When I Studied Flour

LIKE many other women, some of the things I have used most I have known least about. Flour is one of them.

When I studied flour, I was surprised to learn that only about 72% of a grain of wheat is fit to go into flour; and only about 40% goes into Rainbow Flour, which is the very best flour made.

That is why it pays to remember the name of the most carefully made flour and insist on having it.

I heartily recommend Rainbow as being all that a good flour should be.

The great difficulty of the miller is to separate perfectly the waste particles from those that belong to good flour.

If he is too zealous he takes away much of the good gluten without which flour will not raise properly. If he is careless he is not particular about leaving in some part of the five skins, the germ and the "crease dirt," and the fibre. His make of flour would be impure, bad in color and poor in keeping qualities.

It is only the expert miller who can make perfect flour.

CHAPTER XVII.
MATCHMAKING.

The letters arrive early at Heddon; and, when I come down to breakfast on the following morning, there is a perfumed, black-edged, crested letter lying beside my plate. I take it up with unwilling fingers. Yes; it is from Theo. I put off the evil moment as long as I can by pouring out Adrian's coffee; but at last I am compelled to open it. It is as I feared—Theo writes exactly as if her visit were an understood thing; says she has suffered very much from her head, dizziness and oppression, and that sort of thing; but hopes a short time in Ideminstor will soon set her up again.

I hand the letter to Adrian, who laughs. "Funny idea to come to Ideminstor to cure headache!" he says. "We must tell Theo to look at an atlas. She ought to go to the seaside—any place rather than the bottom of a basin, like this town."

"I am afraid I am very skeptical on the subject of my elder sister's headache."

"What are you going to do this morning?" says Adrian.

"I promised, Loys to go and have luncheon with her. Teddy is on duty."

"Then you are going to drive in with me?"

"Yes."

"You'll write to Theo, first?"

"Oh, I need not write to-day!" I answer, fretfully.

"I think you should," he says, quickly. "If she is coming on Wednesday, it isn't polite to leave it till to-morrow; and you know, my darling, we must not be rude, even if we don't want her."

"Very well," I assent, ungraciously.

"I can write from Loys' house. I don't want to drive in by myself, and you know you don't like to be late."

"What room shall you give Theo?" asks Adrian.

"Oh, I don't know!" I reply, petulantly. "The blue room, I suppose."

"It isn't a very nice one," observes Adrian, doubtfully.

"If Theo wants grandeur," I say, crossly, "she must go to Park Royal, and not come down here where she is not wanted. She can't have the best rooms in the house, for those are ours; and I am not going to change—not for anyone!" I add, emphatically.

"No, no; of course not. Well, you must tell Theo that she will only get a soldier's shakedown," he answers, nothingly.

"I hope she won't find it uncomfortable!" I cry; "and then she won't stay very long. Now, I am going to rest."

Just as we arrive in sight of the Vincent's house, Adrian asks apropos of nothing, if Theo is going to bring the child.

"Oh, no!" I answer. "Lady Lasselles is going to take care of the children at Park Royal."

"Tell her if she doesn't bring the boy we won't have her at all." Then he pulls up, with a jerk, and he helps me down. "I shall be round to luncheon; and be sure you tell her to bring the boy."

"Have you heard from Theo?" asks Loys, when she has taken my outer garments from me.

"Oh, yes," I answer, a little bitterly; "a long effusion this morning! he writes just as if her visit were an arranged, settled affair."

"But Adrian asked her?"

"Nothing of the sort," I reply, sharply.

"How strange!" says Loys, wonderingly. "She certainly told me so just before we left. And when is she coming?"

"Oh, Wednesday! Short notice, isn't it?" I remark, with a hard laugh. "She is positively taking us by storm."

"Audrey," says Loys, in a frightened tone. "I don't think you like Theo!"

"Do you?" I ask.

"Well, she is very much altered; but I don't—"

"You don't hate her as I do," I say, brusquely. "It's no use mincing one's words, Loys—one thinks exactly the same. No, you don't hate her as I do; perhaps you haven't the same cause."

"You frighten me, Audrey!" exclaims Loys, looking at me piteously.

I see that if I run on in this wild strain I shall upset Loys, and I laugh to try to reassure her—a laugh so hard and wicked that it absolutely frightens myself.

"It's all right, you dear, old thing!" I cry. "I've got nervous and excitable lately, and I think my tongue runs ahead of my wits. I'm vexed about Theo coming just now, because I really don't want her. When I'm an old, married woman like you, I may be glad of some one to relieve the tedium of our existence."

"Oh, I was dismayed, I am sure, when she proposed coming to us! But, then, we have not everything as nice as you have, and I really did not know what to do with her."

We do not mention her again, and while Loys is out of the room for half an hour, I write Theo as civil a letter as I can. I cannot pretend to be cordial, though I try my best.

When Adrian comes, he asks me if I have written, and if I told her what he said about the boy. I answer "Yes" to both questions, and Loys brings in the baby, who is beginning to take notice now, and the conversation drifts into the most ordinary channels.

"It's a great joke about Cust," says Adrian, while we are at luncheon.

"What is that?"

"He is going to marry Edith Dare."

"Is he? Well, I'm very glad, poor girl."

"Why 'poor girl'?" I ask.

"Well, dear, both sisters want to be married. I fancy they are not very comfortable at home, for they almost divide their time between Mrs. Brancepeth and another aunt, who lives at Brighton. What great eyes Stewart used to make at you, Adrian!"

"I knew it!" I cry triumphantly. "I was convinced of it from her extraordinary manner."

"Pooh, pooh—nothing of the kind!" says Adrian, laughing, but reddening visibly. "Young wives are always on the lookout for that sort of thing, and scent it when it is not there at all!"

"Don't tell me," answers Loys; "we Luttrells are as wide awake as anyone; and Stewart Dare thought she'd made sure of you, and gave herself great airs in consequence."

"It is a good thing I didn't know it before," I say, "or I should have laughed outright when Mrs. Brancepeth told me how very anxious her nieces were to become acquainted with me."

"Mere matter of form," remarks Loys. "I used to watch all her little by-play and small airs and graces, and I said to myself, 'Ah, Miss Stewart, just wait till Audrey comes; she'll put a stop to all that!'"

"Then you knew, and intended me to fall a victim!" cries Adrian.

"Of course," Loys answers promptly. "I knew you were cut for one another."

"Hear that, Audrey?" says Adrian. "Oh, yes! Then you really think we were intended for each other, Loys?"

"Certainly. Marriages are made in heaven," she responds, gravely.

"Well, it certainly looks like it—sometimes," I say, thinking that Adrian once wanted to marry Theo, and how he was prevented. He looks at me keenly, and I think he sees in my eyes that which puzzles him; at all events, his own droop before them.

"And where are you going this afternoon?" he asks, with the air of a man who wishes to change the conversation. "The inevitable shopping I suppose?"

"I am afraid so," answers Loys. "But, Audrey, cannot you and Adrian go for a drive and come back here in time for tea? I can do my business just as well without you, and a great deal better than if Adrian is dithering about all the time."

So Adrian and I go for a long walk; for, as we have to drive home, he does not care to have the carriage

"Nurse's Years of Experience"

Proves Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Best Treatment for Kidney and Stomach Troubles.

The trained nurse has even greater opportunities than the doctor himself to watch the action of medicine in specific cases.

For years the writer of this letter has been recommending the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills among her patients, and is firmly convinced that no treatment is so prompt and effective.

This is the most valuable evidence obtainable, and we believe that all who know Mrs. Duffy will appreciate it to the full, knowing that she would not recommend anything in which she had not the fullest confidence.

Mrs. Duffy, nurse, 35 Lewis street, Toronto, writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for years, and recommend them to my patients for all disorders of the kidneys, liver and stomach. In all my professional experience I have found nothing better." Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

out again. The exercise does me good, brightens my spirits, and I reach Loys' drawing room much happier in mind than I left it.

I must do Adrian the justice to say that he does his best to amuse me and make me happy, so far as kindness and tender consideration go; but, with this visit, of Theo's hanging over my head, I cannot enter into his fun, or even make myself happy in the present, as I should do if I were a sensible girl. I am placed in such very peculiar circumstances. If Theo chose to fall in love with Adrian, or get up a violent flirtation with him without having known him before, I should merely laugh at it, and think it a good joke; but they loved each other years ago. Adrian was her first, her one love, and it is I who have come between them. I know Adrian is very good about it, and tries to make the best of it; but I cannot help seeing, when he is with Theo, where his heart leads him. I think if I were quite certain either way, it would be better; but it is this battle of hopes and fears which is so hard to light—this agonizing conflict—which leaves me more miserable as he days go by. One hour I feel sure that my husband is the same tender lover I married; the next I am certain beyond all question of doubt, that Theo has his love, and that his bondage with me is irksome and wretched. Yet even in this frame of mind I do not remain—a look, a few words, a touch, serve to exalt me into my Elysium once more, only to be cast out with a more relentless hand than ever.

I am in the drawing room, awaiting the arrival of our guests, and I think, as I look in the glass, that I do not look much like a rich baronet's bride. My dress is rich, but somber, and as yet I cannot wear lace. I have tried to lighten it by wearing pearl ornaments, but I decide that I am too fair and by far too pale for them. It is perfectly wonderful how a girl of eighteen can look so old and haggard. Yet my husband, when he comes in, does not seem to think so. He smooths my fringe, and says that the hairdresser has cut it too short, and that I am to tell Lane not to try to make it curl; it looks better smooth and soft; and then he asks me if his tie is straight.

"How many had you?" I inquire, with a laugh.

"Only eight this evening," he answers.

His tie is not straight; but, after he has spoiled eight, I have not the heart to tell him so—it would no doubt lead to the temporary destruction of another batch of eight.

The first of our visitors to arrive are Capt. Cust and Mr. Bertie.

"I'm afraid we're awfully early," says Mr. Bertie; "but—"

"I would rather you were early than late," I interpose. "You came together?"

"Oh, yes! We generally hunt in couples," he answers.

"Whatever will you do when Capt. Cust is married?" I ask, for I have never yet seen one without the other.

"He is not tied up yet, and there's many a slip," you know, Lady Charteris. Still, if it does come off this time, I shall be like a ship without a rudder. I shall have no alternative but to get married myself."

I look at Adrian, who laughs.

Cello Solo, "La Cinquantaine."—Gabriel Marie—Mr. Alec Mews.
(a) An Irish Love Song, Alicia Needham. (b) "Where Thou Art," Angelo Mascheroni. (c) "The Birthday of Love" Chs. Braun—Mr. John O'Reilly.
Recitation, "Soul of the Violin"—Miss Mary Doyle.
Song, "Changeless."—H. Trotter—Miss E. O'Reilly.

PART II.
Duet, "How Dear to me the Hour,"—Henry Kleber—Mr. John O'Reilly and Miss E. O'Reilly.
Recitation, "Lady Teazle and Sir Peter"—Miss Mary Doyle.
(a) "Mireille" (Cavatine) Gounod. (b) "Let Love Awake," Herbert Oliver—Mr. John O'Reilly.
(a) "Melodie," Jules Massenet. (b) "Reverie," Schumann—Mr. Alec Mews.
Duet, "Good Night, Dear Heart."—Ernest Newton—Mr. John O'Reilly and Miss E. O'Reilly.
Miss Doyle, in her selection "The Soul of the Violin," proved herself to be an accomplished elocutionist. It was a pretty thing and given with the emotion and expression that it deserved. Miss E. O'Reilly also displayed her pretty voice and was most effective in "Changeless," a pretty mornoc in "Trotter." Mr. O'Reilly and his sister sang some pretty duets and their voices blending so harmoniously, were given the appreciation they deserved. It is enough to mention Mr. Alec Mews' name to assert that his rendition on the cello was up to what should be expected of him. Mr. Hutton accompanied in the perfect style for which he is noted and taken all round the concert was one in which the promoter and all associated with him may well be proud.

Rossley Star Theatre.

Last night there was a fair audience, considering the hot weather, and a first class show. The pictures are the very finest ever seen at Rossley's. The Fox Hunt is a splendid picture, while the military horses are beyond description, and show the most marvellous feats performed by those intelligent animals. The Sacrifice is another beautiful little drama. The songs were all good, and the show went big.

FISHERY NOT IMPROVED.—The Duchess of Marlborough reached Lewisporte at 8.15 p.m. yesterday. The ship reports fair weather on her run north and returning, but no improvement in the codfishery the past week.

GOOD FISHERY.—At Petty Harbour and also on the South Side of St. John's some excellent hauls of fish were made the past week. Several of the trappers have now from 150 to 200 lbs. under salt. Hook and line men are doing poorly, the fish being "glutted."

DANGEROUSLY ILL.—Mrs. Ellen Healey, one of the most respected women of Paradise, lies dangerously ill. In the absence of Father Fyne from the parish of St. Kyran's, Father Caciola was called to administer the last rites of the church at 2 o'clock on Saturday morning.

Flattery.

Flattery is the art of mistaking a woman forty-five years of age for her sixteen-year old daughter and getting away with it. It is composed of several ingredients, ranging from the diplomatic touch to a n-a-d utterated bunk, and is used with much success by people who wish to secure an inexpensive stand in with the aid of wholesale perfumery.

Flattery is one of the prerogatives of the male biped, along with pants, pipes and pills, which distinguishes him from the beasts of the field. It strikes in at a tender age and causes the small boy to kiss his father on the nose just prior to touching him for a nickel. It then grows rapidly in all directions, until by the time a man reaches thirty he is able to feed it in large quantities to a maiden aunt who is about to say good bye to this world and a thick wad of bank stock.

Women never use any flattery except when it is necessary to reconcile their husbands to the January bills. The favorite mode of feminine flattery is to get out an old photograph of friend husband, in a three-button cutaway and a weeping willow mustache, and place it on the dresser, where she can refer to it occasionally as the mold of fashion and the glass of form. This is good for a new set of furs eleven months in the year.

A little flattery is a good thing to have around the house, but when applied with a paint brush it becomes quite monotonous. Every husband ought to carry a small tube with him, in order to make his wife feel that he didn't marry a cook. If more husbands would call attention to the superb seasoning of the apple dumplings or throw a few mild rhapsodies over the custard pie, there would be fewer women jugging around a load of discouragement and discontent. It would be a good thing, also, if a man's wife would refer less frequently to his bald spot and more often to how nice he looks in blue serge. Flattery won't cloy anybody's appetite, if it is rightly used.

Fashions and Fads.

Fastel blue is a favorite color. Tailored frocks are much worn. Sleeves elbow length have deep frills of lace. V-shaped necks are finished with shadow laces. The simple semi negligee gown is much in demand. Fashion now boasts a skirt narrower at the hem. In the new millinery, chin straps are gaining in favor. The combination of lemon-yellow and white is much used. Gloves either match the gowns or form a striking contrast. Gowns of white cotton voile are trimmed with colored linen. Striped and spotted flowers are gradually winning popularity. Long veils of black or white chantilly lace are much worn. Hats are turning up their brims at the back in piquant fashion. Pale yellow chambray gloves are worn with many street costumes. The full long sleeve is one of the features appearing on the new gowns. Rose-trimmed hats are as much worn as those adorned with aigrettes. Bribuses are fastened with tiny black velvet bows instead of buttons. The slashed skirts demand that footgear be given particular attention. The large hat has arrived, and the smaller hat is used only for street wear. Shoes this season are remarkable for their strappings and colored heels. The present style of net and lace trills is very flattering to most women. Variations of the tunic and kerchief are noticed in the summer models. With the collarless necks are worn upstanding frills of tulle or chiffon. The ruches of tulle or feathers which people are wearing are most becoming. Three-quarter length wraps of broderie anglaise are worn over lingerie gowns. Shadow lace dresses are proving to be great favorites for summer evening wear. The soft lace and tulle ruffles and frills are an essential detail in every smart costume. The extreme fashion lovers wear watches or large jewels set in the toes of their shoes. A smart little hat for the small girl is of dark blue straw, trimmed with white satin.

The Robinson Spectacles.

The Daily News declares that Sir William Whiteway was "a doer as well as a dreamer, an originator as well as an administrator." That being so, why did the editor, Mr. Robinson, oppose Sir William Whiteway during the time he was doing and administering? Why did it take Mr. Robinson some six years after Sir William's chance of doing and administering was gone to find out that he was a doer and administrator? Is it not a fact that Mr. Robinson did not make the discovery until Sir William made the mistake of his life and associated himself with Messrs. Morison and Robinson? And when his belated discovery was made, did he not also make another discovery to which he gave fervent expression, and this was that a great gulf separated public men of the stamp of Sir William Whiteway from the class to which Sir Edward Morris belonged? Did he not put Sir Edward in the class of partisan politicians and Sir William in the class of statesmen?
Was not Sir Edward set forth by him as "the courtier of King Plutus," "the friend of the contract"?
Did he not write of Sir Edward—
"After all, the man who could vote for the contract of 1898, and then vote for that of 1901, could vote for anything, and we may well be pardoned for not taking seriously his views on any contract where capitalists are concerned?"

Did he not declare also of Sir Edward—
"As a friend of the contractor he was certainly consistent, but to his pledges he was wholly recreant?"
Is it not a fact that Mr. Robinson's discovery of the "brains" of Sir Edward hinged on a circumstance like unto that on which his discovery of the statesmanship of Sir William depended?
Did not Mr. Robinson's recognition of these good qualities hinge in both instances on their possessors joining Mr. Morison and himself in political fellowship? Sir William's statesmanship always struck Mr. Robinson's blind spot until Sir William became a political associate of Mr. Morison. Sir Edward's statesmanship was never recognized until the movement was a foot to get Sir Edward to organize a new party with Mr. Morison in it. Mr. Morison appears to be the wizard who opens Mr. Robinson's eyes to see qualities he never saw before. Whatever is good for Mr. Morison seems to be good to Mr. Robinson. On this depends the glances he cast on Sir Robert Bond. If he will only retire Mr. Robinson will look on him with favor and bestow on him all the good qualities his imagination can furnish. So long, however, as he is in the field, Mr. Robinson can regard him only as a leader impossible of success.

The province of Fu Kean proclaimed its independence.

BUCHAREST, To-day.
The correspondent of the Telegraph bears but is unable to confirm a report that Greece has waived her claim for Kavala and Drama, and will content herself with the Saloniki hinterland which would facilitate peace settlements. He also says a junction has been established between Roumania's right wing and the Servians, who crossed the mountains on the frontier in four columns.

LONDON, To-day.

A Peking despatch to the Telegraph says the position of Northerners at Kiu Keang, Province of Kiang Si, is becoming precarious. This position is practically surrounded by Northern reinforcements, unable to cross the Yank Tse Kiang, which is dominated by Southern guns. Everything hinges on whether the Kiu Kiang forts are still loyal. If the troops go over to the Southerners, the Northerners are liable to destruction.

WASHINGTON, To-day.

The legation at Peking reports that the local Government of Canton, Kwang Tung Province, proposed to send fifteen thousand troops north within a week, to engage the Government forces. The Provincial Assembly confirmed Chia Chung Ming, Military Governor of Kwang Tung Province, and appointed him Commander-in-Chief of the army, which is proceeding against the Northern forces. Reports of the conditions surrounding the Huerta Government in Mexico, puts the administration's officials' attitude in keenest apprehension towards the situation here.

BRIDGEWATER, Mass., To-day.
A spectacular career ended under pathetic circumstances yesterday, when Cardenio E. King, widely known as financier and newspaper publisher of Boston, died on a visit to the State farm here at the very hour his friends, aware of approaching death, were making desperate efforts to obtain pardon for him. King was convicted of obtaining twenty-two thousand dollars under false pretenses from persons who had entrusted him with funds for investment. He was sentenced to a term from ten to fifteen years. In January, 1908, he began to serve his sentence in the State Prison at Charlestown.

LONDON, To-day.

The morning papers display no interest in the proposed supervision over Nicaragua by the States. The subject is only referred to in the financial columns as good news for bond holders. The Express says British investors doubtless would welcome American control of all Central American Republic. The Post says that both political parties would favor a forward policy of intervention in Central America must naturally concern and cheer bond holders. The News asks were we not given to understand that the dollar diplomacy had been dropped?

LONDON, To-day.

Any idea that the Bulgarian army is preparing for a counter stroke, is now quite abandoned. In his anxiety to bring about peace, King Ferdinand appealed to the German Emperor regarding Roumania's action. The nature of the Emperor's reply has not been disclosed. Semi-official despatches from Sofia says even should the Roumanians invade the capital, the Emperor's army will place for a Custom House, being situated on the bank near the sea, with a good view of the harbor and bay, but for a hospital it is most unsuitable. It is too near the water and no grounds that could be made beautiful about it. But "everything fixed up this Fall," is what tickles my fancy. Yes, Sir Edward, if this old body has any knowledge of the wishes of the Harbour Grace electorate, and I assure you she has, then matters will be satisfactorily fixed up this Fall, and Sir Robert Bond will again be given command of the country's affairs, and all the extra Labrador service and branch railways cannot save the necks of yourself and your crew, Sir Edward, politically speaking of course I mean. I see Mr. Piccott is gone to Labrador again this summer, he made many trips there four years ago, and he succeeded so well he is trying it again now. He is arranging for light houses now. But, fishermen, beware. He and his party by lighthouses and branch railways are trying to throw you off your guard and endeavour to again get the reins of power and the handling of the revenue of the country. Of course the People's Party have not the plain sailing they had before, as even Parsons and Maunders are going to make it hot for them. Dr. Alex is already preparing pills and powders for them.

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., To-day.
The Prime Minister characterizes the spectacle presented by the Balkan States as disheartening and repellent in a speech at the Chamber of Commerce Centenary banquet last night. On the one hand he said were the Balkan States drenching with one another's blood territory their united efforts had freed from Turkish rule. On the other hand Turkey disregarding the treaty of London of which the ink was scarcely dry taking advantage of the differences between her late enemies to recover her lost territory. The Powers, continued Asquith, are doing everything possible to bring the disputants to a peaceful conference and to-day it seemed likely such a conference would take place. We believe, he added, it must result in the immediate suspension of arms. The Prime Minister warned Turkey that if she were ill advised enough to set the provisions of the treaty of London at defiance she must be prepared for the introduction of questions which it would be by no means her interests to bring into debate. Squads of police defeated the effort of suffragettes to mob Premier Asquith, by clearing the streets in the neighborhood of the Banquet Hall before he entered. Hostile crowds chased the suffragettes wherever seen, forcing them to take refuge in shops and offices. The women, however, succeeded in smashing several windows of the hotel where Asquith was staying. Six of them were arrested.

I see the numerators (I think they call them) to take the list of voters are appointed for Harbour Grace. A conviction for shebeening seems to be a qualification for that position. Law breaking is not always bad, and good cometh from evil sometimes at least. Good bye for the present, sir, you will hear from me again next week. Yours in good fighting trim,
MARY.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—Some time ago, the ladies of Harbour Grace, brave souls that they are, banded themselves together to try and induce the Government to give Harbour Grace a hospital. It seemed strange to my old brain to have women coming out of their shells in this way; but Thomas made things clear to me when he explained that there was not sufficient Morris supporters here to get up a decently signed petition, so the ladies (and I am one of them if you please) had to take a hand in the matter. Two nice young ladies called on me and explained the object of their visit so fully that I signed at once. Well, I heard no more about it, and I had almost come to think it had fallen through, but lo and behold, in last Friday's 'Standard' comes the report very fully given of the interview the ladies had with the Premier. On Saturday afternoon, having tidled up the house and myself, and drawing the flour-barrel chair along by our west window where the beautiful evening sun could shine on me, the tumble wife of Thomas, as it would on the highest lady in the land, I took the paper and began to read over the report of that deputation. Well, the petition asking for a hospital was signed by 646 ladies of Harbour Grace, that is 646 beside myself. Mr. Will Munn, whom I knew from his infancy, kindly presented it, and made an earnest appeal to Sir Edward. He was assisted by other gentlemen, and Sir Edward was very pleased to receive the petition, and at once promised to comply with the request, and give us for a hospital the present Custom House, as soon as the Public Building was finished. He assured our deputation that his Government had not forgotten his promise. He also said that should the Custom House prove unsuitable the Government (presumably the forthcoming Bond Government) would give the matter full consideration. He said they intended to have everything fixed up satisfactorily this Fall. It is a slap in the face to Harbour Grace to ever suggest that the old Custom House should be converted into a hospital. It is not suitable at all. It is a most suitable place for a Custom House, being situated on the bank near the sea, with a good view of the harbor and bay, but for a hospital it is most unsuitable. It is too near the water and no grounds that could be made beautiful about it. But "everything fixed up this Fall," is what tickles my fancy. Yes, Sir Edward, if this old body has any knowledge of the wishes of the Harbour Grace electorate, and I assure you she has, then matters will be satisfactorily fixed up this Fall, and Sir Robert Bond will again be given command of the country's affairs, and all the extra Labrador service and branch railways cannot save the necks of yourself and your crew, Sir Edward, politically speaking of course I mean. The s.s. Invermore arrived here from Labrador at 5.30 last evening, and after taking on board a quantity of whale oil left for St. John's. Her Labrador report is not very encouraging.

Miss Alice Leary, one of the female help of the H. G. B. & S. Factory, had an experience on Saturday afternoon that she will not soon forget. While leaving the factory at about 4 o'clock she was met at the door by two pointer dogs, who appeared to attack her, but no doubt they were settling an old grievance between themselves. Alice, who has a very weak heart, was much frightened and it was some time before she could go home. It would be well for Cupid to bear this little incident in mind and when attacking this jolly young woman to do so in as gentle and lovable a way as possible.

Miss Gerrie Lawton, of Bell Island, was in town yesterday on a visit to her friends.

The K. E. Brigade attended evening service at Christ Church yesterday and listened to a timely discourse from Rev. C. M. Stickings.

Mr. William Parsons and Mr. Arthur Parsons, two of our popular cabinetmen, have lately invested in handsome Victoria wagons. We congratulate them on their enterprise.

Mr. Norman Munn had some very fine early turnips in the market on Saturday and on sale at the store of Stapleton & Co. Mr. Munn's farm man, B. Stevenson, is a thorough farmer and is deserving of congratulations on the quality and early marketing of these turnips.

A letter was received from Bell Island by the Regatta Committee a few days ago asking if outsiders could enter for prizes at our Regatta. They were informed that two cups are to be rowed for and are open to contestants from any part of the Island. We are hoping that the 1913 Regatta will eclipse all former ones. The committee are doing their part well. Let the citizens do their share when the collectors call around.

Devonshire Terrace.

Dickens was twenty-seven years old when in 1839 he moved from Doughty Street to Devonshire Terrace. George de Maurier lived for some years in 1, Devonshire Terrace. In this celebrated house Dickens wrote no fewer than ten of his books—"The Old Curiosity Shop," "Barnaby Rudge," "The Christmas Carol," "American Notes," "Martin Chuzzlewit," "The Haunted Man," "The Battle of Life," "Dombey and Son," "The Cricket on the Hearth" and "David Copperfield." Devonshire Terrace was situated at the corner of the Marleybone road and used to be called the smallest terrace in London—London Standard.

WEDNESDAY'S GAME.

Dominions, 1; Scotias, 0.

The second game in the Bell Island League series took place on the Scotia Athletic Grounds on Wednesday last, there being about 2,500 spectators. During the evening the Carbonear Band which was present rendered several selections. Mr. W. J. Higgins as usual acted as referee. The game was very closely contested throughout, and in the first half the Scotias rushed matters, and but for the splendid defence of the Dominions and the clever exhibition of goal saving tendered by Walsh would have scored. The teams crossed over with no scoring recorded. In the second half the Dominions came to the front a bit, but could not score. Noonan having several tries. The Scotias also took a hand in and Thomas who was playing a hard game made several brave attempts but could not get past Walsh. Towards the end of the game with both teams working hard a free kick was awarded against the Scotias just outside the penalty mark. This was placed by Captain Noonan of the Dominions who cleverly landed the ball in the net without any one touching it, and thus was scored the one and only goal for the evening. With but five minutes to play both teams became aggressive, principally the Scotias, and the Dominions falling back defended until the final whistle sounded leaving the score:—Dominions, 1; Scotias, 0.

SATURDAY'S GAME.

Dominions, 4; Scotias, 1.

The third game took place on the Dominion Grounds on Saturday afternoon and just as many spectators gathered as on the previous Wednesday. Mr. W. J. Higgins again refereed; Messrs. Murphy, and Wharal being line-men. From the start the Dominions seemed to rush matters and before five minutes had elapsed Burnham from a splendid rush had sent in No. 1. Dominions, 1; Scotias, 0. The game now became fast and within a few minutes a penalty was given against the Dominions for hands and Thomas scored the equalizer for Scotias. Dominions, 1; Scotias, 1. The teams being now even play seemed to assume a rapid pace and both teams worked their utmost, Callahan eventually putting in No. 2 for the Dominions. Dominions, 2; Scotias, 1. A few minutes later the half time signal sounded and the teams crossed over as above. On resuming play both went at it again with determination, and it was several minutes before Lehr from a place kick from Noonan landed No. 3 for the Dominions; this was followed a few minutes later by No. 4, scored by Noonan from a neat pass from Callahan. Burnham had several fine rushes but failed to score. Thomas and Cahill for the Scotias made several fine shots on the Dominion territory but Walsh cleared cleverly and the splendid defence of Pearce and Ross greatly helped out. Play was fast the last few minutes and Story stopped several fine rushes. The game ended:—Dominions, 4; Scotias, 1.

NOTES ON THE GAME.

After Wednesday's game the enthusiastic supporters of the Dominions carried Capt. Noonan on their backs to the State House, and headed by the Carbonear Band playing "See the Conquering Hero Comes" marched in procession to the State House.

The Scotias certainly had hard luck in Wednesday's game, and put up their best exhibition for the series.

Burnham and Story showed great pluck by playing when injuries received might have kept them in bed.

Walsh's exhibition of goal to-day is a feature of the series.

Three more games. Should the Dominions win or draw one they claim the championship.

No more games till after the Regatta.

CELEBRATION AT BELL ISLAND.

Dominions Entertained by Boat Club.

The members of the working committee of the Dominion Boat Club entertained the Dominion Footballers at their rooms on Saturday evening. Mr. N. Sheppard presided and several speeches and solos were in evidence during the evening. Mr. W. J. Higgins made a lengthy speech on "Football," while the toast of the winning team was proposed in a neat speech by Mr. I. M. Greene, Vice-President of the Association, and responded to by Mr. H. Noonan, captain of the team. Mr. Leo Murphy, Secretary of the Association, enthusiastically proposed the health of the working committee to which Mr. N. Sheppard responded. Speeches of varying interest were also made by Messrs. D. McFarlane, G. Harvey, A. McMillan, F. Hyres, R. Burnham, S. Pearce and M. Dunne, while an impromptu concert was also held and the re-union dispersed at 11 p.m.

Investment News.

St. John's, July 22nd, 1913.

Young Men Should Start An Investment Now

Do not think that it is necessary to have a considerable surplus before you can start investing. While this amount is accumulating unforced, uses will develop and the desired sum is a long time being reached.

Much the better plan is to invest small sums as you save them. Thus your holdings and dividends are steadily being increased and your savings have not slipped away unaccounted for.

And Start With Maritime Nail Pref'd Stock

Only one-quarter of the purchase price need be paid down and the balance in three payments each two months apart. We know of no more attractive industrial issue than this.

Dividends are 7 per cent. and Cumulative. The 50 per cent. Common Stock Bonus adds a further reason why a "start" should be made now. Ask our Halifax office for the special circular which tells how.

The Harbor Grace Roads.

"Old Bones" Takes a Hand in the Game.

Editor Evening Telegram.

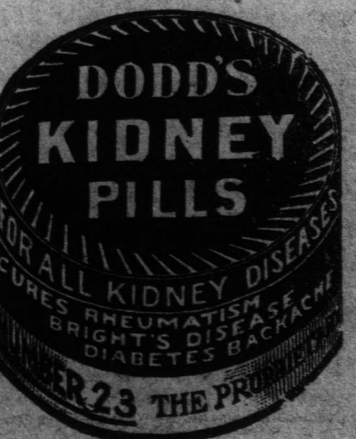

Dear Sir,—In last Friday's 'Standard' appears a letter over the signature of Pro Bono Publico, stating the Daily News correspondent for a statement that our roads were in a bad state. I must take the side of the News writer. The roads are in a desperate condition; some little repairs have been made lately, but for any person to say that the roads were never in a better condition east, west, north and south, is a falsehood. The News correspondent has the courage to come out and make the statement even against the side of politics he is upholding, something we all must admire in him. But Mr. "Pro Bono Publico" (if he knows the meaning of the quotation), must feel ashamed of himself, and he will feel still more ashamed to have it known that he called the Chairman of the Road Board into his "den" and read the epistle for him before he sent it to the office for publication. In putting up the roads, the Government and the Chairman, what does he expect? He evidently expects something, or he never would go to the trouble to send word to the Chairman. A good motto for writers when their motives are pure and good is not to let your "left hand know what your right hand doeth."

Ah, Mr. "Pro Bono Publico," it is no good to try and wear two faces under the one hat; you may shuffle or scuffle all you like, but honest efforts will tell in the long run. "Fire up" again, friend, and the next time you attempt to contribute to the paper, give facts—plain unvarnished facts, and send it to the paper without getting any person's approval. Thanking you, Mr. Editor.

I am, yours etc.,
OLD BONES.

From £56 To 1s. 6d.

Ten years ago calcium was worth many times its weight in gold. You could not buy an ounce for a less sum than £56 5s. Then two German chemists hit upon a new process for recovering the metal, and within a little more than two years you could buy an ounce of calcium for 1s. 6d.

The prices of pictures and curios seem to be governed by no fixed law, but to depend on the whims of popular taste. Take the case of the famous Gabbias hibernon, which is a cup cut out of rock crystal, and mounted in enamelled gold. It was made in the sixteenth century.

In the year 1905 this cup was put up at auction, and after a tremendous contest, was purchased by the late Mr. Charles Wertheimer for the gigantic sum of £16,275.

He sold it, presumably at a profit, but only two years later it was for sale again. Mr. Wertheimer bought it in a second time, paying £10,000 only.

Last year, when Mr. Wertheimer's collection was put up at Christie's the hibernon was on sale once more. But how are the high-priced fallen! This time it was knocked down for little more than a third of its former figure. It fetched only £3,900.

The Dawn is Breaking

The dawn is breaking,
The day is waking,
The hearts of men expand,
The truth is spreading,
The false is dreading,
Lest men should understand.
The night is ending,
The past is mending,
The sunrise is at hand,
The right is growing,
The wrong is growing,
The just alone can stand.
The clouds are rifting,
The mists are lifting,
The breezes kiss the strand,
High hopes are leading,
The world is needing,
A free man on the land.

Ropewalk Outing

Under very favourable circumstances the Ropewalk employees held their annual outing yesterday. A special train left the depot at ten o'clock and conveyed a party of a hundred and fifty to the Octagon grounds where various sorts of amusement and games were begun and all entered into the merriment with much zest. At one o'clock dinner was served. The menu was an appetizing one. Every one seemed delighted and the best of good fellowship prevailed. The catering was done by Mr. Poole and the service of his assistants was creditable. After dinner views of the party in a group rowing, football, cricket and other sorts of recreation were resorted to. At seven o'clock Mr. N. Alderidge, were taken by Photographer Vey. Then bringing a number of guests, arrived by train. A sumptuous tea was then set down to; after the inner man was appeased dancing to the strains of Power's orchestra was commenced and continued until three o'clock this morning when return to the city was made, all having thoroughly enjoyed the day. To Messrs. Pike, Murphy and other members of the committee the success of the event was mainly due.

Judge's Great Horse.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—In expressing our regret at the serious loss sustained to Mr. Judge and the public in the death of his fine horse, it seems fitting that more should be known about the animal.
Without doubt no horse with better credentials ever came to the Colony, and very likely none so royally bred, as for more than a century his blood lines are readily traced.
His sire was, The Bison record 2.16%, Grand sire Heir, at low record 2.05%, who is the sire of a world's great champion minor Heir, record 1.58½ (mile) the property of M. Savage, Esq., proprietor of the International Stock Food Co., Minneapolis, and owner of the most valued horses in the world, including Dan Patch, record 1.55, Arion 2.07%, Directum, 2.06, George Gano, 2.02, with about 300 others.
Mr. Judge's effort to obtain a highly bred, and properly registered horse was splendidly successful and it is to be deeply regretted that he met so untimely an end.
On June 26th, the brother of "Bison Chief" Billy B. record 2.16%, took second position in a hard fought race of 5 heats in the 2.14 pacing class, while another brother Dick B. has the splendid record of 2.14%. Judge's horse was a great horse, and bred in the purple and we trust it will not be long before he will have another with the rich blood of the race horse in his veins.
Very sincerely yours,
CITIZEN.

Famous Abbey Singer.

Lovers of cathedral and oratorio music will hear with regret of the death of Robert Hilton, the veteran bass of Westminster Abbey, which occurred recently in London, at the age of seventy-three.
Mr. Hilton's grandfather and father had been notable church basses, and Hilton soon became principal bass at the parish church of his native town—Preston. At twenty-nine he gave up his local appointment (uniting it with a railway clerkship), and went to Salisbury Cathedral as chief bass. On the death of William Machin, in 1870, he was elected to Westminster Abbey as vicar choral. Thence onwards he was one of the principal figures in cathedral and oratorio music, and became associated with the chief historic events at the Abbey.
At the first Jubilee service in 1887 the solo was entrusted to Hilton, although it is no secret that Sir Frederick Bridge received applications from nearly every great European singer of the day.
As a glee singer Hilton was unrivalled, and he was a leading member of the Noblemen and Gentlemen's Catch Club, the Round, Catch, and Canon Club, the City Glee Club, and the London Glee and Madrigal Union. A classic glee party of a bygone day was composed of William Winn, John Foster, Montem Smith, and Robert Hilton. He was wont to say that the most popular glee he knew was Horley's "By Cella's Arbour."

The Last Straw.

Oh, I could stand the sizzling heat and wear a sweet seraphic smile, and I could wait on joyous feet, as though my soul contained no bile, and I could bless the summer day, the brazen sun and the sky of blue, if no one held me up to say: "Well, is this hot enough for you?" I am a gentle, patient guy, I suffer long before I fight; all day, without a groan, I fry, without complaint I stew all night; but Berserk blood gets in my eyes, and I see red instead of blue, when some cheap skate comes up and cries: "Well, is this hot enough for you?" The worm will turn at last, they say, and I, though far from being bold, sometimes go forth and slay and slay, and strew my dead across the world. On gory fields I thus have basked, on fields that wore a crimson dew; 'twas when ten million chumps had asked: "Well, is it hot enough for you?" Ah yes, it's hot enough for me, but I could smile to beat the band, and broil and sweat and melt with glee, if that old question could be canned. The sun might bake me to a crisp, and I'd be glad the long day through if no one ever stopped to lip: "Well, is it hot enough for you?"

Boat Club Meets.

The weekly meeting of the C. L. B. Boat Club was held last evening. An enthusiastic gathering was present and everyone was delighted with the improvements made to the boat house and its surroundings by the committee under Messrs. Phillips, Carrell and Miles. Applications received from the Royal Stores for the use of the Blue Peter in the mercantile race and from P. Freeman for the use of the Red Cross in the amateur race were accepted. A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. John Taylor for his kindness in giving the use of the racer Nina which will be of great service.

Meigle's Report.

The s.s. Meigle, Capt. Goobie, arrived at Humbermouth at 9.45 last night. Her report contains more cheering news from the Straits than what has been coming along of late. It was as follows: "Experienced variable winds and fog, the whole trip. Fishery fairly good in the Straits. Whiteley's crews at Bonne Esperance hall for 3,500 qts.; Grant's crews, at Blanc Sablon, have 5,500 qts. Prospects excellent." This certainly is a great improvement on last week as far as Whiteley's and Grant's crews are concerned. The former during the past week landed 1,500 qts., and the latter 2,000 qts.

Football.

Last night's football match between the Collegians and Casuals, resulted in a victory for the former by two goals to none. E. Barnes, of the Collegians, got his ankle badly injured by a kick. His brother Herb, also got hurt. Gardner, of the Casuals, got a kick in the knee and was put out of Commission.

New He Knows.

A well-known gentleman was walking home when a half-drunken man came up to him. Standing in his path, the man said: "Mr. X, you don't know me, do you?" "No," said the gentleman, "I don't," and he tried to pass with the look of a man who didn't want to know him if that.
"I am the husband of your washerwoman," persisted the half-sober individual.
"Well, what have I to do with that?" asked the gentleman.
"You see, you don't know everything," went on the man, in a confidential tone.
"What don't I know?" said the gentleman wondering.
"You don't know that I'm wearing one of your white shirts," was the reply.

The Regatta.

Two weeks from to-morrow the Regatta takes place. A press crew will row the Red Cross in the Amateur Race. The Torbay Juveniles will row the Mary in the Juvenile Race. According to records kept, the best time made by an amateur crew was in 1892 in the Dora, 9.21. This, we learn, is wrong by exactly a minute. Three crews will compete in the Mercantile Race.

FOR THE T
visitation of the
of Ne
ary of the Rev
Bishop's C

While the Bishop was in Bermuda last winter, he notified the northern Deaneries of this Diocese that it was his intention to visit the various parishes and missions from Cape Breton to the bottom of Trinity Bay, during the summer of 1913. A few weeks ago the Bishop's ship was christened and the Church Ship was christened and put in commission for her third visitation voyage, and if successfully concluded, will be the twenty-third of the Bishop's visitations to the Diocese in the old Laverock, one of the Sapper and three on board the Amazon. The ship's company are: Rev. H. Leggo, Chaplain; John Randall, Captain; Alexander Hamilton, Engineer; Alexander Eddy, Asst. Engineer; Ivanus Young, Mate; Joseph Lush, A.B.; Martin Frampton, A.B.; Peter Hiscock, Jr., A.B.; Peter Hiscock, Sr., (Cook); John Williams (Steward).

The Amazon was ready for several days before the weather was sufficiently clear to put to sea, and it was until the 7th July that her head pointed seaward, and she passed through the Narrows on her cruise to the north.

The Bishop and the Chaplain did not leave St. John's until the evening of the 10th, when accompanied by sons Noel and Bolt, who said adieu and wished us bon voyage. Waterford Bridge, left the town, Bishop proceeding to Lewisporte to join the Amazon. Next morning safely arrived at our destination, the Church Ship had not put in appearance, nor did we get any news concerning her whereabouts until Mr. Leonard Earle coming in Twillingate in a motor boat informed us that the Amazon was beached up the bay with a very light wind, he was returning almost immediately, he kindly offered to give us passage down the bay and put us aboard the Amazon. We were glad to accept his invitation and set out at 3 o'clock and having a fine day in a very neat and nicely kept boat-chapel, a large congregation gathered in the service, and the singing very hearty. At an early hour in the morning we got under way for Notre-Dame Bay as we were anxious to get to Tilt Cove for Sunday. A few miles from Moreton's Bay the wind dropped, and soon we were becalmed. About half a mile to leeward a huge iceberg was seen, and this white, shimmering, looked very beautiful in the dim sunlight. Never a breath of wind filled the sails and the tide slowly but surely dragged us up to this cold beautiful castle of ice, which must be done and done in a very heavy sea.

The sailors began to try and get out of line with the berg, but make little progress, and the ice is gradually lessening. The boat was put overboard by the assistant engineer, the cook, and the steward. They pull for lives for by this time the huge iceberg is towering over us, and might turtle at any moment. Slowly so slowly the ship moves and by a few feet do we clear the edge of this beautiful but dangerous tower of Arctic ice. The coast is studded with bergs; there are hundreds and hundreds of every bay is full, and as they continually foundering and scattering huge fragments far and wide, danger of navigation is increasing and no man who makes a harbor will risk running during the day. Soon after our escape from the iceberg, a little breeze sprang up, but soon we left our "danger" far behind—but the wind did not last long and all too soon the sails were furling idly, and the ship was stationary.

Why Grow Old?
By RUTH CAMERON.

There are not many Doctors Johnsons to set forth on a first romantic voyage a girl at 64.—Stevenson.

A reader friend hunted me out in my lair the other day and gave me a delightful half hour. I found great pleasure in meeting her and hearing her intelligent comments on men and events, but even greater pleasure in listening to the following account of herself:

She is something over 70, an age at which, not so many years ago, women used to put on caps and retire to chimney corners, and at which, even to-day, it is not ordinary for them to go more than a few hours' journey from home unaccompanied.

But this woman does not see why years and helplessness should be connected unless there is actual physical feebleness, and so every spring and fall she puts her house in order and then sallies happily forth alone on a pilgrimage to the homes of those friends who must be merely letter friends to her for the rest of the year. Whenever possible she includes a little sight-seeing and other diversions.

After two or three weeks of this she returns to her quiet country home, with a mind full of new thoughts and ideas, and a heart full of new associations and memories, tired, perhaps, in body, but infinitely rested in soul.

Is it any wonder that she is 70 years young?
When she left my home I walked a little distance with her, and I was surprised at her brisk step.—

"It's because I never began walking slowly," she answered my comments. "I never let myself get the idea that I had to."
That last sentence evidently contains the secret of this woman's youth.

She has never let herself get the idea that she had to walk slowly, and never go away from home, and be afraid of automobiles, and wear old-lady clothes and think old-lady thoughts, and be altogether different person; and so none of these things ever happened to her.

Sometimes I wonder how much of the change that comes to people in the late sixties and seventies is caused by physical weakness, and how much is the result of their acquaintance of the traditional point of view.

Of course I have never been old myself, and so I don't know, but whenever I meet someone like this reader friend of mine who, though old in years, refuses to grow old in her ways of life, refuses to think of old age, I always wonder if a great many more people could not keep as active and unchanged if they would only take this point of view. And I am happy to believe that there are more and more such old folks every year.

In Stevenson's day there were "few Doctor Johnsons to set forth on their first romantic voyage at 64," but in this day and generation I, myself, know at least half a dozen who have set sail for the lands across the seas when they were over seventy.

I think it is a splendid sign of the times and I hope it may be amply fulfilled during the twentieth century.

Grey Top Hats
In London.
London, July 8.—The grey top hat has come into fashion again this summer, after having suffered a long eclipse. More light grey top hats are now to be seen than for many years. They are now "the thing" in the House of Commons and they are becoming quite de rigueur at all fashionable open air gatherings. Mr. Winston Churchill has led the fashion in grey top hats among politicians. His was the pioneer grey hat.

Celebrates 900th Anniversary.
London, July 9.—Greenstead Church, near Olgar, has just celebrated its nine hundredth anniversary, the Bishop of St. Alban's, the vicar and the folk of the countryside taking part in the proceedings, while the Bishop stood beside the original oak walls of the sanctuary which, upon a night, according to tradition, protected the remains of King Edmund the Martyr, who was too youthful and saltily to be a match for his rude Danish pirates.

Two Brothers Drown.
Canso, N.S., July 14.—A drowning accident occurred off the entrance to this harbor about noon on Saturday. Two brothers, William and Ethel Bergan, were returning from the fishing ground. In some unknown manner the boat was upset or swamped, and they were drowned. The first indication of the accident was the finding of oars, bait tubs and other loose appliances about the boat. No trace has been found of the bodies.

Wire Wounds.
My mare, a very valuable one, was badly bruised and out by being caught in a wire fence. Some of the wounds would not heal, although I tried many different medicines. Dr. Bell advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT, diluted at first, then stronger as the sores began to look better, until after three weeks, the sores have healed and but of all the hair is growing well, and is NOT WHITE as is most always the case in horse wounds.

A Stickler For His Rights.
Signor Caruso, the famous tenor, who is at present singing at Covent Garden, tells a story of a Roman peasant who was out of work and who applied one day to a rich man for a situation:
"Have you a boat?" the rich man asked.
"Yes, sir," the peasant answered.
"Well," the rich man went on, "do you see those logs of wood drifting down the river? Well, they look as though they might be worth something; go out in your boat and collect

Varicose Veins and Itching Piles
Usually Arise From Same Cause—Relief and Cure Effected by Dr. Chase's Ointment.
Nearly everybody knows of Dr. Chase's Ointment as the most effective treatment for piles or hemorrhoids that medical science has been able to compound. So much suffering and misery arises from this ailment that one is not long in telling his friends when he has found an actual cure. This accounts for the enormous sales of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Plan to Stop Fish Depletion.
Toronto, July 14.—The Ontario government is expected to take up in the near future the re-organization to some extent of the outside game and fisheries service and the formulation of means to put a stop to the depletion of the lakes and streams.

Clouded Brain
Clears Up On Change to Proper Food.
The brain cannot work with clearness and accuracy, if the food taken is not fully digested, but is retained in the stomach to ferment and form poisonous gases, etc. A dull, clouded brain is likely to be the result.
A lady relates her experience in changing her food habits, and results are very interesting:
"A steady diet of rich, greasy foods such as sausage, buckwheat cakes and so on, finally broke down a stomach and nerves that, by inheritance, were sound and strong, and medicine did no apparent good in the way of relief.
"My brain was clouded and dull and I was suffering from a case of constipation that defied all remedies used."
The "Road to Wellville," in some providential way, fell into my hands, and may Heaven's richest blessings fall on the man who was inspired to write it.
"I followed directions carefully, the physical culture and all, using Grape-nuts with sugar and cream, leaving meat, pastry and hot biscuits entirely out of my bill of fare. The result—I am in perfect health once more.
"I never realize I have nerves, and my stomach and bowels are in fine condition. My brain is perfectly clear and I am enjoying that state of health which God intended his creatures should enjoy, and which all might have, by giving proper attention to their food." Name given by Canadian, Boston Co., Windsor, Ont., Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There is a reason."
Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true and full of human interest.

London, July 14.—Railwaymen are protesting against the experiment of the Great Western Railway Company in employing women as carriage cleaners at their Wormwood Scrubbs depot. The women, whose work the company say, has given considerable satisfaction, are paid at the rate of 15s a week, against their male colleagues' 21s, and it is this distinction which is the cause of the men's resentment.

ALWAYS MASTER OF THE ROAD.
Look for the Dunlop Traction Tread trail on asphalt and on mud. It's the "TV" line to comfort. No chains; no skidding.
