ROME-WARD DRIFT OF ANGLICAN CHURCH Dr. Van Allen Says It is All Rot For Many Years the Cry Has Been Heard—Clergymen Frequently Change in Their Belief.

BOSTON, June 6.—Rev. Dr. William H. Van Allen, rector of the Church of the Advent (Episcopal) of this city, in a sermon delivered last night, has given his opinion of the reported "Rome-ward drift" in the Anglican Church. It was recently stated in American and Canadian newspapers, including the Star, that a number of the clergy had gone to the Roman Catholic Church because of an amendment to one of the canons, under which Protestant ministers have occupied certain Episcopal pulpits. The truth of the matter is that sixteen priests, nearly all members of the Order of the Companions of the Holy Saviour, with headquarters in Philadelphia, resenting the action of the Episcopal bishops in that diocese, have gone to the Church of Rome. The head of the seceders was Rev. Fr. McGarvey, superior of the Order, a member of some rate. The statement of Rev. Dr. Van Allen is as follows:

The newspapers have announced the recent renunciation of their Orders by several of our clergy, and their consequent admission into the Roman Church. I should not comment upon these "conversions" except that they are alleged to be evidence of a "Rome-ward drift." That allegation has been heard for the last sixty years. But Rome is further removed from the Anglican Church because he is so plainly and unmistakably Catholic that he can no longer pretend to reconcile his "liberalism" with her affirmations, as evidence of a "drift towards Rome." The standing Committee passed upon the application of five priests in Roman Orders; the senior editor of the standard Catholic Dictionary, the Rev. Canon Morel, for sixteen years a priest distinguished in the Jesuit Order in Canada. As no advertisement such conversions, we think it rather bad form. But they go on continually. In other directions the Roman priests have succeeded from the Italian Mission in England, and have appealed to the "Old Dutch" for aid; and in France, Austria, and Italy, the exodus is surprisingly large. Of laymen trained in the Roman Communion, who do not mean to speak now, except to say that in a single Confirmation class recently in the diocese of New York laid hands upon eighty such. We do not proselytize among Roman Catholics, but when the Holy Spirit leads them to desire their rightful heritage, we welcome them gladly.

MUCH INTEREST IN THE KING'S VISIT TO RUSSIA Opinion Is That Edward Is Now up Against the Most Ticklish Job in His Career

ST. PETERSBURG, June 6.—The effects of King Edward's forthcoming visit to Russia are being keenly canvassed in political circles here, principally with regard to its relation to Germany, against which the broad trend of the King's policies is supposed to run. Serious politicians are of the opinion that King Edward's statement, made by both sides, and a public opinion here is ready to meet England more than half way. All political parties, except the extreme right, are in agreement upon an Anglo-Russian accord as natural to the completion of the chain of Franco-Russian ties.

PARIS, June 6.—Counsel for Madame Anna Gould has applied to the Civil Tribunal to grant her a delay in the payment of $2,000 to Madame Nemiloff, a singer, for a necklace purchased by her former husband, Count Boni de Castellane, pointing out that her income now is only $6,000 per month and that it would be impossible to pay such a large sum immediately. The court consented to the payment of $2,000 each six months to the singer. The court of appeals in February last confirmed the judgment of the lower court, ordering Count de Castellane and Madame Gould jointly to pay Vera Nemiloff, an opera singer, $2,000 for jewelry which the count purchased from her prior to the divorce of the countess from the count.

TWEEDMOUTH IS A NERVOUS WRECK Unable Even to Write Letter of Resignation Has Been Ordered to Give up All Work—May Never Return to House of Lords.

LONDON, June 6.—The veiled rumors of the physical and mental condition of Lord Tweedmouth, lord president of the council, which were held in political circles as partly accounting for his inaction in the correspondence with Emperor William with regard to the naval policy of Great Britain, while he was first lord of the Admiralty, are now referred to more openly as "the dark cloud that has swept down upon him while still in the prime of manhood," and it is announced that he has been ordered to take the rest cure in the country, owing to a sudden nervous breakdown. It is understood that Lord Tweedmouth is not likely again to be seen in the House of Lords and is even in a condition to write a letter of resignation.

CARDINAL LOGUE ON THE DIVORCE EVIL He Sees In It a Grave Menace to America Sanctity of the Home is Threatened—Steps Should Be Taken to Fight This Danger

NEW YORK, June 6.—On the eve of his departure for Europe which he will make on the Cunard line Campana tomorrow, Cardinal Logue, primate of Ireland, tonight issued a farewell statement to the American people. In his statement the cardinal re-emphasized a realization of his high conception of the American republic's mission, and expressed his conviction that the greatness of any country must be measured by the strength and purity of the home. Divorce disrupts the home and desecrates its sanctity. "If I may be allowed to draw a lesson from Mount Vernon, I should like to say to the American people that the greatest lesson cannot be distilled into the mind of the child if the home be not what it ought to be."

DON'T BE CARRIED AWAY BY TECHNICAL EDUCATION Principal Peterson Utters a Warning Against Too Serious Neglect of Intellectual Training

CHARLOTTETOWN, June 6.—The inaugural address of the Canadian Club here, was delivered yesterday by Principal Peterson of McGill University. He said the present day tendencies in education are too much in the direction of exercise of the mechanical element in education at the expense of the intellectual manual training should be retained so long as it is duly re-ordained with other disciplinary studies and does not lead to evasion of hard continuous work. Language study and poetry require more attention in the schools. Due attention to the right kind of poetry will tend to counteract any material and utilitarian tendencies that may wish to force themselves to undue prominence in our present day education. Poetry is the teacher's most potent aid for instilling wholesome thoughts in the minds of pupils. The next speaker will be Dr. Andrew McPhail, of Montreal.

COMMISSIONERS ALL OPPOSE DESTRUCTION OF NIAGARA

SIR ROBERT HART ON CHINA'S FUTURE He Sees Nothing in the Yellow Peril

LONDON, June 6.—The Daily Mail correspondent at Geneva telegraphs an interview he had with Sir Robert Hart, director general of Chinese customs, who arrived here yesterday on board the German liner Yoroka, bound for England. Sir Robert said he was traveling comfortably. His chief trouble was insomnia and he had not had a good night's sleep since November. Fearing a physical and mental breakdown, he had decided to take a rest and consult a physician. Sir Robert said he wanted two years' leave of absence but could only obtain one year. Whether he would return to China depended entirely upon his state of health.

OPIMUM TRAFFIC IN VANCOUVER M. MacKenzie King Fearlessly Blames the Dominion Government for Permitting It

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 6.—Mr. W. L. MacKenzie King, the commissioner sent by the Federal Government to inquire into the opium traffic here, tonight issued a stern warning against all comers. "And, it must be remembered," concluded Sir Robert, "consequences are included in the word 'permitted' which rabbits, once they get the start, you can't stop them."

SEVERAL REASONS WHY TAFT WILL NOT PLAY NEW YORK, June 6.—A special to the Times from Washington says: Secretary Taft generally spends his summers at Murray Bay, Canada, golfing and the newspapers have exploited his skill. Today Henry L. West, commissioner of the District of Columbia, who was in the city yesterday, went to Taft to attend the tournament at Toronto July 6 to 11. "Now, West," replied the Secretary, "there are several reasons why I can't agree to go. In the first place, if I should go and all the first prizes you tell about should be offered, it would be a shame for an invited guest of the Association to carry them off. In the second place, if I am able to negotiate certain arrangements at Chicago which I now expect to handle satisfactorily, I'll have no time to play golf this year. In the third place, if I don't make those little arrangements at Chicago, you fellows won't want me at your tournament anyhow. I'll be just a common or garden has-been!"

TWO INSENSIBLE FRONT RUNAWAY

One Thrown Out and Other Knocked Down

Runaway on West Side With Serious Consequences—

Boy's Lucky Escape

Two men lay insensible in front of W. O. Wilson's drug store, Union street, Capleton, about 10 o'clock yesterday afternoon, both victims of a runaway which created considerable excitement in the neighborhood.

The runaway horse was owned by H. G. Smith, Winslow street. Mr. Smith and his little boy were driving along St. John street, when suddenly the animal bolted in the direction of Union street. Just before arriving at Wilson's drug store, Smith was thrown from the wagon onto the road and lighting on his head, was rendered unconscious. His son had crawled under the seat and clung to the box of the wagon. At the time Mr. Smith was thrown out, the horse was running on Union street, North End, were returning from work. Waiters were running on Union street to catch a car, when suddenly the frenzied animal rushed upon him and before he could escape, his horse struck him with its shoulder and knocked him down. The old man was thrown with such force that his face sank deep into the dirt on the road and was badly cut in several places. He was rendered unconscious.

Witnesses hurried to the spot and soon carried the two insensible men into Wilson's drug store, where efforts were made to restore consciousness.

In the meantime the runaway horse dashed ahead, turning corners with the wagon on two wheels, while the child clung to its position. Upon reaching the stable on Winslow street, the animal turned in and the child jumped out uninjured.

Dr. Kenney was called into the drug store to attend the two men and in about five minutes Mr. Smith recovered and was able to leave. Mr. Waiters lay on the floor for some time. However after half an hour had elapsed he showed signs of coming around and was taken to his home on Victoria street.

Mr. Waiters, who is an old man, was badly cut on the forehead and his nose was split open. He also received a bad shaking up.

NO IMMIGRATION GRANT FOR ARMY

It is likely that the present provincial government will repudiate the present year the agreement which the late government had made with the officers of the Salvation Army concerning immigration. BULLER AND REID.

During the present week two men prominent in the march of Empire have passed away, Sir Hedworth Buller and Sir Robert C. Reid, one a general of war, the other a captain of industry. While Reid was by disposition quiet almost to taciturnity, Buller made the mistake of talking too much, and while the former was because of his silent disposition credited with perhaps more ability than he really possessed, the latter lost by his unfortunate loquacity the esteem of his people.

Sir Robert Reid was the man of the hour for Newfoundland. The ancient colony was in a state of stupor when he appeared on the scene and declared his intention of waking up the people. He prepared an agreement with the Whitehall Government, but the public took alarm and the next general election found the Bond opposition in the saddle. The intention was to start the Bond agreement, but when the deal with Reid was finally completed the people of Newfoundland learned with some surprise that the original proposals had been only slightly changed. The Reids, father and son, received something like five million acres, royalties on public service, and a five year franchise. In return a road-rail was built across the island, modern steamships were placed on various routes, a street railway was put in operation in St. John's, locks were built, immigration was encouraged, and the great industries were developed. Newfoundland prospered, and while the return was great to the promoters the advance made fully justified the contract. Sir Robert Reid's great work was a success equal to that which had attended his efforts elsewhere.

General Buller by the whirl of fortune held such a position that one failure or one false step was fatal. Nations do not look favorably upon soldiers who fall. Buller had command of the troops in Africa in what was far the most difficult movement of the campaign, the relief of Ladysmith. He had won the highest honors in previous campaigns, but in the mountains of Natal he found a situation such as might daunt the greatest general. And Buller who had some regard for the lives of his men, felt after successful repulses that the struggle was, if not hopeless, at least not worth the losses which victory would demand. He wrote to General White advising surrender. This grave error at once brought down on his head the wrath of the army. Buller was replaced by Roberts in the command in Africa. Later on his return to England he made the mistake of declaring that an organized conspiracy had been formed to depose him from the command at Aldershot, to which position he had been appointed. He also went fully into the Ladysmith despatch, and as the result of his address he was removed from Aldershot. Buller was a great general, his record is a series of successes but is dimmed by an unwise move at the close of his career. In death this will be forgotten and he will be remembered as one of Britain's bravest soldiers.

THE STARTER'S PISTOL. Why is it that when sports are being held the revolver used by the starter always fails to work? It does not seem to matter where, or when or how the thing is snapper, cartridges will not explode at the critical time. Competitors line up for a race, get themselves cramped in peculiar positions and strain every nerve for the start. They listen in suspense for the report of the pistol, but it does not come. The starter pulls the trigger half a dozen times and the chambers in the revolver go round just as they ought to do, but only the insignificant click of the hammer is heard. Finally after some five or six attempts one of the shells takes a notion to explode just when neither the starter nor the competitors are expecting it. After the race is over the starter tries to find out what was wrong with the blooming thing, and puts in the same old cartridge. He pulls the trigger and the first one goes off. The next one does the same. They all explode one after the other. There is nothing wrong with the revolver. It works perfectly and looks as if it had always worked. Then the next race comes on, the starter pulls the trigger, there is no report. This sort of thing leads to profanity.

THE OBSTRUCTIONISTS. Here is how Hon. Mr. Aylesworth, speaking at Aurora, placed before his hearers the present political situation: "Suppose I am one of three men employed by a farmer, and when we three hired men got on the ground to build a rail fence I find only one of my companions assists me in putting the rails on the fence. The other man cuts the rails off. He will not work himself, neither will he let us work who would. Now what am I to do? I would surely be less than human if I did not fight under such circumstances. I say the men hired to do a certain work, who will neither work nor let those work who would, should have some sense hammered into their heads."

The photographs of Major Dreyfus resurrected from the graveyards of newspapers throughout America, appear to be as numerous and varied as the middle dishes at an up country wedding.

FORECAST FOR THIRTY-SIX HOURS.

For six and thirty hours ending Monday night at eight. The changes in the weather will be slight; In the calm of Sunday morning sail craft will not navigate. No in the howling gale of Sunday night.

You will venture out at midday in your thinnest summer togs. And will wear your summer hat of straw and glue.

The wind will veer to northward with wintry gusts and moans. And the clatter of your teeth resound afar.

Your knees will smite together like the merry minstrel's bones. As you hurry homeward in a fresh air.

With chamber windows tightly closed and warning drunks inside. 'Neath sundry quilts and blankets and a shawl.

You will go to bed and in the night will dream that you have died. And gone to meet (perhaps) Bob Ingersoll.

Winds Monday morning brisk to high, the weather mostly fair. Save now and then a hailstorm rattling down.

You delve among the mail balls for your winter underwear. And tote your heavy overcoat to town.

You will find it growing astringe in the early afternoon. The blazing sun will later singe the earth.

And the mercury at three will touch the highest point in June. Since the faithful weather bureau had its birth.

Misses—Now, remember, Bridges, the Joneses are coming for dinner. Cook—Leave it to me, my dear. I'll do worst! They'll never trouble you again!

The late Julia Magruder, according to the circle, used to tell a story about a little girl whom she once took out to lunch.

At the luncheon's end Miss Magruder handed her water a $30 bill, and the man brought back on a plate a great mound of greenbacks and silver.

"The little girl looked at the huge mound of change longingly. 'If you please, Miss Magruder,' she said, 'I'll have a plate of that, too.'"

COMMENCEMENT. The academic world is a busy one this, the first week of bloomy June. There is excitement, laughter, tears, thrills, nervousness, triumph, defeat, heart burnings.

Here is a little nervous girl fresh last autumn from her country home. Who shall tell the story of her nervousness, her fears, her homesickness. And who can tell the story of the father and mother at home to whom she was all the world, and how they—at first—counted the months, then the weeks, and the days until she would be at home again.

There under the gallery are the father and mother who have come to see and hear their little girl (for she has a very modest part in the commencement exercises) and then to take her home for the long vacation. How nervous she is, but not as nervous as father and mother for they are afraid she may fall. But there is no failure, she has done very well indeed and been applauded and the sweetest music they heard that day was the applause the good natured crowd gave their little girl.

May the father and mother never regret that they denied themselves many a comfort that their little girl might have the education they never had. The trains are crowded these days with "sweet girl graduates" and their big athletic brothers and "friends," and if they are anxious and laugh and talk a little too loudly and openly, no one blames them for conductor and travel agent excuse them and say: "They are going home and they are as frisky and playful as colts and lambs. God bless them."

The gruff man with the grizzled whiskers who has not been a boy for thirty years and more, does not find fault with the noise and chatter, for he wishes "he were a boy again" going home from school, instead of a world weary man with his youth and care free laughter far behind him.

Even the prim old maid smiles indulgently at the foolish young things, and wishes she were as young and—foolish.

The commencement of new work. The beginning of the fight for some of them have left their college life behind them and now they must show what they can do with these new bright weapons that have been put into their hands. "God bless them and keep them," will be the prayer of many a man and woman who look at them with swimming eyes for the man thinks of the bright boy who died before his school days were ended and the woman thinks, my girl would be about her age, and coming home from school had she lived."

NO FLATTERY. "I'm not sure," said Miss Plafin, "that you're just the photographer I'm looking for. I've been told you do very handsome work and make very pretty pictures."

"Yes," interrupted the photographer eagerly, "but I can give you an exact likeness if you wish."—Philadelphia Press.

STORIES OF HEROISM OF SAILORS

It is when the most appalling strain is placed upon human endurance that the noblest attributes of mankind are manifested. And one instance turns to the navy for stirring examples of splendid heroism in face of death. Nations could exceed the magnificent behaviour of the British blue-jackets in the recent naval disaster to the Gladiator, when the men ranged themselves up and sang 'Sons of the Brave' a song that will find an echo in the hearts of all true Britishers.

To the British royal navy belongs the proud distinction of the first Victoria Cross ever won, and recent happenings have served to show that the spirit of the old-time heroes burns as brightly as of yore in the breasts of those who man our iron walls.

A HUMAN BULLET. When Rodney and his men fought the French to save the British West Indies, one brave fellow on board the Resolution was standing by his gun as the ship steered abreast of De Grasse's flagship.

The gun was about to be fired when a shot came in at the port and took his leg off at the knee. Quick as thought the man pulled off his neckcloth and tied his leg above the stump. The next instant he was the disembodied limb and thrust it into the muzzle of the gun which went off two seconds later.

"My foot," shouted the man exultantly, "is the first to board the Ville de Paris!"

It was on board the inflexible during the bombardment of Alexandria, that the late Commander Youngblood performed an exploit of great daring. In the midst of the fighting the vent of the Inflexible's 90-ton gun had become choked, with the result that for a time the gun was completely out of action.

He then volunteered to go inside the muzzle-loader. He was pushed in by the hydraulic rammer right up to the muzzle of the gun. (A tube sixteen inches in diameter) until he reached the powder chamber, and at imminent risk of suffocation from the powder gases managed to remedy the defect. When he had finished his work he was pulled out of the gun, as a cork is pulled out of a bottle.

LIVE SHELL. It was during the same bombardment that Israel Harding, chief gunner of the Alexandria, won the V. C. About three hours before the action began a 10-inch spherical shell crashed through "Old Alex," as the navy used to call the favorite ship, and fell, at a part where the ship was unarmored, and with its fuse burning, rolled along the main deck seeking a vulnerable point to which to expend its pent-up energy.

Hearing a shot, "There's a live shell just above the ladder, and taking some water from a tub near by, dashed upon the burning fuse. Then he coolly lifted the shell and plunged it into the tub of water, thus saving many lives. That shell, by the way, was presented to His Majesty the King then Prince of Wales.

For some seconds before the actual ramming of the Victoria by the Camperdown in the Mediterranean on July 22, 1893, disaster was inevitable. Approaching the calamity, the crew were fallen in on deck, but no order was given to the men below to save themselves.

PATHEIC INCIDENT. In those last moments of the doomed ship the captain looked into the engine rooms, and could see that the men were standing there at their posts, their grim faces as tightly compressed lips showing that they were prepared to meet their deaths like men.

On deck the crew remained fallen in without flinching until the inclination of the ship rendered it untenable, and the order was given to jump. Then, and not till then, were those living lines of heroes broken.

Ten minutes after the collision the end came. The bows of the Victoria dived, the stern, with screws still revolving, rose out of the water, there was a mighty rush of air, a great disturbance of the surface, and the souls were plunged into eternity within a few minutes after it had foundered.

"Save yourselves, men!" In the middle of the night the order rang out.

LOCKED IN DEATH-GRIP. The death of Captain Burry was as gallant and as self-sacrificing as his life. When the Captain, a turret ship, went down in the Bay of Biscay, 364 men were plunged into eternity within a few minutes after it had foundered.

"Save yourselves, men!" In the middle of the night the order rang out.

THE COMING PERIL OF THE FLY PEST

The bluet fly buzzed 'till the pane, The beholder alighted his skull in vain And the housewife shouted "Shoo!"

—After Tennyson.

Once more the revolting seasons have almost brought around flytime, and the low, sullen buzz of Musca domestica, interrupted by swarms of wretched houseflies, will soon resound in our dwelling places. Everybody hunts flies in summer; it is a popular recreation. Children seek to impale them on pins and are reproved by superstitious moralists. Men whose hair is getting scarce contemplate murder, but draw back from the consequences of squashing such an insect on the forehead. A rolled-up newspaper is a favorite weapon with which to lambaste the enemy on walls and ceiling. The flytrap of beehive shape, filled with hundreds of clamorous victims, is well liked in the country, while urban revenge prefers the spectacle of numerous insect pests struggling in the gluey coils of fly-paper, like Victor Hugo's man in the quicksands. There is also poison for the flies in saucers, but most people are afraid that "little 'Wills'" might get it, or that the dead, poisoned ones will fall into the soup, as the live ones often do.

FRIENDLESS FLY.

The fly has no friends. He is generally disliked because of his noise and the way he wakes us up early in the morning by crawling on our noses and trying to stick his proboscis into our ears. He cannot like having no organs for the purpose. The fly is hated because he is a minor nuisance. If people knew him for the serious crime which he has committed and does commit he would be regarded as a more dangerous pest than the poisoned snakes of India.

Science is just now sounding the tocsin of a crusade against the fly as the disseminator of many deadly diseases. A committee in New York and a committee in Liverpool have published reports of investigations showing that the common house fly is responsible for an enormous human death roll. This familiar occupant of our homes, feebly combated with screens and sticky paper, is one of the chief causes of 400 deaths from typhoid fever and 7,000 deaths from intestinal diseases in New York every year. He is not the originator of disease, but the carrier of it, and all his habits make him an ideal agent to spread the germs of sickness and death. One fly captured while "on the way to the nearest milk picher" and put under the microscope, was found to be carrying 100,000 fecal bacteria on his mouth and legs. Another specimen was allowed to walk on the surface of a sterile culture solution, and in a few days the invisible bacteria blossomed into sign with a myriad bacteria of disease.

GREATEST INSECT ENEMY.

The fly is man's greatest insect enemy. He is just getting his deserts of recognition as the villain of the national efforts. He does not seem small and insignificant when we measure the stature of his deeds and the means that will be necessary to exterminate him. To destroy all the voles and grizzly bears in North America would be easier. Plenty of flies are killed by the present methods of traps, clubs and sticky papers, yet the total fly mortality does not more than equal the progeny of half a dozen insects. Linnæus observed long ago that three carnivorous flies and their multiplying offspring would eat the carcass of an ox as fast as a lion. He meant it literally, that the line of beasts would not have the bones of the ox licked clean—perhaps a matter of three days—sooner than the swift hatching swarms of larvae would consume the flesh and get down to the skeleton. One able-bodied house fly, laying her first batch of 120 eggs in the beginning of May, will have more descendants by the end of September than Adam has been blessed with since the shutting of the golden gate. Her progeny will reach into the sextillions.

It certainly seems futile to attack such an insect by individual slaps, or even capture a few hundred thousand on sticky paper. The only hopeful plan, as in the war against mosquitoes, is to get after the breeding place and to remove the sources where the fly loads himself with bacteria of disease for dissemination among mankind.

CHILDHOOD DANGERS

No symptom that indicates any of the ailments of childhood should be allowed to pass without prompt attention. The little ailments may soon become a serious one, and perhaps a little life passes out. If Baby's Own Tablets are kept in the house minor troubles can be promptly cured and serious ailments thus averted. And the Tablets can be given with equal safety to the now born babe or the well grown child. Mrs. H. Gendron, Martineville, Que., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets and have found them in every way satisfactory. I always feel safe when I have them at hand." The Great Howard at the Princess Next Week

One of the most popular attractions ever offered in this city at the price will be at the Princess Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings of next week, when Fred. Howard, well known as probably the greatest Scottish ventriloquist living today, and a very price among entertainers, will appear, giving his great ventriloquist show, with which he will appear in Hammersteins all summer, as a head liner of the same nature as the celebrated Harry Lauder, who was starred at the same theatre last winter. It will not be a half hour entertainment, but a full two hours.

show, presenting three reels of films, Mr. Dore, the popular singer at the Princess, and the wonderful ventriloquist and entertainer, who has during the past six months delighted audiences in all parts of Canada and the United States. Howard's programme will call to mind the old story of Valentine Vox, the ventriloquist, and his feats were no more amusing than are those which Howard will perform on the stage of the Princess Monday evening. Besides ventriloquism, Mr. Howard will be heard in the most remarkable musical sketch ever heard in the city. There is nothing of the ordinary about Mr. Howard, and his every appearance should be met with crowded houses. The price, considering the length and expense of the entertainment, is most reasonable. The afternoon programme will be given as usual, and at the regular prices. See advertisement of particulars.

Great Show for Children Today

The applause that followed Miss Wren's rendering of the new song-craze, "Take Me Out To The Ball Game," at the Nickel last evening was not the only thing to "rough-house," as the boys say, and the pleasing contrast was forced to re-sing the catchy chorus six and seven times during the evening. It was a regular tornado of plaudits and hurrahs joined in lastly by making Al Von Zitzler's new hit song, "Heart, Dream On," pleased every lover of good music well-sung. The new pictures were up to the Nickel's standard of excellence, as follows: The Sculptor's Nightmare, The Pretty Flower Girl, The Mystic Bottle and An Interrupted Bath. These last exhibits are fun with no sensationalism for the little ones today.

Full House at the Princess

Yesterday afternoon and evening found the Princess Theatre packed to the doors with those who have found by experience that nothing but the best motion pictures and the latest illustrated songs are in vogue there. Week after week they have been adding to the worth of the films, till now they have four of the finest pictures ever produced, and which are being presented in this city for the first time. The custom of the Princess management of producing the best as they are made, assures the patrons of this city and well ventilated picture house that they are always getting something new. No worn out films are permitted at this house and no repetitions allowed. Today the films to be displayed are in Bill Leard, A Boy's Pranks, Children's Competition, and Modern British Agriculture. This list exhibits almost all the different kinds of motion pictures from comedy to instructive. Each tells a story in itself and is worthy of special mention, but where all are so good it is impossible to select any particular picture for elaboration.

At the Unique

The best pictures ever shown in St. John, that is the opinion of many who saw the programme at the Unique yesterday. The Great Jewel Robbery is one of the best pictures ever produced. A young lady is presented with a case of jewels at a banquet given in her honor. The thief, who poses as a friend of the family, enters her room after she has retired and drops her. In

HAD APPEARANCE OF SERIOUS FIRE

Fire broke out last night in a tenement house at 238 Charlotte street, owned by T. McAvity & Sons, which proved to be small, although until the smoke cleared it was thought to be serious.

About eight o'clock a little girl named Young saw the smoke issuing from between the boards at the rear of the house and an alarm was sent in at once. The tenement house was occupied by three families, Caleb B. Larkin, top story; Herbert Chutey, second floor, and Wm. McGorman on the ground floor.

The fire started on the ground floor in the apartments occupied by the McGorman family, and is supposed to have been due to an over-heated stove lighting the woodwork directly behind it. The smoke found its way through the walls of the house to the third story and after the firemen arrived some difficulty was experienced in judging where the flame was located. It was located, however, near the stove and extinguished before any damage was done. The house was covered by insurance.

Lugh and Grow Fat at the Happy Half Hour

It was nothing but laughs yesterday at the Happy Half Hour. The new programme is all comedy of the best kind. The pictures, as is usual at this house, are all new. They are Love Will Find a Way, this picture showing two weddings. The Dislocated Yeh-e-ran, a startling trick comedy picture; No Divorce Wanted, a picture that every married man and woman will enjoy; and The Page Boy and the Baby. This last picture is 150 feet in length and every inch is a laugh. This show was so good yesterday that many stayed to see it two and three times, and if laugh and grow fat is a true saying everybody gained in weight. If you enjoy a hearty laugh see it today. Prof. Titus was repeatedly engaged for his singing of Let the Harbor Lights be Burning and Harry LeRoy for his singing of Good-bye, Sweetheart. Good-bye, was similarly received. Parents can send their children to the matinee today with perfect confidence that there will be nothing objectionable shown.

BADLY BEATEN BY HIS COMPATRIOTS

Late last night Augustine Limphon, a Russian-Finn, who is staying at the West End House, was attacked near York Point slip by three of his fellow countrymen, who were drunk, and badly beaten.

Limphon remarked: "Hello, we're all sailors." The others stopped and joined him. Shortly two of them commenced to fight one another with their fists. Limphon attempted to separate them. This proved disastrous for him, for they all three turned upon him and knocked him into the slip. They for the first time in his life were hummed on him while he lay on the ground, cutting his face badly.

Mrs. Naves (who lives in the vicinity) heard shouts coming from the slip and sent her son to bring Officer McCollum. The policeman was soon on the scene but the three men had taken flight before he arrived, leaving their victim lying in the slip.

Officer McCollum conducted him to the West End House and a close watch was kept for the others, but to the time of going to press they had not been arrested.

MILLMEN REORGANIZE THREE HUNDRED STRONG

The millmen employed in the city and vicinity reorganized their union last evening in the Longshoremen's room on Water street. President John Sullivan of the Longshoremen's Union occupied the chair. There were over three hundred millmen present. All were in favor of reorganization.

James Rogers was elected president of the union and W. De Gress secretary. The following were elected to the executive: William Maloney, Geo. Priers and Timothy Barrie.

The new union adjourned until Monday, June 15.

It is altogether likely that the millmen will affiliate with the longshoremen. The majority of millmen work with the longshoremen during the winter. This compels them to pay dues into the Longshoremen's Union as well as into their own union. By affiliating with the longshoremen the millmen will save six months' dues.

Prof. Postel:

Dear Sir--You are certainly the most wonderful astrologer living. Every one of your predictions came true, consider that you not only saved me from an awful death but prevented the loss of hundreds of dollars. I trust that many people will profit by your advice. Sincerely,

MISS EFFA M. TRYON.

The accuracy of recent predictions made by this eminent Astrologer has caused many of his friends to believe that he modestly asserts that his predictions are due alone to a scientific understanding of natural laws. The many thoughtful letters Mr. Postel has received from people who have benefited by his advice furnish ample proof that he is sincere in his work and has a kindly feeling toward humanity. Readers of this paper can obtain a reading made from their Zodiacal and ruling stars free of charge by addressing a letter to Albert H. Postel, Dept. 1073, No. 128 West 84th St., New York. UNION WITH IRELAND

Adam Smith when writing his "Wealth of Nations" published in 1776, ventured on some prophecies regarding the results of a union between Great Britain and Ireland. SHEFFIELD PLATE RATHER AN EXPENSIVE FAD.

A reigning fad among people who can afford it, is the collection of old Sheffield plate. Strictly speaking Sheffield plate today means only articles made after this process.

PARENTAL CARE AMONG THE FISHES

While most of the fishes, when breeding deposit their eggs and, after fertilization, leave them to the tender mercies of Dame Nature, a number of species principally fresh water ones, make a more or less serious effort to guard their eggs and young.

The methods adopted by some of these fishy parents are exceedingly curious and interesting. Strange to relate, it is usually the male of the species that exercises the parental care, a most radical departure from the usual method followed by vertebrate animals, where this duty with almost the sole exception devolves upon the female and male in conjunction or the female alone.

A remarkable instance of parental care is found in the cichlids, which are inhabitants of the fresh waters of tropical Africa and America, and Palestine in Asia.

Another species found in the same body of water, is supposed to be the fish out of whose mouth the apostle Simon Peter got the tributory money.

When breeding the female deposits about two hundred eggs in a little excavation, which she works out among the rushes and roots. The male fertilizes them, and a few minutes afterwards he takes the eggs one after another into his mouth and keeps them in the buccal cavity against his cheeks, which then appear swollen in an extraordinary manner.

The eggs, although they are not attached by any membrane or adhesive substance, remain securely in his mouth and are never dropped while he is in the water. In this novel incubator the eggs hatch out in a few days. The fry, however, do not quit their parent's mouth even then, but remain packed in there for some days.

MOTHERLY FATHER. Finally the young leave their baby-hood home; but as soon as danger threatens they re-enter the old fish's mouth.

Another instance of fatherly love is witnessed each evening about sundown when the parent gathers all of his brood together, one by one into his mouth and retains them safely there until morning. Even after the young are too large to re-enter the mouth, the old one keeps a watchful eye over them, and is ever ready to drive away a possible enemy. In the case of an African species the female takes care of the eggs and the young.

The rainbow fishes of India are noted for the ingenious nests they build and for the care of which the male guards the eggs and the young. This fish sometimes grows to one and a half inches in length, but those of a smaller size are more numerous.

As spawning time approaches, the male goes through a somewhat prolonged courtship with the female and then proceeds to prepare a nest. Seeking a little plant in his mouth, he carries it to the surface, and, in order to prevent it from sinking to the bottom, he sucks in a few bubbles of air, which he divides and places immediately beneath the plant. He keeps bringing plants and bubbles until he has a regular island on the surface of the water.

The little workman then brings the female under the nest, where she emits her eggs, which he carries to his mouth, and, as he carries them, he carries a tank of which he squirts himself with a truly paternal zeal. First, he arranges the eggs in an orderly fashion, and then, leaning from the nest, he contracts the entrance. As he swims round and round the nest, he is continually on the look-out for weak spots in it, which he at once proceeds to bolster up with fresh air bubbles.

At the end of seventy hours he enters the nest and pierces its summit, allowing the air to escape, whereupon the young hatch out. The mother fish then carries them to the surface, and, as they are carried, she squirts herself with a truly paternal zeal. First, he arranges the eggs in an orderly fashion, and then, leaning from the nest, he contracts the entrance.

CATFISHES CARE

Most of the catfishes found in this country are notable for the parental care they exercise over their eggs and young. Usually this work devolves upon the male; but occasionally the female participates. The male usually excavates a rude sort of nest on sandy or gravelly ground in shallow water.

During the entire hatching season the parent is incessant in his efforts to prevent the smothering of the eggs, to keep them clean, and to guard against intruders. The eggs are kept constantly agitated and aerated by a gentle fanning motion of the lower fins, and foreign particles, either on the bottom of the nest or floating near the eggs, are removed by means of the barbels. The most striking act in the care of the eggs is the sucking of the egg masses into the mouth, then blowing them out, this being repeated several times with each cluster before another is treated.

As a usual thing, the male savagely attacks any intruder; but one observer reports that, finding a male hovering over a nest, he had no objection in quietly putting his hand under him and lifting him off the nest, and that the fish seemed to enjoy being gently scratched. This is very unusual, however.

An interesting habit of the parents observed during the first few days after hatching is the mixing and stirring of the masses of young by means of the barbels. With its chin on the bottom, the old fish approaches the corners where the fry congregates, and with the barbels all directed forward and flexed where they touch the bottom, thoroughly agitates the masses of young by means of the barbels.

When the fish begin to swim they swarm about the old fish just like a swarm of bees. The female usually takes the lead, and the male follows in a quiet way. The young are also taken into the mouth of the parent, and are kept there until they are able to swim freely.

PECULIAR FAMILY

Each embryo is provided with four large oment glands situated on top of the head, and two smaller ones on the front. Just as soon as the larva is hatched it rams the upper part of its head against the roots, and wriggling away again, draws out from the four oment glands four fine threads of viscid mucus, which are hardened by contact with the water and form a minute rope about the length of the body of the larva.

By this the larva hangs suspended for four or five days, until the yolk is absorbed. While hanging thus, each larva oscillates the whole length of its body from side to side. In one nest there may be thousands of the larvae suspended in this way, presenting the appearance of a shaking mass of jelly, for they all oscillate themselves in unison. While its progeny is in the egg, and larval stages, the male fish keeps watch over them, and immediately drives away all intruders.

A peculiar species found in salt water is the lump fish. This possesses a sucker formed by the two ventral fins, which are so shaped that when the fish reclines on a rock the fins act as suckers and hold it firmly. As soon as the eggs are deposited in shallow pits between stones, the female, feeling that she has done her part, deserts them, and the male at once assumes charge and guards the eggs until they hatch out, and then the young until they are able to take care of themselves.

In moving round he is closely followed by his numerous family, which has given rise to the term "hen and chickens." At times they attach themselves to the sides of the parent by their sucking disks, thus presenting a singular appearance.

The round-headed Hassar of Quana is one of the earliest species of which the building habits have been described. After the fishes have paired, they build a most ingenious nest of plants and roots, which is buoyed up by a quantity of mucus foam until it is about three and a half inches above the water. The whole nest is about nine inches long and seven inches wide, and somewhat resembles a finger glass with the barbels all directed forward and flexed where they touch the bottom, thoroughly agitates the masses of young by means of the barbels.

Mary Emerson, who has presented the play here, and it can be said that Miss Emerson was twice wounded in the course of the scene. One of these was so serious that the curtain had to be rung down on the act, though Miss Emerson pluckily insisted on finishing the play.

Who'd ever think, to look at you know, that you know how to handle a sword! the old general says to Aida, the Maid, in the person of Miss Mary Emerson, in His Majesty and the Maid, and little does she at that moment, governed in pink satin covered with Brussels lace. That she can handle a sword, however, is evidenced in the third act of the play, Miss Emerson has neglected no branch of work that she might need in her career, and being greatly interested in the art of fencing, she studied it for some time, and gained great proficiency in it.

A GREAT SALE OF MEN'S SUITS

Prices Cut $1 to $4 a Suit. Buy Now at J. N. Harvey's

It is well known that our regular prices are far away below what some quality of goods can be bought elsewhere for. The unparalleled growth of our business proves this beyond a doubt. That the people realize this has been more marked this spring than ever. The brisk selling has left many lines of our large stock of Suits broken in sizes. These we are offering now at greatly reduced prices. It serves two good purposes—it encourages a man to buy an extra suit now and turns the stock into cash for us. Every suit in this sale is fully guaranteed.

Table with 4 columns: Suit size, Sale price, Regular price, and Discounted price. Includes items like $6.50 Suits, $7.50 Suits, 10.00 Suits, 11.00 Suits, $13.50 Suits, 15.00 Suits, 18.00 Suits, 22.00 Suits.

New Lines of Hats, Shirts, Ties and Underwear received this week. See them in our Furnishing Department.

Indigestion

Indigestion ruins more lives and good prospects than any other single disorder. You cannot work, you cannot think, you cannot do yourself justice in any way while suffering from this dreaded complaint. Your body is being starved and poisoned and health is impossible. But Mother Seigel's Syrup, the famous vegetable remedy, puts an end to indigestion by restoring strength and healthy natural activity to your stomach. Read this:—"For over a year I suffered from indigestion. I had pains after everything I ate, and was very constipated. But Mother Seigel's Syrup cured me, and now I am quite well."—From Mr. Paul Therault, St. Octave de Melis, Rimouski Co., Que., Jan. 23, 1908.

ALLAN MacLEAN HAS BEEN SET AT LIBERTY

After Restoring Son to His Mother, the Court Decides to Let Him Out.

Allan S. McLean, of Inverness, N. S., who kidnapped his seven year old son, Walter, after the Suffolk Co., Mass. Superior Court had awarded his custody to the mother and who was sentenced to serve three months in jail, last month, is again a free man. After being in jail two weeks McLean applied for a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that he had purged himself of contempt as the boy had been restored to his mother who is divorced from McLean. McLean was released on payment of $30 and cost. Mrs. McLean, now Mrs. Fred O'Keefe, was divorced three years ago. Soon after McLean took his son to Inverness, N. S., his home. Recently he appeared in Boston and was arrested. After receiving sentence he decided to permit the boy to return to his mother and the lad was taken to Boston from Nova Scotia by an uncle.

WOMAN STEALING FLOWERS IN KING SQUARE GARDENS

Dogs, small boys, and hand stands are not the only things credited as being damaging to the King Square flower beds, but grown persons who should protect the beds are mostly to blame for the destruction of the flowers. Last evening a woman who resides in Lower Cove did not realize how very near she was to being arrested for theft. Perhaps she may yet have to appear in court to give a reason for her actions. She was seated on one of the benches near the Young monument, and after looking about for some time to see if she was detected, and finding no person was looking, she stepped over to a flower bed, plucked a few tulips and placed them in a paper. She made three or four trips to the flower bed with the result that this morning only a couple of tulips are left. While the woman was thus engaged, and thinking she was undetected, a couple of men, one of whom recognized her, were watching all the time, and were greatly tempted to inform the police.

CLOSING EXERCISES OF THE ROTHESAY SCHOOL

The closing exercises at Rothesay School for Boys will be held on Wednesday, June 17th. The programme of sports will commence on the afternoon of the previous Monday and will be continued during the forenoon and afternoon of Tuesday.

Quite a number of changes are to take place in the Rothesay school before the next term. Principal I. E. Moore sometime ago handed in his resignation which will take effect on the closing of the school. Mr. Moore tells the Star that he has not made any definite plans for the future, but feels that he needs a rest, having been at Rothesay for the past nine years. His place will be filled by Rev. Mr. Hibbert of Montreal.

There will be other changes in the teaching staff which, however, have not yet been announced. The graduating class this year is small, consisting of only three students. The attendance during the term has been well up to the mark, averaging sixty-four for the nine months of whom fourteen were day boys.

SLIGHT FIRE THIS MORNING IN DR. W. A. CHRISTIE'S

It was found that the woodwork between the kitchen walls in the rear of the stove was on fire. Chemical No. 1 was summoned, but being unable to get at the seat of the fire Chief Kerr sent an alarm from box 15 and called out the department. The hook and ladder men tore away the sheathing sufficiently to enable the chemical to put out the flames. There was some damage by smoke, and considerable other damage which is fully covered by insurance.
