Only a Beggar;

A Queen Among Women

CHAPTER V.

"Oh, I must, I must go and see the school! I'll have the children up here, on the lawn. And give them buns and milk. Nothing in the world is half so good as a bun, a real, indigestible bun, you know."

Mr. Fielding smiled again. "Oh, yes; I can see that you will slip into the part of Lady Bountiful, my dear, and that this pretty place will be soon overrun by noisy children—and snuffy old women."

Diana nodded defiantly, and laughed softly. At this moment, one of the French windows behind them opened and Mrs. Burton came out, in her quiet way.

"Are you sitting here without a shawl, Diana? You will catch cold," she said, in her low, nervous voice.

"Shawl me no shawls, Aunt Mary!" exclaimed Diana gaily. "It's quite warm—it's Italy in England! Come and sit down, and talk with Fairy Godmother!"

She put her white hand—there was now the glitter of diamonds, instead of ink stains, on the beautiful fingers—to draw her aunt down; but Mrs. Burton shook her head.

"No, I have a great deal to do," she said, and, after a nervous glance at the lawyer, she re-entered the house.

"And Mrs. Burton? She enjoyed her long trip?" he asked.

"I hope so. No; I'm afraid she didn't. Poor Aunt Mary! I think she was homesick the day we left England! The months must have seemed very long to her. I was selfish to stay—but she would not hear of coming back till I, too, longed for home. Poor Aunt Mary!" Her brows came together thoughtfully, wistfully. "I wonder why she is so—so nervous, so full of nameless fears and forebodings? I had hoped that the change—

I mean, all this tremendous sum of money, and the change of scene—would have dispelled her nervousness; but it has not. Do you know what is the cause of it, Mr. Fielding?"

Mr. Fielding coughed, and looked straight before him.

"Your aunt is too old to be affected by the change," he said rather coldly. "I mean, that her early life, the struggles and privations—My dear young lady, you can look back at the little girl who watched the horses in the park, and smile. Fortune came to you before it was too late—strange to say! You can forget—well, no, not forget, but look back without bitterness; you are young. But your aunt—"

Diana looked at him wistfully, as if she were not quite satisfied with his explanation.

"Aunt Mary is not bitter," she said. "No; it is not that. It is as if—it is so hard to describe—as if she were always dreading lest something should happen; as if she were waiting for some trouble—"

"Hush!" he whispered warningly, as Mrs. Burton came out again, and put a shawl over Diana's shoulders.

"Your dress is thin," she said, "and the evening is growing chilly."

She was gone again, almost before Diana could thank her.

Mr. Fielding looked after the elder woman, with a frown.

"Mrs. Burton will be—better, now that she is back in England," he said.

"How late the light holds!" remarked Diana, presently. "Look, they are only just beginning to light up in that house on the other side of the river. How big it looks, though one can only see a bit of it above the trees. Who lives there, do you know?"

Mr. Fielding shook his head.

"I haven't the least idea. But you will soon know, for the people will be calling on you before long."

Diana laughed. "Do you think so? I hope the natives will be friendly. But, perhaps—rather hopefully—"

"they won't call."

"They may or they may not," he said. "Of course, if they knew that you were—well, a millionairess—"

Diana made a little deprecatory gesture.

"Don't! I've taken a dislike to the word. I don't want to be sought after for—my money."

"I know, my dear young lady, I know," he said soothingly. "That's why I bought this small place—though it's a pretty expensive one for its size—instead of buying an estate with a mansion suitable for a person of your wealth. I might have purchased one of the historic houses—"

"I'm glad you did not, Fairy Godmother," Diana cut in. "I'm not ashamed of my riches, but—but I don't want to flaunt them. During our travels, I met some people who were all diamonds and gold dust—you know what I mean?—and I don't want to seem like them. No; this beautiful, this fairy house, with its quaint gables, and unexpected turnings—do you know, I lost my way in one of the passages—corridors, I suppose I ought to call them?—is more than sufficient for me."

Mr. Fielding regarded her contemplatively.

"You are a strange girl," he said. "Most young women would have been only too delighted to reign in a big place, to make aristocratic friends, and—seize upon the advantages which such wealth as yours gives."

"Yes; but consider!" said Diana, leaning forward in her chair, and regarding him dreamily. "Only a few months ago, I was—well, just a schoolmistress at Wedbury, with eighty pounds a year, and lights and firing." She mimicked his voice, and he laughed.

"Then you came with the wonderful story of this inherited wealth, and I blossomed into a—hateful word!—millionairess. At first, it seemed as if I had inherited the whole, wide world. Then, presently, I realized that money cannot buy everything; that, though nearly every one bows down to it, it is, after all, powerless to wave the magic wand which lifts us to happiness; and—

Ah, well, I'm glad you didn't buy a historic mansion, and compel me to play the great lady. Here, at Rivermead, I can be 'a simple, single lady, living at her ease.' You are sure you have not told any one that I am—I am disgustingly rich?"

"Quite sure," replied Mr. Fielding, with a smile. "You can—well, conceal your golden hoof as long as you please." He stifled a yawn. "There is something in this air that makes me sleepy. And I have some letters to write before I turn in to-night. I think I'll go to the study."

Diana laughed. "Is that what you call the dear little room on the left of the hall, the room with the bookshelves? All right. I'll tell them to send you in some—is it whiskey-and-soda?"

"Whiskey-and-soda it is, Miss Diana," he responded. "The drink that gives an edge to giddy youth and a support to venerable old age."

When he had gone, Diana leaned back in her exquisitely comfortable deck-chair, and looked before her with half-closed eyes. Not yet had she realized the change that had come into her life, and often, in her sleep, she awoke fully convinced that she was the schoolmistress of Wedbury, and oppressed by the fear that she had overslept herself; and was late.

She lay in a reverie for some time; then, aroused by the striking of the church clock—she meant to "do" that ancient church thoroughly—she drew her shawl round her, and, liberating herself from the embrace of the too comfortable chair, strolled slowly to the landing-stage.

The moon was nearly at its full, and the river—well, even "the minor poet" could not have done justice to it to-night. The water shone with the keenness of a Damascus blade. The shadow of every withy stood out like the tree itself, the murmur of the weir sang a mystic and soul-soothing song.

Diana stood on the landing-stage, looking out over the river, her spirit in perfect harmony with the scene; and it came like a shock to be suddenly awakened to the prosaic, by hearing a girl's voice chanting:

"If I love you, and you love me, And we love each other, then—How happy we shall be. For I love you

And you love me—"

She looked in the direction of the musical voice, and saw a punt coming down stream. A man was punting; a young girl—Diana could see her long brown hair streaming down her back—was half sitting, half lying, in the stern. She was dressed in white, with a shawl drawn across her girlish bosom, and on her lap was a fat pug.

The man was tall, and partly in evening dress; that is to say, he had taken off his coat and waistcoat, and had tied a handkerchief around his waist, so that he might punt with ease.

It was a pretty picture, and Diana regarded it admiringly and wistfully, because the young girl seemed so happy. And, for all her wealth, Diana had not, as yet, tasted perfect happiness; she knew that there was still something lacking in her life.

Loath to break their solitude—there was no sound other than that of the girl's voice—she drew back into the shadows; and, with a strange sense of loneliness, watched them.

The punt came swiftly down the stream, so swiftly that the nose of it nearly touched the landing-place. The pug leaped to the end of the punt, sprang ashore, and ran, sniffing and panting, toward Diana.

"Oh, Vane!" cried the girl in the punt. "Tabby has gone ashore! You must go after her! Aunt Selina would never forgive me if I lost her."

The man shrugged his shoulders, and sent the punt to the landing-stage. Then he dropped the pole, and stepped out.

By this time, Diana had conquered her nervousness, and, with the pug jumping up and yapping at her, confronted the man.

"I beg your pardon—the dog," he said apologetically. "Ah, here she is. I am very sorry—"

He stopped short, and looked fixedly at Diana. It was not only the beauty of the face upon which the moon was shining, but the vague sense of having seen it before, that arrested his words.

If he had not quite forgotten the young schoolmistress, who had rendered him such signal service on a certain night, his memory of her was dim and uncertain.

But Diana had recognized him, and waited—wondering. He frowned for a moment, in a puzzled fashion, then took up the burden of his apology.

"The little beast jumped off the punt—I drove it too near your landing-stage. Pray forgive it—and me—for trespassing."

He packed the dog under his arm, raised his straw hat, and strode back to the punt. Diana had not spoken. For some reason, which she could not have explained, she was glad that he had not recognized her. She had no wish to renew her acquaintance with "the wild Lord Dalesford."

(To be Continued.)

A Curse Or Coincidence?

Curious Side-light on the War Between Austria and Servia.

In cold history the war between Austria and Servia will be set down as the sequel to a foul murder. With equal sincerity, persons other than historians might attribute both crime and campaign to a women's curse.

Uttered against him when he was a boy, the tragic misfortunes of the Emperor Franz Josef have fulfilled the course to the letter. Only one particular remains, the culmination as it were, and that this will be forthcoming during the present war is far from being remote as a contingency. Consequently, taken in conjunction with what has already happened, the whole affair has a very special significance at the present juncture.

It was in the year 1849—the year that witnessed the repression and absorption of Hungary—that the curse was uttered. Its author was the countess Konalyi whose husband had been one of the victims to Austrian ferocity. Her imprecation ran thus:

May heaven blast his happiness! May his family be exterminated! May his children be brought to ruin!

May he perish miserably and broken hearted! When this terrible malisou was launched, the subject of it was only nineteen year on the throne. For a considerable time afterwards there seemed little indication of its dreadful desires being realized, but once tragedy did step in, sorrow after sorrow was poured upon the stricken monarch. Right and left, violent death or insanity robbed him of kith and kin, until, half a century after the curse had been delivered, the old man was left practically alone.

Here is only a partial list of the terrible happening that have shadowed his life:

Emperor Maximilian, brother—shot in Mexico.

Crown Prince Rudolph, son and heir—committed suicide.

Empress Elizabeth, wife—Assassinated.

Count Ludwig de Trani, brother-in-law—committed suicide.

Duchess de Aletou, sister-in-law, —burned to death.

Archduke Carl Ludwig—died.

Archduke Charles Louis, brother—died.

Otto of Bavaria, cousin—went mad.

Princess Marie Charlotte, cousin—went mad.

Archduke John, nephew—disappeared at sea.

Archduke Francis Ferdinand, nephew—assassinated.

Feathered Spies.
How Pigeons Carry Information to the Enemy.

German spies are employing racing pigeons to carry messages to Germany, writes a correspondent. German trawlers in the North Sea have been found with baskets of pigeons. In France two Germans were caught redhanded in the act of releasing homing pigeons with messages destined for Germany on their legs.

As an illustration of the capabilities possessed by highly bred racing pigeons it may be mentioned that only last year a blue cock owned by a Derby farmer flew from Rome, a distance of 1,001 miles, and a bite chequer cock owned at Spennymoor flew 1,093 miles in an English long-distance test race.

The method adopted for espionage purposes is to write the message on a piece of very fine tissue paper in small calligraphy and secure this around the bird's leg with a thin and light, but strong, elastic ring.

In some cases it has been known that spies have gone to the extent of photographic documents on miniature films, which after being sent to their destination on their legs are placed in powerful enlarging machines and as many as several hundreds of words made intelligible.

A clause under the Aliens Act prohibits aliens from possessing homing pigeons in time of war.

Why Tars Wear Blue and White!

The selection of blue and white as the color of our naval uniform came about in a curious way. In the middle of the 18th Century it was decided to have a regular uniform for the Navy, and the then Admiral of the Fleet was summoned to attend a meeting to settle on the color. The Admiral was for blue and red, these being the national colors. But the Duke of Bedford, who was present, spoke up and said that the King, George II., had seen the Duchess of Bedford riding in a habit of blue faced with white and that the color of this dress had so taken His Majesty's fancy that he had appointed it to be the color of the uniform of the Royal Navy.

Since that time the Royal Navy Blue has become a standard, and we are pleased to announce to all British subjects everywhere that in the dyeing of garments to this color we give complete satisfaction.

DRESS MATERIALS,
 (ALL EXTENTE-CORDIALE MAKES).

Being manufacturers of England and France, and this is an offer of entire cordiale. We are reducing stocks in certain departments, hence this offer. We could not put those English and French Wool Fabrics into stock to-day at anything like the figures we quote. If you don't wish a Dress or Costume now, it will pay you to buy and lay aside a length for later. We quote:

COLOURED HABIT CLOTHS, 54 inches wide.
 Regular $1.50 to $2.50. Now 90c. to $1.50 yd.

CHEVIOT (HEAVY) SERGES, 50 inches wide.
 Regular 90c. yard for 65c. yd.

LOT DRESS TWEEDS at various prices, which are greatly reduced ones.

ALL WOOL TARTANS, three ends only. Clans:—Gordon, MacKenzie and MacLaren. Regular 90c. yard. Now only 60c. yd.

LOT OF BLACK DRESS MATERIALS, principally Crepilles, Crepe de Chine, Voiles, Crepe Cloths, Zibelines and Check-eds, Striped and Spotted Materials at Cost Price and under.

We may say that it is very difficult to get Black Materials at present in England and on the Continent at any price.

In conjunction with the Clearing Prices we have made on the above-mentioned fabrics we are also making lesser though generous reductions on our staple lines of Cheap Habit Cloths, Serges, Cashmeres, etc., despite the fact that our first costs on these goods are advancing.

All DRESS LININGS, TRIMMINGS, S. BUTTONS and other findings we shall give during this sale at large reductions to all buyers of Dress Materials.

RESIGNATION OF PRINCE LOUIS OF BATTENBURG.

LONDON, To-day.

Prince Louis of Battenburg, First Sea Lord of the British Admiralty, has resigned. His resignation is said to be due to the campaign of some newspapers against him because of his German connections.

TURKISH WARSHIP BOMBARDS RUSSIAN CITY.

THEODOSIA, CRIMEA, via Petrograd, To-day.

This morning a Turkish cruiser with three funnels bombarded the station and city, damaged the cathedral, the Greek church, a pier and sheds. One soldier was wounded. A branch of the Russian Bank of Foreign Commerce caught fire. At the conclusion of the bombardment, the cruiser left in a south westerly direction.

CERTIFICATES SUSPENDED.

HALIFAX, To-day.

Capt. Neil Hall has returned from Sydney and Louisbourg where together with Capt. R. McDonald, he held an inquiry into the loss of the steamship Cacouna and Floriston. The result was the certificate of Captain Newman was suspended for three months and that of Captain Kennedy, of the Floriston, for one year. In case of the Cacouna which was lost on Ferryland, Newfoundland, the court found Captain Newman had been guilty of an error of judgment. The Floriston was lost off Louisbourg. In the case of Captain Kennedy, the court found he had been guilty of neglect to practice good seamanship and navigation. Japan Embassy announced here last night that Turkey had declared war on Russia.

TIMES EXPERT FORECASTS ATTEMPT AT INVASION.

LONDON, To-day.

Colonel Repington, Military Expert of the London Times, cables that the great German offensive against Calais appears to have failed. There is nothing else to explain the dying down of the attacks, the minor key in which the Berlin wireless operator is instructed to sing, and the steady gain of ground by the Allies. The question now is what the Kaiser's suite of princely and other advisers proposes to do. The German casualty lists for the past ten days must have exceeded all precedent. Equally beyond precedent have been the barren results of this relentless sacrifice of Germans which has worked down to youths from school and old gentlemen and hunchbacks. Very soon every house in Germany will be a hospital. Defeat in both frontiers stares the Kaiser in the face. The only German arm which has not yet been employed is the navy, and with the worst outlook on land, it is more than probable the German navy will be called upon, and sent to cover, if possible, the delivery of quarter of a million Germans on British soil. The writer is not much impressed by the arguments which would make us suppose that because invasion is difficult it will not be attempted. We must place ourselves in German skins and consider the cost of the war, the paralysis of German sea borne trade, the growing unemployment, the increasing anxiety and the utter hopeless outlook if the German armies are driven back within German frontiers. In the circumstances of the times, there is great need for enlightenment of more men for new armies which must continue to mount up until we are in a position to satisfy the needs of the most serious situation in our history.

NOON.

TOOK THE RIGHT STEP.

LONDON, To-day.

The morning newspapers in editorials dealing with the resignation of Admiral Prince Louis of Battenburg without exception express regret with the Prince, and regret over the unfortunate circumstances which deprive the country of his valuable services. At the same time the newspapers generally think that Prince Louis took the right step.

Lord Kitchener.

Appeals to Public to Refrain From Treating Soldiers.

London, Oct. 24.—In line with his now famous advice to the British expeditionary force to be courteous, but not more than courteous, to women, Lord Kitchener, Secretary for War, to-day issued an appeal to the public in which he emphasizes the importance of keeping the army now training in good condition.

This result, he says, will be obtained only by strict sobriety, and while the soldiers are doing all they can to get into condition in the shortest possible time, Lord Kitchener urges the public, both men and women, to aid them in their sobriety by refraining from treating them, and by appointing committees in neighbourhoods where soldiers are stationed to impress them with the need of temperance, and assist them in avoiding temptation.

Three British Steamers are Still Afloat.

London, October 25.—The Lloyd's correspondent at Tenerife learns that the British steamers Indrani, Condo and Farn were captured by the German cruiser Karlsruhe, but have not been sunk.

This is in contradiction of the Daily Mail's Tenerife despatch previously published, that the Karlsruhe had sunk thirteen merchantmen, including these three vessels.

PRINCE LOUIS OF BATTENBURG

Many will remember the visit of H. S. H. Prince Louis of Battenburg, when as second-Admiral in command of the Second Cruiser Squadron he visited St. John's. At that time he had gained great reputation as one of the leading scientific officers of the Royal Navy. From 1902 to 1904 he had been Director of Naval Intelligence to which post of responsibility he had risen after going through the usual routine and obtaining promotion from midshipman to Sub-Lieutenant, Lieutenant, Commander, Captain. As Lieutenant he served in the Egyptian War. From 1906-8 he was second in command of the Mediterranean Fleet. For the next two years Commander-in-Chief of the Atlantic Fleet. In 1911 he was given command of the 3rd and 4th Division of the Home Fleet. Later he became Admiral and was made First Sea Lord of the Admiralty. The Admiralty is a Commission which has charge of the Navy. It is presided over curiously by a civilian. That civilian at present is Winston Churchill. There are also two other Civil Lords. In addition there are four Sea Lords who rank immediately after the presiding officers. The most influential of these Sea Lords is the First Sea Lord.

The report says Prince Louis has resigned because of newspaper comments on his German connections. There have been comments of this nature, and it is by no means unlikely that the Prince has been occupying a very uncomfortable position. His reputation as a sailor is considerable, but unfortunately he was born at Gatz in Styria, Austria, and he is Hessean by blood. He is the eldest son of Prince Alexander of Hesse, and grandson of Louis II., Grand Duke of Hesse. Hesse is one of the Principalities of Central Germany. When he was a boy of 14 he became a naturalized British subject, and entered the British Navy as a naval cadet, and he has worked his way up during his 46 years service in the Navy to the rank of Admiral and to the most influential position to which a British sailor can aspire, viz., that of First Sea Lord of the Admiralty. Thirty years ago he married his cousin, Princess Victoria, daughter of Louis IV., Grand Duke of Hesse, and of Princess Alice, daughter of Queen Victoria.

Time works wonderful coincidences, and it is more than passing strange that a German by birth and blood should by accident of time, naturalization, ability and royal connection, be the chief sailor in charge of the British Navy which is to maintain British supremacy at sea against a German Navy built expressly to wrest the trident from Britain.

As Prince Louis became a British subject a generation before German sailors began to drink to "Der Tag"; as he joined the British Navy thirty years before the Kaiser declared at Cologne that the Trident must be in a German fist; and as he began his naval career almost thirty years before there was a German Navy, disloyalty cannot well be imputed to him. Moreover, he has done excellent work for the British Navy in his time; and the causes which led to his resignation can only be regarded with regret, but these causes are all powerful and cannot be disregarded, and Prince Louis in resigning has crowned his services to the Navy by a splendid act of self sacrifice.

RESIGNATION OF PRINCE LOUIS.

LONDON, To-day. The announcement of Prince Louis' resignation was made known last night in a Court circular which recorded that the Prince had been received in audience by the King on relinquishing his appointment. There were rumors some time ago that Prince Louis had been confined in the Tower of London, but these were too ridiculous to be given serious consideration, although the authorities deemed it expedient that he should appear more in public instead of confining himself to the Admiralty where since the outbreak of the war he had been working day and night directing the strategy of the navy. The Prince has been considered one of the most noted strategists of the Admiralty. Following this, some of the less influential papers took up the matter and asked that some statement should be made regarding that fact that an officer of German birth should be retained as a professional head of the Navy.

The Admiralty has issued the following correspondence between Prince Louis and Winston Churchill, dated October 28th, said: "Dear Mr. Churchill I have lately been driven to the painful conclusion that at the juncture my birth and parentage have the effect of impairing in some respects my usefulness on the Board of the Admiralty. In view of these circumstances I feel it to be my duty as a loyal subject of His Majesty to resign my office of First Sea Lord hoping thereby to facilitate the task of Administration of great service to which I have devoted my life, and to ease the burden laid on His Majesty's Ministers. I am, yours very truly, Louis of Battenburg, Admiral."

Mr. Churchill, under date October 29th, replied as follows: "My dear Prince Louis—This is no ordinary war but a struggle between nations for life or death; it raises passions between the races of the most terrible kind; it effaces old landmarks and frontiers in our civilization. I cannot further oppose the wish you have during the last few weeks expressed to me to be released from the burden of responsibility which you have borne thus far with so much honour and success. The duties which are placed upon the naval administration of our country are in themselves enough to try a man's spirit, and when to them are added the ineradicable difficulties of which you speak, I could not at this juncture in fairness be expected to support them. The navy of to-day and still more the navy of to-morrow bears the imprint of your work. The enormous impending influx of capital ships, the score of thirty knot cruisers, the destroyers and submarines unequalled in modern construction which are coming now to hand, are the results of the labors which we have had in common and in which the Admiralty owes its concentration of the fleet was taken by you. I must express publicly my deep indebtedness to you and pain I feel at severance of our three years of official associations. In all the circumstances you are right in your decision, the spirit in which you have acted is the same in which Prince Maurice of Battenburg has given his life for our cause, and in which your gallant son is now serving in the fleet. I beg you to accept my profound respect and that of our colleagues on the Board. I remain, yours very sincerely, Winston S. Churchill." The King has appointed Prince Louis of Battenburg a member of the Privy Council.

FISHER APPOINTED FIRST SEA LORD.

LONDON, To-day. The Times in an editorial, protesting against what it terms an unjust campaign which has driven Prince Louis from his post, says: The fact that his resignation follows the news of Prince Maurice of Battenburg's death should be sufficient to kill once for all the suggestions involved in the malignant scandals. The appointment of Lord Fisher as First Sea Lord of the Admiralty will undoubtedly meet with the Nation's approval; it puts in possession a man who more than any other is the creator of the British battle fleet of to-day and who stands to the navy in the same relation as does Lord Kitchener to the army.

LONDON, To-day.

Two German aeroplanes on Wednesday dropped two bombs at Bethune, France. The first failed to explode, but the second, which fell among market women, killed 19 of them and injured forty others. Two bombs were also dropped at Dunkirk on the same day. Women and children were killed and all windows in the neighbourhood were smashed.

tion of Turkey in bombarding two unfortified Russian ports without declaration of war, as infinitely more important to England than to Russia, on account of an English communication with India and her position in Egypt. Although Russia, it is stated, now has a new war on her hands, her policy will not be one of general aggression against Turkey, but merely defense of her own interests in the Black Sea. It is pointed out that the Allies had previously guaranteed integrity of Turkey only if she remained neutral. Clandorous throngs surrounded the Turkish Embassy to-day manifesting against Turkey. People were restrained from violence by mounted Gardemars. Earlier some mob paraded streets with bare heads singing and cheering. Excitement in Petrograd is the greatest since the declaration of war against Germany.

The following is from the Press Bureau: The Belgian Government reports the situation of the troops on the Yser as improved, and the enemy's artillery fire slackened, being subdued by the Fleet guns. The Allies' operations at Ypres are very satisfactory.

General Botha left Rustenburg on Tuesday, and drove Beyers' command in headlong route, capturing eighty fully armed.

HARCOURT.
ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.

Official, Oct. 29.—Action continued to develop yesterday in the same manner as on the preceding days, and was characterized by good progress on our part on several points of line of battle. Around Ypres and south of Arras and more particularly between Alene and Argonne, we have taken possession of several German trenches and none of their attacks were successful. There has been equal and fresh progress on our part in Apremont Forest even against very strong difficulties owing to the nature of the ground. A series of operations along the frontier between Moselle and Vosges allowed us to dislodge several advance guards of the enemy. Prisoners were taken everywhere.

Russia.—In Poland the centre Austro-German line had to fall back before Russian offensive and retreated on Ladinsk, Radom, and Liza, losing prisoners and material. In Galicia fighting continues on the whole front successful for the Russian troops.

GERMANS RETREATING.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.

An official despatch made public by the French embassy here, to-night, announced that the Germans were retreating before the Russian armies in Poland and are now basing on Edlinsk, Radom and Liza. The Germans are said to have lost their prisoners and ammunition. In Galicia the combat continues in the whole front with success for the Russians.

In a series of operations along the frontier between Moselle and Vosges we were able to dislodge some outposts of the enemy. Prisoners were captured almost everywhere.

GERMAN REPRISALS.
LONDON, Oct. 29.

What the London press describes as reprisals in Berlin, in the matter of the vigorous handling of English in that city, are related in a Reuter's despatch from Berlin. The police authorities there, says the message, are preparing to take even more drastic and oppressive measures against the British. The authorities are taking a revised census of British residents, with a view to facilitating arrests. Word has gone forth that a clean sweep will be made. It is considered possible that every Englishman in the German capital will be under arrest within a short time. The Germans, it is stated, are taking additional precautions against spies, and are curtailing the privileges of English civilians, already interned. In some concentration camps in Germany, Englishmen, it is said, are forced to sleep on straw.

GERMAN CRUISER SUNK.
PARIS, Oct. 29.

A squadron of British torpedo boat destroyers in the Adriatic Sea, sunk a German steamer which had been converted into a cruiser. The destroyers rescued 86 members of the crew of the German vessel.

BELGIAN PARLIAMENT MEET.
PARIS, Oct. 29.

Newspapers in Paris say to-day that the Belgian Parliament will be called into session at Havre sometime during November.

HERTZOG AS PEACEMAKER.
LONDON, Oct. 29.

Grenfell Hertzog has left Capetown to try and induce the rebel Boers left by Generals DeWet and Beyers to return to their homes.

WILL REVIEW CONTINGENTS.
LONDON, Oct. 29.

It is officially announced to-day that their Majesties King George and Queen Mary have signified their intention of reviewing the Canadian contingents on Salisbury Plains at an early date.

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL REPORT.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.

All the German army corps on the left bank of the Vistula in Poland are in full retreat, according to an official report from Petrograd, made public to-night. The report follows: On Oct. 25, we overcame the resistance of the last troops of the enemy, endeavoring to put up fight to the north of the River Plizta. At the present moment all the Austro-German corps on the left bank of the Vistula are in full retreat. Strykoff and Novomlato are occupied by our troops. Radom is occupied by our cavalry and we have captured several thousand prisoners and guns, and a score of machine guns. In Galicia there is no change. On the East Prussian front the first German Army corps, supported by other troops, is for the fourth day keeping up an attack. The losses of the enemy are very heavy.

What's Indigestion? Who? Cares! Listen

"Tape's Diapepsin" makes Sick, Sour, Gassy Stomachs surely feel fine in five minutes.
Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas, acid, or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, foul breath or headache.
Tape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest and most certain indigestion remedy in the whole world, and besides it is harmless.
Millions of men and women now eat their favorite foods without fear—they know Tape's Diapepsin will save them from any stomach misery.
Please, for your sake, get a large fifty-cent case of Tape's Diapepsin from any drug store and put your stomach right. Don't keep on being miserable—life is too short—you are not here long, so make your stay agreeable. Eat what you like and digest it; enjoy it without dread of rebellion in the stomach.
Tape's Diapepsin belongs in your home anyway. Should one of the family eat something which don't agree with them, or in case of an attack of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis or stomach derangement at daytime or during the night, it is handy to give the quickest, surest relief known.

Officers' Badge.

The Boers taught us how rash was anything which made an officer distinguishable at a distance. Towards the end of the South African War the officers even discarded the sword for the carbine, and, although in the presence of war swords are again carried, it is very hard to tell a commissioned officer from the rank and file. Indeed, it is impossible at a distance. The chief difference is that the officer wears a tunic open at the throat to show his tie and shirt of khaki, his leather belt, and on the cuffs the distinguishing badge of his rank—one star for a second lieutenant, two for a lieutenant, three for a captain, a crown for a major, a star and crown for a lieutenant-colonel, two stars and a crown for a colonel. Staff officers are known by the scarlet gorget on their collar and the golden oak leaves on the cap brim.
The non-commissioned officers are known, of course, by their stripes—one stripe denoting a lance-corporal or a bombardier, two stripes a corporal, three stripes a sergeant, three stripes and a crown for a colour-sergeant, battery, or troop sergeant-major. A single crown on the cuff of a man other than an officer is for a staff sergeant-major.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? An insurance policy with Percie Johnson would provide for you this desired security and at small expense. Have you enough insurance?

Brave Deeds on Land and Sea.

BATTLE STORIES FROM THE FIRING LINE.

BRAVE CORPORAL BRINDALL

Drummer H. Savage, 1st Battalion Royal Berkshire Regiment, relates the story of the heroism of Corporal Brindall, of the same Regiment. The British forces, he says, were attacking a bridge held by the Germans near Cambrai, and several men fell into the river and were in imminent danger of losing their lives. Brindall, who was an expert swimmer, rescued four of them, and was endeavoring to reach the top of the embankment when a German shell exploded, killing him instantly.

"OUT L. B. W."

It is a private in the Royal Irish Fusiliers who tells of the cheery remark made by an officer of the Cheshires, who is a bit of a cricketer, who was wounded in the thigh by a piece of shell. The officer had incautiously raised his leg above the trenches to ease the cramped feeling, when the shell hit him, and as he fell back all he said was, "Out, by George, l.b.w., as the umpire would say. Better luck next innings." A phrase like that should be remembered in any history of the war.

PROMOTED ON THE FIELD.

Private Tell, of the 5th Dragoon Guards, describing a small engagement on September 1st, in which the British captured several German guns says: "It was just at dawn when the Germans opened fire. Immediately the Bays and the Eleventh came galloping up, and after a desperate struggle we captured every gun. I saw one of the Bays, a lance-corporal, run towards the enemy with a machine-gun on his shoulders. He fired several hundred rounds at them, and escaped without a scratch. He was promoted to sergeant for that."

AN HEROIC SERGT. MAJOR

Corporal James Hes, of the 2nd Dragoon Guards (Queen's Bays), in an interview, says: "One magnificent piece of bravery I witnessed was performed by Sergt.-Major Smith, of the B Squadron, 2nd Dragoons. One of our men had his horse shot from under him and was himself wounded. We had gone some distance, having been driven out of our position by the Germans, when Sergt.-Major Smith, seeing what had happened, returned, and under heavy fire, with shells bursting around him, picked up my comrade, placed him across his horse, and brought him back into safety."

CANDLES IN THE TRENCHES.

Hardly a night passes in the trenches without an alarm, a Times correspondent says, yet the men coolly nap by candle-light. They dare each other to do mad deeds. One stole forth on a dark night to carry off a German Maxim. He wriggled on his stomach to within a few yards of his object. He surprised the guard of five Prussians, slew them, and returned in triumph to his trench with the Maxim slung like a sheep across his shoulders. Rendered brazen by his success, he sallied forth again to collect the ammunition and belt which he had left behind on his first journey.

HIS LAST FIGHT.

There is a solitary grave near

Choley-au-Bac, which every day is strewn with fresh flowers. It is the last resting place of an English soldier who, quite alone, there fought his last fight till overwhelmed by numbers. During the great retreat he had strayed from his comrades and fallen exhausted from fatigue. Unable to find them he took up his quarters in an abandoned carriage, but thirty-six hours later the Germans appeared on the other side of the Aisne and fired at him. Undeterred by the fact that he was utterly alone, he replied, and such was his determination and accuracy of aim that the villagers declare he accounted for six German officers, one of them a General, before he fell under a volley. The French buried him where he had fought, erected a cross, and in honor of his gallantry lay fresh flowers each day on his grave.

WELL FIELDED!

There is a cricketer's flavor, too, in a story illustrating the coolness of one of the Gloucesters. While a certain company were having some food in the trenches a shell fell in the middle of them. "It didn't explode," says the private who tells the story; "so one of the chaps just dropped his biscuit, got up, and threw the shell out of the trenches, just as you might pick up a cricket ball that had come over your garden wall at home. Then he went on with his meal."

WITH LANCE, SABRE AND FIST.

A graphic description of how the Cossacks charge and fight is given in the story of an Austrian Hussar who was captured in Galicia. "Our cavalry advanced to the battle with ardour," he says, "but the Cossacks fell on us like a whirlwind. Hardly were we in touch than a Cossack dealt me three simultaneous blows. He did it I do not know, but he did not even give me time to fall. He seized me by the collar, lifted me on to his horse and carried me off. His comrades acted similarly, and a good number of our Hussars were thus taken prisoners."

"STICK IT, WELSH!"

These were the last words of gallant Captain Haggard, of the 2nd Welsh Regiment (a nephew of the famous poetist), who met his death in the desperate fighting at the beginning of the Battle of the Aisne. With his regiment he had reached the crest of a hill and there caught sight of the Germans. "Fix bayonets, boys—here they are!" he cried. But a storm of Maxim fire checked the charge. Bullets came from the front and both flanks. Officers fell rapidly, including Captain Haggard, mortally wounded, who, as the shells burst, would occasionally open his eyes and call out—but very weakly—"Stick it, Welsh!" And with these words on his lips he died—an officer and a gentleman.

HIS LIFE FOR HIS COMRADES.

It was in order to give his wounded comrades a drop of water that an engineer sacrificed his own life. The story is told by the corporal of a Bedfordshire regiment. "It was in the Aisne Battle," he says. "Near the trenches there were a lot of wounded, and their cries for water were pitiful. A quiet chap of the Engineers could stand it no longer. He collected all the water bottles he could lay hold of, and said he was going out. The air was thick with shell and rifle fire, and to show yourself at all was to sign your death warrant. He got to the

A Little Knowledge.

By RUTH CAMERON.

The Greek motto "Know Thyself" which I so often quote, refers to physical as well as to mental and spiritual self-knowledge.

And yet it is possible to know and think too much about one's physical self.

There has never been a time when the popular interest in medical science was so great as it is to-day. Medical articles are no longer relegated to scientific periodicals, but appear in our most popular magazines. As you doubtless remember, in last month's issue of a magazine which is making a strong bid for popular circulation, the leading article was medical. Furthermore, practically everyone to whom I spoke on the subject had read that article.

The outcome of all this is that the popular mind is turned towards the subject of disease, and many people acquire a strange smattering of medical knowledge.

In so far as they use this knowledge to keep well with, nothing could be better.

But they do not always use it so wisely.

Let me illustrate. A friend of mine who has a deep interest in things medical reads and talks a great deal about disease. The result is that she is always watching herself and others for symptoms, and fancying that she detects the beginnings of some disease.

For instance, "I've got such a terrible pain behind my eyes. I do hope it isn't conjunctivitis. My eye itched this morning and I was foolish enough to rub it. That's the way conjunctivitis starts,—getting a germ in. The doctor said that was what started Mary's attack, and you know what a terrible time she had staying in that dark room for weeks. Wouldn't it be dreadful if something like that happened to me just as we are planning to go away?"

Again, "I'm so worried. Ruth has a sore throat and a fever, and you know that's just the way scarlet fever starts. I don't know what I should do if she should come down with that. We'd have to take the other children out of school and none of them have had it."

Needless to say the pain behind the eyes turned out to be an indigestion headache, and little Ruth's trouble proved to be an ordinary sore throat.

If my friend had had little less medical knowledge she would have had a great deal less worry.

Perhaps I am wrong in thinking that this type is common, but as I have several in my own acquaintance I assumed that it might be.

There is such a thing as thinking too little about one's health—not knowing or heeding the common danger signals. And there is such a thing as thinking too much about diseases, being too ready to expect them, too eagerly fearful to detect them. Don't think too much about disease. It isn't a pleasant subject. Leave that to the doctors. Have a good trustworthy family doctor and go straight to him when things get out of order in spite of you. It's cheaper in the end. But for your part think about health. Study preventive medicine all you want. Study how to make your body strong and able to throw off disease. That's the best way to "know thyself."

first man all sight and gave him a swig from a bottle. He crawled along the ground to others until he was about a quarter of a mile away from us. He was hit badly, and with just a slight upward fling of his arms he dropped to earth like the hero he was."

MARCH PAST A HERO.

With colours flying and the band playing the "Marseillaise," the 127th Regiment of French Infantry marched past the youngest soldier in their ranks, Leon Lemaire, who, although only twenty years of age, has been presented with the distinction coveted in the French army above all others, the Military Medal. This is how he won it. A few days before the Colonel of the 127th had sent Lemaire with an important message to the captain of one of the companies of the regiment in the trenches. He had no sooner shown himself on the level ground to run forward on his errand than the German troops, whose trenches were here only at short range, opened a fierce fire upon him by volleys. First a bullet passed through the young man's great coat; then his cap was struck; his haversack and water-bottle were riddled by several shots; then a hole was bored through the scabbard of his bayonet.

Through it all young Lemaire advanced coolly and without faltering, and finally he reached the trench where the captain to whom he bore the message was—miraculously enough without a wound.

Vigorol

VIGOROL, the Great French Tonic, is opposed to disease; therefore it finds it out and drives it away. Your nerves are toned up. Your bowels made healthy and strong. Your blood purified. The kidneys and liver cleaned. Headaches, biliousness, and that heavy, ill-feeling, will go. You will feel like a new person. Don't be fooled—get VIGOROL, and you will never regret it. Sold at all drug stores.

Some of the new jackets are made with belts showing in front, but hidden under the jacket in the back. Wine-colored velvet suits are trimmed with cords of the velvet and buttons embroidered with steel beads.

How the 'Undaunted' Sank the Destroyers.

London, October 24.—The first good description of the sea fight last Saturday which resulted in the sinking of four German torpedo boat destroyers off the Dutch coast by the British cruiser Undaunted and the torpedo boat destroyers Lance, Lennox, Legion and Loyal, is given by an officer of the Undaunted.

"When heading northward," the officer said, "we saw the smoke of four German vessels. The captain immediately ordered us to clear for action and to chase them. We steamed at top speed with the destroyers in chase of the Germans. It was an unforgettable sight. Our nerves were strained and everybody was as keen as mustard over our luck.

"The Germans turned about and fled, but we had the advantage in speed and soon they were in range of our six-inch bow chasers. Seeing themselves cornered, the Germans altered their position, and answered our fire, aiming mostly at our destroyers.

"Lusty cheering rang from our ships as the first German destroyer disappeared. A shell struck her just below the bridge and she toppled over on her beam ends like a wounded bird, then righted herself to a level with the surface and finally plunged bow first beneath the waves. It was over with her in two minutes.

"In less than an hour after we had sighted the Germans the second destroyer was out of action. She was ablaze fore and aft, showing what the fearful shell work was doing. As one shell hit her the funnels, bridge, torpedo tubes and deck fittings all disappeared like magic.

"We actually passed over the spot where the first vessel was sunk and for the space of a couple of seconds as we tore through the water at the rate of over thirty knots an hour, we saw poor wretches floating about, clinging to charred and blackened debris and other wreckage. It was a pitiable sight, but we had two more combatants to put out of action and were forced to speed along and try to forget the sight.

"The second ship, still a mass of flames, had sunk to the level of the water, and we soon had the remaining two holes and maimed. Their firing was poor, though several of their shells flew around and cast shrapnel bullets about us.

"The enemy fired many torpedoes, one of them missing the Undaunted's stern by only a few yards. Fortunately we saw the bubbles it made as it approached and thus avoided the fate of the Aboukir (a British cruiser sunk recently by a German submarine).

"An hour and a half after the Germans were sighted all was over with them and the order was given to save life."

BY DOMINION COAL COMPANY.

The s.s. Bellaventure, Capt. Randall, which is now returning from the far north, having finished her engagement with the Canadian Government, will not come on to St. John's, but will call at Sydney where she will take up a new charter, negotiations in that direction having been completed between the Dominion Coal Company and Messrs. A. Harvey & Company, the owners of the ship. She will be engaged for about a month and will run to Newfoundland ports, bringing coal cargoes from Sydney. Possibly she will make a trip here.

STAFFORD'S LINIMENT FOR RHEUMATISM.

Cream of Tartar

Many people use cream of tartar for quick baking. They value its superior qualities and will not knowingly accept substitutes made of alum or lime phosphates, such as are sometimes offered.

But even the most careful cannot always know. The high price of cream of tartar has led to efforts to substitute alum and phosphate of lime compounds which are vastly inferior and not as healthful to use.

The easiest way in which the housekeeper can be sure of quality and economy is by using Royal Baking Powder, which is made from pure cream of tartar.

Royal Baking Powder gives perfect results, is less trouble to use, and has not been advanced in price.

Anyone who has once become accustomed to using Royal Baking Powder never reverts to home-made mixtures or any other product for raising biscuit, griddle-cakes, doughnuts, or cake.

Ten Thousand are Held Off Five Days

BY FOUR HUNDRED AND FIFTY IN FORT.

Paris, Oct. 23.—It has already been related how gallantly the little Fort de Troyant defied the Germans on the Meuse, but it is only now being realized what a service its garrison rendered the Allied forces.

For five days, four hundred and fifty of them kept ten thousand Germans at bay, notwithstanding their awful pounding from the guns that overthrew Liege, Namur and other strongholds.

After two days' bombardment the Germans tried to take the fort by storm. They got within ten yards, but fell back in such numbers that the survivors had to withdraw. The next day they summoned the garrison to surrender. "Never," was the reply. "Then we shall shell you with our heavy guns until your fort is only a heap of cinders."

When the siege was raised, practically nothing was left of the forts, while more than half of its defenders had been buried alive in its ruins. The captain in command was wounded in 28 places, and his lieutenant lost a leg.

The Governor of Verdun came in person to congratulate the garrison on its magnificent defence, and, ever since, a stream of generals and high officers from all sides has come to see the damage done.

Every regiment that passes has orders to halt and render the garrison military honors. The defenders are being loaded with presents in recognition of their bravery.

Children Hate Oil, Calomel And Pills

"California Syrup of Figs" best for tender stomach, liver, bowels—tastes delicious.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given to-day saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

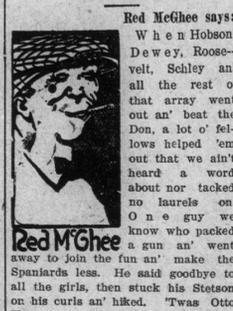

Stafford's Liniment cures all aches and pains. Sold everywhere.—sep8,tf

Have You an Itchy Spot?

Somewhere on your body? If so, attend to it at once. In Eczema—and itchy spots, whether dry and scurfy, or moist and inclined to "weep," are generally eczematous—delays are foolish, allowing the disease to spread and affect more of the good skin. Your best chance for a cure is to use Zylex, which will give almost instant relief, and if used in the earlier stages of the trouble will almost certainly bring a cure, and in any event will greatly ameliorate the trouble. Ask your druggist about it. Price 50c. a box. Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake.

Otto Hess.

Red McGhee

Red McGhee says: When Hobson, Dewey, Roosevelt, Schley and all the rest of that array went out and beat the Don, a lot of fellows helped 'em out that we ain't heard of nor tacked no laurels on. One of 'em we know who packed a gun an' went away to join the fun an' make the Spaniards less. He said goodbye to all the girls, then stuck his Stetson on his curls an' hiked. 'Twas Otto Hess.

He fit some in the Philippines an' southpaw forked canned beef an' beans till Unk Sam called him back. Not wantin' to be president, he let Ted grab that job an' went to learn the pitchin' knack. His slants turned out so bullet-like it didn't take him long to hike from bushleague to the Naps. But Otto loved the old balloon an' might take passage for the moon 'bout half way through his scrap.

Back South the ring-haired soldier went an' he hung 'round New Orleans' tent to tame his wild left wing. When he came back it brought a laugh. Nobody thought he'd stand the gaff around the all-star ring. But Otto sticks along somehow—he's with that battling Brave gang now an' cops wins once'n a while. He ain't no winn'n' pitcher, bo, but some must do the lovin'. So, of Hess adopts that style.

FADS AND FASHIONS.

All kinds of gold laces and tassels give the season's fashions a note of richness.

Full tunic frocks with wide hip girdles are all the rage, both for girls and women.

The new long Russian coats not only flare around the foot, but are long waisted.

A foreign model was made with skirt of blue-and-white-striped silk and a blue blouse.

Opalescent sequins, which give the effect of mother of pearl, are seen on evening gowns.

Very soft silk, with a bit of millinery braiding, makes a charming blouse for a young girl.

Children's hats are frequently of the mushroom shape, and are very soft with velvet crowns.

Germany's Big Canal.

Up to the present the Kiel Canal has proved a much more profitable investment for the German people than the vast fleet which is at present being built.

For many years Prince Bismarck had cherished the idea of connecting Emden with Kiel Harbour by means of a great waterway, which would enable squadrons of warships to traverse the whole coastline free from external interference. The construction of the canal was begun in 1887, and after eight years' work—in 1895—it was formally opened to commerce in the presence of a large international fleet.

The length was sixty miles, and it then had a normal width of 73 feet at the bottom and 230 feet at the water level, with a depth of 29½ feet. Although it is a sea-level canal, twin locks were built at each end, those at the western entrance to rectify the large tide variations of water-level due to gales in the practically tideless Baltic. These locks were 492 feet long, 82 feet wide, and 32 feet deep. Those at Kiel remained open most of the time, while those at the mouth of the Elbe did not need to be used at certain tides.

By saving a dangerous voyage round the stormy coasts of Denmark, the canal proved of great value to trading vessels, but, as recent events have demonstrated, its strategic value is even greater.

With the coming of the Dreadnought type of battleship it was found necessary, however, to reconstruct the canal, in order that it might accommodate these huge vessels.

The normal width of the canal is now 335 feet at the surface, and 144 feet at the bottom, with a depth of 36 feet. New twin locks have been built alongside the old ones at each end. They have an available length of 1082.6 feet and width of 147.6 feet. Intermediate gates may be used to cut off a chamber 328 feet long.

The work of reconstructing the canal cost about $11,000,000. The new locks were formally opened by the Kaiser last June by the Emperor's yacht Hohenzollern breaking a ribbon of black, white, and red stretched across one of the new locks.

Sulphate of Ammonia.

St. John's Gas Light Company.

Dear Sir,—I have analyzed a sample of Sulphate of Ammonia made at your Works, and I found 20.5 per cent of NITROGEN, Sulphates of Ammonia and Nitrate of Soda are the two principal Nitrogen manure.

Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently it is a safer manure to use during a wet season.

Yours truly,
D. JAMES DAVIES, B.S.C., F.C.S.,

Divorced Life

By Helen Hanson Fuzari

The Ways of Destiny

Marian Winthrop, having bidden Chalonier good night at the entrance to her hotel, faced a night of mental struggle. It proved to be the sternest ordeal that had ever confronted her. Chalonier's declaration of love had hit her with staggering force, such as none of the many similar pronouncements she had listened to in her day had ever carried. Here was a man and here was a manifesto that were not to be trifled with, laughed off, or tossed lightly into the discard of indefinite postponement. Chalonier's proposition demanded a definite answer. It embodied a bench order from the high court of Cupid that had to be acted upon. But how?

Marian had sworn that she would never marry again. Her earlier venture upon the matrimonial quicksands had sickened her soul with the whole institution of married life. Yet her unsettled life since pulling herself out of matrimony by the roots had at times felt high worn and corroded. Her resolution thin and frail. Her struggles to find herself had been her a host of defeats and not only the most temporary and impermanent victories. Nothing was more horrible and untenable to her than this bleak thought of drifting on and on, getting older and less attractive, seeing youth and opportunities melting away under the blows of the hurrying hours.

Her quasi success at writing, on which she had banked so strongly, she knew now to have been a slim and snaring thread, born of deception, and incapable of rescuing her from the waves of hostile circumstances and pulling her up on the rocks of safety from want. In response to her frantic telegram, the editor of the Cliff Dweller had wired her a confirmation of her fears. The gossiping women on the veranda of the hotel had been right. She had been tricked into becoming an object of philanthropy. She loathed and despised herself for it; she could not forgive Meadows for his conduct, even though she knew it had been well meant.

And now what? Tossing and fretting amid a dark roomful of black misgivings, Marian tried to review the details of her association with Chalonier, and to give rational thought to his sudden declaration of love and proposal of marriage. Had she been able to see light ahead, her decision would have been quick—and negative. Had she been able to see her way clear to earn a decent living, she would have stuck with tenacity to her original resolution never even to consider marriage again.

Things shape themselves with an uncanny disregard for human desires, plans, resolutions, and policies. Impleachable events almost invariably determine human directions and destinies. Decisions are forced upon the wavering, unsettled, undecided minds. The winds of circumstances blow up and fill the flapping sails of beamed human crafts.

And Marian Winthrop did not foresee that her mind was to be made up by events on the threshold of which she was standing.

Sergeant-Major Under General French

Veteran of Eger War Who Lost Health on the Veldt Tells Experience.

Good Advice for All Who Have Indigestion or Stomach Disorders.

In his home at Wallegrave, N. S., no one is better known than Sgt.-Major Cross, late of the 4th Queen's Own Hussars. Speaking of the ill-effects of a campaign upon a man's constitution, the Sgt.-Major writes: "I served under General French during the late Boer war, in the capacity of Sgt.-Major. It was perhaps owing to a continued diet of bull beef, hard tack, and bad water, but at any rate my stomach entirely gave out. It was in such a state that I could eat nothing without the greatest suffering. The army doctors did not help me much, and since leaving the service I have been very miserable. Some few months ago a friend told me he had been a great sufferer from indigestion until he tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they cured him. I confess it was without much faith I bought a box, but the first dose made me feel better than I had been for a long time. Dr. Hamilton's Pills completely cured, and now I can eat everything and anything. I have recommended them to others and in every case the result has been similar to mine."

Quick, sure results attend the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They cure disorders of the stomach, correct indigestion, make you feel uplifted and strengthened. To renew or maintain health, Dr. Hamilton's Pills always prove a good prescription. 25c. per box, 60c. per dozen, $1.00, all dealers, or the Catabarbone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

May Bring Charge of High Treason Against Captain.

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—A charge of high treason may be lodged against the captain of the British ship Lowther, brought into Esquimaut by the cruiser Rainbow and suspected of selling coal to German warships on the Pacific.

The Naval Service Department was notified to-day of the seizure and a prize court will be held at Victoria. The ship and cargo may both be confiscated, as well as the captain being prosecuted.

The ship took on a cargo of coal at Rockhampton, an American Atlantic port, and sailed around the Atlantic through the Straits of Magellan, ostensibly bound for Australia. She was found by a British cruiser off California, and the captain was unable to account satisfactorily for his actions and how the coal cargo was much smaller than shown by the ship's papers.

Fishery Reports.

From W. Paul (Great Burin to Port aux Bras).—The total catch is 34,640 qts., and for last week 3055. The 50 dories and skiffs fishing, got 200 qts. 20 boats 200, and 8 bankers, 2,655. Prospects are very poor owing to the want of bait and stormy weather hindering operations. Squid is scarce and no herring is obtainable. The voyage for the banking fleet is practically over and the vessels are all returning from the last trip.

The Listener.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Swash."

Another political campaign draws to a thunderous and slightly frost-bitten close, it is fitting that we should withdraw our attention for a few brief minutes from the silver-tongued and leather-lunged orator and consider the heroism of the listener. The listener never gets any press notices. He never reaps the rewards of victory after a hard campaign, and the never by any chance is embalmed in fame to be mentioned by admiring schoolboys a hundred years hence. Yet where would the orator be if it were not for the listener? Where would our whirlwind campaigns be if it were not for the patient, silent man who sits down on a hard bench in a draft night after night and allows himself to be talked at by squads and regiments of speakers?

If the listener should decline to come out, oratory would suffer a great decline and a political campaign would resemble a ward caucus of Egyptian mummies in an African desert.

The listener is a man of great heroism. Almost any man can go to war and face the bullets of an enraged enemy, but it takes a man of iron nerve to sit for two hours while a few inexperienced orators are clanking for adjectives and then to applaud heartily when the speaker of the evening comes forward with about ninety minutes of pandemonium carefully concealed in his larynx. There are men who have listened to a hundred political speeches in a single campaign, and yet do not give these men medals. We do not even give them pensions when they die.

The listeners of America should rise as one man and demand their rights. When a man has listened to fifty speeches, he should be entitled to a county office. When he has listened to one hundred speeches, he should be sent to congress. When he has absorbed a thousand speeches and has sustained rheumatism, chilblains and a frost-bitten ear while soaking in patriotic doctrine, he should be eligible to the presidency. There is no reason why we should elect a man to public office for making the same speech a thousand times while we have among us patriots who have listened to a thousand different avalanche of wisdom and may possibly have accumulated an idea from each speech.

C. L. B. Officers.

A meeting of "A Company" of the C. L. B., was held at the Armory last night, to elect officers to fill the vacancies caused by those who have enlisted in the first Newfoundland Regiment. Lieut. Winter presided and the election resulted as follows:—

- Chairman R. Chafe.
- Vice-Chairman W. Lever.
- Secretary F. Cornick.
- Committee.—N. Hunt, F. Warren, S. Warren, S. Downton, R. Field.

Advisers:—Sergt. Instructor F. Miles, Corpl. H. Peckham.

After the installation of the officers a hearty vote of thanks was passed to Lieut. Winter for conducting the meeting.

"There's a Reason"

why more and more people quit tea and coffee and use—

POSTUM

Once convinced that tea and coffee are actually harmful to health, few parents would give tea or coffee to their children, or drink it themselves.

What proof more convincing than the unnatural aches and pains that many tea and coffee drinkers suffer?

What proof more conclusive than the scores of expert medical and scientific opinions against tea and coffee?

Brain, Stomach, Heart, Liver and Kidneys are the first organs to be affected. Sometimes it shows in headache; often in nervousness, indigestion or heart disturbance; frequently in biliousness or disturbed vision.

If you are in doubt, try this test—

Stop both tea and coffee ten days and use POSTUM

This pure food-drink made of prime wheat and a small per cent of wholesome molasses, has a delightful, snappy flavour and is absolutely pure and free from the tea-and-coffee-drug, caffeine, or any other harmful ingredient.

Postum comes in two forms:—

Regular Postum—must be boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—needs no boiling. A teaspoonful of the soluble powder stirred in a cup of hot water makes a delightful beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Grocers everywhere sell both kinds, and the cost per cup is about the same.

"Drags the Gypsy"

Olis Turner's great romance, "Drags the Gypsy" is one of the pictures shown at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day. This drama is produced by the Rex Photo-play company the scenery and acting is a perfect illustration and readers of Turner will be delighted with this picture.

"The Head Hunters" is a two reel war picture, one of the good kind that the Bison Biograph Company are noted for producing. It has plenty of life and vivacity and excellent scenic effects.

The comedy portion is sustained by two very clever comedies. "The Smuggled Laces" and "Will Power," the battle for mastery of will power between father and daughter is a very amusing picture, and one the Crescent patrons will enjoy.

The song chosen by the popular tenor, Mr. Knights, for to-night is "Sit Down You're Rocking the Boat." The usual extra picture at the Saturday matinee.

Ireland Content.

IT HAS TWELVE BATTALIONS.

London, October 23.—Much satisfaction exists in Ireland that John Redmond's request for official recognition of the Irish brigade has been granted.

The 16th Division of the new army will consist of twelve purely Irish battalions, with headquarters at Mallock, County Cork. The commander, Lieut.-General Sir Lawrence Worthington Parsons, formerly held the Irish Command and was present at the relief of Ladysmith.

Here and There.

CLEMENTINE LOADING.—The brig. Clementine is loading fish at A. Goodridge and Sons for Oporto.

POLICE CIRCLES QUIET.—Matters were very quiet in police circles last night and not a single arrest was made.

ROSINA ARRIVES.—The barq. Rosina, Capt. Sinclair, arrived in port last midnight after a passage of 40 days from Pernambuco.

ALLAN BOAT DETAINED.—The Allan Liner Carthaginian was supposed to sail for Halifax and Philadelphia last evening but owing to the delay in the handling of freight she did not get away until to-day.

THE CLOSING GAME.—The final game of the last round of the inter-collegiate football series will be played at St. George's Field to-morrow afternoon between the Bishop Field and St. Bon's College teams.

SAILED FOR BARBADOS.—The schr. Ida M. Zinck, Capt. Zinck, sailed to-day for Barbadoes, taking 1,196 quintals of codfish, 16 tierces of salmon, 33 barrels of herring, 184 barrels of herring, and 1 keg of sounds, shipped by Alan Goodridge and Sons.

Back From Labrador.

The following schooners reached the home ports from the northern fishery yesterday:—

At Lewisporte—Mary, R. H. King, master, with 350 qts.; Icauda, E. Evans, 200; and Eva M. F. H. Northcote, 70; all from the French Shore.

At Conception—P. O. Driscoll, 70 qts., from Labrador.

At Catalina—Lego, J. Johnston, 150 Battle Harbor; Lily A. W., 450, from Northern Labrador.

Practically all the vessels are now home from the northward.

Fall Novels.

Jack London writes, pen dipped in gore, of scraps aboard the "Elsinore." The Superman is there on deck, with a catiffa climbing on his neck, and decks and bulwarks are awash with forty kinds of blood, 'gosh, "Sea Wolf" warmed and dished again. Oh, Jack, your elbow's getting tired; one cannot always be inspired! "The Auction Block," by Rex E. Beach, is more than just a scream—a screech. Rex here forsakes the Arctic strand, the snowy pass and frozen land, and takes our social scheme apart, and shows it has no brain or heart; he writes of soaks and libertines, and sports who "live in their machines," and draws a truly frightful sketch of maid for sale to wealthy wretch. And ever as we read we think, "This book is surely on the blink, and when our reading it has ceased, we'll taste it for six months at least. Oh, Rex can write such corking tales of heroes lost in Arctic gales, of great things done by rugged men—why does he prostitute his pen, and write the twaddle, rank and raw? There surely ought to be a law." Alas, how far a man must look before he'll find a first class book!

Many of the new laces are embroidered with gold and colored threads.

The German War Machine.

Kaiser Wilhelm's apparent faith in the strength of Germany's battle arm in the contest with three mighty nations, is in no small degree founded upon the wonderful German military system, the like of which the world has never seen before.

On January 1st of the year of his twentieth birthday every male German citizen must report to the military head of his district. If not excused because of some physical defect he serves two years in the infantry or three years in the cavalry or artillery. For his services he receives a small compensation, hardly more than pocket money. Then he is transferred to the first reserve, which requires that he serve a month or two each year for a period of five years. The next five years are served in the Landwehr, and he is required to drill at the order of the military authorities. From the first class of the Landwehr the German soldier graduates into the second class, where he remains until he is thirty-nine. At that age he becomes a part of the Landsturm, to be called out only in the event of great national need. At the age of forty-five his military service ends.

The German standing army consists of about 600,000 men, and the first reserve about 1,500,000. The Landwehr totals 2,200,000, and the Landsturm brings the grand total to more than 6,000,000.

This Date in History.

OCTOBER 30.
New Moon—19th
Days Past—302 To Come—62
GEORGE II. born 1683. He succeeded to the throne in 1727 and was the last English King to appear on the battle field. During his reign the Battle of Plassey won India for the English arms and in 1759 Wolfe added Canada to the British Empire.
R. B. SHERIDAN born 1751. The greatest British comic dramatist of modern times. In 1780 he entered Parliament and acquired a great reputation for oratory.
GAMBETTA born 1838. A French statesman who came into great prominence during the siege of Paris, 1870. YEOMAN OF THE GUARD formed 1485. Commonly called "Beef-eaters"—a body of Foot Guards established in the reign of Henry VIII for the protection of the Royal Person. These soldiers are now few in number, and their duties are those of attendants at the Tower and appearing in full dress upon ceremonial State occasions. They still wear the style of dress of the Tudor period.
THE DADDY OF THEM ALL. There's a hearty, stout old party lives beyond the northern sea. About as rough, about as tough as a party well can be. Strong nerved, well preserved, and handy with his hands. With muscle for a muscle to enforce what he commands. He's big and bold, a trifle old, his habit somewhat full; Recording fame inscribes his name as Old John Bull. Rough John, tough John, bluff John Bull. The man that carries the burden, the man that has the pull; His heart is full of kindness, with never a drop of gall. For Old John Bull is the daddy of them all.
There's many a lad to call him dad and take the old man's part. To swell his might, to share his fight and cheer his loving heart. To bear his flag from cliff to crag and thunder on the foe; Ten thousand sons to man his guns when the echoing bugles blow. From every land, from every stand they come at the father's call. For Old John Bull is the daddy of them all. Rough John, tough John, bluff John Bull. With a heap of human nature underneath his scanty wool; He's the stoutest and the heartiest cart on all this earthly ball. For Old John Bull is the daddy of them all.

The waves that roll from pole to pole still bear him on his way. From the purple gleams of morning's beams to the golden close of day; The heaving seas, the freshening breeze fill on his freighted ships The roar that fills the startled hills leaps from his cannons' lips; The flags that fly to the bending sky are with his glory full. They tell the fame and spell the name of Old John Bull. Rough John, tough John, bluff John Bull. With both feet getting there and both hands full; Where the march of Empire thunders his martial footsteps fall. For Old John Bull is the daddy of them all.

Man Incurable.
AS RESULT OF ACCIDENT.
Last evening the ambulance conveyed from the General Hospital to the railway station a man named Michael Hooper, belonging to Campbellton, Notre Dame Bay, who was sent home by the express, incurable. The man's permanent disablement is attributed to an accident that he met with in June last when a piece of machinery, which was being put on board the s.s. Clyde at Lewisporte, fell on him. He was seriously hurt internally and brought to hospital for treatment. Paralysis of the stomach set in and a cure could not be made of the patient.

The Frog Man.
OFFERS PURSE OF SILVER.
The marvelous frog man will hold a contest Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday night at each performance to any man his own height, who will perform a very simple trick which he himself will do first; there is no catch in this, and the trick is easy; already he has a number of names. The full act will be given at each performance, so the people in the stores will have a chance to see it. There will be a great elog dancing act to-night and Serpentello will give the Swing of Death for the children at the matinee, while the frog man will dance for them his funny scare crow dance, and lots of splendid pictures. There is booked a great Irish comedy act, Kelly and Mack, the boys from the Emerald Isle.

LOOK, YOUNG MAN!—If you anticipate getting a good Overcoat for the Winter, let us show you the class of work we are making. Compare the goods, quality of work and prices with any other make, then decide for yourself. Our D. B.'s are all the rage, from $18 to $28, and right up to the minute in style.
