

WILL JAIL ALL IF "DEBORAH" IS PUT ON AGAIN IN TORONTO

Magistrate Suppresses Play as Highly Immoral, and Imposes Fines on Seven Members of the Company—Heavy Loss to the Producers Through Closing of the Show.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Toronto, May 23.—"Deborah" has been ordered suppressed. The seven actors participating in "Deborah" were found guilty on Tuesday night's performance, late this afternoon by Magistrate Denison on a charge of presenting an immoral play.

No mention was made of any other night's performance.

Deputy Chief of Police Archibald, however, declared that if any actor was made to put it on again, he "would back the patrol wagon up against the theatre and take them all to the police station."

The seven actors were each fined $5 and costs or 30 days each for Tuesday's performance. Maynard Waite, the manager, was fined $20 and costs or 30 days.

Manager Maynard Waite stated after the trial that on the advice of Mr. Denison, he had decided to discontinue the play which was presented for the first time on Tuesday night.

On that occasion W. Banks, the theatrical censor, ordered alterations to and eliminations of sections of the play. These will be carried out.

Rev. John Coburn, of Toronto's "Committee of Forty," which aims to keep the playhouses clean, laid charges as the first night's performance, with the result stated.

LIBERALS SCORE OPPONENTS FOR SCALP HUNTING

Wholesale Dismissals Absolutely Indefensible, Say Maritime Representatives.

Discussion Over Spending a Million Repairing Steamers and Ice Breakers.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, May 23.—With the Senate chamber the centre of interest, the Commons today was largely deserted, and spent its whole time in making progress on the estimates of the Department of Marine. The proceedings were almost entirely of a routine character.

Liberals from the Maritime Provinces engaged in vigorous criticism of the wholesale and indefensible character of dismissals which had been carried on by the Government. Mr. J. H. Sinclair, of Guysboro, described Investigator Duchesne as "a scourge" going about the province looking for scalps.

During the afternoon sitting an interesting discussion arose over the item for one million dollars for maintenance and repairs to government steamers and ice-breakers. Hon. R. Lemieux asked if the ships to be procured would be built in Canada.

Hon. Mr. Hazen stated that experience had shown that contracts let in Canada had not been delivered on time, whereas contracts were let to firms of established reputation in Britain, such conditions did not occur.

Tenders from the other side of the water were much lower.

It would, however, be quite fair, said the minister, to ask that tenders awarded British firms should be carried out in Canada, and that the firm should establish yards in Canada where the ships would be built.

STRAIGHT TALK AGAINST JAPS BY FIERY LEGISLATOR

Declares He Is Justified in Protesting Over Government's Attitude.

California Should Have Right to Pass Whatever Legislation Is Necessary.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Washington, May 23.—Hitting at California because the state is seeking to eliminate the influx of Japanese, Representative Bartholdt proposed a constitutional amendment vesting in the federal government authority to treat with its non-resident citizens.

Just before the introduction of the Bartholdt resolution, representative Sisson of Mississippi delivered his much advertised speech on the alien law controversy.

"If any nation should decide that it was to dictate to us how our land laws should be framed, then we would be unworthy of our nation's existence if we submitted to such dictation. Does anyone claim that this is a declaration of war because I announce this truth? I have no declaration of war for this government to decline to override the rights of a sovereign state at the dictation of a foreign power," he said.

"If the United States with its army and navy and with brute force—superior to anyone of these states—should take away from the state the right to control these domestic concerns and deliver the state to the mercies of the aliens from any nation, then I maintain the Federal Government has prostituted its authority. Is the mere announcement of this principle a declaration of war?"

"It was announced by Secretary Bryan this afternoon that important announcements might be looked for tomorrow. But he declined to indicate specifically the purport of these announcements."

FORCED TO ADMIT HIS PARTICIPATION IN SHADY DEALS

Stephen J. Stilwell Was Badly Rattled Under Grilling Cross Examination.

State Is Confident of Securing a Conviction in Big Bribery Trial.

[Special to The Advertiser.] New York, May 23.—The favorable impression that Stephen J. Stilwell made in taking the stand in his own behalf today during his trial for bribery was completely shattered under Assistant District Attorney Nott's grilling cross-examination.

Before he left the stand and closed his case he was forced not only to admit his part in several shady transactions, in which widows were involved, but to contradict a portion of the testimony of Samuel Lewis, jun., his main witness, and even to contradict his own.

Goed to the Jury.

The case will go to the jury tomorrow with the state confident of securing a conviction. In the morning both the defence and the prosecution will sum up.

Stilwell ended his direct testimony serene and smiling, after denials of having ever offered to report Geo. H. Keady's bill favorably for $3,500.

The most telling testimony admitted was concerning the suit of a widow of Daniel S. Decker, his former partner, in an effort to get Decker's share of certain fees.

"Were you Decker's partner?"

"No," he snapped.

"In a deposition after Decker's death in 1909 didn't you swear that you were the sole surviving member of the firm of Stilwell & Decker?"

"If that paper says so, I did."

"And then two years later, when this suit was brought by his widow, didn't you swear that you were not?"

"Yes."

Fell Into Trap.

Flustered, he tried to explain the discrepancy in his testimony, only to sink further into the trap Nott had prepared. He next admitted that a Mrs. Margaret B. Saunders, a widow of $7 years, had made him a residuary legatee in her will, and though he was not named in the will, that one will in 1907 was the last, and that he had gained about $4,000 from the will.

Upon a threatened suit, however, he compromised with the family and paid over $2,800 to the family. Thereupon the matter was hushed up.

Testimony indicated that the state records had been tampered with in reference to this case.

Expert Investigation.

An investigation will probably result, Stilwell said, that his reason for being so interested in the Ken-dall bill was to secure Governor Sulzer's support for the Bronx county bill in case the court appeals declared it unconstitutional. But as the court of appeals made its favorable decision on March 14 and the numerous telephone calls to Ken-dall's right after that, he was forced to admit that this was not his reason.

Mrs. Clara Walters, wife of Senator Walters, and Miss Eleanor J. Macder, a stenographer and relative of Stilwell's, testified. The latter made a good witness for Stilwell and denied the conversation over the telephone about the bribe.

A RICH FIND

More High Grade Silver Located on the Lawson Property.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Cobalt, May 23.—Another excellent shoot of high grade ore has been opened up by the La Rose. It is an addition to the ore reserves of the company, inasmuch as the existence of this particular showing had never been known before.

The strike was made at the 100-foot level about 100 feet west of the No. 8 shaft. The vein as it is now being developed is from five to six inches of 3,000 ounce ore and upwards.

While the Lawson has no long shoot of ore there appear to be numerous pockets of very high grade of such a richness that their comparative shortness is more than compensated for. A little more than a month ago the company ran into just such another shoot of ore. The recent strike will again boost the production.

MIKADO BETTER, BUT CONDITION IS STILL CRITICAL

Gravest Anxiety at Tokio Over Recovery of Japanese Ruler.

All Negotiations Over Alien Land Bill Have Been Discontinued.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Tokyo, May 23.—The condition of the mikado who is ill with pneumonia early today showed a slight improvement.

The latest bulletin signed by Doctors Mauro and Aoyama who are in attendance says: "His majesty's temperature has risen to 103.36. His pulse is 90, and his respiration is 30."

This shows a rise of 1 point from the time the previous bulletin was issued.

A number of native organizations have dispatched special messengers to the imperial shrine to pray for the recovery of the emperor.

Anxiety Prevails.

The official announcement that the emperor's ailment is pneumonia and evident anxiety of the royal entourage have conveyed to the public the impression that his condition is much more grave than had been supposed and in consequence a feeling of depression prevails in all quarters.

The dense crowds about the Ayoma Palace today prevented the removal of the mikado to the modern Chitose Palace as had been advised.

Although the people about the gates were very orderly a military guard has been placed about the palace. The emperor remained in his room, his temperature took the alarming rise from 101 to 102. When the fever showed no signs of abatement this morning the physicians in attendance permitted her to remain for some time and then insisted that she take some rest.

NEGOTIATIONS DELAYED.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Washington, May 23.—Spitting the arrival of a crisis in the condition of the mikado, no further steps will be taken in the negotiations concerning the California alien land law.

This fact was established today when it was learned that the conference between Secretary Bryan and Ambassador Chinda for next week had been indefinitely postponed.

Both President Wilson and Secretary Bryan watched the course of the emperor's illness carefully today and requested the Japanese Embassy to keep them informed of all developments. Indications of a change in the Japanese situation today is the fact that it was not touched upon in general discussion at the cabinet meeting and that not a single word was said in the development of the past forty-eight hours.

Nothing Will Be Done.

It is practically certain that nothing further will be done in the matter of the alien bill until after the emperor has passed the crisis in his condition. Japan has until August 10 in which to file her reply to the Bryan note, that being the date on which the Webb bill becomes effective. If the referendum fails, and it is understood that all negotiations between the two governments will be postponed as long as possible. The state department has advised the Japanese that everything possible is being done by officials here to prevent the enforcement of the law, and it is thought that the mikado's government will know the matter to rest for the time being.

Unable to Change Prince's Itinerary

Governor of Quebec Was Anxious to Entertain King's Son.

[Canadian Press.] Halifax, N.S., May 23.—Capt. Victor Pelletier, A.D.C. to Sir Francis Langelle, lieutenant governor of Quebec, has been in the city for the past few days endeavoring to complete arrangements for Prince Albert's itinerary which would bring the training ship to Quebec for the King's birthday. The Cumberland's itinerary calls for her arriving at Quebec on June 5, and Capt. Smith was unable to change the programme of the cruiser as arranged by the admiralty.

Capt. Pelletier also brought with him an invitation to the prince from Mayor Lavallee of Montreal to visit that city while the Cumberland is at Quebec.

Mayor Lavallee and the Montreal city council desired to go to Quebec on a special train to pay their respects to the royal sailor and have him accompany them on their return. This program however is not in accord with the King's wishes and there will be no state procession to Montreal, but the Prince with other middlemen is to visit that city and Toronto, also going on to Niagara.

Man Held-Up Was An East End Rumor

Reported To Have Been "Slugged" and Robbed of Large Sum.

A rumor to the effect that a man named Fitzmaurice was held up, assaulted and robbed of a large sum of money near the Grand Trunk tracks on Adelaide street shortly after midnight was circulated about the city.

No confirmation of it could be secured, however, the police and several families of that or similar names living in East London denying all knowledge of the affair.

The rumor was that the man was going towards his home with a large amount of money in his pocket, when he was set upon by two men, who struck over the head with a club. He was rendered unconscious, and while in that condition his pockets were rifled.

TEN PRESBYTERIAN LAYMEN GAVE $100,000 TO AID MEETING

Paid Transportation Expenses of Delegates From All Over Canada To General Assembly in Toronto—Four Thousand Will Gather.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Toronto, May 23.—The Presbyterian General Assembly, which will open here on Saturday, May 21, will be attended by four thousand delegates from all parts of the country. Of these six hundred are delegates to the meetings of Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies.

The expenses of transportation have been very large, but through the generosity of ten prominent laymen of the church, who contributed $100,000 each, this matter has been easily met without any charge on the ordinary funds of the church.

Outlook Encouraging.

The work entailed in preparing for the reception of the delegates has been enormous, but everything is well in hand, and the committees will be able to give all information that would be needed as to the location of any delegate in the city. For some weeks a large staff of secretaries have been engaged on the task, but the greater part of the work has been successfully and efficiently carried out.

An elaborate card system has been prepared with all names of hosts, churches, presbyteries, and delegates, carefully filed, so that it was possible to find the location of anyone at a moment's notice.

When Congress Opens.

When the congress begins the office staff will be transferred from Knox Church to the Massey Hall, where final arrangements will be carried out.

Words has just been received that two special intercolonial trains will arrive in Toronto early on the morning of the 21st with 500 delegates from the Maritime Provinces. The western delegates, it was expected, would also come by special train, but no announcement had yet been made of the time of their arrival.

HOTELMEN ARE ORGANIZING

Judge Durand, of New York, Tells Them How to Combat Temperance Forces.

Judge Durand, of New York State, has been in the city for several days for the purpose of organizing the hotelmen of the city. He has visited a number of Canadian cities and has made a number of speeches as to the best means of organization, and the best means to be adopted by the hotelmen to meet the movements of the temperance and prohibition forces.

A majority of the hotelmen attended the meetings conducted by Judge Durand, and were very well pleased. The Advertiser said that there was nothing to give out in connection with his visit.

Youths Planned to Rotten Egg Farmer

Nine Young Men Were Fined by Magistrate at Goderich.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Goderich, May 23.—Following young men and boys from the Township of Stanley, John Armstrong, Lloyd Armstrong, Daniel Johnston, William Johnston, Cyril Wylie, John Reid, Earl Johnston, Morris Johnston and Chester Duncan, aged from 16 years to 25 years of age, were up before Police Magistrate W. E. Kelly today, and were sent up for trial on a charge of unlawful assembly.

They were subsequently arraigned before County Judge Doyle, and pleading guilty were fined each $5. It appears that the boys gathered to rotten-egg a resident of the same township who had incurred their displeasure.

A hydro-electric commission has a gang of men working in Goderich preparatory to installing the system here, and expect it will be in operation by September.

WEDDING GIFTS ARE VALUED AT OVER $2,500,000

Kaiser's Present to Bride Was a Wonderful Tiara of Diamonds.

King George Changed Auto for Jewelry as Result of Accident.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Berlin, May 23.—The eve of the wedding of the Kaiser's daughter to Prince Ernest of Cumberland was marked by a gala performance at the Royal Opera House, the favorite theatre in state by the Kaiser and Kaiserin, the Czar, King George and Queen Mary, and many other notable persons, including the bride and bridegroom.

The interior of the house was lavishly decorated with festoons of Princess Victoria's favorite flowers, carnations, in all shades, from white to deepest red. In order that the overpowering scent might be avoided, the bulk of these were arranged in the balcony.

Chose "Lohengrin."

The play presented was the first act of "Lohengrin," which had been chosen by Princesses Victoria and the Kaiser. New scenery was ordered especially by the Kaiser. Putnam Griswold came from London to sing "Henry, the Fowler." The most brilliant audience ever seen in Berlin assembled in the theatre half an hour before the royal party entered. The parterre was en masse of gorgeous uniforms, and the front rows in the balcony were occupied by ladies of the court circle, mostly dressed in blue. This is understood to be Prince Ernest's favorite color. Many of the ladies wore diamond tiaras and the whole display of jewelry was striking.

A rap of the court chamberlain's wand on the floor indicated the arrival of the royal party. The bride party appeared first, the princess dressed in salmon-colored satin. Both bowed to the audience, and according to etiquette, remained silent during the entry of the royals. The Kaiser led Queen Mary into the box; then came King George with the Duchess of Cumberland, all bowing to the audience before taking their seats.

Performed Well.

Griswold, Rudolf Burck as Lohengrin, and Madame Refregan Waag as Elsa, performed well under the trying circumstances, etiquette forbidding any applause or cheering.

After the performance which lasted an hour and a quarter, the sovereigns drove through the cheering crowds to supper at the Cecil Hotel.

Wedding gifts numbering over 100 and estimated as worth more than $2,500,000, were inspected today by the British sovereigns and the Duke and Duchess of Cumberland. The Kaiser's chief gift is a wonderful diamond tiara. The Kaiserin gave the trousseau and a pair of diamond earrings. The bridegroom's parents a magnificent diamond necklace. Queen Alexandra gave a diamond corsage ornament, with a large sapphire in the center. The King of Saxony sent a great Dresden centerpiece that is one hundred years old.

King George had intended giving an English automobile, but being reminded that the bridegroom's brother had been killed last year in an automobile he altered his gift at the last moment. There were also many gifts of a useful character, such as furniture, pictures, horses and carriages, etc.

It is stated by high authority that the bride pair will be proclaimed Duke and Duchess of Brunswick with-in a few days. They will spend their honeymoon at the Kaiser's hunting-lodge at Hubertstuck near Berlin.

SENATE PASSES HIGHWAYS BILL DESPITE GOVT.

Carries Important Amendment Over the Head of Speaker Landry.

Unique Incident in Canadian Parliamentary History—Showing Up Gov

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, May 23.—For the first time in Canadian parliamentary history, it is supposed, the government was passed through the Upper House today on motion of the leader of the Opposition.

Because the Liberal majority insisted on incorporating in the highways bill an amendment insuring the operation of the principle enunciated by the Liberal majority in the Senate which had really killed the bill.

The amendment inserted in the committee stage of the bill provided that the sum of money voted in any year to be expended for highways' improvements under this act, shall be apportioned to the several provinces in the proportion to the population of such province, respectively, as shown by the next preceding census.

The Speaker Overruled.

Today the issue was vigorously fought out in the Upper Chamber. The Liberal majority, led by Sir George Ross, overruled the decision of Speaker Landry that the third reading of the bill could only be moved by the Government leader.

Then they proceeded to pass the bill by a vote of 48 to 15, a majority of 27. The Commons will now have to consider the bill as amended.

Senator Loughheed made it plain that the Government would do as it did last year. The bill will be killed, but the country will know that the onus must be at the door of the Government and not with the Liberal majority in the Senate.

He attempted to turn into a dark lane, but collided with the corner of the brick wall falling to the sidewalk. He was recaptured and landed in the cells.

JEWISH RESIDENTS OF CITY TO DEMAND SEPARATE SCHOOL

Anxious That Children May Have Chance to Study Hebrew Language.

Jewish residents of London may inaugurate a movement for the establishment of Hebrew separate schools. Mr. Joseph Fox is, among others, a leading advocate of the establishment of such schools. In the opinion of Mr. Fox, the Jews have quite as much right to divert their school taxes to the support of separate schools as the Roman Catholics.

The local Jews especially desire that their children shall be instructed in the Hebrew language. In England, children of the Jewish population are instructed in both English and Hebrew branches in schools largely supported by the benevolence of the Rothschild interests.

Want Study of Hebrew.

Jewish residents of London are not so anxious that their children shall be instructed in the Hebrew faith as that they shall have ample opportunity to learn the language of their fathers.

Hebrew schools are at present maintained in each of the two local synagogues. Classes in the Hebrew language and the Hebrew literature are held after school hours on week days and on Saturdays.

There are some sixty or seventy Jewish children of school age in London, and local members of the Hebrew faith are of the opinion that these are entitled to special consideration and that their needs are not adequately provided for by the public schools.

As a result, an agitation for the establishment of Hebrew separate schools is very probable.

An Outline of the Work in the Public Schools

Grade VIII., William Wallis, Principal Simcoe Street Normal Training School.

GRADE VIII.

There are two classes of pupils in the eighth grade of our city schools—those who intend to continue their studies in the Collegiate Institute, and those who intend leaving school, having completed their school education.

It is desirable that all pupils pass the entrance examination whether they intend to continue their school education or not. An entrance certificate is proof that the holder has satisfactorily completed the public school course of study, and in case a pupil reports upon his studies, it is more satisfactory to be able to attend the Collegiate than to have to re-enter the public school. The work for this purpose is divided into two groups, Group I, consisting of history, hygiene, nature study, and art; Group II, embracing spelling, writing, oral and written reading, composition, geography, arithmetic, and grammar. The teacher is required to submit a report to the inspector, showing that the candidates have completed, satisfactorily, the course outlined for Form IV., of the public school course. The report on the subjects of Group I must show an outline of the work done from September to December, from January to March, and from April to June. There is also a written examination on the subjects of Group II, set by the Educational Department, and written on in June.

At the beginning of the school year the pupils are submitted to a searching review of the work of the previous grade, for the purpose of fixing necessary principles and knowledge upon which the new work of the grade is based. Skill, accuracy, and speed are prime factors in the work of successful pupils in this grade. Consequently there is much drill and practice work done. The pupils are impressed with the idea that it is power to acquire knowledge and to cope with new situations that is more important than the knowledge of the sum total of many facts.

ART. It is a pleasure to the people of London to know that art is coming to the front, and has found a place as a necessary subject in the public school course.

There are many ways of teaching drawing, and there is no one way of which we may say that it is the correct way. It would be impossible too to teach all the things that might be suggested in art.

Pupils may draw from copies and imitate the work done by the teachers or others. They may draw from models or real things, and they go one step farther and become creative. Pupils usually begin by imitation. They see how the drawing is done and they try to do it. There is much to be encouraged in this kind of work, much to be learned and gained by studying good copies and by imitating good teachers in art. The work must not stop here, but pupils should draw from models and real things. They should be encouraged to attempt difficult work. Much interest is thus aroused. The powers of perception and of judgment are improved. The highest state of perfection is creative art. There are very few who reach this stage, for artists are born, not made. The pupils form habits of appreciation, however, even though their own work may be crude. All work that shows effort should be rewarded and there is very little to condemn in the work of the public school child. The course outlined and followed in the eighth grade is similar to that so ably outlined in the work of the lower grades.

NATURE STUDY AND ELEMENTARY SCIENCE. Teachers and pupils are realizing the value and importance of these subjects. It is truly said that ignorance is a great waste and destroyer. There are no subjects in the course that tend to correct this evil so well as these subjects. They aim to arouse and create in the individual an appreciation and a knowledge of the things and forces among which and by which he is able to live.

In the eighth grade, the nature study is a love for all beings and all life—is carried on. By careful comparisons the pupil is led to investigate and finally to relate and discover the great underlying truths and principles of science. He is thus able to remove erroneous ideas, superstitions and whims that have so long hampered the human race. His power of judgment and of common sense frees him from a state of bondage and fear. Much has been accomplished in the habit of investigation has been formed. It would be impossible to teach, and to understand everything in one short school year. It would be ridiculous if it were possible, when there is a whole lifetime before the child to carry on the work arrived at by nature study and elementary science. The work so viewed and extended. Some of the leading topics for study are: Plant and plant life, animal and animal life, the forces of nature and man's relation to each, the uses of natural and artificial devices—water, power, electricity, magnetism, cohesion and adhesion, capillarity, heat, growth, soils, climate, ventilation, means of communication, and transportation, the newspaper, printing, distribution, uses, etc.

HISTORY.

In the eighth grade the pupils are required to review and supplement the work in Canadian history, and to learn the outstanding outlines of British history as given in the text books. The pupils are required to learn in sequence the reigns of the various sovereigns, and the outstanding events of each reign. The great aim is to arouse in the pupils a liking for the study. There is no subject that lends itself to the teaching of history that furnishes richer examples of patriotism than the history of the British Empire. Much is done to develop a love of country by stressing the characters, and events connected therewith, of the great men and women of our Empire. The pupils are required to study the development of our free institutions, and to mark the responsibility that now rests with the people. The growth and extension of the Empire and the relation of the colonies to the Mother Country form intensely interesting topics. Special stress is placed upon how we are governed in Canada, and how the Government of the various colonies is administered.

HYGIENE AND PHYSICAL TRAINING.

The course in hygiene, already so ably outlined in the work of the lower grades, is renewed and extended to include the matter so well set forth in the Ontario Public School Hygiene. The pupils are required to practice and live out the principles of hygiene.

In physical training the pupils are impressed with the idea that that exercise is essential if they are to possess healthy and well-developed bodies. The exercises assist in forming new brain centres of control and thus assist the pupils in gaining greater mental power and activity. The time spent on these subjects is time gained because much more brainwork can be accomplished with their aid than without them.

WRITING.

Stress is placed on writing with muscular arm movement. The aim is to have pupils write legibly, with good form, speed and gracefulness. While every subject lends itself more or less to writing it is necessary to devote special time each day, with some special aim in view. Pupils are encouraged to become self-critical.

READING.

The aim is to understand the selections read, and they are required to read aloud so that the listener may understand what is being read. Before reaching the eighth grade, pupils have mastered word recognition and can give the thought to a fair degree, but in the eighth grade much stress is placed on the interpretation of thought and feeling.

The present textbook gives ample scope for practice in this. There is room for development in the reading of the other textbooks, in history, geography, hygiene and supplementary readers. Before going to the entrance examination the candidates must have read at least 600 pages of supplementary work, such as "The Lady of the Lake," "Evangeline," "Robinson Crusoe" and "Treasure Island."

Recognizing the fact that success in the present age depends much on knowledge of the facts of the world, magazines, pupils are encouraged to read much good literature. It is desirable that a taste for good literature be well established in the public schools.

SPELLING.

It is necessary for pupils of the eighth grade to spell correctly all words used in the various subjects, to form the habit of learning to spell new words as they find they need them. Addition much drill is necessary in learning to spell difficult words. Simple rules are learned and they are materially benefited by learning to articulate distinctly and a pronunciation correctly.

GRAMMAR.

English grammar, as taught in this grade, bears much the same relation to language study that nature study bears to elementary science. Grammar seeks to establish principles and laws governing facts. These facts are sentences. Grammar is well called "The Science of the Sentence." It seeks to classify and systematize a body of facts and principles which are met with in the sentence. These facts divide themselves into three divisions: 1. Classification of structural elements. Words and groups of words are classified and sub-classified. 2. Inflections. Changes in form of words depending on their uses or meaning, and of sentences that have come to take their places. 3. Syntax. The relations that exist between the various elements that constitute the sentence.

Pupils may gain a good knowledge of standard English from their study and use of good English. They may learn by imitation from good models and from coming in contact with people who speak correctly and thus have no fear of violating the principles of grammar. A knowledge of the principles and laws of grammar has, however, an indirect influence, and pupils are able to construct sentences from reason, not from imitation, and thus may form habits of correct speech through striving after new conscious ideals. A knowledge of grammar is an

Bodily Health Affects Character

Character, as well as success in life, depends very largely on the condition of the health. You cannot imagine a sufferer from indigestion being cheerful in disposition. Nor do you expect a person with exhausted nerves to be other than nervous, irritable, easily excited and short-tempered. There was formerly much guess-work in the treatment of exhausted nerves, but since Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has proven so successful in restoring nerve force to the system there is no necessity for experimenting. Some experiments are necessary for the advance of science, but they need not be at your expense or your risk.

No one can develop good character and ability with nervous headache, indigestion and the depressing effect of an exhausted nervous system. There is always the dark cloud of nervous collapse, and some form of paralysis look forward to.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is not a "quick cure"—no sedatives to lull the patient in the delusion that his pains are disappearing, no narcotic stimulants to exhilarate him temporarily at the future expense of health.

This food cure positively forms new, rich blood and builds up in the most natural way the starved and worn-out nerves.

aid in composition, and in the better understanding of literature; besides this it has a great value in mental discipline.

In carrying out the aims set forth, the teacher constantly keeps in mind that the pupils must work from concrete examples. The sentence first, the rule last. In the eighth grade the pupil's former knowledge is reviewed and extended.

Sentences are studied according to use and according to composition. The parts of speech and their sub-classes are taken. The substitution of clauses and phrases for the parts of speech is carefully dwelt on. Inflections and their substitutes are taken and finally the arrangement of the elements in the sentence is dealt with. The work is continued to that outlined in the Public School Grammar.

COMPOSITION.

The work is reviewed and extended. The great aim is to get pupils to express thought orally and in writing, in good standard English. Good standards are carefully kept before the classes, and carefully studied. The subject matter of history, geography, nature study and the reproduction of stories read in literature, furnish excellent matter for drill and practice in this work. Stress is placed on letter-writing and business forms and the statement of problems and solutions in arithmetic.

VEST POCKET ESSAYS

Photographs

BY GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

A photograph is a picture of a man as he looks when a photographer has balanced him on a stiff backed chair and has aimed a camera at him.

Photographs are a means of preserving woman's good looks and man's embarrassment for future generations. A woman will look a camera in the eye all day without flinching. She is sure her hair is on straight, but when the ordinary man is ordered to have his picture taken he makes an engagement with the dentist in order to escape.

This is because man thinks he is modest. But it really is because he has no faith in the ability of the photographer to make him as handsome as he would like to be. On the other hand, woman's faith in the photographer is only equalled by her faith in the retoucher.

Photographs are made by exposing a glass plate, which is more sensitive to light than a trust agreement. This plate has been developed. It goes through the hands of a sad-eyed young woman, who puts it in a retouching frame and works over the customer's features and complexion. She is sad-eyed because she knows that no matter how shamelessly she improves on nature, the woman who sat for the picture will shake her head when she sees it and say: "Isn't that awful!"

Photographs once cost $2 a dozen, and looked like the sister regardless of consequences. Nowadays, however, photographs are taken by artists, who juggle with lights and shades, and bend the sitter around this way and that until artistic angles are secured. The artist then prints the results on a half acre sheet, mounts it in a portfolio, signs it in lead pencil and charges a piece for the prints. They are worth to him as long as you don't see the original.

Photographs are valuable because some day our descendants will dig them out of the attic, just as we have "Taken by artists who juggle with lights and shades and bend the sitter around this way and that."

But while we looked at the old tintypes and said, "What horrible features the ancients used to have!" our descendants will exclaim with delight over our beauty when they find our pictures, and they will frame us and hang us on the wall beside the picture of Helen of Troy and Apollo Bevelled.

ONE WONDERFUL NIGHT

BY LOUIS TRACY.

His hearer smiled, and her manner changed from frown to friendliness. Indeed, if he had not been so wrapped up in the highly disagreeable task which lay before him, he could hardly have failed to notice that she welcomed, rather than resented, the visit of a smart-looking young man to the establishment.

"Oh, come in, do," she said, glancing up at him with demure but very bright eyes. Why didn't you say at once that you had been sent by Mr. de Courtois, without trying to scare me stiff by talking about relatives?"

He obeyed, and he closed the door. "I really meant what I said," he said. "Something has happened to prevent Monsieur de Courtois coming here this evening."

"Not coming! Then there will be no wedding!"

Her voice was subdued, but she put such distress, such perplexity, into her words that at any other time Curtis would have marvelled at the gamut of emotion which the feminine temperament was capable of. Still, he had to risk even a mild display of hysteria, so he went on quietly:

"You will understand now why I would rather meet some person other than Miss Grandison."

"But who is there to meet? She is alone. I do believe I am the only living being she knows in New York, except Mr. de Courtois. Why can't he come? What is keeping him? Has he been in an accident? Oh, I can see by your face that he is hurt—or he has been face down in a cage! Miss Grandison! Miss Grandison! Here is someone coming to tell you that Mr. de Courtois has been spirited away! Oh, dear, to think that this should be the end of all our planning and contriving!"

During this crescendo of excited and so-called intelligent utterance the girl had first backed away from Curtis, and then turned, running to open, without knocking, a door on the right of the extreme end of a corridor which divided the suite into two sections.

Curtis did not attempt to stop her. Whatever the outcome, he was committed now to an undertaking from which there was no retreat. He had expected that the maid, whose disjuncted outburst betokened, at least, that she was her mistress's pet, would come to tell him that the room into which she had vanished. But he was mistaken. Doubly mistaken, since the mental picture he had formed of Hermione Beauregard Grandison was utterly falsified by the slight, elegant, girlish figure which presented itself before his astonished eyes. Somehow those superb Christian names and that aristocratic surname had prepared him for a rather magnificent person, young, probably, because the dead man might be of his own age within a year, but decidedly impressive. He had gone so far as to imagine her an actress, of the simpering well-to-do type, who would address him in a deep contralto, and if and when she faintly, would sink gracefully on a couch correctly placed for scenic effect.

The reality took his breath away. He saw a girl, not a day older than twenty, dressed in a simple costume of brown cloth, wearing a hat, veil and gloves of harmonizing tints. The veil had been hurriedly lifted above the brim of the hat, and a pair of what seemed to be intensely dark violet eyes gazed at him from a small-featured, pallid face from which every vestige of color had fled.

"Is this thing true?" she said, halting timidly within a few feet of him. "Perhaps Marcelle has misunderstood you. Who sent you—Monsieur de Courtois himself, I suppose?"

Her voice, so wistful, so pleading, perfect in cadence, yet almost childlike in its evident anxiety to be reassured, reached unaltered to his soul. At once he began to ask himself why this mere girl should be exposed to the impish trick which fate had played on her, and in the same breath he was conscious of a fierce anger against the ghouls who had contrived it.

"Are you Miss Grandison?" he asked, rather to gain time than because of any doubt as to her personality.

"Yes, and you?"

"My name is Curtis—John D. Curtis. I only landed in New York three hours ago."

He added the explanatory sentence in order to clear the ground. It was, for the strange and horrible story he had to tell, but its effect was curious in the extreme. The girl's white face blanched to that wan hue which personal fear lends to distress.

"Where did you come from?" she gasped.

"From Pekin."

"Yes, I have been travelling without pause during the past eight weeks."

By this time he had recounted two certain facts about Hermione Beauregard Grandison. In the first place, she was the prettiest and most graceful creature he had ever met; in the second, she had all the hall-marks of good breeding and high social caste. His brain was so busy over these discoveries that he disregarded the really remarkable way in which the object of his visit had been shelved for the moment. It might reasonably be expected that the disconsolate lady would be concerned mainly as to the fate of the missing bridegroom, but the mistress evidently shared the maid's disquietude about Curtis himself.

And, precisely as in the case of Marcelle, Miss Grandison's face showed relief when it became manifest that he was a complete stranger.

Girlish Complexion
Now Easily Acquired

"A skin of blended snow, cream and rose" is the way an Ohio correspondent described her newly-acquired complexion. She is one who has adopted mercolized wax in place of cosmetics, massage, steam-baths and other methods. Many have tried this marvelous wax report that its effects are quite different from those of any other treatment. It produces a complexion of exquisite girlish naturalness, rather than one bearing evidence of having been artificially "made over."

One that is indeed "nature's" own result of gradually absorbing dead particles of surface skin, permitting the younger, healthier skin beneath to show itself and giving its pores a chance to breathe. Mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store in original one-ounce packages is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

I have also had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have mislaid the formula, here it is: one part of exfolite, dissolved in 1/2 pint witch hazel.—Julia Orff in The Clubwoman.

WHY NOT?

It has been suggested that in the event of the people of Canada endorsing the Borden naval policy—as we are confidently assured by the Conservative press and orators they are ready to do at the first opportunity—the principle should be extended to our militia department. This may seem rather startling to some people, who have never given the subject that careful thought which all loyal Canadians should give it. But the arguments favoring such a centralization of the British forces have already been foreshadowed, and are worthy of serious consideration.

In the first place there is a grave emergency facing the Empire. It is true the exact location of this emergency is not so clear as the emergency itself. But wherever it may be, our Conservative friends say it exists. Britain will be suddenly called upon to face a powerful and unscrupulous foe. And she will need all the help she can get from her loyal Dominion beyond the seas. Now, we have not got the men to help; but we have the money. Let us send over $35,000,000, more or less, without delay. A more permanent policy can be decided on later.

But, what about our own local defenses. It may be asked. The British Government will attend to that. The fact is, we are not in a position to do very much ourselves. Our young men do not enlist in the volunteer force for any extent. They are too busy making money. The larger percentage of those enrolled in our militia are British born. The logical plan would be for the Imperial Government to take complete charge of our defenses, by land as well as by sea. Opportunity might, of course, be given for any Canadians who might have the time and inclination to enlist in the Imperial army. Recruiting stations could be established in different cities, and volunteers invited. It would be understood that any Canadian enlisting would only be required to serve for a short term. He might want to leave, and make money at some business.

This policy would be much cheaper for us. At present we are being asked to spend over $10,000,000 a year for our militia department. It would pay us to give the British Government three or four times that amount, and get rid of all the care and responsibility we now have. We can spare the money better than we can the men. Of course, we would still keep up a militia department and a Minister of Militia, with his staff. We will have no trouble in supplying officers, clerks, etc. If the pay is good. But that would be a trifle.

This plan would not only be cheaper for us, but it would be more effective. One united army, under one war office, subject to one commander, ready to march at a moment's notice, as soon as the cable flashes the message across the sea. The great Imperial army would thus be a unit for the defence of the Empire. How much better than for each of the Dominions to have its own little tin-pot army, subject to the orders of its own Parliament.

But this policy is not only the cheapest for us, and the most effective for the Empire; it is really the only loyal and patriotic policy. Those who approve of a local militia force under our own control are really separatists who want to break up the Empire. Just think of it. Suppose the Empire at war; is not Canada at war also? Imagine Britain struggling with some powerful enemy, and the entire militia of Canada under the control of its own Parliament. If that Parliament had a majority of disloyal men—those pestiferous Grits, for example—why it might declare that not a bugle should blow, nor a flag be waved. Where would the Empire be on that sad day?

Despite the cogency of these arguments, we may as well confess we are not yet fully convinced. But we will admit that if they are good for a naval policy they have some force for a militia policy. One Imperial army, as well as one Imperial navy, sounds all right. It might be cheaper for us. Whether it would be the most effective, whether it would satisfy Canadian honor and self respect, whether it would promote the unity of the Empire, whether it would be consistent with our modern ideas of self government, on these points we should like more light.

THE TORONTO TYPE.

The Toronto Star starts out of its usual smooth and genial composure at the following remark made by this paper in reference to the forged Laurier tickets:

"The matter is now in the hands of the courts, and some light on To-ronto's code of political ethics may be shed."

The Star does not stop to think that our meaning may have been that the fierce light of judicial inquiry would reveal Toronto as a house of monumental purity. No, it assumes as a matter of course that our intention was to suggest the contrary, and fights up good and strong for its own city. It even goes so far as to prejudice the case in Toronto's favor:

"Some light may be shed on the ethics not of Toronto, but of a man described as being about 5 feet 7½ inches in height, stoutish, wearing a brown suit and a brownish-yellow hat."

So one man alone in all Toronto will be to blame. It is a holy city, and the only bad man in it must be insane, too, to buy 6,000 forged tickets for the righteously.

That is the way the optimistic, beaming, evening Star represents Toronto. It was so sweet-tempered, even in righteous anger, that it did not call back to London, "You're another." But it is funny that people around the province keep thinking of the Star's Toronto as a hotbed of bigotry and the small tricks of bigotry. It is thought of as a place out of touch with Canadian opinion and the Canadian spirit, trading in loyalty for mean partisan ends, speaking of religion and ethics, but playing an underhand game of ignorant and antiquated quasi-religious prejudice, which has little connection with morals, political or other. In spite of the many good people of Toronto, the name is a byword for these things from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Beyond question there are good people in Toronto; their name is legion. The Star itself is a shining example of the best spirit in Toronto or anywhere. But the dominant element is, like the heathen Chinese, to say the least, "peculiar." It is a type known as the Toronto type.

THE PROUDFOOT DEMONSTRATION.

The demonstration in honor of Mr. Proudfoot, to be held at Goderich on Friday next, is misrepresented by Mr. Hanna's apologists.

They choose to describe it as a renewed attempt to smirch the Provincial Secretary. In reality it will be the reply of Mr. Proudfoot's constituents to the malignant attacks upon their member. He laid the charges against Mr. Hanna because his party opponents gave him no choice. He tried to elicit the facts of the Taylor-Hanna transaction in the public accounts committee, but was refused the privilege of asking certain questions or of compelling an answer to them. He would have failed in his duty if, with the information in his possession, he had permitted the matter to drop.

Finding the regular avenue of inquiry blocked, he took the only alternative. He made specific accusations, and asked for their reference to a judicial commission. Instead, the Government sent them to the privileges and elections committee, composed mainly of its own followers. Like the other committee, this partisan tribunal strangled investigation.

Not content with a whitewashing report, the majority in the Legislature passed a vote of censure on Mr. Proudfoot, the Prime Minister leading the chorus of denunciation in a bitterly abusive speech.

Mr. Proudfoot has shown high courage. He has taken nothing back. He still asks for a judicial inquiry, and offers to resign his seat if his charges are not proven. The discredit attaches to the men who refuse this request, not to the man who makes it. Conservatives of independent mind agree that Mr. Proudfoot has not had fair play. Even those among them who apologize for Mr. Hanna deprecate the conduct of the privileges and elections committee. Insult is added to injury when Mr. Proudfoot is traduced for his service to the cause of public morality. Liberals intend to show their resentment of the treatment accorded him, and their gratitude to him for his unflinching performance of duty.

ASQUITH ON THE PRESS.

[Premier Asquith at the Banquet of the Foreign Press Association.]
The press can breed bad blood between nations; it can sow and water the seeds of reciprocal animosity and good will. Powers so large and so far-reaching, which, according as they are wisely or recklessly used, may make the difference between peace and war—unity—even between peace and war—carry with them proportionate responsibilities. What do they most need who inform and instruct and guide the public opinion of the world? They need what can best be got from intercourse and co-operation—knowledge and understanding, imagination, sympathy. You, gentlemen, are the unofficial ambassadors of the nations, signs and ministers, but by the confidence of your unnumbered readers in all the countries of the world. You can do as—perhaps you can do even more than—the illustrious diplomats whom I see around me to maintain the harmony and unity of European policy. But governments in this country can only lead when their people will follow, and there is no body of men who can do more than you to create or to destroy the atmosphere in which the plant of international good-will can alone thrive and flower.

Chance for Outing
With Good Wages
at Petawawa Camp

Still Some Vacancies Left For Teamsters With London Field Battery.

The following particulars should be of interest to any farmers or teamsters who may be contemplating going to camp with the Sixth London Field Battery. The rates of pay and the camp advantages are not generally known, and the information given below shows the battery camp in a more favorable light than it has hitherto appeared.

The government allows sixteen full days' pay at $1.25 each per day for the horses, and $1 for the driver, or $2.50 for team and driver. The pay is given for Sundays just the same as for other days. The government also supplies ration for the men, and their clothing, also forage for the horses and necessary harness. The value of rations and forage taken at a low estimate would be at least $1 per day for team and driver.

This figures out for driver and two horses as follows:
Sixteen days' pay at $2.50 .. $50.00
Sixteen days' rations and forage at $1 .. 16.00
Total .. $66.00
Working in London or the vicinity the teamster would be probably be paid $5 per day for himself and two horses. He would draw no pay on Sundays, and he would also have the expense of boarding himself and providing food for his team. This is quite a lot at the same value as that for rations and forage above, the horses and driver would earn as follows:
Fourteen days' pay (after deducting for two Sundays) at $5 .. $70.00
Deduct sixteen days' board and feed .. 16.00
Total .. $54.00

From this it can be seen that the man who takes his team to Petawawa for sixteen days would be $12 ahead of the man who stays at home. This is over $1 a day more earned by going to camp, to say nothing about the wear and tear which is saved the teamster when using government harness and clothing.

PATRIOTIC CONCERT

Bible Class of Memorial Methodist Church Gives Entertainment.

A patriotic concert was given in the school room of Memorial Methodist Church on Thursday evening under the auspices of the Adult Bible Class of the Sunday School. Mrs. Cochrill, organist of the church, acted as musical directress. During the evening addresses were given by Rev. S. S. Anderson, Mr. Francis, the teacher of the class and who acted as chairman, and Superintendent Petherburgh of the Sunday School. Mr. Lutz gave an interesting and instructive address on "The Life and Reign of Queen Victoria." Readings and recitations were rendered by Mrs. Fletcher, Mrs. Shave and Mr. Kantrell while the soloists were Mr. Cochrill, Mrs. Burgess, Mrs. Knight and Mr. Watson. During the evening a number of patriotic choruses were rendered by the members of the class and the ladies.

Upon the conclusion of the program the audience adjourned to another room where refreshments were served. The rooms were tastefully decorated with flags and bunting.

HONORED THE FLAG

American Scottish Society Gave Dr. Macdonald a Great Reception.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Red Springs, N. C., May 23.—"So long as this flag of Canada is the proud possession of the Scottish Society of America, it will never be trailed in the dust."
That declaration, by John H. Currie, in accepting the Canadian ensign, presented by Dr. J. A. Macdonald, with the compliments of Mayor H. C. Hoek, of Toronto, was cheered again and again by the thousands of Scottish Americans from the Carolinas and bordering states, who met at the annual assembly of the Red Springs. Never in the history of Red Springs were such crowds seen as gathered from the dozen counties settled by nearly 40,000 immigrants from the Highlands of Scotland after the fall of the Stuart cause, and before the American revolution.

We asked the mayor if it would rain or if he thought that it would snow. He calmly faced us as he said, "I answer neither 'yes' or 'no.'"

What has become of the old-fashioned father who used to buy fireworks for his boys by the clothesbasketful? Perchance he may be buying gasoline by the quart.

I have to inform you that the beef sandwich record, which you maintained from the front club opening, I captured at the front club opening. Mr. William Skinner brought home about ten pounds of beef, and has just finished the soup made from the bones formerly contained in the carcass of the cow upon which the barbeque was based. Mr. S. has easily tripled my record of 210 beef sandwiches at a sitting. And speaking about oysters and shell fish, that's some barbeque. Today there will be big dining at Danchester, and I hereby renounce all claims to the title of champion beef-eater. Also I do not touch other men's fish, nor come home via the market.

AS PER AGREEMENT.

Should Be the Birthright of Every Woman and Growing Girl.

Many women and growing girls who should have bright eyes, rosy cheeks, strong nerves and elastic step, and a good appetite, are soon to decline in health. Their spirits grow sluggish, the cheeks become pale, temper fitful, and the nerves over-sensitive. They may have inherited a tendency to ill-health, or they may have over-worked, over-studied or worried until the strength of the body was not equal to the demands made upon it.

To guard against a complete breakdown in health the blood must be kept pure and rich. No other medicine can do this so well as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They act on the blood and nerves, restore the appetite and keep every organ toned up. All women cannot rest whenever they should, but this strengthening medicine is within every woman's reach, and will keep them in the enjoyment of good health. And it is especially important that in every stage of woman's life the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills be well illustrated by the case of Mrs. David Chambers, Bensford, Ont., who says: "Some years ago I suffered greatly from impoverished blood. I was very pale and thin, and had no strength. I took a lot of doctor's medicine without getting any benefit, and at last decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which I had heard highly recommended. It was not long before I began to feel better, and after taking the pills for perhaps a couple of months my health was fully restored, and although some years have passed I have continued strong and healthy, and I think I owe it entirely to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

"Some time later my daughter, then about twelve years of age, had been working very hard at school and her health gave way. She was weak and listless and her hands and face were badly swollen and we feared dropsy was setting in. However, we started to give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and she was soon quite well again. I always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to any suffering family received from them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by writing to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

Small Hats Make Parasols Necessities of Feminine Lives, Here Are Some of the Very Latest Designs

Women have been wearing large hats in summer for so many years that the parasol has gone somewhat out of fashion, but with the tiny head covering now in vogue every woman will have to have a parasol or two in her wardrobe.

The ones seen in the shops are particularly beautiful and they are made of every conceivable fabric, from crepe de chine to velvet and from figured mull to cotton ratine.

If you can have but one parasol have it either black or white. If you can have two, make a selection of black lace over white with a black velvet band about the bottom. Then buy one of white linen either embroidered or trimmed with heavy lace. You can resurrect your old parasol frames and have them covered to match some of your gowns for very little, and these add a very modish touch to your costume.

But be sure and have at least one parasol while they are fashionable, as they are very becoming to every woman's face, be she old or young.

PROBLEMS OF THE FAIR SEX SOLVED BY CYNTHIA GREY

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn as they are received. No letters can be answered privately.]

Wants "Dolly Grey."
Dear Miss Grey: Could you answer the following questions:

1. What will remove black rubber stains from tan shoes?

2. What is the meaning of Arthur, Alfred and Reuben?

3. Could you tell me the address of some music store where I could get an old song called "Dolly Grey"? Yours truly,

BROWN EYES.
A.—I am afraid that the black marks are dyed into the leather, and would not be removable. You might partially remove the stains by rubbing with a cloth dipped in a solution of one-quarter teaspoonful salts of lemon to a cupful of water. Afterwards polish with a good tan polish. It may pay you, however, to have the shoes dyed black.

2. Arthur, noble; Alfred, counsellor; Reuben, a Hebrew name simply standing for the exclamation, "Behold, a son!"

3. Sorry, Brown Eyes, but I do not know where you could get the song. Perhaps some kind reader may happen to possess a copy and would loan it.

Cleaning Furs.

Dear Miss Grey: Would you kindly publish in your column how to clean ermine furs? and oblige.

ONE WHO WANTS TO KNOW.

A.—To rub cornmeal or powdered starch into the fur, allow it to remain there for several days, and then shake and brush out thoroughly, is the best home method of cleaning I know of. A repetition of the process is sometimes necessary if the fur is quite soiled.

Letters, Love, and Law.

Dear Miss Grey: I have been a reader of your columns for some years and have been much interested.

Could you kindly give me the answers to the following questions:

A young man has been corresponding with a young lady for a couple of years, and numerous love-letters have passed between them, although no engagement existed. He has ceased writing. Could the said young lady take legal action against him? If so, to what extent?

Would the ardent letters of a young man be considered by law as an engagement?

Would the number of years the correspondence lasted have any weight? Thanking you in advance,

PERPLEXED.
A.—No action can be taken if there was no promise to marry. The letters and the number of years might be evidence of such a promise if you so considered it. You had better consult a lawyer.

Pineapple Recipes.

Dear Miss Grey: Can you give me one or two ways of using pineapple? Would like a pineapple drink and a dessert or two if you could possibly publish them. Thanking you,

HONORIA.
A.—Pineapple Lemonade. — Make a syrup by boiling two cups of water and one cup of sugar, ten minutes. Add one grated pineapple and the juice of three lemons. Cool, strain, and add one quart of ice water.

Pineapple Souffle. — Beat the yolks of three eggs slightly and add the grated, rind and juice of one lemon, one-half cup of sugar and a few grains of salt. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens. Remove from the fire, add two-thirds cup grated pineapple and one and one-half tablespoons granulated gelatin soaked in two tablespoons of cold water. When mixture begins to thicken, beat in one-half cup heavy cream, beaten until stiff, and the whites of three eggs beaten until stiff. Turn into a mold and chill thoroughly.

Pineapple Sponge. — Mix one-fourth cup sugar, one-third cup cornstarch, and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Dilute with one-fourth cup cold milk and add to two and three-fourths cups scalded milk, stirring constantly until mixture thickens and afterwards occasionally.

Remove from the fire, add two-thirds cup grated pineapple and one and one-half tablespoons granulated gelatin soaked in two tablespoons of cold water. When mixture begins to thicken, beat in one-half cup heavy cream, beaten until stiff, and the whites of three eggs beaten until stiff. Turn into a mold and chill thoroughly. Serve with thin cream.

NEVER SOLD IN BULK

Tea-Table Talk

In view of the fact that today is our glorious "Twenty-Fourth," two little scenes from the life of her majesty Queen Victoria may make rather timely and interesting reading. Each seems to replete with that mainly and sympathy which were so characteristic of the late Queen, and which endeared her to such an extent to the people of the "three kingdoms."

The first scene is of 1842, the Queen paid her first visit to Scotland, accompanied by the Prince Consort. The new experiences of her first visit outside her native land delighted the Queen. Nothing escaped her eyes, the many storied houses of the Old Town (Edinburgh), the aged crones standing at the doors in their white matches, the barefooted lads, and the hawking, the fish-wives in their short petticoats with the "culler herring" fresh drawn from the Forth in keels upon their backs, and all the sights of the historic town were quickly noted in her majesty's diary. She took oatmeal porridge at her breakfast, tried the "finnan haddies," and pronounced the homely Scottish fare excellent. Never, probably, had the Queen so enjoyed a holiday. She roamed about lochs and glens, made friends with the old women in the cottages, and enjoyed a Scotch dance which was absolutely new to her. Great was her amusement to see the astonishment of one old woman when told that the young lady to whom she had given dowry from her garden was the Queen. The ancient dame rubbed up her best English and endeavored to make her majesty understand that she was "right welcome to Scotland!"

The second anecdote runs thus: "The keenest interest was always shown by the Queen in the condition of Hindu women, and it was her influence which inspired the rapid spread of Zenana work. In July, 1881, she received at Windsor, Miss Belby, a medical missionary from India, and after listening to her account of the sufferings of Hindu women in the time of illness, for need of doctors, the Queen turned to her ladies and said: 'We had no idea that things were as bad as this.' Miss Belby then took from a pocket which she wore round her neck a folded piece of paper containing a message to her majesty from the Maharajah of Poonah. The Maharajah of India suffer when they are sick, was the burden of the dark-eyed queen's appeal. The Empress returned her a message of sympathy and help, and promptly established a permanent fund for the training of women doctors for work in India."

And speaking of the "Twenty-Fourth" does there ever come to your mind a memory of how you used to spend the pleasant May holiday in childhood?

Holiday Memories. One small child, I well remember, used to be allowed to pass his happy hours in the country. And what a delight it was to scamper out into the green fields, climb fences, and get the heaviest of the day's work.

Perhaps one of the greatest fascinations of the day's outing was "zoin' fishin'" in the farm creek. What rambling over the hills, through the fields, and down the stream of dandelion; what fearful steep skirting at the creek at the foot of the hill; what squeals of terror if the faintest little green snail crossed the path for a moment. And then, once down at the edge of Big Creek, what important business of unwinding the line, what scheming to get the other person to bait the hook with the wriggling worm!

Somehow, nobody up at the farmhouse ever seemed to expect much from us in the way of "a catch," but how proud were the small child and the other person to take home a rather sorry string of tiny fish and see them later appear on the supper table, tiny morsels of fried delicacy! And what an appetite the small child always brought to that holiday supper at the farm house.

But the day's excitement did not end with supper. With the darkness came fire-crackers and Roman candles, and perhaps two or three wonderful sky-rockets that burst, way up into a shower of blue and red, and pink sparks.

Then with aching feet and heavy eyelids, and more often than not a burnt finger or frock as a result of the evening's celebration, the small child would be carried to bed, sleepily oblivious to the fact that the long-anticipated "Twenty-Fourth of May, the Queen's Birthday," was over for another year.

The Normal

Cushions Beautify the Home

Nothing else gives to the home that air of intimacy which makes it both attractive and personal so much as pretty pieces of feminine work, which strike here and there a dainty note. Among these one may give the first place to the cushions, whose forms and materials are of an infinite variety.

The lingerie cushions may be made of costly hands of yellowed flannel, mingled with old women embroideries of old Paris point lace or Brussels lace. These cushions are extremely attractive either oval shaped or oblong or else round, with an old "fond de bonnet" or lace cap centre forming a rose motif in the middle.

Sometimes a wreath of roocco roses in pale tones is placed there. Others are simply made of coral or banana tones of Liberty silk, gathered into a round form, giving the impression of a large flower.

Tapestry is once more becoming the fashion—not the tapestry that is taught to little girls, but all the classic stitches—the Bobelin stitch, the fine stitch and the coarse stitch called Cluny, which is wonderfully adapted to the mediaeval designs, which show worthy dames in cone-shaped head dresses exercising their grayhounds in a landscape peppered with turreted castles—or else large flowers mingled as in the old Louis XVI. tapestries.

The fine stitch is used for the Louis XVI. tapestries with bow knots, objects or delicate colored ribbons.

Some old embroideries are finished off at the edge with gold braid on crimson damask; others are made with the help of a wide ribbon on old silk. This style is very original on a coarse blue linen with embroidery of figure design woven with old-fashioned braid in old gold.

Some are of drawn work, with complicated openwork and imitations of Venetian lace or of Madeira embroidery, whose openwork border is adorned with a wide ribbon threaded in and knotted at the four corners.

CHECK YOUR TEMPER.

If bad temper were irremediable there might be some excuse for trying to look at it from a different point of view. If it were a disease for which its victim could in no sense be held responsible, it might then be necessary that one should suffer its outrages meekly, but when we realize that the disposition that is the cause of so much misery is nothing more than a habit—a habit that can be cured just as others are cured—exhibitions of temper assume a very distinct aspect of cruelty, tyranny, and cowardice. Better a few weeks of heartache, better months of sorrow and disappointment, than the lifetime of misery that is certain to result when either a wife or a husband is so selfish as to allow the evils of a bad temper to go unchecked.—Graham Hood.

Flowers for Home Gardens

Few plants are less exacting than nasturtiums, as to soil. Really, a rather poor soil is better than a rich one, for rich ground causes an immense growth of foliage, but at the sacrifice of bloom.

Mignonette, sweet alyssum and candytuft like fairly rich soil and object to being moved, so they should be started where they are to be grown all summer. Seeds may be sown early in May and pressed into the ground very lightly.

The petunia also makes an irresistible appeal to everyone. Seeds may be sown in May and thinned to six inches. Early plants are secured by starting seeds in the house in March. The seeds are very small and should be sown covered with soil.

Becheur's buttons must not be overlooked. They are generous with their quaint blossoms the whole summer through. Seeds should be sown in March or April and the plants thinned to from four to six inches.

The best way to get very early blossoms is to sow the seeds in the fall, covering the beds lightly with leaves during the winter.

The sweet pea is the spiced darling of the garden, says The Woman's Magazine. It gives its best only to those who are willing to pamper it. If you would try to win its friendship, plant the seeds as early as the ground can be worked in trenches, but first dig over the soil to a depth of two feet.

KATHERINE LESLIE'S HOME CHAT

Theorists and Working Woman's Salary

The people who theorize are always with us. And they are always so ready to make others the victims of their theories! Any thing is possible to the theorist, but it is the putting of the theory into practice that tests it and gives it a value or renders it idle and futile. The theorist, for example, who lays it down that a working woman who has to pay board, can live and dress easily upon $8 a week is like all theorists in having a fine disregard for details. This theorist assumes that if a woman has a suit, a pair of shoes, a hat and gloves, she has all that is necessary to a seemly and decent appearance. How joyfully would one like to make a theorist of this kind live by law up to his theory. Such theorists are as foolish in their theories as they are inconsistent in practice. Is a woman clothed by a suit, a pair of shoes, a hat and gloves alone? Are there not a hundred and one necessities and accessories besides these that never could be covered by the sum prescribed? What of underwear, stockings, petticoats, corsets and garters, and dress shields? And must she not have a raincoat, umbrella, and rubbers for rainy weather, in going to and from her business? And must she not have changes in shirtwaists and neck garniture if she is to be presentable? And in a climate like ours should she not have clothes for warmth? Then there are handkerchiefs, veils to keep the hair tidy, hair pins, safety pins, a purse or bag, as well as the perennial problem of presentable gloves. And the theorist will note that not one of these things are luxuries—necessities all! Not an ornament amongst them!

Now after deducting her board and laundry, not to mention the absolutely necessary car fares in large cities, perhaps the theorist will demonstrate by actual figures how the working woman who is to do her work well is to get all these out of her $8 a week. And this is not all—there are toilet articles such as tooth brushes, and tooth powders, things to keep the hands and nails in presentable condition, occasional medicines, occasional dentist bills, occasional doctor's bills, and the extravagance of working women in looking for higher salaries becomes apparent to the least helpful of people—the theorist! Of course there are brave enduring creatures who manage on this sum—but they exist—they don't live!

The belt has taken a very important place in our present costumes. On the very simple, almost childish dresses that we wear with so much audacity the centre gives a whimsical complicated note and is like the signature of a good maker, says a New York Herald fashion writer.

The sash ends which are very wide at the bottom, are weighted with wooden beads of different tones—turquoise, feidemorte, cherry color and vivid green—and the bizarre tones have a happy effect on the somber materials, especially on navy blue.

Some of them are finely braided and finished with quite large tassels, the day of fringe or the ornament of heavy passementerie being over. The latest novelty consists in encircling the hips with a wide sash of soft silk, knotted in bayadere style at the side.

The square Mousme bow, placed at the back, is still very much worn, and so are the black tulle sashes, whose wide butterfly bows make a striking note on the brilliant paleness of an evening dress.

The points of black chintilly lace to be found in the bureau drawers of our grandmothers may also be utilized by gathering the centre and allowing the ends to fall naturally on the skirt, like the folded wings of the swallow. Repose of pearls encircling the waist several times and knotted negligently on the side have a delightful appearance on mousseline de sole frocks for young girls.

Generally speaking the color of the sash should contrast with that of the costume; for example, one might wear a vivid green belt with an oyster white dress or cherry color on dark purple, etc.

Leather belts have not yet said their last word. For these belts grey or drab antelope skin is very popular, and when the little buckle and eyelet holes are either gold or silver it makes an attractive and refined detail of the toilet.

And millinery is in very truth the crowning triumph of dress in this season of grace.

STARCH IS QUITE IMPORTANT as an aid to the human system. Do you know that saliva is drawn to the stomach, after starchy foods have been eaten? Saliva turns starch into a sugarkike preparation, known as maltose.

The Ugly Duckling

AS TOLD BY AUNT GERTIE.

CHAPTER VI.

Out of a Thicket Flew Three Beautiful White Swans!

"Ugly" knew what kind of birds they were right away, though no one had ever told him. He felt as if he must go to them, though he had never seen them before.

"I might just as well be pecked and hit by beautiful birds, like them, as to have ugly hens and purring pussies and naughty children hurting me," he thought to himself.

"I will go to them," he said aloud, beaks and swam around him, admiringly.

"Oh, children, as his eyes fell to the water he saw—well, what do you think he saw—not ugly duckling, but a—BEAUTIFUL SWAN!"

"Ugly" had turned into a big, graceful bird just like the other ones around him. Some little children playing on the bank saw him and cried—

"Oh, mother, look at that new swan! He has just come. He's lovelier and younger and happier looking than all the rest of them!"

The swans patted him with their heads and swam around him, admiringly.

"Maybe they will kill me. Well, I shall ingly. The children threw crumbs of bread at him. He was almost too happy to live.

Now I'll tell you the secret, boys and girls, if you haven't guessed it already. "Ugly" was born in a duck yard and his mother was just an ordinary duck mother. But the egg he was born in was a swan's egg, not a duck egg. He looked like an ugly duckling when he was little, but he grew to be a wonderful swan!

The Poets' Corner

TO THE EVENING STAR,
Star that bringest home the bee,
And set'st the weary laborer free;
If any star shed peace 'tis thou
That send'st it from above,
Appearing when heaven's breath and brow
Are sweet as hers we love.

Come to the luxuriant skies,
Whilst the landscape's odors rise,
Whilst far-off lowing herds are heard,
And songs when toll is done,
From cottages whose smoke designs
Curls yellow in the sun.

Star of love's soft interviews,
Parted lovers on thee muse;
Their remembrance in heaven,
Of thrilling vows thou art,
Too delicious to be given
By absence from the heart.

Could Not Sleep Well For Four Years.

HEART AND NERVES WERE BAD.

To the thousands of people who toss on a sleepless pillow night after night, or who pace the bedroom floor with nerves untinged, heart action wrong, and to whose eye sleep will not come, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills offer the blessing of sound, refreshing slumber.

They restore the equilibrium of the deranged nerve centres and correct the wrong action of the heart.

Mrs. Wm. Douglas, Thessalon, Ont., writes:—"I am going to send you my testimonial for what your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did for me. For four years I could not sleep well at night, as my heart and nerves were so bad. I tried all the doctors here, but none of them helped me. I read of your Heart and Nerve Pills, and tried only a few boxes, and I can certainly say they did me a great amount of good. I can now sleep as well as ever, and can advise anyone who suffers from heart trouble to try them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents a box; 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BUILDING BOOM IS ON IN EAST LONDON ALSO IN EALING

A Number of Houses Are Being Erected for Working Men
East of Egerton Street.

Stores Are To Be Built, and It
Is Said That Small Factories
Are Coming.

East London is now realizing one of the biggest building booms that has ever struck London. Evidence of new buildings can be seen on all sides and where once vacant lots dotted the section east of Egerton street fine residences for working men are being put up.

Many thousands of dollars are being spent for houses and work on several new stores is to be started within a short time.

Mr. Joseph Moss has let the contract for a new store at the corner of Dundas and Dorinda streets and the foundation work on it is completed.

Mr. William Hudson recently sold his property at the corner of Dundas and Eleanor streets to Mr. H. J. Jones for $5,000 and purchased two lots facing east on Dundas street. Shortly after he bought the property he received an offer, which was much larger than the amount he paid for it, but he refused to sell.

The new chapel which is being built for the Redeemerist Fathers, an order which recently purchased a large tract of land at the top of the Dundas street hill, is almost completed, and is expected that services will be held in the edifice within a month.

It is the intention of the order to build a large monastery on the site within the next two years, but the petitions from residents of the neighbourhood until a large church can be built.

Start Work on Factory.
Work on the new factory building is to be started without delay, and it is said that several small factories are to be built on the interesting line before long.

The boom in Ealing is just the same, a number of pieces of property having changed hands there within the past few months. A number of new houses are also being built there, the majority of them being a story and a half and of brick and cement.

Still Pay Two Cents For Drop Letters in City

Residents of New Districts Make
Applications to Government,
But in Vain.

Apparently the Government is not going to pay any attention to the many petitions from residents of the newly-named districts for the privilege of enjoying what they were promised when they amalgamated with the city; that is, the one-cent drop in postage rates and a free mail delivery.

Petition after petition has been sent to the local postoffice officials, and some of the residents have even written to the postmaster-general, but all they received was promises, and many of them.

Apparently the promises were like a good many others—made to be broken, for nothing has yet developed, and the residents are still paying two cents for letters mailed to people in the city, and a cent extra on letters sent to them by business houses or friends in the city.

Mr. James Winslow, of Chelsea Green, put in an application for the contract of delivering the mail in that section some time ago, but as yet he has heard nothing about it. Prominent Conservatives in Pottersburg and Knollwood Park have also added their prayers to the Government, but it has been without avail.

McCormick Company Rent Part of East London Building

Will Use Old Toasted Corn Flake
Building for Light Manufacturing.

All the machinery belonging to the Toasted Corn Flake Company has been removed from the old building on Grey street to the new building on Dundas street east.

The McCormick Company has rented part of the building and will start manufacturing there in the course of a few days. The latter company is making preparations for tearing part of their old building down and will use the building of the Toasted Corn Flake Company to handle part of their work until their new building is completed.

Rev. T. B. Clarke to Build an Orphan Asylum in East London Before He Leaves the City

Purchased Land Some Time Ago at the Corner of Hyla Street and Hamilton Road, But Could Not Build on Account of Lack of Funds—Will Not Leave City Until His Plans Are Completed.

Rev. T. B. Clarke, rector of All Saints' Church, is going to build an orphan asylum in Ealing, on the property on which St. David's Church is located. This has been his intention for some time past, and all that is retarding the work at present is a lack of funds.

When Mr. Clarke came to this city ten years ago and started his work amongst the workmen of East London, he conceived the idea of building such an institution to care for the little ones of his parish, left homeless. All during his stay in London he has had this in view, and several years ago, with his own money, he purchased a tract of land at the corner of Hamilton road and Hyla street, which is now known as St. David's Mission, leaving room at the rear for a large orphanage building.

Parish Has Grown.
When Mr. Clarke came to the city he rented a small cottage on Rectory street, near the corner of Lovett, in which to live. All Saints' Church, at that time was a small brick building, considerably in need of repair. Under his direction the congregation grew, and several years ago work on a new church and rectory at the corner of Inkerston and Hamilton roads, was started. Today it is one of the finest church properties in London, and is all paid for, with the exception of $9,000. Mr. Clarke also has a small church in Chelsea Green under him, and the congregation there is growing every year.

Received a Call.
Several weeks ago Mr. Clarke received a handsome offer from a church in a large city. When he was urged upon him to resign in London, but after seriously considering it he decided that his work in this city was not finished, and that he would not leave until he completed the payment on the church and rectory, and saw his early plan for an orphanage carried out.

He took the question of building the orphanage up with His Lordship Bishop Williams, and received his consent, as well as a promise of as much assistance as possible. It is expected that before long he will undertake the work of erecting the building.

Interviewed by The Advertiser Friday Mr. Clarke admitted that his sole reason for staying in London was to see the consummation of his plans. He was reticent, however, when asked about the orphanage, saying he preferred no publicity. He admitted that he intended building an orphanage on the property which he owns at the corner of Hamilton road and Hyla street, and said that he would have started work long ago if he had had the funds.

Has Had Hard Fight.
"It has been a long uphill fight here, but the congregation has stood by me, and I am beginning to see my way clear to go ahead with my plans," said he. "There are at least forty orphans in my congregation at present and I would like to build a home for them before leaving this city."

Will Not Leave City.
He is at present having a verandah erected on the rectory, and is making arrangements for a tennis court and bowling green on the lawns of the church.

Several members of the board of health have recently inspected the Spettigue rendering works in the southeast end of the city and will permit the plant to operate, when several orders have been complied with.

The members decided to refuse permission for a slaughter-house in the neighborhood to operate. The odors were offensive and there was a would-mous onip on expressed that it would not be wise to permit the place to remain open.

Six-Year-Old Boy Stops a Runaway

Clayton Smith, six years old, son of Mr. Harold Smith, 118 Hamilton road, was in the way of a runaway which occurred on the Hamilton road Thursday afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock.

The little fellow was playing in front of his father's store when he noticed a horse coming from the west, unbridled. The animal was harnessed, and one of the reins was dragging. As it came alongside the lad it had to slacken for a rig and in trying to avoid a collision it crossed to the side of the street on which he was playing.

Running alongside of it for a few feet he grabbed the dragging rein and although he was thrown to the ground he clung to it until the horse stopped.

Pedestrians in the vicinity thought the boy was injured, but by the time they reached his side he scrambled to his feet still holding the horse, and none the worse for his adventure.

Steals Blankets and Quilts From Victor Street Clothes Line

Mr. George Kettlewell, 18 Victor street, would like to meet the person who visited his back yard several days ago and left with several pieces of winter clothing, including heavy woolen blankets and quilts.

The women members of Mr. Kettlewell's family had been housecleaning and hung the bedclothing on the line, intending to take it in before night. They did not, however, and when they went to get it in the morning it was gone.

The police were notified and are working on the case, but so far no trace of the missing articles has been found.

SOCIETIES TO PICNIC.

The A. Y. P. A. of All Saints' Church are to be the guests today of Mrs. C. H. Parkinson, on the Vauxhall Hill. They will leave the church early in the morning, carrying luncheon, and will spend the day picnicking on the farm.

The Girls' Friendly Society of the church, received an invitation from Mrs. Langford to spend the day on the farm on the Gorge road, and will also leave early in the morning.

COMPLAINTS OF DUMP HAVE BEEN IGNORED

Residents of Rectory Street
Afraid of Fever From Dump in Vicinity.

Residents of Rectory street in the vicinity of Trafalgar street, are indignant over the laxness of city officials in allowing a dump to exist at that corner.

Numerous protests from the residents have been completely ignored at the city hall, and finally the residents, realizing that they could not get satisfaction otherwise, wrote to the board of health. Dr. Hutchinson took the matter up with the board of works and received an assurance that dumping would be prohibited there in future.

That will not remove the offensive odor which exists, and the residents believe that if something is not done to eliminate it, an outbreak of fever may occur.

M. Pasteur, the great French physician of Paris, once said: "I believe we shall some day rid the world of all diseases caused by germs."

Dandruff is caused by germs, a fact accepted by all physicians.

Dandruff is the root of all hair evils. If it were not for the little destructive germs working with a persistency of a better cause, there would be no baldness.

Parian Sage will kill the dandruff germs and remove dandruff in two weeks or money back.

It will stop itching scalp, falling hair and make the hair grow thick and abundant.

It puts life and lustre into the hair and prevents it from turning gray.

It is the hair dressing par excellence, daintily perfumed and free from grease and stickiness. It is the favorite with women of taste and culture who know the social value of fascinating hair.

Comes in large 50-cent bottle at all druggists and leading druggists and toilet goods counters everywhere. "The Girl with the Auburn Hair" is on every package.

The Tires That Won

No-rim-cut Tires brought about the biggest single saving ever made in car up-keep. At one stroke they did away with the enormous waste of rim-cutting. They provided for overloading and that feature added 25% to tire mileage.

For 14 years we worked, studied, experimented, tested--always seeking and adopting ways in increase mileage.

Point by point we perfected these tires.

Some of the things we accomplished you can see--the unstretchable base with 126 braided wires. The 10 per cent oversize--the No-Rim-Cut construction. These features cut Tire cost practically in two. They won the Tire Market in the United States and Canada. But there are other things just as important that are revealed only in service.

Here are two things that helped sell 2,000,000 No-Rim-Cut Tires to the shrewdest class of buyers in two countries.

A Casing Without a Weak Spot

Maximum mileage demands a casing of uniform strength over every inch of surface. Each layer of fabric must be stretched and laid on under unvarying tensions.

Every Goodyear Tire is machine built--that means absolute accuracy--that means a casing that bears the strain equally over every part of every layer of fabric--a casing without a weak spot.

The Goodyear Tire building machine was invented by us, to overcome the uncertainty of hand-stretching. It is controlled by our patents.

COLIN TAYLOR
CRITICALLY ILL

Was Pulled Over Plow by Team
When Bolt Broke Unexpectedly.

PNEUMONIA DEVELOPS

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Belmont, May 23.—Mr. Colin Taylor, one of the oldest residents of this village, broke his collarbone recently.

The horses pulled him over a plow when a bolt broke. Pleuro-pneumonia then set in, and he is in a very critical condition. He is the son of his son, Angus, concession 8 of Westminster.

The funeral of Joseph McCord, held yesterday from the family residence, 14th concession of Yarmouth, was largely attended. Deceased had been ill about a month with jaundice, and from the first there were but little hopes for his recovery, as he was in the 80th year. He was a native of the County Tyrone, Ireland, and came to Canada in 1876, with his family of small children, and settled in Belmont.

In July, 1905, his wife died. He was many years ago elected an elder of Knox Church, Belmont, an office he filled with credit to himself, satisfaction to his pastor and the congregation.

The following are the sons and daughters that survive: Miss Mary J. William and James, at home; David, of the C. P. R.; Robert, of Guelph; Mrs. Sproule, of Shelburne; Rev. Thomas, of Springfield, Man.; and Mrs. Charles Abbott, of North Dorchester.

The remains were interred in Kilmore Cemetery, South Dorchester, the services at the house and grave being conducted by Rev. J. Currie, of Belmont. The pallbearers were Messrs. David, Robert, William, and James McCord (his sons), Charles Abbott and Thomas Davidson. His youngest son, Rev. Thomas McCord, was unable to reach home in time for the funeral.

BOOM AT BELMONT

Many Handsome New Residences Are Being Erected.

Belmont, May 23.—Building operations are very brisk here this year. Among the new houses that are being erected are the following: Adam Harkness, John Stewart, Alva Jones, Amos Carrothers, W. Frank Hamlyn, Colin Taylor and J. C. Durand. Most of these are good, serviceable houses, which will add much to the beauty of the village. Houses have been at a premium during the past year, and several families are ready to move here as soon as they can obtain residences.

GIN PILLS PAID FOR SIXTY-MILE TRIP

Kidney and Bladder Were Relieved in Short Time.

A bad place to get sick up in the mining district, so far from anywhere, but this man found a ready relief shortly after he took GIN PILLS. He was fortunate in being able to get GIN PILLS, even though his chum had to travel 60 miles to obtain them.

Larder Lake, Ont., March 26.

"I had been suffering for some time with my Kidneys and Urine. I was constantly passing water, which was very scanty, sometimes as many as thirty times a day. Each time the pain was something awful, and no rest at night. I heard of your GIN PILLS and decided to give them a trial at once. I sent my chum 60 miles to get them, and I am pleased to inform you that in less than six hours, I felt relief."

In two days, the pain had left me entirely. I took about half a box and today I feel as well as ever and my kidneys are acting quite natural again."

Fortune Finds Him After Long Search

James Muirhead Is Located By His Foster-Mother, Who Is Now Wealthy.

Toronto, May 23.—A search of many years has been rewarded by the location of James Muirhead working in a barber shop on Richmond street. Over 30 years ago he had been adopted by a couple in Wellington County, and after they had gone away he had not heard of them again until upon request of the police he was located this week.

Prospering during her sojourn in the west, Mrs. Jennie Walker, the foster-mother, had not forgotten her charge and though now he is well up in years she wants to do what she can for him.

Muirhead has written to Mrs. Walker, but has not yet received a reply. The story he tells himself is as follows:

Back in 1875 a little orphan boy of 10 years of age, James Muirhead had been brought out from London by a charitable organization and put in the Galt Orphanage. He was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Awrey, of Garafraxa Township, Wellington County. After living with them for two years they went away and the little lad was left with Mr. David Awrey, of Erin Township, father of his foster parent. With him he lived until he was 19 years of age. For him it was an abundance of work and no money, for the average farmer does not see the necessity of turning over to his sons or foster-sons any of the emoluments of toil. Disgusted with his position as a hewer of wood only, without any compensation, he left his foster-home and going to Elora learned to some slight extent at least how to shear the locks and scrape the faces of the people of that burg. From there he came to Toronto, and according to his story he has been in Toronto since 1888, working at his trade. For some 12 years he was in one shop, at another time with a place of his own. Mr. Muirhead says that he did not run away from his home as reported, and has not been wandering around the face of the earth, but has been in the city the greater part of the time.

After Mr. and Mrs. Awrey moved away he had not heard from them at all, but from the communications to the police he understood that Mr. Awrey had died and she had married a Mr. Walker, and was now living in Oregon.

MLLE. PAZ FERRER IS DEAD AT PARIS

Became Famous Through Her Won-derful Work in Role of Camille.

Paris, May 22.—Strangely like the passing of "Camille," which was her favorite and most popular role, death came today to Mlle. Paz Ferrer, one of France's most beautiful actresses, at Fontainebleau, and the announcement of her demise was the first the public knew that she had been sick.

Mlle. Ferrer was the favorite daughter of Ferrer, the labor leader who was executed in Spain, and the tragedy left the girl heartbroken.

She was 22 years old and constant grieving undermined her health. Tuberculosis attacked her, but she said nothing about it except to intimate friends, and they were sworn to secrecy. Wasting away, the young actress kept on with her work at the Odéon until she could work no longer, and then retired to Fontainebleau "for a rest."

Her "Camille" delighted Paris more than any other "Camille" save that of Mme. Bernhardt, and that she followed the role in death as in life struck her admirers as remarkable.

RAILWAY LOST IN LONG-FOUGHT ACTION

Contested Suit Brought by Widow of Engineer for $6,000.

[Canadian Press.]
New York, May 23.—The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad was defeated today in a suit brought to hold it accountable for the death of Arthur M. Curtis, engineer of the Federal Express, when that train was wrecked on July 11, 1911, near Bridgeport, Conn.

A jury in the supreme court awarded a judgment for $6,000 against the railroad to the engineer's widow. The wreck in question caused 15 deaths, and was the subject of investigation by the coroner and the interstate commerce commission.

The railroad contested the suit very vigorously because it contended that Curtis failed to regard the signals, which told him to slow down at the cross-over where his train left the track.

Mexican Leader Warns Financiers Against Making Proposed Loan.

[Canadian Press.]
Eagle Pass, Texas, May 23.—In a statement today during a conference of his military advisers, Governor Carranza, the Mexican constitutional leader, announced he had cabled to the "prime ministers" of Great Britain and France, warning them of complications if European capitalists negotiate the Huerta loan, and pledge customs receipts.

He cabled that if the constitutional movement succeeds, an attempt by England or France to collect this loan might provoke war with Mexico. He asked the ministers to make his statement public.

Questions should be addressed "The New Public Health," care The Advertiser, London, Ont. Private questions accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope, will receive private answers. Medical treatment for individual cases cannot be prescribed.

G. R.
Will staying in bed for a day or two at the beginning of a cold help to break it up?

Answer.—It is generally believed that staying in bed, when this means that staying in bed with good rest, good food, a clearing out of the bowels, a hot bath, and a strong sweating, in brief, a general shaking up of the body and its circulation, will "cure" colds. This is so seldom systematically done, however, and colds themselves are so however, and colds themselves are so given to continuing or stopping short of themselves, whether treated or not, that it is very hard to say if this treatment, or any other, really accomplishes anything beneficial.

There are probably at least thirty kinds of colds and as each may be mild, moderate, or severe, you can easily see that there are at least ninety combinations to be tested. If one could locate five thousand colds, including all these varieties, and leave them quite untreated; and then find five thousand more people, also with the same selection of colds, and give them this treatment, one would be able to say, from the carefully tabulated results, taking into account the age, sex and habits of the whole ten thousand, whether the treatment materially shortened the cold or not. Suppose the five thousand untreated averaged a week; and the treated, three days; then, if all other considerations were about the same in both groups, it would be reasonable to say that the treatment had shortened the attack by four days. Of course this experiment has never been performed, nor anything comparable to it, and so there is no way of knowing whether or not any one of the five hundred methods for treating colds are any good or not. Moreover it is a rule in medicine that the more treatments there are for any one disease, the less valuable the individual treatments prove themselves. It is easy to see that this rule is founded on fact, for when we know any really efficient treatment, we naturally use it to the exclusion of the others.

An infectious cold is much like measles or scarlet fever, etc., in that it runs more or less a certain course, despite all treatment; and the most that medicine can do at present is, just as in scarlet fever, not to cure, but to prevent the developing of the worst features, avoiding or combatting secondary infections, and watching for obvious damage to the various organs, so as to provide as early as possible compensations for such damage. Few people take the trouble to have such supervision rendered by physicians even for measles or scarlet fever or whooping cough. Still fever do it for colds. Hence, from lack of material to study, medicine knows but little of the great tide of colds that flows through the population annually. There are 50,000 people in London, which means at least 100,000 colds annually. Not one per cent of these colds receive medical study or real medical care. (Of course, this is quite apart from the colds that are really something more, grippes, asthma, hay fever, bronchitis, pneumonia, etc.)

Colds cost at least $25,000 a year in London, for extra handkerchiefs, cough medicines, etc., and, counting "loss of business," and other deprivations that go with them. Germs are expensive "luxuries" indeed! "Cold germs" alone cost Ontario annually at least a quarter of a million dollars in hard cash, if every person has but one cold a year, and loses only ten cents on its account! Everyone can figure for himself what this estimate is exceedingly low.

H. W. HILL.
INTERESTED.
I have known physicians to prescribe for their patients with beneficial results, large quantities of milk, eggs, beefsteak, etc., which would upset the digestion of an ordinary person in health. Would there be danger in trying this remedy without medical advice?

Answer.—Milk, eggs, beefsteak, etc., in large quantities cannot hurt anyone who is in health, so long as the digestion is not upset; all experiments in that direction are free to everyone who has the price.

But overfeeding is quite another matter. You do not suggest for what disease or diseases you would try this prescription. Even in tuberculosis, there is no object in stuffing a patient, unless the patient can digest what is taken; then the overfeeding can hardly be pushed too far, and is probably a larger factor in the "cure" than the fresh air treatment of tuberculosis patients is of advantage chiefly in providing an appetite for the excess of food which ought always to be combined with it.

Everyone knows the effect of outdoor life, in increasing appetite, and in permitting people to digest almost anything nutritious despite very poor digestion when living indoors.

It is assumed by many medical men that "chronic rheumatism" (under which name several different affections masquerade) is due, sometimes at least, to excessive meat diet. When meat, milk, eggs, etc., affect the patient to his harm, of course, some other diet should be used.

If this seems a rather rambling answer, you must remember you have asked a rather rambling question.

H. W. HILL.

HIPPOCRATES.

What are the primary seats of disease?

Answer.—The primary seats of disease? You must have been reading some of the dead and gone speculations of the Middle Ages, when men were absorbed in discussing disease instead of studying it at first hand. A curious muddle they made of it, their theories being so far from the truth, that even the language and terminology of modern medicine, and largely influencing many curious old traditions that the non-medical mind is fond of treasuring.

To understand at all the medicine of a brief hundred years ago, and this becomes more necessary the further you go back, it must be remembered that it was only so late as Bactria, that day, in Good Queen Bess' time, that mankind had the bright idea of looking to see what really did exist in Nature, instead of sitting still and weaving yarns about it. Remember that this idea was first suggested by a nearly two centuries before it was adopted in any kind of earnest in the latter part of the eighteenth century; remember that chemistry is so new that the existence of oxygen was not recognized until about one hundred years ago, though nearly half of the whole globe consists of it; remember that our own great grandfathers did not have any clear conception of what lightning is, clear conception of what up to one hundred years ago even the best educated people were hopelessly ignorant, compared with our ordinary high school graduates, of all their immediate surroundings. It was in Elizabeth's reign that an "authority" of that day recorded solemnly his belief that water, in Italy, weighed four ounces to the pint less than in England, and thus being lighter, it was more digestible; probably because, he naively adds, it had more moisture in it! What valuable conception of any material thing could such a race possess? People then and earlier, not only believed that a bird existed in Africa which if totally destroyed by fire, could arise whole again from its ashes and fly away unharmed, but these beliefs were sacred to them, and he who doubted them was looked on (through some supernatural twist of imitation-reasoning) as an atheist, and probably a traitor! One of the smaller bones of the body, at the lower portion of the spine, bears to this day the name, "Os sacrum," or sacred bone, because of the old belief that if a man were burned, this bone was always preserved. It never seems to have occurred to anyone of that period to take such a bone and see if fire was harmless to it! They preferred to repeat the old stories, believe in them, and teach them to their children, regardless of their truth or falsity. It was amongst such people that any sort of wild tale or legend might originate, provided only it was given a mysterious halo, was found in an old book, or told by an impressive stranger. It seems that the only things our forefathers refused belief to were things that were reasonable or probable or really and truly so. Thus it was that because Hippocrates speculated about disease four hundred years before Christ was born, therefore his speculations must be worthy of religious belief! So our forefathers repeated with unctious and based their medicine upon the sayings of a man who had no better eyes or ears than they and could use them no better; they never thought of looking for themselves!

Blood, phlegm, black bile, yellow bile, these were four "fluids" of the body, which Hippocrates thought he knew to be the essential constituents of the body. He was a brilliant man, and, for his day, a thinker, but he was without chemistry or physics, without a microscope; without the opportunity for the ordinary training of an ordinary first year medical student of today. These four fluids were his "primary seats of disease," and as these four fluids drifted about the body and tangled themselves together, (in Hippocrates' mind—remember the circulation of the blood was not discovered until two thousand years later!) they, by their various combinations and struggles produced disease! No one can get a clear idea of it all, for Hippocrates has and could have had, no clear idea of it himself, any more than a savage speculating on the construction of a locomotive, seen once at a distance. It is said that the natives of India believed for a long time that locomotives were driven by a mysterious, demon conjured into the boiler by some powerful magician. Just such were the primary seats of disease—mere names for nonsense. What could be expected of the medical knowledge of even a much later generation which believed a mother was a mere incubator and solemnly legislated that she was to have no relation to her child? This statute was in force in Great Britain for a considerable period in the seventeenth century.

The primary seats of disease, in modern medicine, is a phrase without meaning. The body is composed of hundreds of different structures, and very many fluids, and is a thousand times more complicated than Hippocrates ever guessed. Practically all of these structures may be diseased and every one of the fluids may be recognizably affected.

H. W. HILL.

ASTHMA.

Is asthma classed with lung diseases? How many kinds of asthma are there?

Answer.—Asthma, primarily, and in its pure form, is a nervous affection which for lack of a better way of putting it, may be compared to a sudden cramp of the lungs, due perhaps to causes not unlike those which produce cramp of the muscles of the leg or arm. The trachea (wind-pipe), the upper end of which forms the "Adam's apple" at the front of the throat just below the chin, is a tube, eight or ten inches long, which divides at the lungs into two tubes, one for each lung. These tubes then divide and subdivide like gas pipes in a city, becoming smaller and more numerous until they end finally, not in a gas jet, but in a little chamber, the air-cell (alveolus). The object of all these pipes is to lead the air from outside into the air-cells, where the oxygen of the air is surrendered to the blood which surrounds the air cells in a fine network of delicate little bloodvessels, and to carry from the air-cells, the carbon dioxide which the body has produced in its burning, and wants to get rid of. The body from this standpoint is a slow burning furnace. The lungs simply do the act, as a chimney for the "smoke." There is no visible smoke however, as from real factories, for the human engine burns so to speak, with a blue flame. All the carbon the ordinary factory produces in black smoke is, in the body, burned up to the last speck, leaving the body in the invisible form of carbon dioxide.

Now, these air-pipes are not rigid, like our real gas or water pipes. They are not only flexible, like rubber tubes, but also can enlarge or diminish in diameter by means of muscles which run round them in rings. When these muscles relax, the tubes widen; when the muscles contract, the tubes diminish in diameter. In health, this ability to change the sizes of the air-pipes is very useful. We are not conscious of it, and cannot control it, as we can say our arm muscles. It is one of the numerous automatic devices of the body. But, like all automatic arrangements, if anything goes wrong with it, there is trouble. Asthma is the result of the muscles contracting irregularly, unnecessarily, suddenly, at the wrong time, and especially too much.

Of course, the lungs suffering from asthma are not unlikely to give germs of various kinds a chance to develop that they might not otherwise have had, and therefore asthmatics sometimes suffer from real lung infections, in addition to the asthma.

The question of how many kinds of asthma there are depends entirely on how you classify the attacks. This is true of all diseases. In one sense there is only one kind of asthma, that is, the only true asthma is a cramp of the muscles of the air-pipes as above described, sometimes accompanied by a thickening of the mucous membrane, or the mucous membranes; in another sense, there are many kinds, each due to a different cause, producing similar effects.

Cardiac asthma is not asthma proper at all, although resembling it somewhat in some of the symptoms.

SIR GEORGE ROSS' REMINISCENCES

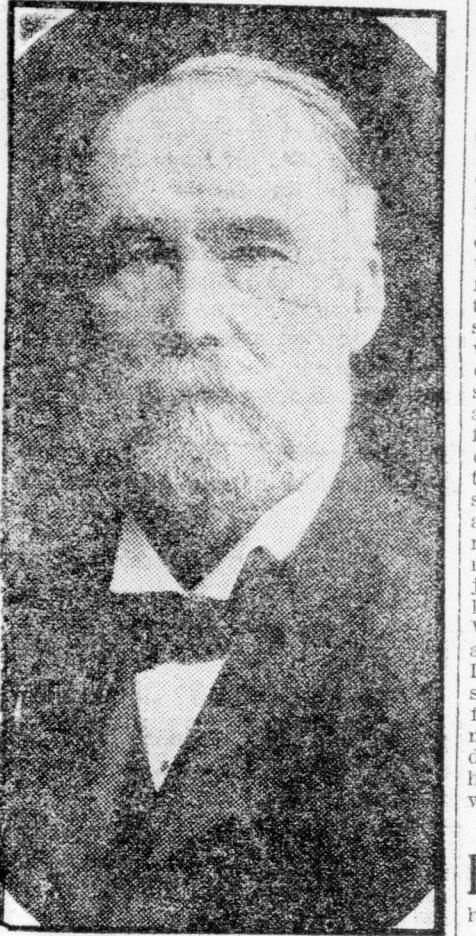

Veteran Senator Tells of His Nervousness in Making His Maiden Speech.

"THAT LITTLE DEVIL"

Was the Way in Which Sir John A. Termed Him—A Memorable Battle.

IN the volume of political reminiscences entitled "Getting into Parliament and After," by Sir George W. Ross, leader of the Liberal party in the Canadian Senate, and former Premier of Ontario, which has just been published by William Briggs, there are some intensely interesting stories told of various political incidents in which the author himself plays a part. In addition there are many concerning some of the persons who played an important part in the political history within and without Parliament.

Sir George in a most interesting passage describes his feelings and emotions when he first attempted to address the House. He says: For come mysterious reason I had the utmost dread of rising to my feet, and often waited for an opportunity, some other member would, perhaps, rise and appropriate the few ideas I had collected. After much decision and resolves and resolutions, however, I concluded that I could not learn to swim without getting into the water, and even if I were to drown I would make the attempt. My maiden efforts consisted first of a speech on immigration of about ten minutes, next of a speech on the necessity of restricting the sale of intoxicating liquors of about forty-five minutes, and a speech on the Pacific Railway of about twenty-five minutes.

I spoke from notes, as was my habit before I entered the House, but such was my state of nervous excitement that I dreaded a moment's pause to look at them. My knees trembled as I addressed the House. To prevent my attention being distracted by the general restlessness of the members present, I fixed my eye upon the Speaker, who seemed to be the only person who took any interest in what I had to say, and poured into his ears with reckless rapidity the arguments that I intended for the House. I never lost entirely the thread of my subject, although more than once I wandered from my premeditated course. A few members, who I fear had not listened to me very attentively, congratulated me on my maiden effort. To myself the effort was far from satisfactory. I pitched my voice several points too high and I galloped along from start to finish like Tann O'Shanter when pursued by the witches of Auld Kirk Alloway. I thought my experience on the platform and in all sorts of forensic combats would have so hardened me for the ordeal that I could face the House of Commons without a quiver. Vain delusion! The House bore no resemblance to any audience I had ever addressed. It was as stolid as the Sphinx and as unimpressible as an obelisk.

"That Little Devil Ross"

SIR GEORGE relates another interesting episode which concerned himself personally while the redistribution bill, commonly known as the Gerrymander, was under consideration. His opponent in West Middlesex, in order to make sure that the constituency would not be overruled in the general shuffle, visited Ottawa and called upon Sir John A. Macdonald. After showing Sir John how, by certain transfers and additions to West Middlesex as it then stood, his election would be perfectly sure, Sir John looked at him rather doubtfully and remarked: "You may put this township in West Middlesex and you may take that one off, or you may make any shuffle you please, but that little devil Ross will beat you in spite of what you do." Mr. Ross' opponent told him of this interview a few months after his defeat as an instance of Sir John's political sagacity. Of his relationship with Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir George writes: "Personally I seldom came in contact with him. Incidentally I met him in the lobby my first session, and without the formality of an introduction he shook hands, quoting lines from Pope: "Who taught that heaven-directed spire to rise?"

A PAGE ABOUT PEOPLE

HAPPY PAIR, DESTINED SOME DAY TO BE RULERS OF SWEDEN

THE CROWN PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF SWEDEN, who arrived in London recently on a long visit to the Princess' parents, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught. A PASSION FOR REFORM

LORD NEWTON, who recently introduced a Betting bill in the British House of Lords, is a peer who never hesitates to speak his mind, and this despite the fact that he spent six years in the diplomatic service. In 1896 he was elected Conservative member for the Newton Division of Lancashire, and continued to represent that constituency until he succeeded his father in 1899.

Old campaigners in Newton still remember him as one of the most candid politicians who ever sought the favors of the free and independent. At one of his political meetings a vociferous opponent inquired what was Mr. Legh's attitude towards the Game Laws. Promptly the retort came: "So far as my estates are concerned there is no use for them, for you've taken all the game."

Lord Newton has a passion for reform, and he even brought forth a bill to reform the Upper House, greatly to the consternation of many of his fellow peers. The barony which he holds was only created in 1892, but the Legh family have been settled in Cheshire for several centuries. Lord Newton's seat, Lyme Park, is a striking building of great historic interest. There are still preserved the beds on which the Black Prince, Charles I. James II. and Mary Queen of Scots slept when they visited Lyme.

Jimmy Lynch's Fad is Bibles

President of the International Typographical Union Has No Sports or Pastimes—Reads Shakespeare as Pastime.

JAMES LYNCH, president of the International Typographical Union, came into wide notice in 1899, when there was a particularly sour and complicated strike in Pittsburgh. Other leaders of the International Union had tried to smooth out the wrinkles and failed. Lynch was put in charge, on the theory that if he won the fight the union would be ahead, and if he didn't win the fight, Mr. Lynch would no longer bother his betters in union politics. Mr. Lynch is suave and strategic. He knows when to offer the other fellow a good nickel cigar, and when to grit his teeth and holler. He won the fight. The next year he was elected to the presidency of the I.T.U. He has been the chief of the conservative element in that organization. Lynch never discovered any particular fun in fighting, in spite of an Irish ancestry. But in getting what he wants "through the gentler arts of peace he is a jingling wonder."

He is now forty-eight years old, more than six feet tall, weighs more than three hundred pounds, has seven children, probably hasn't half a year's salary in the bank, and has been president of the I.T.U. for fourteen years. The I.T.U. made its greatest progress during Lynch's time as president. Its twenty-seven thousand members were working nine hours a day when he took charge. Now its fifty-five thousand members are working eight hours a day. Lynch made the organization spend $5,000,000 to win that fight, but he won it. It now has an old-age pension system and pays death benefits; whereas it once had about the cost of a sidehill farm in its treasury, it now has almost a million dollars.

Lynch has always favored arbitration. That's the way the printers settle their troubles nowadays. Samuel Gompers called him the "Napoleon of the labor movement." A big lawyer declared that he "was astounded by the amount of thought that Lynch could hide in the English language." Those who like Lynch at all, love him. Others begin their day with a petition that Lynch shall get a chicken bone cross-wise before vesper. He has no sports or outdoor leanings. He reads Shakespeare as a pastime—which is more than most do who quote the Bard—and goes to the theatre every time he gets an evening off. But his particular fad is Bibles. Show him an old Bible, somewhat frayed and miledew, and he'll give the day to it.

FRANCE'S PREMIER

M. ARISTIDE BRIAND, who was chosen by M. Poincaré to form the first Ministry under the new regime, has enjoyed a very short lease of power, for finding himself unable to keep the Government machine in working order he resigned.

M. Briand is generally reputed to be the Lloyd George of France, whom he resembles somewhat in appearance. Moreover, the careers of the two men are not dissimilar. Ten years ago M. Briand was a struggling Provincial lawyer. Even to attain this position proved a hard fight, and his student days were hampered by pecuniary difficulties. He was, however, a born orator, and when he threw himself into politics his abilities soon carried him to the front. In a few days he was an advanced Socialist, and it was due to Socialist support that he was elected Deputy for the Loire Department in 1902. Then he began to shed his Socialist principles, and when he accepted the portfolio of Public Instruction in the Cabinet formed in 1906 the fury of his former comrades knew no bounds. But M. Briand was not to be intimidated. When the railway strike broke out he dealt with it in such a manner that the Parliamentary Socialist group expelled him from its ranks, conferring on him such amiable titles as renegade and traitor.

M. Briand is well-versed in world politics, yet he is curiously ignorant of some important phases of English life. English methods of education are widely discussed in France, and enthusiasts are constantly urging the authorities to introduce some of them into Paris. One of these enthusiasts obtained an interview with M. Briand. "Have you ever thought, Monsieur, how useful it would be to send some one to England to study English Public school life?"

"Yes," Monsieur Briand replied, "curiously enough, the same idea has been in my mind for some time past. I am thinking of sending Mr. Poincaré, a lady who speaks perfect English, to Cambridge, where she will study English Public school life on the spot."

Not the least humorous part of the story is that the enthusiastic one who urged the introduction of English Public school life into France, was studied at Cambridge University.

IRELAND'S CHANCELLOR

THE appointment of Mr. Ignatius O'Brien as Lord Chancellor for Ireland is undoubtedly a popular one, for his professional abilities qualify him for such a position.

A little more than thirty years ago Mr. O'Brien was a junior reporter. He was called to the Irish Bar in 1881, when the land agitation was at its height. He soon found plenty of employment defending his fellow countrymen, and was very often opposed to Sir Edward Carson, who was also making his way in the legal world. Mr. O'Brien rapidly obtained a leading place as a junior on the common-law side, and in 1899 he took silk. In 1911 he was appointed Solicitor-General for Ireland, and less than a year after he became Attorney-General. He is generally conceded that he has proved the best Attorney that Ireland has had for many years.

Unlike the majority of men who have attained to legal honors, Mr. O'Brien has never contested a Parliamentary election, his whole energies having been devoted to his profession.

WHAT IMPRESSED HIM

WHEN W. J. Bryan, the American Secretary of State, is delivering a speech he makes a practice of addressing his arguments to some one man in the audience, and this he does in such an indirect manner that the victim is unconscious of the attack. On one occasion he was addressing himself particularly to an old farmer, who followed the speech with the greatest attention. Greatly pleased, Mr. Bryan sought out the farmer after the meeting and asked, "What was it that struck you most particularly about my speaking?"

"Wal," replied the farmer, and then paused in an embarrassed manner. Being urged to continue, he remarked, "Mr. Bryan, you're the only speaker I ever heard whose whole set of back teeth I could see while he was speaking."

King George's Handshake Hurts

An Amusing Story of a Recent Royal Reception of a Titled Lady and Her Rings.

A STORY is being told in London clubs about the way in which King George shakes hands. His Majesty is much more given to this form of greeting than any of his predecessors. Indeed, when he was at Woolwich recently, he shook hands with everyone who was presented to him. He has a friendly grip, and, so firm is it, that if one honours wears rings they get well pressed in the hand.

A lady who knew this, and was aware she was about to receive the kindly salutation, took off all her rings in her alarm, and asked a lady who was near whether she would mind keeping the rings for her till the meeting was over. On her return, after she had talked to the King and Queen, she searched high and low for the lady to whom she had entrusted her valuables, but could not find her. Then the Royalties began to move, and to her consternation she observed that the lady who had received her rings loomed large in the public sight. She was indeed speaking to the Queen at that moment, and turned out to be Lady Fortescue, the Lady-in-Waiting to her Majesty.

The owner of the rings now felt sure that the Queen was laughing at what Lady Fortescue was saying to her, and that the Royal amusement was about the King's handshake and her precautions over her rings. However, when Lady Fortescue came along and returned the wretched rings, she made an urgent request not to tell, she said "Most certainly not."

GEN. MACKENZIE A FINE SOLDIER

Chief of Staff Dismissed by Col. Hughes—Recalls the Dundonald Incident.

WHO IS TO BE THE BOSS?

The Minister or the Chief of Staff?—Record of Mackenzie's Career.

CANADA has just experienced another Dundonald incident. Brigadier-General Sir Colin Mackenzie, chief of the general staff of the Canadian militia, has handed in his resignation to the Borden Government because it is said he and that energetic militarist, Hon. the Col. Samuel Hughes, could not agree. The Minister of Militia made some changes in General Mackenzie's department, the latter objected, and Col. Sam. not ready to take backwater, even from a veteran of many strenuous campaigns, demanded his resignation, and got it. It will take effect in the fall, and the general will go back to England.

The Earl of Dundonald lost his position as Commander-in-Chief of the Canadian militia in much the same way. Hon. Sidney Fisher, a member of the Laurier Government, contended that he had the right, with the Ministry of Militia's approval, to make certain appointments to his own county regiment. Lord Dundonald objected, and was over-ruled by Sir Frederick Borden. Then at a meeting of military men in Quebec he took his side of the story, openly accusing the Government of giving him a raw deal, and of impairing the efficiency of the soldiery. This insubordination was met by a request for his resignation. The Earl next, abetted by Canadian newspapers unfriendly to the Government, tried to stir up trouble for Sir Wilfrid Laurier by making speeches in several large centres. Of course, Tory Toronto was visited, and the Army and Navy Veterans, as well as thousands of citizens, fell down and worshipped his lordship, and bitterly denounced Laurier.

The General's Record.

GENERAL MACKENZIE has only been in Canada a little over two years. Besides being a soldier of experience, he is a most enthusiastic sportsman. He is considered one of the first British authorities on shooting, fishing, and golf, and has been a record maker in both of golf and cricket. He still holds a record very highly prized in the army, that for the highest score for first wicket in India. His record as a sportsman, no less than his career as a soldier, show him to be a man of energy. As his name clearly indicates, he is a Scotsman, and a Highlander at that. He was born in 1861, and after the completion of his education at Lord Edinburgh High School and Sandhurst, entered the army as a subaltern in the Seaforth Highlanders. During a considerable period of his regimental service he held the appointment of adjutant, and went direct from his adjutancy to the staff, passing his examinations with very high marks. He had the honor of serving as A.D.C. to Lord Roberts, while Commander-in-Chief in India, being promoted direct from the personal staff to be Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General of the Quetta District, Baluchistan, which appointment he held up to a short time previous to the outbreak of hostilities in South Africa. His first active service was in the Egyptian campaign in 1882, receiving the medal and clasp and bronze star. Next he participated in the Burma campaign, receiving the medal and two clasps. Following on this he took part in the Hazara campaign, receiving the clasp and being mentioned in despatches.

Was Under Kitchener.

IN 1890-91 he took part in the Hunza-Nagar and Gilgit expeditions, receiving another clasp, being again mentioned in despatches, and receiving the brevet of major. Three years later the Waziristan campaign again saw him at the front, gained him another clasp and another complimentary reference in despatches. He participated in the Nile Expedition under Kitchener, proceeding to Khartoum and gaining two medals and clasp. The South African campaign gained him three special notices in despatches, the C.B., brevet of lieutenant-colonel, the Queen's medal and four clasps, and the King's medal and two clasps. At the beginning of the war he acted as Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General, shortly after Lord Roberts' arrival, taking over the important appointment of Director of Military Intelligence. For a time he was Military Governor of Johannesburg, and during the latter stages of the war commanded a mobile column in the vitally important district north of Ermelo with marked success. The war has held several important appointments on the staff, and since 1907 has commanded the 6th Infantry Brigade at the front. Mrs. Mackenzie is a daughter of Mr. Hercules Grey Ross, Indian civil service.

The happy couple left on the 8:05 C. P. R. train for points west, and on their return will reside at 1111 Mill street.

A Chance to Help.—The attention of Mr. Richard Sanders, of the Charlies Organization, has been called to a little blind girl living on the Hamilton road just outside the city limits. Suffering from paralysis, she has lost completely the use of her lower limbs. She has been three times in the local hospitals undergoing operations. It is thought that if she could be sent to the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto something could be done to remedy her condition.

Boys' Annual Camp.—The boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. will hold their annual camp at Lakeside June 23 to July 5. The camp includes boys from London, Woodstock and Stratford. The committee in charge are sparing no pains to give the boys a good time this year. A long and interesting program has been arranged, including boating, fishing, athletic sports, and other sports. Over 100 boys usually attend the camp at Lakeside which is 24 miles from Woodstock. Messrs. Chadwick, Pierce and Fletcher, the boys' secretaries, will have charge of the camp.

Boss Barbers Favor the Higher Prices

Not Likely That Union Will Take a Hand in the Matter.

A large number of the boss barbers of the city are greatly in favor of the increase in the prices of shaves from 10 to 15 cents and of children's haircuts to 25 cents despite a story which has been circulated in the city to the contrary. It is admitted that the only barbers of the city are against the proposal which was carried by a large majority at the meeting of the barbers in Moose Hall last week as they fear the introduction of high prices will diminish the number of customers.

The boss barbers whose shops are in the centre of the city are measured as they have to some extent suffered on account of the early closing.

As a result of the two resolutions adopted by the head tonsorial artists a large number of the rising generation have been obliged to scrape the shaves from their faces with a safety razor, but as yet no children have been seen on the streets with their hair cut in such a style that an observer could definitely state that a large bowl had been used as a guide.

It is anticipated, however, that the style will soon be the one that delights the hearts of the mothers, the one which permits the young boys to wear their curly locks at a length where the ends are supported by their shoulders.

It was suggested that the union might take a hand in the matter as a large number of the boss barbers of the city are members of the union, but in conversation with several of the proprietors of large shops the Advertiser was informed that such a step was improbable.

Make Your Paint Money Buy Satisfaction!

To make your paint money buy satisfaction means a great deal. You can't achieve satisfaction with cheap, inferior paints that crack and peel and blister and begin to look shabby almost as soon as dry. Nor with paints that are coarse and uneven in texture and lacking in lustre—that will not give long wear.

But your money buys unflinching satisfaction when you spend it for Lowe Brothers "High Standard" Liquid Paint—because it's made of best materials—it's made by highly efficient machinery which grinds and mixes much more thoroughly and uniformly than could be done by hand—

Because The Lowe Brothers Company has 50 years' experience in good paint making behind it, and its experts are always seeking for betterment.

The Concrete results are that "High Standard" Liquid Paint goes farther and spreads better than other paints, that it gives more wear and retains its look of brightness and freshness longer. It's the best paint investment you can make—pays you dividends of long and satisfactory service.

You can find more beautiful, durable, up-to-date color combinations in this line than in any other. Your house will not need to be like your neighbor's—for there's variety here.

"High Standard" Liquid Paint is put up in sealed, air-tight cans—ready for application.

Every can, large or small, contains the full quantity of paint designated on the label—Full Imperial measure of Paint.

Just as dependable as "High Standard" Liquid Paint are Lowe Brothers

Varnishes and Enamels, for exterior or interior finish, and Vernicol, a stain and finish for floors and woodwork.

They will save you money as well as give satisfaction.

Let us make suggestions for your color combination. Ask for color cards. See sample panels.
