OTTAWA PREPARES FOR OPENING OF PARLIAMENT

PLANS COMPLETE FOR THE OPENING OF OTTAWA HOUSE

Invitations Are Sent Out as the Arrangements Near End For Ceremonies.

HOUSE REDECORATED

Canadian Press Despatch. Ottawa, Feb. 12.—Plans are nearing completion for the opening ceremonies of the third session of the fourteenth parliament of Canada. The senate chamber is almost completed. A striking feature of the senate chamber will be an elaborate new crimson velour canopy, which will hang above the throne. The new canopy has been made especially in England and is embroidered with t arms of Canada and the vario provinces. The actual throne chair is the one saved from the fire of 1917. The stone carving work in the chamber has progressed considrably since the last session. Princess Louise Dragoon Guards will supply the escort to His Excellency. Trinket Vendor Not Cripple After Sales Are All Completed.

Canadian Press Despatch, Guelph, Feb. 11.—The appeal to the sympathies of men and women always appears to get across, and this fact is made to work to the general advantage of some in acquiring a living in unusual ways.

Last week there arrived in Guelph a man who "sported" a wooden peg leg, which is a common sight nowadays. This man was otherwise husky enough physically, but also wore a ort of down-and-out look as he peddled needles and such small wares

At the week-end, having finished with this city, a man tallying with the description of the peddler walked oriskly into the Canadian National station, threw his grip onto the floor and another parcel loosely wrapped. An employee, in straightening up the place, picked up the parcel and was surprised to find it the identical peg g worn by the peddler previously How the miracle of securing the per-fectly good leg was effected in place of the wooden leg is left to conject

Declares Thirty-Eight Art Students Dismissed Because of Objectionable Tactics.

Canadian Press Despate Montreal, Feb. 12.—Hazing of freshmen at McGill University has gone beyond all bounds in recent years, and today seriously affects the efficiency of the university and imperils its reputation, declared Sir Arthur Currie, principal of McGill, in an address at the annual dinner of the Arts Undergraduate Society here last night.
Formerly the practice was confined to one day, but of late years it had been extended, until it now continued over a period of weeks. Sir Arthur attributed the failure of thirty-eight art students to pass their examinations and their conse quent dismissal from the university this year, in part, to the weeks of hazing they had undergone peal to all to co-operate in "putting

New York, Feb. 11.—Ada Blackjack, Eskimo woman and sole survivor of the ill-fated Arctic expedition under Allan Crawford, the Canadian explorer, probably saved herself and refused to aid Lorne E. Knight, a member of the party, according to an interview with Harold Noice, published in the World today.

Noice led the rescue party that reached Wrangel Island, only to find Knight dead, and Allan Crawford, Milton Galle and Frederick Maurr, missing. Ada Blackjack was rescued, Early stories paid tribute to the heroism of the woman. These stories, Noice said, were based on her own statements and on part of a crude dlary she kept. Some entries in this diary, thought unreadable, have been deciphered by Noice and his wife. These the explorer said, revealed that Ada refused to aid Knight as he lay dying on the island, and probably saved herself on food that would have saved Knight from starvation. Ada was taken along with the Craw-ford expedition as a seamstress and OU can have either open type or covered type elements on your Moffat Electric Range. The advantages of the open type element, how ever, are so overwhelming that we unhesitatingly recommend every purchaser to select the Moffat open type.

In our electrical laboratories we have tested out the efficiency of Open and Covered types of elements or "burners" time and again for many years. The superiority of the Moffat Open Type over every Covered Type element produced is more marked today than ever before.

"Cosmic Consciousness" by the Late Dr. Bucke, Lauded by Bookman.

MRS. SEABORN'S FATHER

Distinguished Londoner Quoted at Length in Russian Masterpiece.

A London man wrote what the Canadian Bookman in its current issue describes as "the greatest book by a Canadian." The book is entitle "Cosmic Consciousness," and was written some forty years ago by Dr Richard Maurice Bucke, then head of the Ontario Hospital, this city Mrs. Edwin Seaborn is a daughter For years the book has been out of print, but has just recently been re-

"I know of no book by a Canadia writer with such nobility of thought illumined by so lofty a vision, no one so rich in human kindness," says Lawren Harris, writing of it in the Bookman. "I know, indeed, of but few books written any day, any place that contain so rare a fusion sweetness and strength, of insign and simplicity. It is stated on th title page that it is 'A study in th evolution of the human mind,' an so it is, but a study illumined by the light of a radiant understanding, with not the least trace of sentimentality no prepossession in favor of any doc trine, any creed, nor any belief-ne concern whatsoever with the bicker

Quoted by Russian.

It is very significant that Ouspen sky, great Russian mathematician whose book called "Tertium Or ganum" was written at the beginning of the war, and recently translated quotes ten pages from Dr. Bucke's book and devotes six pages more to the correcting and amplifying Dr. Bucke's thesis. So much has happened in the world of thought these conclusions needed qualifying, but the great heart of his book remains lofty and true. And London should be proud that one of her sons wa considered worthy of quotation i osophical work that has come out

The first sixty-eight pages of the WBZ - Springfield, Mass.-890 Kilo book contains some preliminary remarks designed to throw as much light as possible on the subject of cosmic consciousness, also the story of Dr. Bucke's own experience and the tracing of evolution from the sim ple consciousness of the anima through self-consciousness to cosmi consciousness, showing it to be a natural evolution of the mind from brute to demi-god. Stating of Cases. "The remainder and greater part of the book is devoted to a study of the cases of cosmic consciousness, commencing with the Buddha, Confucius and Christ, and includes fourteen instances of such illumination and thirty-six lesser, imperfect and doubtful instances. These are expensed. and savings of the individuals. From his research Dr. Bucke finds that certain definite tendencies oc currences and characteristics are common to all fifty individuals. He shows that such individuals are the pioneers of a new race, whose spiritual eyes have been opened, and whose conviction of all that is noble whose conviction of all that is noble and majestic and wondrous is unconquerable, and that these have been and today are, the inspirers of all those who in any degree approach greatness. He further shows that the attitude of mind of these must needs be different from that of other men. They live their lives no longer subject to any doubt. They are given no more to self-justification.

For once the spiritual eye has seen, however faintly, and for however short a time, all life is as oneself, and love is supreme. Friend of Walt Whitman,

"Dr. Bucke was a close friend of Walt Whitman, and devotes a chapter to him. This is as rich and reverential a salutation of one fine soul to another as I know of.

"Think of this book, written in the Ontario of forty years ago, and written with such a glorious, sweeping gesture. Consider what life in this province was then, the people sub-merged in severest orthodoxy, divided. and blinded and sustained by sectarian views, comfortably warped by provincialism and remote from all cultural centers. Such occurrences convince one that vision is paramount in life-that there is a rhythm of majesty swinging around this globe and

Answer:
The only thing that you can do is to try to convince your wife that you are sincere in your repentance and that you will treat her better in the future than you have in the past. But probably she's got a line on your disposition and character that makes her rather skeptical on the subject. Any woman with the spirit of a mouse would not stand upon the order of her going but would go at once.

when her husband ordered her to leave his roof, which is also her roof, remember, for the woman does just as much toward building up a home as a man does. Also, if she is a woman of spirit, it would take her a long time to forgive the insult that had been

The trouble with a great many men, Reginald, is that they think that wife should stand for any sort of treatment-that she should let her husband neglect her, and be surly and grouchy with her, and find fault with her, and abuse her, and then, when he gets good and ready to do some little kind act or apologize, that she should wipe out the memory of all of his mean treatment and fall on his neck with tears of forgiveness.

Well, let me tell you that women are not built that way. Women don't always resent every little injustice and unkindness at the time. They don't always fight a wrong out on the spot. But every wife carries in her heart a little account in which she sets down all the mean little things, the cruel, unnecessary hurts, that her husband inflicts upon her. And some day she adds it all up and makes him pay for the whole sum total. When a wife leaves her husband or divorces him it is never for one particular crime he has committed against her. She would forgive that. What she can't forgive is all that has gone before.

I surmise that you never made the wife job very attractive to your wife, Reginald, or else you wouldn't find it so hard to get her to come back. If she does give it a trial again, treat her better and she may be DOROTHY DIX. more anxious to stay.

Dear Miss Dix-I am twenty-four years old. Have been married for hree years, and have been happy, although my husband is of a cold and reserved disposition. My husband has a friend, older and more attractive han he is, and everywhere we go this friend must go, too. At first I was indifferent, but now I find that I want him, and also plan for his going. He, s very nice to me and makes himself most agreeable, but, judging from many of the pictures I see at the movies, it is often the best friend who makes trouble and is the cause of the alienation of the affections of a wife rom her husband.

If my husband really loved me, would he always want me to see so much of this attractive man? He thinks it would be right for me to go out with this friend alone, but I am afraid that that would make talk. Please tell me just exactly what you think. GRACE M.

think you are a wise little woman, Grace and that you have read the moral of many a screen lesson aright. In the human triangle the Best Friend is often the acute angle that causes all the

Sometimes, the Best Friend is a villain who deliberately starts in to steal away a husband or wife because he or she covets his or her neighbor's possessions. Sometimes Best Friend breaks up a home as ruthlessly as a spoiled child breaks up a toy just to gratify his or her vanity by inveigling a silly wife or an easily flattered man into a compromising love affair.

And Best Friend has admirable opportunity for these nefarious de signs. The intimacy of the home gives every advantage of a meeting spot. The cloak of friendship permits familiarities and caresses, that would be resented from any stranger. The knowledge of the faults of husbands and wives gives the he-vamp or the she-vamp a chance to separate husbands and wives and persuade them that they are misunderstood and not appreciated, and have mistaken their real soul-mate.

Sometimes Best Friend is not a villain, but a victim and without intending it he or she falls in love with the husband or wife of the friend whom he or she would rather die than betray.

Propinquity does its deadly work after people are married just as much as it did before, and it is never safe to give an attractive stranger the run of the home. Moreover, any man and woman who believes that their powers of fascination are such that their wives and husbands are never in danger from any outsider are simply fooled by their own vanity. There are times of discontent, times when men and women get bored, when they are disgruntled, when they are angry and hurt, when they are ready to turn to the nearest good-looking and attractive woman or man for interest, amusement, or to have their egotism salved, and then is when Best Friend gets in his or her

It is every husband's and wife's business to protect their own from

Dear Miss Dix-I am engaged to be married to a young man who is elf-made. He is well educated, refined and holds a very responsible posiion, but he comes of very plain people. His parents have made money. and are well-to-do, but they have not the remotest idea of the ordinary uses of polite society, and they are utterly illiterate. I am far from being a such, but I can hardly bear the thought of their being my relatives. My fiance insists on a large wedding, which I also desire, but I don't feel as though I want his family at my wedding to humiliate me. Neither do I want to hurt his feelings. What shall I do?

Answer: I should think, under the circumstances, that the only thing to do would be to put your foolish pride in your pocket and have the courage to face the music, and accept your fiance's family as they arc. Certainly you would have a contempt for your sweetheart if he were so ashamed of his mother and father that he would not ask them to his own wedding, and he would be bound to think you a very small-souled woman to be snobbish enough to ignore them.

After all, they are to be your people, and their blood will run in your children's veins. Your children will inherit from them, and there must be something fine in the strain if they produced a man like the one you are going to marry.

Don't be ashamed of your husband's people. Some of these plain, uneducated men and women are the salt of the earth, and have a homely wisdom that has more real intelligence in it than all the DORCTHY DIX. learning the colleges teach. Copyright, 1924, by Public Ledger Company.

There were plenty of reasons why people should have voted. In 58 of the 107 ridings there were three or more candidates running. That meant there were three or more separate political organizations working to get the people to come out and vote.

The record of the U. F. O. government was at stake, as well as its chances of continuing in office; there was also the hope of many opposed to the O. T. A. that the return of the Conservatives would mean a change in that act; the question of hydro development was also made a straight political issue There were enough appeals to bring out a good vote, and yet in the places under review about 52 per cent voted and 48 per cent staved at

British Conservatives have dropped protection because they were defeated on that issue in the last elec- there. tion.

That places them in the position of putting party advantage above public school, crowded in against crisis would have led to anything so the principle they advocated, and on which they went to the country.

No party ever became a great party by pulling up stakes and moving off to some other location because they had been unsuccessful at the polls

Gladstone did not make the circuit from an ultra-Conservative to Liberal and on to the verge of what was then called radicalism by any such easy method.

When he had broadened to the extent that he could no longer sit for the Duke of Newcastle's seat at Newark, he found another place at Oxford. When the welfare of the mass of the people seized him he was driven from the Conservative atmosphere at Oxford to South Lancashire; further on in his career he had to find a haven at Greenwich. He held throughout to his policy of reform, and when, after being ten years in retirement, he felt called to action on account of Disraeli's insipid attitude toward the Turkish massacres, he had to go into the historic riding of Midlothian to gain is to be attained by framing a Tondon Advertiser is to be attained by framing a policy, and then dropping it at the first sign of popular disapproval.

A Difference of Method.

A nice point was raised when the local board of works were discussing estimates. The engineer favored a plan of including street sweeping and cleaning in the general rate, rather than on a frontage basis. The objection was that this would put $34,000 more in the general tax rate, rather than having the amount The provincial elections of 1923, placed as special charges against property on a frontage basis.

The plan has been followed for a long time of taking things out of the long time l general rate and placing them as special taxes against property. The idea in the first place was to keep As simple mortals love to style 'em, of the importance we have attached the general rate from going beyond the point provided by the Municipal

> As soon as the general rate got to the point where it was bumping its head against the legal ceiling, something was taken off and placed as a special charge against property on a frontage basis. After this operation was performed the general rate could go ahead and grow until it threatened to become over-sized, when another operation would be necessary. The outcome of this has been that the general rate has never had a chance to get so big that it would alarm the people. In London besides the general rate there is the tax on sewers, payements curbs and gutters, street watering or oiling, pavement sweeping and street cleaning garbage collection.

The business of starting in th other direction, viz., of starting to place these special taxes back in the general rate, is going to drive un the general rate, but take it off the special taxes. If a council is going o be judged simply on the basis o hat tax rate they find it necessary o employ, it will be poor business for them. There is also the point that the man on a small street i. now sharing the cost of street clean ing in areas where they get much more attention than his property receives or desires.

If this plan is to be followed i cannot be charged to the mayor that ne increased the tax rate. The citi zens will have to look upon it as the start of a plan whereby they can se in one column what the tax rate really is. At present they have a general rate and nine other special axes, and it is quite a problem for man to tell what the mill rate

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY.

Then were the people of Israel divided into two parts .-- I. Kings xvi., 21.

Lincoln's main purpose in life was to preserve the federal union of the people of these United States. He held to this because he believed that God had a great destiny for the united republic. On minor questions of policy he was so willing to compromise that his own followers blamed him. But on the vital question of disunion he would never compromise.

In that cause, he would oppose force with force. When the civil war was ended he refused even to consider the question whether the seceding states were in the union or out of it. He called that question "a merely pernicious abstraction." (Last public address, April 11, 1865.) His one desire and policy was the restoration of the proper practical relations between these states and the union.

His death by the hand of an insane assassin delayed, obscured and bungled that policy. But in the end it has triumphed.

Lincoln's idea of a comprehensive union is vindicated. Politicians and theologians, put that in your pipe and smoke it. You will find it a true pipe of peace. I want to say some more new things about this great man in to-

To His People At Home

Dear Jack:

I imagine most of us have congratulated ourselves on the mild weather bestowed by the gods of comfort on us this winter. I remember before Christmas some of us were impatient with the slow approach of winter. We wanted skating, and hockey and all the other seasonable enjoyments.

The recent cold spell, however, with its 20 and 30 below in some parts of the States had a different complexion and in the city of Chicago alone took a toll of four lives. Benjamin Case, 65, was found dead a block from his house; Burt Anderson, a negro, was frozen to death in an alley where he is supposed to have gone for shelter. An unidentified man was found dead in the downtown district (within the light from the windows of the big stores) and a young unknown woman died on a doorstep a few doors from her

Thus came the spirit of winter to four adventurers down life's highway. The same February weather that gave some of us the ice we wanted, the skating and the hockey, laid its fingers on their breasts. And yet for the four who died in this great industrial city next door, thousands huddled and shivered in bleak tenement and garret, and hundreds crouched bent double in some dark basement fighting the unrelenting chill. So, as I see it, whether we look forward to winter or not is merely a matter of circumstance. The hobo moves south following the migrating birds. The chap with the warm house that happened some years ago in a small church north of London. The who stays up here in Canada puts on his fur coat and stokes the furnace. The millionaire, like the hobo, goes south. His poorer brother sees as little beauty in the glint of the snow, but he has to stay just the same. Through the pageant of sparkling winter stalks the stiff figure of misery. The supreme festival in the year for us, neither of us The pastor arose and said this was not the proper time or place to dis-

The Point of Contact

THERE'S a simple catch in the familiar phrase that tells how the world beats a path to the door of the man who makes a better mouse-trap.

The maker of anything, if he is to win the plaudits of the world, must not only manufacture a superior product, but must also let folks know of his achieve= ments. He must point out just why his mouse-trap, his automobile or his shaving cream is better than his neighbor's. He must advertise.

Advertising is the point of contact between the man who makes something and the man who wants something. Through an advertisement, a manufacturer can tell you in a few short minutes all you want to know about the article or the service he has to offer.

This newspaper is constantly full of ideas that other men and women have thought out for your personal benefit. Fail to read the advertisements and you remain in ignorance of countless products that would make life easier, happier and more interesting for you and your entire family.

Advertising gives you news of the latest and best things made—with word as to what they will do, what they cost and where to get them. Think of all you miss when you overlook the advertisements.

BOARD OF EDUCATION DROPS $14,385 FROM ESTIMATES OF DRINK OPPOSED

Expenditures For Year Fixed At $442,260 At Committee Session Monday-Increase Over 1922-Art and Music Suffer-Effect of Salary Boosts Felt.

SCHOOL NURSES TO COST $250 MORE THIS YEAR

Estimated public school expenditure for 1924 was fixed at $442,260 by number one committee of the board of education yesterday afternoon. This is $14,385 less than the tentative estimates for the year, but is $6,510 more than last year's estimates, which were $435,750.

"The increase is explained to a large extent in salary increases," explained Rev. G. Quintin Warner, chairman of the committee. Art expenditure was cut materially as was music equipment. Some $300 was cut from the expense of auxiliary classes. There were also other minor cuts made which can be seen in the list of estimates published below. School nurses will cost $250 more this year, while other expenses not listed in public school expenditures last year are solicitor's fees of $300 and

Students will be glad to know that expenses in connection with the school picnic were not pared, and that they still stand at $475. Those present at the meeting were Trustees Warner, G. F. Copeland, Mrs. John Rose, Chairman Bryden Campbell of the board of education, School Inspector V. K. Greer and Secretary Tanner. Trustees absent at the gathering were Dr. Grant and J. B. Wright.

Accounts totalling $628.66 were passed by the committee. Following is a table showing exactly how the citizens' money will be spent on public schools this year. The first figures are estimates for last year, the second shows the totals of tentative estimates prepared last fall at the request of Mayor Wenige, while the last table gives the revised estimates which will go to the board of education for final approval:

> > JUST A LITTLE CHANCE, A LITTLE JACK.

"Just a little chance, a little jack" seems to be the refrain of the modern chool of baseball rookies. Formerly they were pleased all over at merely eing given a chance. Now they want a slice of the purchase money. Not being dull, inanimate objects of sale, ball players seem to be justified in demanding a certain portion of the price they bring.

Owners, it seems are going to take the same short-sighted view of this matter as they first took of what are now considered reasonable rights of players. The protection given ball players of the present day has been gained through long years of struggle.

Meantime, of course, the first martyrs to the cause of progress may lose both their opportunities and their jobs at one and the same time.

MONAHAN IN AGAIN

Jack McKay and Taylor Welcome Additions To

London Juniors make their bow in the Northern League series at Stratford tonight. They strike the Midgets right after their bad defeat of Kitchener's much touted kids in the junior C. H. A. series in far from an amiable frame of mind. The Londoners, however, will be stronger than they have been at any other time this season. Beside the regulars including Monahan, who will be back with his fellow juniors again for this game; Jack McKay, youngster member of the A. McKay-Roy McKay-J. McKay forward line of the McClarys' team in the Manufacturers' League, and Taylor, a speedy youngster from the Junior City League, will be additions. Moore, who will probably play with the in-termediates when they start will be back with the juniors, too.

against Woodstock on their own sheet, the London lads should be able to hold the Midgets down to even terms on the big Stratford ice tonight. The possibilities are there if the players will give them a chance to be confirmed.

The Midgets are a good team, and in any other company but Kitchen-er's probably would have grabbed off several O. H. A. groups. In goal they have Norfolk, who played with the Indians last year. Pidgeon at centre will need to be well checked as he did things on Kitchener in the first game at Stratford. The whole Midget outfit e's boxing card tonight. Woodham is well balanced. However, considering Stratford against Kitchener and London against Woodstock, it looks

To this day I am unable to understand just why the Willard-Dempsey fight at Toledo, on July 4, 1919, was not a bigger financial success. I figured it out carefully beforehand and I have tried to figure it out impersonally since. As yet I see no definite reason for the comparatively small attendance.

In staging the fight my mind was definitely set on a big arena and the next step was to locate the right spot in which to erect it. We had all sorts of offers.

In my own mind I had concluded

the Middle West.

Having arrived at that conclusion took the plunge. The erection of the arena alone cost me $120,000.

But the people did not come—not in great numbers.

There was quite a commotion, Everybody believed for a second that the fellow who had made the bet of $200 against $3,000 that Dempsey would win the first round had won.

JOHN BELL, JR., AND HIS MELODY PIRATES, are without a doubt one of the most entertaining orchestras that has ever visited London. I can highly recommend this attraction as one of stellar features of the 1924 season. It will be well worth your while to attend the Winter Gardens on Wednesday evening, Feb. 13, for the purpose of dancing to a band of this calibre.

The popular price of 50c admission, dancing free, will enable all patrons to take advantage of participating in the best Valentine Dance ever staged in London.

The Correct Foundation For Your Costume

In these days when the straight line is the smartest distance between two points, it is of first importance that your costume should have the correct foundation.

So the Lady Mac Slenderform Corsets have recently been added to our stock. We should advise you to have a fitting with one of these new models of Brassiere and Corset combined, by one of our graduate corsetieres.

The Lady Mac Slenderform really does slenderize -it does this because it does not crowd the flesh. The garment hooks down the left side, and is long enough to take in the flesh across the back and thigh. The lacing down each hip makes the garment easily adjustable to any hip measurement.
