it may be said they are a distinct credit. They are cars that are in ordinary use on the "Ocean Lim- ited" and their general appearance is pleasing. The other two cars were those known as the Govern- or General's. They are the "Corn- wall" and the "York" and were occupied by Prince Fushimi and his suite who were greatly pleased with the attentions to their com- fort and expressed themselves ac- cordingly. The Prince through his Interpreters lauded the railway service. The Observation and Din- ing room on the Cornwall was very handsomely decorated with evergreens and flowers as was also the Dining Car of the Intercol- onial Railway.

A plentiful supper. The large number of beautiful presents testify to the good wishes of their many friends, who wish the newly wed- ded couple every happiness.

HON. MR. BARNES.

In speaking of the recent reorganization of the provincial government, the St. John Globe, a leading opposition organ has this to say:—

"Hon. Mr. Barnes, the new for-castle member, is a man of much force of character and considerable legislative and political experience. He has been in the House of Assembly since 1895, and has supported the government through the many changes which have taken place in that period, Mr. Robinson being the sixth premier under whom he has served. Always a staunch and consistent liberal, whether his party was out of power or in power, Mr. Barnes has the hearty confidence of the people of Kent and the adjoining districts as well. Many persons have thought that he had earned a cabinet position years ago, and they will be glad now to see his services and his merits recognized. A practical man of affairs, Mr. Barnes' accession to the ranks of the government ought to strengthen it from the business point of view."

KEEP WITHIN THE LIMITS.

We have received complaints from several Principals of schools regarding the Mathematical papers set in this year's normal school entrance examination. One, with whom all agree, specifically makes the following charges, which from a personal inspection of the examination papers we find correct:—

"The failure of the educational authorities to keep within the requirements laid down in the School Law for the Normal School Entrance examinations in Mathematics has been the cause of much dissatisfaction to N. B. teachers at large."

"For instance, School Law, Reg. 32, states that First Class candidates will go to the end of Quadratic Equations in Todhunter and Loney's Algebra, and yet a difficult question in cube root was set in the Algebra papers whereas Involutions and Evolutions come after Quadratics."

"The syllabus of prescribed text books (School Law page 94) states that either Hamblin Smith's or Kennedy and O'Hearn's Academic arithmetic should be used, consequently nothing that is not in both should be exacted, yet a question in Arithmetic Series, of which Hamblin Smith takes no cognizance whatever, was given a value of 12 in the recent First Class papers."

"School Law (p-116) distinctly states that Second Class candidates will go as far as Compound Interest in Arithmetic, and yet a problem in Stocks—and not the simplest in the world—was set in a Second Class paper."

"While teaching in late years, we ourselves have frequently noticed this tendency on the part of those who prepare the Mathematical papers, to overstep the limits prescribed by the regulations of the Board of Education, which regulations are published as a guide for candidates. The papers should contain nothing but what the law distinctly states. If the standard be too low, let it be raised; but the published regulations are a moral contract (and a legal one, also, if the matter were pressed,) and should therefore be carefully followed so long as they remain as they are. No candidate should miss his class because of failure on problems beyond the fixed standard. The Board of Education should see that these little errors do not occur in future."

THE CRY OF THE WEAK.

The Peace Conference, sitting at the Dutch capital since the 15th ultimo, and composed of the envoys of forty-seven different nations who represent all the independent states of any importance in the civilized world, has been appealed to for aid by two small and weak nationalities who are being forcibly assimilated by their gigantic neighbors. The Georgians

Help! Help! I'm Falling

Thus cried the hair. And a kind neighbor came to the rescue with a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor. The hair was saved! This was because Ayer's Hair Vigor is a regular hair medicine. Falling hair is caused by a germ, and this medicine completely destroys these germs. Then the healthy scalp gives rich, healthy hair.

of Caneasia complain that Russia has violated their rights and intolerably oppressed them; while the Koreans claim that Japan, the power that so recently proclaimed to the world that she was fighting for Korean independence, is riding rough-shod over the land, disregarding all her fine promises of a year or so ago. In each case the unfortunate people is of the same color, race and religion as the nation against which it complains.

But the cry of the little people goes up in vain. The conference does not deal with the internal affairs of any country, hence the case of Georgia, which has been part of the Russian empire since 1800, is outside its sphere. And since Japan so lately put China and Russia out of Korea, one after the other, nobody else seems anxious to dispute her position in that country.

The only way for the little people to improve their condition is to wait quietly until division arises in the ranks of their masters, and then take sides, driving the best bargain possible for their assistance. When the British needed French-Canadian help against the American revolutionists, the ancient language, laws and religion of Quebec were speedily recognized. When the same nation lost command of the seas in 1781, the Irish Protestants, who had an army of 100,000 men in the field, were quickly granted the home rule they asked. Finland regained her autonomy from Russia in 1905 without firing a shot, but had it not been for the rebellions then going on in Russia, the Finns would have had to wait indefinitely for the restoration of their former privileges. The defeat of Austria by Prussia in 1866 made the Austrians willing to grant equality to the Hungarians in 1867. And so on.

The small states that have, willingly or unwillingly, been united with their more powerful neighbors, have not been sacrificed in vain. As parts of greater empires, they have exercised and are exercising a softening, humanizing and altogether beneficent influence upon the peoples who have annexed them. Their agitation has sympathetically affected great masses of the conquerors and helped to make life more tolerable for the latter as well as for themselves. From the forced unions are springing new nations stronger and better than could have been evolved in the old isolated communities. The unreasonable aggressions of the strong ultimately work out to their own undoing and hasten the day of general freedom.

INDIA.

The discontent among the Bengalese and other Indians of the Hindu faith is growing so rapidly as to cause serious apprehension regarding the future of British rule in India. The native leaders in the movement for independence seem to be circulating the most absurd and untrue stories about the governing class, such as that the British cause the plague in order to kill off the natives, that they poison wells, insult the Hindu religion, etc. So far has the anti-European agitation progressed that in many districts no European can dare be seen on the streets unarmed. American and British mission stations have been destroyed and many Christians assaulted.

The Mohammedan element, whose ancestors were the rulers of India immediately before the British took possession, are as a rule more intelligent than the Hindus. Their long period of authority in a country where four-fifths of the people were of a different religion taught them habits of tolerance and forbearance unknown to many other Moslem nations. Since being conquered by Britain they have enjoyed as much religious freedom as ever they did under their own rulers; and they are not as yet taking any steps to embarrass the government. Much depends upon the course pursued by the sixty million Mohammedans of the Indian Empire. Should they unite with the ... Hindus it will be extremely hard for Britain to maintain her authority. Should they assist Britain in subduing the Hindus, they will probably demand, as their price either home rule or complete independence for those provinces where the Mohammedan element predominates.

It is to be hoped that India will be spared from falling into the hands of those who would revive with all its horrors religious persecution that for so many years disgraced and retarded the western nations. India will ultimately secure her freedom, but a holy war against Christianity will neither elevate her people nor hasten the day of her political redemption.

AUSTRALIAN LEGISLATION.

Premier Carruthers of New South Wales, the most important state of the Australian Commonwealth, has announced a government program for next session of the legislature which is decidedly Socialistic and a little more paternal than that to which even Australia has hitherto been accustomed. The programme embraces pensions for invalids, subventions to friendly societies and the establishment of a system whereby the poorest persons may purchase annuities. There is little doubt that the proposals will be adopted. The annuities will be counts in the government Savings Banks and their deposits, by the aid of government subsidies, will draw special rates of interest. Premier Carruthers justifies his proposals by arguing that they "tend to uplift the community, swell the ranks of the friendly societies, increase the inducement to thrift and generally aid in the battle against improvidence."

ANARCHY IN ALASKA.

Up in Alaska, there is civil war between the employees of two great companies who are disputing over a railway crossing. On Wednesday the Bruner Company fired on the employees of the Guggenheims, who were laying rails to cross the Bruner railway, killing one man, fatally injuring another and wounding nine more. The courts had refused to grant an injunction to restrain the Guggenheims, and the latter were merely asserting their rights. Both roads lead into a rich mining district, and much money would have been made by the Bruner men if they could have retained the monopoly. It does not appear that either company was worrying over the public interests. Neither was any member of either corporation within the firing line. The dangerous part of the business was left to hired men whose lives are not considered of any great importance. Such action on the part of the millionaire combination constitutes the most serious menace to constitutional government. Such men are the real anarchists who are undermining the foundation of society.

ORANGEMEN PARADE

AT DOUGLASTOWN. The Orangemen of Newcastle, Chatham and Loggieville to the number of 150 strong gathered at Mr. Fred. Phillips' Ferryville, Sunday morning, and from there, headed by the Newcastle band, marched to church, Douglastown, where an appropriate and eloquent sermon was preached to them by Rev. F. C. Simpson. A very pleasing feature of the services was a solo by Mrs. McGlashen which charmed every hearer. On Friday the hosts of the Orange and Blue propose celebrating the glorious twelfth with the brethren of the Northern counties at Campbellton. Cheap excursion rates will prevail, and a great crowd is expected at Campbellton that day.

HOME FROM THE WAR.

Militiamen Back from Camp Sussex—Sham Battle on Friday.

The Newcastle Field Battery arrived home on Saturday morning, all the boys looking well after their fortnight's drill.

Friday was field day, and the troops were early on the move. The cavalry were up at four and on the march to Jeffries eight miles south of Sussex. The infantry marched out at seven. The 67th, 71st, 73rd and 74th regiments, the engineers, the 10th battery and part of the field ambulance composed the blue force, which was to convoy the wagon train from Plumwessop to Sussex. A squadron of cavalry assisted the blue force. The remaining three squadrons of Hussars, together with the 12th field battery and a small detachment of infantry, formed the Red force, which was to try to capture the wagon train. At nine operations commenced. The blue force was disposed as follows: The 74th and Engineers held Sussex. One-half the 67th formed the advance guard of the convoy moving westward from Plumwessop. The 71st were the main body, the 67th were sent southward as a guard to the left flank.

The artillery of the blue force went into action first, shelling the main body of the cavalry as it advanced upon Jeffries to attack Sussex Corner. The latter place was strongly held by a part of the 74th, and the cavalry attack was driven back. The same happened at Roachville Bridge, which was attacked by a squadron of Hussars, which advanced along the Ward Creek road. The main body of the blue force was practically not in action at all. The Red artillery came into action at a rather late hour. At eleven o'clock the convoy was in camp and the action over.

BLACKVILLE.

Blackville, July 8.—Mr. and Mrs. Ellwell of Boston are spending the vacation with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre.

Miss Kelly of Dorchester, Mass., is the guest of Miss K. Crumley. A strikingly bright and interesting wedding took place during the past week in New York, the participants being Miss Mary Ford, of Fordam and Dr. J. P. C. McManus, resident professional Dr. of Blackville, N. B. Rev. S. J. Crumley, cousin of the bride, performed the ceremony. Miss Agnes Kelly of Dorchester, Mass., attended the bride, while the groom was ably supported by his nephew, Dr. Stanley, of Ontario. Fordam church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The bride presented a graceful and charming appearance in a suit of white spotted silk over white net with bridal veil and wreath to match. She carried a bouquet of pink and white bride's roses. A grand reception was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ford after which the happy couple left on a limited tour, to the groom's home and friends in Ontario. Dr. and Mrs. McManus expect to be "at home" to friends in Blackville on or about the 20th.

Much sympathy is felt for Mr. Michael McCarthy and family in the death, last week, of his eldest son, Michael, who was a bright and very promising young man. For some time past he had been suffering from cancer of the stomach and although his death was not unexpected it came at the same time as a great shock to his many relatives and friends. The funeral took place on Friday morning, and was one of the largest seen here for many years. Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father McKory of Boiestown at the close of which he gave a very able and touching sermon suited to the occasion. It was highly appreciated by all present. As the corpse was being carried out Beethoven's funeral march was rendered in a very effective manner, by the organist Miss Keough.

Mrs. T. Town of Lowell is spending vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Scofield. Mr. Gilks is visiting relatives and friends in town.

Mrs. George McConnell and children are visiting her old home in Millerton. Miss Bernetta Ring stood the normal school entrance examinations for second class in Chatham last week.

LARGE INCREASE IN BRITISH MAELS

Ottawa, July 6.—The reduction in the rate of postage on British publications coming to Canada has had the immediate result of largely increasing the volume of the mail from Great Britain. The reduced rate became effective at the beginning of April and from that time until the end of June 4,652 bags of British mail were received at Montreal. During the same months last year only 3,002 bags of British mail were received. The increase is 1,650 bags, or fifty-three per cent. While there is some increase in all classes of mail, the increase is chiefly due to British magazines and periodicals of a high class.

The foundation of the new ell, which the Eudiste Fathers are constructing to the college is nearly finished. The addition is 107 feet long and will be 52 feet high.

On the 2nd instant, Mr. Frederic Theriault, of Grande Anse, and Miss Suzanne Mazeroll were married at Tracadie by Rev. Father Levasseur, and registered at P. P. Albert's new hotel, The Belvedere, in this town, on their way home to Grande Anse.

TO HELP YOURSELF.

Cultivate These Qualities and They Will Well Repay You.

A good memory for faces and facts connected with them, thus avoiding giving offense through not recognizing or bowing to people or saying to them what had better been left unsaid.

An unaffected, sweet, distinct and sympathetic voice. The American feminine voice is a target which has been hit hard many times and very justly. Learn to be appreciative of the natural mellow tones possible to every woman and avoid the shrill voices that remind one of a large concourse of hens.

Cultivate the charm of making little sacrifices quite naturally, as if of no account to yourself.

Cultivate the habit of making allowances for the opinions and feelings of others as well as their prejudices. We can't all see things from the same angle in the world. If we did it would be a mighty dreary, monotonous old sphere.

Cultivate the art of listening without impatience to noisy talkers and of smiling at the twice or thrice told tale or incident. It really won't hurt you to hear it over again, and then, remember that you are never so charming as when you are making other persons think they are interesting.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

When frying eggs have the fire low and slide them about the pan to prevent burning the thin whites. Bacon should be soaked in water for three or four minutes before being fried to prevent the fat from running.

When making layer cakes spread the batter around the pan with a spoon, making it thicker around the edges than in the middle.

Apples alone with olive oil, or apples and celery with equal parts of olive oil and cream mixed, form a light, nourishing and easily digested meal.

A custard cannot be boiled. Boiling at once curdles the egg. But a custard put in a jar in a saucepan of water may have the water boiling round the jar with good effect.

Cucumbers fried with onions are an old English relish for eating hot with cold sliced meats. Fry the onions first; then add the sliced cucumbers and dry thoroughly.

THE AILING HABIT.

It Only Aggravates the Trouble and Shouldn't be Done. If you are not well don't talk about it. To do so only exaggerates your consciousness of physical discomfort; also it casts a shadow of gloom over other people. They grow hesitant about asking you how you feel. It gives them cold chills to be continually told that you are "not very well" or "not so well" or "about the same."

Probably you've said these things so often that you say them now as a matter of course. It seems incredible to you by now that you should ever feel really well, because you've unconsciously made a habit to be ailing.

Do you know that a good deal of this is imagination? If you brace up and told people cheerily that you felt tip-top nine chances in ten you would feel tip-top pretty soon. You'd forget the ailing habit.

And, after all, what great difference does it make to any but your nearest, and dearest if you don't feel well? Suppose you are even hampered by downright physical ill? Your work must be done just the same. It can't be? What nonsense! Of course it can.

Consider the splendid people who have conquered desperate ills in order to get their work done. The woman who has something to do doesn't have the time to complain of not feeling well.

It was at this moment—while she dwelt in this new, unreal world—that he elected to tell her of his difference with his father, and when one walks through a maze of unrealities nothing seems to come amiss or to cause surprise. He detailed the very words they had used, and to Millicent Chyne it did not sound like a real quarrel such as might affect two lives to their very end. It was not important; it did not come into her life, for at that moment she did not know what her life was.

"And so," said Jack Meredith, finishing his story, "we have begun badly—as badly as the most romantic might desire."

"But it will be all right in a day or two, will it not? It is not serious," she said.

"I am afraid it is serious, Millicent."

He took her hand with a gravity which made matters worse.

"What is to be done, Jack?" she said, laying her two hands on his breast and looking up pleadingly.

"There are two things," he answered. "The first and the simplest," he went on in the tone of voice which she had never quite fathomed—half cynical, half amused—"is to pretend that last night never was."

"We will not do that," she replied softly; "we will take the other alternative, whatever it is."

She glanced up half shyly beneath her lashes, and he felt that no difficulty could frighten him.

"The other is generally supposed to be very difficult," he said. "It means—waiting."

"Why?"

"Because I am dependent on my father for everything. We could not marry without his consent."

"But we can surely get that, between us?"

"Do you know what I should like you to be?" she said, with a bright smile and one of those sudden descents into shallowness which he appeared to like.

"What?"

"A politician."

"Then I shall be a politician," he answered, with lovely promptness.

"That would be very nice," she said, and the castles she at once began to build were not entirely aerial in their structure.

This was not a new idea. They had talked of politics before as a possible career for himself. They had moved in a circle where politics and politicians held a first place, a circle removed above the glamour of art and wherein bohemianism was not reckoned an attraction.

"But," he said, "it will mean waiting."

"I don't care," she answered.

"Of course," he went on, "I must go away. That is the only way to get on in politics in these days. I must go away and get a specialty. I must know more about some country than any other man, and when I come back, I must keep that country ever before the eye of the intelligent British workman who reads the halfpenny evening paper."

"But you must not go very far," she said sweetly.

"Africa?"

"Africa? That does not sound interesting."

"It is interesting. Moreover, it is the coming country. I may be able to make money out there, and money is a necessity at present."

"I do not like it, Jack," she said in a foreboding voice. "When do you go?"

"At once. In fact, I came to say goodbye. It is better to do these things very promptly; to disappear before the outlooks have quite understood what is happening. When they begin to understand, they begin to interfere. They cannot help it. I will write to Lady Cantourne, if you like."

"No, I will tell her."

So he bade her goodbye, and those things that lovers say were duly said; but they are not for us to chronicle.

CHAPTER IV.

IN his stately bedroom on the second floor of the quietest house in Russell square Mr. Thomas Osgood—the eccentric Osgood—lay, perhaps, a-dying.

Thomas Osgood had written the finest history of an extinct people that had ever been penned; and it has been decreed that he who writes a fine history and paints a fine picture can hardly be too eccentric. Our business, however, does not lie in the life of this historian—a life which certain grave viscerators from the west (end) had shaken their heads over a few hours before we find him lying prone on a four-poster, counting for the thousandth time the number of tassels fringing the roof of it. In bold contradiction of the medical opinion, the nurse was, however, hopeful. Whether this comforting condition of mind arose from long experience of the ways of doctors or from an acquired philosophy it is not our place to inquire. But that her opinion was sincere is not to be doubted. She had, as a matter of fact, gone to the pantomime, leaving the patient under the immediate eye of his son, Guy Osgood.

During the last forty-eight hours Guy Osgood had made the decision that life without Millicent Chyne would not be worth having, and in the midst of the great house he was pondering over this new feature in his existence. Like all deliberate men, he was placidly sanguine. Something in the life of a savage sport that he had led had no doubt taught him to rely upon his own nerve and capacity more than most men do. It is the indoor atmosphere that contains the germ of pessimism.

His thoughts cannot have been disturbing, for presently his eyes closed and he appeared to be slumbering. If it was sleep, it was the light unconsciousness of the traveler; for a sound so small that waking ears could scarce have heard it caused him to lift his lashes cautiously. It was the sound of bare feet on carpet.

Through his lashes Guy Osgood saw his father standing on the hearth rug within two yards of him. There was something strange, something unnatural and disturbing, about the movements of the man that made Guy keep quite still—watching him.

Upon the mantelpiece the medicine bottles were arranged in a row, and the "eccentric Osgood" was studying the labels with a feverish haste. One bottle—a blue one—bore two labels; the smaller one, of brilliant orange color, with the word "Poison" in startling simplicity. He took this up and slowly drew the cork. It was a liniment for neuralgic pains in an overwrought head—belladonna. He poured some into a medicine glass, carefully measuring two tablespoonfuls.

Then Guy Osgood sprang up and wrenched the glass away from him, throwing the contents into the fire, which flared up. Quick as thought, the bottle was at the sick man's lips. He was a heavily built man, with powerful limbs. Guy seized his arm, closed with him, and for a moment there was a deadly struggle, while the pungent odor of the poison filled the atmosphere. At last Guy fell back on art; he tripped his father cleverly, and they both rolled on the floor.

The sick man still gripped the bottle, but he could not get it to his lips. He poured some of the stuff over his son's face, but fortunately missed his eyes. They struggled on the floor in the dim light, panting and gasping, but speaking no word. The strength of the elder man was unnatural—it frightened the younger and stronger combatant.

At last Guy Osgood got his knee on his father's neck, and bent his wrist back until he was forced to let go his hold on the bottle.

"Get back to bed!" said the son breathlessly. "Get back to bed!"

Thomas Osgood suddenly changed his tactics. He whined and cringed to his own offspring, and begged him to give him the bottle. He dragged across the floor on his knees—£3,000 a year on its knees to Guy Osgood, who wanted that money because he knew that he would never get Millicent Chyne without it.

"Get back to bed!" repeated Guy sternly, and at last the man crept suitably between the rumpled sheets.

Guy put things straight in a simple, manlike way. The doctor's instructions were quite clear. If any sign of excitement or mental unrest manifested itself the sleeping draft contained in a small bottle on the mantelpiece was to be administered at once, or the consequences would be fatal. But Thomas Osgood refused to take it. He seemed determined to kill himself. The son stood over him and tried threats, persuasion, prayers, and all the while there was in his heart the knowledge that unless his father could be made to sleep the reputed three thousand a year would be his before the morning.

It was worse than the actual physical struggle on the floor. The temptation was almost too strong.

After awhile the sick man became quieter, but he still refused to take the opiate. He closed his eyes and made no answer to Guy's repeated supplication. Finally he ceased shaking his head in negation and at last breathed regularly, like a child asleep.

Afterward Guy Osgood reproached himself for suspecting nothing, but he knew nothing of brain diseases—those strange maladies that kill the human in the human being. He knew, however, why his father had tried to kill himself. It was not the first time. It was panic. He was afraid of going mad, of dying mad like his father before him. People called him eccentric. Some said that he was mad, but it was not so; it was only fear of madness. He was still asleep when the nurse came back from the pantomime in a cab, and Guy crept softly downstairs to let her in.

They stood in the hall for some time while Guy told her in whispers about the belladonna liniment. Then they went upstairs together and found Thomas Osgood, the great historian, dead on the floor. The liniment bottle, which Guy had left on the mantelpiece, was in his hand—empty. He had feigned sleep in order to carry out his purpose.

They picked him up and laid him reverently on the bed, and then Guy went for the doctor.

"I could," said the attendant of death, when he had heard the whole story, "I could give you a certificate. I could reconcile it, I mean, with my professional conscience and my—other conscience. He could not have lived thirty hours. There was an abscess on his brain. But I should advise you to face the inquest. It might be—"

He paused, looking keenly into the young fellow's face—"it might be that at some future date, when you are quite an old man, you may feel inclined to tell this story."

Again the doctor paused, glancing with a vague smile toward the woman who stood beside them. "Or even nurse," he added, not troubling to finish his sentence. "We all have our moments of expansiveness. And it is a story that might easily be discredited."

So the eccentric Osgood finished his earthly career in the intellectual atmosphere of a coroner's jury. And the world rather liked it than otherwise. The world, one finds, does like novelty, even in death. Some day an American will invent a new funeral, and, if he can only get the patent, will make a fortune.

The world was, moreover, pleased to pity Guy Osgood with that pure and simple sympathy which is ever accorded to the wealthy in affliction. Every one knew that Thomas Osgood had enjoyed affluence during his lifetime, and there was no reason to suppose that Guy would not step into very comfortably lined shoes. It was unfortunate that he should lose his father in such a tragic way, and the keen eye of the world saw the weak point in his story at once. But the coroner's jury was respectful, and the rest of society never so much as hinted at the possibility that Guy had not tried his best to keep his father alive.

Among the letters of sympathy the young fellow received a note from Lady Cantourne, whose acquaintance he had successfully renewed, and in due course he called at her house in Vere Gardens to express somewhat lamely his gratitude.

Her ladyship was at home, and in due course Guy Osgood was ushered into her presence. He looked round the room with a half suppressed gleam of searching which was not overlooked by Millicent Chyne's aunt.

"It is very good of you to call," she said, "so soon after your poor father's death. You must have had a great deal of trouble and worry. Millicent and I have often talked of you and sympathized with you. She is out at the moment, but I expect her back almost at once. Will you sit down?"

CHAPTER V.

"AND what do you intend to do with yourself?" asked Lady Cantourne when she had poured out tea. "You surely do not intend to mope in that dismal house in Russell square?"

"No, I shall let that if I can."

"Oh, you will have no difficulty in doing that. People live in Russell square again now, and try to make one believe that it is a fashionable quarter. Your father stayed on there because the carpets fitted the rooms and on account of other ancestral conveniences. He did not live there. He knew nothing of his immediate environments. He lived in Phœnicia."

"Then," continued Guy Osgood, "I shall go abroad?"

"Ah! Will you have a second cup? Why will you go abroad?"

Guy Osgood paused for a moment. "I know an old hippopotamus in a certain African river who has twice upset me. I want to go back and shoot him."

"Don't go at once; that would be running away from it—from the hippopotamus—from the inquest. It does not matter being upset in an African river; but you must not be upset in London by an inquest."

"I did not propose going at once," replied Guy Osgood, with a peculiar smile which Lady Cantourne thought she understood. "It will take me some time to set my affairs in order—the will and all that."

Lady Cantourne waited with perfectly suppressed curiosity, and while she was waiting Millicent Chyne came into the room. The girl was dressed with her habitual perfect taste and success, and she came forward with a smile of genuine pleasure, holding out a small hand neatly gloved in suede. Her ladyship was looking, not at Millicent, but at Guy Osgood.

"Ah!" said Miss Chyne. "It is very good of you to take pity upon two lone females. I was afraid that you had gone off to the wilds of America or somewhere in search of big game. Do you know, Mr. Osgood, you are quite a celebrity? I heard you called the 'big game man' the other day; also the 'travelling fellow.'"

The specimen smiled happily under this delicate handling.

"Mr. Osgood has just been telling me," interposed Lady Cantourne conversationally, "that he is thinking of going off to the wilds again."

"Then it is very disappointing of him," said Millicent, with a little droop of the eyelids which went home. "It seems to be only the uninteresting people who stay at home and live humdrum lives of enormous duration."

"He seems to think that his friends are going to cast him off because his poor father died without the assistance of a medical man," continued the old lady meaningly.

At this moment another visitor was announced and presently made his appearance. He was an old gentleman of no personality whatever, who was nevertheless welcomed effusively because two people in the room had a distinct use for him. Lady Cantourne was exceedingly gracious. She remembered instantly that horticulture was among his somewhat antiquated accomplishments, and she was immediately consumed with a desire to show him the conservatory which she had built out from the drawing room window. She took a genuine interest in this abode of flowers and watered the plants herself with much enthusiasm—when she remembered.

Added to a number of positive virtues the old gentleman possessed that of abstaining from tea, which enabled the two horticulturists to repair to the conservatory at once, leaving the young people alone at the other end of the drawing room.

Millicent smoothed her gloves with downcast eyes and that demure air by which the talented fair imply the consciousness of being alone and out of others' earshot with an interesting member of the stronger sex.

Guy sat and watched the suede gloves with a certain sense of placid enjoyment. Then suddenly he spoke, continuing his remarks where they had been broken off by the advent of the useful old gentleman.

20-gauge steel may do for common furnaces, but nothing less than 14-gauge heavy sheet steel is considered good enough for the "Magnet" radiators.

This not only gives the "Magnet" radiators greater strength, more years of service, but far and away more heating power as well—which means they will radiate a greater degree of comfort-giving warmth than the usual lighter, 20-gauge radiators.

McClary's Magnet Furnace

Remember, too, that all bolts are on the outside, where they cannot be burned off by the heat. Neither is it possible for them to catch the soot and dirt, allowing it to lodge around them, interfering with the draft, besides rotting them off—an expensive fault of many furnaces.

"MAGNET" is built with the idea of outlasting other furnaces—and it lives up to the idea, too.

Built for wood, but will also burn coal.

Sold by enterprising dealers everywhere.

DOINGS AT CAMP SUSSEX.

An Interesting Description of Military Life By a Newcastle Militiaman.

TUG OF WAR.

Measles, Mumps and Bad Weather Lessen the Comfort of the Soldiers.

There are in camp over 2,300 men, Col. White, D. O. C., being the commanding officer. The soldiers are divided into regiments, each of which is characterized by a certain uniform. Those under cover are the 10th field battery, 12th field battery, 8th Hussars, Brighton Engineers, 67th regiment, 71st regt., 73rd regt., 24th regt., Army service corps, and medical corps.

Among artillery circles (10th and 12th Battery C. F. A.), a new feature of the camp is the qualifying of the gun layers for shooting at Petewawa. Heretofore it was customary for each competing battery to send eight gun layers to Petewawa to qualify for gun laying and it had to be done every year notwithstanding that some of them may have qualified previous years. They had to qualify each year. This year, Colonel Ogilvie is on the ground himself and assisted by two drill instructors, is giving a course to the gun layer by which they may qualify here on the field. Should they fail to qualify here they cannot go to Petewawa for artillery practice at gun layers.

The Artillery here these days is very conspicuous, roaming through ploughed fields, tramping down rain or at gun drill, searing horses.

Camp life is not without its pleasure. Each night a camp fire is lighted in the great hollow and an extensive programme is carried out by one of the regiments under whose auspices the entertainment is held for the enjoyment of the hundreds of people who watch with interest the proceedings from the hill side. The most interesting programme since the opening of camp was carried out under the auspices of the 12th field battery assisted by 73rd band Tuesday last. Among the numbers on the programme was the high dive act by the dog "Tony" owned by Sergeant Ryan of Woodstock. While the programme was being carried out a large fire of brush and oil barrels raged and cast a bright light on the platform erected for the performers. The programme was as follows: 1, Selection by the 73rd band; 2, Solo, Gunner Sharp; 3, High dive by "Tony"; 4, Band selection; 5, Original composition by Signal Sgt. Rossbury; 6, Solo, Gunner Martin; 7, Tug-of-war between 12th field battery and 8th Hussars; 8, Band selection; 9, Contortionist act, Gunner Serrell; 10, Reading, Gunner Kerr; 11, High dive by "Tony"; 12, Band selection; 13, God Save the King.

The tug-of-war was an interesting event and was won by the 12th field battery. The defeated team has challenged any team in camp and will likely meet the artillery again.

COLLINS' SECOND TRIAL ENDED.

Prisoner Takes Stand on His Own Behalf—Judge Charges Strongly Against Him.

JURY DISAGREE.

Stand Seven for Acquittal and Five for Conviction.—New Trial September 17th.

The Evidence in the Collins case was completed on the 2nd instant. Collins, who said nothing at the first trial, went on the stand this time in his own defence.

The prisoner took his position in the box when called from the dock, placed his hand upon the book and gave his evidence in a clear and off-hand manner. He gave an outline of his life. He was, he said, one of a family of six children. His father died at their Liverpool home in 1901, and his mother was left with this family. Since the age of thirteen he had followed the sea. Late in May 1906, he left Liverpool and he told of his journeyings until he reached Albert Village where he put up at McAnulty's hotel. It was there that he first met Rev. Fr. MacAuley, with whom he arranged to go to New Ireland as his servant. This was on Saturday week preceding the day of the murder. On Monday he went to New Ireland as arranged. Proceeding, the prisoner outlined his doings on every day during that week. He stated that he had no trouble with the housekeeper, but that he had made up his mind to leave while the priest was away on his mission. For a day or two previously he had been collecting the articles which were found in the valises which he took with him.

On Monday morning he and Mary Ann MacAuley had harnessed the horse in the stable, she showing him how to arrange the harness with the exception of the reins, as he knew nothing about a horse. After that Miss MacAuley had taken a new pair and had gone to a spring behind the church for water. While she was in the brush, about 150 rods away, and on a night, he went into the house, took the two valises and went across the road, passing through the graveyard. He was soon out of sight in the bushes.

Collins stated that the witnesses who told of his wanderings after leaving the priest's house had outlined them correctly. He swore, however, that when he left the house Miss MacAuley was in good health and was getting water at the spring.

Judge Tuck charged strongly against the prisoner. Mr. McKewen spoke in his defense for two hours and seven minutes.

The case went to the jury Tuesday evening, 2nd instant. They failed to agree, and were sent back again, but when the court opened on Thursday morning, they had still failed to agree and were discharged. The vote was: For conviction, 5; for acquittal, 7.

The clerk adjourned the Court to Tuesday, the 17th September next, at 11 a. m., when the third trial will begin.

WHAT IS A BLENDED FLOUR?

Cooking schools and cooking experts have never grown so enthusiastic over any other flour, as they have over blended flour. And the enthusiasm is well merited.

What is blended flour you ask?

It is a blend, adopted for some time by most millers, consisting of Ontario fall wheat (which is sown in the autumn and reaped in the late summer), and Manitoba spring wheat, the fall. The first is mellowed, and given a rich consistency and fine flavor by remaining all winter in the ground, maturing slowly during the summer months. Up in the Northwest they have several hours more sunshine every day in summer than comes to more southern fields, and wheat matures quickly into hard, flinty grain containing a large percentage of gluten. These two wheats, when blended scientifically in just the right proportion, make the most nutritious, finely flavored and successful flour that can be obtained.

Blended flour is unreservedly recommended by those learned in culinary mysteries for both bread and pastry.

There is no doubt that Blended Flour is the perfect flour.

THE GREAT IDAHO TRIAL.

Horsley's Evidence Being Discredited by Revelations of Witnesses For the Defence.

CROOKED DETECTIVES.

Western Federation of Miners Re-Elect Accused President and Secretary.

Boise, Idaho, July 2.—In the Haywood trial to-day, Max Malich swore that Alfred Horsley (alias Harry Orchard), the chief witness for the prosecution, on whose evidence the state hopes to convict Wm. D. Haywood of murdering Ex-Gov. Steunenburg, had suggested to him (Malich) the inhuman plot of dynamiting a boarding-house full of non-union smelter men at Globeville, and that Horsley also advocated to him the assassination of Wm. McDonald, one of Malich's business rivals.

E. L. McPartland, a brother of James McPartland—the detective who worked up the case against Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone and obtained Horsley's alleged confession—took the stand as a witness for the defence. He testified that during the strike at Victor he was unceremoniously taken from his shoemaker's bench by the militia, thrust into the "bull-pen" and then deported.

Eugene Englee swore that Orchard told him of the loss of a rich share in the Hercules mine and of his intention to kill Steunenburg.

Thomas C. Foster, now of Bisbee, Arizona, who as a union miner was tried and acquitted at Cripple Creek on the charge of attempting to wreck a train, told of his experience in the "bull-pen" and of the attempt of Detectives D. C. Scott and K. C. Sterling to force a confession from him, which was followed by seventeen days of solitary confinement, and of his final flight from the district, when he walked thirty miles and fasted over thirty hours.

Denver, Colo., July 2.—Charles H. Moyer was retained as President and William D. Haywood as Secretary-Treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners in convention to-day.

Boise, Idaho, July 3.—To-day the prosecution served notice of its intention to submit a series of motions to strike out evidence of the defense unless the connecting testimony that has been promised is forthcoming. The defence showed that union miners had been abused by mine owners and militia at Cripple Creek and Telleride. There was a showing that Pinkerton agents had advised violence and endeavored to prolong a strike; a woman who had served at the relief committee that looked after the families of the deported miners at Cripple Creek, swore that she had been twice arrested and twice warned that if she persisted in her work she would be deported, and another woman placed Orchard with deceives Scott and Sterling the night of the second attempt to wreck the Florence and Cripple Creek train. David Coates, formerly governor of Colorado, positively denied Horsley's version of the plot to kidnap the children of August Paulson; and Patrick Moran denied that he (Moran) made a trip from Cheyenne to Denver to get money from Pettibone for Horsley. The trial was postponed till after July 4th.

OBITUARY

MRS. FRANCIS BOCKLER.

Early yesterday morning the death occurred of Mrs. Francis Bockler, in the 76th year of her age. Deceased had been a great sufferer for several months. In March she fell and broke her arm, and although the fracture healed, she never recovered from the shock. Her family were all around her bedside at the hour of death. She leaves a husband and five daughters. The latter are Mrs. M. Allison, Hurricane Isle, Me., Mrs. F. L. Belknap, Methuen, Mass., Mrs. C. G. Demille, Moncton, and Misses Minnie and Addie at home. Mrs. Bockler was a consistent and much respected member of St. James' Presbyterian church. She was the daughter of the late Wm. Murray of Newcastle.
