IVANHOE.

(BY SIR WALTER SCOTT, BART.)

"Whatever becomes of him," said Prince John, "no is vic or of the day; and were he tenfold our enemy, or the devoted friend of our brother, which is perhaps the same, his wounds must be looked to—our own physician shall attend him."

A stern smile curled the Prince's lip as he spoke. Waldemar Fitzurse hastened to reply, that Ivanhoe was already removed from the lists, and in the custody of his friends.

"I was somewhat afflicted," he said, "to see the grief of the Queen of Love and Beauty, to whose sovereignty of a day this event has changed into mourning. I am not a man to be moved by a woman's lament for her lover; but this same Lady Rowena suppressed her sorrow with such dignity of manner, that it could only be discovered by her folded hands and tearless eye, which trembled at a remembrance of the listless hour before her."

"Who is this Lady Rowena," said Prince John, "of whom we have heard so much?"

"A Saxon heiress of large possessions," replied the Prior Aysler; "a rose of loveliness, and a jewel of wealth; the fairest among a thousand, and a bundle of money, and a cluster of camphire."

"We shall cheer her sorrows," said Prince John, "and should her lord, by wedding her to a Norman, she seems a minor, and must therefore be at our royal disposal in marriage. How sayest thou of this, my friend? What thinkest thou of gaining fair lands and livings, by wedding a Saxon, after the fashion of the followers of the Conqueror?"

"It is the laudable wish of my liking, my lord," answered De Bracy, "it will be hard to displease me with a bride; and deeply will I hold myself bound to your highness for a good deed, which will fulfil all promises made in favor of your servant and vassal."

"We will not forget it," said Prince John, "and that we may instantly go to work, and our seneschal presently to order the attendance of the Lady Rowena and her company—that is, the rude churl her guardian, and the Saxon ox struck down in the tournament, upon this evening's banquet. De Bracy," he added to his own second summons so courteously as to gratify the pride of these Saxons, and make it impossible for them again to refuse; although, by the bones of Becket, courtesy to him is costing pearls before swine."

Prince John had proceeded thus far, and was about to give the signal for retiring from the lists, when a small billet was put into his hand.

"From whence?" said Prince John, looking at the person by whom it was delivered.

"From foreign parts, my lord, but from whence, I know not," replied his attendant. "A Frenchman brought it hither, who said he had hidden night and day to put it into the hands of your highness."

John then opened the billet with apparent agitation which visibly and greatly increased when he had perused the contents, which were expressed in these words:

"Take heed to yourself, for the Devil is uncleaned!"

The Prince turned as pale as death, looked first on the earth, and then to heaven, like a man who has received news that sentence of execution has been passed upon him. Recovering from the first effects of his surprise, he took Waldemar Fitzurse and De Bracy aside, and put the billet into their hands successively. "It means, he added, in a faltering voice, "that my brother Richard has obtained his freedom."

"This may be a false alarm, or a forged letter," said De Bracy. "It is France's own hand and seal," replied Prince John.

"It is time, then," said Fitzurse, "to draw our party to a head, either at York, or some other central place. A few days later, and it will be indeed too late. Your highness must break short this present mummery."

"The women and commons," said De Bracy, "must not be dismissed discontented; for lack of their share in the sports."

"The day," said Waldemar, "is not yet very far spent—let the archers shoot a few rounds at the target, and the prize be adjudged. This will be an abundant fulfilment of the Prince's promises, so far as this herd of Saxon serfs is concerned."

"I thank thee, Waldemar," said the Prince; "thou remindest me, too, that I have a debt to pay to that insolent peasant who yesterday insulted our person. Our banquet also shall go forward to-night as we proposed. Were this my last hour of power, it should be an hour sacred to revenge and to pleasure—let new cares come with tomorrow's new day."

A NICE PIECE OF EFFRONTERY TRULY!

Our readers will remember that at the last meeting of the City Council a resolution was passed, authorizing the preparation of a petition praying for the separation of the City of Fredericton from the County of York, for the purpose of legislative representation. At a meeting held yesterday by what is known as the County Council the following resolution was put and carried:

"That a committee be appointed to prepare a petition to oppose any action to be taken by the City Council with regard to the matters contained in their resolution of last evening."

Of course no one can see head or tail to the resolution, but it was beyond question intended to mean something like this:

"That a committee be appointed to prepare a petition—or to get some one to prepare it for them—praying that the petition of the City Council, to the Legislature, asking for a representative for the City of Fredericton, be not complied with."

Badly constructed as this resolution is, we are thankful for it. It tells more forcibly than we can why the citizens of Fredericton, without losing any time, should press for separate representation. What we claim for our argument is, Under the present state of affairs the interests of Fredericton are subordinated to the interests of the county; that there is everything for us to gain by the change we ask for, and nothing to lose. As a proof of this, the city, through her council, wants separation; if she had anything to lose, indeed if she had not anything to gain, she would not ask for it. But the County Council knows full well that if such a separation should take place the county then will have to bear more evenly its legitimate burthens; therefore they ask that the petition of the City Council be not complied with. We hope this is plain to every mind in the city; it is as plain to us as the noon-day sun.

We have not a wonderfully high estimate of the intelligence of the County Council, but we never could have believed them so very shallow as to show their hand the way they have done till we saw what they intended for a resolution. They must have known, if indeed they know anything more than how to eat, drink, sleep and cultivate their lands, that the moment they took such a ridiculous step as is shown above, they would fire the city to prompt action. However the mistake is theirs, not ours, as theirs is the loss and ours the gain.

Now we hope that Fredericton will not do like that famous city of old whose unhappy state was well illustrated by the philosopher who likened it to the human body: when the hands warred against the feet, and the mouth against the stomach, while each was essential to the well being of the whole. The modern repetition of this fable that we fear is the unfortunate squabble between up town and down town on the "Free Market."

It is a disgrace that a little city like Fredericton should divide itself on such a silly question. We should not speak of the contemptible affair at all but that it is considered opportune at the present moment by certain schemers whom we shall name if necessary to prevent the separation we have suggested. Some of these people go to the down town people and say, "Look here now, if Fredericton get a city representative, the City Council will control the markets, and close up the Free Market." We wish to dispel this illusion. We only ask at the present for a representative for Fredericton, who is prepared to advocate the rights of the city before the House. We do not, nor do the city, want, a separation of the common interests of the City and County; that for another time.

But suppose the city thought it well to have an entire separation, then there is also a way out of the difficulty. Let both markets be declared free, and the country people going to what market they choose. Let this contemptible sectional difference be put out of sight by arranging it as we have suggested, and let the citizens one and all put their names to the petition now in preparation by the City Council. We shall then see if the conglomerate documents of the County Council will keep us longer under the great coarse heel of the County.

THE "MONCTON TIMES" ON THAT PAMPHLET.

The Times, like the other newspapers in the province who reviewed this interesting and valuable work, when sober, says in a lengthy article on "Settlement":

"The Hon. Surveyor General Adams of the New Brunswick Government, as we have noticed in previous issues, is doing the province a good service in attracting the attention of intending settlers to the free grant lands of our own Province. The little pamphlet recently issued by his department contains much valuable information, not very generally known, and we would advise New Brunswickers, who may desire to take a new departure and acquire a good farm, to get a copy of this publication from the Hon. Surveyor General and study it well. We believe that if such a course were pursued by all those who now leave for Manitoba or the States, a large proportion of those would take up the free lands of our own Province. Quite a number of new settlements have lately been formed by the New Brunswick Government and are doing well. This Province, at the last census, contained nearly 8,000,000 acres of Crown lands. At that date there were 127,766 acres of Crown lands, coming under the free grants act, in the County of Westmorland, and this is probably the richest county in the province to-day. Albert, an excellent agricultural county, had over 85,000 acres; Kent 584,154 acres. We think Surveyor General Adams does well in taking such an interest in the settlement of our free lands, which are capable of sustaining many thousands of inhabitants, thus creating a market for our manufactures and proving a benefit all round."

The Times article is well put, and well in order. The time has arrived now when New Brunswick should be up and doing for herself. The issue of this pamphlet, we are glad to say, is the first proper step that has been made in the direction of settling our lands for many years. The next step is: plenty of discussion in the provincial press on our waste lands, that our people all may know that they need not go either to Manitoba or to the North West for a good farm.

Hitherto they had no means of knowing this. The Dominion was flooded with pamphlets from the Hudson Bay Company, from the Manitoba and North-West Immigration Agencies, while our people heard nothing except in a vague way of our own splendid forests and waste lands. We wish while the Times was on this subject it had mentioned to its Westmorland readers that the New Brunswick R. R. Company have two million acres of the prime land, convenient to the railroad and to the largest rivers in the province.

DEATH OF JULES FAVRE.

ANOTHER great French light has gone out. Gabriel Claude Jules Favre was born in Lyons, in 1809. He studied law and became a brilliant and powerful advocate. It seemed to be his greatest professional aim to get political prisoners to defend; and the stormy state of French politics during his early career afforded him the opportunities for which he thirsted. His first public utterances evinced a spirit of Republicanism which deepened and strengthened as his mind became more matured. In 1848 he was secretary to the provisional government, and held other important positions from that up to 1851, when, after the coup d'etat, he refused to take the oath of "Fidelity." While an Emperor reigned at Paris there was little of public honors, save what might be extorted by fear, for such a radical spirit as Jules Favre. In the palmiest days of the Empire, Favre's zeal for the Republican cause was as fervid as when the people, intoxicated with the change, cried out "Vive la Republique." His defense of Orsini, charged with the attempted assassination of Napoleon III, is the most memorable of his pleadings. After the downfall of the Empire, he was appointed Minister of War, and carried on negotiations with Bismarck for the surrender of Paris. In 1876 he was appointed Senator for the department of the Rhone, in which position he acted till Tuesday, when the final summons came to call him the way we all must go.

SIR HUGH W. HOYLES RETIRES.

Sir Hugh Hoyles, who was compelled to resign the Chief Justiceship of Newfoundland, in consequence of ill health, and who left there for England in the steamer Hibernian on Friday last, was made the recipient of two addresses previous to his departure, one from the members of the Bar, and one from the inhabitants of St. John's. Each address was accompanied with a gift of money.—Ex.

Never has a Judge leaving the bench better deserved a tribute of respect and admiration than Sir Hugh W. Hoyles.

Sir Hugh's record as a politician, as a lawyer and as a judge is without blemish; and brilliant. On the floors of the Newfoundland Legislature there was no debater so brilliant and so far seeing; and his public acts always pointed towards the public good. At the Bar there was none more feared and respected, and he had the power of carrying juries with him in almost every case. As a Judge he was an honor and an ornament to the bench; and who ever kept the ermine pure; and whose decisions were admitted by the learned to be sound, and by the losing side to be honest. He was truly "a most upright Judge."

ECCE SIGNUM!

"Most men are Liberals in their youth and Conservatives in their old age."—Telegraph.

That is, Liberalism is one of the follies of youth, and Conservatism the wisdom of old age. Now the Telegraph's editor is becoming quite an old man; he has already "gone back" on a number of his youthful professions; why does he not go over the fence to Conservatism? Perhaps he is now making the way smooth. Perhaps this utterance is the first slip of conservatism.

RELIGIOUS.

A Catholic priest and a Baptist minister in good standing are running a shingle mill in partnership in Garthly, P. Quebec.—Ex. Chronicle.

This is a violent attack on the "priest" and also on the "shingle mill."

The Government will likely meet the early part of next week.

What hung on a Single Wire.

[N. Y. Herald, Jan. 14.]

On Sunday morning a large and heavily loaded steamship, making her way through Point Chatham, within the corporate limits of Boston, found her way impeded by a railway bridge the draw of which was not open. The pilot pulled at a handle that should have rung a bell in the engine-room and stopped the ship, but the bell did not ring; the steamers went on; she struck the bridge apparently at the draw, broke the bolt which locks the draw and sprung the rails about a foot and a half from their proper positions. Meanwhile a passenger train was rapidly approaching the bridge (which is said to have had no one on it.) When within a train's length of the bridge the engineer, happening to notice the displaced rails, reversed the action of the locomotive and saved five carloads of passengers from death by stopping the train within fifteen feet of the bridge. This chapter of accidents and horrible possibilities all came of the breaking of a bell wire on the steamship. At the extra cost of a dollar, two or three wires might have extended from the engineer's bell to the handle in the pilot's room, and many bells aboard steamboats and steamships are so rigged, in order that the common accident of a breaking wire may not lead to a disaster. When the owners of the steamer repair the damage caused by the accident, they will probably agree with us that small economies involving great risks are detestable.

Scott's Early Romance.

It is an old saying, "Whom we first love we never wed," and this, says Once a Week, though not strictly true, may be applied to Scott, Byron, George Washington, and many other men of note. It is interesting to observe how poets generally present their love matters to the public. The personal experience of such men will crop out. Scott, for instance, fell deeply in love in early life with a girl of aristocratic family, and as he was then merely a poor barrister, there was no prospect of success. His father, knowing this, and being desirous of bringing the matter to a close, suggested to the parents the propriety of terminating the acquaintance and this was done in the least painful manner. The lady was the only daughter of Sir John Stewart of Forthshire, and she afterwards was married to Sir Wm. Forbes, the noted Edinburgh banker. As Scott was a well educated young man, of fine personal appearance and very agreeable manners, there could be no reason for giving the banker the preference, except his wealth and social position. Scott felt this keenly though in life; in Rokeby he revived the episode at some length. Matilda, the heroine of the poem, represents the objects of his love, who there rejects a post in favor of one of the higher rank, and this scene becomes doubly interesting as a daughter of Sir John Stewart. In 1811 Lady Forbes died; but she lived long enough to see the once penniless barrister the first poet in Scotland. Her death was deeply felt by Scott, for, although he had been married twelve years, the old flame was not extinguished. "Rokeby" appeared next year, and Lockhart says "that there is nothing wrought out, in all Scott's prose, more exquisite than the contrast between the girl for the hand of the heroine." Six years afterward Scott wrote this to Miss Edgeworth: "Matilda was attempted for the person of the lady who is now no more, so that I am flattered with your distinguishing it. As this took place nearly twenty years after the disappointment, it illustrates the tenacity with which the author held to his first love. When Lady Forbes died, Scott was so affected that he called on her mother, and both fell to weeping over the sad affair. It is a curious incident in domestic history to see a man carrying his first love so tenderly through life, while married to another woman to whom he always showed great attachment. Scott evidently made Matilda the ideal or dream-wife who accompanied him to the last. Having recovered from the worst effects of his disappointment, he met a French girl, whose father had saved both life and fortune by fleeing from the dangers of the revolution. At the time referred to, Miss Carpenter (Comptess) was an orphan, and to her Scott transferred his affections, as far as this was possible. He appeared, as has been said, much attached to his wife through life, and sincerely mourned her death. She was, however, intellectually and physically inferior to the Scottish ladies of that city, and the rapid degeneracy of the family may, in some degree, be ascribed to so unfavorable a union."

Just open the door for her, and Mrs Winslow will prove the American Florence Nightingale of the Nursery. Of this we are so sure, that we will teach our "Susy" to say, "A blessing on Mrs. Winslow" for helping her to survive and escape the griping, colicking, and teething stage. MRS. As I propose to remain in Fredericton this winter, I intend, if classes can be formed before the first of February, to teach a limited number of pupils of both sexes (collectively or separately, as may previously be agreed upon) for the season, in the various branches of Drawing and Painting (Landscapes and Figures). Arrangements may be made by calling at M. S. Hall's Book Store, Queen Street. S. H. GARDNER, Artist.

Evangelistic.
The services for the past two evenings in the Baptist Church, under the leadership of Mr. Chubbuck have been very well attended and there is reason to believe considerable interest is being raised among the backsliders.

THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

LECTURE DELIVERED BY REV. H. H. NEALES, AT KINGSCLEAR JAN. 20.

The lecturer some years ago took holidays in England and while there visited the wonder of South London, the Crystal Palace. This wonderful structure is composed of zinc and glass, and the lecturer said, "As you approach when the setting sun throws out its flame, it sparkles in the distance like a huge diamond." He claimed that this architectural phenomenon was the result of the intelligence of the 19th century. We had read in the annals of the medieval ages how angels fled through the air bringing hordes resplendent with ethereal hues and shades, upon their back. In the Crystal Palace this wonderful legend might seem to the observer to be realized. The object of this erection was two-fold. It was to have an educational value, and to afford entertainment for the masses. Inside it the stranger stands amazed. Every clime and every people and every age are represented. The rich foliage of the tropics, the withered shrubs and lichens of the frigid zones, and the products of the temperate climes are shown in proper array. Animals from the Indian jungles, tigers from Bengal; the monster whale from the frozen sea lashes himself in a huge vat; the golden-winged inhabitants of the tropical forest and the birds of the northern climes find a habitation in this wonderful collection of art. The geologist has gone back ages behind when the first letter of Cadmus was made to bring records of the world's history. Extinct animals, including that horrible creature half reptile and half fish; monster mammals that walked over the land in forgotten ages, are shown in a fossil existence. Relics of an age before man walked over the earth, too, are to be seen. It is a miniature world showing the past and the present.

There are 7,000 entrances to this wondrous building, and each entrance shows a variety of wonders. It struck us as a little odd that the lecturer always spoke of negroes and axes in the same breath. It was a mere lapsus no doubt.

The past splendor of the world was illustrated. The statues of Grecian, Roman, and Assyrian cities; public gods and penates; plans of Egyptian temples and Roman temples; heroes, gods and gladiators; broken pictures of a past world and the golden globes from which the licentious courtiers of Louis XIV quaffed their wine. (It was evident here the lecturer was an Englishman; else he need not have gone beyond old England herself for disreputable prodigals and licentious princes. Every nation has yielded its crop of evil fruit.)

We are sorry that space prevents us doing anything like justice to the lecture. It was full of good information, but was, as the lecturer himself admitted, rather dry.

Several songs were sung by Mr. W. Adams of Fredericton, Miss Fannie Richards presiding with much grace at the piano. Miss Brown and Master Brown played a duet very nicely. Rev. Mr. Edwards read a "classical" selection "Toothache," which gave much pleasure to the assembly.

Our friend Mr. Segge keeps an excellent hotel, and it was in one of his very fine rooms the lecture was given. We know of no one who better deserves a bountiful public patronage than Mr. Segge and his very amiable family.

It stormed furiously as the parties from town drove home, the wind straight in their faces; and some of the maidens said almost gaspingly between the gusts of wind and drifts that they would never go to a lecture out there again; but when the city showed up through the storm, they declared the lecture and the drive "just lovely." We wish Rev. Mr. Edwards success with his lectures Thursday evening, subject "an hour with the microscope."

Agricultural.
A grand meeting of the Carleton County, People's Union, and Jacksonville and Wakefield Agricultural Societies took place at the Gibson House, Woodstock, on 17th. A very successful meeting was held, after which those present adjourned to the parlour. Speeches of a very practical nature were made by Messrs Hugh Cowperthwaite, Chairman, E. M. Shaw, Hamilton Emery, Elsie Slipp and John Harper, of Jacksonville; John Magee, Mr. Watts of the Sentinel, and several others. A very forcible address was made by Mr. H. Emery in reference to stock and judicious crossing of pure grades of animals, and the liability of many farms being run out merely from the prevailing inclination among farmers of working their land for its greatest present productivity. The Sentinel man, Mr. Watts, made a stirring appeal to the farmers of Carleton to stick to their farms. * * * (We are sorry to be unable to publish the rest of our correspondent's report.—Ed.)—DELTA.

Curling.
A somewhat onerous contest for the Rink Medal between rinks under the management of skips McLaughlan and Smith was played on Thursday afternoon with the following result:

Street. Tweedie, Cox, McLaughlan, Skip—18. Smith, Skip—7. Towards the end of the game some very good playing was made, McLaughlan especially distinguishing himself by several brilliant shots. Skips McLaughlan and Rutter will try for the trophy as soon as the ice is in suitable condition.

At a meeting of the Fredericton Curling Club held last Tuesday evening in the Waverley House, it was decided to play the Thistle Club of St. John a three rink match in that city on Wednesday, February 4th. The rinks from Fredericton will be composed as follows:

No. 1.—Loggie, Skip. Howie, McLaughlan, Dobbie, Tweedie, sub.
No. 2.—J. B. Grievies, Skip. Rutter, Smith, Cox; Hazen, sub.
No. 3.—Neill, Skip. Street, McPherson, J. A. Grievies; Babbitt, sub.

A challenge has been sent to the St. Andrew's Club of St. John to play the following day, February 9th, with the same number of rinks.

The Lumber Woods.
From all that we can learn the weather for the past three or four weeks has been very favorable to lumbering operations. The snow is not deep in the woods, but there is plenty for sledging purposes. Some of the operators on the North West, and the Alagash, have so far done quite beyond their expectations. The favorable state of the lumber market seems to have served every axe.

F. A. E. S.
The Annual Meeting of the Fredericton Auxiliary Bible Society takes place on Tuesday evening next, commencing at 7.30. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, patron of the Society will likely attend.

Time.
The four o'clock passenger and five o'clock freight trains on the N. B. Railway amalgamated at Woodstock Junction, and after experiencing considerable difficulty along the upper part of the route arrived at Gibson at 8 o'clock, last evening.

Alderman.

Mr. W. Wilson has decided on coming out for St. Anne's Ward. It is expected, there is no doubt but Mr. Wilson would be a credit to the city and his own Ward in particular.

Mr. William Wheeler, it is said, is coming for King's Ward. In this case Mr. Ritchey who is one of the best Aldermen the city has ever had, and Mr. Wheeler who beyond doubt will make a very excellent Alderman, will be elected.

In Carleton Ward the fight was warm, between the four candidates, to wit, Messrs H. Beckwith, George Clinton, Thomas Smith and Moses Hall. Each candidate feels "pretty sure" that his election is all right. Monday though, will reveal the momentous result.

We have no doubt Mr. Ritchey will stand offer. We should be sorry to know this were true. We want a few intelligent men like Mr. Ritchey on our Council board, and if he doesn't come the loss will be the city's, not his own.—Ed.]

Wellington Ward.
In response to a "Rate-payers" invitation to the electors of Wellington Ward quite a number came together in engine house No 5 last night. Strange to say, "Ratepayer," the originator of the movement, did not appear. Mr. George F. Atherton was elected chairman, and remarks were then made by the three candidates, Messrs. Vaudine, McPherson and Guloff. Some very ultra-radical views were presented by Mr. Guloff in his usual forcible way. He thought that the policemen should be dismissed entirely, Phoenix Square market declared free and a great reduction made in the salary of some city officials. After which the meeting adjourned without further action.

There is a strong movement among the electors of Wellington Ward towards bringing Alderman Cliff into the field, with every probability of success. Mr. Cliff, during his two years' term at the Council board, showed a thorough competence and gave every satisfaction.

STAR BRIEFS.

—Grand Falls is to have a new school-house this spring.

—The sporting fraternity of the equine variety have concluded to hold their trotting tournaments for the remainder of the season in the York Driving Park and have been at some pains in fixing the course up.

—If you want to get a photograph taken that your wife will recognize, go to McMurray & Burkhardt's Studio, Queen St.

Snow.
About eight inches of snow have fallen, trains have been impeded, and inland traffic suspended. As long as this man Vennor has charge of the weather, we may expect just such treatment.

GIBSON NOTES.
LITERARY.—Our people were somewhat disappointed last night in reference to the postponement of the variety entertainment that was expected to take place in Logan's Hall. But Mrs. J. B. Manger will always command the attendance of the inhabitants of Gibson, and it may confidently be expected that a goodly number will put in an appearance to-night.

STARTING UP.—The Marysville Flour Mill commenced operations this morning. There is a very large quantity of grist on hand already and more may be expected when the establishment gets fairly to work.

LUMBER.—Mr. R. A. Estey of your city, so I understand, is to receive by the N. B. R. from parties near Millville, York Co., about 700,000 feet of spruce and hemlock. This is a good sign.

Mr. L. Sherman of Fredericton is daily receiving large quantities of shingles from upriver districts.

CHANGE.—There is some "talk" here to the effect that the N. B. R. Company intend to cease running trains on the Grand Falls Branch.

ZETA.
Gibson, Jan. 22.

Communications.

"Orang-Outangism" in the County Council.

To the Editor of the Star.
Sir,—At the opening of the County Council, when the question of which of certain newspapers should get the tender for reporting the proceedings was put, I saw only among a collection of Orang-Outangs, to place among several of the members. It is a pity, some one wouldn't report their shallow vulgarities as they get them off. For my part I don't know what they want their booziness reported for at all, I suppose they are trying to use the House of Assembly. The opening of the Council with the affair to which I allude, was the most disgusting exhibition of ignorance and Orang-Outangism that I've ever seen or heard of.

Yours, LOOKER ON.
Jan. 22, 1880.

[The above is too severe we think. We were present at the opening and know that the matter of tenders was disposed of quite informally. It seemed as if no one present knew how to deal with the subject; but we should not be so hard on the poor Councilors. If we had no better advantages than they have, it is questionable if we could do so well. We can all understand the flurry and the flutter of most of these men, ushered in all their unthoughtness into the presence of a critical and polite people, in the heart of a city. Suppose "Looker on" were put up before the cream of London Society to play a certain part? Might not he act as awkwardly, as absurdly, and as informally as the Councilors did when each one began to clack about the tenders? The poor Councilors can't be blamed, Ed.]

Attack on Archer's History of Canada.
(Second Instalment.)
To the Editor of the Star.

Since I have previously made my pretatory remarks, I will now, Mr. Archer, take a glance at your quoting therefrom when convenient. You say that in doing with a long series of events you have aimed to be as clear and concise as possible. Now, Dr., you may think yourself a very good Archer, but you must be a ridiculous shot, for if you aimed at clearness and conciseness in your history you came as wide of the mark as did

The Great Alexander, When he fired at the goose, And shot the gander.

When you talk of being clear and concise and then muddle and lengthen your work by going into minute detail, your conduct is fully as absurd as that of a ship captain who agrees to take a gentleman from St. John to Europe by the shortest possible route and then make a circuitous voyage around the Cape of Good Hope. If you intended to be clear and concise it is plainly evident that you failed in your object, as signally as the dog did "when he dropped the substance and went for the shadow."

The greater interest given to a narrative by dwelling a little at length on some of the more important incidents, and the desirableness of placing a pretty comprehensive history in the hands of teachers, will, it is hoped, successfully meet objections of fulness of detail should any be raised." This appears to be meant for an apology, but it is a poor one. Your dwelling a little at length gives about as much interest to your book as a very muddy road gives to a long walk. Pretty comprehensive it is—embracing a large number of subjects makes it so. But I would prefer to call it very uncomprehensible as its contents are jumbled together in such a manner as to be almost unintelligible, being in fact a good deal of everything and yet not much of anything.

Now, Doctor, I would be sorry to see you so plentifully obliged to your kind consideration of their wants, but I think the majority of them would prefer having the history minus the traditional fancy, etc., with which it is so plentifully mixed. I would here say to the Board of Education that if you think it necessary for the teachers to have this work then by all means let them have it, but do not force it upon the pupils for it savours altogether too much of the yellow covered literature to be wholesome for the young.

The history of Canada could be given in a few pages, and the same result by filling up with foreign matter and detail you have spread it over nearly five hundred, thereby making it look pretentious.

Now, when a man pretends to be a historian, he can say that he is "too big for his breeches;" but when a book pretends to be a history, and is not, we hardly know how to express our feelings except to say it is a fraud.

Now, when a man pretends to be a historian, he can say that he is "too big for his breeches;" but when a book pretends to be a history, and is not, we hardly know how to express our feelings except to say it is a fraud.

Now, Doctor, I would be sorry to see you so plentifully obliged to your kind consideration of their wants, but I think the majority of them would prefer having the history minus the traditional fancy, etc., with which it is so plentifully mixed. I would here say to the Board of Education that if you think it necessary for the teachers to have this work then by all means let them have it, but do not force it upon the pupils for it savours altogether too much of the yellow covered literature to be wholesome for the young.

THE HISTORY OF CANADA COULD BE GIVEN IN A FEW PAGES, AND THE SAME RESULT BY FILLING UP WITH FOREIGN MATTER AND DETAIL YOU HAVE SPREAD IT OVER NEARLY FIVE HUNDRED, THEREBY MAKING IT LOOK PRETENTIOUS.
