ELECTION IN NEWFOUNDLAND

The Liberal Victory Is Complete—Morine's Following Gets Four Seats Only.

St. Johns, Nfld., Nov. 13.—Morine's discomfiture is complete. Premier Bond, with two colleagues, has carried Twillingate, increasing the majority from 230 to 1,000. Morine's majority in Bonaville was reduced to 1,190. The Ionides have also carried Placentia by a majority of 1,300. At the last election the Tory majority was 700. Bond now has 27 and Morine 4. Five seats are yet to report. Secularism completely failed to help Morine's fortunes. Purely Protestant increased the majority against him sevenfold. Twillingate, under like conditions, increased fivefold.

COLLISION—TEN INJURED.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Nov. 14.—Ten persons were injured in a collision between a northbound Lake Shore passenger and an extra train, which met head-on three miles south of this city yesterday. The injured are: N. J. Curtis, baggage man; Grand Rapids, badly bruised and internally injured; Thomas Warrington, express messenger, Grand Rapids, badly bruised and internally injured; Brakenham Adams, of the freight train, collar-bone and leg broken. The other seven, with the firemen and engineers in the two engines, escaped with slight injuries. The engines met on a curve in a blinding snowstorm.

LORD ROSSLYN APOLOGIZES

For Charging British Officers With Cowardice.

Lord Roberts Emphatically Denies the Accusation.

Sharp Training in South Africa—British Now Matching the Boers in the Matter of Stratagems and Wiles.

ROSSLYN'S APOLOGY

London, Nov. 13.—Lord Roberts, in response to an inquiry from the Prince of Wales, has telegraphed, authorizing a denial of the charges of cowardice made in Lord Rosslyn's book against British officers in the Sannas Post affair.

Lord Rosslyn, in view of Lord Roberts' denial, has written to the Prince of Wales, regretting that he was misinformed and tendering an apology in the following language: "I regret that I have been able to honor my publication of a groundless report has called in question, the deepest apology and the fullest reparation. I offer it to you, sir, as colonel-in-chief. I offer it to the colonies of the various regiments; I offer it to every officer, non-commissioned officer and man, and I sincerely trust that this unqualified apology will be accepted in the spirit in which it is offered."

GOOD TRAINING.

There are fresh details of eight or ten minor actions and skirmishes all the way from Orange River to Lydenburg. The conclusion that may fairly be drawn from this revival of hostilities is that the British army is now thoroughly alert, inured to service, remarkably mobile and more than a match for Boer wiles and stratagems. The Boers are now out-maneuvred and surprised, and the British cannot be entrapped, even by Dewet. Much is said in London about the necessity for revolutionizing the whole system of military training. Too little stress is laid on the fact that an army of over 200,000 men is now having in South Africa the most strenuous possible training in the art of war.

HOMES FOR HOMELESS BOERS.

"Holland has expressed a willingness," says the Berlin correspondent of the London Daily Express, "to purchase, on behalf of Mr. Kruger, for the exiled Boers, a portion of German Southwest Africa."

The German government has officially notified the colonial council that it will gladly grant permission to 1,000 Transvaal Boers to trek through the Kalahari desert to territory in German Southwest Africa.

AN EXECUTION.

Bloemfontein, Nov. 13.—Christian Pieter, who was sentenced to death by the military court for complicity in the murder of James Wilson, near Winburg, was hanged yesterday morning.

THE CANADIANS.

London, Nov. 13.—Lord Roberts telegraphs the war office that General Smith-Dorrien reports that some Canadian wounded who fell into the hands of the Boers were subsequently returned in British ambulances to Belfast. They speak highly of the kind treatment they received at the hands of the Boers.

The steamer Hawarden Castle, with the balance of the Royal Canadians, is due at Southampton on the 27th inst. The Canadians number 14 officers and 265 men.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—Rev. Father O'Leary, R. C. chaplain to the Royal Canadians in South Africa, is being greatly honored here. He prefers a quiet holiday, but has, however, attended a luncheon at Government House given by his excellency in his honor.

Pte. J. B. Bull, of B. squadron, Strathcona Horse, was severely wounded, accidentally, at Frederikstad, on the 3rd inst. Pte. J. B. Bull is a young Englishman, who gave his address as 231 High road, Balham, London. He joined B. squadron of Strathcona Horse in Winnipeg. His next of kin is Fred Bull, of London, England.

ELECTION IN NEWFOUNDLAND
The Liberal Victory Is Complete—Morine's Following Gets Four Seats Only.

St. Johns, Nfld., Nov. 13.—Morine's constituency is complete. Premier Bond, with two colleagues, has carried Twillingate, increasing the majority from 230 to 1,000. Morine's majority in Bonaville was reduced to 1,190. The Bonaville vote also carried Placentia by a majority of 1,300. At the last election the Tory majority was 790. Bond now has 27 and Morine 4. Five seats are yet to report. Secularism completely failed to help Morine's fortunes. Purely Protestant increased the majority against him sevenfold. Twillingate, under like conditions, increased fivefold.

COLLISION—TEN INJURED.
Kalamazoo, Mich., Nov. 14.—Ten persons were injured in a collision between a northbound Lake Shore passenger and an extra train, which met head-on three miles south of this city yesterday. The injured are: N. J. Curtis, baggage man; Grand Rapids, badly bruised and internally injured; Thomas Washington, express messenger; Grand Rapids, badly bruised and internally injured; Brakeman Adams, of the freight train, collar-bone and leg broken. The other seven, with the firemen and engineers in the two engines, escaped with slight injuries. The engines met on a curve in a blinding snowstorm.

LORD ROSSLYN APOLOGIZES

For Charging British Officers With Cowardice.

Lord Roberts Emphatically Denies the Accusation.

Sharp Training in South Africa—British Now Matching the Boers in the Matter of Stratagems and Wiles.

ROSSLYN'S APOLOGY

London, Nov. 13.—Lord Roberts, in response to an inquiry from the Prince of Wales, has telegraphed, authorizing a denial of the charges of cowardice made in Lord Rosslyn's book against British officers in the Sannas Post affair.

Lord Rosslyn, in view of Lord Roberts' denial, has written to the Prince of Wales, regretting that he was misinformed and tendering an apology in the following language: "I owe the regiments whose honor my publication of a groundless report has called in question, the deepest apology and the fullest reparation. I offer it to you, sir, as colonel-in-chief. I offer it to the command of the various regiments; I offer it to every officer, non-commissioned officer and man, and I sincerely trust that this unqualified apology will be accepted in the spirit in which it is offered."

GOOD TRAINING.

There are fresh details of eight or ten minor actions and skirmishes all the way from Orange River to Lydenburg. The conclusion that may fairly be drawn from this revival of hostilities is that the British army is now thoroughly alert, insured to service, remarkably mobile and more than a match for Boer wiles and stratagems. The Boers are now out-manoeuvred and surprised, and the British cannot be entrapped, even by Dewet. Much is said in England about the necessity for revolutionizing the whole system of military training. Too little stress is laid on the fact that an army of over 200,000 men is now having in South Africa the most strenuous possible training in the art of war.

HOMES FOR HOMELESS BOERS.

"Holland has expressed a willingness," says the Berlin correspondent of the London Daily Express, "to purchase, on behalf of Mr. Kruger, for the exiled Boers, a portion of German Southwest Africa."

The German Government has officially notified the colonial council that it will gladly grant permission to 1,000 Transvaal Boers to trek through the Kalarari desert to territory in German Southwest Africa.

AN EXECUTION.

Bloomfontein, Nov. 13.—Christian Pieters, who was sentenced to death by the military court for complicity in the murder of James Wilson, near Winburg, was hanged yesterday morning.

THE CANADIANS.

London, Nov. 13.—Lord Roberts telegraphs to the War Office on the 27th inst. The Canadians number 11 officers and 265 men.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—Rev. Father O'Leary, R. C. chaplain to the Royal Canadians in South Africa, is being greatly honored here. He prefers a quiet holiday, but has, however, attended a luncheon at Government House given by his excellency in his honor.

Pte. J. B. Bull, of B. squadron, Strathcona Horse, was severely wounded, accidentally, at Fredericksstad, on the 3rd inst. Pte. J. B. Bull is a young Englishman, who gave his address as 231 High road, Balham, London. He joined B. squadron of Strathcona Horse in Winnipeg. His next of kin is Fred Bull, of London, England.

COL. LESSARD'S REPORT.
Col. Lessard, commanding the Royal Canadian Dragoons, forwards his diary up to Oct. 1.

Pte. H. M. Marshall has been struck on the forehead, having been transferred to the Transvaal constabulary. Col. Lessard quotes the letter from the officer commanding the troops at Nootgedacht, under date of Sept. 9, which expresses appreciation of the prompt manner in which Pte. Marshall, carried out his duties as camp sentry on the preceding day. "His challenge, followed by prompt action, undoubtedly prevented the camp being surprised, and reflected great credit upon himself and his corps."

His parole statement of Oct. 1 showed 142 men on parade, 87 sick and at rest camps, 36 invalided and 1 missing, out of an establishment of 371.

CREED REVISION

Tabied by the New York Presbytery on a Tie Vote.

New York, Nov. 14.—With a majority of one vote, and that the vote of the moderator, the New York Presbytery decided that the Westminster confession, with its doctrine of predestination, was good enough to remain as the creed of the Presbyterian Church.

The number of votes cast was 142, of which 109 were recorded as votes of clergymen and 33 as votes of elders of the church. Seventy-one of these favored revision and 71 opposed it. Dr. Wiley, the moderator, then cast his vote with the anti-revisionists, and decided the matter.

REACHING A SETTLEMENT

Conference of Foreign Ministers at Peking

Is Claimed to Have Made Good Progress—London Press Have Little Faith in the Concert of the Powers.

PEKING, NOV. 12, VIA SHANGHAI, NOV. 14.

A protracted conference of the foreign ministers was held today, at the conclusion of which there was a general expression of gratification at the progress made towards reaching a settlement. It was stated that most of the minor points had been disposed of and that an agreement had been reached upon several essential questions. The ministers will meet again tomorrow.

London, Nov. 14.—A dispatch to the Standard from Shanghai says that Sir Robert Hart, director of the Chinese imperial maritime customs, has been appointed to arrange with the ministers in Peking, the amount of the indemnity to be paid by China and the method of payment.

An imperial edict has been issued appointing Li Hung Chang generalissimo of the Grand Northern Army, replacing the late Li Sheng-shan.

Reliable information from Niu Chwang indicates a disturbed condition of affairs there. Robbers and pirates are harrying the region and ravaging commerce.

The weather is becoming colder, with nightly frosts, but the supply of fuel is good and the troops are not suffering.

Hong Kong, Nov. 14.—The bodies of 22 persons who were killed by the collapse of houses on the shore, in the typhoon which struck Hong Kong last Friday night have been recovered. More than fifty bodies have been taken from the harbor, and the remains of many victims are still to be found. The damage to crops and property is enormous.

A DISCREDITED CONCERT.
London, Nov. 14.—The London morning papers are again agitated over the stability of the concert of powers in China.

The Daily Chronicle comments strongly upon the American attitude as a feeble compromise, which it is impossible to accept. The Standard says: "American opinion on the Chinese problem is too uncertain to be considered seriously."

Dr. Morrison, writing to the Times, expresses the opinion that China will "readily accede to all the terms of the conjoint note except the execution of princes and officials, which it will be impossible to fulfill while the court is in the hands of these very officials."

BRITISH PROTEST.

London, Nov. 13.—Great Britain has made a courteous protest to Russia, says the St. Petersburg correspondent of the Daily Mail, against a few regrettable incidents in China, where Russians have brusquely opposed the holding of the British flag.

WHOLESALE EXECUTIONS.
A new batch of letters from soldiers in China appear in a number of Berlin papers giving horrible details of wholesale executions of Chinamen at Liang Shan and Tai King.

NOTES.
The German foreign office emphatically denies a statement, cabled from London, that negotiations for an extension of the Anglo-American agreement are in progress.

Unconfirmed reports of the death of the dowager empress are becoming persistent. There is a growing belief that she will never return to Peking.

A dispatch from Tientsin says that as a result of the British representation to the St. Petersburg Government Russia is officially handling over the railroad between Tong Ku and Peking to Field Marshal Count Von Waldersee, commander-in-chief of the international forces, who will give it up to the British owners.

OOM PAUL KRUGER

Arrives at Suez En Route to Marseilles—Michael Davitt Talks About the Ex-President.

Suez, Nov. 14.—The Dutch cruiser, Gelderland, with ex-President Kruger on board, has arrived here.

The Gelderland will stop at Port Said only to receive dispatches, and will proceed in a few days to Marseilles, where she is expected to arrive on the 19th.

Mr. Kruger remains secluded in his cabin. His health is good. A delegate of the Marseilles reception committee boarded the Gelderland here, but the eventual destination of the warship will be unknown until she shall arrive at Port Said, where she will coal.

Mr. Kruger received an ovation at the German port of Dan-ers-Salam. Michael Davitt, M.P., has called from Paris to the New York Journal and Advertiser in part, as follows: "It is a unique testimony to the great individuality of President Kruger that his voyage to Europe is watched with more intense interest by the continental press than is the progress of the war in China. All speculation agrees upon two points. There are to be important revelations. In one well-informed quarter it is asserted that Mr. Chamberlain will soon have an opportunity of reading private letters found in Johannesburg, that will place the active complexity of the colonial office in the Jameson raid beyond further dispute. Proof will also be adduced that Kruger purchased the ammunition for the Boer armies from Birmingham firms, in which the family and friends of the colonial secretary have a large direct interest."

REID'S RULE HAS ENDED

The People of Newfoundland in Political Revolt.

Election Results in a Victory for the Liberals
Under the Leadership of Robert Bond—
No More Concessions to the Man Who Owns the Industries of the Island.

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 13.—The parliamentary elections in Newfoundland have resulted in a victory for the Liberals, who claim 20 of the 36 seats in the new legislature. Their leader is Robert Bond, one of the leading statesmen of the colony, a man of wealth, and a bitter political antagonist of R. G. Reid, the "Czar of Newfoundland." Under Bond's leadership the younger and patriotic men have, after a two years' battle, unprecedented in the history of the island, overthrown the ministry controlled by the Reid interests. Reid, who personally controls every industry in the island, needs the consent of the government to enable him to incorporate his immense holdings into limited liability company. The Bond ministry has refused its consent unless Reid would make important concessions demanded by the people. Reid refused, and the whole dispute became the sole issue in the election, which has just resulted favorably to the Bond ministry. The Liberal victory means the elimination of the Reid influence in the government and a more careful protection of the rights of the people.

GROWTH OF REID'S POWER.
The overthrow of the Reid influence in Newfoundland is the culmination of a long continued and bitter agitation. R. G. Reid, although comparatively unknown to newspaper readers in the United States, is one of the colossal figures of the North American continent. He is to Newfoundland what Cecil Rhodes has been to South Africa, with this difference: Cecil Rhodes sought to enlarge the area of British empire in Africa, while Reid has apparently worked only to amass an enormous fortune and to secure personal control of the transportation system and chief industries of Newfoundland. As a result of his energy Reid today practically owns the Newfoundland railways, the steamer lines, wharves, docks, elevators, coal, copper and other mines, the pulp and lumber mills, and a large part of the land in the island. The control of all these many industries has given him a tremendous influence in Newfoundland politics, and his personal control of the government has been almost equal to his grasp on the commerce of the island. His overthrow, therefore, may be regarded as a victory for the people, as remarkable as it was unexpected.

BUILDS A RAILWAY SYSTEM.
Reid went to Newfoundland in 1890 in response to an advertisement by its government calling for a contractor of reputed wealth to build a railroad. Reid was a contractor and a man of wealth. He built the first railway bridge across the Niagara River, the one at Eagle Pass, between Texas and Mexico, several on the Southern Pacific, the "Soo" bridge between Canada and the United States at Sault Ste. Marie, the Lachine bridge entering Montreal, and most of the largest structures over the rivers crossed by the Canadian Pacific.
He was a Scotchman by birth, 60 years ago, a stonemason by trade, a gold seeker in California and Australia, a bridge builder, and went to Newfoundland to become almost a czar. Reid contracted to build a railway wanted by Newfoundland. He agreed to construct 220 miles for $15,000 a mile, and take his pay in 2 1/2 per cent bonds. He carried out his contract, and then Newfoundland entered on a long series of disasters. St. John's was destroyed by fire, there were political convulsions, all the banks failed, business was demoralized, and the government treasury went bankrupt.
During all these disasters Reid went on building railroads, advancing the cost from his own pocket. The government found itself unable to operate the roads, and appealed to Reid. He consented to operate the system for ten years, provided the government would give him in fee simple 5,000 acres of land for each mile. The government jumped at the offer, and signed over to him 2,750,000 acres of land, most of it apparently barren rock and brush-covered marsh. Reid imported experts in mining, lumbering, pulp-

"I hope others will do as I did."

"I suffered for six years with ovarian trouble," writes Mrs. E. Waite, of Chicago, Ill. (Lake View Postoffice). "Sometimes I could hardly walk, and when I had to cough it felt as though a knife was cutting me. My hands and feet were cold all the time. I had such a tired feeling and such a poor appetite, and when I went to bed I slept only about two hours at a time. I got a bottle of 'Favorite Prescription' and by the time I had used two bottles I felt so much better that I continued until I had taken eight bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and now I am so well that my friends remark how well I am looking. I go to bed now and sleep till morning. My appetite is splendid and that tired feeling has left me. I hope others will do as I did—give Dr. Pierce's medicines a fair trial."

making and farming. He discovered mines, built factories, opened farms. GIVEN ENORMOUS CONTRACT.
In 1898 came another period of distress for Newfoundland, and again Reid came to the rescue. He made a new contract, by which he undertook to operate at his own expense the railway system, then 650 miles in length, for a term of 50 years. For the contract he paid into the Newfoundland treasury $1,000,000 in cash, and received a subsidy of 2,500 acres of land for every mile of the railroad. At the end of the 50-year contract Reid was to pay the government $5,000,000 additional, and the railway was to become his own property.

By the same contract Reid also purchased the government telegraph system for $500,000 cash. He also bought the wharves and docks at St. John's, and agreed to build eight steamships for the coastwise traffic. He was to receive a cash subsidy of $100,000 a year for 20 years for operating these steamships.
The land acquired by Reid under the contract included large coal fields, which he bound himself to work, producing not less than 50,000 tons a year, and paying the government a royalty of 10 cents a ton. The contract also gave Reid control of the copper and other mines, the lumber interests and the pulp mills.
The contract was approved by the Newfoundland legislature on March 11, 1898, and on the whole its workings have apparently been beneficial. Large public works have been carried on on a large scale, and Mr. Reid has entered into the fulfillment of his part of the agreement with his usual energy.
Newfoundland, eliminating the lakes, rivers and barren sections, has about 28,000 square miles of arable, mineral and timber lands. Of these Reid owns personally 7,000 square miles—fourth.

POLITICAL POINTS.

Looks as Though Mr. R. L. Borden
Would Be the Conservative Leader.

Toronto Globe: Mr. F. D. Monk, the member for Jacques Cartier, was yesterday mentioned by the Quebec Conservatives for the leadership. His friends claim that he can unite the party in Quebec and Ontario. The name of Mr. R. L. Borden, of Halifax, N. S., however, more frequently heard as the probable leader, it is understood that Mr. Borden, a member of the House of Commons, is a strong supporter of the Reid interests, and the opinion of the old leader will have weight with many Conservatives.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Lincoln-Niagara total vote: Lancaster, 2,120; Gibson, 2,081. Majority for Lancaster, 139.

The returning officer for Nipissing has returned the vote for the election to the government, and a new writ has been issued, fixing the polling day for Dec. 5. By this means the voters' lists of 1900 will be used, and 2,000 more men will vote.

Valentine Winkler, Liberal, and Noah Bowman, Conservative, were nominated for Kildonan-Manitoba, yesterday. This is a vacant seat in the House of Commons. Winkler is a local house, Winkler opposed Richardson in Lisgar for the Dominion House.

The official declaration in East York places W. M. Maclean's majority over Newton W. Rowell at 62.

The official declaration gives 517 as the majority of Mr. W. C. Edwards in Russell.

In South Essex, Mr. W. K. Cowan is elected by a majority of 83. Total vote cast, 4,955; Mr. Cowan receiving 2,559, and Mr. Wigle, 2,456.

The official figures for the South Westchester election give Mr. E. D. Smith, Conservative candidate, a majority of 10 over the Liberal candidate, Mr. W. O. Sealey. The total vote polled was: Smith, 2,584; Sealey, 2,425.

A Muskogean (Mich.) jury found David Klinck guilty of larceny, and he was fined $3. The prisoner told such a pitiful story that the tender-hearted jurymen took up a collection among themselves and paid his fine.

On Tuesday, Magistrate Bartlett, of Windsor, was called on to issue a marriage license by parties who gave their names as Thomas Strudgen, age 81, and Helen Lee, aged 48, of Detroit. Canon Hicks performed the ceremony in his residence.

Word has been received from the Ontario Government exploring party which went north in the spring under the leadership of George R. Gray, and explored principally along the western boundary of Nipissing district. They found copper, gold, nickel and iron in varying quantities. There is good farming land, but it will be inaccessible for many years.

WILL IT BECOME POPULAR?

How Do You Like This New Fad?

Vegetarians, anti-coffee drinkers and food cranks of every description, must now take a back seat, for a new fad has the floor.

A society has recently been formed, members of which pledge themselves to eat no food whatever that has been cooked. They claim that uncooked food is the only rational healthful diet; that our remote ancestors ate no cooked food, and therefore if we do the same, vigor and health will be our reward.

Raw meat, raw potatoes, raw wheat, raw eggs, raw everything, is the enticing all of fare held out to the enthusiastic food crank of the future, and the society proposes to establish restaurants in the larger cities where for this delectable menu may be served daily.

Modern cooking is often a dyspepsia-promoter, because we fry so many foods which should be baked, roasted or boiled, fried food is indigestible, because each particle of food is encased in hot grease, which the digestive juices of the stomach cannot easily penetrate; but properly cooked food is more easily digested than the same food uncooked, and we predict for the new fad a very limited following.

The real cause of indigestion is the lack of Hydrochloric acid and the tones in the stomach, so that no matter how well cooked the food, it cannot be well digested unless the gastric juice is abundant and containing the necessary amount of pepsines to dissolve the food.

Therefore the most sensible cure for poor digestion is to take after each meal some safe and reliable digestive like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which supply pepsines to digest the meat and eggs, and diastase to digest the bread, potatoes and similar starchy foods. Excessive fried food never cures indigestion because they have a digestive effect whatever upon the food; on the other hand, if the food is properly digested there will be no need of laxatives; good digestion does away with constipation.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain pure aseptic pepsin (government test), diastase and the digestive elements which weak stomachs lack, and they cure indigestion by assisting the overworked, run-down stomach in its hard work, until it is restored to its normal condition, when the tablets are no longer needed, but there are thousands of robust men and women who never eat a meal without taking one or two of Stuart's Tablets, because by so doing they can eat what they please and without suffering from indigestion or any bad after-effects.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by druggists everywhere in the United States, Canada and Great Britain.

CAUGHT IN CHURCH

Stealing Pocketbooks of Women Who Are at Prayer or in Confessionals.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 13.—Thieves, pretending to be worshippers, have been stealing pocketbooks from women in the Brooklyn Cathedral. James D. Moore and Arthur Stevens, claiming to belong in Philadelphia, were committed to jail, charged with being the pickpockets. Sexton O'Connor, of the cathedral, and his son appeared against them.

Some of the wealthiest women of the city attend the cathedral. While kneeling at prayer or while in the confessionals, they have been in the habit of leaving their pocketbooks lying in their pews. The sexton's son, in the hour for confessions took a position in the gallery and caught the men at work.

They were arrested on leaving the church.

"SHOOTING STARS"

Astronomers Will Watch for Them—No One Knows Whether the Things Are Going to Drop.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Chicago people may have the chance to see one of the biggest displays of "shooting stars" Wednesday night, and again they may not. Whether the heavenly performance, which has been expected last year and did not come, will be seen this year, is just now the question that is puzzling astronomers. At the University of Chicago no preparations either to count or photograph the Leonids have yet been made; but if tonight shows a clear sky Prof. Lavan and his associates will keep a watch for the forerunners of the big shower, and if they appear they will fix the cameras for use Wednesday night.

Last November astronomers were certain that the showers of Leonids were due, but owing to some deviations in the course of the swarm of meteors they did not arrive.

BRUTAL BURGLAR

Nearly Killed the Wife of a Chicago Millionaire in Her Bed.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—A negro burglar forced his way to the apartment of Mrs. Orrin W. Potter, wife of the millionaire steel man and banker, at their home early this morning, and when discovered in the act of applying a sponge saturated with chloroform to the nostrils of his victim, struck her a fierce blow on the head with a slung-shot.

Just before being struck Mrs. Potter roused the household with a shrill cry for help.

The shock of the blow rendered Mrs. Potter unconscious, and the doctors who were called fear that she may not recover.

This is the second burglary in the Potter residence since last spring. In April last porch-climbers secured $15,000 in diamonds and jewelry. This morning the intruder was frightened away before he had secured anything.

It is an unrivaled life-saver when used for desperate lung diseases. Guaranteed bottles 50 cents and $1 at W. T. Strong & Co. Trial bottles free.

TREES OF THE CITY

Being Destroyed by Too Much Pruning and Crowding.

W. E. Saunders on "The Planting, Care and Pruning of Trees."

Combined Meeting of the Horticultural and Entomological Societies—Brief Addresses by Prof. James of Toronto and Dr. Fletcher of Ottawa—Dr. Bethune's Motion.

The combined meeting of the Horticultural and Entomological Societies was held last evening in the lower audience room at the Normal School, which was completely filled with an interested audience. Besides the city members of the two societies and their friends, there were present from a distance: Prof. C. C. James, deputy minister of agriculture, Toronto; Dr. Thomas W. Rykes, South Quebec, president of the Entomological Society; Mr. H. B. Lyman, of Montreal, director and ex-president; Dr. J. Fletcher and Mr. Arthur Gibson, botanists and assistants, Experimental Farm, Ottawa; and Prof. Wm. Lockhead, O. A. C., Guelph. Prof. James took the chair and delivered an interesting address on the "Intellectual and Moral Influences of Horticulture," citing such prominent names as Parkman, Burroughs, Warner, Hazard, Blackmore and others, as being horticultural enthusiasts as well as eminent writers. Prof. James traced the gradual development of the farmer-citizens of Canada from their commencement, when they were merely grain growers, to the present, when their occupation is much diversified, and requires great intellectual effort, as well as manual effort, leading to the Kills Germs.

That's precisely what Vapo-Cresolene does. You light the vaporizer, the vapor of Cresolene is given off. Not a disease germ can live in this vapor, yet it can't possibly harm even the youngest child. Just naturally breathe-in the vapor; it destroys the germs of the grippe, hay fever, influenza, and whooping-cough. It's the common sense treatment for all troubles of the throat and bronchial tubes.

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. A Vapo-Cresolene outfit, including the Vaporizer, lamp, which should last a lifetime, and a bottle of Cresolene, complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. Illustrated booklet containing physicians' testimonials free upon request. Vapo-Cresolene Co., 120 Fulton St., New York, U.S.A.

covered with leaves above, below and on all sides, it naturally shows that most of our city trees should be grown in this form. And there is but one way to grow them after this manner, and that is by giving them plenty of light, and keeping the trimming-hands at a distance.

In Victoria Park, young as it is, many trees are at this moment ugly and deformed by a want of observance of these conditions, light and trimming, and in fact one can see there some of the most striking examples of how not to grow a tree, that can be found in a long journey. But it seems invidious to single out Victoria Park, when one sees in any part of the city glaring examples of distrust in the Creator's good taste and ability to grow a tree properly.

Many people do their own pruning and do a good deal of it. The idea may not have occurred that the Creator really intended certain trees to grow in certain forms, and that no matter how they may be pruned, that form will always be the ultimate aim of the tree. They fail to realize that the hand of God is omnipotent, and that their best endeavors will only mar the perfection of beauty into which a tree would come if permitted to follow its natural bent.

Many of our trees are implanted deep in the nature of nearly every person. Many people do not realize this until they come into possession of a plot of ground, where a few trees are growing, when their natural affection comes quickly to the surface. But few, however, have this feeling chastened with wisdom to enable them to treat their trees with nearly all want to grow two, three or even a dozen trees in the space that should be given to one, not realizing how much better it would be to have one fine, large, well-shaped, handsome tree, than to have half a dozen stunted, misshapen, lopsided ones, whose only real utility is for consumption as fuel. No better proof of this deeply implanted love can be offered than the fact that it is almost impossible to persuade the average man to part with a single one of his trees, even when the destruction of one means the betterment of the others.

Occasionally, however, one sees a tree, even in London, that has had unlimited chance to develop, and the owners of these grand trees declare they were without price; but these beautiful examples of God's power are all too few. The other extreme is everywhere, and perhaps the most flagrant case in London is in front of the College Institute. There stand three or four misshapen trees, which is now, or has any prospect of being anything but an eyesore, and yet these trees are old enough and have enough nourishment from the soil and light from above to have made specimens as handsome as any in the city had they been given proper opportunity. They are now so far gone that it would be almost impossible to make a really fine tree out of a single one of them; and what has occurred here is in process of occurring all over, where from two to ten trees are planted in the space upon which one large, well-shaped tree would be sufficient.

At irregular intervals a man, called by courtesy a "tree-pruner," more or less authorized by those who rule over us to butcher every inanimate object, travels from street to street, and makes a bad matter still worse.

A gentleman living near my house had last autumn a very handsome cut-leaved birch and a good many maples growing in his front lawn. Noticing that the birch was beginning to suffer from being crowded, I one day complimented him on the beauty of his tree, and suggested that it needed more room in order to retain its beauty. He replied that it was a very nice tree, but it needed pruning, and he was getting a man who understood such things to come and see to it. The beauty of this specimen of birch lies in the long, slender, drooping branches, and in the handsome pyramidal shape of the tree; but this "pruner" sawed off the trunk of this tree at about eight feet from the ground, and left one-third off all the larger limbs, and the tree shorn of all its beauty and with the work of years destroyed. All the tree needed was to receive plenty of light and to be left alone. Such examples are abundant.

I notice lately that the tree pruner is getting in his deadly work at Springbank also. Within the past year or two the poplars, poplars, maples, etc., near the pump-house have been cut down to five feet taken off most of their branches, and from the trunk alone. The object of this treatment is to make the trees look like a very similar attention, and of all trees the spruce needs pruning least, and bears it worst. A pruned spruce is no longer a spruce, but an abortion, unlike anything in nature, and is fit only for the brushpile, for it will never be itself again.

When trees are too many, cut some out. A tree which is too large for its environment can never be made handsome by any amount of pruning, and not only that, but it will spoil others which might be ornamental if space were vacant.

Now, as regards the planting of shade trees. In London the planting of a superfluity of the silver maple (Acer dasycarpum). This is a quick-growing tree of handsome form, but there are many other trees as quick-growing, and many that are slow-growing, and more desirable and very handsome. Our streets should not all be planted with one kind of tree. Monetary saving is not the object when a blighting disease, a devastating insect, affecting possibly only one species of tree, reaches a city planted with that tree only, that place is liable to have very few good trees left. Some 25 years ago the streets of London had a great many locust trees, whose foliage and flowers are quite beautiful, but the locust borer came among them and now they are gone. The maple is a grand tree, hardy, and nobly beautiful, but the Creator has given us many other fine trees also, and doubtless it was never his intention that we should confine ourselves to the planting of one species only. The birches, three or four species of beautiful trees, immortalized in poetry and characteristic of the north, the lofty elm, whose fame as a street tree in few places ago has spread over the entire continent, the fragrant basswood, the evergreen spruces and cedars, the hemlock, which I sometimes think is the handsomest of all our trees, and the nut trees, chestnuts, butternut, and the birds' nest hickories—all these and many more have beauties of their own, and should be largely used, particularly the nut class, which render the parks attractive to the strollers and the birds and the children; and is it not for the children, particularly those of the poorer people, for whose use the parks should mainly exist? I have no patience with the park regulations which say to the children, "Keep Off the Grass." Rather let them say, "Don't destroy it, but enjoy it in every possible way." I hope we will see this principle recognized.

Beauty in the streets and parks is an asset, and should be well looked after, as it is perhaps the greatest attraction of a city. Next to a low tax rate, and although we have many thousands of spoiled, ugly trees, it only for the woodpile, yet there are thousands more growing up, and intelligent care can prevent most of them from following the example set by their elders.

These points on which I have touched affect not only our own city, but almost every city and town in our country, and the need for intelligent care is urgent.

It was only a few weeks ago that an eminent horticulturist wrote in the pages of the Gardener, a leading American magazine, of the folly of planting trees in rows along the drives in parks, a method which is the worst possible, for besides spoiling the artistic appearance of the place, it prevents the people on the drives from the realization and enjoyment of the beauties of either the nearby or the distant view; and yet, despite the fact that this principle is freely stated and admitted by the best authorities, it is the very method which is now being adopted in our river park, which is now in process of formation; and not only that, but the chief part of the trees planted have been soft maples and Norway spruces, the very ones of which Londoners have already far too many. It is to be hoped that ere long different methods may prevail, and that while there is yet time the best may be made of the material now planted, and that the future may be properly provided for by the planting of such trees as will lend variety and beauty to the landscape. How this is to be accomplished is not difficult to tell, for it can only be done by placing the control of such matters in the hands of men who have given thought and study to the subject. Were our own city council, for instance, to appoint for 1901 a committee consisting of a few such men, and give them a free hand on the matter, the effect on the appearance of our city parks and streets would be great and lasting.

I have not touched upon the matter of shrubs and flowering plants, but it would be easy to make a grand improvement over present conditions were the plan above mentioned to come into action, and no plan would be complete that did not aim at the results in these points, as well as others; but a shrub may be at its best in five or ten years, a tree is the growth of decades, and neglect for ten years may ruin the result of 25 years careful work and thought.

The room having been darkened, Dr. Fletcher, of Ottawa, well and favorably known to Londoners, gave an address illustrated by many beautiful magic lantern slides, taking up first the most common examples of specimen trees, and then turning to entomological subjects, he showed many slides of the most destructive insects, giving a short sketch of the life history of each, together with appropriate remedies to check or annul their ravages.

A short discussion on the address given was then held, and it being evident that the opinion of the meeting was that some steps should be taken to improve the state of our city's trees, it was moved by Dr. Bethune "That this meeting of the Horticultural and Entomological Societies indorses the idea that the control of the city's horticulture should be in the hands of men who have made this science a study; and that this meeting urges upon the city council the advisability of placing in the hands of a small committee of citizens the entire control of the shade trees on the streets and in the parks of London, believing that in this way only can the best results be accomplished, and that the secretaries of the two societies are hereby instructed to send copies of this resolution to the mayor and the city clerk early in January, 1901, asking that it be brought before the council at the earliest possible moment, and requesting that action be taken thereon."

This motion was seconded by Mr. George B. Kirk, who heartily approved of the paper read by Mr. Saunders, and felt that it was high time some such steps should be taken. The motion was carried unanimously.

During the evening the proceedings were interspersed with choice music, and a fine vocal solo by Miss Murphy, pianist, and Mrs. Edna S. Robb, soprano, to whom a vote of thanks was tendered for their artistic services.

A Lesson to the World.

The three elections which were looked forward to at the beginning of the present year, in the Anglo-Saxon world, are now over. As was foreseen, the Government has been sustained in all three cases. Now in each of these countries political life will run its normal course for a few years more; the government will administer the affairs of the country; and the Opposition will discharge the painful, but necessary duty of watching and criticizing. These three elections, coming as they have done all in one year, and that the closing year of the century, furnish an object lesson to the world, and especially to those who, in all civilized lands, take an interest in the study of politics. The attention of the world is drawn to the way in which the people of the Anglo-Saxon race manage their affairs. An impartial observer must admit that they have attained a large measure of freedom joined with stability.

There are those in recent times who have preached the gloomy doctrine that parliamentary institutions are decaying, and that we must get back to some more autocratic form of government in order to have a really stable and satisfactory state of affairs. When one looks at the frequent changes of government in France, we begin to be afraid that something of the kind must happen there; but as the evil day is warded off, and the republic comes through one storm after another, we feel that there is real hope that parliamentary institutions may be acclimated in the chief country of the Latin race. But at any rate these institutions are of the very essence of political life in Britain and America, and the influence of these great commonwealths in all the divisions of the world must have a powerful influence.

In each of the three countries a great bloodless battle has been fought, and the people loyally accept the result, and turn to their work feeling that another short chapter in the history of their country's life is closed. There is, of course, disappointment, and in some localities, real bitterness; but, as a whole, the country feels that the contest has been fairly fought, and the issue decided by the judgment of a free people.

This kind of thing never existed before in the history of the world on such a large scale and in such perfect condition. It involves constant change and readjustment, but, on the whole, it suits the genius of the people, and meets the practical needs of the times. This system rests upon the assumption that the people, as a whole, are the best judges of what is good for them, and that it is safe to appeal to them on broad principles of policy. Superfine, cynical men will always sneer at this, but we are committed to it, and while, perhaps, there is no sphere where human imperfection is more clearly seen than in politics, we think that on the whole there is no need to be ashamed of the exhibitions of political activity that have been given to the world in these three great elections.

Lord Salisbury at the Guildhall.

The Prime Minister's speech at the Guildhall, on the occasion of the Lord Mayor's banquet, is always looked forward to as an interesting and important event in the political and diplomatic world. Considering his somewhat cynical temper, Lord Salisbury seems to have been in a fairly contented mood. We may presume that he is content with the British elections, though even he might well be satisfied with a smaller majority. He openly expressed his satisfaction with the result of the American elections. Some of the English journals seem to think that whatever his feelings may be, he would have done well to be less effusive in speech on that score. Mr. Bryan congratulated Mr. McKinley on his success, and we suppose it is quite in order for outsiders to do the same; but seeing that the anti-English feeling seems to be dying down in the United States, it appears to be advisable for British statesmen to be very careful in their public references to American politics. The Americans pride themselves on their political independence, and it is well to avoid giving any color to the charge that either party is too much given to following the lead of British statesmen. However, Lord Salisbury is a strong-minded man, and will follow his own course, and he certainly does not make the glaring indiscretions in dealing with foreign nations that are perpetrated by his colleague, Mr. Chamberlain.

The British Prime Minister acknowledged that so far as the situation of Britain in the world is concerned, it is time for serious thought and steady action. The defenses of the Empire must be looked to and made thoroughly reliable. That is a point upon which all are agreed at home and abroad. It is important to avoid the spirit of panic, and to keep clear of needless extravagance, but so great are the interests at stake that any government would be held worthy of severe blame that did not see that the defenses of the Empire were kept in an efficient state.

Somewhat different feelings will be aroused by Lord Salisbury's references to the late war. To acknowledge that blunders were made, and discreditable things done, but that the best thing is to inquire as little as possible into such matters—this is not the tone that will be appreciated by those who think that the important thing is to learn thoroughly the lessons of these recent terrible experiences, however painful the process may be. This is from the point of view of the independent citizen, the least satisfactory part of the Prime Minister's address. We can all join in his prayer that Lord Roberts may be saved from further personal bereavement, and we can all appreciate the skill and patriotism of that great general. But there is a feeling abroad that the tone of Lord Salisbury's speech must be taken to mean that the question of Army Reform is not to be dealt with as thoroughly as the case requires. If this turns out to be true, it will be a disappointment to many who helped to give Lord Salisbury his present immense majority.

At last accounts, there was a neck and neck race for the Opposition leadership by Messrs. Clarke-Wallace, Dr. Sprague, W. F. McLean and John Haggart.

There will be, meteorologists say, a fine shower of meteors tonight. There must have been another shower on Wednesday last, judging by the number of politicians who do not know what struck them.

La Patrie, the newspaper of which Hon. Mr. Tarte's sons are editors, ends its editorial review of the great Liberal victory in Canada with: "God Save the Queen! God Save Canada!" A wish in which we can all heartily join.

The St. John Sun tells us that at all meetings addressed by Hon. Geo. E. Foster he was received with "torrents of applause." On election day, however, he was overwhelmed by an avalanche of the ballots of the people, and the torrents of applause could not carry him beyond their signal condemnation.

Can the men who were cabinet-makers in 1895-96 be expected to be cabinet-makers in 1907? asked the Bellville Sun on the eve of the election. The people have replied emphatically that no matter what was expected, they are not going to let the wreckers of 1896 manage the affairs of this Dominion.

It is scarcely likely that the numerous Opposition members who, by one device or another on the part of their agents, have squeezed into seats with a majority of 2 or 3, will be allowed to hold the seats. Another contest, and the majority would doubtless be inclined to accept the popular verdict all over the Dominion.

Canadians of all classes have resented the unjust attacks made on the Minister of Public Works. Let the Opposition try to achieve success by promoting principles and not by fomenting prejudices and discord, and they will deserve a better fate than fell to their leaders and the large majority of their candidates on Wednesday night.

At the close of the election in Kingston, Mr. McIntyre, the Conservative candidate, thanked his supporters, some of whom, he said, he was afraid had lost much money on the result. The bigger fools they were to bet. Kingston took the progressive view of matters, and, like London, made up its mind to support the Administration by a decisive majority.

Mr. Calvin, M.P. elect for Frontenac, refuses to be classed as a Conservative. He says he goes to Parliament as an independent member of the House in every sense of the word, and we believe he means what he says. When last in Parliament, Mr. Taylor, Conservative whip, found out that he could not drive Mr. Calvin to vote against what he believed to be right, which much worried the man from Gananoque.

May we venture to assure our friends of the Toronto Mail and Empire that Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Government being again intrusted with the reins of power, there will be, as in the past under Liberal rule, one policy, one country, one empire, one flag. The incendiaries who attempted to make the people believe differently, and who succeeded in some places in making people believe them, have been routed most effectively. They ought to be ashamed of themselves.

The editor of the Scottish League Journal, having approached Mr. Cairne on the subject, by way of reply that good gentleman says: "It appears to me that the duty of the extreme temperance reformer over the next five years is to devote chief attention to the creation of a temperance electorate, by the conversion of a larger number of our citizens to total abstinence principles. We shall never do any real good in Parliament until we get an overpowering public sentiment based upon personal total abstinence."

A recent address by Ian MacLaren contained many Scotch stories, told with admirable skill—skill so admirable that it would be shameful to attempt a repetition. One story, however, may be told, because it seemed to have a real touch of Shakespearean humor. In a dull Scotch village on a dull morning one neighbor called upon another. He was met at the door by his friend's wife, and the conversation went thus:

"Could?"
"Ay."
"Gae to be weety (warty), I think."
"Ay."
"Is John in?"
"On ay, he's in."
"Can I see him?"
"No."
"But a winted to see him."
"Ay, but you canna see him. John's deid."
"Deid?"
"Ay."
"Sudden?"
"Ay."
"Very sudden?"
"Very sudden."
"Did he say anything about a pot of green paint before he deid?"

SHIP CANAL TO OLD LONDON

A Scheme to Build One From Southampton.

New Chief Secretary for Ireland Prohibits a League Meeting and There is a Row—A Royal "Separation."

SHIP CANAL TO LONDON.
London, Nov. 13.—It is reported that Mr. Charles T. Yerkes, the American railroad magnate, is interested in the American scheme for constructing a ship canal from Southampton to London. The route has already been surveyed, and engineers commissioned by an American syndicate have reported that the scheme is feasible. Extensive legal difficulties are in the way of the plan, however, and it would be tremendously opposed by other interests.

THE IRISH LEAGUE.
Dublin, Nov. 13.—The first conflict between the Irish League and the government, under Mr. Charles Wyndham, as chief secretary for Ireland, took place at Ballynagarr, county Wicklow. A meeting there had been prohibited on the ground that it would provoke intimidation and disorder.

John Redmond and John Dillon had previously spoken in Wicklow, denouncing the stupidity and tyranny of the government, but declared that its conduct, synchronizing with Mr. Wyndham's arrival in Ireland, was more valuable than if a hundred meetings were held.

Mr. Redmond led the crowd to Ballynagarr, where there was a strong force of police. A row ensued, during which the police used their batons. Several men were injured. The meeting was subsequently held indoors.

ROYAL SEPARATION.
London, Nov. 13.—The World, of this city, says a judicial separation between Prince and Princess Arlbert of Anhalt (grand-daughter of Queen Victoria) is an accomplished fact. The paper adds that the deeds were signed and other formalities completed during the stay in Berlin of Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, father of the princess. There will not be a divorce. Prince Arlbert not objecting to the course proposed by his wife.

FIERY GALE AND LOSS OF LIFE.
London, Nov. 13.—A fierce gale swept over the English Channel last night, causing a number of wrecks, including the Hilda, bound for Shields, near Weymouth.

The ketch Georgian was lost off Drowning Island. All on board were drowned.

RUSSIA AND JAPAN.
St. Petersburg, Nov. 13.—In the first of a series of articles on the relations between Japan and Russia, the Novoye Vremya makes the prediction, probably inspired, that the estrangement between the two countries will be transient.

The Novoye Vremya says it believes that the powers are becoming convinced that China is unable to pay a war indemnity, and that this discovery will cool the Anglo-German war fever.

THIRTEEN MINERS KILLED.
Berlin, Nov. 14.—Thirteen persons were killed and nineteen others injured seriously in a fire damp explosion in the Plute coal mine at Wiesa, near Brux.

A ROYALIST RISING.
Paris, Nov. 14.—The Figaro this morning makes the following sensational statement: "A recrudescence of royalism is imminent. The Duke of Orleans has ordered meetings in all the wards of Paris, and the movement will be extended to the departments when we get to the capital."

BRITISH CABINET CHANGES.
London, Nov. 14.—Mr. Robert William Hannbury has been appointed president of the board of agriculture, and the Marquis of Londonderry will retain the portfolio of postmaster-general.

KILLED BY A MAD CAT.
Paris, Nov. 14.—A policeman was killed by a cat after a fierce fight with the animal, which an autopsy shows to have been mad. The cat had been terrorizing a tenement house by its unearthly cries, wild jumps and convulsions. The officer cornered the cat in a dark alley, and aimed a blow at it with his sabre, but missed. The creature sprang at him, fastening its claws on his coat and biting and scratching him horribly. It was found that one bite on the neck had severed the carotid artery.

ILLNESS OF THE CZAR.
London, Nov. 14.—From news received here concerning the Czar of Russia's health, it is said his illness is more serious than expected at St. Petersburg. His majesty is confined to his bed with influenza, and the empress dowager has decided to leave Copenhagen for Russia unless the patient is better.

Two hundred and fifty girls, pupils of the Smolny Institute, St. Petersburg, a boarding school patronized exclusively by the nobility, were taken sick with symptoms of poison after dinner recently. It is reported that two have died, but that the others have recovered. The poison is attributed to faulty metallic cooking utensils.

TO PAY FOR THE WAR.
Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, speaking in Bristol, said he wished he could say that he was not about to increase the budget, but the government's expenditure had been enormous, especially in China and South Africa. He declared emphatically, however, that the wealth of the Transvaal would have to bear part of the South African expenses. "Of course," said Sir Michael, "we must not spoil the future of the Transvaal by attempting to impose upon it a greater burden than it could reasonably bear. That would be cutting our own throats. Therefore, the British taxpayers must also bear a large part of the cost of the war." He emphasized the fact that the maintenance of a strong army and navy would involve a further considerable expenditure.

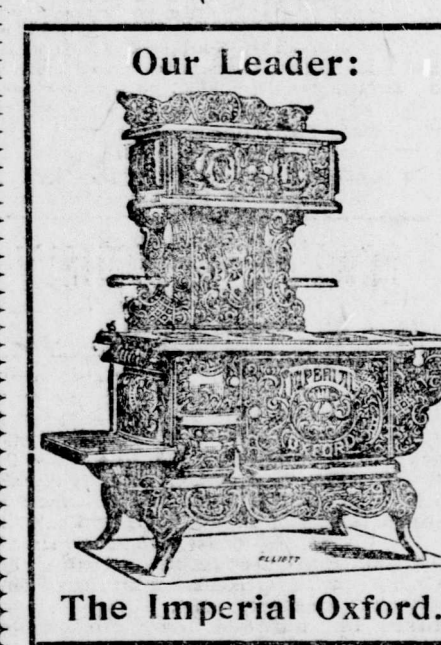

CABLE NOTES.
The Dowager Empress of Russia is again ill at Copenhagen.
Two fresh cases of bubonic plague are reported in Alexandria.
The new British cabinet will probably contain twenty members.

It is officially announced that the Prince and Princess of Wales intend to visit Belfast in April.
The Echo of Paris says that Queen Draga of Serbia, whose marriage a few months ago caused such a sensation, has died of puerperal fever.
The exhibition of Verestchagin's pictures, just opened at Odessa, includes several new works, among which is an allegorical painting portraying the horrors of the Transvaal war.

The Russian minister of agriculture, M. Yermoloff, after visiting the coal deposits recently discovered on the Black Sea coast, in the Government of Kutais, estimates that they will yield 1,600,000 tons annually for 60 years. He considers the quality excellent.

According to a dispatch from Berlin, the Kaiser has given further evidence of his regard for Baron Von Ketteler, who was assassinated in China, by inviting the ambassador's widow to Germany, in order that he may express to her his keen sense not only of her husband's services, but also of the courage and gallantry which she herself displayed throughout the terrible siege of the legations.

THE MARKETS.Local Market*A. M. HAMILTON & SON'S REPORT.

London, Wednesday, Nov. 13.

Wheat, white, per bushel, 63c to 63c

Wheat, red, per bushel, 63c to 63c

Oats, per bushel, 23c to 25c

Peas, per bushel, 40c to 50c

Barley, per bushel, 33c to 41c

Rye, per bushel, 42c to 45c

Buckwheat, per bushel, 41c to 43c

WEEKLY.

Grain—Trade has been light all week owing chiefly to light receipts, and this was the result of bad weather and roads.

Wheat sales ranged from $1 for poor to $1.05 for good quality.

Oats brought about 2c per cwt more on the average than last week, the bulk of sales being made at 73c to 75c;

the demand was good.

Barley—Receipts and demand light.

Sales of feed grades ranged from 70c to 75c, and malting at 80c to 85c.

Peas sold at the wide range of 40c to 50c, the latter for almost pure white and free of bugs.

Corn came in more freely and sold at lower prices, 75c to 80c covering the range.

No rye, beans or buckwheat came on the public market, and the prices given for them are based on transactions at least one week old.

Hay—Deliveries were lighter than usual, and prices higher; bulk of sales changed from $8 to $9; the demand was only moderate.

Straw sold quickly at $3.50 to $4 by the load, and $5 by the ton.

Hogs—Dressed hogs have had a good deal of business this week, the difference between them and the hogs being $2.25 to $2.50 per 100 lbs; $4.50

was the prevailing price of the latter, and $6.75 to $7 for the former. The result was a stimulus to the dressed and a setback to the live hog business.

The demand for dressed is entirely local, and we believe quite limited, and that very little increase in receipts will make lower prices.

Young pigs were a good deal slower, selling at $3.50 to $4.50 per pair.

...FLOUR...

We sell all the leading makes in any quantity and at low prices. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Lola's Secret.

A Romance.

The excitement reached its climax when it began to be rumored that Sir Karl had not gone alone, that Lola de Ferras had been seen in the neighborhood, and that it was with her he was supposed to have eloped. At first the accusation was met with scorn and incredulity, and then with bewildered surprise. The newspapers took up the tale; the Radical organs made the most of it. "Disgraceful Revelation in High Life," "The Vices of the Aristocracy," were the headings of the sensational articles. The religious papers pointed out the moral, and the society journals regretted an event which had blighted three lives and scandalized all England. Everyone who read the story was distressed by it. There seemed to be no redeeming point about it, if such a thing could be possible. Sir Karl had just a beautiful young wife who was devoted to him, and no one could understand the motive which had influenced him. No one in the neighborhood could see any reason for his elopement, and he himself, their names had never been mentioned together; so the matter remained shrouded in mystery.

They tried to keep the society from Bohemia, but she insisted on seeing them; and every time she read but added to the poignancy of her grief.

"Lola told me to remember that her heart was always aching," she said to herself. "Can it have ached worse than mine?"

The squire took up his abode at Seaside; it was quite impossible to leave Dolores. The house, too, was besieged by visitors, old friends and new friends, some to console, some to gratify their curiosity. The squire received them with great dignity; he would spare no pains in every way that lay in his power.

In spite of the details she had heard, of the gossip to which she had been an unwilling listener, of the cruel newspaper yarns, Dolores still entertained a glimmering hope that there might be some fatal mistake. But, as day after day passed and no news came of Sir Karl, that hope grew less, and eventually died.

One morning, when the squire opened the letter bag, he found it contained just such another, thin, square envelope as the one which Sir Karl had received on that fateful day when he had disappeared. On this occasion the letter was addressed to Lady Allammore. If he had followed his first impulse he would have burned it on the spot, but he reflected that it might have some reference to the matter which was engrossing all their thoughts; so he took it up to Dolores, whose face grew pale as she recognized the handwriting.

"This is Lola's," she cried. "Oh, papa, come to me while I read it." He sat by her side while she opened it, and all the light faded from her eyes as they traced the cruel words. "I told you," the letter began, "that I should have my revenge—and I have had it. You have won my lover from me, and I swore to you the time would come when you would suffer as you had made me suffer. I have kept my word; my revenge is complete, great as was the injury I received. I knew the time would come when Sir Karl would tire of you. Women of your type, Dolores, are seldom faithful. You have loved which I waited has arrived. You have loved your last on the man you stole from me. It is my revenge, Dolores. What do you think of it?"

Lady Allammore's face grew deathly white, and her lips trembled as she gave the letter back to the squire.

"Let us keep that, papa," she said slowly, "with the other. They may be useful some day."

"He is with her, then; there is no mistake."

"There can be no mistake; this is proof conclusive," she replied. "I wish," she continued sadly, "that he had written to me, even had it been only to say good-bye."

"It appears to me," said the squire gravely, "that you are entitled to a divorce."

"No," said she, with a shudder, "there is no need of a divorce. He is dead to me, he whom I loved so well; but I shall be true to him. My last faint hope is dead, papa, quite dead."

She lay back on her pillow and a deathly pallor stole over her face.

"Dolores," cried the squire, "my darling, you have the children, you have me."

"But she only waited—"

"Oh, papa, I might but die! Do you think that I can ever face life or the world again? Oh, dearest and best! Let me die! Papa," she whispered, when she had grown calmer, "you may show Lord Rhyssworth the letter, but no one else. He ought to know the truth."

"I wish I were younger; Lola's vengeance would be but short-lived," said the squire. "I wonder if it is retribution? Is this the penalty? I wonder—oh, heaven! Oh, Dolores! Dolores!"

The name came from his lips with a long-drawn sigh as his head fell upon his breast—the bitter sigh with which he had, during the long illness of many years before, constantly reiterated the name, while his unsuspecting wife knelt by his side and wondered who Dolores was. Whether he now referred to his daughter or not, who could say? When they went to his assistance, they found that the squire was dead—dead, with the letter open in his hand. Was it retribution? Had it brought back to his memory some long-past sorrow of his own? Who should tell? Would time ever unfold the mystery?

CHAPTER XXV.

The city of Florence lay smiling in the golden light of the setting sun. Never perhaps had the home of the poets looked more lovely. The sunbeams fell upon the domes and palaces upon the magnificent churches and bridges, upon its countless works of art. On the banks of the Arno, not far from the city, stood a house known as the Villa Baira, surrounded by tall trees and brilliant flowers. No spot could be more favored. On one side of the villa rose purple hills—hills that were covered with vines and olives, and groves of orange and lemon trees, round the stems of which scarlet creepers clung in rich abundance, and masses of passion flowers of every hue, from deepest crimson to creamiest white, tied poppies peeped among the grass. Miles grew in wild luxuriance, and the air was filled with a delicious perfume. The grounds of the villa sloped down to the river. There were no walls or railing at the brink, and some persons said it was not safe, but the mistress of the house had an artist's soul, and loved to see the water echo with the liquid notes of nightingales, and birds of sweetest song haunted the orange groves. A lone sheltered walk led from the villa to the edge of the river, the trailwork which was covered with an enormous vine, which branched out on all sides, and just now was laden with hundreds of bunches of rich dark purple grapes. Cuddly enough, not a rose was to be found in the garden, neither white nor red. The mistress of the place was English and had a strong repugnance to the odor of roses, if the surroundings of the house were attractive, the interior was a marvel of comfort and luxury. The rooms were large and lofty, the windows were framed in passion-flowers. The ceilings were painted, and the walls either paneled or harmoniously tinted. The furniture was English. There were Chippendale chairs and tables, superb marquetry work and fine old china. Italian art and English ideas of taste and comfort combined could scarcely find a more pleasing effect.

On this fair evening a lady stepped from the open drawing-room window and slowly and thoughtfully wended her way through the gardens skirting the avenue of beech and chestnut trees. She passed down the long vine-studded path till she reached a spot where the river rippled over the grass, which was studded with violets. She was a tall and beautiful woman, with a magnificent figure, full of grace and dignity. Her long black dress, richly trimmed with Spanish lace, swept the ground, and on her dainty head was a piece of costly white lace, worn after an artistic fashion of her own. She stood for a time watching the river, which reflected the gorgeous hues of sunset; then she raised her eyes to the gilded domes of the city in the distance—such they were, so unutterably sweet and sad, blue as the violets under her feet, but full of a haunting sorrow that never left them! It was impossible to gaze on the woman's face without divining that there was some pathetic story connected with her life.

Terry McGovern Wins Fight With Broad—Corbett Wants a "Go" With Jeffries.

FISTIC.

CORBETT AFTER JEFFRIES.
After the fight James J. Corbett entered the ring and read a challenge before the Tattersall's Athletic Club. Jeffries to get 10 per cent of the purse, win or lose. If Jeffries does not think that six rounds is a fair test, Corbett will box him 20 or 25 rounds, or to a finish, before any club in the country offering the best inducements, winner to take all.

TERRIBLE TERRY WON.
Chicago, Nov. 13.—Kid Broad, of Cleveland, stayed six rounds with Terry McGovern at Tattersall's tonight, and although McGovern's fight well in hand at some stages, he never had an opponent who came back at him more stoutly and who gave him as much in the same time as did the little stocky fellow who faced him tonight. Broad fought with McGovern at all stages, and scoring two clean knock-downs. A third time he landed a left on McGovern, sending him reeling down. Broad kept his feet throughout the fight, except in the first round, when he was knocked down, and in the sixth, when he went down of his own accord to rest. He could not have fought another, however, and was completely smothered by the storm of blows which the champion rained upon him. The men entered the ring at 10:45. Broad coming first, followed closely by McGovern. Broad was seconded by Tommy Ryan, Harry Forbes and Casper Leon. Bat Masterson acted as his time-keeper. In McGovern's corner was Sam Harris, Sam Boun and Jack Roots, Joe Humphreys holding the watch for him. The fight was made under articles calling for 125 pounds. At 3 o'clock McGovern's weight was announced at 122½ pounds, and Broad's at 125. In the sixth McGovern came out this time to finish his man if possible, and if the round had lasted 30 seconds more he would have done so. He landed a right on the jaw, following it with a left on the nose, which brought blood in a stream; sent a right to Broad's eye, which again brought the blood. He followed Broad around the ring, landing right each time, swinging his arm. A right to the lips split Broad's lips and swelled them tremendously. Unable to stand the blows McGovern sprang in he sank to his knees and remained down for the count, spitting blood in a stream. McGovern was at him the moment he rose, and tried hard for a knock-out. Broad held on with all his strength in the attempt to stay the limit, but without power to fight back. He was clearly gone, had no strength left, and presented a horrible sight as he staggered backward, with McGovern following close up. Broad was hardly able to see because of the blood and filled his eyes, and found it hard to breathe because of the blood that filled his mouth and nose. He was one red smear from his forehead to his waist, and McGovern was little better. Broad, the bell rang with Broad hanging on for dear life and in a half-conscious condition. Referee Siler awarded the decision to McGovern.

two seconds was Jockey Walsh's record at the Aqueduct today. His riding was the feature of an otherwise dull day's sport. The weather was clear and bright, the track fast and attendance good. Favorite players began the day badly, as O'Connor was kicked at the post while on the favorite, Bettie Gray, and Phelan had to be substituted. He rode a good race, but his finish was weak, and Belle O'Neals, with Walsh up, beat him a head on the post. Lady Conary, almost left at the post, was third, only a head away. Walsh followed up his success in the first by winning easily, with Snark in the second, at 8 to 1, and Tiger in the third, at 12 to 1. He made all the running in both races, and won off. Loando was a good favorite in the third race, but after chasing Tatar all the way he was beaten a neck for the place by Excess. Favorites took the last three.

ATHLETICS.

A FIVE-MILE RUN.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 14.—At a meeting of the executive of the Ontario Amateur Athletic Union yesterday, arrangements were completed for the five-mile cross-country race on Saturday. The finish will be in the Rosedale grounds, and the course will be in the Don Valley. The entries already number 23, and include all the best known cross-country runners of the province. Sherring and Williams, of Hamilton; Cockrell, with a fine cross-country record in England as a member of the Salford Harriers, and Smith, of the Royal Canadians, are among the entries.

YACHTING.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Chicago yachtsmen will accept the challenge for the Canada cup, issued by the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, of Toronto. Last year the Canadian club won the cup for the Chicago Yacht Club. According to President Thorne, of the Chicago Yacht Club, a syndicate will be formed just as soon as the official challenge arrives for the purpose of getting a cup defender ready for the race next summer.

SANITARIUM FOR CONSUMPTIVES

It Is Proposed to Establish One in London.

Means of Combatting the Dread Disease Discussed by the Medical Profession.

Alarming Death Rate From the White Plague in Middlesex County.

Dr. Bryce, Secretary of Provincial Health Board, Points Out Need and Value of Such an Institution—Treatment Outlined—The Medical Convention—Public Meeting in City Hall.

Yesterday a movement was inaugurated, which, if carried to its conclusion, will undoubtedly tend greatly to the advancement of the welfare of the public of the city of London and the county of Middlesex. The momentous question of fighting the ravages of the white plague, consumption, a question which has of late taken on added importance, and been considered with increased interest owing to recent discoveries, both as to its deadly nature, and the improved methods of combatting it, received a thorough discussion, in the afternoon, at a largely-attended and representative meeting of the London Medical Association, at which were also present many of the practitioners of the county, and in the evening, at a public meeting in the city hall, which was called to consider the question of the establishment of a sanitarium for the city and county, for the treatment of consumption. The unanimity of opinion manifested at both gatherings was a favorable augury that the undertaking is one that will be carried to a successful issue, and the probabilities are that the city of London and the county of Middlesex will once more prove themselves among the pioneers in adopting a project undertaken in the interests of humanity.

THE AFTERNOON MEETING.
The London Medical Association, through its secretary, Dr. English, had issued invitations to all the members of the profession throughout the county to join with the members of the association in a convention, having for its object the consideration of the medical men who assembled. The chair was occupied by Dr. Balfour, president of the association.

Among the local medical men present were: Drs. R. M. Buckle, Macarthur, Niven, Williams, Hodge, Wishart, Hutcheson, Eccles, Meek, New, Kingsmill, Nelles, Jamieson, John D. Wilson, C. T. Campbell, J. B. Campbell, Seaborn, Owens, Henry Arnold, D. H. Arnold, H. A. Stevenson, W. J. Stevenson, White, Moore, MacLennan, Jarvis, Jento, Tulman, Ferguson, Alexander, D. H. Piper, Macklin, Moorhouse and Thomson. Among the physicians present from the county were: Drs. Lindsay, Thompson, Henderson and McCow, Strachan, Dr. Walker, Glenoe, Dr. Graham, Lobo village, Dr. Glass, Poplar Hill; Drs. Hossack and Orme, Lucan; Dr. Mathewson, St. Marys; Dr. Mitchell, Delaware; Dr. Hytensbach, Appin; Drs. Hughes and Ford, Thorncliffe; Dr. Lang, Granton; Dr. Hosson, Parkhill; Dr. Anderson, Alfisa Craig, and Dr. McEwen, Melrose. There were also present about 25 of the students in attendance at the Western Medical College.

Dr. George Hodge read an interesting and exhaustive paper on "The Home Treatment of Consumption." He emphasized especially the necessity for diagnosis, if success in treatment was to be assured. He said the most frequent causes of the spread of the disease were the sputum of patients and the using of milk from tuberculous cows.

Dr. P. H. Bryce, secretary of the provincial board of health, and to whom is due a great deal of credit for the magnificent work that is being done by the board, said before the meeting the need of sanitariums as the best and only satisfactory treatment for tuberculosis. He presented facts and figures that made evident the success which has followed this method of treatment.

After the conclusion of Dr. Bryce's remarks, a discussion followed, which was participated in by many of the physicians present. All of them expressed their concurrence with the ideas expressed.

The following resolution was unanimously carried:

Moved by Dr. C. T. Campbell, seconded by Dr. Niven, "That in the opinion of this meeting of representative physicians of London and the county of Middlesex, it is of the greatest importance, in the interest of the public health, that a sanitarium for the treatment of consumption should be established in this county, as experience has demonstrated that this disease is contagious, that it is preventable, that patients can seldom have proper treatment at home, that their presence in private houses is a source of danger to the community, and that public sanitariums meet all the requirements of the case."

THE EVENING MEETING.

Mayor Rumball presided at the public meeting held in the city hall in the evening, and with him on the platform were Dr. Bryce, Dr. Balfour, Dr. English, Rev. Dr. Saunders, Warden Murray, Sheriff Cameron and Mr. Thomas Coffey.

The mayor briefly outlined the purpose for which the meeting had been called, that of considering the establishment of a sanitarium, and said that the people of London were never appealed to in vain for anything having for its object the relief of suffering.

Dr. Balfour followed, opening his remarks by saying that the subject of combatting the spread of tuberculosis had already been considered from the scientific standpoint by the doctors' convention in the afternoon, and this meeting was for the purpose of increasing public interest in the movement. He drew a parallel between insanity and consumption, as both being cases in which the government should step in and see that the sufferer from either should be prevented from being a danger to the community. A consumptive, he said, was dangerous not only to his family, but to the whole community. Scarlet fever and smallpox cases were immediately isolated, but with consumptives the danger was so remote that the matter effectively. A person might have consumption for a year and a half without knowing it, and live for one, two, three years, or an indefinite period, in Middlesex county last year there were over 100 deaths from consumption, over 60 of them being in this city. In the province the deaths from this cause last year were greater than in 1898. There were actually on the increase, beyond all doubt that consumption was communicable. Seventy or eighty per cent of the sufferers were from the artisan class, a fact that rendered sanitariums all the more essential, because they were generally not able to obtain proper home treatment. Drugs in the treatment of this disease are now given a secondary place, and the "outdoor treatment" is regarded as of first importance. Every one is subjected every day to the infection of tuberculosis; it is largely a matter of individual resistance.

Dr. Bryce, who was the principal speaker of the evening, opened by saying that it was the duty of the government to do for the individual what he could not do for himself. The doctor traced the recent history of several infectious and contagious diseases. He instanced diphtheria, and said that in thirteen years' time the deaths had been reduced from 1,700 in 1887 to 350 in 1899. There were only 1300 deaths in the province last year from all other infectious disease than consumption; but on the other hand, tuberculosis had not only not been reduced in its effects, but was actually on the increase. Not more than 25 per cent of the cases of consumption were discovered even by medical men before being advanced to the incurable stage. At present one person in every nine in this province is dying of consumption. Dr. Bryce argued that, aside from its sentimental aspect altogether, the saving of 3,500 lives in this province was worthy of a great effort. There was a certainty of cure in some cases, amelioration was possible in others.

FITZSIMMONS WAS BRUTAL

Broke a Horse's Rib With a Hammer—With So Sued.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Nov. 14.—Robert Fitzsimmons, who is touring the country with a play entitled "The Honest Blacksmith," and in which he is the star, is being sued by O. J. Lyon, a local liveryman.

In the play a blacksmith shop scene is presented, and a horse is led in to be shod. For the occasion Mr. Lyon lent a horse, which was owned by his wife, and was a family pet. The horse did not stand very still, and in some manner Fitz fell. This enraged him, and, jumping up, he grabbed a hammer and struck the horse violently with it, breaking a rib. The poor animal fell to the floor, and a veterinary surgeon was called. It is doubtful if the horse will live.

Mrs. Fitzsimmons protested with her husband about his brutality, and she was roundly abused. Mr. Lyon has placed the case in Counselor Frank V. Millard's hands, and suit will be brought against the lanky fighter at once.

Chafing and Itching Skin

Exasperated by Summer Heat Became Intolerable—Relief Is Prompt and Cure Certain When Dr. Chase's Ointment Is Used.

To many fleshy people summer is the time of much misery from chafing and skin irritation. Some complain particularly of sore feet, and of perspiration while walking. Others suffer from itching skin diseases, such as eczema, salt rheum, rash or hives. Persons who have tried Dr. Chase's Ointment for itching and irritated skin are enthusiastic in recommending it to their friends, because it is the only preparation which affords instant relief, and speedily brings about a thorough cure.

As a matter of fact, Dr. Chase's Ointment has come to be considered the standard preparation for itching skin diseases, and has by far the largest sale of any similar remedy. Try it when the feet are chafed, and sore with walking. Try it when the skin is chafed, inflamed and irritated. Try it for pimples, blackheads, hives, eczema, salt rheum, and every form of itching skin diseases. It cannot fail you.

Mr. M. A. Smith, Brookville, Ont., writes: "I suffered many years with chafing, burning, and itching of the skin, and never found anything to do me good, or even give relief, until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. I would advise all sufferers, and especially bicycle riders, to always have it on hand."

This is a copy of the letter from Mrs. James Bradley, Amherley, Huron county, Ontario:

"I was afflicted with eczema for over six months, and it was so bad that my head was a solid mass of scabs, and I could not move when scratched. The itching was intense. I could not stand it. I had doctored for four months, and it did not do me any good. I had to give up housework and go home to my mother. I tried nearly everything, but could get no relief. Seeing your advertisement in one of the Toronto papers I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment."

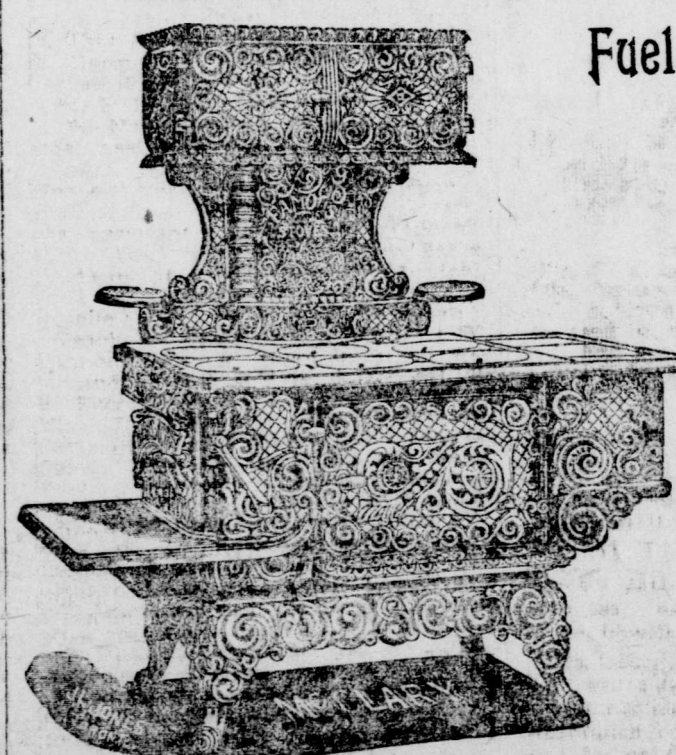

"I got relief from the first application, and it only required one box and part of another to cure me. I am sure that Dr. Chase's Ointment is worth its weight in gold."

Dr. Chase's Ointment has never yet been known to fail to cure. It is the only remedy guaranteed to cure piles of every form. 60 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

It is compounded from several herbs, each one of which stands at the head of the list as exerting a wonderful influence in curing consumption and all lung disease.
