BROWN---ROBINSON

Two Popular Londoners Wedded Saturday Afternoon.

The wedding of Mr. R. Albert tive of the Hastings Manufacturing Company, and Miss Ethel Harriett Robinson, only daughter of Mr. Alfred Robinson, accountant, was solemnized Saturday at Mr. Robinson's residence, 521 Dufferin avenue. cause of the recent death of the bride's grandmother it was a very private marriage, attended by no friends other than the bride's and groom's relatives. At half-past two o'clock the ceremon; was performed by Rev. J. V. Smith D.D., the bridesmaid being Miss Gertrude Moyes, of St. Mary's, the bride's cousin, and the groom's brother, Mr. C. Dufferin Brown, acting as best man. Mr. and Mrs. Brown left afterwards for New York, whither they took with them the good wishes of all their friends. When they return they will make their home at 297 Hyman street.

CANADIANS THE GAINERS. CANADIANS THE GAINERS.

Vancouver, B. C., June 10.—Trouble has occurred at the international boundary line in the Mount Baker mining district, and as a result American owners of mines are protesting to the Canadian government authorities. When the American government boundary line surveyor, Mr. Sinclair, finished determining the line on this district, he found that it was 3,840 feet farther south than it was supposed to have been for the last three years. Two thousand feet of two valuable mines in the district—the Golden Chariot and the Golden Standard—owned by Seattle and New York people, were shoved over into Canada.

RECORD-BREAKING TAX RATE. Windsor, June 10.—The rate of taxation for Essex county for this year was fixed at 1% mills by the county council. This at 1% mills by the county council. This is a reduction of one-quarter mill from last year, and is the lowest rate ever struck by the county council. The decrease is partly due to the readjustment of the equalization committee, and partly to the loan by debentures of $10,000 to pay the remaining indebtedness of the county house of refuge, thus making it unnecessary to pay any of the bills from the general fund.

HARROWING STORY OF SUICIDE AND MURDER!

Which Took Place on the Peaceful Homestead of a Respected London Township Farmer.

The impending horror of a great ragedy never seemed more distant than it did to the contented dwellers of a humble but comfortable home in London township Saturday. The declining sun of a bright and cool June afternoon was throwing lengthening shadows along the white ribbon of the road and over the tender green of the woodland and trim fields which stretched away on every hand, came the sounds which mark the evening hour. Another uneventful day would soon have passed and been numbered with the days that were. Suddenly into this idyllic picture strode a mancrazed with bitter jealousy and the longing for a dead love which he him

She retorrent of his resentment and in the mad impulse of a second plunged a happy family into grief for the loss of a devoted wife and a sweet and loving mother. Seeing the horror of his act, he then turned his weapon upon himself and fell at the feet of his victim a ghastly corpse.

The Tragedy.

Robert Fulford, aged 40, of Chicago, shot and instantly killed his motherin-law, Mrs. Robert McCord, aged 52, of con. 9, London township, Saturday evening, and then sent a bullet into his own brain.

His mother-in-law was also his aunt, he having married Gertie McCord, his of months ago in St. Louis, and he had self had killed. Frantic at being come to get her again. He was taken to a hospital at Budweis.

VEILS UNFASHIONABLE.

London, June 10.-Queen Alexandra has driven in the park several times wearing no veil, and it is predicted that veils will go out of fashion in consequence. Few women, however young, and probably none of her age, can stand the test of the full glare of light on her complexion as well as the Queen. Her youthful appearance is still a source of bewildered admiration. She now always has the children of the Duke of Cornwall in the carriage with her, and they make a pherson, Clark & Campbell, of Toronvery pretty picture.

THE WORK OF BRIGANDS. The Daily Express publishes the following dispatch from Vienna: A band of brigands held up a mail coach near Retsag, Hungary, strangled the driver, maimed the guards, ransacked the mailbags and escaped with plunder valued at £5,000.

Vancouver, B. C., June 10.—A special from Eholt, B. C., tells of a bold attempt at hold-up, three men stopping a Canadian Pacific mixed train on the up-grade near Summit camp. As the train swept around the curve upon the approach to the camp, three men suddenly appeared and signaled to stop. The train came to a standstill upon the would-be bandits flourishing revolvers, but luckily there was a large crowd in the rear of the cars, and on their appearance the intending robbers thought that the odds were against them and disappeared.

THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS.

Toronto, June 10.—Rev. J. J. Day, of Sherbrooke, Que., raised a lively discussion on Saturday at the Congregational Union by talking of the decadence of the Christian Endeavor movement amongst the Congregational Unions. There were 1,968 Endeavorers in the Ontario church four years ago, while now there are only 943. In Quebec there has been a shrinkage from 563 to 193.

Rev. Mr. Gray took up the debate an made an attack on sports an icking amusements. Christ, he said had been of life, had said nothing say that in a bail around a field. M and card playshocked to hear a me time in different his church prayer ing went on at THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS.

HUSBAND LEAVES ST. LOUIS. Fulford, meanwhile, had gone from St. Louis to Chicago, and from there he wrote several letters to his wife, who returned them to him unopened. He wrote also to her father-letters that were first angry and threatening, and then written in quieter words, protestations of a reformed life, and better purposes. Little faith was placed in his words, for the family knew what kind of a man he was. They knew that he held them responsible for keeping his wife from him, and had said that he would kill them.

FATHER AND SON

Separated by Failure to Find Gold; United by Success in Finding It.

[San Francisco Chronicle.] After a parting of 45 years, a father and son were united in Sausalito last Monday under peculiar circumstances In 1856, J. S. Bellrude, the local justice of the peace, left his home in the State of Wisconsin to visit California in search of gold. Behind him he left a young wife and an infant child, and he worked his way in the California wilderness with the thought ever before him of making a rich strike and returning to his little family with the wealth that would forever make them comfortable. But luck conspired against him, and while success after success crowned the efforts of the men delving in the hills about him, his own little claim only produced a heritage of debts. The years passed, and Bellrude learned that his wife was dead. The son was living in comfort with his mother's people, and the discourwith the boy, allowed him to drop from sight, and his very existence became uncertain to the father. Thirty years ago the father mailed his picture to

FEEDING A PYTHON

4 Thirty-Foot Snake Forced to Break His Long Fast.

[Boston Herald.] "Long Tom," the big python, had another meal yesterday. It was breakfast, lunch and dinner, combined, and the first for eight weeks. He was not consulted about the matter, nor until he found himself securely held did he realize that he was up once more for food.

Eight weeks is a long period between was up once more for food.

Eight weeks is a long period between meals for anyone but Long Tom. He holds a record few would wish to struggle for. It is not a case of disappointed love, or a violent attack of despondency leveloping into suicidal mania, taking the form of death by starvation; simply the fact that he is in captivity, and maybe doesn't like his boarding house.

He lay in his cage yesterday morning, colled upon the platform apart from the tank, his eyes closed. Not an inch of his 31½ feet of sinewy body showed the slightest sign of life but he was beautiful to est sign of life, but he was beautiful to look upon. To look at a snake from the safe side of a heavy plate glass cage is one thing, and to stand beside him in the open, with only the hands of men to protect. The thought that was to be taken from the tank and held while food was thrust down his throat sent a certain thrill through the body not exactly pleasant.

"Hold him straight, now, be sure! Don't let him form the 'S.' If you do, it's all up with everybody!" shouted someone who know how he was to be taken from the tank and the ta "Hold him straight, now, be sure! Don't let him form the 'S.' If you do, it's all up with everybody!" shouted someone who knew. On the whole the warning was not reassuring. Standing at the tank was Beatrix Roderico, or, as she is more familiarly known, "Trixie," the snake charmer. The glass came off and the snake raised its head. In a flash "Trixie" had covered it with a cloth, and, holding fast, drew the monster out slowly. The men filed in and took hold, one on each side, shoulder to shoulder, hugging close to their bodies the writhing from of Long Tom. The snake was taken from the tank much as one would tug to draw out a long strip of large hose.

tank much as one would tug to draw out a long strip of large hose.

Long Tom, held by the arms of his score or more attendants, was straightened out for the application of the "stuffing" process he alone indulges. Just as one would stuff a pillow, or more likely a bed roll, with feathers, just so was this snake stuffed with rabbits. Trixie held his head, while next to her, holding the snake, were Walter Fox, Frank Prior and Roger Davis, while Charlie Bunker, a man of some weight, was put upon the tail, a very important part of a python in such a fix, should he succeed in getting it free.

To guard against canker. Long Tom's mouth had to be washed out with a weak solution of carbolic acid and water. He didn't appear to desire such a douche, and held his mouth tightly closed. Trixie and held his mouth tightly closed. Trixie soon overcame that difficulty by force, when she discovered that one of his teeth was loose. Holding the snake's head with one hand she reached for a halrpin, and with this feminine instrument played dentist with success. The mouth washed, it became "lunch time."

J. T. Benson appeared with a bamboo pole 9 feet long. In the end of this in a strip were the five rabbits. The whole "meal" hanging from the pole was perhaps a foot long. When the snake eats haps a foot long. When the snake ears of its own volition it unlocks its jaws. This will permit the eating of animals of almost any size. Long Tom was not hungry, and refused to give up the key, so the rabbits had to be prepared in such so the rabbits had to be prepared in such a form as would permit of their being pushed down his throat.

When the end of this string of rabbits was placed in his mouth, Long Tom began to make himself felt. His great body swayed, and the men, strong as they were, had hard work to keep the body straight. Once in, the process of "stuffing" was slow, danger of injuring the snake and difficulty in holding him entering into the question in no small measure. Gradually the body grew as the rabbits were forced down the throat, and

DON'T WASTE PA'S GAS AND COAL

In Courting Unless You Mean Business-Judge's Injunction to Derelict Lover.

Chicago, June 10.—"If you don't intend to marry the girl don't waste her father's gas and coal by courting her." That was the substance of the remarks made by Justice Prindiville on Saturday morning. and there was a sensation in court when the justice discharged a young woman who threw acid on the young man who had won her tender heart in Detroit a few months ago, and then came to Chicago and began to take another young woman, who had more money, to the woman, who had more money, to the theaters and dances.

Miss Wellman, of Detroit, whose father is employed in the office of a lumber company, said she was a simple ittle maiden until Frank Van Houghten moved to the City by the Straits. She said that he would meet her when she was coming from school, walk home with her, and sometimes eat supper with the famand sometimes eat supper with the family. If he did not, he called four or five times a week, anyway, and her parents thought they were to be married this

But after keeping the self-feeder in the parior going until nearly midnight nearly every night all winter, Frank suddenly left Detroit. Miss Wellman cried for a few days, and then, unable to stand the taunts of her sisters, came to Chicago to taunts of her sisters, came to Chicago to locate the wily wooer.

She found he was "keeping company" with a young woman in Thirty-sixth street, and on Friday night she waited for the couple as they came from the theater. Then she asked Frank for a heart-to-heart talk. He refused, and she threw about an ounce of carbolic acid on him. Most of it went on his clothing, and nobody was hurt.

"I don't approve of throwing acid around as if you were watering a lawn," said Justice Prindiville, "but as long as you acted as if you were going to marry you acted as if you were going to marry her and then ran away, I don't blame her much. And as there's no damage done, Miss Wellman is discharged—only she mustn't do it again."

British Earl Becomes a Maniac and Murderer in a British Columbia Mining Town

brief mention:

Following are the details of a tragedy of which the telegraph has made fourth Earl of Harewood, and half brother to the present earl, and also cousin of Sir Frank Lascelles, ambassador to Germany, is the central figure in a tragedy which has cast a gloom over the mining town of Golden, B. C. Mr. Lascelles' servant is dead, shot by his master, and Lascelles himself has been committed to an insane asylum as a raving maniae, another victim of an isolated existence among the mountains in the uninhabitated interior of British Columbia.

Lascelles is a tall and distinguished looking Englishman with engaging manners. He inherited a fortune from his mother, and the present earl, his brother, advised him to live the life of a country gentleman in far-off British Columbia. Lascelles did not find ranching in this province the dream it was pictured to him, but being a man of means and enterprise he established many mining and transportation companies, putting up most of the cash to float them. A few months ago Lascelles was immoned by the police magistrate of Golden for some trivial cause, and on returning expressed annoyance at being served with a writ. He called the act of the authorities an outrage, and this was the beginning of the end.

Always harping on this subject the man grew morose and surly. Lascelles lived along with two Canadian farmers and two servants, and this little family was isolated from the world. his companions was Fred Kimpton, the other John Lambert. After dinner Lascelles spoke to his companions of the lasting disgrace on his good name caused by his being dragged into a police court to give evi-dence, and, suddenly going into his sleeping-room, he seized his rifle and shouted to his companions: count five, then I will shoot the first man I see." Lambert and Kimpton rushed from the house, and as they fled from the room they heard the ominous counting in a loud voice, "One, two, three, four." The last number was lost in the report of the rifle, and Lascelles' servant dropped dead not far from where his companions were hiding.

Lambert and Kimpton fled on their horses, followed by Lascelles' other servant, and the three made a gallop for town. As they fled into the dark ness they heard Lascelles denouncing his dead servant as a traitor and shouting that all his foes would perish

At midnight Lascelles' companions returned with a posse of police. The house was surrounded, and with great nerve Lambert walked unarmed Lascelles' room, sat down beside the maniac, and, engaging him in conver-

A take the troops back to India are exthat purpose.

Consul Abraham Smith, at Victoria, B. C., informs the state department suppress the Boers in Central Chili, that a survey party has located the landing site at the Canadian end of the cable, at a point on Kelp Bay, near Banfield Creek. It is about seven miles from the entrance to Barclay Sound, and something over 100 miles from Victoria. The location is described as being admirably adapted for the pur-

The cable will run from Vancouver Island to Fanning Island, which lies south of Hawaii—a distance of 3,337 miles before a landing is effected. Thence it will be laid to the Fijis to Norfolk Island and thence to Queens-

Work on the cable proper already has been commenced in England, and the first installment, which will be the cable for the route from Fanning Island on to Australia, is expected to leave England in January of 1902. By the terms of the contract the whole cable is to be laid and in working order by January 1, 1903. It will cost

OLD CONNECTICUT LAWS

Heavy Penalties Provided for Sabbath Breaking, Profanity and Gambling.

[Hartford Post.]

Tnomas W. Hewlings, of Chaplin, Conn., quartermaster of Thomas G. Brown Post, G. A. R., of that place, is the possessor of a valuable and interesting book that contains the acts and laws enacted away back in 1750, which is being exhibited among the members of the legislature. The title is "Acts and Laws Passed by the General Court of Assembly of His Majesty's English Colony of Connecticut, in New England in America." The book was printed at New London, and "Sold by Timothy Green, Printer to the Governor and Company of the Colony Aforesaid, 1750." Several pages are devoted to the observance of the Lord's Day. The act Lord's Day, and for preventing and Mr. Hardy was conveyed, on the ad- punishing disorders and prophaness on the same.

The act provides that all persons on Cameron and Dr. Starr performed an the Lord's Day must apply themselves operation. The patient was very weak to the duties of religion, both in public after the operation, but rallied last and in private, imposing a fine of 3 evening, and at a late hour the reshillings on anyone who neglects to port of Mr. Hardy's condition given attend public worship, Anyone who assembles in a meeting house and has a meeting without first getting leave from the minister is subject to a fine stated at the General Hospital that of 10 shillings. No person shall neg-Hon. Mr. Hardy's condition had been lect the public worship of God in some unchanged throughout the night. At lawful congregation, and assemble in that hour respiration was good, the separate companies in private houses pulse unsettled, but the patient was under penalty of a fine of 10 shillings. Anyone who worked or played on the Sabbath was subject to a fine of 10 shillings, and the penalty for rude or profane conduct was 40 shillings, and it cost 20 shillings to travel on Sun-Drinking was not allowed on Sunday, and a ship could not sail out of the harbor, fines being the penalty for violations. In the event that the person fined refused to pay he was to be "publickly whipt," and no appeal was allowed. Concerning swearing, which was prohibited every day in the week, the law reads:

"Be it enacted by the governor, council and representatives in general court assembled, and by the authority of the same, that if any person within this colony shall swear rashly, vainly or profanely, either by the holy name of God, or any other oath, or shall sinfully and wickedly curse any person, or persons, such person so offending shall, upon conviction thereof, before anyone, assistant or justice of the peace, forfeit and pay for every such offense the sum of 6 shillings.

"And if such person or persons so convicted shall not be able or shall refuse to pay the aforesaid fine, he or they shall be set in the stocks not exceeding three hours and not less than one hour for one offense, and pay cost of prosecution."

Gambling, or "gaming," as it was known then, was prohibited, the act saying that no tavern keeper, ale house keeper or victualler "shall have in or about their houses, outhouses, yards, back yards, gardens or other places to them belonging any cards, tables, bowls, shuffleboard, billiards, coytes, kells, logets or any other implements using in gaming, nor shall suffer any person to exercise any of the said games within their said houses, on pain of forfeiting the sum of 40 shillings. People convicted of playing any of the games were to be fined 10 shillings. The head of a family who permitted gaming in his house was subjected to a fine of 20 shillings. Concerning the "gaols," they were to be kept in good repar, the prisoners bear their own charges, and allowed to used their own bedding and send for their own food. The keepers who injured their prisoners were to be fined; poor prisoners were to be creditors notified and required to pay for his weekly maintenance if he insisted on keeping the prisoner in

The offenses against society were liberally provided for, the punishment being fines and imprisonment, and there were all sorts of laws, the same as now, some being more stringent and somewhat peculiar, viewed from the standpoint of the present century.

OKLAHOMA STRUCK

Four Lives Were Lost and Several Persons Injured-Most of the People Sought Safety in Cellars.

Perry, O. T., June 10. - The storm which passed over Eastern Oklahoma Friday night was one of the most sethe territory covered. Sweeping down from the Kansas State line and covering about 50 miles in width, the rain, wind and hail swept over the country as far south as Old Oklahoma. The rain fell in torrents from early in the evening until midnight.

DEAD AND INJURED. The dead are: Mrs. Maude McGathey, Louis McGathey, Robert McGiffin, and F. H. Crawford.

The injured are: Charles Goldsmith, skull fractured; John McBrain, leg broken; Hugh Prather, nose broken; Judd McWilliams, head crushed; Howard Hagaman, head badly crushed; Ruby Higginbothen, face crushed and internal injuries; A. D. Evans, leg bro-

The fury of the storm centered in a cyclone at about 6:30 p.m., which formed at a point near the Kansas State Kay and Grant, Oklahoma. The twister took a southeasterly course, and was most disastrous in an area of ten square miles in Eastern Kay county. The little town of Eddy was struck, and of the twelve or fifteen buildings in the place all were leveled to the ground except the railroad station and The people of the town sought places of safety. Three persons were killed and several slightly injured by flying At Blackwell, a few miles north of Tonkawa, F. H. Crawford, a carpenter working on a house, was struck by lightning and instantly killed.

MANY BUILDINGS DESTROYED. The track of the cyclone between Perry and Tonkawa, a distance of about eight miles, was laid waste. Five farm houses, with barns and outbuildings were blown away, but all the occupants escaped without injury. Fine fields of wheat in the midst of harvest were laid waste.

The tail end of the cyclone fell with terrible force upon Tonkawa. Thirty dwellings and business houses were scattered like loose lumber. The izens of the town had been watching the advance of the storm, and had sought shelter in caves and cellars No fatalities are reported at this point and only a few persons received scratches, which is almost miraculous, nsidering the devastation.

A few miles from this point the cvclone seemed to go up in the air and the country below did not suffer much from the storm, except by washouts and a stiff wind with the hail in spots, which did some damage to fruit and the wheat crop.

TWO PROSPECTORS' SAD END. Toronto, June 15.-A letter received by the department of crown lands on Saturday reports the finding in the woods of the Rainy River District of the bodies of two men who disappeared, and were not heard from since last November. They were Charles Nelson and a companion, prospectors in the Manitou gold region. They left Gold Rock, on the Upper Manitou Lake, for their camp, and since then no trace was found of them until a few days ago, when their bodies were discovered. It is supposed they lost their way, as that part of the country is as yet lit-tle developed. Nelson's home was in Nova, Sweden, and he had a brothe named Frank O. Nelson, living in Chicago.

London, June 10.—At the meetings of concert as an executive and administrative agency. ing the past week there were several interesting debates, notably one dealing with the Athanasian Creed. Rev. Charles John Ridgeway and Rev. Blomfield Jackson, prebendaries of St. Paul's Cathedral, moved and seconded that a to wear long black veils and bands retranslation be submitted for the pre-

Canon Joseph Armitage Robinson, of Westmir.ster, opposed this motion. He said he thought the present version admirably represented the meaning of the original framers. The temper of the vime was photographically reproduced in its magnificent anathemas, and no retranslation can soften what was meant to be as hard as adamant. He continued:

Those words appall the average mind of today. How then can we justify their repetition in the service (f the church? Doubtless there are several answers. I can only give mine. I sing them as part of the great hymn composed as the battle-song of the church, when at some length she had vanquished the Arians and other deprayers of the faith. I sing them as I sing certain portions of the Psalms, which are wholly un-Christian in their temper. We have no authority to pick and choose. I say to myself this is the way they try to serve God. Then their clear distinctions between right and wrong help us still, though their zeal to enforce them needs a different expression in our later days. But as I sing them I long for the day when the church will allow me to sing only the splendid confession of my faith without clauses which seem to threaten my

Canon Robinson advocated following the church's own precedent in eliminating the anathemas formerly at the end of the Nicene Creed. He argued that the retranslation suggested diffi-culties where none exist, and would simply mean that the church of the twentieth century solemnly reaffirms in a more modern dress the anathemas of the fifth century, which we tolerate only as part of the historical record and do not desire to utter anew as our

MRS. BOTHA IN LONDON. The arrival of Mrs. Louis Botha in London has been the signal for a revival of peace rumors. She speaks English well, and has informed reporters here and at Southampton that she has no communication to make respect-ing her mission here. Mr. Fischer, who accompanies her, is equally emphatic in refusing to impart any information They had little to say to their fellowpassengers during their voyage from the Cape. They met one or two sympathizers when the ship reached dock, and drove quietly to their lodgings from the station, taking pains to conceal their address. The rumor

to go upon when they draw the inference that she has come to London to deliver messages and proposals from her husband respecting a suspension of hostilities, and that as soon as she consulted with Lord Salisbury and Mr. Chamberlain she will go to Hol-land and talk with Mr. Kruger. This inference is natural enough, and is the easiest possible guess, and there the matter ends, for there is no authority for any rumor respecting the disposi tion of the government to entertain any proposals.

A GRIM-LOOKING WOMAN. Mr. Chamberlain and Lord Milner, who disagreed on one or two points when at opposite ends of the cable can now talk across the table, and their decision will be final. Mrs. Botha is a grim-looking woman, with an earnest face and a quiet manner. Military men and members of parliament have little faith in the success of her mission. They assert that the Boe rally in the Transvaal will encourage Kruger and Leyds to offer strenuous resistance to General Botha's proposal and that the sudden revival of rumors of European intervention is early proof of their non-acquiescence in premature peace-making. They also apprehend that the main object of the appearance of Mrs. Botha and Mr. Fis cher in England is to make futile suggestions and revive the pro-Boer agitation in and out of parliament. ONE BLACK SPOT.

The continental horizon is not obscured by clouds in any quarter, for the negotiations between Madrid and Paris are prefunctory and the menace of a disturbance in the Balkans is merely a black spot floating before the eye of the alarmist correspondent. Europe has leisure for taking a complete inventory of the job lot of China policies in which it has been trafficis relief in every capital over

Veterans who have spent lifetime in China in the consular the diplomatic service shake their leads and declare that the mandarins will be more dangerous than ever before, where they have lost neither prestige nor political authority; have worn out the patience of Europe, and proved that while they cannot fight the armies of civilization, they are invincible when they retreat and bide their time. ALLEGED SHORTAGE OF IN-

He claims the Merchants' Bank, of Windsor, should have paid the county $112 49 for deposits last year, but allowed the county only $37. The bank has been carrying the county's account on the same agreement for the last twelve years. Bell's contention is upheld, there is likely a corresponding shortage of in-terest for the whole period, which would amount to over $1,000. A committee was appointed to meet Manager Greenhill, of the bank, and discuss the

BOY TOOK 10,000 VOLTS OF ELECTRICITY.

Resuscitated After Twenty Minutes' Work and in a Fair Way to Get Well.

[Hartford Courant.] Walter Budds, 9 years old, had current from an electric cable carrying 10,000 volts of electricity pass through his body the other day. That he was not killed instantly is considered miraculous, but the physicians at the Hartford Hospital, where the boy is now suffering from the effects of the shock say that he will recover. Young Budds started out with Johnny Farrell and Willie Cosgrove, young chums of his, to see the circus parade. They went to Main street, near the tunnel, and after waiting for some time without the parade's coming in sight, they got uneasy. On Almas; vice-presidents, C. C. James (To-ronto), A. Pattullo (Woodstock); trea-through which the cables that bring through which the cables that bring the electric current in from the Farmington River pass into the underground system of the company. One of the boys suggested that they climb upon the roof of the terminal tub to see if the parade was coming down Albany avenue. They made a run for the tub. A ladder stood in the rear of the tub, and the tub is built several feet above the surface of the ground. Young Budds was in advance of the others. He was the first to mount the ladder, and as he climbed the Niagara River, of the same dimenup the rounds he turned to the other boys and said that he could get to sight, and that he might have a better view of the surroundings he reached from the top of the tub to one of the cables with the heavy voltage for the purpose of pulling himself onto the pole which carried the cables down through the tub. In taking hold of the cable, he instantly connected himself with electric current. His feet were jerked from beneath him, his body became rigid and blue flames shot out from the cables underneath the boy's hands. Young Farrel, who was next to where the Budds boy stood, grabbed young friend, but the electric current was of such high tension that he was thrown down on the roof. There were several hundred people in the locality at the time. They saw the boy hang-ing from the cable and seemed to be unable to move. Policeman Vail, with others, was on the opposite corner. Mr. Vail's attention was called to the boy. He ran to the place and saw that he was suspended from the cable and that his feet were hanging over the edge of the tub. He picked up the ladder and with it broke the boy's contact with the cable, and the boy feil on the roof of the tub. Mr. Vail climbed the ladder and handed the rigid body to those on the sidewalk. Everything indicated that the boy was

What appeared to the big crowd to have been a dead boy was brought back to life, and then the little fellow was taken to the Hartford Hospital in an unconscious condition. He was very weak on being received at the institution, but during the afternoon he gained more strength and had a long sleep. Both his hands were badly burned, and the index finger of

On a Ship Canal and the Improvement of United States Water Ways.

[New York Journal.] Mr. Andrew H. Green has furnished to the press a letter from Mr. Francis Wayland Glen urging the expenditure nation; and, further, it means the expenditure of $1,000,000,000 chiefly for penditure of $1,000,000,000 chiefly for penditure of $1,000,000,000 chiefly for the class of States of $1,000,000,000 on the following enterprises: 1. A ship canal from the Hudson River through the channel of the Mohawk River, Oneida Lake and Oswego River to Lake Ontario, with 25 feet of water over the mitre sills, with locks in proportion, and also a canal from Olcott, on Lake Ontario, to Tonawanda, upon sions. 2. A ship canal from Albany to the the top first. The parade was not in St. Lawrence River through Lake Champlain, of the same depth of water and locks of the same size. 3. A ship canal from Chicago to deep water upon the Illinois River, of the same dimensions. 4. The improvements of the channels of the Hudson, Mississippi, Missouri, and Ohio Rivers, so that the largestsized vessel can pass through the canals proposed, can pass up and down these rivers with perfect freedom. 5. The enlargement of the St. Law-rence and Welland canals to the same dimensions as those above proposed. 6. The construction of the French River, Ottawa and Montreal Canal with the same sized locks and depth of water, thereby connecting Georgian Bay with the tide water at Montreal.

ley Canal from Midland, on Georgian Bay, to Murray Bay, on Lake Ontario, to the same dimensions. Mr. Glen estimates that in addition to their value as transportation routes the canals will develop water power to the extent of about 10,000,000 horse power, and that this alone would pay six times the interest on their cost and furnish employment for several times

The ship canal from Chicago to deep water on the Illinois River and the improvement of the channels of the Hudson, Mississippi, Missouri Ohio are desirable undertakings, although the deepening of the Mississippi and Missouri channels would be a rather expensive job.

As to the other schemes, we should carry them out with great pleasure if this were a united continent. Mr. Glen says: "The construction of these cansis means to the vast and noble army of North American workers eight hours per day for labor, eight hours for recreation, invention, discovery and self-culture, and eight hours for rest and slumber; with better food, clothing and shelter, and a larger share of the comforts and luxuries of me than they have ever enjoyed before, or than is enjoyed by the workings of any other unskilled labor, and for this class of workers it will be an inestimable blessing, and, finally, it means the complete emancipation of this hemisphere and all of its destinies from European domain, dominion and control, and its dedication to the uplifting of humanity through peaceful industry. Or, in other words, the creation of a Greater United States, extending from Newfoundland to Vancouver and from the Gulf of Mexico to the Arctic See, cluding Hawaii on the West and all the islands on the East which as satellites to a planet belong to North America." If there any assurance that the construction of the Canadian canals at the expense of the United States Government would mean the union of the continent the appropriation would be made at the next session of congress. But where is such an assurance to be had?

They will go to the Pan-American and through the States to California and back. Mr. Lockhart's repertoire will consist of Scotch, Irish and English songs, and also Italian arias. It speaks well for Mr. Lockhart's ability in being selected as soloist for the band. Eugene Lockhart, his talented little son, also accompanies the band as regimental dancer. Just after closing the contract, Mr. Lockhart had an offer from New York to sing first tenor in the Metropolitan Male Quartet, of that city.

-The Girls' Mission Band, of the Dundas Center Methodist Church, held its closing meeting for the season in the Sunday school rooms last evening. A short business meeting was followed by a programme consisting of solos by Miss A. Donald and Miss Sparkman, and an instrumental selection by Miss A. Bradford. Talks on mission work were given by Miss F. Park, district organizer of the Baptist Missionary Society, and Mrs. Mc Mechan, of the Auxiliary. The annual reports of the recording secretary and the treasurer showed a gratifying increase in the membership and in the income. A committee of the Young Woman's Mission Circle served re-

BIG ENGINE CRUSHED HIM

Section Hand Instantly Killed at Hyde Park.

Was Lying Across the Track and the Train Could Not Be Stopped-Body Cut to Pieces.

Robert Herrington, a G. T. R. section man, was run over and killed half a mile east of Hyde Park station by the G. T. R. westbound express, No. 3, drawn by the big new engine, No. 988, which left London at 11:05 a.m.

When first seen by the train crew, the man was lying on the track a short distance ahead, and there was not time to stop the train before running over him. The train was in charge of Engineer Buckpit and Conductor Bruce. The body of the unfortunate man was horribly mangled, being literally ground to pieces. His neck was broken, the skull and face were crushed in, both legs were taken off below the hips and both feet crushed, while the arms were partially severed. The clothing was torn from the body, and not a single garment in pieces. The hat was the only por-tion of his apparel undamaged. The contents of the pockets were a knife, a purse, a pencil and other small ar-ticles. The remains were gathered up and brought to the city, where they were removed to the undertaking rooms of John Ferguson & Sons. They were viewed by Coroner Ferguson, who concluded that no blame attached to the train crew. Both the coroner and the undertaker said they had never seen a body so frightfully mangled. Robert Herrington, the dead man, was unmarried, and was aged 24 years. The only relatives known of at present is an aunt living at Niagara Falls, N. Y. He had been working with a G. T. R. section gang under Foreman Albert Prince since May 24. He boarded with Thomas Lewis, near Hyde Park. Saturday he told the foreman he would not work because he thought it was going to rain, but about 11 o'clock he was at the Hyde Park station, and told the operator he thought he would go to work. ### SHOOTING OF CONSTABLE BOYD

TO DEATH! As Told to the Court by Constable Stewart.

> The Scramble for the Pistols Thrown Into the Cab-Rutledge Told Rice to Shoot Boyd.

Toronto, June 8.-From the general sessions courtroom, where the Aurora bank robbers had received their sentence, the men were taken back to the police court dock, and Constable Stewart was placed on the witness

He related the circumstances leading up to the killing of Boyd. He told of the parcel being thrown into the cab and falling on Rutledge's side. Witness was opposite Rutledge. All the criminals except Jones, scrambled for the parcel. Jones sat back in the seat and inquired: "What's up?" Rice got a revolver from the parcel and Rutledge clutched something. Witness also clutched the revolver in Rutedge's hands.

By this time Constable Boyd and the prisoner Rice were struggling. Thought Rice said to Boyd "Quit, or give up!" Boyd refused, and Rice pulled on him. Rutledge, in the meantime, got possession of the revolver he and witness were struggling for. Putting it to Stewart's head he said "Quit." Rutledge said to Rice, "Give "Quit." Rutledge said to Rice, "Give it to him!" and Rice pulled the trig-

STEWART'S PRESENCE OF MIND. "I put up my hands," said Constable Stewart, "and told them to get out. They got out of the hack and I swung around on the step and fired at them. They were running toward the horses, and turned and fired at me. I think there was only one shot fired, and the one which killed Boyd, until I fired. I don't know how often I fired or how often they fired at me. I went around the hack and they went around the horses. They got on the trolley car and I followed. They were fighting with the motorman, and Rice said to Rutledge 'Give it to him,' meaning for Rutledge to fire at me. Rice tried to twist his revolver around at me, and Routledge was trying to get his revolver around at the motorman. I got Rutledge's revolver and pounded him with the butt. Somebody else hit Rice, and they both quit almost insensible."

DEFENSE OUTLINED. The witness was cross-examined by T. C. Robinette, the prisoners' counsel, who intimated what line the defense would take. He will attempt to show that the shooting of Boyd was not deliberate. Stewart said there was a struggle between Boyd and Rice, but he thought the shooting was delibe-Rutledge could have shot witness if he had wanted to. He did not know whether Rutledge had fired at him or not. He (Stewart) fired at all three, and not particularly at Jones.

THE MACHINISTS

The investigation was then adjourned for a week.

Take Up the Challenge of the Nationa Trades Association—War Declared.

Toronto, June 8 .- The International Association of Machinists, at this morning's session, in answer to the statement from New York that the National Trades Association had declared war on the Machinists' Union, on the ground that it had violated the agreement of May 18, 1900, by refusing to arbitrate the question of wages, passed a resolution stating that the question of arbitration of wages in connection with the nine-hour day is not mentioned, and that officers of the Metal Trades Association have themselves given the nine-hour day without reduction of wages, and that President O'Connell has done all possible to secure a national arbitration on the wage question.

The resolution continues, "The said efforts proving futile, the proffered offer of peace being brutally refused, be it resolved that we, the delegates assembled at the ninth convention of the association, after due and mature deliberation do hereby accept the lenge forced upon us by the National Metal Trades Association in accepting this declaration of war. We fully realize what it means, but, armed with the knowledge that our cause is just, as our efforts are honest, we cheerfully pick up the gauntlet and hurl back the defiance with the addition that if it is to be war let it be war to the knife, and the knife to the hilt, for we never will accept any modification of our demands or re-sume labor until the holy cause for which we struggle is triumphant and the shorter workday is an accomplished fact, monumental to the cohesive power and co-operative efforts of the International Association of Machin-

While in the penitentiary he became on a marauding expedition. They made a specialty of banks, postoffices and customs houses, and secured several large hauls. Some time after the men were released, an attempt was made in the customs house at Port Dalhousie by three burglars. One of the trio was shot while in the act of climbing through a window. The next morning the dead body of a man was found in the vicinity, covered with "Billy" Black's coat. It was then known that the third man was Rutledge.

Inspector John Murray was placed on their trail, and with half a dozen Toronto officers one night went out to the Rutledge homestead, hoping to capture the whole gang. The house was surrounded, and at dawn the doors were broken in, but the quarry had flown. Rutledge and Black disappeared for short time, and when they returned to Ontario again they robbed several banks in Simcoe and Grey counties. Black was arrested in Hamilton, and got four years. Rutledge succeeded in evading ar rest in Canada, and was next heard of Colorado. He had been apprehended in Red Cloud, Nebraska, for stealing bicycles, and was sentenced to serve four years in the state peniten- all trackmen employed on the system, tiary of Colorado.

Here he met Jones and Rice, and planned with them the robberies which resulted in the taking of three lives, his own included.

SUICIDE PREMEDITATED. In the police court yesterday morning, when other people were thinking about the sentence, Rutledge took off his gold ring and handed it through the bars of the cage to T. C. Robinette, his counsel. Just a few minutes before the prisoner had handed Mr. Robinette what seemed a small paper packet. These things were so small as to be almost unnoticed at the time, but when the news flashed through the city in the afternoon, those who had witnessed this were convinced that Rutledge had made up his mind as to the end that was going to come in the next few hours. As a matter of fact, Rutledge walked almost straight from that dock to his death on the floors of the jail. In the meantime he had the past year he has not been in good sent the ring to a certain woman.

RICE'S NERVE FAILED HIM. One of the officials at the jail said yesterday that he believed that Rice and Rutledge had both made up their minds to take their own lives, and that they both were to jump from the balcony, but they believe that Rice's courage failed him when the opportune moment came. They were carefully kept apart when in the jail. Governor Van Zant said that the prisoners had been models in their regard of the rules since they had been confined in the jail. He said that Rice will from now on not be allowed to leave his cell, for if he has the slightest opportunity he will do something desper-

A BIG UNION PROPOSED !

Detroit Street Car Men's Association May Be Largest in the Country.

Ottawa Plasterers' Demands Acceded To-Halifax Carpenters Will Have Arbitration.

Detroit News: It now looks as if De troit's street car men's union is soon going to be one of the big local labor organizations of the country. The buying in of the suburban lines by the owners of the Detroit United Railway will bring something like 500 more men under the agreement, present and prospective, and this means to all these former "outsiders" a substantial increase in wages.

"This was one of the arguments Mr. Hutchins used yesterday in refusing a raise of wages to us," said President Shafer this morning. "He said he would have to raise the wages of all RUTLEDGE'S the conductors and motormen on these suburban lines to our standard, which meant many thousands of dollars to the company. "There are three local divisions running suburban lines that will have to turn in their charters and join the Detroit union. We will have jurisdiction over a vast extent of territory, from as far north as Port Huron, to Toledo. The agreement committee has decided not to call either a general meeting of the union or a special meeting of the executive board, but will report at the latter's regular meeting, June 19."

OTTAWA PLASTERERS WIN. Ottawa, June 7. - The plasterers' strike, affecting 35 men and 11 contractors, has been settled by the contractors giving in and signing the agreement with the men. The agreement calls for a nine-hour day, 50 cents an hour for seven months, and 23 cents an hour for five months and a Saturday

SENT UP TO DINNER.

When Rice and Rutledge arrived at the jail at about 3 o'clock, they were taken to the searching room opposite the governor's office, where they were rigidly inspected by the officials. Then they were sent up to dinner. The dining-room is on the first floor, and to reach it the route was through the bars at the main entrance to the corridors, then across the main hall to a spiral staircase. Rice was almost at the front of the other prisoners, and Rutledge was three prisoners behind him. Guard Tom Lonergan was on duty on the first floor watching cor-ridors 3 and 4, and the prisoners were being taken to dinner by Guard Geo.

WANTED NO DINNER. Instead of entering the dining-room with the other prisoners, Rutledge dashed away and ran two or three use of the council chamber for their stairs at a time up the spiral staircase which leads to the chapel. Then he placed one leg over the railing and took a quick glance at the floor 30 feet below. He adroitly dragged over the other leg, and then brought both feet almost up to the rail, where his hands were, and then pushed himself away by the feet and landed upon his head

Today-Light variable winds; fine Tuesday - Moderate southeasterly and warmer. winds, fine, except showers before night in western portion.

WEATHER NOTES. Light frost occurred both Sunday morning and this morning over the high lands of Western Ontario; conditions are now of a decidedly more summerly appearance, and it is probable a fairly pronounced heat wave now developing in the west will be felt in Ontario within the next few days. The weather has turned warmer again in the Northwest Territories.

LATE LOCAL ITEMS

-Mrs. S. Macdonald, son and daughter left this morning at 8:40 for Winnipeg, where they expect to spend the next six months.

-The entire western peninsula suffered considerably from frost Sunday morning, and many tender plants were destroyed. The thermometer at the local observatory marked 31.2 degrees. -The many friends of Mr. Walter Tuckey, of 189 Oxford street, will refactory, when his team ran away and crushed his leg. It will be some time before he will be about again.

BUFFALO FAMILY HEADED BY JOCK.

He Is Untamed and Untamable and Keeps All Visitors at a Safe Distance.

Of the three representatives of the rapidly disappearing buffalo family in the Highland Park zoo, "Jock, the Bison," as he is called, is at once the oldest and the head of the family. Yet he is comparatively a youngster, being only about eight years old, and the buffalo attains an age of 25 or 30 years. "Jock" was brought to Pittsburg and was from Chicago four years ago, and was until two years ago one of the interesting inhabitants of the Schenley Then he was transferred to Highland, his capture preparatory to removal involving a great amount of trouble. To lasso him was out of the question. It might have cost the life of some one of those who undertook it. So a trap was prepared, and a week was spent in useless efforts to week was spent in useless efforts to induce the animal to walk into Finally "Jock" was trapped and hauled to Highland in a securely fastened There he has remained ever at close range, and even his keepers do not venture upon any familiarities with him. In fact, they prefer to have as little to do with him as possible, and he is permitted to have his own way within the inclosure that answers the purposes of rolling prairie.

The cow Nell and the bull calf Harry are of more docile disposition. They are doing finely, and have never given the zoo authorities any apprehension as to health. They have good appetites, are fed three times a day, and eat with satisfaction and a relish bran, oats and vegetables, being especially partial to the latter. buffalo is a dirty animal. He thrives on it, and is never so happy as when a rain makes mud in which he can roll. No attempt is made to enforce rules of personal cleanliness, and the efforts of the keepers are confined to maintaining a resonable observance of sanitary measures about the buffalo inclosure. The dirty appearance of the buffaloes has led vistors to imagine that they were not in the pink of health, but upon inquiry

they have learned that an untidy hide is an unfailing indication that a buffalo is feeling at his best.

Few animals at the zoo have greater interest for the masses of visitors than the buffalo family. The species is fast becoming extinct, and about the only remnants of the race are to the only remnants of the race are to be found in the zoological gardens and the government's Yellowstone Park. The specimens at Highland could not be purchased at any price, because of the rarity of the tribe. Especially is the cow Nell held at high value, for so far as the government without the rank of far as the zeo authorities know impossible to buy a female buffalo anywhere. A trial was made some time ago and resulted in failure. The government would not part with one, and the zoos possessing them placed prohibitive prices upon them. Great expectations are entertained of the calf Harry. He is a promising specimen of the race, and the fact that he was born in captivity and in the haunts of civilization is not be-lieved to be likely to render him a degenerate. Although but two years of age, he is only slightly smaller than his mother, and makes a respectable showing in comparison with the old man himself. The resign of Took is

"Then I took it upon myself to break the news of his supposed crime to his fiance, and while so doing betrayed my own love for her. She was naturally the gentlest creature in the world, but at this outrage to her womanhood, coming at such a trying time, all her spirit arose at such a trying time, all her spirit arose in arms, and she denounced me in no mild terms. Then I lost my head and added insult to injury. I told her that I would save Everard if she would go away with me immediately and be secretly married. seemed to become inspired with the truth, and boldly denounced me as the traitor and rogue.

"I was so astonished by the daring charge that I was speechless before her and, filled with despair over my failure to accomplish my purpose, I left her and taking my ill-gotten booty fled the country. She had seemed so gentle and yielding that I had felt sure she would sacrifice herself to save her lover, but I was amazed at the spirit and strength of character she displayed. I learned afterward that she went straight to the bank and made a frank statement of what had occurred, whereupon an expert was called in to examine the signature on the forged cack, and he pronounced it to be the work of my hand instead of my brother's. Everard was immediately released, but was so crushed by learning of my treachery, and the fear of the effect the disgraceful exposure would have upon my mother, that he offered to make good the amount I had taken if the matter was hushed. This was accomplished to a certain extent; I was exonorated—the affair was called a blunder, or misunderstanding, among those who knew of it, for it had gone far enough to be made public, and the excitement soon subsided. My brother was married soon after and went to the far West, where he finally died, leaving only one child. My mother had died some time previous, and almost a poor woman, for her money had been invested in stock which depreciated very rapidly."

"People talk of the 'prosperity of the wicked,'" Madame Marton's companion resumed. "It is true they often do prosper, if riches are an indication; but if every rogue is as wretched as I have been in the possession of wealth, the term is certainly a misnomer. I have made and lost several fortunes, because, having no family upon whom to spend my money, I have been reckless and indifferent regarding either loss or gain. But I seem to have been endowed with a talent for accumulating; and finally, after my last streak of luck, I resolved to come home, hunt up my brother, and see if I could. by any means, wipe out the old score against me. I found that he had been dead for years. His wife had followed him only a few months before my return, and their child no one could tell me anything about, save that she had gone to live with relatives after the death of her and their child no one could tell me anything about, save that she had gone to live with relatives after the death of her mother. I sought her for months, but without the slightest success, until last September I was brought face to face with her in the most unexpected manner."

"Ah! then you found her of the success of questioning.

"No!" replied her companion, with an uncomfortable shrug of his portly shoulders, "for when I was confronted so suddenly by Edna Remirgton's child—a girl who is even more lovely than her mother was, if that was possible—when I looked into her pure clear eyes and realized the was, if that was possible—when I looked into her pure, clear eyes and realized the beauty and nobility, yes, and the heroism of her character, my courage and my good resolutions instantly forsook me. I became a veritable coward, and fled from her. It seemed impossible for me to go to her and tell her the story of my vicious life; to explain how I had wronged her father, insulted her mother, and offer to make atonement to her at this late day, when they were beyond my reach. I felt sure that she would despise me, and scorn to accept such tardy justice, even though it was rightfully her due."

"Humph! that may be all very well from a sentimental point of view," bluntly observed madame. "But," she added, with characteristic practicality, "if her feather serviced the most of his for-

It was incredible! It was appalling! It was overwhelming!

And what strange fate had ordered that she should be sent into her home? had decreed that the daughter of her long hated rival should become a veritable sunbeam in her house, brightening every day of her life with her sweet presence, and twining herself like some fragrant vine upon a gnarled and unsightly stump around her crabbed old heart, which, for so many years, had been steeled against the softening influence of every human being.

It was well for Shirley that madame had not learned the truth earlier, or she might have been summarily dismissed from her service. It was well for the woman herself or she might have lived and died without ever having learned the blessedness of loving and being loved.

"Do you know the girl?" Alexander Hartman, inquired, while he regarded the pallid and astonished woman with surprise.

"Shirley Livingstone has been my com-

"Shirley Livingstone has been my com-panion for a year," was the brief but panion for a year," was the brief but startling response. The man gave a violent start and turn-ed a look of amazement upon his comed a look of amazement upon his companion.

"By all that is mysterious! can that be possible?" he exclaimed.

Then a troubled expression flitted across his face.

"Well this revelation astounds me," he remarked, after a moment of anxious thought. "I've been nothing but a blunderer and a marplot all my life; but of course I never dreamed that things were to be complicated in any such way as this. I suppose you'll hate the girl now most cordially, simply because she is the child of her mother," he concluded with a sigh.

Madame smiled at this latter remark, though there was a tinge of bitterness in it.
"I probably should have hated her with all my heart if I had learned of this a year ago," she answered. "But," with a softened gleam in her eyes, "one cannot live twelve months with a heavenly sunbeam shiping directly across one's path hive twelve months with a heavenly sun-beam shining directly across one's path and have it remain quite a barren waste. I tell you, Alec Hartman, that girl has been my salvation; she has managed to find the way to my heart, an organ which I had believed I did not possess; and the example of gentleness, sweetness, and patience which she has set me has helped, I trust, to eradicate something of the hatred and desire for revengethe spite and malice which have possessed me all my life. A year ago I should have scorned to exchange one word with you; but today, though you have done me one of the greatest wrongs it is possible for a man to commit against a woman; though, by your own confession, you have been a forger and a thief. I have no word of condemnation for you. I, who have lived none too uprightly myself, have no business to be casting stones at others. You and I can never be friends in this world—the scars of old wounds are still too tender for that; but at least we will not be avowed enemies. I have not so very many years before me at the most, and I would like to spend them in peace with all men. As for the woman you loved and for whom you deserted me," madame went on, after a moment of grave thought, "I am free to confess that I have hated her most bitterly; but what you have told me today has caused a complete revolution in my feelings toward her. She did me no wrong—you alone were guilty; you wronged both her and me; and hereafter I can but reverence her memory, because of the child whom she reared and educated to be such a blessing to re in my old age. There she sits yonder," and madame waved her hand toward the spot where Shirley sat, arranging a bouquet of daisies and making as the shimmering sunlight fell upon her between the madame waved her hand toward the spot where Shirley sat, arranging a bouquet of daistes and making as the shimmering sunlight fell upon her between the branches of the trees, a picture to delight any beauty-loving eye.

"Ah!" said Mr. Hartman, "I noticed that someone was with you as I was passing, but did not especially observe her in my surprise at meeting you. I recognize her now as the girl whom I met last fall."

"Well, what are you going to do? Will you restore to her the money of which you defrauded her father?" madame demanded, with something of her old sharpness. sharpness.

The man winced at the question, their gravely replied:
"I'd be glad to settle something handsome on her now, and make her my heir to the remainder of my property when I am done with it; but—Felice, must I tell her all that disgraceful story?" and a flush of shame mounted to his brows as he thought of revealing to Shirley—that sweet, brave girl—the treachery and ignominy which had black—ened his life.

ened his life.

Madame did not reply for a minute. She seemed to be gravely considering the matter.

"No; I do not believe that will be necessary," she said at last. "She might, as you have said, refuse to receive anything from you, for Shirley is very proudspirited, in spite of her gentleness, and avceedingly serunulous hesides. You can spirited, in spite of her gentieness, and exceedingly scrupulous besides. You can simply tell her that her father paid out a large sum of money years ago, to relieve you of a heavy obligation; that when it was in your power to restore it and you returned to this country to do so, he was dead and you could find not trace. he was dead, and you could find not trace of his family. That will be the truth, of his family. That will be the truth, as far is it goes, and she need not be pained by the miserable details."
"But perhaps she knows the whole story already," objected Mr. Hartman,

"But perhaps she knows the whole story already," objected Mr. Hartman, doubtfully.

"I do not think she does," said madame. "I doubt if she even knows of your existence, for she has told me her history, and did not refer to anything of the kind. While her father was living she was too young to be told of such troubles, and I imagine that her mother would be sensitive about speaking of the matter to her when she was older. However, you can very easily ascertain by broaching the subject to her in the way I have mentioned."

"Thank you, Felice, for the suggestion.

ous glance.
"Yes," was the slightly embarrassed answer. "I hadn't quite forgotten you, and I had a—a desire to know how time had been dealing with you during all these years."

Madame turned away from his glance with something of pervousness in her with something of nervousness in her manner, while there was a slight flash on her cheeks. she said, abruptly, "the crash came after that. But we will not talk about it. I shall be provided for, as Shirley is going to give me a home when she is married."

"Is she going to be married?" [To be Continued.]

GREAT AMERICAN STAKES. New York, June 10.-The great American stakes of $12,500 was the magnet which drew about 16,000 people to the Gravesend race track Saturday. John E. Madden's Blue Girl, at 6 to 1, won this event cleverly, over the rather slow track, with the next four horses heads apart, Nasturtium, the favorite, getting the place from Major Dangerfield. The Great American was the third event on the card, distance five furlongs, for 2-year-olds. Eight mitted suicide. horses faced the starter, and they were sent off on the second break to a fair start for all but Saturday, who was caught flat footed. Blue Girl and Major Dangerfield rushed out to make the running, but the others, with the exception of Saturday, were close up and racing in a bunch. On the far turn Nasturtium was sharply cut off, losing three or four lengths. Blue Girl, Major Dangerfield and Whiskey King was the order coming in the stretch, and when they straightened for home Blue Girl drew away and won cleverly by two lengths. Nasturtium closed with a rush and got up in time to get the place by a head from Major Dangerfield, while Golden Cottage and Saturday were only heads away, the latter making up much ground from a bad beginning. Garrigan, on the favorite, claimed a foul against the winner, but the stewards would not allow it. In the Broadway stakes The Parader won rather easily from All Green and Vitellus, the other entries refusing. The Parader was on odds on five and led all the way.

Rivers Under the Ocean.

A few months ago H. Benest, an English geographer, published an interesting study of streams of fresh water flowing beneath the surface of the sea. Disasters to ocean telegraph cables first called attention to this subject. On several occasions, about 1895, a new and well-made cable between Cape Verde and Brazil broke. Soundings were made to discover whether these breakings were due to the state of the sea bottom, and it was found that the place in question was near the submarine mouth of a subterranean river; the alluvial material trans-ported by this fresh water stream encountered the cable and finally succeeded in breaking it.

The fact is that a river that flows into the lagoons of Yof, on the coast of Senegal, is finally lost in the sand. It undoubtedly has taken its invisible course to the sea, and it is this river that has been discovered in the deep hollow of more than 1,300 meters (4,270 feet) that is traversed by the Brazilian cable. Also while the cable was being repaired at a point 24 kilometers (15 miles) from the shore the repair ship was surrounded one day by orange skins, calabashes and bits of cloth which could not have come from the mouth of the Senegal river, 140 kilometers (90 miles) distant.

Palms and Rubber Plants.

In growing palms and rubber plants the pot is an important item. That for rubber plants should be quite large, says the Kansas City Journal. One measuring eight inches is not a bit too large for an ordinary plant two feet in height. Painted pots should always be avoided, since the paint closes up the pores of the clay, and serves the double purpose of keeing in too much moisture and keeping out the air. It is important that the pot for a palm should be much deeper than it is wide, for the roots of the palm strike dewnward, instead of spreading out laterally. Of the two, the rubber plant needs the richer soil. For either have a good layer of charcoal in the bottom of the pot for drainage. Over it put a layer of florist's moss to prevent the clogging that might result from watering. There should be a liberal quantity of sand in the upper layer of soil. In the case of the rubber plant a little bone meal as a fertilizer should be added to the soil in winter time.

Mere surface watering does little or no good. The frequency with which palms and rubber plants need watering depends upon the air in the room, and the principal thing to judge by is the dryness of the soil. Two or three times a week in winter should be sufficient, but at these times the earth about the roots should be thoroughly saturated. It is a dryness of the soil. Two or three times a week in winter should be sufficient, but at these times the earth about the roots should be thoroughly saturated. It is a poor plan to leave water standing in the saucer below the plant, with the idea that it will be drawn up by the roots. For the most part it evaporates. Palms are very slow growers, and do not need transplanting oftener than once in two years. When transferring one to a larger pot set the roots and the old earth, as little disturbed as possible, in the center and fill out the borders with the new soil. Some women who have had great success in rearing rubber plants declare that the leaves should be sponged with soap and water, and that a little castor oil poured about the roots occasionally, is wonderfully healthful to the growing plant. It is certain that plants with large leaves should be sponged frequently to free the pores from dust.

You Are Not Sick But Feel Miserable

Nearly everybody seems to complain more or less at this season of the year. You feel the need of some tonic to put new strength and energy into the system. You don't sleep well, and suffer more or less from headache and dyspepsia. It may be you are depressed and discouraged, and feel the affairs of everyday life a burden. Little things worry and irritate you. You are not sick, but lack the vitality that is necessary for health and happiness.

There is one preparation which is doing wonders these days as a restorative and nerve invigorator, and that is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It is different from any medicine you ever used, for instead of tearing down the tissues of the body it builds them up, and so thoroughly fills the system with new life and vigor as to overcome pains and aches, weaknesses and irregularities. It is surprising what a host The Slater Shoe Store, of people are using this great food cure. A few weeks' trial will convince you of its singular merit.

A WIDE SPHERE OF USEFULNESS.

—The consumption of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has grown to great proportions. Notwithstanding the fact that it has now been on the market for over twenty-one years, its prosperity is as great as ever, and the demand for it in that period has very greatly increased. It is beneficial in all countries, and wherever introduced fresh supplies are conctantly asked for. It is said by philologists that there

BUSINESS AND SHORTHAND. The Federated Schools of Canada-Toronto, Hamilton, London, Galt, Berlin and Guelph-held their field day ed at the First Methodist Church, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Galt, Beron Friday, on the Ontario Agricultural College grounds, at Guelph. There was a good representation from all the of the General Conference special schools. The Forest City Business College were successful in winning the football match against Berlin, and also the tug-of-war. The London boys pull-ed first Toronto and then Hamilton over the line. They were challenged by a picked team from the Agricul-tural College. After a tug of three minutes the Agricultural College boys were declared the winners. A banner was competed for, which was presented to the school making the greatest number of points. Hamilton was first, London second. CONCERT AT PORT. The Young People's Society of C. E. gave a musical and literary concert in St. John's Church, Port Stanley, Saturday evening. The programme was a delightful one, and incuded classical selections on the organ by Mrs. A. Taylor and Mr. Quance. Among the numbers given by Mr. Quance was the Hallelujah Chorus. Mr. Neil Burton showed marked ability on the violin in his rendition of Sweet By and Bye, with variations. Miss Jean Ellison sang very acceptably "On the Bonnie Banks of Loch Lomond." Miss E. Hepburn and Miss T. Campbell also won applause in two cleverly-rendered songs. Messrs. E. Earnshaw, ance and Thomas favored the audice with delightful numbers. Miss Hope Meek, Miss M. Gough and Mr. Thomas Meek convulsed the audience with numerous readings, and Rev. M. Fallis gave a short but spicy address. Rev. M. Courtenay occupied the chair.

Regiments in Camp Attend Divine Service Out of Doors.

Impressive Discourse by Rev. J. G. Stuart on the Law of Obedience-7th Regiment's Splendid Turnout.

During the week the camp ground belongs to the soldiers-officers and men of all ranks-and they are left pretty much to themselves, to drill and practice at the target, to burn in the sun and lie close, back to back, for warmth after "lights out"; but on Sunday the public owns the heights, and glad the tented men are to let it be so. For then they are put on their metal, regiment in competition with regiment, and thousands of judges are there to criticise. The service was conducted by Rev. J. G. Stuart, chaplain of the First Hussars, who preached the sermon; Rev. Mr. Hodgins, of Seaforth, of the Thirty-third, and Canon Dann, of the Twenty-sixth.

Rev. Mr. Stuart preached a very earnest sermon, taking for his text the universality of the law of obedience and the invariable results of disobedience. The whole universe obeys the laws of the Creative Mind; if it did not, chaos would result. It was quite as essential, the preacher said, that a soldier should obey his God as that he should obey his superior officer.

"Obedience," he said, "is more important than knowledge."

The devotional music was supplied by the massed bands of the several regiments, under the leadership of Mr. Wm.
