THE EVENING TIMES, ST. JOHN, N. B., SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1906

THE EVENING TIMES.

ST. JOHN, N. B., SEPT. 29, 1906. The St. John Evening Times is published at 77 and 79 Canterbury Street, every evening (Sunday excepted) by the St. John Times Printing & Publishing Co., Ltd. A company incorporated under the Joint Stock Companies Act.

Circulation of the Times.

Table showing circulation statistics for the week ending Sept. 22nd, 1906. Includes daily figures for Monday through Saturday, a total of 42,761, and a daily average of 7,126. Also shows average daily sworn circulation for the first six months of 1906 at 6,791.

IMPORTANT NOTICE. The Circulation Department Telephone No. 15. Complaints of non-delivery of papers, change of address, and all circulation matters should be referred to THE CIRCULATION MANAGER. Call up No. 15.

A VITAL QUESTION

On Tuesday afternoon next the board of trade will meet to discuss the following resolution: "Whereas the Transportation Committee's report recommends that St. John be made one of the free ports of the Dominion, and also states, 'our commissioners are convinced, that with the increasing volume of traffic flowing through the port of St. John, increased accommodations and facilities are urgently required.'"

PROMPT ACTION NEEDED

In reply to criticisms made, the members of the civic board of works contend that they have been misled with regard to the west side dredging. They were assured by Mr. Mayes that the crib-site would be completed in ample time. They were assured by their own director that the city dredge would complete the work at the other berths in ample time.

cribs must be got away from their present position in front of one of the present Sand Point berths. This is imperative, for that berth must be dredged, along with three others, the city dredge not having proved equal to its task in that quarter. It is also imperative that the crib be sunk in the place assigned for them, in order that Union street may be made available for traffic, whether the new steamship berth can be completed or not.

Facing the situation the board has decided to lay the whole matter before the minister of public works. This is the first step. They want his co-operation. If they have to buy a dredge they want to buy a good one, with the assurance that the government will ultimately take it off their hands. But they do not wish to take so expensive a step if there is any other way out of the difficulty.

It is a decided in the end to secure a dredge, doubtless a good one will be sought, and not an old one that cannot remove hard pan at the required depth in this harbor. It is unfortunate that there should be any difference of opinion regarding the site of the cribs. At the board meeting yesterday it was stated on the authority of Mr. Clark and Mr. Shewen that a considerable stretch must be dredged four feet deeper, several other places also deepened, and a boulder removed.

LET US HAVE THE TEST

"St. John is our port. . . If the government desire it we will no doubt have to call at Halifax with the mails and go to St. John afterwards." This statement, made by Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, presents the case in a nutshell. The Empire steamers will go to Halifax, if they must, because the government desire it.

Mayor McClellan of New York has declared that he will not vote for Hearst, and that he is unalterably opposed to Tammany Leader Murphy and all he stands for. The McClellan wing of the Democratic party will therefore support Hughes. There is a war in Tammany, and James J. Martin has resigned from the executive because he cannot endorse Hearst. Not a New York paper except his own will support Hearst. The fight now on will be one of the most bitter in the annals of the politics of the state.

BEST IMMIGRATION FIELD

The British Isles are the best immigrant-seeking field for us, in the opinion of the Minister of the Interior, Hon. Mr. Oliver, after a visit to Europe. The French are so well satisfied at home that they will not emigrate; while in Germany and Austria-Hungary legislation and public policy are against us. To Belgium and Holland we may look for some candidate-citizens in the near future, because of the very crowded conditions there; and the Scandinavians will continue to seek congenial homes in our fertile land swept by a bracing air.

IN LIGHTER VEIN

Gent-Walter, I ordered duck and green peas; you seem to have forgotten the duck. Walter-It's behind the left-hand green pea, sir.-Scraps. The Visitor-Don't you think your oldest brother is rather young to be a physician, Johnny? Little Johnny-Oh, he ain't a real grown-up physician yet. I guess he only doctors children so as to get some practice.

Redd-I understand it takes more to keep that automobile of yours than it originally cost. New York, Aug. 29-One of the hits in Greene-That's right. "Well, I don't want anything that takes more money to keep than it does to get." "Yes, you've got a wife, haven't you?"-Yonkers Statesman.

In some parts of the west no time is lost in the process of "giving in marriage." A couple once came before the justice of the peace. "Link," he said. They joined hands. "Have him" (to the woman). "Yes!" "Have her" (to the man). "Yes!" "Married! Two dollars."-Lippinott's

The multi-millionaire was very considerate of the strange young man's welfare. "Ah! my poor brother," he said in silky tones, "are you serving mammon?" "No, sir," replied the young man, as he reached in his pocket. "I am serving subpoenas."

With a wild leap the multi-millionaire reached his motor car and vanished toward the State . . . NOT PROFITABLE. "They issued a hundred and fifty wedding invitations." "Did they get many valuable presents?" "No, they barely made expenses."-Illustrated . . . UNDERSTOOD HIS OBJECTION. Gigg-Have you heard my daughter sing? Wiggs-No, I haven't had the pleasure. Gigg-Well, come out and sit on our porch some evening. Wiggs (who dislikes amateur singing) "I'm afraid I can't." Gigg-Oh, yes, you can. My daughter is in Paris.

TOO SWEET FOR SATAN. "You reckon de politicians gone ter heaven?" "I reckon dey does--less dey runs so fast de devil hoes' can't catch 'em!"-Atlanta Constitution.

ON THE INTERURBAN LINE.

It was 11:30 p. m. The railway ticket office at the county seat was called up over the telephone by somebody at Farmer Yipsley's house, fourteen miles away. "Hello!" said the agent. "Hello!" answered a voice. "I want to know . . ."

"Who is it?" "This is Mr. Hewkitt." "Where are you?" "Doesn't make any difference where I am. I want to know if the 12 o'clock train for Bigtown is on time." "I'll find out in a minute. Hold the wire."

"I ain't holdin' Maria!" exclaimed the voice indignantly. "And it wouldn't be any of your blamed business if I was!"-Chicago Tribune.

McGowan-Brown

A pretty wedding took place on Wednesday, the 28th inst., at the residence of B. W. Brown, sr., Little Lepreux, when his daughter, Cecelia M., was united to John E. McGowan by the Rev. F. W. Bacon, pastor of St. Ann and Trinity churches, in the presence of a number of relatives. The bride was attended by her youngest sister, Miss Elsie. Both were being comelyly attired in white, carrying bouquets of asters and sweet peas, respectively. The groom was supported by his cousin, Hampton McGowan. After the ceremony all did ample justice to a sumptuous repast. The bride received many beautiful presents. Mr. and Mrs. McGowan will take up their abode at Mac's Bay for the present.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE

A pleasant speaker is worthy of attention and when the theme corresponds to the talents of the lecturer it is doubly worth hearing. Such an event will transpire at the free lecture on Christian Science of Edmund Young, C. S. B., of Chicago, in the Opera House on Thursday evening, October 4th.

The strength of a grindstone appears from recent tests to vary widely with the degree of its wetness or dryness, stones that are dry showing tensile strength of from 146 to 186 pounds per square inch, but after soaking over night breaking under stresses of 80 to 116 pounds per square inch.

THE RAISIN CROP IS THREATENED

Cool Weather Retards Drying, While Cloudiness Makes Growers Uneasy.

Cool weather has retarded the drying of raisins on the trays, according to advice received from Fresno, California, Wednesday. The cool period and occasional cloudiness have also retarded the ripening of the grapes. Growers are apprehensive as to rain, and in some instances the growers have gone so far as to stack their trays. Ten days more of good weather will make a difference of 100 per cent in the crop. Owing to the large use of paper trays in some sections rain would be particularly disastrous at this time. The report further says: "Estimates of the raisin crop remain at wide variance, according to the point of view. Several growers assert that the crop will exceed that of last year by hundreds of tons. They declare that the crop is developing better than expected a few weeks ago, and all their advice are one way. Not one grower in ten, they assert, will say when questioned that his crop is smaller than last year. Taking this as a basis, they estimate the crop at from 6,000 to 6,500 tons. The bumper crop of 1905 averaged 5000 tons. In contrast to this is the view of County Horticultural Commissioner Schell, whose statement some time ago stated that the crop would be little more than 3,500 tons aroused sarcasm on the part of the growers. With the benefit of later observations in different parts of the country, Mr. Schell retracts that he is right. He says that shipments at the end of the season will prove that he is a good grower, and that he will have the last laugh. Meantime the main market is steady and has an upward look."

THE EPIC OF TWO SQUIRELS

By NEWELL DWIGHT HILLS.

For a hundred years men have gone to the ant and the honey bee for enlightenment toward industry, prudence and foresight for the future.

The squirrel, however, has been almost entirely overlooked in the list of animals which have been studied by man.

They are young, were recently married and have just set up housekeeping. Their cottage is a large cavity in a stone wall, and is about twelve inches in diameter.

Having welcomed the morning and awakened me with a vivacious conversation at daybreak, with instant energy toward industry, prudence and foresight for the future.

Thus far, during the last two weeks of December and January about two bushels of cones. From time to time they take brief intervals for play.

A FALLER SQUIRREL. But if some squirrels make of life an epic and a victory, other squirrels, like men, fall from grace.

Who knows whether to congratulate or send messages of sympathy to the rich young man carrying pockets full of money to college these September days?

It all came about after this fashion: A red fox into the park and made the college students the keepers of the squirrels.

Harry C. Plummer, of the New York Evening Telegram staff, accompanied by his mother, arrived in the city on the steamer Cabin Ainslie yesterday on a holiday trip.

Pete the Peddler or A Boy's Start in Life

CHAPTER VII

Pete found the jail a vile and unclean place. Most county jails are the tramp prisoners had been arrested for tramping, begging and stealing, and they were a hard lot. They were all in one big room together, and they played cards or other games all day long, and their talk was such as no boy should hear. One of the prisoners, and one who was swearing the loudest, saw the look of disgust on the boy's face on the next day after he had been locked up, and beckoning him into a corner said: "We are a tough crowd in here, wommy, and I'm sorry you are with us. That fool of a constable ought to be kicked for having you locked up. Of course, you were never in jail before?"

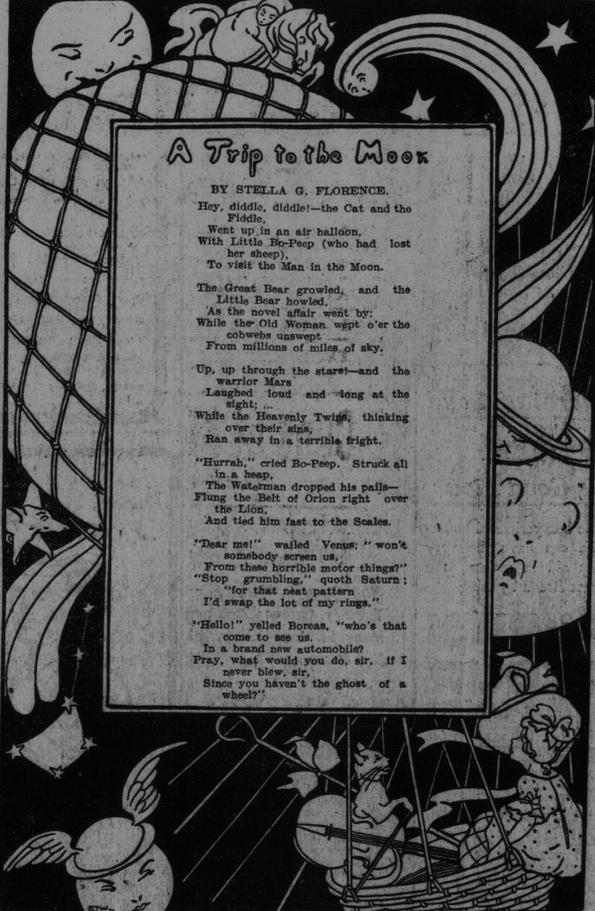

"I never hardly heard of one," replied Pete. "It's little good they are. As for us tramps, we had rather be here than not. I have been tramping for the last three months, and my feet are sore and I need a rest. Two or three weeks in here will do me good. It's a sort of holiday for all of us, but I can see you feel ashamed of ever being here. Tell me your story." Pete was glad to find some one to talk to. He told his story from the beginning, but he left out that part of it about the trunk. He said that Miser Mims had helped him because he had taken a liking to him. When he had finished the tramp said: "You may be rather young to take the road as a peddler, but let me tell you that many a rich man has got his start in life that way. You get to know the value of money, you are buying and selling, and you learn all about goods, you travel around and you get to know human nature. I think it is a good thing for you to follow, and if you use the old man back of you all right he will see that you make a success of it. I was not always a tramp, and the same can be said of all the others you see around you. I have earned my four and five dollars a day as a brick-layer, and I'd be doing it now if it wasn't for whisky."

MISS BIRD'S JOKE

WHY SHOULD THEY? A king who began on his reign Exclaimed with a feeling of pain, "Though I'm legally heir No one seems to care That I haven't been born with a crown."

drinking habit gets fastened on a man he's bound to go to the dogs, I hate myself for it, but I can't quit. I shall be sober as long as I am here, because no drink is allowed in jail, but the day I get out I shall fill up at the first saloon. Let the whole thing alone, boy. Don't even touch beer." "I never shall." "Drink has made a fool of me a hundred times over, and three or four times it has nearly cost me my life. Let me tell you what happened to me about two years ago, and it wasn't so far away from this spot. A farmer named Cummerford hired me to build the brick walls of a smoke house. He was to give me three dollars a day and board."

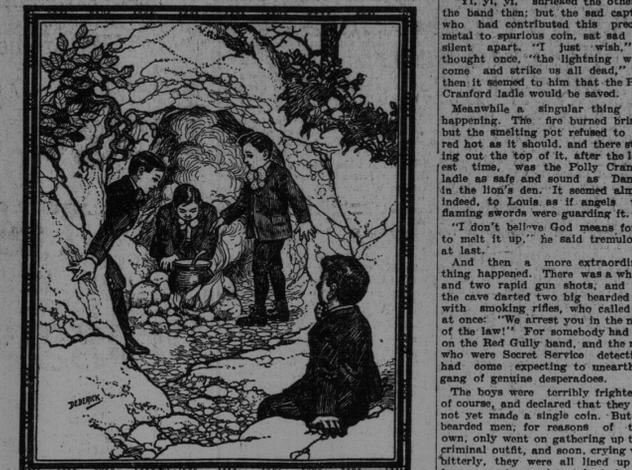

A Trip to the Moon

BY STELLA G. FLORENCE. Hey, diddle, diddle—the Cat and the Fiddle, Went up in an air balloon, With Little Bo-Peep (who had lost her sheep), To visit the Man in the Moon. The Great Bear growled, and the Little Bear howled, As the novel affair went by: While the Old Woman went o'er the cobwebs unawed, From millions of miles of sky. Up, up through the stars—and the warrior Mars Laughed loud and long at the sight; While the Heavenly Twins, thinking over their heads, Ran away in a terrible fright. "Hurrah," cried Bo-Peep. Struck all to his dying day, The Waterman dropped his pen— Flung the Belt of Orion right over the Lion; And tied him fast to the Scales. "Dear me!" wailed Venus; "won't somebody screen us, From these horrible motor things?" "Stop grumbling," quoth Saturn; "for that neat pattern I'd swap the lot of my rings."

"Indeed, sir, that's slightly perplexing," politely. The Cat said, by way of replying: "Though I'm rather inclined to think we should find Some method or other of flying." Up, higher and higher! Sol paused to admire, While Mercury followed their trail; And the Comet declared that she felt She shook to the tip of her tail. "Let's have a drink," said the Cat, with a wink, As the Dipper before them lay; So they drank all they could (and voted it good), Of cream from the Milky Way. Now 'twas growing dark, and the Dogstar's bark Was the only audible sound— When whom should they meet, on a Nightmare diet, But for the Sandman, earthward bound. "What, riding on that!" exclaimed the Cat, "You must be insane," said Bo-Peep. But the Sandman sed—"I'll be late," he said, "Our questions will have to keep."

THE "RED GULLY" COUNTERFEITERS.

To imitate anything in spurious materials, you know, is counterfeiting; and when it is money you are imitating you are committing a crime against the Government of the land. And this crime is punishable with imprisonment. Louis and Ernest were Southern boys who had read some thrilling stories of money counterfeiters, and at last they got the idea that if they could make five and ten cent pieces, too, they also would get rich. cause each boy was to bring a family spoon to be melted up and poured into the molds the two captains of the band had made, with genuine coins for the print. But after a week nobody had the courage to steal a dear family spoon for this wicked purpose. Indeed, it looked as if the business of counterfeiting would be a failure for want of the proper amount of badness to commit it through, when one of the captains had a brilliant idea. "Let's draw straws to see who'll do it first," he said. But as ill luck

A BRISK FIRE WAS SOON CRACKLING UNDER THE SMELTING POT, AND INTO THIS THE HOLY SOUP LADLE WAS DROPPED. If they had been older they would have known better. But they were only ten years old, and up to this time they had read the wrong sort of books. So now they thought it would really be a glorious thing to start a band of illicit money makers, and choosing a little cave, in a huge crevice of red clay, as the proper place for such an enterprise, they once called themselves the Red Gully Counterfeiters. In a day or two two other boys joined the band, whose password was to be Silver Spoons. This was be-

All the people in the little town of Nullepart were very industrious; they attended strictly to business and went about with their heads down, thinking what they were doing or what they were going to do next. They never had any time for foolishness, and even the love-making among the young people was brief and business-like. One day a strange man came into the town and wished to hire a large loft over an Ironmonger's shop. "What do you want it for?" said the Ironmonger. "I wish it for a studio. I am an artist, my name is Faniente." The Ironmonger thought a moment. The name had a nice foreign sound, and he might be a very famous man in his own country. Then, too, the use of the Ironmaster's loft would bring him something (provided the artist had any money) and people coming to buy pictures might want things out of the iron shop. It would bring trade. So the Ironmonger drove a good bargain with the artist, and Faniente agreed that if he failed to pay the rent the picture he intended to paint would become the property of the Ironmonger. The next day the artist arrived with his big easel, a roll of canvas and a stretcher, also some paints and brushes. Everything was taken into the loft, and Faniente looked the door to that no one should disturb him at his work. Sometimes the Ironmonger downstairs would hear him humming and hammering and sawing and driving nails, but nobody ever got even the tiniest peep at the work that was going on. "Seems to me you are making a great noise over your picture," said the Ironmonger, as the Artist came out one afternoon. "Faniente smiled, a still smile: "I'm letting in a skylight to work by." And he locked the door tightly—as he always did at the loft, where they were working. The days and weeks went on, and the hammering had ceased. Faniente was evidently hard at work on his picture. He came early, he stayed late. Finally one day an enormous gift frame arrived and Faniente took it up the stairs himself. And all this time the Ironmonger

"I HAVE BEEN EVERY DAY TO SEE IT. IT WAS NEVER TWICE THE SAME."

had received nothing for the rent. "Well," he said to his foreman, "I get the picture anyway, and if it fits the big frame will just about cover one of the walls of my dining room. So he was very patient. Indeed he now began to think it would be better to have the picture than the rent. At last the Artist announced that his picture was finished and he was on exhibition. The price of admission was rather high, but the curiosity of the people was excited and they came in crowds—the townspeople first, then people from the country and from faraway cities, for the fame of the mysterious picture had traveled abroad. The people crowded up the narrow stair and found a small space roped off at the end of the loft, where they must stand; the picture was hung at the farther end, with the big gift frame around it, and while all the rest of the loft was dim and obscure, the picture glowed with a wonderful light, and the people all said: "Oh! when they first looked upon it, and then they said nothing more. They just stared with their mouths open. It was a landscape, and the curious who beheld it first saw some distant mountains, with soft clouds flecking them with purple shadows. Then a stretch of meadow land, a gentle slope to the bank of a stream that wound and rippled its blue length through the meadow. In the foreground stood a grand old oak tree, and a red roof or two nestled behind it. The people stood spell-bound. "How surely is a great artist!" they all said, and they bowed low to Faniente, who returned the salute, smiling his still smile. "The clouds actually seem to move!" said one, "and when a bee passed in front of the canvas, I could almost have sworn that it was a bird flying in the distance." When each had gazed his fill, he hustled back to his work, to make up the lost time. Every day came crowds, and money flowed into the Artist's pocket, but still the Ironmonger did not receive his rent. That did not trouble him, however, for a picture like that would bring trade and he already felt himself growing rich and prosperous. The out-of-town people hung around the little tavern of Nullepart, and talked of nothing but the picture. "Wonderful!" they exclaimed. "The light is marvellous." "I thought his mountains a little too purple," said one. "Purple?" said another, "they were almost black to me. It is a marvellous picture of a thunderstorm."

THE SEA URCHIN.

The Sea Urchin is a strange animal. It has four thousand spines, two thousand suckers and five hundred plates arranged in radiating zones so that every alternate plate is perforated for the passage of the suckers. It moves easily over the rocks, the stones acting like creepers on a wall. The Sea Urchin has only five teeth supported by thirty-five muscles. When worn of they fall out, but grow rapidly again. The mouth of his urchin is called Aristotle's Lantern. The Sea Urchin lives in the sea near the rocky banks. For many days the poor Urchin worked and struggled to dislodge himself, but without success. One day when almost exhausted he heard a strange noise, a scratching and rattling of plates, and he saw the Key Hole Urchin. It was only a few moments before the poor prisoner was released from his perilous position. The Key Hole Urchin had unlocked the spines that had become attached to the rocks. The monstrous Sea Urchin ever afterward remained devotedly united with his deliverer.

THE EVENING TIMES, ST. JOHN, N. B., SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1906.

THE IMPORTANCE OF HARMONY

By GRAHAM HOOD.

The very attempt to describe the importance of harmony as a factor in our lives is in itself almost an impossibility.

The more we attempt to compare life with a piece of man-made mechanism the more perfect that comparison becomes.

Take, for example, a great manufacturing concern, or any one of the big mercantile enterprises, and try to run it without harmony.

The enjoyment of any social event is impossible unless there is a pretty definite and harmonious agreement between those who are directing it.

It is perhaps in the domestic life, however, that harmony is most necessary, for there is nothing that is more unpleasant than a home that is at the mercy of every discordant element.

To go from the noisy, bustling, active world without taking any rest and sympathy are the reigning influences in some an inspiration.

In such a home there can be no recreation of energy, and it is not strange that husbands, who are subjected to such influences every time they appear beneath their own roof finally get into the habit of seeking their rest and pleasure elsewhere.

PLUMS AND PEARS ARE PLENTIFUL

Some of the Fruit Growers Shipping a Ton a Day.

CORNWALLIS, Sept. 27—The first frost of the season occurred last Friday night.

Those who predicted small crops of plums and pears early in the season must be surprised at the large quantities of both kinds of fruit that are being placed on the market.

English Estates, of Hillcrest Orchard, is shipping plums to the extent of about one ton per day. They are ranging in price from one and a half to four dollars per bushel.

COUNTRY MARKET

The country market is well stocked this morning; meat, vegetables, game and poultry being in abundance.

The prices of fowl are much the same as last week, and range from 75c to $1.25. The supply of game is still plentiful, but there is but little change in the figures.

Representatives of 200,000 organized workmen in the metal industry of the United States met in convention in Chicago recently to discuss the question of settling a date for the inauguration of an eight-hour day.

Dr. and Miss Mott returned from Halifax Friday afternoon. S. S. Bonnell, inspector of agencies for the Northern Life Insurance Company, has gone to Halifax and other points in Nova Scotia.

DO YOU KEEP HOUSE?

On page 11 of this issue of the Times—second to the last—almost a whole page is devoted to home-folks, men and women, sons and daughters, who love to see the home looking neat and cozy. It is a kind of direct information on the furnishings question, what the goods are and how much they cost. Every room in the house is dealt with in the array of new winter fittings, being a valuable price list for everybody, particularly newly-married couples to whom the matter of furnishings is highly important. Manchester Robertson Allison, Ltd., who sign this statement on page 11, are prepared to confer with household folks at any time. Men well versed in furniture qualities, bed-dressing, floor coverings, table linens, artistic effects and so forth, will furnish estimates, measure apartments, and suggest color schemes if asked to do so, thus taking away much of the worry of shopping of this sort. Read the big advt. on page 11, it's for you!

AT THE OPERA HOUSE

"Human Hearts," a human interest play containing as much dramatic material as any four average plays, was given its first presentation in St. John before a large audience in the Open House last night. The company presenting "Human Hearts" is much better than the average company visiting St. John. Some of its members do really good work, notably Frank J. Woods, as Tom Logan, the wronged hero, who is made to suffer bitterly for the misdeeds of another, James O'Neill, as Frederick Armadale, is perhaps a little monotonous in the heavy role, but nevertheless does effective work. W. J. Sully, as Jenkisson, a tramp, has a part that offers many opportunities, all of which he takes full advantage. Edward Knox, as Moses Jones, and W. J. Thorne, as Jimmy Logan, also do good work. Of the ladies, Miss Francis scores as Jeannette, Miss Gibney was a pearl and winsome beauty, while Mrs. Maurice won the sympathy of all by her clever conception of the poor blind mother. The interesting drawing drama to finish, even though it is made in spots and its plot is not new. Still it tells an engrossing story and holds the close attention of the audience. Some of the characters are distinct types, while the others have no particular personality. "Human Hearts" will be repeated this evening.

FUND IS GROWING

The committee in charge of the arrangements in connection with the new building of the Natural History Society of New Brunswick met last evening, and the society's treasurer announced that the total contributions to the "building fund," which was started in 1897, had been as follows:
