BEVASTATED BY FLAMES

Terribly Destructive Fire in Patterson, N. J.

Property to the Value of Ten Million Dollars in Ashes.

Hundreds of Families Homeless and Thousands Without Any Employment-Many Public Buildings Destroyed.

Paterson, N. J., Feb. 9.-A great fire swept through Paterson today, and in its desolate wake are the embers and ashes of property valued in preliminary estimate at $10,000,000. It burned its way through the business section of the city, and claimed as its own a majority of the finer structures devoted to commerce, educational and religious use, as well as scores of other houses. There was but small tribute of life and injury to the conflagration, but hundreds were left homeless and thousands without em-

RELIEF MOVEMENT. . A relief movement for the care of those unsheltered and unprovided for has already been organized, and Mayor Henchecliffe said that Paterson would be able to care for her own without appealing to the charity of other communities. The great manufacturing plants of the place are safe, and the community, temporarily dazed by the calamity, has already commenced the work of reorganization and restoration. LONG FIGHT WITH THE FLAMES. The fire came at last midnight, and was only checked after a desperate fight that lasted until late this after-Every city and town within reach of Paterson sent firemen and apparatus to the relief of the threatned city, and it took the united efforts of them all to win the battle. A northerly gale gave the conflagration its impetus and carried tis burning brands to kindle the blaze afresh at other points. The firemen made stand after stand, before the wall of fire, but were repeatedly driven back, and when victory finally came to them they were grimed and exhausted.

1,000 FAMILIES HOMELESS. An estimate made from the smouldering ruins placed the number of dwellings and apartment houses destroyed at 500, and the families left without shelter at 1,000. A re-estimate, when order succeeds confusion, may alter those figures.

WHERE THE FIRE STARTED. The fire began its work of farreaching destruction at the power house of the Jersey City and Hoboken Traction Company, which fronted on Broadway and extended a block to the rear on Van Houten street. It was in the car shed that it commenced, and it was burning fiercely when one of the employes detected it. It was leaping through the roof, and the gale was lifting it in forks and swirls when the fire apparatus came clanging into Broadway, Main and Van Houten streets. The firemen tried to hem it in, but it speedily crossed Van Houten street in one direction, Main street in another and gaining vigor as it went, burned until checked in the business district. Every piece of fire mechanism in the city was called out, but fire and gale were masters. A GREAT TORCH OF FLAME rose high in the air, lighting up the country for many miles. There were efforts to rescue furniture and stock, but the speed with which the fire moved gave the rescuers but little time. Property was often moved to a place of presumed safety, only to be event-ually reached and destroyed. The warning to many was brief, and they were forced to flee, scantily clad, into streets glazed with ice and swept by keen winds. Main street was arched over with a canopy of fire for a block, and then for two blocks as the flames fastened themselves upon building after building. The firemen fought with every resource of their craft and the impulse of desperation, but the flames soon found new avenues in Ellison and Market streets and

GOT BEYOND ALL CONTROL. jaded firemen labored on through the hopeless hours of the morning. The city hall, a magnificent state, and were found at Windsor street station. There is no stamp of any bind surmounted by a great clock tower, finally caught, and with it went all of the splendid business structures that surrounded it.

There was a series of explosions and scores of walls fell when the fire left them strengthless. Flying fire-brands carried the conflagration over some buildings and around others, and it therefore burned in an irregular course. These brands finally cleared the tracks of the Eric Railway and Ramapo avenue and alighting on Straight street. STARTED ANOTHER GREAT AREA OF FIRE, in which the destruction and desolation and desolation wrought was nearly as great as in the other. This second great fire started at the angle of Park avenue and Washington street, and swept almost unchecked until on those two thoroughfares there was no more fuel. On the right hand side of Market street, until it encountered Sandy Hill Cemetery, there was no barrier to check it. On the left hand side, at Carroll street, it claimed St. Joseph's Church. a great classic stone building. It was on this second great fire that the volunteer firemen from the outside cities did their most heroic and effective work. They fell back only when they had to, and when the natural obstacle interposed they seized the chance and stopped the fire. THE FINAL STRUGGLE. The final one of the desperate fights of the day occurred in mid-afternoon, back in the first fire area, at the Ham-ilton Club, situated at the corner of

Church and Ellison streets The handsome club house caught, and the exhausted firemen were rallied around it. The building was doomed, however, but a torrent of water kept the fire to the premises. The four walls of the club house stood, but the roof collapsed, and the interior was completely burned out.

GRAND SPECTACLE. Paterson rests in a valley and the conflagration was an imposing spectacle from the rim of hills that wall it in. Columns of flame climbed high in the air and shed their light miles. Hundreds of people hurried in-to the city before daylight to watch the work of destruction at close range, and when the day came thousands more joined them. The fire became a great popular spectacle that claimed patrons from New York and every outlying town in New Jersey. With the crowd came THIEVES AND LOOTERS, but there was not much pillaging. Under orders from Governor Murphy, who hurried here from Jersey City, Companies C., K. and M., of the 5th National Guard Regiment, assembled at their armories, and were held as a reserve force. The police, deputy sher-iffs, hundreds of special watchmen and firemen united in protecting property during the day, and when night came issued by the city and county authori-espite the precaution of the auth crities there was much confusion in the streets at night. The destruction of wires left the city in darkness, save for the dull glow given off by the acres of embers in the two great fire areas. Hundreds of belated visitors crowded around the depots and struggled in the dark for places in the overcrowded trains. The street railway system was also severely impaired through the in-Jury of its wires. Early in the day the mayor issued an order forbidding the sale of liquor, but it was not obey ed, and there was considerable drunk-

CASUALTIES. Scores of persons were hurt and burned, but, while several persons are missing, the loss of life will not be great. An aged woman died from excitement, and two or three of the inured may also die.

OTHER FIRES. Wapella, Ill., Feb. 8.-Fire today destroyed Green & Dowling's grain elevator. A heavy wind then spread the flames to the business district, which was almost wiped out, together with several dwellings. Loss estimated at over $200,000. New York, Feb. 8.-Shallbolt's wagon factory at Cumberland street and Flushing avenue, Brooklyn, was destroyed by fire shortly after midnight. A number of firemen were reported injured. The loss will be over $200,000. The concern manufactured carriages and automobile trucks. In the stables attached to the factory were eighteen

horses, and these were all burned. DIVORCED HUSBANDS CAUSED BLOODSHED

Wife Fatally Shot, Sheriff Killed, and Twe Others Badly Hurt.

Chicago, Feb. 10 .- James Davidson, a printer, fatally shot his wife, Flora Davidson, on Saturday night, seriously wounded his father-in-law and brotherin-law, and was then beaten into insensibility with a baseball bat by his wounded brother-in-law. Davidson's wife left him recently, and was living with her mother and father at 7,400 Adams avenue. Davidson gained admission to the house by a strategem, and immedi-ately shot his wife four times. He then shot his wife's father, Peter M. Roberts, inflicting a wound in the forearm. Rob-erts' son was shot in the shoulder. Davidson then went into a side room to reload his revolver, saying he would return and finish them all. As soon as he emerged finish them all. As soon as he emerged Edward Roberts attacked him with a baseball bat. Davidson is now in the hospital, and may not live.

Waterloo, Wis., Feb. 10.—After shooting and killing Deputy Sheriff William Cooper here on Saturday night, Frank W. Stephenson succeeded, after his revolver had been taken from him by two bystanders, in pulling a second, and, thrusting it into their faces, compelled them to retreat while he made his escape. Stephenson first visited the home of his divorced wife and fired a shot at her, also at Joseph Balaschka, in whose family she had lived for two years. The shot fired at his wife failed to take effect, but a bullet lodged in Balaschka's jaw.

London, Feb. 10.-King Edward on Saturday night gave a dinner at Marlborough House to the members of the diplomatic corps and his cabinet. Forty-two guests, including U. S. Am-

CORONATION GOSSIP. The Queen is the real arbiter of the coronation clothes, and is gradually relaxing the court requirement, so as to reduce the weight and rigidity of the costume and produce greater elegance say that elementary schools are more of effect, since the robe or mantle must be of crimson velvet, furred with miniver and ermine, with a train of three feet on the ground. White or delicate pink is almost the only color available for the undress scheme. The color of the coronation scene will be crimson and white, with touches of black This will be a combination which will warm the cockles of Edwin Abbey's heart when he paints the historic picture. Individual taste is allowed full license in gold embroideries, lace ruffles, and the trimming of the underdress, and jewels can be conspicuously worn in coronets. Tiaras will require dexterous adjustment, and the Queen is expected to favor further relaxation of the regulations respecting coiffures, in order to admit new modes of dressing the hair. ENCOURAGEMENT OF HOME IN-DUSTRY. Two tendencies are already apparent in the court. One is the encouragement of homemade materials and work, and the other is a disposition to promote lavish expenditure in the interest of the tradesman class. The coronation season will be brilliant, whether the war in South Africa is over or not. It will open soon after the King's return from the Riviera, but the theaters have already received a fillip from a grim order clearing the streets was royal patronage, and while there have been only two large balls, the west end has been exceptionally gay for February, with an almost uninterrupted series of fashionable weddings, and signs of animation and movement everywhere. IN PARLIAMENT. Parliament continues to reflect the general opinion that party strife is ill-adapted to the holiday mood of coronation year, and controversial questions are avoided as bad form. The opposition front bench has repulsed the overtures of the extreme Radicals to raise debate on Lord Lansdowne's reply to the Dutch note. Closure was sprung upon the harmless debating exercises of talking out the marriage of a deceased wife's sister bill. A fair start has been made in discussing the new rules of procedure, and while the opposition, is stronger than expected, Mr. Balfour has made it plain that the government desires to minister to the comfort and convenience of the ### house, and will make any changes which the members desire.

THE REMOUNT SCANDAL. Mr. Broderick has tried to stave off further debate by dispensing with the services at Aldershot of the officer charged with receiving a commission on the purchase of Hungarian horses and promising an inquiry respecting the conduct of another officer implicated in the doubtful proceedings. Some of the most stalwart Unionists assert that he is playing with the subject, and ought to institute a searching investigation into all transactions respecting the purchase of remounts. EFFECT OF SMALLPOX SCARE. With the increase in the number of cases of smallpox, London's population is flocking to insurance offices in order to get insured against the epi-demic. In the history of Lloyds no such plethora of insurance was ever recorded as has been on account of the present scare. Some financial men have been insured for as much as £7,-000 against the risk of catching smallpox, but the average policy is about £500. The Outlook says: "The medical reports infer that May or June will be the worst month. If this is true, pany did not operate its cars during the

it is a serious menace to the success of the coronation festivities. LIFE OF GLADSTONE. John Morley's labors in writing the biography of Gladstone are continuous, and he cannot be hurried. The work has steadily increased, owing to the immense store of material in the Hawarden library, and he regards every branch of the subject as important and requiring critical attention. MacMillan still hopes to bring it out in October, but the work will be more elaborate than was originally planned, at least three volumes being included in the English edition. There will be a dozen illustrations.

ANTAGONISM TO CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS. "Eddyism," as Christian Science is called in Berlin, is the sensation of the moment. The comic papers caricature it. the weighty religious periodicals polemicks against it, and daily press prints much scriptive matter regarding what it called "the latest American importation," saying it was Ameronly brought here after it had been "worn out in the United States."

Emperor William's conference with

Dr. Faber, superintendent of the churches in the Berlin jurisdiction, and Herr Von Windheim, the police president, as to what steps shall be taken, has alarmed the Christian Scientists, but nothing has yet been done against them, except the withdrawal from cer-tain public halls of the necessary permission to open for meetings. The newspapers say Emperor William intends to take energetic measures against all forms of obscurantism practiced for money, and insists Went Out of Her Course in a Heavy Snowstorm - All the Passengers Saved-Three Steamers Sunk in the Thames.

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 9.-Four and a half miles from this city, on the western side of the entrance to Halifax harbor, the big Allan-Furness liner Greeian lies a hopeless wreck. The steamer sailed from Liverpool on The steamer sailed from Liverpool on Jan. 25, bound to this port, via St. Johns, Nfid., and left the latter port on Thursday evening. She was off this harbor at 2:30 this morning, took a pilot on board, and was coming in, when a thick show squall came on suddenly, and the steamer crashed on the rocks, passed over and struck a second time, and remained mained.

There was not much sea on at the time, but a heavy undertow, and this soon ground large holes in her bottom, through which the water poured, filling the hold. When daylight broke it was found that the ship was on the rocks southwest of Sandwich Point, three miles inside Chebucto Head, and fully a mile out of her course. She has about 300 tons of general cargo, including a quantity of salt, drygoods, oranges, iron, steel and whisky.

When the news of the disaster reached the city the agents immediately dispatched tugs and lighters, with steam pumps, to the scene. At 4 this evening there were 17 feet of water in her fore-hold, and 18 feet in the after-hold, and divers were at work removing the cargo. Her engine-room remained dry. the testimonials she reads are not half strong enough. Mrs. Benjamin Hatfield, Hillyard street, St. John, N. B., writes: "For three years I was a sufferer from extreme nervousness and female weak-ness, and found it necessary to undergo a very painful operation. I was pale and weak, had no appetite, and would sometimes faint two or three times a day. For seven weeks I was under the doctor's care, but he seemed unable to help me. Despairing of recovery I took the advice of a friend, who told me that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food would build me up and make me strong and well again. After four months' use of this preparation I found myself greatly improved, but continued the treatment for one year, using in all sixteen boxes. I have been blessed with a young daughter now, and believe that I am as strong and well as ever in my life. As a result I cannot say too much in favor of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It has performed a complete and thorough cure in my case, and I am healthier and fleshier than I have been for years. The testimonials I see are not half strong enough. I tell my friends and acquainteners about it and many of acquaintances about it, and many of them join me in pronouncing Dr. Chase's Nerve Food the most effective restorative obtainable. One feature which stands out prominently is the low loss ratio, ing out as it does at less than 37 per cent, a remarkable showing in the face of the fact that last year was above the average in fire losses. The premium income of the company for 1901 amounted to $126,960, an increase over 1900 of $50,142. When to this is added the sum of $2,563 92 in interest, the total reaches $129,523 92; while the expenses of the company, including fire losses, etc., amounted to $100,976 65, leaving a balance of $28,548 20. the balance from 1900 is added, the surplus earnings are brought up to $36.843 39. This permitted the company to pay a dividend of 6 per cent last The low percentage of losses stands as a tribute to the company's careful method of underwriting. Considerable expense has been incurred in extending and organizing business outside the province, but the benefit of this will no doubt be reaped in largely increased profits this year. The company has a good working business board in Arch. Campbell. M.P., as president; Thos. Crawford, M.P.P., as vice-president, and William Greenwood Brown, an experienced underwriter, as general manager.

WRONG ROAD

Principal Grant's Conviction as to Prohibitionists.

Previous Failures Where Prohibition Has Been Attempted.

Local Option Better-Nova Scotia's Experience—Second Letter From Principal Grant.

To the Editor of the Globe:

The longer I live, the more varied my experience, the more impartial my study of the facts connected with the oft-repeated attempts to suppress rather than to regulate the liquor traffic, and the more mature my reflections on the springs of human action, and the far-reaching consequences of wellmeant efforts to restrain life by external law, the more I am convinced that the prohibitionists are ON THE WRONG TRACK, and that they have been and are doing more harm than good, especially to the cause of temperance. Indeed, they are not advocates of temperance. For the meaning of prohibition is exactly the opposite of temperance. The one word means restraint by force, and the other self-restraint. The men who use either malt or fermented or distilled liquor soberly, as all God's gifts should be used, or the men who, like myself, do not use them as beverages, for one reason or another, but always for a reason which appeals to their own sense of duty, and which does not bind anyone else, save in as far as it appeals to his reason and conscience—these are temperance men. Yet these are the men who are constantly misrepresented as the friends of liquor or of the iquor traffic.

BISHOP POTTER'S DENUNCIA-TION.

It is no wonder that Bishop Potter recently described prohibitionists and their panacea in language which, how-ever harsh it sounds, was the harshness of indignant moral rebuke against men who shut their eyes to facts, one of the gravest sins of which men who profess to lead in moral reform can be guilty. The bishop has no equal as a statesman among the hierarchy of Great Britain, America or Australia, for the modern church seldom produces men like Stephen Langton, Richelieu, Ximenes, Knox or Chalmers. His calm nature must have been stirred to its depths when he spoke as he did. That he spoke in sorrow, not in anger, no one doubts who knows him personally, and his language will have weight with reasonable men, and should convince prohibitionists that-no matter how sincere and earnest they may be-it is

MAY BE MISTAKEN. To get at the essential facts is, in the cause of prohibitory laws and their immediate and remote consequences, extremely difficult, for not only are facts multitudinous, and not always the result of single causes, especially in complicated modern society, but the evil effects of intemperance are so apparent, and come home to us so closely, that emotional men and women are apt to lose all patience with anyone who counsels moderation. They ind the cause of the evils, not in selfsh, weak or wicked human nature, but n that which men drink, and so their policy is misdirected. But moral earnestness when misdirected does nothing but harm. All our fervor will not alter human nature or the principles which underlie society. SUCCESS OF LOCAL OPTION. We must study the evidence as calmy as if it had no bearing on ourselves personally, or on any near and dear to us, or on our theory. Isolated facts, too, are of little use. We must endeavor to draw just conclusions from all the facts. The conclusion which seems me to be borne out by a wide induction is that the more restricted the area to which prohibition applies, and less complex the state of society. the greater the apparent success. Hence local option laws have been generally apparently successful both in Ontario and Quebec: whereas the Scott act with us admittedly proved a failure, and that Dominion prohibition would be a greater failure still. The REASONS ARE OBVIOUS, and the experience of Canada is the only case in which provincial prohibi-tion has been tried bears out the reasons. By our local option act the people of any city, town, township or in-corporated village may prohibit. So far, as I know, none of our cities has adopted the act. It is well known that under the plebiscite of 1898 all of them, Brantford excepted, gave large majorities against prohibition. But very many rural districts both in Ontario and Quebec are under local option. In these the majority for it has often been large; those opposed to it are in-fluenced by local opinion; as a democratic people they do not feel it a great hardship to bow to a majority of their own neighbors; and they, as well as many who vote for it, are well aware that they can get as much to drink as they like when they go to market in the nearest city.

EXPERIENCE OF ST. JOHN, N. B. But, would the cities suffer themselves to be coerced by the vote of distant municipalities? The experience of St. John, the only city in New Brunswick, when Tilley's prohibitory measure was passed, gives the answer. For years prior to that date the whole province had seemed to be in favor of prohibition. Petitions of enormous size were presented for, and none against it; and when the bill was carried by three-fifths of both branches of the legislature, the people in many places rang the bells, lit bonfires, and seemed to believe that the millennium had come. But the bill had not been in operation a week when clamor rose. The Hon. T. W. Anglin, then a member of the legislature, describes what took place in St. John: "The liquor places were all kept open everywhere, and so great was the excitement and so strong the feeling that in many places the screens were thrown aside and men would drink openly, to show what their feeling was with regard to the act. . . . The parties who gave evidence (in court, of sales) were hooted on the streets. One of the evil effects of the law was that strong liquors—liquors of the very worst kind—were sold. . . It was said, and I have no doubt truly, that there were more deaths from drunkenness in a few months than there had been in years."

NOVA SCOTIA LAW REPEALED. A quarrel between the governor and his council followed. Dissolution his council followed. Dissolution of the legislature took place, and at the election only two members out of forty-one were returned in favor of prohibition. The act, after having been practically in force for about four months, was repealed! Tilley returned to power soon after, on other issues, but he never again tried prohibition in New Brunswick. Of course, he remained a prohibitionists theoretically, but he always warned his friends to be quite sure that public sentiment would en-force any law before enacting it, as his act had put back prohibition, and —it might be added—the far more important cause of temperance. His evidence is given at great length in Vol. I. of the Report of the Royal Commission, 1894.

May we not judge from this sketch what the effect of provincial prohibition would be in Toronto, a city with seven or eight times the population that St. John then had?

Ottawa might be able to stand it, for Quebec is on the opposite side of the river. What a roaring business the liquor sellers of Hull would drive! So. too, every city and town along the front-Kingston, Brockville, Prescott -would find a city of refuge on the other side of the St. Lawrence, and many who went there to drink would soon learn to transact other business. The people farther back would have recourse to illicit stills, and to importations from Quebec district to their homes—an easy matter to systematize in this age of departmental stores.

WHERE PROHIBITION FAILS. Here, then, we have the explanation why states with great cities have repealed prohibition, after giving it a trial, or, in some cases, trials—states like Massachusetts, Michigan, Connecticut, Iowa, Indiana, Illinois, etc. The difference between the results of local option and of provincial or state pro-hibition is chiefly because of the different conditions in which urban and rural populations live.

The evidence given on this point by The evidence given on this point by Hon. E. J. Hodgson, of Charlottetown, P. E. I., before the royal commission in 1892 was very striking. He had been, he said, enthusiastically in favor of it, spoken in favor of it, and he continued to think that it had proved to the country but in Cher. a benefit to the country; but in Charlottetown-a small city, with extremely simple conditions of living—it had proved to be "an unmixed evil."
"Drinking has increased to a very much greater extent, and it has in-creased perjury to an inordinate extent, and it has also produced a class of blackmailers. This class of people has increased to a very great extent." Asked whether the act might not have been more ineffectually enforced in the city if appeals had not taken place to the Privy Council, he answered: "I cannot say, because it was stopped for two years. There were two or three elections afterwards, when the act was continued by a vote of about seventeen. A majority of seventeen was gained by the temperance people and the lowest kind of rum-sellers uniting together. Asked why these should unite he said, "Because those sellers were afraid there would be a license law, under which they would have to pay $100 or $200 a year, whereas they could sell liquor for nothing under the Scott liquor for nothing under the Scott act." Subsequently the act was re-"I think," he said, "the common sense of the town saw that something must be done. Drinking was increasing, and perjury and lawlessness."

THREE STRONG WITNESSES. I content myself with quoting from these three witnesses: Sir Leonard Tilley, an upright patriot and a states man, though perhaps a pawky rather than a far-seeing one; Anglin, appointspeaker of parliament mainly because of his judicial qualities; Hodgson, honored throughout his province for sincerity, high and open-mindedness and Christian worth, a man who worked for prohibition till perfury, increased drinking, blackmailing, evasion of law and the increasing contempt for all law which resulted, convinced him of his error in judgment. He knew that sins of the spirit, being subtle, infectious invisible, are more deadly to the soul and more dangerous to society than sins of the flesh, which everyone can see, and which everyone condemns. It is surely manifest, then, that prohibition for Ontario would be worse than the Scott act proved itself to be for the cause of temperance and general morality. What, then, are we to do? It may be asked, are we to rest satisfied when undoubted evils exist? shall try to answer this questi-Kingston, Feb. 3. another letter.

In the battle of Lake Erie, during a hot engagement between the United States and the Macedonian, on Oct. 25, 1812, the glass was taken off the Macedonian by Commodore Stephen Decatur, of the United States. By him it was presented to Capt. Leward, who handed it down to Capt. Dunlop, of the British Navy, whose widow in turn presented it to Capt. T. N. Dancey. The latter, who was well known along the chain of lakes, died a few years

Mr. Pattullo's Speech.

An influential visitor from New Zealand, interviewed a few days ago at Toronto, by the Globe newspaper, said the thing that struck him in Ontario was the reckless and foolish manner in which Canada and Ontario were giving away to private companies electric railway and other privileges that in New Zealand would be kept as public utilities for the benefit of the masses of the people. In this connection, reference may be made to the recent able speech by Mr. Andrew Pattullo, M.P.P., in the budget debate. The member of North Oxford favors the nationalization or municipalization of public utilities, wherever that is practicable; and also the insertion of a clause in every electric railway charter which is granted, providing the terms on which the charter could be re-acquired by the community. Mr. Pattullo points out that the chartermonger is abroad; and that, among other dangers, there is the danger of many of these electric lines falling into the hands of the great corporations. Mr. Pattullo said:

"The capital stock of some of the companies was too large and their bonding privileges too extensive. There was no adequate provision for the public in regard to rates. There should be a provincial railway committee empowered to regulate rates. A score of electric railway bills were now before the House, which meant the giving over of a large area of the Province in perpetuity to those who might either serve the public to the advantage of the country or tax it unduly for the benefit of themselves. All depended on the wisdom or unwisdom of the incorporation acts secured from the Legislature. The bills were inadequately dealt with by the Railway Committee of the House. The point was ur-gent, and the people looked to the Legislature to protect their interests, not only for the present, but for generations to come.

Mr. Pattullo then directed his attention to the subject of the protection of investors, upon which he said:

"He also wished to press upon the Government's attention the law in reference to joint stock companies and financial corporations generally. He tens of thousands. Something, urged, should be done to protect honest investors against dishonest promoters. The manner in which 'water' was seld to confiding investors was simply a scandal. No company should be allowed to issue stock for more than the actual value of its assets, and its actual necessities in carrying out its objects. The prospectus of every company should state the value of its assets and the use to which the money raised from shareholders was to be put. If the amounts handed over for promotion had been stated in the prospectuses of the past few years, tens of millions of dollars might have been saved to the people of Ontario. An annual audit should be made obligatory, and not optional, and auditor's statement should be in the hands of every shareholder before each

Mr. Pattullo, in concluding, referred Government in all departments, and of rendering the highest public service public utilities, which had been publicly managed with great success in Great Britain. He commended the proposal to build a Government railway to Lake Temiskamingue as the beginning of a solution of the problem in Ontario. "No one longer dreamed," said Mr. Pattullo, "of railway com-We must choose between railway control and state ownership and management of railways."

How New Ontario Was Saved for for the extension of Manitoba or for the Province.

At a time when so much is being said about New Ontario, and some crificism is being indulged in because it is not being developed faster, it is well to bear in mind how nearly the vast and rich territory came to be filched from us, and who were the friends of the taxpayers of this fair ing, between 10 and 11 o'clock, to have Province when the long-sustained opposition to the rights of Ontario was

When the Government of Hon. Alex Ander Mackenzie found that there wa a dispute between the Dominion authorities and the Government of this Province, it arranged with the Provincial authorities for the submission of the dispute as to the western and northern boundary of Ontario to a commission of arbitrators.

The arbitrators chosen were men of the highest standing, viz., Chief Justice Harrison, Sir Edward Thornton, and Sir Francis Hincks.

There was not the slightest objection to their appointment, the payment of the necessary expenses met with no opposition, and an award was made.

The Conservative Government which ever, declined to ratify the award. For years it refused to do more than acknowledge the receipt of the request of the Government of Oliver Mowat that the award of the arbitrators, made in good faith, should be ratified by the Dominion Government. In vain did the Ontario authorities point to the injurious effects to the territory from the fallure of the Dominion Ad ministration to do its duty. The reply of Sir John Macdonald, as representing the Government at Ottawa, was that not one stick of timber nor one pound of minerals within the disputed territory should be placed under the control of Sir Oliver Mowat, then the Premier of Ontario, and fighting for the maintenance of the integrity of his native Province. Sir John called Premier Mowat "the little tyrant" at that time; he must have been in a bad temper; but Oliver Mowat did not mind being called names when he was fighting a good

The people of Ontario refused to be bulldozed. They stood by Mr. Mowat, Mr. George W. Ross, and Mr. A. S. day. Hardy. Then other tactics were resorted to by the Dominion Government. It parcelled out the timber and the mineral lands to its political favorites for a mere song. It invited the Norquay Government of Manitoba -politically in accord with it-to claim possession of the territory of Ontario as far east as Rat Portage, and it so irritated the people of this Province as to bring a section of the people to the verge of

The Legislature -- Weekly Review.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Toronto, Feb. 8.

The desire of Mr. J. P. Whitney, the present leader of the opposition, to get in the last word on the budget is accountable for the fact that no division upon the matter to adopt it has as yet taken place. Had he not been so eager to throw out statements in debate that could not be met by some member on the government side, the house would now be discussing more important business. It is regretable that wearisome speeches of no pracup the legislature's time when measures of solid value to the province are books. Western Ontario, and more especicomposes a large portion of its people, should feel a good deal of pride in Mr. H. J. Pettypiece, of East Lambton. His measure to place upon the railway, telegraph and telephone companies a fair share of the general taxation has set the provincial legislators a-thinking. That it is radical no one will deny, but that it presents one of the gravest problems of the future goes without gainsaying. The assessment question is of vital importance, and no present doubt exists that before long it will have to be taken up along the lines laid down by East Lambton's able representative. As a matter of fact the Premier eulogized Mr. Pettypiece for his thorough grasp of the conditions obtaining at the present moment, and intimated that his utterances would yet prove to have been

For some days past the opposition has twitted the government with statement that no farmer had risen on the treasury side in defense of the administration's agricultural policy. The time for that has passed by, however, Mr. W. H. Taylor, North Middlesex, having made a strong pronouncement in favor of the treatment being accorded the farming community by the province. He placed the Agricultural College in its right light, that of a superior institution, and hurled back at the opposition the insinuation that the government had not done the right thing by the bone and sinew of Ontario. It seems pretty generally understood that the prohibition bill will be brought down next Wednesday. The premier will deliver a lengthy speech in presenting it. The three bills introduced by Col. Leys this week reflect the character of partisan. Why were honorable gentlethe man who made them. They are sound, businesslike propositions, and no fear is entertained that any objections will be raised to their approval by the legislature.

Settlement of Labor Disputes Labor Bureau Secretary.

Interesting Discussion in the Legislature on Mr. Preston's Bill—Favored by the Premier, But Not by the Opposition Leader.

There was an interesting discussion in the legislature on Friday which arose out of Mr. Preston's bill, which has in view the facilitating of the settlement of labor disputes by the intervention of the secretary of the Labor Bureau, on the request of parties interested or affected. The minister of public works and the premier heartily indorsed the bill. Mr. Whitney and several of his followers, while not opposing it, declared that the measure would be of no practical though, as Mr. Preston pointed out in answer to this reflection, it was cordially supported by several labor

Mr. Preston (South Brant), in moving the second reading of his bill to amend the act respecting councils of conciliation and arbitration, said it provided that the registrar or the secretary of the bureau of labor should be empowered at the request of the mayor or reeve of the municipality where a strike or lockout was threatened, or at the request of the employes or employers, to proceed to the seat of the difficulty and offer his services towards a settlement. An additional clause empowered the registrar to seek to promote the formation of cial interests against the onslaughts of | boards of conciliatation and arbitraprivate capital, can be depended upon tion between employers and employer throughout the province, a method which had been of great assistance in the settlement of labor disputes in Great Britain. The present act was so complicated that it was difficult to set it in motion, hence the need for the proposed measure.

> THE PROPOSAL INDORSED. Hon. Mr. Latchford, as minister o the department, most directly interested he see no objection to the proposition but he thought it would be the house and country. He was sure it would be greatly to the interest of both employers and employed. Incidentally Mr. Latchford referred to the excellent work accomplished by Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King, the minion deputy minister of labor, in the settlement of labor troubles. He hoped that the measure proposed by Mr. Preston, who had always shown great interest in the cause of strikes and other labor disputes. MR. WHITNEY'S VIEW. Mr. Whitney could not see much harm or much good in the measure. It left the act just where it was. was a sort of recitation to the effect that when the registrar of the depart-'we say 'God-speed.' " that Hon. Mr. Latchford's reference to Mr. King was a particularly happy one. That gentleman might have done all that Mr. Latchford said, but he had done other things, and had left things

Crawford (West Toronto) Mr. thought there was nothing in the bill. If the honorable gentleman had intended to accomplish anything in the way of settling difficulties between employers and employes, he should have brought in a definite, practical suggestion, and he would then have had the hearty support of members of the opposition. The bill contained nothing for which the honorable gentleman was entitled to credit.

LABOR BODIES APPROVE. Mr. Preston said the present act offered no opportunity for personal intervention by the registrar; the proposed measure provided for that. Marine Engineers' Association and the executive of the Ontario Trades and Labor Council had passed resolutions approving the bill.

THE OPPOSITION'S CLAIMS. Mr. Wardell (North Wentworth) said that he had frequently endeavored since becoming a member of the house to protect organized and unorganized labor, and every time had met with the opposition of Hon. Mr. Latchford and the member for South Brant the opposition was always in favor of the laboring people, and the govern-ment against them. He did not believe the proposed measure would help the workingmen in any manner. IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION.

The premier expressed the opinion that the proposed act was in the right direction. In the old country conciliation had been effected over and over again by the intervention of a third party. It was not proposed to force anyone; action under the measure would be voluntary. The intention of the bill was good, its machinery simple, and the official who would deal with the question involved was not a political partisan in any sense, and would not arbitrate as a political hand towards aiding the working classes? Had they no sympathy with a class that suffered sometimes haps through their leaders, sometimes perhaps through the actions of those who employed them, sometimes perhaps through the course of outside agitators? Every bill brought in by the government side for the aid of the working classes was greeted with criticism and cold comfort by honorable gentlemen opposite, Mr. King, he continued, had accomplished good work in the settlement of labor disputes. The premier replied that his honorsble friend could not distinguish be-tween an election and a strike. He always seemed anxious to impute political motives to every act which was advanced by the government for the benefit of the working class, or any other class of the community. The premier referred to the settlement of the piano-makers' strike in Toronto through the Dominion department of labor, and concluded by saying that if Mr. Preston's measure resulted in the settlement of only one strike in five years he was prepared to bear the opposition's insinuations of political motives.

The bill was given its second read-

PRESBYTERIAN CREED

Work of the Revision Committee-One Article Acted Upon-No Material Change Made.

Philadelphia, Feb. 10.-The committee on creed revision of the Presbyterian Church devoted both sessions Friday to the consideration of a brief statement of doctrine devoid of all technicalities for popular use, Earnest and exhaustive discussion was had over the points that should be included in the statement. At the conclusion of the section a member of the committee said: "After a full and free discussion the committee have adopted one article which relates to the revision. We have agreed upon the form of article. The substance remains the same, the changes made consisting chiefly in the manner of expression. This is the first point that has been voted upon by the committee and formally adopted. The action today will stand unless it is reconsidered which can be done only by a twothirds vote. The committee tomorrow will return to the discussion of the revision of the Confession. We shall go back to review the action taken ten-tatively on Thursday, when it was agreed to revise chapters III. and X. of the Confession by a declaratory

HOW GEN. KITCHENER IS SAVING MONEY.

Gets $2,500,000 a Month From Field Canteens-Says Chocolates and Cigarettes Should Not Be Sent Out.

London, Feb. 8.-Sir Charles Vincent, M.P., who has just returned from South Africa, said in the course of a speech at Eton College last night that by businesslike methods Gen. Kitchener was getting back £500,000 a month from the field canteens. Gen. Kitchener advised that people at home should not send the soldiers chocolate and cigarettes, as they can be obtained at the field canteens but to devote the money to the soldiers families at home. Many persons think, Col. Vincent said, that Gen. Kitchener is very austere and difficult to approach. As a matter of fact, there was no more agreeable man. He had extraordinary judgment, and a wonderful facility for work. He woke up every morning at 5 o'clock, telegraphed everywhere, interviewing heads of departments, and devoting the rest of the day to problems of the campaign.

FISH CAN COME UP THE RIVER

The Cashmere Dam Is No Longer an Obstruction.

Fisheries Overseer McVean Explains Condition of Affairs at the Famous Dam.

The Free Press of this morning contained a letter from Barrister J. W. G. Winnett, who alleged that the Cashmere dam is still an insurmountable obstruction to the running of fish up the River Thames, and that seine fishing was being done at present below the dam. The letter further complained of the government's action in using public money to purchase the dam, and then leaving the obstruction in the

An Advertiser reporter called upon Fishery Overseer Frank McVean, who is best qualified to speak of the condition of affairs at the dam, as he made periodical visits to it. The reporter was also in a good position to understand Mr. McVean's explanation, having visited the dam in his company last summer, and carefully examined the structure, and its surroundings. On being shown Mr. Winnett's letter in the Free Press, Mr. McVean said: 'In the first place, I do not think the government has as yet paid a cent for the dam, declining to do so until its destruction has been accomplished to their satisfaction. No later than a v ago last Friday, Doram Everingham, owner of the dam, was complaining to me that he has not yet been paid for

"As to the dam being an obstruction that is untrue. The timber facing has been removed all across, and at the south side the filling of stones and brush has been dug out to form a channel, which is passable for boats, and up which the fish can swim without difficulty. It is quite probable that the spring freshet will sweep away what remains of the northern end of

"You may say that there is no fishing going on at present, for the reason that it is impossible to fish. The river is frozen, and the farmers are cutting ice above and below the dam. I measured the water where they were cutting ice, and it is only three feet deep, and there is only a small channel of run-ning water. Over most of the surface of the river the ice is frozen to the sand bottom "As for the placing of fish in ponds, Everingham took about a dozen carp out of his mill-race last summer, and put them in a shallow pond behind a barn on the hill. I have no doubt Mr. Wheat- Winnett could be presented with the whole outfit if he asked for it. The carp are worthless fish, and the farmers will not carry them away. There has, as you know, been seine fishing at the mouth of the river, and in Lake St. Clair, and that is where they have been putting fish in the ponds.'

HIS DEATH CAUSED PROFOUND SORROW.

Late Judge Lister Was Well Known and Highly Esteemed Here.

The news of the sudden death of Judge Lister was received in this city with much sorrow. He was very well known here, and, as in all places where he was known, was well liked and highly esteemed. His son, Capt. Fred Lister, was for some time adjutant of No. 1 company, R. C. R. I., and while he was at Wolseley Barracks his father's visits to London were more numerous than before. During these visits he added, before. During these visits he added many friends to the number he had made in other years. The officers at the barracks in particular, and many local man barracks in particular, and many local militiamen and members of the bar who had come to know Judge Lister in a professional way, were shocked to learn of his unexpected demise. His death was the chief topic of conversation today, around the courts especially, and expressions of sincere regret were general. On all sides it was felt that Judge Lister's death removes one of the strong-Lister's death removes one of the strong-est characters of Western Ontario. The utmost sympathy is expressed in London for the bereaved family.

THE MAYOR AND THE NURSES.

To the Editor of The Advertiser: In reading your report of the last meeting of the hospital trust, I was struck with the ludicrous side of the affair—the comedietta, as it were, in which Mayor Beck seemed to have the leading role. I am sure all his sup-porters will be pleased to know that his worship frowns upon dancing and card playing, and that he believes it the height of impropriety for young ladies to go sleigh-riding with young gentlemen-especially when the young ladies are doing charitable work ten hours a day for seven days in a week. The citizens of London will all be glad to hear that the mayor intends to have rules framed to prohibit the chairman of the hospital board, the medical students, anyone in fact, from taking the nurses for a drive when they are off duty. It will also be pleasant to learn that he (an anti-society man, of a retiring, bashful disposition) begrudges the nurses one evening a week to entertain visitors.

Of course, the great hit in his little comedy was the fact that he was given another opportunity to display his pro-found knowledge of the ways and customs of the various large hospitals which he has visited. Anyone who has ever inspected an American hospita knows that the nurses have tenfold more liberty than the London nurses. In nearly all of the larger hospitals in Canada the nurses are allowed to entertain their friends with a "shocking" game of cards, even a waltz if they so desire, on their weekly recep-

Newspaper Correspondents at the Capital Entertained.

Interesting Reunion of the Fraternity -The Distinguished Host Strongly Eulogized.

Ottawa, Feb. 9 .- The newspaper correspondents at the capital were entertained to dinner at the Russell House last night by Hon. David Mills. Mr. Mills is himself a journalist of long standing, and has always maintained the friendliest relations with the members of his craft. Ever since he joined the ministry at Ottawa he has annually invited the newspaper men to meet him at dinner, and the event came to be looked upon as a sort of reunion of the fraternity. Last night's dinner might be regarded as a sort of formal leavetaking by Mr. Mills of the newspaper men with whom he has been brought into contact, on the occasion of his retirement from the position of minister of justice.

The company sat down in the small dining-room of the Russell House, the menu being served in St. Jacques' best There were exactly fourteen style. gentlemen present, including Mr. Martin Griffin, Mr. Archibald Blue. Mr. J. D. Clarke and Mr. E. R. Cameron. During the evening the health of the host was proposed by Mayor Cook and supported by Messrs. Charles Marcil, M.P., W. A. Mackenzie and W. H. Dickson. All spoke of the invariable kindness with which Mr. Mills had treated the members of the press, and eulogized the stainless life, the honorable career and the lofty aims of the retiring minister of justice. The wish was expressed that Mr. Mills would be spared to enjoy many years of health and prosperity. The toast was greeted with musical honors, and a "three times three," concluding with a tiger

Lord Kitchener says the advance began the night of Feb. 5, the whole force moving from various directions and forming a continuous line of mounted men on the west bank of the Liobenbergs Viei, from Frankfort as far south as Fanny's Home, and thence to Kaffirkop. The line then advanced to the west, and the following night the British entrenched with their outposts fifty yards apart. They held the line from Holland, on the Heilbron-Frankfort blockhouse line, to Doornkloof, on the Kroonstadt-Lindley blockhouse line, while the columns were also working in advance of the blockhouse lines to prevent Dewet's

BROKE THROUGH. The advance was continued to Feb. 6, and Dewet was within the inclosure, but, realizing his position, he ordered his men to disperse and seek safety during the night. Dewet himself, with some men and a number of cat-tle, made for the Kroonstadt-Lindley blockhouse line, and at one o'clock in the morning, when it was very dark, by rushing his cattle at the fence, broke his way through the line, mixed up with the cattle, and losing three

BOERS ILLUSTRATED

How They Treated the British Wounded After an Engagement.

Ottawa, Feb. 10.-In a letter to Mr. John Nicol of this city, Sergt. G. T. Ibsher, of the South African Constabulary, describes the inhumanity of the Boers to the British wounded, after an engagement which took place near Wetportge on the last day in December. He says: "There was only 31 of the constabulary against a close estimate of 400 Boers; yet we came out of it pretty lucky, only two killed and six wounded. The killed were Corp. Slean, of Toronto, and Trooper William Walker, from the Canadian Northwest. The Boers used our wounded in a most beastly and inhuman manner, and, remember, I speak from actual experience. They were used in a terrible manner, and all residents of Canada who favor them in any way after what I have said should be driven from under the protection of the British flag, and in saying this I only voice the sentiments of every officer, non-commissioned of-ficer and man of the South African Constabulary. Our wounded were stripped of every stitch of their clothing, and left lying in the burning sununtil they were so badly burned that it was impossible to touch them without the skin peeling off in large patches. It was a horrible sight, and it is a day that neither I nor my comrades will ever forget as long The engagement I refer to oclive. curred near Krugersdorp and lasted five hours. The publication of a column of university news appears to meet with hearty and general approval. Only a few days after these notes appeared for the first time, a highly commen-datory letter was received from Mr. J. F. Hall, B.A. (1899), professor of classics in King's College, Bristol, Tenn. Prof. Hall is one of our most successful graduates, and has lost none of his old-time devotion to his alma mater. The students are busily making ready for the conversazione. As this event comes only once in two years, everybody is particularly anxious to re-ceive in the most royal fashion the university's many friends. The unfortunate members of the decoration committee cannot help thinking sometimes of the poor householder whose untutored hand essays once a year the labor of "putting up" the stove and making the pipes fit. But the reward will come to suffering merit when tonight sees the college halls transformed into mazes of drapery and

A number of the students were to have gone to Melbourne Thursday evening, to take part in a concert, but owing to the unfavorable condition of the weather and the roads they did not venture upon the long drive. The preaching appointments for Sunday, Feb. 2, were: Gorrie, C. Simpson; Clandeboye, C. W. Saunders; Teeswater, A. A. Bice; Sarnia, W. H. Snellgrove; Port Stanley, C. M. Farney; Oil Springs, B. F. Fuller; Crum-

Snell; Thorndale, C. Ryan. Rev. Prof. Burgess preached at Delhi on Sunday, Feb. 2. The storm of Sunday last and the blocked condition of the roads played havoc with those students who were unfortunate enough to be sent north for Sunday duty. Mr. C. Simpson, who went to Gorrie, did not get back until Tuesday evening, and Mr. A. Bice, who went to Teeswater, has not yet, at the time of writing, returned.

The students of the university take great interest in the graduates of the college and university. Recently news was received at the college of the removal of three of their graduates, Rev. T. B. R. Mr. Apple-yard is one of the modest kind who allow their work to speak for itself; and it is from outside sources that it is learned what splendid success has crowned his efforts among his colony of five congregations in North Grey. Rev. Mr. Sadlier, who is laboring in the mission field among the Araucan-ian Indians, in Chili. South America, addressed the students in the college chapel last Saturday. He enlarged upon the difficulties experienced in reaching the Araucanians, and showed what progress has already been made among them. Through his efforts a large industrial school has been established at Quepe Station, where the Indians are taught farming, carpentering, etc. His address was both interesting and profitable, and was thoroughly enjoyed by

A Physicians Testimony For Labatt's Stout.

ALEXANDRIA, DEC., 20th. 1901. Speaking from personal experience I can state that your Stout is excellent in building up the system-I was very much run down and was advised to use Labatt's Porter-this I have done for some time and I largely attribute to its effects my steady improvement in strength and weight. I deem it but justice to you, and it certainly is a pleasure to me, to add my testimony to its sterling qualities, and I gladly recommend your Stout as an excellent tonic and food in cases where such is required. ### The Nurses' Sleigh-Ride.

There was no necessity whatever for any motion at the Trust in connection with the sleigh-ride of the nurses to Crumlin. It was an unnecessary insult. The discipline of the Hospital ever since the Hospital Trust was formed has been all that could be desired, and there has never been a breath of suspicion against any of the nurses during the whole of that time. Nurses work hard, and are entitled to the benefit of fresh air and some recreation.

We do not mean to say that the adoption of sound rules for the guidance of nurses is not wholesome and necessary; but we do say that for any breach of discipline that has occurred since the organization of the Hospital Trust, a word has always been sufficient to correct it, and there has never been any necessity whatever for the publicity given to the matter in this instance.

The Free Press claims that the lax methods at the Hospital have blunted Mr. Gilmour's otherwise clear perceptions. Mr. Gilmour could inform the Free Press that the methods in force at the Hospital have been as sound COUNTRY ROADS and as effective as those at any institution of its kind in America.

joy, is not the cause. A cold in the head is an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the while, nose produced by certain bacteria. What these bacteria are, and whether it is always the same kind that produces a cold, are questions that have not been settled. Some, at least, of them are probably always present in the air of our houses or the dust of our streets, in our pockets, where, whenever suffering from an acute cold in the head, we carelessly put soiled handkerchiefs containing wast numbers of the germs, and on clothes, books, furniture, money and hundreds of other things with which we come in daily contact. So it cannot be the germs alone that cause a cold. otherwise we should never be free from one.

The germ of any disease is the same as a seed; it will grow and multiply if planted in suitable soil, but not otherwise. So the germ or germs of a cold will not grow in a healthy nose; the mucous membrane of the nose must be prepared by some local or general cause which weakens its power of resistance. This may be a local disturbance of the blood supply, caused by a chilling of the surface of the oody, or irritation by the inhalation of dust or of strong fumes, as of burning sulphur; or it may be some defect in the construction of the nasal cavities, causing a chronic discharge which keeps the mucous membrane constantly irritated; or it may be some influence which depresses the general system and makes it vunerable to the attacks of the microbes. Such influerces may be fatigue, mental anxiety, loss of sleep and the like, but perhaps more often self-poisoning by the waste products found in the intestines and absorbed instead of being promptly eliminated. The absorption of those waste products of the body which should be got rid of through the lungs, but which are not because of faulty habits of breathing, is another form of self-poisoning which leads to colds.

One reason why Europeans do not "take any more notice" of a president's inauguration is because it is so frequent an affair and so baldly democratic in its celebration; but a better reason yet, Mrs. Logan, for not comparing the two is, 72,000,000 of us prefer to have the president's mauguration over as soon as possible with-out any flummery. The day our inaugurations become pageants and the nation kills the fatted or the golden calf, so to speak, plenty of Europeans will be eager to pay for front seats. ### PROBLEM OF THE LAUNDRY.

Delicate Fabrics Are Ruined by Modern Methods.

How Poor Girls Are Taught in New York City to Become Competent Laundresses.

France, so long the acknowledged queen of the art of laundry work, is yielding her scepter to England. In New York, for years the French laundries have demanded exorbitant rates for their work which people have paid gladly, however, for the methods of the ordinary public laundry and their sad results have been only too well known to those dependent on such establishments for the washing and ironing of their fine linens and laces.

Such articles as a general thing come home from the public laundries not only poorly washed and ironed, but scorched, torn, and with the delicate fabrics rotted with acids in many cases. Besides this there is always the laundry mark with which even the finest table linen is disfigured. A few visits to the laundry usually annihilates anything in the way of wearing ap-parel which is not of the strongest description, writes a contributor to the

New York Sun.

But of late there has been a decrease in the number of French laundries. Those who have been able to pay the prices charged at these places have found it more profitable to employ private laundresses for the finer wash to women who take the things home at so much a dozen. Many of the French laundries have evolved into a large trade among those satisfied with their work.

But the standard of laundry work less expensive grades knowing that the laundry is to end them in a short

English people used to send their laundry work to the Paris washerwomen who opened places in London, but there has always been the same complaint in London as in New York It would seem as though the pic-turesque laundresses of the Latin turesque laundresses of Quarter are more artistic than practical in their labors, for late laundry work has been sent from Paris each week across the channel to Lonerica, through its colored laundry women, could show eminence in the art of doing up fine linen, but while the colored laundress of the South still achieves good results with the muslin and lace of her Southern mistress, the Northern variety of negro laundress is not expert. Besides the conditions in the crowded parts of the cities where the negroes live is not conducive to the thorough airing and cleanly drying necessary for good work in this

Pratt Institute in Broklyn has long made a specialty of its laundry classes. One day each week the pupils gather about the teacher with tubs and irons and learn the mysteries of the art. For they are veritable mysteries to most women, few of whom understand that like cooking, laundry work is a science and can be made quite as interesting as other branches of household science. One of the first lessons of the laundry class teacher is to inculcate the idea that laundry work can be done in as neat a costume as that of a parlormaid, and with as dainty hands.

The best method for boiling, starching blueing and rinsing are all shown with explanations of the chemistry of each operation and its meaning. Table linen, so rarely washed and ironed properly, is the subject of a lesson all by itself. The new dull finish, popular linen, is one of the fine points of the course.

Many women send their maids to the Pratt Institute so that they may become expert in the work, while others go themselves and acquire a knowledge of the process so that they may intelligently instruct their domestics at

A school for laundresses has been in operation for some time in this city under the auspices of a charitable organization. Here girls may learn the work under competent teachers, the course costing $5, and consisting of twelve lessons. When a girl becomes fairly expert she is paid at the rate of 60 cents a day for her work.

CHAPTER XIV. When Monsieur Lefort returned home When Monsieur Lefort returned home after this conversation, he felt terribly fatigue i. His life was one of chronic, monotonous trouble, and the excitement of the last four-and-twenty hours had been too much for him. Little used to the occurrence of anything unusual, he found himself both physically and mentally incapable of speaking either to Morie or to Angelicus of what was upon Marie or to Angelique of what was upon his mind; and so be drank his coffee in silence, wondering the while how long he should be able to afford himself his only luxury. Angelique was curious to know what had passed between her uncle and Hugh but the silence of the former know what had passed between her uncle and Hugh, but the silence of the former reassured her. After all, she had not much to fear from him—he was not Miss Clare. But still she liked things to go on without unpleasant scenes; and if she cared about anything, she cared for the good opinion of Marie.

She was, however, to a certain extent enlightened as to the position of matters by a letter which she received from Hugh that very evening and which her

Hugh that very evening, and which her uncle handed to her in a deprecating sort of way. When she had read it, she saw clearly that her best course would be to trust to fortune, seeing that she had secured her fish, and that she could rely upon Miss Clare's being kept in ignorance for the present. After all, if her uncle should make a fuss—and she had never yet known him do so about anything she could manage him somehow: ould manage him somehow and from Marie she had nothing to fear but an "Angelique!"

And so the nomination of the member for Denethorp was brought nearer by another day. Warden had returned from London, and had slept off his fatigue: and Marie had something else to think about than the humors of her cousin. And so, on the whole, Angelique had no very great cause to be dissatisfied. Madame Clare could not live for ever, and then his part, Hugh had, during the last day or two, been rather more at tentive to his aunt's guest than usual not by any means of set purpose, or with any intention of throwing dust in the eyes of anybody, but simply because he somehow felt that he had not of late paid her as much attention as mere politeness required—perhaps to some extent also on the same principle that tent also on the same principle that makes a schoolboy, who has been guilty of some great piece of mischief which of some great piece of mischief which he would rather not have found out, unsturally well behaved in other respects. Not that Miss Raymond much cared. She liked him very much, but she was by no means perpetually thinking of love and marriage. When she rode, she rode to ride, and not to fift. The interest to ride, and not to flirt. The interest which she took in the election itself arose from her being readily interested in everything that went on about her and from its interesting her friends, and not from any special cause connecte with the candidate himself. Neverthe less, the dust did find its way into Miss Clare's eyes all the same. But one day, on returning from a ride with Miss Raymond, which had been pleasant to her, not unpleasant to het cavalier, the latter was told that a gentleman was waiting in the library to

"Good-day, sir. And I trust you will think better of it by tomorrow."
And so, to add to his difficulties, he found himself engaged in a duel with the rival candidate. "So we may not have to go to the poll, after all," he said to himself, and then wrote to an acquaintance of his at the Redchester Barracks, asking him to meet him the next day.

There is a limit of insult beyond which a candidate for a borough, long-suffering as he must needs be, cannot be expected to date for a borough, long-suffering as he must needs be, cannot be expected to stand; and Prescot was not only the reverse of long-suffering, but it was just his sorest corns upon which Barton had deliberately trampled in such a manner that no man, at least in those times, could possibly let the matter pass without resenting it. On the other hand, though Lester entirely disapproved of warden's proceeding, and was himself entirely innocent, he feit himself bound To my mind this is only a case of a pions of the Southeastern League. if the truth must be told, his chief feeling about the matter was one of vanity at being engaged in his first "affair."

Nor is the dream altogether of an unpleasant kind, in spite of what soberminded people may think, when one has hot blood in one's veins, and is convinced that it is the right and chivalrous thing to do. But hot blood is apt to grow feverish, and fevers have their chills. And though love by no means them out, and is as near as they come to perfection in the infield, failed to distinguish himself, says the New Orleans Picayune of a recent issue. Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 10.—Peter Kuntz, a native of Chicago, who says he is a native of Com Paul Kruger, arrived at Pine Bluff, Ark., accompanied by a large company of capitalists and lumbermen, who are interested in his scheme to teach monkeys to pick

Mr. Kuntz is touring the State of Arkansas in search of a spot where he proposes to launch a scheme, which, if successful, will revolutionize the cotton-picking industry of the South. Kunts and his companions are traveling on a special train composed of three vestibule sleepers. Kunts proposes to colonize a large number of monkeys from Africa and South Amerca, which he says make excellent cotton-pickers. He is looking for a large tract of land, which will be bought in and a stock company formed from the number of capitalists now with him. He then proposes to embark for Africa and bring back two shiploads of monkevs. He says he has given the subject much study, and has spent many days in the African jungles and understands monkey talk as well as the Ethiopian

"It is with the greatest pleasure that I tell you what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery' have done for me," writes Mrs. Emma L. I had female weakness for six years; sometimes would feel so badly I did not know what to do, but I found relief at last, thanks to Dr. Pierce for his kind advice. I have this medicine still in my house and will always keep it." Among the party of over 50 are: John M Kirby, Muncie, Ind.; C. E. Wright, Greenville, Ohio.; J. B. Chenowith, Lynn, Ind.; C. H. Yesterday his errors were attributable to carelessness. He adopted the grand stand methods of play, using one mitt, when he should have been in the game with both hands. Several times flashes with both hands. Several times hasnes of his true baseball form showed through, however, fairly dazzling the onlookers. His two-bagger was one of the hardest line drives ever seen in New Orleans. He smashed the ball.

The finishing touches to the work were put to it last week, when the Buffalo franchise was placed in the capable and responsible hands of Mr. Stallings. Under his administration Buffalo will doubtless recover from the many years of mismanagement under the Franklin regime, and become the great baseball city it should be by reason of its large population and pronounced civic spirit, it will now become a fine pair with that rock-ribbed baseball city—Rochester. The Syracuse and Hartford weaklings have been replaced by strongly financed clubs in Jersey City and Newark, where first-class baseball has had such a long rest that a great revival is to be expected. The two Canadian cities, Toronto and Montreal, are in fine shape for a new season, and the two New England cities, Providence and Worcester, are also in better financial condition than ever before. All things considered, the Eastern League has never had a more promising cir-cuit. Under the circumstances the patrons of the Eastern League are assur-

league have every reason to expect a highly successful season this year. There is no reason why 1902, in of the coming general revival of baseball, should not be the Eastern national calamity. Sporting Life has the following entertaining sketch of John J. Grim, who was with the London international baseball team in 1898, and who is very well known here: John J. Grim, manager of the Portland team, is a player of considerable experience, having been a catcher of some note, and always was classed as a brainy player and captain by critics and fellowplayers. Grim was born 80 years ago at Cincinnati, Ohio, stands 5 feet 10 inches, and weighs 173 pounds. He fall he was signed by the Cincinnati club and turned over to the Indianapolis club of the Western League in 1896. They having a surplus in the catching department, he was later loaned to Burlington, Ia., of the Westtion disbanded, when he finished the Acting on the Detroit player's ton, Ind., team, of Central League. 1898 found him with the London club, of the International League, but early in the season, while sliding into a base, he broke an ankle, which left him out finished the season umpirwhich he ing. For the season of 1899 Grim signed to catch for Austin, of the Texas League. A short time after reporting he was made manager, which position ne filled with credit, besides catching intil the league disbanded in July Austin being in second place at that time. He played first base and managed the Anaconda team, of the Montana League, in 1900. A double season for the championship of this league was arranged, Anaconda finishing second in each series. During the past season he had charge of the Portland club, being the change catcher and acting as utility man, but owing to a sprained ankle did not participate in many games, and most of the time managed the team from the bench. How well he succeeded is evidenced by the fact that he made money for the club and won the pennant with a team of unknown youngsters without making a change, with the exception of adding one pitcher in midseason. Mr. Grim enjoys the reputation of developing many pitchers in the past; some, who are at present twirling in fast company, owe their success to his early and judicious coaching. He has been engaged to manage the Spokane team of the Pacific Northwest League for HOCKEY.

New York, Feb. 10 .- For the annual bench show of the Westminster Ken-nel Club, which will be held in Madison Square Garden, from Feb. 19 to 22, the entry list is the largest by far of any show ever held in this country. AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, Feb. 10.—Lennep's victory in the Club House handicap, worth $1,250 to the winner, was a surprise to the tallent on Saturday. The aged mare was crowded out in the first quarter, but, under Gormley's vigorous ride, worked her way through, caught Sevoy, a strong second choice, in the back stretch, where he was tiring badly, and beat him out very cleverly. Too much use was made of the Fizer entry—Ida Ledford and Fellx Bard—favorites at 13 to 5, and when the princh came they fell back. Weather clear, track good.

A MID-WINTER NIGHT'S DREAM. The snows outside are white and white The gusty flue shouts through the night And by the lonely chimney light I sit and dream of Summer

The orchard bough creaks in the blast, That like a ghost goes shricking past, And coals are dying fast and fast, But still I dream of Summer.

'Tis not the voice of falling rain, Or dream-wind blown through latticed When earth will laugh in green again, That makes me dream of Summer

But hopes will then have backward flown, Like fleets of promise long outblown, And Love once more will greet his own; This is my dream of Summer. -William Wilfrid Campbell.

Referring to the sacred concert given in Knox Church, Guelph, on Thursday evening, the Guelph Mercury says: 'This was Mr. Hewlett's first appearince in the city for a number of years, and Guelph's musicians and music-loving public earnestly hope it will be only the first of a number of such appearances. Mr. Hewlett is undoubtedly one of the first organists of the Dominion, and displays a degree of skill and expression such as is seldom met with. His audience were delighted with his playing, and Mr. Hewlett paid the penalty of appreciation by having to respond to three encores. Mr. Hewlett's contribution to the programme consisted of four numbers, one of these being a double number."

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"San Toy" Delights Packed House at the Grand.

To say that the large and fashionable audience which packed the Grand Opera House on Saturday night was delighted with "San Toy," ed by the Augustin Daly Musical Company, is to put it quite mildly. Probably no engagement in the musical line this season has been so produc-tive of thorough satisfaction in every respect. The principals of the com pany were fully competent to meet all the requirements of the piece, the choruses were trained to an advanced degree of precision, and the settings of both acts proved sumptuous stage pictures. The first was a street scene in Pynka-Pong, glowing with oriental coloring, and the second showed the throne room of the emperor's palace at Pekin, with its varied grotesqueries of Chinese imagination.

The roster of names of those responsible for "San Toy's" creation makes a respectable-sized cast in itself. The book is by Edward Morton, the music by Sidney Jones, and the lyrics by Harry Greenback and Adrian Ross, while Lionel Monckton has composed some additional num-bers. The piece has been heralded as "Geisha," the work of the same set of collaborators. While it hardly sustained its claim to such a distinction, it nevertheless proved itself worthy of the favor with which it has been received in both England and America. It is more fortunate in its music than in its libretto, a fault of many recent musical productions. The score is always melodious and pleasing, but the book at times drops into an inanity which would prove its damnation in the hands of less capable perform-The plot-if such a flimsy story can be dignified with the name—concerns the fortunes of San Toy, daughter of the mandarin Yen How. She was been brought up as a boy in order to escape being forwarded to Pekin, to enter the emperor's court and become one of his wives. Her father has incurred the displeasure of the powers that be by refusing to produce her, till finally an unignorable summons secures her attendance. Her charms capture the heart of the senile old emperor and her cajoleries secure for her father pardon and preferment. while she herself is permitted to marry her English lover, Capt. Bobby Preston. Thus, slight as is the plot, no one is supposed to cavil at the slenderness of the framework, for it is hidden in the dainty grace of the superstructure erected upon it.

two years ago in Sousa's "The Bride Elect," scored a success as San Toy. In both her singing and her dancing she displayed a grace and spirit which won the favor of her audience. Many present, however, would be disposed to lay a large share of the honors at the feet of Paula Edwardes, whose overflowing vivacity and good humor made her every appearance as Dudley, the lady's maid, a source of never-failing delight. No cuter picture of femininity has been seen on a London stage for years than Miss Edwardes presented in her pretty Chinese cos-tume of red and brown in the final act. Equally fetching was her umbrella dance with Mr. Collins in the first act. Miss Edwardes can have all Miss Eliza F. Eden died on Friday at the residence of her brother-in-law, again. ost of her role as Poppy Preston, and showed the possession of a sweet and well-cultivated voice. Miss Nora Lambert caught the audience with her graceful dance in the last act. Miss Annie Cameron, a statuesque beauty, made an attractive commander of the "Emperor's Qwn." Miss Elgie Bowen, as Yung Shi, made a favorable impression with her rendition of "The Maid in the Moon." The effectiveness of the song was greatly increased by the pretty illusion of the rising moon. Miss Bowen, at the matinee, sang the role of San Toy to the complete satisfaction of the audience present.

The bulk of the fun-making fell to Mr. Samuel Collins, and he worked faithfully to please his audience. So well did he perform his task that few present would be disposed to exchange him for even the inimitable Jimmy Powers, the originator of Li. Mr. Col-lins was unfortunately suffering from a cold, which made his singing all but inaudible, but his earnest endeavors to amuse compensated in a measure for his shortcomings in this respect. Mr. George K. Fortesque invested the part of Yen How with the unctuous humor which it demanded. His topical song, "I'll Introduce It Into

China," provoked half a dozen recalls. The vocal laurels easily went to Mr. Melville Stewart, as San Toy's soldier lover, Capt. Bobby Preston. His rendering of "Love Has Come From Lotos Land" was particularly pleasing, while a storm of enthusiasm was aroused by his singing of "Tommy Atkins." This song, first heard in "The Galety Girl," some eight or nine years ago, possesses more genuine swing and spirit than all the popular (and pulpy) patriotic airs that were the product of the Boer war. It has been brought up to date by the addition of two verses, extolling the deeds of Canadians on the South African Veldt. Mr. Harold Vizard was amusing as Sir Bingo Preston, the fussy consul; Mr. Jos. Cauto was forcible as Fo Hop, San Toy's disappointed suitor; Mr. R. S. Pigott was acceptable as Lieut. Harvey Tucker, and Mr. Saroney Lambert, as the decrepit old ruler of China, had a wheezy laugh that never failed to bring a mirthful response from the The minor roles were filled with the same care that characterized

The costumes were as rich, striking and picturesque as the scenery. London the theorems and a stand a "San der thest terrogers could stand a "San der thest terrogers and the stand a "San der th don theatergoers could stand a "San Toy" every week in the year, but, un-fortunately, they seem scarce.

Fred Krantz, of 254 Wellington street, an employe of the McClary works, went through a rather exciting experience this morning at 8 o'clock. He was working near a large belt, and while stooping over, it is supposed, some part of his clothing became entangled in the belt. He was thrown around at a tremendous rate, and passed between the pulley, on which the belt runs, and the belt. Every portion of his clothing excepting his boots and socks, was torn off him, but, strange as it may seem, he was not seriously injured. A few bruises and small cuts resulted, but no bones were broken. But few cases are recorded in which a man drawn around a pulley has escaped without serious if not fatal in juries, and Mr. Krantz feels that he has been as close to death's door

THE EQUITY FIRE INSURANCE CO. Ladies' Wrappers.

4th Annual Meeting Held February 5th, 1902.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The Directors of the Equity Fire Insurance Company beg to herewith present to the Shareholders of the Company their Financial Statement for the fourth year of its business operations, ending 31st December, 1901, duly certified to by the Auditors.

In presenting this Statement, the Directors have pleasure in calling attention to the fact that the reference made in their last Annual Report as to the anticipated increase in the premium income of the Company for the past year has been considerably exceeded, it amounting in all to the very some sum of $126,960 93, being an increase over the previous year of $50,142. To this we have to add the sum of $2,563 92 of interest received and accrued, making our total income $129,524 85 for the year.

Although the year 1900 was generally regarded by fire underwriters throughout Canada and the United States as being exceptionally heavy in record of fire losses, yet the year just closed was even more marked in that

Under such circumstances, it will be a source of particular gratification to our Shareholders and others interested, to learn, and especially to your directors in being able to report, that, while our total income for the year has been $129,524 85, our expenses, including fire losses and adjustments, cancellations and reinsurance, have been only $100,976 65, which leaves the handsome balance of $28,548 20. Adding to this the balance of $8,295 19, brought forward from the previous year, we have a total surplus earnings upon the 31st December, 1901, of $36,843 39. In order to fully realize the Company's present position, it is well to bear in mind that we have, in addition to the foregoing, paid the entire cost and expenses of the organization of the Company out of the earnings of the busi-

Your Directors have therefore felt justified in declaring out of last year's earnings a dividend of 6 per cent. Upon July 1, the Company secured a Dominion license, depositing with the Government securities amounting to $52,853. This was done, as you are aware, without any extra call upon the Shareholders.

The cost of extending and organizing our business outside of the Province of Ontario has kept our expense ratio higher than it would otherwise have been, and somewhat higher than we had hoped to show at the close of the year's business. In March last, Mr. Taylor, one of the Auditors, resigned, and the Directors appointed Mr. Fred Roper in his place.

Your Directors are pleased to testify to the zeal and care of the officers, staff and agents of the Company. The term for which the Directors were elected now expires. They are eligible for re-election. All of which is respectfully submitted.
